BOYS GO TO BRECKENRIDGE ON SATURDAY

About fifteen miles of terracing has just been done by farmers near Cisco under the supervision of T. E. Caudle, vocational agriculturist at the high school and Chamber of Commerce.

Farmers here have learned the value of terracing and much soil conservation work has been accomplished by Mr. Caudle and his predecessors during the past few years. Heavy rains last year made it necessary to do much of the work over in places where the slope of the farms was too great to be handled by the terracing work. However, this did not deter others from using the services of Mr. Caudle. Most of the damaged work has been rebuilt.

Time for terracing has past now, said Mr. Caudle, and the boys in the agricultural classes will be engaged in pean budding and cattle judging from now on until the close of the school term.

The next trip of the boys will be one to Breckenridge next Saturday when they will officiate at a calf show held at that place. Four or five boys will make the trip.

On April 4, the cattle judging team will journey to Stephenville where they will compete with the John Tarleton boys. Other trips, such as that to College Station, will be made later on.

The boys enjoyed their trip to the stock show, Caudle said, and he is sure it was worth much to them to see the class of stock being shown in other places in Texas.

Cisco Centennial Celebration Set for July 4

ROAD MATTERS BEFORE C OF C ARE DISCUSSED

A general discussion of the milk project, reports on highway 89, between Weatherford and Ranger; No. 1 through Cisco, 187, known as the Leary road, appointment of committees to arrange for the Centennial celebration at Lake Cisco on July 4, resolutions of encouragement to the Twentieth Century club on their Safety Campaign and announcement of two trade trippers through Cisco, occupied the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce last night at their regular business session.

The committee which had been charged with the duty of suggesting a date for a Centennial celebration in Cisco some time this summer, reported on July 4 as the most logical time. This report was adopted and the president was authorized to appoint committees to carry through on the program.

Secretary Spencer called attention to two trade excursions that would visit Cisco during April and the president was authorized to appoint committees to arrange for entertaining these groups.

The first is that of the Houston and Beaumont trade trippers which will arrive in Cisco at 3:45 for an hour's stay on April 7, the second will be that of the Dallas wholesalers whose train will arrive at 3:05 on the afternoon of April 17, for a fifteen minutes' stay.

Secretary Spencer, making his report on highway 89, said that developments were favorable since his trip to Austin about the matter and that topping would likely begin in the early fall.

Highway No. 1 through Cisco is assured and that contracts on the work would be let late in April or early in May, was announced by Spencer.

Highway No. 187, known as the Leary cutoff, is almost finished, there being only about one mile yet to be paved. The road is in good condition and is passable at all times. This will be one of the best pieces of road in the country.

The milk project was enthusiastically discussed and action will be taken at the proper time.

S. R. Wood was named as contact director between the senior chamber of commerce and the junior body. Dallas Wales has been named by the junior body as their representative to the senior body.

The president was authorized to appoint committees to develop exhibits for both Fort Worth and Dallas during the centennial, space and funds having been allowed for Cisco's exhibits at both these cities.

A resolution of encouragement was unanimously adopted for the Twentieth Century club's activities in sponsoring the Safety campaign now being given publicity.

Floods Surge Over Vast Area in East

BAPTISTS WILL BEGIN REVIVAL MARCH 22ND

The forces of the First Baptist church are being organized this week for the revival services to begin March 22 and to last through April 1, with the Rev. E. F. Cole, of Lamesa, to do the preaching.

Placards have been placed in the windows of all business houses and the forces of the church are being marshaled to back up the preaching of this pastor-evangelist.

W. Frank Walker, local choir leader, will be in charge as director of music. The singers of all local churches are being cordially invited to join with the Baptist choir in preparing for a real music feast during the day and evening services. The singers will be organized and much special music will be used from time to time from the fine array of talent available in the various churches of the city.

Rev. E. S. James, local pastor, announces that the Rev. Mr. Cole is considered one of the outstanding ministers of the state, and those who attend the services will enjoy a religious treat. He is a fluent speaker and a deeply spiritual man, imbued with the zeal for preaching the gospel of salvation to lost men and women, said the Rev. James.

NEW TEST IN THIS COUNTY IS DUE SOON

Application to drill three miles east of Eastland has been made to the railroad commission and work is scheduled to begin immediately on a test on which production is sought from the 1,500 depth.

The application was made by U. Hampton of Tyler, former Eastland county operator, for the No. 1 E. A. & M. J. Harrell, C. U. Connelle E. T. survey, Abstract 1831, section 5 and block 6.

Tyler will drill the well with a spudger.

Ray T. Hoff's fifth try for production from the Staff section, the No. 2 L. M. White, was reported drilling Tuesday at 1100 feet.

DISTRICT GOV. OF LIONS CLUB HERE TUESDAY

District Lion Governor, C. P. Dodson, of Decatur, visited H. L. Dyer and other Lion members Tuesday, relative to plans for the convention to be held here June 16-17.

Lion Dodson was paying the Eastland club an official visit, and he said he could not forego the privilege of visiting old friends here. He is optimistic regarding the convention and its program here. He has been interesting himself in securing an outstanding speaker for one of the convention days and has been promised by the general secretary, Melvin Jones of Chicago, a man of national reputation to visit Cisco at that date, in the capacity of representative of the International organization.

Lion Dodson has gone over the plans of the local committees, headed by General Chairman H. L. Dyer, and Finance Chairman J. A. Bearmaff, and has oiled all of them. He predicts the greatest district convention in history for Cisco since it will be held at a logical season of the year, and on account of the thorough organization of the forces, backed up as they are by the entire citizenship of the town.

BARTON AND SWEENEY TALK AT LIONS CLUB

An address by Ralph Barton, teacher of Diversified Occupations, in the high school, on Safety in Driving, a campaign being sponsored by the Twentieth Century club, a talk by George R. Sweeney of Abilene on plans for a milk market and later a cheese plant for Cisco, and the appointing of a committee to meet with the Rotary club on plans for assisting Orbie D. Jacobs, injured football player, with funds derived from the President's ball, occupied the attention of the Lions at their noonday luncheon today.

Mr. Barton emphasized the importance of courtesy on the road just as we are courteous in meeting people when on foot. He gave startling figures on the force of impact when a car meets some immovable object when driven at a high rate of speed.

At the close of this talk by Mr. Barton a motion to endorse the safety campaign sponsored by the Twentieth Century club, carried.

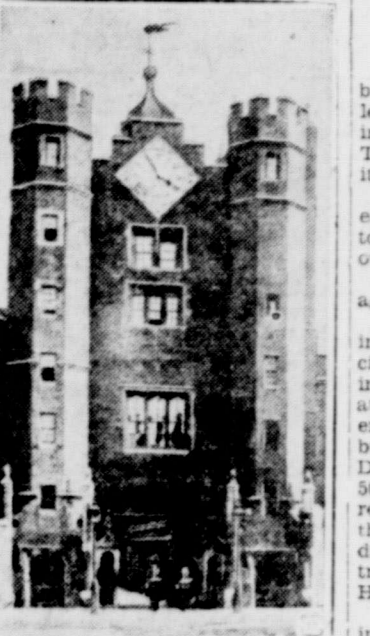

George R. Sweeney representing the Western Produce company, of Abilene spoke of the possibilities of milk market developments here. He brought out the fact that his market for cheese was practically unlimited since his company only produced about 10 per cent of the cheese they marketed. They are strongly in the market for turkeys and other like produce.

His company has refrigeration plants at Winters and Stamford where they maintain depots for assembling milk products. He will speak more fully at the Junior chamber of commerce meeting at the Laguna hotel this evening at 7:30, he said.

President Nance appointed as Easter Egg hunt committee, W. J. Leach, A. G. Tuttle, Horace Conley and Charles Sandler.

Joe Burnam brought up the matter of assisting Orbie D. Jacobs, who was injured in football practice about six years ago, in securing proper treatments for his injury. J. A. Bearman announced that the funds derived from the president's ball could be made available if it met with approval of the Lions and Rotary clubs. H. L. Dyer was appointed to confer with the Rotary club and learn their views and wishes, after which committees could go into the matter further.

BUSINESS AT STANDSTILL IN MANY CITIES

By United Press

Raging rivers today flooded Pittsburgh, Johnstown, Pa., and countless smaller cities in the east, causing millions of dollars in damages. The death list may mount to forty, it is said.

At midday the situation in the east and southeast was predicted to be the most critical and dangerous in many years.

In Pennsylvania the situation is as follows:

Johnstown—Flood waters receding after depths of 17 feet in the city in which 2300 persons perished in the historic flood of 1889. Accurate check on casualties in the present floods are still undetermined, but they may possibly reach 20. Damage to property is estimated $1,500,000 or more. Governor Earle reports conditions "so alarming" that he is going to Johnstown to direct relief and is sending state troopers and disaster workers from Harrisburg.

Pittsburgh—Water is 17 feet deep in parts of the business sections. Banks and other offices are flooded and partly under water. Fire added to the destruction and property damage mounts into millions of dollars. The water is reported to be the highest in history. Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio railroads suspend service.

McKeesport—Much of the city is under water. Six hundred families evacuated as the the overflowing Susquehanna river laid the valley into a state of waste.

In New York the situation is as follows:

Binghamton—Outside residential districts cut off by highest waters of the Susquehanna since 1865. All bridges closed. State police reported conditions grave in the entire southern section of New York state. The city of Binghamton is isolated from all communications.

West Virginia: Parkersburg—Ohio river rising rapidly cutting off industries and all parts of the business section.

Weston, W. Va.: Monongahela river is at flood stage. Hundreds of automobiles are stranded on flooded highways.

Maryland: Cumberland—The Potomac river is raging through the city, water is 10 feet deep in places. 6000 persons have been removed from their homes to safety. Damage at least a million dollars. Three trains reported marooned.

Ohio: Marietta—The Ohio river is rising so rapidly that the entire business district will be inundated. The town was completely flooded when dam gave away.

The District of Columbia weather bureau warned the flood condition was the worst since 1889. Warning issued of impending floods in the Shenandoah valley of Virginia.

Virginia: Lynchburg—The James river near record flood stage, spread destruction over much of the state. Rescuers were drowned trying to reach 20 people in marooned houses.

PETITION FOR BEER ELECTION FILED TODAY

More than twice as many names as was necessary were secured to a petition here yesterday and the petition filed for action by the commissioners court at Eastland today.

The petition which was said to contain 1,296 signatures, asked for an election to be held to legalize the sale of beer and wine of not over 14 per cent alcoholic content. It is stated that contrary to statements being made by those opposed to the election, that this does not legalize the sale of whiskey in this precinct.

The election, if granted by the commissioners court which is now in session and which is expected to act in the matter at once, will be called within not less than ten days nor more, than twenty days from the time of granting the petition.

Youth Carries Out 'Directions' of Lord

SAND SPRINGS, Okla., March 18.—(U.P.)—Jim Barley, 17 year old farm youth died in a hospital today from burns suffered when he set fire to a Sand Springs residence because "the Lord told me to."

Barley, thought to be a member of a strange religious cult, burned the residence where he was visiting. Neighbors noticed the house was ablaze early this morning and notified police. When the fire department arrived the structure had burned.

The chief said that he thought he heard a faint scream in a settlement nearby, investigated and found Barley entangled in barbed wire.

"The boy was muttering incoherently and was badly burned and torn," the chief said. "I did it, I did it," the chief said the boy screamed.

FDR ASKS HALF MILLION FOR ANOTHER YEAR

WASHINGTON, March 18.—(U.P.)—President Roosevelt today asked congress to appropriate $1,500,000 to continue the Works Progress Administration for another year.

President Roosevelt estimated the sum would be efficient together with the one billion dollars in an unexpended previous appropriation carried in the budget for the Civilian and various public works projects.

Limitation of federal help to this figure however is depended on re-employment of substantial members of the idle and of private industries the president said.

New York Mystery Girl Goes On Trial Friday Slayer of Rich Lover

By GEORGE H. BEALE (United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, March 18.—(U.P.)—Vera Stretz, the statuesque blonde who shot her lover, calmly admitted it and then refused to say another word, goes to trial here Friday charged with first degree murder.

The very fact that the cultured 31-year-old former school teacher has declined to offer any public defense for her act has made the case one of the most discussed in modern New York history.

Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, 43, a distinguished importer, once a professor of economics at the University of Frankfurt, was killed early on the morning of Nov. 12, 1935.

Police, called by neighbors who heard shots, broke into his richly furnished Beekman Towers apartment to find his body. Blood from a bullet wound was staining the old fashioned nightgown he wore. Beside the body was a torn receipt, indicating that Dr. Gebhardt had paid his own and someone else's rent at a hotel the night before.

Girl Lived in Same Building Gebhardt's apartment was on the 21st floor and Miss Stretz, a graduate of New York University, lived on the same floor.

Shortly after finding Dr. Gebhardt's body police came upon Miss Stretz. She was sitting on the stairway of the third floor. She was downcast but she was not weeping.

"Did you shoot Dr. Gebhardt?" an officer asked.

"Yes, I did," she answered dejectedly.

The best police efforts could drag nothing more from her. Officers especially sought a motive to aid them in attempting to prove first degree murder but she would not talk.

In the small bag she carried was the revolver with which Dr. Gebhardt was shot, four discharged cartridges, a woman's rose silk nightgown and her will, made two days before.

Note Expresses Despondency A note attached to the will said: "I am tired of it all. I am leaving this world in good sound mind. Cancel all previous wills and make this one stand."

Police immediately began an investigation of Miss Stretz and Dr. Gebhardt, but they learned little.

They discovered that she once participated in a $100,000 dispute over the will of her grandmother, that she apparently had an independent income, that she had studied abroad and that she once had claimed to have been married. She worked in Dr. Gebhardt's office.

Police learned that Dr. Gebhardt apparently was wealthy, that he had a wife and two grown children in Baden Baden, Germany; that he had many women friends and

Many Improvements Up and Down Avenue D--Fixtures Being Added

Improvements being made on Main street, exemplify the spirit of progress, now taking possession of business concerns in Cisco, causing them to fix a little here and a little there, and spread a little paint on both interior and exterior of business houses as well as private residences, is shown in the improvements at Reimers Cleaning plant, West Texas Utilities company and at the Elite Beauty shop and Joe Meador's Barber shop.

The floor is being taken up and relaid in the front office of the West Texas Utilities company. Superintendent P. P. Shepard said this morning that the extent of the improvements would be governed by the condition of the floor, when removed.

Other remodeling, such as some fixing of walls and painting would be done at the same time, he said.

Reimers have just installed new equipment for cleaning and re-blocking hats. This equipment is complete and will enable them to do a quality of work equal to that of much larger cities, said Mr. Reimer. Electrical connections are being installed today.

With the taking down of the wood awning on the property of George Winston at 702 Main street, disappears the last of the sunshades of that nature on this block. New awnings of a modern nature will be used instead, said Mr. Winston. This building is occupied by the Elite Beauty Shoppe, Miss Elizabeth, proprietor; and by Joe Meador's barber shop.

A Study in Domestic Cooperation

A high official of a transcontinental railroad said to me once, "A young man married is a young man marred." That man did not really believe that declaration. For the moment he meant what he said because he was extremely exasperated. And here is what ailed him:

He had decided to promote a promising clerk in his department to the position of agent at another town, and it was with a glow of satisfaction that he told him of the opportunity.

The clerk was overjoyed and hurried home after business to tell his wife. The next morning he appeared at the chief's desk, shifted around uneasily, hemmed and hawed, and finally bleated out the information that his wife was not willing that he should accept the new post because that meant they would have to move away from the town where her folks lived. So the clerk guessed he would have to keep on with his same old job.

"All right," snorted the chief, "keep right on being a railroad clerk all the rest of your life, if that's what you and your wife prefer."

There are wives who hinder their husbands. There are some men who would get along better not married to some women. There are wives who are not willing to make any sacrifices whatever that their husbands may progress in the world.

It wouldn't have done that young railroad man's mate any damage to have packed up her belongings and accompanied him to his new position and helped him in every way to make a success of the job. She could have gotten a pass and gone back to the home town occasionally and visited her relatives and friends. By boosting her husband's work, kidding him along, and cooperating with him, she could have helped him to advance, for his chief thought uncommonly well of him and had made up his mind to assist him up the ladder as fast as circumstances would permit. And the wife would have benefited more than anyone else by the husband's improved position in life.

There is many a married man today where he was twenty years ago, and who will be where he is now twenty years hence—if he lives that long—simply because he falls into the category of the fellows married through marriage. But there are not many such men. To condemn marriage because an occasional woman holds her husband back would be like condemning the practice of eating because now and then someone dies with acute indigestion.

Where one young man is married by marriage a thousand are made.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

TOBY RYAN, 19, works behind the jewelry counter of a large Manhattan department store. She poses for a photograph to be used in a store advertisement and MARTY HIATT, the photographer, tells her she has a "camera face."

Toby goes to dinner with BILL BLAKE, who works in an advertising agency. A few days later Toby loses her job due to the scheming of jealous MAURINE BALL, also employed in the jewelry department. Toby's efforts to find a new job are fruitless. She meets Marty Hiatt, the photographer, and comes to a decision.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII

"WELL," said Marty Hiatt, "in the first place he's a swell guy. And a friend of mine. But that isn't why I want you to see him. Ben Blake runs the Model's League."

"The Model's League?" Toby repeated.

"Sure. Haven't you ever heard of it?"

She admitted that she hadn't. "The Model's League," said Hiatt, "is an agency. It supplies models for commercial photographers. You know—the pretty girls you see in advertisements in newspapers and magazines. Photographers hire their models through an agency, and the Model's League is one of these. One of the best, too. Most of the girls at the top in the business—girls who make $175 and $200 a week—are registered there."

Toby gasped. "A hundred and seventy-five dollars a week! Just for having their pictures taken?"

Hiatt nodded. "Yes, and you bet they earn it. Posing is hard work. Of course, only the top-notchers get the high prices. But it's a nice job. I think you'd like it."

"But I don't know anything about posing."

"Neither did the others when they started. You've got what it takes, kid—a camera face. I told you that the other day, didn't I? Well, Marty Hiatt never misses. If I were you, I'd go up and talk to Blake."

Toby got to her feet. "Excuse me a minute," she said. There was a public telephone at the rear of the lunch room and Toby went to it. She deposited a coin and dialed the number of the employment agency.

The voice of the woman she had talked to earlier that morning came over the wire. Toby reported that she had failed to get the job at the store because she had been too late.

"I'm sorry," the woman said. "I was afraid of that. Well, keep in touch with us. In a day or so there may be something."

TOBY hung up the receiver. She came back to where Hiatt was waiting and said, "Well, I'm going to take your advice. Where is this Mr. Blake and how do I get there?"

The photographer took a card from his pocket, wrote the address on it. It was in a building uptown, easily accessible by subway.

Toby took the card, smiled and brought one hand up in a smart salute. "Okay," she said. "Never let it be said a Ryan missed an opportunity. I'm off!"

Hiatt grinned back at her. "That's the spirit," he said. "Some day I'd like a picture of you like that—one hand up and a big smile. Might be able to sell it for an add. Well—so long, kid. Remember I'm betting on you."

They went to the door together. Then Hiatt set off westward and

"Have you had any experience as a model?" the girl asked.

Toby turned east. She was aware, as she walked, of a feeling of excitement, a warmth that brought color to her cheeks and made her step light. Oh, if she really could get such a job, could earn half as much money as Hiatt had mentioned. It would be a fortune!

She thought, "But I'm not like those girls in the advertisements. They're beautiful!"

The photographer had seemed to believe that she could be a model, though. He had chosen her for his picture instead of Maurine Ball. Maybe she could do it, after all. Maybe she could—

All the way to the subway station and during the ride uptown Toby kept repeating to herself Hiatt's reassurances. But by the time she reached the office building, panic had taken hold of her.

With a gulp, she told herself, "They can't do any more than put me out. And I've got to go through with it now. I promised Mr. Hiatt."

Resolutely she opened the door and went inside.

TOBY stepped out of the elevator to face a deserted corridor. She wandered to the right a dozen yards, then to the left. Suddenly she saw the door just ahead. In neat black lettering were the words, "MODELS' LEAGUE, INC."

Toby pushed the door open, entered. The room in which she stood was a rather small office, separated from a larger one by a railing. A girl sat at a desk in one corner of the room. Behind her, lining the walls, were rows of photographs. The girl was talking to a slender, distinguished-looking man with gray hair.

A half dozen chairs stood against the wall at the right. A man and girl were sitting there, the man reading a newspaper. On the left, near the swinging gate leading to the office beyond, was a large screen on which a magazine cover and several advertisements, each a photograph, had been fastened.

A small girl in a black fur coat and red hat came through the swinging gate, paused before the screen. Toby suppressed a gasp.

It was the girl—the very same one—pictured on the magazine cover. The girl gazed at the photograph, studying it impersonally. Yes, indeed, it was the same girl—Toby became aware that the girl at the desk was looking at her inquiringly. The slender man had departed. Toby went over to the desk. She said hesitantly, "I'd like to see Mr. Blake."

"What is your name?" the girl asked crisply.

"Oh!" The other girl smiled in friendly fashion. "You're the girl Mr. Hiatt telephoned about?"

"Yes," Toby hadn't known Marty Hiatt was going to telephone but she would be eternally grateful to him for it.

"Mr. Blake is busy now," the girl at the desk said, "but he'll see you later. While you're waiting you can fill out this card. Have you had any experience as a model?"

Toby said that she had not. The girl did not, as Toby had feared, look as though this was a shocking admission. Instead she said, "I'll let you know when Mr. Blake can see you."

TOBY retired to the farthest chair and began to fill in the card. She wrote her full name, address, and the telephone number at her rooming house. In the space opposite age she wrote "19", opposite weight, wrote 110 pounds. She added that she was 5 feet 2 inches tall, wore size 12 dresses, four-A shoes, 9 stockings, 2 1/2 hats and 6 gloves.

Toby had written many applications for employment but she had never seen such a card as this. Absorbed by her surroundings, the time slipped by quickly. She was startled when she heard her name called.

"Miss Ryan—"

It was the girl at the desk who had spoken. She went on, "Mr. Blake will see you now. Go through the gate and down the corridor. It's the last office on the right."

Toby followed instructions. Before the last door on the right she halted. The door stood open.

The man inside looked up suddenly, saw her and put down the letter he had been reading. "How do you do," he said. "Did you want to see me?"

He was a broad-shouldered young man, wearing a tweed suit. His hair was dark brown and he had a very straight nose and a wide mouth. Toby, for a fleeting moment, thought she had met him somewhere. That, of course, was impossible. She must have seen him, though. All at once, she knew. His photograph—that was it! She'd seen his photograph a dozen times, advertising a certain make of collars. Or was it shirts?

She said quickly, "Are you Mr. Blake?"

"Yes."

"Then I do want to see you. I'm Toby Ryan—"

"Oh, yes. Marty Hiatt sent you over. Want to be a model, do you?"

"I'd like to try it."

"Come in and sit down," Blake indicated a chair at his right. Toby noticed that the card she had filled out was lying before him. He picked it up, glanced at it for an instant, then at the girl. Then he tapped the edge of the card against his desk.

"Let's have a look at you from the side," he said. "Now the other side—now straight front again."

He continued to study her for several moments, intently. "Well," he said at last, "we may be able to use you. The registration fee is $50 but that comes out of your earnings. You'll have to have photographs, though. Better have three—full-face, profile and standing. You can have them made for $25."

Something in the girl's face stopped him. Toby said, "Oh—!" and then, "Do I have to have the photographs?"

"Why yes."

Toby got to her feet, gathering up her purse and gloves. "I'm sorry," she said, "I—I guess I've changed my mind about being a model."

Coming To Texas Theater March 24

Seven of the screen's most noted comedians supply broad and rough slap-stick humor in Shakespeare's greatest comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which comes to the Texas theater on Tuesday, March 24. Here they are, singing at a Grecian festival in the film. From left to right they are: Joe E. Brown, James Cagney, Otis Harlan, Frank McHugh, Hugh Herbert, Dewey Robinson and Arthur Treacher.

"Midsummer Night's Dream" Attraction At Texas Theater, Beginning March 24th

Cisco will see the much discussed Max Reinhardt production "A Midsummer Night's Dream," according to C. J. Stevens, manager of the Texas theater, who has just completed arrangements for the presentation of the Warner Bros. film masterpiece.

Heralded as the greatest motion picture ever filmed, and produced on an unprecedented scale of elaborateness, Shakespeare's comedy masterpiece will be shown here as a special attraction with all seats reserved.

"Our present plan is to hold the premiere on Tuesday March 24, declared Mr. Stevens.

"This is the first time in a number of years any screen production has been 'road show,'" Mr. Stevens continued. "Cisco is one of the few cities that will have the privilege of seeing this production this year, as the general release date is many months in the future."

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" is the first motion picture ever to be made by Prof. Reinhardt, the genius who staged the mighty theatrical spectacle "The Miracle," and that the night before his death had been spent at a hotel with a woman other than Miss Stretz.

Leibowitz Defense Counsel Miss Stretz hired Samuel Leibowitz, famed criminal attorney who has won 112 murder cases and who never has had a client executed.

Among current defenses he is conducting are the cases of the Scottsboro Negroes.

The prosecution to date has theorized that Miss Stretz shot Dr. Gebhardt in a jealous rage on learning that he had spent the night before with another woman.

But she pleaded not guilty and said nothing.

Alarmed by constant references to her as "the icy blonde," the "cold killer" and the "iron-nerved tiger woman," Leibowitz asked reporters to meet her in the women's detention prison where she has been held for the shooting.

She would not say anything about the shooting and answered mostly "yes" or "no" or "yes and no."

Newsman came away to report that she was a "cold icy blonde with iron nerves."

Eastland Girls Win Music Meet Contest

Two Eastland county girls were awarded places in the sixth district Texas Federation of Music clubs contest at Snyder last Saturday.

Miss Mavalou Crossley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Crossley, was awarded first prize in the junior hymn playing contest and Miss Joelle Coffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Coffman, was awarded first place in the juvenile hymn playing division.

They will enter the state music contest in Fort Worth April 18.

Eastland Will Have Rodeo on Trades Day

Business men of Eastland are planning a big rodeo in connection with their semi-monthly trades day for March 24. They have appointed committees to have charge of other entertainment features which are expected to attract large crowds as all entertainment, including the rodeo will be free.

Merchants have been asked to cooperate by placing cars with banners and other suitable decorations in the big parade which will precede the rodeo.

"COWBOYS' CHRISTMAS BALL" Anson's historic "Cowboy's Christmas Ball" will be repeated in December as a Centennial year celebration which will attract interest from far beyond the state's borders.

MARCHES ON!

A 1926 model car popping along is certainly a true picture of a "has-been." Contrast it with the streamlined models of today. Compare its performance. It fades out of the picture... outmoded and obsolete.

And so it is with gas ranges. In their manufacture science and engineering have wrought advancements just as striking as in the automobile industry. Appearance, structural details and performance have been radically improved, creating a new standard in a cooking appliance. Without this modern cooking appliance no kitchen—no matter how modern its architecture and other appointments may be—can truthfully be called modern unless its range is a truly modern gas range!

is any oil any different?

Different because it's alloyed

We don't mean one of those "talking point" differences. We mean a real difference. Alloying Germ Processed oil goes beyond refining and re-refining. After every harmful element is cleaned out, the patented Conoco Germ Processing element is scientifically put IN.

That's what brings you this alloyed oil, with its strange attachment for pistons, cylinders, and all other engine parts—including every known type of bearing. All these parts really become oil-plated!

This oil-plating is extra. It's a plus—added to the tougher, more slippery, heat-beating Germ Processed oil film. You've got this high-durability oil film, sliding on thoroughly oil-plated surfaces, and so you're that much farther from wear and noise.

You're facing hotter days and harder runs. Out with dirty winter oil! Only the Conoco man can change you—quickly—to Germ Processed, the alloyed oil. Continental Oil Company.
