Teacher Shoots Colleague and Kills Self

GRIEVED BY DISMISSAL IS CAUSE OF ACT

LINCOLN, Neb., April 27.—(U.P.)—John P. Weller left his French class room at the University of Nebraska today shot one of his colleagues and then killed himself. Professor Harry E. Kurz, chairman of the department of romance languages whom Weller held responsible for his discharge, was shot in the arm. Kurz will recover. The shooting of Kurz occurred in the university hall within earshot of scores of students. Weller, 48 years old, formerly taught in Stamford University, The University of Texas and the University of Tennessee. Chancellor E. A. Burnett of the University said that Weller had been granted one year leave of absence effective September, 1936, with half pay and without the right to return to study. He admitted that this was paramount to the shooting. Burnett said Weller's release was authorized because of poor quality of teaching and because of inability to cooperate with Kurz.

Senate Nominee Backs Townsend

A Townsend plan advocate, ex-representative Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, above, is democratic nominee for the Nebraska seat in the U. S. senate now held by George W. Norris. Carpenter won by a small margin in a four-cornered race. He is expected to face opposition in his own party in favor of Norris if the veteran liberal will retire and run as an independent.

HOLDUP MAN TAKES MONEY OFF STUDENT

George Roberts, Randolph student, reported to police here about 7:30 Sunday afternoon, that he had been hijacked by a man whom he had given a ride in his car and been relieved of a wallet containing $112. According to reports, Mr. Roberts, whose home is at attending Randolph college, had been to Brownwood and picked up a man, who he describes as being about 25 years of age, reddish brown hair, blue eyes, six feet high and dressed in a brown suit and light grey hat. After arriving within about five or six miles of Cisco, the man produced an automatic and ordered him to "stick 'em up!" The man took Roberts' wallet containing $100 and about that time another man drove up in a V-8 pickup and the two drove away. Mr. Roberts came on into Cisco and reported the hold-up to Cisco police.

U. S. Commission Meets to Plan Its Part in Texas' Centennial

CLAIMS BEER ELECTION WAS NOT LEGAL

Injunction bond of $1,000 to indemnify respondents named in the beer petition filed at Eastland today was posted in District Clerk Crossley's office this afternoon. Sureties were: Joe Nell, W. J. Harrington, Fred C. Eastman, Frank Lovett, H. O. Satterwhite, L. H. Taylor, H. H. Stevens, E. M. Glazner, E. R. Stanford. Upon the posting of $1,000 bonds here Monday, the effectiveness of writs of injunction issued by 81st district court, Judge George L. Davenport to four Eastland men, who represented 250 voters to temporarily restrain County Judge Clyde L. Garrett from hearing the applications of beer retailers for permits to sell beer, will be found. The petition was filed by L. H. Welch of Breckenridge for Joe J. Mickie, Omar M. Mickie, J. F. McWilliams and J. Mayes who charged that the April 18 election was illegal. Joe J. Mickie said the injunction bond would be posted this afternoon. Judge Davenport set Thursday at 9 a. m. for the hearing. The complainants main arguments were believed to be contained in the following portion of the petition: "Plaintiffs would represent and show to the court that section 32 of the Texas liquor control, house bill 77, passed by called session of the 44th legislature of Texas, provides among other things that after the first lock option election held in any county within the state after provided for by said act, or any justice of precinct, incorporated town or city that no subsequent election upon the same issue, the same political sub-division shall be held within one year from the date of the preceding local option election said county or said political sub-division of said county.

Meridian Officers Wait on Analysis

MERIDIAN, April 27.—(U.P.)—Abhorrence of Melroe Jersted, 27-year old relief worker, for "going on parties" added today to the remorse of his wife Mrs. Clomarr Jersted, 25, for the coffee cup poisoning of Jersted with which she and George Pace, share cropper, has been charged. Mrs. Jersted and Pace both charged with murder were held without bond while officers awaited a chemist's analysis of viscera from Jersted's body. Jersted collapsed and died after drinking half cup of coffee.

CISCO PASTOR HOLDS REVIVAL AT SAN ANGELO

Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist church here, leaves today for San Angelo, where he will engage in evangelistic services for the Park Avenue church. The series of revival services will last two weeks. Rev. James said Rev. Elton Skiles will preach at the First Baptist church here during the absence of the pastor, it is announced.

Scott Unlikely Man Wanted in El Paso

EL PASO, April 27.—(U.P.)—Agents of federation of investigation said they did not believe that Wayne Scott, 21, held in Alamogordo, New Mexico, on automobile theft charges had any connection with the disappearance in New Mexico of four East St. Louis, Ill., tourists. "We feel certain that Scott is not the man who drove the car through El Paso after the disappearance of the tourists, but either myself or another agent will go to Alamogordo today or tomorrow to talk with him further," said R. H. Colvin agent in charge. Pictures were shown yesterday with persons in El Paso who saw the man in connection with the missing people. Mr. and Mrs. George Lortus and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer. No one could identify the photograph as the man they saw in the tourist car.

RAINS CHEER FARMERS OF WEST TEXAS

(Copyright, 1936, by United Press) Rains expected to become general over Texas by Monday night had cheered farmers and stockmen with hope that the panhandle might recover its former position as part of the state received a short last night. Showers starting Sunday morning spread by nightfall over the panhandle and south plains and gradually descended southward over the remainder of the state. Parts of fields of cotton were expected to benefit from the participation. Already it had reduced the winter wheat crop to half normal what agriculturalists predicted that rains now in the planting season will assure a start for many crops. The government forecast held the prospect of additional rains Sunday night and Tuesday in the eastern section of the state and cloudiness was general today. Del Rio had one point over 2 inches.

MUSICAL MEET TO BE MAY 4TH IN BROWNWOOD

On May 4 at 3 p. m. the schools of Brown, Comanche, Eastland, Erath, Hamilton, Lampasas, McCulloch, Mills and San Saba counties will meet in Brownwood for a Centennial celebration in the form of a District Music Meet. The program will be given in the American Legion Memorial Building, one block from the Brownwood Hotel on East Baker street. Sections will be reserved in the center for the junior and senior choruses but there will be seats available for visitors. An amplifying system will be used. Superintendents, principals, and teachers are urged to see that every entrant from their schools know the words of the songs for his group. The following songs have been selected:

Mrs. Patterson Enters Plea of 'Not Guilty'

GREENVILLE, April 27.—(U.P.)—A crowded courtroom heard Mrs. Velma Patterson enter a plea of not guilty today to a charge that she caused the death of one of her children by feeding the child arsenic. The 35-year-old widow wept bitterly as the statement was read that she "administered the poison that killed Dorothy Leon McCasland, 12." She was still weeping when her attorney arose and announced her plea was "not guilty." Dr. L. T. Waller of Commerce, Mrs. Patterson's personal physician was first witness. Other witnesses were excluded from the court room. Dr. Waller testified that he had been family physician for some time and twice had been called to treat Dorothy. He said that he found the child running a high temperature and suffering from nausea and that he diagnosed her illness as intestinal influenza.

Leon Project Goes To National Body

The Leon river flood control district is in the list of individual projects considered last week by the projects committee of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, which convenes today in Washington. J. Frank Sparks, general manager, announced Saturday. Projects recommended by the committee and later approved by the national association at its full meeting this week will be included in a federal public works program and appropriations sought for their completion. A preliminary survey has been made for the Leon project. The district, composed of Eastland and Callahan counties, was created by the legislature last year. An appropriation for the survey was voted. Plans call for the construction of a dam near Mangum, for conservation of water and irrigation in the two counties. Sparks said the Leon proposal would be urged by a representative of Joe Ward, Wichita Falls engineer who was in charge of the survey.

The New Deal Fight In Massachusetts By Ely Fails

By ALLEN MARTIN United Press Staff Correspondent BOSTON, April 27.—(U.P.)—Massachusetts voters elect delegates to the democratic and republican national conventions in presidential primaries tomorrow. Democrats will select eight delegates-at-large and two delegates to the 15 congressional districts for total of 34 votes at the national convention at Philadelphia. Delegates-at-large have half a vote each. The celebration will be held July 24 and 25 in Withrow Court of Miami, where McGuffey, as a teacher there from 1826 to 1836, wrote the readers. Dr. Harvey C. Minnich, curator of Miami's McGuffey Museum, announced. McGuffey societies, scattered from coast to coast, will send delegates. The societies have pledged themselves to raise $10,000 needed to complete the Lorado Taft McGuffey Memorial, to be erected in honor of the educator on the Miami campus. The university now boasts one of the largest and most complete collections of McGuffey's Readers, being second only to that of the Detroit Public Library. Henry Ford, has the third largest. The Miami collection includes the only copy of the McGuffey Primer.

First Reader By McGuffey 100 Years Old

OXFORD, O., April 27.—(U.P.)—Representatives of societies dedicated to the immortalization of the famous McGuffey Readers, which years ago were the main textbooks of the nation's schools, will gather at Miami University here this summer to celebrate the 100th anniversary of publication of the first "Reader." The celebration will be held July 24 and 25 in Withrow Court of Miami, where McGuffey, as a teacher there from 1826 to 1836, wrote the readers. Dr. Harvey C. Minnich, curator of Miami's McGuffey Museum, announced. McGuffey societies, scattered from coast to coast, will send delegates. The societies have pledged themselves to raise $10,000 needed to complete the Lorado Taft McGuffey Memorial, to be erected in honor of the educator on the Miami campus. Roosevelt Opposed By Breckinridge On Ticket

By ROSS DOWNING United Press Staff Correspondent HARRISBURG, Pa., April 27.—(U.P.)—Chief national interest in Pennsylvania's party balloting tomorrow centers on the democratic contest between President Roosevelt and Colonel Henry Breckinridge for presidential preference. The republican ticket carries only one presidential candidate—Senator William E. Borah. Republicans, democrats and socialists, in accordance with their registration, will vote for the nomination of congressional, legislative and statewide fiscal candidates; select delegates to the national convention; name state committee members; and voice their preference for presidential aspirants. While the majority of the candidates for democratic convention delegates are pledged to support the popular choice of the voters, such is not the case on the republican ticket, where most candidates are listed as "unpledged."

RANDY SENIORS GRADUATION IS PLACED, MAY 19

Randolph seniors from a class of about 20 members will have their graduation exercises, beginning May 17, with the baccalaureate sermon at the First Christian church on Sunday evening and the commencement address at the college auditorium on Tuesday evening, May 19. Work of preparing the program is now in the making, announced H. R. Garrett, of the college faculty. Work of the senior body is being checked and the exact number of graduates will be known soon. Hallic Gantz, pastor of the Chestnut Street church, Fort Worth, is tentatively named to deliver the baccalaureate sermon and Dean Colby D. Hall, also of Fort Worth, will make the commencement address. Rev. Gantz is a former Randolph student, and Colby Hall is well known in the Christian denomination. President McKissick announces that a committee from the Temple Trust company, largest creditors of Randolph's indebtedness will be in Cisco this week. They are said to be very conciliatory in their attitude toward the college and are anxious that the college continue in operation.

Thousands Apply For Old Age Pension

This is presidential campaign year as well as Centennial celebration year in Texas. Candidates for major and minor offices are "bleeding inwardly and outwardly for those in need." Why not? About 160,000 applications have been filed with the state commission. In passing upon applications Orville Carpenter, state director, said: Our rule has been and will continue to be to interpret the new law as liberally as possible. We will not keep worthy and needy old people from getting assistance because of some minor technicality. Unemployment and relief problems are ever present. Payments for relief to nearly twenty million people during 1935 and the winter of 1936 hold near the all time high. Neither federal nor state authorities appear able to cope with this problem. According to a distinguished American journalist "It has been dealt with in a frank manner by the New York Court of Appeals in a decision just handed down in which the court sustained the constitutionality of the New York State Unemployment Insurance act. 'Unemployment,' says the court, 'from whatever cause, has increased enormously in every part of the country, if not throughout the world,' and asks this question, 'is there any means possible to provide against unemployment, the loss of work, with its serious consequences to the family, to the children and to the public at large?' A test of the social security may solve the acute problem.

President Roosevelt and Arms Reduction

In a message to the Daughters of the American Revolution President Roosevelt asserted the United States "would continue to press for international arms reduction agreement and would not increase armaments unless forced to do so by other nations." Well, there are national lawmakers who think that Uncle Sam should build his own warships. Terming it the best method of eliminating undesirable activities on the part of munition makers, a majority report of the senate munition committee proposed that the government manufacture its own battleships, armor plate, explosives, guns and bullets. This, according to the report of the munitions committee would take the profit out of war. On the same day that the president sent his message to the Daughters of the American Revolution, the house passed a bill by Representative Rogers (d) of New Hampshire, authorizing an increase of army air corps strength to 4000 planes. The present authorized strength is 1800 planes but war department officials contend the army air corps is far below that figure. The proposed increase would be built up over the next five years and the house military committee report said 4000 planes was the absolute minimum necessary for adequate national defense. Army air corps equipment was termed "deplorable" by the committee. Emphasizing that many foreign nations have vast air fleets and huge airplane carriers the committee said, "these facts strongly emphasize that our nation is no longer protected from air attacks because of the wide extent of the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans and we must govern ourselves accordingly." The house military committee has passed a companion bill for organization of an air reserve training corps. It contemplates training of youth between 17 and 24 under war department supervision. Today the nations of Europe and Asia have greater standing armies than they had during the World War; they have greater fleets for sea defense; they have greater air fleets of bombers and carriers and fighters. Truth is Europe and Asia constitute armed camps. China, for thousands of years, was a pacifist nation. Its rulers always turned the other cheek. Well, take a close-up of China today. All Americans should be for peace with honor. All Americans should refuse to join entangling alliances with foreign nations, but all Americans should be for national defense whenever an invasion of its possessions or rights are threatened by foreign enemies. This was the message of Goliath. This was the message of the Alamo. This was the message of San Jacinto.

Many a man will use hours upon hours telling you he is a man of few words.

Where Italians Have Crushed Foe

Less than seven months after Italy's legions began their invasion of Ethiopia, Emperor Haile Selassie's black warriors have been cut down and driven back by Mussolini's blackshirts, native Askaris, and bomb-laden planes, until Italy's grip closes on Ethiopia's capital, Addis Ababa, bringing complete victory near. This map shows important dates and extent of the Italian advances as Mussolini insists that peace shall be made only on his own terms. Arrows indicate the path of Italy's attacks; the shaded area, the territory occupied.

AUSTIN, April 27—Effort of school leaders to increase the $17.50 per capita apportionment, above its present record probably cannot be operative, even if successful, before the 1937-38 school period. Meantime the school fund will accumulate a large surplus, and the ad valorem tax rate for school purposes—only part of the state rate below the limit—may be cut down some what in July. The school fund gets one fourth all occupation taxes, and the license fees on liquor and beer dealers have provided another million dollars for it in this state fiscal year. The fund gets large revenues from the cigarette tax, and biggest of all from the gasoline tax, which is a "tax on the occupation of selling" gasoline. An indirect benefit to the taxpayers and reduction in the state deficit may be that the legislature will lift some of the present $5,000,000 a year charge on general revenue for rural aid appropriations. Each 1-cent reduction in the ad valorem rate, for education or any other phase of the levy, saves Texas taxpayers more than $400,000 a year.

Representative Thomas J. Dunlap of San Marcos, now in Washington with a group seeking favorable public works action on the $6,000-

600 Guadalupe-Blanco dam construction program, reported prospects are bright for this flood control and conservation project, despite the lateness of its start. The project was given full approval of the Texas public works regional office at Fort Worth and has had good fortune at every turn to its present status awaiting the controlling decision in Washington.

Parks Plans For Big Club Session

"All work and no play" slaws down everything according to 4-H Club ethics. Members of the seven 4-H clubs of the county have been doing group singing, declaiming and orating, but now that spring time is here and the great outdoors makes the call, games are the order of the day and the Parks club is broadcasting to all 4-H club members to be on hand at the Parks Community Center house Friday night at 8 p. m. April 24 for the first countywide recreational game playing meet. Lots of new games, club leader, at the Eastland 4-H club recreational school, will be explained and played. Leader Deaton will be assisted by Misses Lucille Goodwin and Dorothy Jones of the Ivan 4-H Club. Club sponsors will be on hand to assist in "getting the job done." All parents are urged to attend and join in the fun. Playing together makes for a greater appreciation of the meaning of co-operation. The state 4-H club agent of extension service headquarters at College Station is expected to be present.

Westex Beauty To Be Selected May 12

AMARILLO, April 27—Who is the most beautiful girl in West Texas? That question will be decided here May 12. One of the biggest beauty contests in Texas at which the flower of young womanhood will go on parade for two days has been arranged. These beauties will be presented in a pageant, which will be one of many features at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention. Practically everyone of the 195 towns affiliated with the large regional organization will send a sponsor. The convention will be held three days beginning Monday, May 11, but the pageant, "West Texas Cavalcade," will be presented only the first two nights. The sponsors will be introduced in an elaborate stage setting, arranged by Oma Link Rowley experienced theater technician. Admission to the pageant will be free to all delegates and visitors who register and they, by popular vote, will select the sponsor to be crowned "Miss West Texas" at the convention coronation. Heretofore the host city has selected not only a sponsor but also of Governor Alf M. Landon is apparent among republicans, seeking places on their party's delegation. All nominally will be unpledged. Avowed pro-Landonites are former Lieutenant Governor Gasper G. Bacon and State Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., both of Boston. Governor's Councilor Winfield A. Schuster, East Douglas textile manufacturer, and several others.

Adams On G. O. F. State A "big four" headed by Charles Francis Adams, former secretary of the navy, is the only slate on the republican delegate-at-large column. Chairman Joseph McGrath of the Democratic state committee has filed a complete official slate pledged to Mr. Roosevelt. Candidates for delegates at large are U. S. Senators David I. Walsh and Marcus A. Cookidge, Governor James M. Curley, McGrath, Mrs. Grace Hartley Howe, wife of the president's chief secretary, Representative William I. Granfield, Margaret M. O'Rordan and Elizabeth L. McNamara.

James Roosevelt, eldest son of the president, is a candidate for delegate from the 9th district. State Faces Opposition The "hand picked" McGrath slate faces opposition in some districts by other candidates who favor Mr. Roosevelt. Many candidates filed nomination papers with preferences indicated for Mr. Roosevelt's re-nomination, but were forced to "scratch" them for lack of consent by the president.

Republican delegates may be governed in their balloting at the national convention by results of the primary preferences indicated by Massachusetts voters.

There are 78 candidates for delegates and 59 candidates on the republican nomination list.

a choice. Governor George H. Earle, Pennsylvania's first democratic chief executive in 40 years, and many members of his cabinet, have campaigned strenuously for President Roosevelt, looking beyond the primary to the general election in November. Breckenridge has conducted a limited campaign, visiting some of the most thickly populated centers of the state.

Party harmony and efficient organizations held republican and democratic candidates for the two state wide fiscal offices of treasurer and auditor general to a minimum.

listed on the ballots in the 67 counties. They seek party designations for the November election as congressman, state assemblyman, state committeemen or presidential convention delegates.

House Members Run Pennsylvania's 34 congressmen, 22 democrats and 12 republicans, are seeking re-election, some without party organization support. Nominations are made for the entire membership of the state house of representatives of 206 and half the senate or 50 members.

Each major party is electing 114 state committeemen. The Democrats name 84 delegates, with a total of 72, to the national convention, and the republicans 75 delegates with a total votes of 75.

Because of an impending special session of the general assembly before the November election, 10 legislative vacancies will be filled at special elections tomorrow.

These contests will throw democrats against republicans and afford a limited comparison of party strength.

Ranger Man Buys Roscoe Newspaper

RANGER, April 27—W. B. Crossley, 30, advertising manager for the Ranger Daily Times since 1932, will assume control of the Roscoe Times April 28 as publisher and manager. Crossley, a veteran newspaperman in Eastland and Ranger in advertising and reporting departments of daily and weekly papers, purchased the Roscoe weekly paper from A. J. Robinson, publisher for five years, who is leaving for Houston where he has other interests.

The new Roscoe publisher has been with the Times Publishing company, which operates the Eastland Daily Telegram, Weekly Chronicle, Ranger Daily Times and the Eastland County News, since 1928.

Previous to employment with the Times company he was connected with the Eastland Daily Tribune and Oil Belt News.

A vice president of the Lions club in Ranger, Crossley has been a worker in the chamber of commerce since he married, and has a three-year-old daughter. The Roscoe paper recently observed its 30th anniversary.

FOLLY and FAREWELL

BEGIN HERE TODAY LINDA BOURNE, 30 years old, pretty and socially prominent in the little town of Newtown, is left almost penniless after the sudden death of her father. She becomes friendly with PETER GARDINER, political reporter, and shows him a manuscript she has written. Linda breaks a date with Peter after DIX CARTER, with whom she is in love, telephons. Dix comes to see her but she says she is busy. Later Linda goes to Peter's home and is welcomed by his mother. Peter tells her that his newspaper needs a society reporter. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V

Dix said, "It will only be a year, Linda. Will you wait... will you still remember me?"

FOR five hours Linda actually did not think of Dix for one minute. She was having a good time. She ate chicken hash and fluffy biscuits and home-made relish and leaps of strawberry shortcake and felt like an over-stuffed child at Thanksgiving. She looked at pictures of Pete when he was a little boy (much to his disgust). She listened to stories of what a good boy he had been until he had to restrain his mother from saying more.

Linda talked—or rather questioned—Pete—about newspaper work, and begged him to reassure her about the job on the Blade.

"It's a cinch you'll get it. You're just the girl. Barrett's been depending on publicity to fill that society column, but I pointed out to him that you could fill it with a few telephone calls."

"Of course I could," Linda said breathlessly. "The pay won't be much. Ask for $20; you'll probably get $18."

"Why, that's loads of money! Do you think I'll be worth it?" Linda asked him. "There's lots of money to be made in newspaper work, my dear," said Mrs. Gardiner sagely, albeit she knew nothing about it.

"Are you always going to be a newspaperman?" Linda asked with awe, seeing the great career she was going to embrace. "Why not?" Pete answered, lazily drawing on his pipe. "That's one job where you can put your feet on the desk and nobody minds."

"Don't you pay any attention to him, Miss Bourne. He likes to pretend he's the laziest man in the world, but he's been working since he was a little tyke selling papers. And someday he's going to be famous. I tell him they are as good as the plays of this famous O'Neill."

"Oh," Linda said briefly; she might have known! "Plays?" "Sure," Pete dismissed it. "Every newspaperman writes plays. That's the way he makes up to himself for not doing any other work."

"PLEASE may I read one?" Linda asked with a sparkle in her eye. She said it as winningly as he had when he had asked her to let him read her scenario. "They're not worth it, but it's nice of you to want to. He played back at her. "Peter read your story to me, Miss Bourne. I told him I think it will make a fine moving picture." Linda was embarrassed; he had read it to his mother! "You're just being kind"—and, turning to Pete—"Please may I take it along with me?" She didn't want anyone else to read it.

Pete took a long time to stamp out the ashes before he answered. He cleared his throat and looked away. "Sorry. I . . . I left it in my desk at the office but it's perfectly safe. Now about this interview tomorrow . . ."

Linda couldn't sleep that night. She was weaving romances about a famous girl reporter uncovering crooked political schemes, saving the poor from financial disasters, rescuing children from fires, bringing in scoops. She was the girl reporter.

But it wasn't like that. Mike Barrett hired her, gave her a corner desk, told her to fill a column with society news and gave her a pair of scissors and a paste-pot. She bought herself a note-book and went to work. There were no scoops for her, no political schemes to uncover. She spent her mornings on the telephone and her afternoons rushing from meeting to tea, from organization headquarters to committee meetings. Her daily column grew and added a Sunday page. She became a hard-working society reporter and it took all her time. Parties were out for her. Her mourning made it impossible to accept the invitations that came to her as before, and she was glad to have an excuse not to attend.

But she was enjoying herself, and a hope that was springing anew, she kept out of her mind, remembering the humiliation of that early spring Sunday with Dix. For Dix had come back. They rode out in the country in his big roadster. On Saturday nights when he worked late, Dix called for her, but those Saturday nights were hard to bear, for he never said he would call or telephone and he never called early. She dared not hope that he would come, and she lived in delicious agony each Saturday, her eye on the galleys she had to correct but her ear attuned to the telephone. He always came. May came with her sharp sweetness, and melted in June's mellow warmth. All of life had quickened for Linda. It was full of real things she hadn't known before. There was work and love and friendship. Real friendships. Her old crowd she saw frequently and talked beans and parties and clothes with them, as girls do, but the Gardiners were her real friends. To Mrs. Gardiner she told her whole story—the story of her mother and her father and her own loneliness and into her sympathetic ears she poured the story of her love for Dix Carter.

Mrs. Gardiner was still when Linda had finished and something like fear came into her quiet eyes as she thought of her son and this girl. Pete had not spoken to his mother of the things she knew he must be feeling, but she guessed and did not want him to be hurt. This wise woman saw the lack of emotional balance in Linda where others saw only the calm, poised and sensible things for which she stood. Mary Gardiner knew that Linda was made to be hurt and to hurt others. No one else in Linda's life ever perceived that. So no one could ever help her when she needed help, as she did many times in the years that followed.

AND Pete was her good friend. And Pete who wanted tickets for the few shows that came to the local playhouse. Pete who slipped an ivy plant on her desk from under his shabby topcoat. Pete who always had a well-thumbed book to draw from his pocket and read aloud when they went to walk late afternoons.

Truly, Linda's life was different and richer and happier until the time for Dix's commencement—and departure—drew near. With her heart heavier and her smile coming more slowly, Linda checked off the days on her calendar. And each time she saw Dix she waited for him to speak, to say something that would make all this sweet enchantment real so that if this were to be all she ever had to look back on, it would have a semblance of substance and not a vague dream. But Dix did not speak, save of himself.

He was going to Europe. Business was something that "didn't mean much to a college man unless he inherited a good spot." He thought he would try to develop his voice. He thought perhaps a year in Rome . . .

"A whole year?" Linda's heart was in her eyes at last, and the thing that Dix had tried to prevent, had tried to escape from within himself was there. He was only a boy.

He was ashamed that he felt so moved, ashamed that he didn't want to leave her. He hadn't wanted to care.

"It will only be a year, Linda, and then I'll come back. Will you wait? . . . will you still remember me?"

"I'll wait for ever and ever," she said, rubbing her nose on the rough tweed of his coat.

That was the way he left her to weeks and months that lengthened with waiting, with nothing but little vague notes filled with talk of music. He was passionately involved with his music, as he was always to be. He told her of his social life and she tried to read between the lines. She knew Dix and she knew girls. But there were no other girls for him. The thing she had to fear was vastly more formidable.

Home Economics Trio Return From Angelo

Miss Frances Bowns, home economic teacher for Cisco High school, and Misses Marcelle Robbins, Elsie Pulley and Martha Joe Pass, entries, have returned from San Angelo where they attended a State Economic Convention held there Thursday and Friday.

With an announcement that due to stiff competition from cities such as Dallas, Houston, etc. the girls did not bring back honors, but were well pleased with the showing made by Cisco's entrants.

Henrietta Bowlin of Lubbock was elected president. She succeeds Maxine Kinsel of Corpus Christi. Rose Mary Pote of Belton was named vice president, succeeding Mary Peek of Lubbock, and Polly Price of Childress was named secretary to succeed Wilma Copeland of Austin.

The 1937 convention is being sought by Fort Worth, San Antonio and Mineral Wells, these cities having issued formal invitations. The next convention city will not be chosen until later this summer, however. State leaders and officers of the organization will name the city.
