HEAVY VOTE IS PREDICTED SATURDAY

ESTIMATED 7,000 VOTES IN COUNTY

With Eastland, Ranger and Cisco having votes estimated at 4,539 and other towns and communities with poll strengths believed highest in several years, indications Tuesday pointed to a record vote in the county - wide election Saturday to ban or legalize 14 per cent malt and vinous beverages. It is estimated there are 7,000 votes in the county.

Eastland county allowed sale of 32 beer previous to the Jan. 3 election in which it was banned by a vote of 1,235 to 1,038. Beer proponents took the controversy to court unsuccessfully.

The January 3 election was called after the Supreme Court held a wet precinct could not legally exist in a county dry prior to prohibition. The Saturday election was called by commissioners' court after it had been petitioned by a sufficient number of citizens.

Eastland is estimated having 1,705 votes, including 195 exemptions. Cisco is conceded having 1,632 votes, of which 75 are exemptions. Ranger is believed to have 1,202 votes, 52 of which are exemptions. The tax assessor-collector office has not completed tabulation of poll tax payments.

Drys have reorganized and it is understood proponents for the legalization of the 14 per cent beverages have done likewise.

Senate Probes Activities of Liberty League

Liberal Liberty League Helper

Irene du Pont, above, munitions and chemicals magnate, has contributed $10,000 to Crusaders, Inc., and $86,750 to the American Liberty League, records submitted in the United States senate probe of the former organization revealed. Du Pont was the largest donor of funds to the league on the senate list.

MONEY TRACED TO TALMADGE RALLY FUND

WASHINGTON, April 15—(U.P.)—Vance Muse, tall, broad-shouldered Texan, pounded his chest today and told the Senate Lobby committee how his conscience forced him to distribute photographs of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and two negro escorts "all over the south" in an anti-Roosevelt campaign.

Muse, leader of the southern committee to uphold the constitution, said J. G. Raskob and Irene du Pont member of the American Liberty League, contributed $5,000 each to the committee. The money was used to help defray expenses of the Macon, Ga., political rally which endorsed Governor Eugene Talmadge foe of the New Deal for the Presidency.

"Did you tell Mr. Raskob and Mr. du Pont what you wanted the money for?" Hugo Black, (dem., Ala.), asked.

"I did," Muse replied, rocking back and forth on his heels and insisted on standing before the committee in spite of the fact he was offered a chair.

Senator Jeff Metcalf, (rep., Rhode Island), was listed as a $50 contributor to the organization.

"There are about forty senators on the mailing list," Muse explained. "But he's the only one that gave you anything," Muse was asked.

"That's right."

"Did you discuss the matter with Governor Talmadge?"

"No. He didn't know the source of the fund."

The photograph distributed at the Macon rally showed Mrs. Roosevelt and two escorts entering the building where a negro meeting was to take place. Many political writers commented on the wide distribution in the south.

Muse testified that Allan Sheppard of Houston made for others and sold them at printers' cost.

"They are all over the south," I think some of them even got into your states," Muse said looking at Black.

"Black said the pictures were accompanied by statements about the president, his wife and members of the family."

THREE MEN INTOMBED IN GOLD MINE

MOOSE RIVER, Nova Scotia April 15—(U.P.)—Three men intombed in a gold mine were condemned to almost certain death today. A crew shaft drove nine three days through 70 feet of almost solid rock seemed about to collapse driving workers to open air.

The miners began a new shaft down through tons of rocks toward the 140 foot level where the men were trapped Sunday.

But even wit little aid of steam shovels sent by the Nova Scotia government a special train from Halifax, rescuers feared it would be too late.

Lions Entertained By Music and Talk

Miss Martha Joe Pass was the entertaining artist at today's luncheon program, brought by Lion Jack Anderson. Reports by committees on activities of the club were made and Rotarian P. W. Campbell, the guest of R. C. Giles, talked on public service clubs.

Horace Conley made a report on the Weatherford Lions entertainment last Friday evening attended by a number of Lions and their wives, at which the German band of Cisco won second in the program contest.

Charles Sandler, whose committee made the Lions Easter egg hunt such a success, reported on that activity. More children were handled this year than last and the event was reported well worth the money expended.

P. W. Campbell, former Rotarian of Cisco but now of Abilene, made a short talk and said among other things that in his experience, service clubs talked too much about what they had done and did too little.

He was especially interested in safety in automobile driving, he said, because the death rate was alarming.

About fifteen members of the Country club who were especially interested in the new grass greens under construction at the golf grounds, met at the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night and authorized the special greens committee to proceed with necessary plans for a quick completion of the greens.

In discussing the greens it was found that more material was necessary for completion, especially dirt, said President J. E. Caffrey in telling of the meeting. As a result some of the greens, No. 5 and 6, were reduced in size and the committee was directed to proceed with plans to the end that the greens be finished at the earliest possible time.

STATE PARTY FORCES ISSUE ON TALMADGE

By ED WERKMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent ATLANTA, Ga., April 15—(U.P.)—Governor Eugene Talmadge, the state's most consistent sniper at New Deal, may be forced to a showdown regarding his presidential ambitions.

Today the Georgia state democratic executive committee will meet to determine whether there will be a state presidential democratic primary in which President Roosevelt, Georgia's adopted son, and Talmadge may be entered. Or the committee may decide to select an untraced or untrusted delegate to the national democratic convention at Philadelphia, June 23.

The bitter feud between the Georgia governor and the New Deal, who so split the democratic party in Georgia that the question of seating Georgia's delegation may reach the floor of the national convention.

Reset by State Problems
Talmadge's fight to be financial dictator of Georgia by operating state without an appropriation has so held his attention that a fiery governor has had little opportunity to continue his New Deal campaign. He has been forced to cancel out of state speaking engagements, in which he planned to attack the New Deal, because court suits on Georgia. The 1935 legislature did not pass an appropriation.

This has resulted in the government.

Living a Year of Life

"I wish I could live this last year over again," we say. But do we really wish that? Who wants to go back down a hill just to start up again? It's more interesting to keep right on climbing from where you are. The year, good in some respects, was most unsatisfactory in many. Perhaps most of us, looking backward, regard it with a sense of failure. If we have made progress in wealth, health, knowledge, wisdom, personal relations, appreciation of beauty, strength of mind, serenity of spirit, we have made less than enough to satisfy us. That is a fine way to feel about it. Heaven preserve us from smugness, especially at this time. The man who is satisfied with himself may have arrived somewhere, but he will never arrive anywhere else. He stops right there. And then inevitably he starts slipping back. Life is an up-hill job. There is only one way to get up hill, and that is to keep on climbing. If the path gets steeper and the air thinner, all right! The effort creates new strength to meet the new difficulties. There is satisfaction merely in finding that a fellow can keep on, and here are glorious by-products of the struggle. The scenery is grand up there, if you don't wear yourself out so that you're too tired to look at it. Another year. Another attack on this blamed old, everlasting, topless hill of life. Another climb that, for all we know, may accomplish nothing except to put us in a new position for another climb to follow. What of it. Life doesn't consist in merely being somewhere. To live is to be on the way from somewhere to somewhere else. The joy of life is not in leisure but in action—achieving—doing a task well.

Village Cities Like Cisco Best

The head of the builders' exchange in a middle-western city writes: "People from large eastern cities, who were used to seeing solidly built blocks of houses or tenements, right at the street lines, used to make fun of our city, and call it an 'overgrown village,' because they saw shaded streets, wide lots and spacious, comfortable homes. I can think of no higher compliment to pay to a city than this. Mankind is really a product of the country and the small town. City populations do not reproduce themselves, at least not under crowded conditions. Build a wall around the average city and it would decline rapidly in a few generations. The secret wish of most city men, born as most of them were under rural conditions, is to combine the opportunities of the city with the charming home life of the smaller community. Today we approximate this in our suburbs." Isn't it the truth! Blessed is the small city of today, with its self-contained culture and business opportunity rivalling those of metropolitan populations. The values of a big city nowadays are enjoyed mainly by suburb dwellers. The little city is doubly fortunate because it contains the good qualities of metropolis and suburb both, without having to scurry continually from one to the other. The little city family can literally "live at home," and really live. After all, who would trade our own little Cisco with its conveniences for a larger city with all its hurry and bustle where people do not have time to live?

Tillie Twinkle says there's no doubt her "paw" won the beer drinking contest by drinking a half keg of beer; the whole neighborhood knew he had it in him.

ment of his "Grass Roots" democratic convention at Macon, Ga., Jan. 29, for president, the governor has been silent recently as to what his political plans are. BEGIN HERE TODAY TOBY REYAN, 19, is a photographic model posing for photographs used in advertisements. Unknown at first, she is soon in the center of the ceremony. The bride was dressed in a pink spot dress with white accessories. Esther Walker was bride's maid and Mr. Steward Slatton was best man. Those present at the ceremony were: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Slatton, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Slatton, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Miller, Misses Lela Clara and Mary Elizabeth Slatton, Esther Walker, and Mr. Steward Slatton.

"Can I see her?" Toby asked. The nurse shook her head. "Not tonight. She's very weak and the doctor doesn't want her to be disturbed. I imagine that you'll be able to see her tomorrow morning." Toby was there next morning. She found a pale and wan-faced Harriet lying back against the pillows of the hospital bed. Harriet said, "I'm sorry, Toby. I guess I've made everybody a lot of trouble."

He understood what she meant before the words were out. "Not a chance," he said. "Don't you know, Toby, that once anyone has come as close to the finish as Harriet did, they never make a second try? They realize, I guess, just how much life means. 'I hope you're right.' 'Of course I am. I can show you figures to prove it.' It was Marty Hiatt, eventually, who made the suggestion that was carried out. Harriet was back at the apartment, still pale, still with the far-away expression on her face, still silent about her plans for the future.

PERSONALS

Miss Kathryn Pettit is visiting few days in Oklahoma City. Cecil Hibbert of Eastland who is been a patient in the Graham hospital is up a "wonderful" "wonder" choking limes in her throat. She groped for the electric switch. The room was just as it had been, but there was no sign of Harriet. "Where is she?" Toby cried. "Oh, Bill, where is she?" The kitchenette of the apartment was little more than a cupboard. In fact, it had been once. Bill pulled the door back and disappeared inside. The sting of the gas was sharper with the door open. Toby cried, "Bill!" and ran forward. There he was, with Harriet in his arms. "Raise the other windows," he directed. "Do you know where to get a doctor?" He put Harriet on the davenport and they did everything they could think of to revive her, but she was still unconscious when the doctor arrived. He made arrangements immediately to take her to a hospital.

The few words seemed to have exhausted Harriet. Toby lingered a few moments, and then a nurse said that it was time for her to leave. From then on, her daily routine included as much time at the hospital as she could spend there. Bill came with her once, and another evening she arrived to find Marty Hiatt sitting beside Harriet's bed. There were flowers in baskets and vases about the room—so many that some of them were on the floor. Harriet's illness had been reported as the result of an accident. She had many friends and all were solicitous about her recovery. "Why the place looks like a florist's shop!" Toby exclaimed. Harriet smiled. "It does, doesn't it? It's lovely of people to send them, but I feel selfish with so many flowers when some of the patients haven't any at all. I've asked the nurse to take part of mine to some of the other rooms."

MARTY dropped in one evening after work. "I've got an idea," he announced. "You can't go back to work for a while, Harriet. At least, you shouldn't. The country's what you need. I have an aunt who lives in a little town up farther in the state. She's the finest cook in the world and there's nothing she likes so much as to have someone around she can fuss over and take care of. 'She'd be tickled to death to have you come up for a week or two, or as long as you want to stay. You see, the old girl gets sort of lonesome. Likes to have someone around she can talk to. I've been promising for months to run up and see her. If you'll come along, we can drive up next Sunday.' Harriet said it was awfully nice of Marty, but she couldn't impose on his aunt. "Impose on her? Why you'll be doing her a favor. Honestly—I mean it!" "It would be grand for you, Harriet," Toby urged. "You know the doctor said you likes so much to work right away."

Later Bill sat with Toby in the dreary hospital waiting room. Her eyes were red-rimmed, the handkerchief she twisted in her hand a limp, moist ball. "What time is it now?" Toby asked. He told her. "Sincerely it can't be much longer! They ought to know by this time. Why doesn't someone come and tell us, Bill? Do you think they've forgotten?" "They'll tell us, Toby, as soon as they know. I don't think it will be long now."

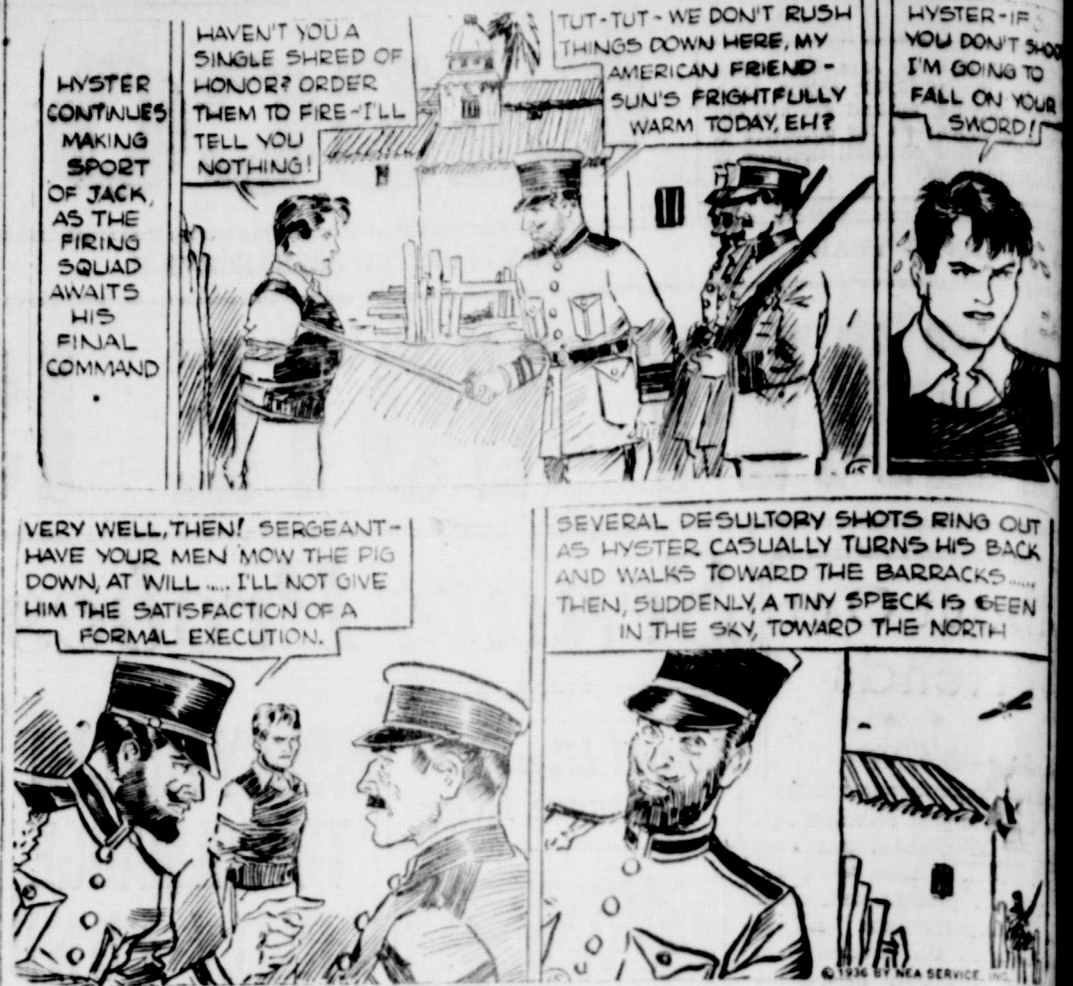

Toby was cheerful at the hospital, but privately she was worried. Since the day Harriet had received Clyde Sabin's letter she had not mentioned him. Did she still feel that life without Clyde was not worth while? That was why she had done this dreadful thing, of course. There couldn't be any other reason. If Harriet would only talk about it! But she didn't. She was sweetly appreciative of everything that was done for her. She lay back against her pillows like a pale shadow of herself. The verve and sparkle, the gaiety that everyone associated with Harriet was gone. Only one person besides Toby knew the truth about the "accident" of the escaped gas—Bill. Toby discussed the problem with him. "What worries me," she confessed, "is what may happen after she leaves the hospital and comes home. Everybody knows she was to be married. It will be awfully hard for her to go back to work."

Two days later a letter arrived from Mrs. Abigail Dinwiddie—a letter that revealed Mrs. Dinwiddie to be exactly the sort of person Hiatt had described her as. "It was sweet of her to write me, wasn't it?" Harriet said. "But, of course, I can't go." Nevertheless, when Sunday morning arrived, Marty Hiatt halted his car before the apartment and presently was helping Harriet in and stowing her suitcase into the rear. Toby found it lonely after Harriet was gone. The days had been so full that she had had little time to herself. Now she had more than she knew what to do with. For no reason at all, calls from the studio dropped off. "They'll pick up again," Sally, at the Model League office, assured her. Toby hoped they would. Jay Hillier was out of town. Bill seemed to be busy at his job; at any rate, she didn't hear from him. Then the weather turned hot. It was June, but the sun beat down on the pavements as though it were August, and what breeze there was only added to the discomfort. People said they "felt it" because the heat had come so suddenly.

IT was another 20 minutes before a nurse came and told them, "Miss Holm is resting quiet by now."

Toby, finding the apartment unbearable, set off one afternoon for a movie. The theater, at least, would be cool. She reached the avenue and halted, waiting for the traffic light to change. A young man in a white suit was also waiting there. He turned and said, "Why—'Gorgeous!'" (To Be Continued)

Suddenly he announced the committee would meet April 15. In statements that he later denied as making Howell hinted that if only one candidate—President Roosevelt—was entered in a state primary, then the committee would be free to select delegates to the national convention itself. "That's more speculation," Talmadge remarked as he commented on possibilities he may not enter a state primary if one is called. "We have nothing to say about that."

Chicken dinner to starboard!

"Here comes a rooster, floating by on a chicken coop! The repairman is rowin' out to catch him—we'll have chicken stew for supper!"

In the flood-swept little river town, only the telephone operators remained, keeping the lines open for levee workers fighting the angry torrent. And at sundown, by long distance, the marooned office reported all well—and a chicken dinner in sight!

Good times and bad, it takes people to give you telephone service—men and women with the ability to do a good job in fair weather, and the courage to stay at their posts when emergencies threaten.

The entire specialized organization of the telephone system—this company, the expert staff of American Telephone and Telegraph Company, Bell Laboratories, Western Electric—exists for one purpose only:
To help the men who patrol the lines, and the women who work at the switchboard, do a better job of giving you good, economical telephone service.

Change to the different oil... alloyed

and be kind to your wallet

We'd rather see you change to any fresh oil, but we'd have you risk water Winter drips in your case any longer. Any fresh oil is better for you than.

But when you change to Germ Processed, don't just to change your brand of oil; do it to change whole brand of lubrication!

That's how different this alloyed oil is. And why: the patented Germ Process of alloying oil is an "affinity" for metals... not only for steel, iron, but for every type of bearing metal now in no matter how carefully it must be lubricated.

With alloyed oil actually merging into every engine surface, and with the high-durability Germ Processed oil-film also in between the moving parts, your engine is doubly summer-safe. You can along on days that shimmy with heat. But your indicator needn't jump, and your oil level won't slump. Not with this different, alloyed oil... time for you to say "Drain," but be selfish—say "Germ Processed. Continental Oil Company."
