STATE RESTS IN RAYMOND HENRY CASE

About Our Friends

By STEPHEN A. LONG

For many years J. B. Cate, city secretary, was a traveling salesman... no, not likely the one you have heard about... but he was well-beloved because, strange as it may seem, he never sold a man more than was good for the man... We ourselves, being a grocerman once upon a time, relied greatly on our friend Cate to tell us when and how much to buy... But old friends some times come around and recall strange and interesting happenings.

C. L. Wood, whose father gave the town of Woodson its name, visited Cate Monday... bought groceries from Cate 32 years ago... certainly, Cate was just a mere youth then... But the man wanted 75 kays of kraut... that looked like too much kraut, so Cate remonstrated but Woods insisted and at the next call Cate expected to have to take most of the kraut back...

But none remained. "How did you do it," said Cate? "Just put one in every man's wagon who came to the gin and charged it to him," replied the enterprising merchant... Mr. Woods is visiting his daughter here in Cisco... Mrs. Earnest Wilson...

Mrs. Carl Baird parked on the street... Mrs. J. E. Caffrey shopping... Mrs. Harold McGown saying something about wanting her shoes... Mrs. Joe Hanrahan shopping... Mrs. W. V. Aisabrock watching the fire... Mrs. Hilmer Swenson parking her car out of danger...

K. H. Pittard was seen carrying a clipping of a big footed man being wanted at the centennial... it develops that he has a list of those entering the contest from Cisco. Here they are with shoe numbers, which are vouchered for by Pittard... H. Brandon, size 13 1/2; H. S. Drumwright, 12; A. G. Tuttle, 12 1/2; W. J. Foxworth, 13; K. H. Pittard, 12; Ralph Barton, 13; R. L. Maddox, 12... W. J. Leach, who is to assist in the preliminaries, says the contest will be staged and measurements taken at the Athletic field where there will be plenty of room.

Alex Spears says the meanest man is K. H. Pittard, who made a bank deposit the other day of five cents... cost of bookkeeping will be at least 25 cents... Alex hasn't been able to sleep since learning of it...

Friday Probable Date for Bruno's Death

GRAND JURY PRYING INTO WENDEL CASE

TRENTON, N. J., April 1.—(U.P.)—A promise of "important developments" in the strange case of Paul Wendel appeared today to be Bruno Richard Hauptmann's only hope of waiting execution.

The Mercer county jurist, which last night obtained a 48-hour delay in the execution of Hauptmann, while it investigated Wendel, who repudiated the confession that he killed the Lindbergh baby, postponed deliberation until tomorrow. Members hoped then to reach a decision on whether Wendel should be indicted.

The jury foreman, Alynne Freeman, asserted there were "interesting angles" in the Wendel case. Other sources said that big developments "might be expected." Attorney General David Wilentz, pausing in the state court house, his coat hung over his arm, a cigar protruding carelessly from his mouth, told reporters:

"I am a very confused young man, nothing can surprise me these days." That was almost an echo of the sentiment of reporters who had gone to the prison last night at the scheduled hour of execution only to be informed that it would be delayed on request of the grand jury.

It appeared most right that head prison warden Mark Kimberling would set Friday night for the execution. Despite the heavy curtain of political battling which concealed and confused the outcome, it was not believed the grand jury could delay a decision on the Wendel indictment past Friday.

That would permit Kimberling to carry out the order which sentenced Hauptmann to death any time this week. It was stated that the jury probably would delay the decision until Thursday night. Hauptmann with his head clipped and little spot shaved at the back where the electrodes of the death chair would have been placed, slept until noon today. Mrs. Hauptmann visited with him shortly after 1 p. m.

Spring Climb By Industries Is Seen In Many Southern States

By MAYNARD STITT, United Press Staff Correspondent BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 1.—(U.P.)—The three month period beginning today will be the best that basic Southern industries have experienced in five years, according to all indications. Coal operators expect the best spring and summer business they have had in 10 years.

The outlook for industries is bright to the Southeast Shippers' Advisory Board which met here in mid-March. The meeting was "exceedingly cheerful," said delegates in conjunction with the car service division of the Association of American Railroads.

All basic industries in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia are anticipating increases averaging 10 per cent during the second quarter of 1936 as compared with the same period last year, reports disclose.

WARNS JAPAN SHE IS READY TO GO TO WAR

(Copyright 1936 by United Press) Danger of war emerged today when Russian protested angrily to Japan against alleged invasions of Mongolia, Russia ally-Japan was given the plain intimation that Russia is ready to fight if Mongolia is invaded.

In Europe, Austria followed Germany's example in disregarding post-war treaties and preparing to build army of perhaps several millions. Resolutions praising the action of the railroads for their handling of emergency shipments during the winter's severe cold waves were adopted by the board.

A sustained building program, motivated by the Federal Housing Administration, will result in heavy increases in demands for brick and clay products, iron and steel, cement, lumber and forest products along with sundry building materials, it is predicted.

In agricultural lines, increases are forecast in movement of cotton, wool and hosiery.

Germany, meanwhile, delivered to British Chancellor Hitler's proposal for European peace discussion.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—(U.P.)—Evidence that Edward Margoett, California state area manager for the Townsend plan, had been indicted three times today was placed before the house old-age pension investigators after much committee argument.

Robert Clements, resigned old age revolving pension secretary, told the committee that Dr. P. E. Townsend, head of GARP refused to discharge Margoett despite Clements' recommendation.

One indictment against committee counsel James Sullivan was issued in Seattle, Wash., for obtaining the earnings of a prostitute. Representative John Tolan, dem. Calif., Townsendite member of the committee objected to the questioning.

Clements denied that he knew Margoett had been indicted twice for larceny in Kings county, Wash. Sullivan put the indictment in evidence despite Tolan's objection.

A speedy appeal to the United States supreme court is contemplated. If an injunction is upheld there it is expected reversal of the anti-waste features of the act only session of the legislature.

Small advocated restriction of anti-waste features of the act only because the act also carried proration he said that land owners would be unable to use the gas under their land by the acts provision. While pipe lines would be able to take the same gas without paying the landowner unless there was proration.

Several weeks later, the witness declared, the group, this time including Tyler, who remained in the car, hanged McBee's body to a tree. He said a quilt was obtained at Tyler's home.

Reaching a tree, Raymond Henry said, "This is far enough, this is a pretty good tree."

Raymond Henry climbed the tree, and with the others assisting, McBee was hanged, Fenwick said. Fenwick hanged it up there so they committed suicide, as asserted.

PETE FENWICK STAR WITNESS FOR THE STATE

Testimony of Raymond Fenwick 20, of Okra, reputed that of his brother, Pete, who testified Wednesday morning in the hanging skeleton murder trial of Raymond Henry, 35, that the defendant had admitted to him his infliction of stab wounds was introduced by the defense this afternoon.

Pete Fenwick had previously testified that he was at H. L. McBee's home May 1, 1933, saying that he aided in the burial of the highway workman. Raymond Fenwick testified that he attended a dance at Clyde Evans home with Perry Clark in advance and Pete Fenwick May 1, 1933.

Mrs. Nettie Valley of Rising Star whose home was 30 feet from the McBee residence, testified that she noticed something unusual at their neighbors home May 1, 1933. She asserted she overheard Mrs. McBee tell her husband "She was so sick she could hardly hold her head up". Mrs. Valley's daughter, Opal, said she observed McBee walking toward the railroad track at 7 a. m. on the date the state alleges he was slayed by Raymond Henry.

The state rested its case at noon Wednesday in their prosecution of Raymond Henry, 25, charged with murder of H. L. McBee at Rising Star May 1, 1933, believing its case strengthened by testimony of Pete Fenwick who quoted the defendant as admitting infliction of fatal ice pick wounds.

The star witness told jurors he went to McBee's home May 1, 1933 and saw Raymond Henry and Mrs. McBee, now Mrs. Henry, 28, at the residence.

The star witness told jurors he went to McBee's home May 1, 1933 and saw Raymond Henry and Mrs. McBee, now Mrs. Henry, 28, at the residence.

"No, don't get him any doctor, let him die," Fenwick quoted the defendant as instructing Tyler.

"I asked Raymond what was the matter with old man McBee. He said he stabbed him with an ice pick that morning."

The witness stated he remained in the home until 2 a. m. with the group and left. The group that left with McBee's body in the turk-back of Lynn Smith's car—did not include Tyler, who departed through a rear door of the residence, Fenwick said.

Before the group left, Fenwick asserted he made an effort to leave the residence but was restrained by Lynn Smith.

Fenwick replied to Special Prosecutor Allen D. Dabney's query when McBee died by placing the time at 1 o'clock.

"Well, he's dead and we've got to do something," Fenwick quoted Henry as asserting before the early morning burial.

The group took the body to a wood near the Rising Star cemetery.

They passed the cemetery, stopped the car and "all took McBee out of the car. Fenwick said he and Jack Smith, a defendant in the case until his death by suicide, according to a coroner's verdict carried McBee by the feet while Raymond Henry and Lynn Smith supported their share of the burden by holding McBee around the neck.

"We dug a hole and put him in it," Fenwick said the hole was waist deep.

Several weeks later, the witness declared, the group, this time including Tyler, who remained in the car, hanged McBee's body to a tree. He said a quilt was obtained at Tyler's home.

Reaching a tree, Raymond Henry said, "This is far enough, this is a pretty good tree."

Cats Act As Compasses

Professor Francis H. Herrick, a leading American biologist, tells a scientific story of taking a cat for a twilight boat ride. The cat was wrapped in an overcoat, so that it could see nothing. "As the craft pulled from shore, the cat mewed over the gunwale toward dry land. As the boat swung about, the cat turned to the other rail. The boat cut figure eights and circles, and the cat unflinchingly kept its head pointed toward the dock."

The Twentieth Century Aladdin

Everyone knows the story from the Thousand and One Nights that tell of how Aladdin by the rubbing of a magic lamp, could summon a slave to do whatever he wished. But everyone does not appreciate that each of us has an even more powerful slave which we can call by merely pressing a button, or throwing a switch—electricity.

Election has been called in the Bowie county district for April 18 to name his successor. Representative E. Harold Beck, former Bowie county judge (not related to the retiring senator) is in the race for the next four-year senate term, and has resigned from the house to run for the unexpired term ending next January.

The fight to ratify the child labor amendment will be fought with new vehemence in 1937, as the last chance before the limitation runs out and the ratification of 18 states is made a farce.

ardent support of this federal amendment expressed by the republican, President Calvin Coolidge, with the suggestion that if a republican should champion this restriction upon corporate exploitation of child labor, certainly its support could be expected in democratic states.

The magazine pointed out that NEA protected against child labor, and was hailed by the President as a real achievement; but the supreme court decision in favor of property rights as against human rights had lost that gain. In industrial cities, it pointed out, employers have discharged "adults" of 17 and 18, to hire children of 12 to 14 years, because their labor was cheaper.

Decision of civil appeals court at Austin, dissolving an injunction against removal of the pardon and parole board to Huntsville, under a law directing the removal, left both sides of the controversy ready to ask a rehearing. Attorney General William McCraw, seeking to uphold constitutionality of the law, said he will ask rehearing and a decision on the question whether the law is valid; Attorney George Mendell of Austin, who contends the law is void, said he will ask a rehearing and also seek to develop this phase of the case in the decision. The case was dismissed on other grounds the court not passing on the validity of the law.

If the pending constitutional amendment is adopted in November to substitute a constitutional board with final powers in most cases it will dispense with the question of location, because the new agency will be required to be located in Austin.

1933, instead of being at the McBees' home as he testified.

Mrs. Ina Watts of Baird, former island county resident, testified with her husband visited Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dec. 1932 at Henry's mother home.

Mrs. Henry asked her if "I knew Raymond was her new sweetie." Mrs. Watts quoted the co-defendant as informing her.

In an undertone Mrs. Henry hispered, "You're a liar."

John Freeman who lives south of Rising Star stated Tyler and Lynn Smith was at his home May 1933 and tried to obtain a quart of whiskey. Freeman told them he did not have any whiskey, he said.

The witness declared he thought he observed Jack Smith at a vacant house from his residence. He stated Tyler and Lynn Smith joined the group which he believed Jack Smith had carried someone from the house to the groups automobile.

The witness admitted to Flewellen had been indicted for selling liquor and received a three-year suspended sentence. He also denied he had used a shotgun to force an Smith off his premises.

Tyler, one of the main witnesses Wednesday, arrived late, for his testimony delivered Wednesday. He explained to the court his car caught fire en route to Eastland from Cisco.

Earlier the court had instructed Sheriff Virge Foster to arrest the man and bring him to court.

Tyler said Raymond Henry hit Lynn Watson on the head with a whiskey bottle at his home after the defendant married Mrs. McBee.

He said Raymond hit Watson because the latter had given Mrs. Henry a drink of whiskey. The blood from the wound remained on the floor, Tyler said.

Tuesday afternoon Flewellen and the witness if officers hadn't and blood stains in the Tyler's residence, but did not question him there.

The huge crowd evident at Tuesday's sessions was equally as large Wednesday. Many who attended sought their lunch. Atmospheric conditions was attributed as a reason one woman fainted in the courtroom Wednesday morning.

Calling for water occasionally, making his cigarette after holding a cigarette in his hands for a long time. T. R. Crosswhite made a dramatic witness Tuesday in the "skeleton" slaying trial of Raymond Henry, 25, who is charged with murder of H. L. McBee at Rising Star, May 1, 1933.

Answering attorneys' questions at times, seemingly meditating deliberately before responding to their questions. Crosswhite told the jury of his acquaintance with Henry who worked under him in his rural delivery business.

The witness told jurors how he happened with Henry at McBee's home May 1, 1933 and visited with the couple, the wife who is now the mate of the defendant.

McBee was in bed. Crosswhite testified earlier to his high-point testimony in which he declared he saw Henry run from the house with an ice pick in his hands, his eyes "glassy."

Occasion for the call was for procuring of a "rheumatism belt." Crosswhite told jurors. He with Henry came into the home and later Mrs. McBee, now Mrs. Henry, gave him the belt.

The Blake, Brown county, resident declared he did not approve of affections displayed by Henry and Mrs. McBee behind her husband's bed and he walked out, waiting for Henry.

"I sat in the car for two minutes. I heard just a little noise—like a hair sliding—and a door slammed. Raymond came out and I saw this ice pick in his hand. His eyes were kind of glassy," Crosswhite testified.

"He jumped in the car and got the crank. I asked him 'What in the God damn hell, you gone crazy and lost your sense?'"

Several days later Henry and Crosswhite were asked by McBee's son: "Have you seen my daddy?"

"He's gone and we can't find him," I said "Raymond who is that boy?" and he said "that's McBee's boy."

On the state's urgency, Crosswhite told of a visit by Mrs. McBee to her husband's grave.

"It was this past year, couldn't be positive about the date, we were up here at Eastland. We got in my car and drove to the cemetery. It was the first time she had been to the grave since he was buried."

"The grave was sort of sunken in and Mrs. Henry broke down and cried."

"She said regardless of whatever had happened, that man will always be the father of her child and the guilty ones would be punished for it."

"Raymond Henry was standing here and said 'I don't see why he ought not to be stabbed three times with an ice pick and hanged to a tree.'"

"The 'sunken grave' had not been attended to, Crosswhite stated. The inspection of the grave was in the summer of 1933, Crosswhite stated.

He admitted under cross examination he had been in jails at Eastland, Coleman, Brownwood, Livingston, New Mexico.

He stated he had been charged with pipe line theft and sale of liquor.

Crosswhite admitted he realized "the danger of being a stool pigeon" after interrogation by L. H. Flewellen of Ranger.

Testifying substantially identically as he delivered at a recent hearing for the Henry's, M. E. "Sandy" Tyler of Lella Lake, Donley county, told of his unwilling participation in the obvious burial of McBee.

Tyler was charged by implication of Flewellen as the guilty party in the McBee death.

Flewellen fired this question at Tyler and was answered in equal alacrity with an emphatic "no."

"Isn't it a fact that you killed H. L. McBee?"

Attorneys wrangled several minutes over questioning of the witness on whether he had ever been indicted for chicken theft, finally the witness admitting he had been indicted for the alleged offense.

He said he went to McBee's home May 1, 1933 and Jack and Lynn Smith and Henry were at the home.

(Jack Smith, 40, was adjudged a suicide after his body was found, his throat slit by a razor blade, in the county jail. His brother was formerly charged with Jack with murder in the case but the murder allegation in the indictment was dismissed, which had the result of a charge alleging being an accessory in the case remaining.)

He came to McBee's home and saw him on the bed.

"They said he was sick. His head was laying towards the east and he was on his right side."

"I asked him what the trouble was and he said Raymond Henry stuck him with an ice pick that morning."

"I told him I was going to get a doctor; they wouldn't let me. Raymond wouldn't let me go."

"Me and Jack and Lynn Smith and McBee went to get some whiskey in Lynn Smith's car. We went to John Freeman's."

"We drove up there and said we wanted whiskey for McBee," Tyler continued.

The witness stated McBee and Jack Smith were left at a vacant house while the others tried to get the whiskey. They returned home (to McBee's) after the unsuccessful whiskey quest.

"We carried McBee to the house and laid him on the bed. Pete Fenwick was there with Mrs. McBee and Henry."

"I told him I was going to get a doctor and Raymond Henry stopped me."

The witness told jurors he was instructed that Henry didn't need a doctor and the door was thumbed by Henry to prevent his exit.

Telling him to keep quiet about the matter, Tyler said he was advised and threatened: "They said they would blame me if I said anything about it."

"He (McBee) showed me where Raymond Henry stuck an ice pick in him that morning. It was on the left side and he pulled up his undershirt and showed me a blue spot where he said Raymond stuck him.

Later the group — Raymond Henry, Jack and Lynn Smith and Pete Fenwick — came to his home and replied to his question now McBee was getting along by saying, "We put him away alright."

"Raymond Henry said they had to do something with McBee and so he and Mrs. McBee went in and got a quilt."

He put the quilt and something wrapped in it in an old model-T car, Tyler testified.

The group obtained a wire off his clothesline and Tyler was instructed to get in Smith's car, the former said. They passed Broughton's residence, where the youth who later found the skeleton lived, on the way to the cemetery.

"Boys I don't want to go," Tyler testified he told the group.

"You can stay in the car, but be here when we get back," Tyler testified he was instructed. They raised the turtleback and got the quilt.

"They returned in about an hour."

Tyler testified he was instructed later by Mrs. McBee to keep quiet and say the same thing before the grand jury or "we'd get in trouble."

Tyler admitted to Defense Counsel Flewellen that he had lied to previous grand jurors. He stated his silence was caused by threats on his life. "They even threatened my life if I told my wife," Tyler said.

The witness endeavored to make explanation of the finding of blood in his home by officers, but was told by Flewellen he would "get to that later."

"I can explain that," Tyler stated. This testimony was made following the defense accusation by implication of Tyler in the alleged death.

"Why don't you ask about that blood," Tyler challenged the defense attorneys.

He paid tribute to McBee by saying he "sure did like him." He was a quiet, peaceful man. He had threatened to kill himself.

Tyler quoted the deceased as saying "I'll just turn you (Mrs. McBee) over to Raymond Henry and let him have you."

"Blonde-headed baby" was the term used by Mrs. McBee in describing Henry, Mrs. M. E. Tyler, wife of the prominent witness in the trial testified.

Mrs. McBee moved to her home three weeks after the disappearance of McBee, the Mrs. Tyler testified. She said she found clothing, later found on McBee's skeleton, in her home. The clothing, including a highway man's badge, was missed later.

The group mentioned by her husband came to her home and put on the hat and joked: "That's the way old man McBee used to wear it," Mrs. Tyler declared.

She stated she overheard Mrs. Henry, the former Mrs. McBee, tell a group mentioned by her and her husband "We'll all have to stay together on this or we'll get in trouble."

The Smiths, Pete Fenwick and Raymond Henry came to her home several weeks after McBee's disappearance and left with her husband, Mrs. Tyler testified. Mrs. Henry, who also came with the group, remained at the home, it was testified.

She denied a companionship with McBee.

Mrs. Tyler identified wire which the state contends was used to suspend McBee's skeleton from a tree as the same which she used as her clothesline.

"I missed it because I was always stumbling on it," the woman said. She said she had been confined in jail at Coleman and was shown a piece of quilt which the state alleges was used to cover McBee before he was buried.

She "didn't tell all to a grand jury because she thought her husband was mixed up in it," Mrs. Tyler told counsel.

She had been instructed by her husband: "Be careful what you say or you'll get yourself in trouble."

Mrs. McBee left her home after she administered her not to be affectionate with Henry in the presence of her children, Mrs. Tyler declared.

"She told him 'not to be affectionate around the children.'" She told Mrs. Henry, McBee this after observing her with Henry on the bed in her home, Mrs. Tyler said.

Henry's and Mrs. McBee's marriage plans were announced to her Sept. 1933, Mrs. Tyler declared when she testified they drove by her home from Eastland, Mrs. Tyler was on the stand one hour and forty-five minutes.

DIXIE SCHOOLS URGE ATHLETIC SUBSIDY CURB

By CHILES COLEMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHAPEL HILL, N. C., April 1.—(AP)—College athletes below the Mason-Dixon line face two extremes of policy in the question of financial aid from their schools and coaches.

The two great Dixie conferences—the Southern, embracing schools from Florida to Louisiana, and the Southern, covering the Carolinas, Virginia and Maryland—find their views clashing as to what reward or assistance an athlete is entitled to for his athletic services to his university.

The Southeastern Conference, at its annual meeting last fall, started the sports world by opening the gates to past college performers on the gridiron, track and court. It proposed outright pay to college athletes in the form of athletic scholarships designed to smooth the financial aid to a degree.

"Graham" Plan Offered
The Southern Conference now counters with a proposal named the "Graham Plan" after President Frank A. Graham of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

This plan, drafted by heads of six of the largest schools in the Southern Conference, restricts drastically the activities of school, alumni and coaches in assisting athletics, and marks probably the most stringent anti-subsidizing effort on record.

The plan was approved by the six university heads at a meeting in Richmond, Va., and goes before the annual conference meeting, also in Richmond, in February.

The Graham plan, in the words of Dr. Graham, seeks to "place athletes and non-athletes on an equal footing" and all conference schools on a "more uniform basis in the award of scholarships, loans, jobs or other financial aid."

Prepares Plan to All Aid
It provides, specifically, that: "Any student who receives, as a consideration for his athletic ability, or promise of athletic ability, any consideration in the matter of books, fees, tuition, room, board, clothes, charge account, job loan, scholarship, or any other financial aid or material consideration, no matter by whom provided, is ineligible for intercollegiate competition."

"Any scholarship, loan, job or tuition remission, within direct or indirect control of the institution, shall be open equally to athlete and non-athlete, shall be awarded by a representative and responsible faculty committee, and shall be awarded not later than June 1 for the ensuing academic year."

Closes Many Loopholes
The plan would bar any student who holds a job of any kind not within the control of the school, unless such job is approved by a faculty committee, which must know how much it pays. It would bar also any athlete who lends his name to commercial advertising, uses his name to promote for profit or gets more than the regular rate of pay for any job, whatever its nature.

Each school's faculty committee on education may require of any athlete a statement during the college year, including the preceding summer.

Members of the coaching staff and faculty of the physical education departments of the conference schools would be barred from having any voice in award of scholarships, loans, jobs or other financial considerations.

Gorgeous

BY LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
TOBY RYAN, 19, works behind the jewelry counter of a large Manhattan department store. She poses for a photograph to be used in a store advertisement and MAURIE HAY, the photographer, tells her she has a "camera face."

Discharged from the store due to the scheduling of a jealous MAURIE HAY, Toby has difficulty finding another job. Then she meets MAURIE HAY and he sends her to BEN BLAKE, manager of a model agency. Toby registers at the agency, secures work as a model.

At a style show where she is modeling, she meets CAROL MARSH, rich and snobbish. She also meets wealthy TIM JAMIESON who has been trying for some time to persuade her to dine with him. Impetuously she agrees.

For a week Tim showers her with attentions and Toby admits to herself that she is falling in love with him. She is somewhat disturbed one evening when, shortly after their arrival at the fashionable Seville Club, Tim insists on leaving.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XIX
TOBY fought back the hateful, outrageous thought. There was no reason, she told herself, to connect Carol Marsh with Tim's sudden change of mood. Why, he scarcely knew Carol. He'd made that plain when Toby had spoken of her long before. Why should she imagine now that it was because Tim had seen Carol and her friends that he was in such a hurry to leave the Seville Club? It was ridiculous. It couldn't be true.

She waited silently while Tim went into his coat. Silently she went ahead of him out to the street.

"Listen, Gorgeous—" Tim was beside her, smiling down at her. "How'd you like to go to Alfredo's—you know, where we went the first night we had dinner together? I'd like some place that isn't as big as a circus tent. Where I can have you to myself. I don't want every man in sight staring at you—"

"Tim—was that the reason you wanted to leave? Really?"

He was completely good-natured now. "Well," he said, "when a fellow takes a girl out he wants to be able to look at her himself, doesn't he? He doesn't want every other fellow within a mile looking at her as though he couldn't take his eyes away. I thought I'd better get out before I got into a row—"

The idea of Tim being drawn into a fight because of her was horrifying to Toby, but with it came a surge of relief. It hadn't been because of Carol Marsh that Tim wanted to leave the Seville Club? Carol hadn't had anything to do with it. It was because of Toby herself—because Tim was so devoted to her, "wanted her to himself," he said.

She raised shining eyes. "I didn't know anyone was staring at me," she said, "but, oh, Tim, I'm glad we came away."

"So'm I. Now, how about Alfredo's?"

"Let's go there. I'd rather go there than any place I know."

So they went to Alfredo's, and, sitting at one of the softly lighted tables, dancing to the same music they had danced to before, Toby felt again the magic of that earlier evening. She forgot Carol Marsh; forgot that, even for a moment, she had known the sharp pains of doubt.

TOBY said little. It was enough to look up and see Tim beside her, to catch his smile and smile back at him. She thought he looked especially handsome tonight. Though, of course, Tim was always handsome. She listened to everything he said and made suitable answers, but when he was not speaking she seemed to be in a world apart—a world of happiness and beauty and music that went on and on without ending.

Alfredo paused at their table and Tim assured him that everything was as it should be. Toby's heart echoed the words. Oh, yes, indeed. Everything was as it should be. It was not until they were on their way home that anything happened to change her mood.

Tim said, "By the way, I won't be seeing you for a day or so. Friend of mine has asked me to drive down to Maryland with him. He's got a place there he's been wanting me to see—"

"Oh!" It was a foolish little exclamation. Toby went on quickly, hoping Tim had not noticed it. "You're going?"

"Well, I can't very well get out of it. You see, he's asked me a couple of times before. And I thought the trip might be good for me. I've been sticking around town pretty close lately."

"Yes," Toby agreed. "I'm sure it will be good for you. What sort of place is it, Tim—where you're going?"

"Down on the Eastern Shore. Just an old house that has been in this fellow's family for years and years. Near some little town—I forget the name of it. He's got some horses there, too. May get to do some riding."

"That will be fine," Toby said. It was much to convince herself as Tim. "How long will you be gone?"

"Oh, just a few days." He looked down at her, smiling. "Think you'll miss me?"

"I—might."

"So that's all you've got to say, is it? You might! That's how I stand with you—"

CHIEF loved having him fall at her feet like this. She said, "Well, I expect it will be sort of lonely."

"That's better! Though, I doubt if you mean it. You'll be stepping out with some other fellow—"

"Tim, you know I won't!"

"Listen, don't think you can fool me. I know your tricks, young woman. You're not putting a thing over on me—"

It ended with both of them treating it as a joke, which made it easier for Toby. It was so much better not to be serious, not to show how she really felt. At the entrance of the apartment she asked, "When did you say you were leaving, Tim?"

He hadn't said, but now he told her, "Early in the morning. I won't call you because you'll be asleep."

"Then I won't see you again?"

"Not for a few days. I'll give you a ring as soon as I get back. She put a hand on his arm. "Oh, Tim, I will miss you!"

"And I'll miss you, Gorgeous. But it's only a few days. Now I'd better be getting along. Got to get up early, you know—"

"Tim, take care of yourself."

He laughed. "Of course I will. But as a joke, which made it easier for Toby. It was so much better not to be serious, not to show how she really felt. At the entrance of the apartment she asked, "When did you say you were leaving, Tim?"

He hadn't said, but now he told her, "Early in the morning. I won't call you because you'll be asleep."

"Then I won't see you again?"

"Not for a few days. I'll give you a ring as soon as I get back. She put a hand on his arm. "Oh, Tim, I will miss you!"

"And I'll miss you, Gorgeous. But it's only a few days. Now I'd better be getting along. Got to get up early, you know—"

"Tim, take care of yourself."

He laughed. "Of course I will. But as a joke, which made it easier for Toby. It was so much better not to be serious, not to show how she really felt. At the entrance of the apartment she asked, "When did you say you were leaving, Tim?"

and get your beauty sleep and stop worrying about me. Will you do that?"

"Yes, if you'll promise—"

"All right. I'll promise you I won't be in any accidents. Does that satisfy you?"

He took her in his arms then and kissed her, and for a moment she clung to him. Toby said, "Oh, Tim—" and then smiled brightly, determinedly. "It's all right. I know nothing's going to happen. I know you'll come back—soon."

"That's the girl. Good night, Gorgeous."

"Good night, Tim."

AFTER all, it was only for a few days. Toby reminded herself of this several times the following day. She told herself she had been going out too much anyhow, and a rest would be good for her. Besides, there were things that she could do—sewing and mending and the reading she'd been intending to get at and hadn't.

But when she started a task she soon found herself doing something else. She was restless, unable to settle down to anything. It was surely perverse fate that for the first time in weeks she had very little work. She didn't feel like going out and calling at studios where she wasn't known. She had a list from the Models' League and there were several on it that she hadn't visited, but she hated to be away from the apartment. She thought possibly some word might come from Tim.

He hadn't said anything about calling her over long distance, but still Toby thought he might. Not that there was any reason for it. Just to assure her that he was all right and would be home soon. Harriet's fiance, Clyde Sahin, often called her when he was out of town.

Part of the time Toby argued with herself that she was sure to hear from Tim. At other times she made excuses for him. Why should he write or call when he was only to be gone a few days? He hadn't been definite about it. She didn't know if "a few days" meant two or three or even four. Surely it couldn't be more than that!

The first day dragged to a close and the second went even more slowly. Harriet, coming in late in the afternoon, saw Toby curled up on the davenport, a discarded magazine at her feet.

Harriet knew that Tim was away, though Toby hadn't told her. She thought Harriet might be inclined to criticize if she knew. Harriet seemed to think Tim should have a job.

"Hello," Harriet said, taking off her hat and tossing it on a chair. "What's new?"

"Nothing."

"Anyone call me while I was away?"

"No."

"Well," said Harriet, "I've not news for you. I stopped in at the League office to get that check they've been holding for me."

Toby wasn't much interested, but she waited for Harriet to go on.

"Well—?"

"Well, I thought you might like to know that you won't have to worry about your friend, Carol Marsh, for a while. Betty Turnbull was there, talking to Sally and I heard her say that Carol's out of town. She's gone to a house-party in Maryland."

"Listen, Gorgeous, I'm going to be all right! Now you run along."

White Sox Whitehead Set to Whitewash

Johnny Whitehead, Chicago White Sox hurler, flashed across the baseball sky like a comet last year when he ran up a phenomenal winning streak early in the season. Over-eating, however, caused him to bog down, and he finished with 13 victories and 13 losses. This season Manager Jimmy Dykes is making the big boy diet, and Johnny is blazing 'em through with all the skill he demonstrated last spring. At right Silent John is shown in action. Left, reading from top to bottom, is the way he holds the fast ball, slow ball, and curve.

GOV. HUFFMAN GOES BEFORE GRAND JURY

TRENTON, N. J., April 2.—(UP)—Bruno Hauptmann's chances of escaping the electric chair tomorrow night increased rapidly today as a grand jury opened new lines of inquiry in its consideration of the case.

Governor Harold Hoffman, who was here while Governor Condon was doing while Governor Hoffman of New Jersey sought to interview him about Lindbergh kidnaping testimony—dining with friends in White Plains, N. Y. The six look seems to indicate he doesn't mind being the center of attention.

I BROKE THE NEWS AS GENTLY AS POSSIBLE!

MRS. PRATTLE I THINK MRS. COOK WILL YOU TELL ME THE OTHER NEWS?

MY BOY... MY POOR BOY! WHAT'S HAPPENED?

I'M KIND OF IN A JAM, I GUESS, MOM!

I WENT FOR YOUR MEDICINE AND THE STORE WAS CLOSED, SO I WENT IN THRU AN OPEN WINDOW AND GOT THE MEDICINE!

I LEFT MONEY ON THE COUNTER TO PAY FOR IT, BUT WHEN A COP CAUGHT ME AND TOOK ME INTO THE STORE, TO CHECK MY STORY, THE MONEY WASN'T THERE!

THERE MUST BE SOME MISTAKE, OFFICER! MY BOY DOESN'T TAKE THINGS... HE'S NOT A THIEF!

I'M SORRY, MRS. COOK!

AREN'T YOU EVEN GOING TO GIVE HIM A CHANCE? I HAVE EVERY FAITH IN MY BOY!

HE'LL HAVE A FAIR TRIAL! BUT, MRS. COOK, THE JAILS ARE FILLED WITH BOYS WHOSE MOTHERS STILL HAVE FAITH IN THEM!

While Hoffman Sought for Him. Aids Investigation of Kidnap Ladder

Here's what Dr. John F. Jaisie, Condon was doing while Governor Hoffman of New Jersey sought to interview him about Lindbergh kidnaping testimony—dining with friends in White Plains, N. Y. The six look seems to indicate he doesn't mind being the center of attention.

Arch W. Loney (above), Federal employe and wood expert, helped Governor Hoffman of New Jersey examine the attic of Bruno Hauptmann's former home in the search for evidence that the Lindbergh kidnap ladder had been "framed." Loney insisted the attic lumber and ladder showed differences.

Hauck Demanding Hauptmann's Doom

Prosecutor Anthony Hauck (center facing camera) of Hunterdon County, N. J. was serious when he told reporters that he was prepared to challenge instantly any attempt of Governor Hoffman to further stay the execution of Bruno Hauptmann. He told reporters the governor was making "mockery" of the courts.

DIVES 90 FEET FOR ST. TACOMA. Wash.—(UP)—Arnold W. Milleson, 21, did a "Steve Brodie" here to collect a dollar bet. He dived off a 90-foot bridge into the city waterway. He was picked up by the city fire boat and taken to a hospital, suffering shock and exposure. His hospital bill was considerably more than the dollar he won.

MILK BOTTLES HOARDED. ST. LOUIS.—(UP)—Speculative St. Louisans have cached nearly a million empty milk bottles in the hope they will some day be redeemed at a premium, according to a report of the Milk Package Exchange, Inc., disappearance of the bottles, which cost 5 cents each, represents a daily loss of $1250.

"SLANGUAGE" SPREAD. MARYSVILLE, Cal.—(UP)—The "King's English" has been murdered in quite a few American college circles, according to Miss Louise M. W. Wayne, English professor at the local junior college. It has been succeeded, she states, by a new "American language."

BEARS ESCAPE MOVIES. PASADENA, Cal.—(UP)—A couple of black Arizona bears en route by truck to appear in the movies at Hollywood couldn't stand the prospects. They escaped and are now believed to be starting life anew in the San Jacinto mountains.
