Georgia Mob Lynches 59-Year-Old Negro

Held as Hamm Kidnap 'Host'

One of three new suspects held in the reported solution of the William A. Hamm, Jr. kidnaping, Edmund C. Bartholme, above, pleaded not guilty on arraignment in St. Paul, U. S. agents declared Bartholme's home in Bensenville, Ill., where he was postmaster, was Hamm's prison during the time he was held for ransom. The suspect, long a civic and political leader, was ousted from office after his arrest.

RESULTS FROM AN ATTACK ON WHITE WOMAN

RYSTON, Ga., April 28 — (UP)—Tut Shaw, 50, negro who escaped lynching when a 74 year old judge extricated from a mob at Danielsville April 11, was hanged today by a mob which broke into the jail here.
A coroner's jury decided Shaw came to his death "by gunshot wounds inflicted by person unknown." Indicating belief he had been shot and then strung to a tree the rope was under his arms and across his neck.
Sheriff P. L. Henley said the negro had more than 100 bullet wounds in his body. The lynching and the inquest were held where the negro allegedly attempted to assault a young white woman, April 16.
His body was found near Colbert hanging from a tree just few hours before he was to go to trial at Danielsville on charges of attempting to assault a white girl and attacking law officers.
W. A. Dickerson, night police chief, said forty men came in cars about midnight and demanded he surrender the keys to the jail. Shaw had been brought here when feeling grew tense at Danielsville where he was taken last night before the trial.

Dishes to Do Even on 'Hunger March'

Due to the generosity of Trenton merchants, who supplied the raw materials, New Jersey's "hunger army" has a big feast of stew and coffee to celebrate the calling of a special session of the legislature to consider emergency relief measures.

EX-HUSBAND TESTIFIES IN POISON CASE

GREENVILLE, April 28 — (UP)—W. McCasland, former husband of Mrs. Velma Patterson, testified today the woman appeared "uneasy" when she visited the grave of 13 year old daughter she is accused of poisoning. McCasland, father of Dorothy Leon, was the third witness to testify today.
McCasland testified he was the former husband of Mrs. Patterson and that he was father of the dead girl.
He told of Mrs. Patterson coming to his home telling him the child was ill and of his going to the home of the woman to see his daughter.
The father told of "sitting up" with the child and of giving medicine. He added that Mrs. Patterson also tended to the girl.
Examination developed the point that each time the father left the girl "appeared to grow worse."

'Gavel Man' Of The G. O. P.

Representative Bertrand Snell above, New York, again has been chosen to wield the gavel as permanent chairman of the Republican national convention, his selection by the arrangements committee being equivalent to final appointment by the convention as a whole.
Snell, minority leader in the house, was permanent chairman at the 1932 convence.

FARMERS ARE JUBILANT OVER DROUTH BREAK

Rain, thunder storms, and wind in some instances almost of gale force struck Texas early Tuesday.
The high winds lent slight damage to homes in Houston and damaged crops in nearby farm lands. Farmers welcomed the rains.
Galveston was swept by a 40 mile an hour westerly wind. Houston by a 30 mile an hour gale. Instruments at Houston Airport reported a velocity of 65 miles an hour.
The storms at Houston interrupted telephones, telegraph and power service and silenced two radio stations at Pasadena, east of Houston, power lines were blown down and the city was without electric service at 9 a. m.
A number of lines between Houston and Dallas were put out of service by high winds.
An estimated of two and one half inches of rain blown by light strong wind drenched Mexico and vicinity.
Near Groesbeck, 12 miles south of Mexia, the Humble Pipeline Co. station was uprooted at 3:30 p. m. The winds demolished two other buildings. Damage was estimated at more than $1,000.
The rains were the first of more than 34 reported at Mexia since Dec. 6, 1935.
Almost every section of the state reported rain fall although precipitation was general Monday and Monday night. It had subsided by Tuesday.
Rain continued in the Houston section however, and an inch of rain at Cleburne Tuesday was believed to have saved the corn crop, farmers reported. It also was of benefit to stockmen. Potato fields benefited. Thunder showers brought 1.1 inches at Dallas. Galveston and Port Arthur, also reported rain continued this morning.
Rainfall reports included: Dallas 4. El Paso one inch; Del Rio a trace; Brownsville, 14; Corpus Christi 34; San Antonio 1.68; Austin .58; Port Arthur .68; Houston .48; Abilene 1.2; Galveston 1.08.
Fort Worth is jubilant over the first beneficial rainfall since March 8. Rains early today totaled .95 of an inch. An overcast sky gave promise of further relief from two drouths.

BUDGET CLINIC LEADS TO NEW MEDICAL ROW

By DETLEF R. PETERSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 28 — (UP)—This city is the latest battle ground in the national controversy among physicians and surgeons over establishment of budgetary medical clinics.
Recently a group of Milwaukee physicians organized the "Milwaukee Medical Center," a budget clinic where persons of low incomes may obtain medical care, exclusive of hospitalization, for a small monthly fee.
Three of the founders of the center have been ousted from the Milwaukee county medical society. They plan an appeal to the Wisconsin medical society and perhaps to the judicial section of the American Medical Association or the courts.
Clinic Solicitation Charged
The three doctors—A. L. Curtin, J. E. Rueth and H. C. Dallwig—were discharged from the society for "advertising and soliciting business for the clinic," which it was charged, defeated the purpose of the society. It also was charged the physicians intended to violate state insurance laws.
The clinic, which now employs 10 physicians, offers medical service at the rate of $1 a month for man and wife; $2 a month for a family, regardless of the number of children. During the month, it offers to treat subscribers without additional charge except for medicine and other necessary materials needed in a particular case. Home calls would be made without extra charge.
Each applicant is examined for chronic ailment to exclude persons needing an immediate operation or treatment of a rare or serious disease who might subscribe for a short period and then drop from the clinic.
Called Aid To Health
Founders of the clinic here predicted it will raise general health standards by providing adequate medical supervision of children and adults.
Shortly after the clinic was organized, Dr. Chester M. Echols, president of the county medical society, submitted to the society a plan for establishment of a "Medical Service," designed likewise to assure persons of lower incomes with adequate medical care.
Any person unable to pay for necessary medical and hospital care would be referred to the service for treatment. Costs would be budgeted over a period of not longer than one year. The plan, already approved by the society's committee on social and medical economics, is expected to be adopted by the society.

Local Committee To Assist Farmers

Ralph Bradshaw, county committeeman, Felix Boland, chairman of the local committee, Oscar Schaefer and Joe Donnoway, are at the chamber of commerce today to assist farmers in making out work sheets on the Soil Conservation program.
These men will be in Cisco daily until May 15 or until such time all clients have been served, to render whatever assistance may be necessary in filling out these work sheets.
There are a possible 500 farmers in the Cisco group, but only about 50 per cent of them will likely avail themselves of the program, it is thought by the committee.
All farmers, including those who are share croppers, tenants, operators, or owners of farms in Eastland county, beginning Tuesday, April 28, will have available the services of community and county committeemen and county agricultural agents to assist them in preparing work sheets under the new National Agricultural Conservation Program, says Elmo V. Cook, county agricultural agent.
Committeemen and Extension workers beginning Tuesday will be available at the following places with the work sheets:
Eastland—County agent's office.
Ranger—Chamber of Commerce.
Rising Star—Higinbotham Bros.
Carbon—Upstairs over Carbon Trading company.
Gorman—Higinbotham Bros.
A farmer is under no obligation to fill out a work sheet nor to perform in line with the program, but he may have the advantage of learning how his farming operations could be adjusted to qualify. However, a farmer must fill out a work sheet if he is to be eligible to apply for a grant.
The program is designed to benefit all persons engaged in farming including share croppers, tenants, operators and owners. Each can contribute to the program by familiarizing himself with the conditions and by engaging in a soil building program on the land which he, himself, farms.

Life Aboard Auto Trailer Is Called Forerunner To Cities On Wheels

BERKELEY, Cal., April 28 — (UP)—The American city of the future may be composed largely of mobile units erected on wheels instead of foundations, according to William B. Stout, former president of the American Society of Automotive engineers.
Already this metamorphosis has begun, he declares, and economic conditions as well as the development of the automobile home are the two factors that assure its steady progress.
Stout points out that a large part of the population of the United States is constantly moving. From the present status of merely families on wheels it will be only a step to cities on wheels, he believes.
Economic advancement, he says is bound to meet the situation by devising homes which can be wheeled in sections. This will merely be a step further than the present automobile house trailer idea.
But this in turn, Stout foresees will entail the succession of political management of cities by a business manager for the taxpayer will simply move to the city with the most economic tax program and with the best managed business establishments.
Stout professes to see the dim beginning of this future American city on wheels in trailer camps in Florida. He declares that in one of these last summer he saw 150 trailers with their inhabitants enjoying all of the comforts of home.
It will be only a step more, he says, toward the establishment of community interests and then the mobile city of the future will be on its way. The possibilities for growth, and development, he declares are unlimited.
The mobile city, he thinks, will not only present economic advantages but will appeal to the roving instinct of human beings. To make it more and more probable, he declares, it will open a new field of expansion to the automotive industry that is not likely to overlook its possibilities for increased production.

Quints Underfed Is Charge of Dionnes

CALLANDER, Ont., April 28 — (UP)—Dr. Allen Roy Defoe said charges made by parents of the Dionne quintuplets made by their parents that the quintuplets were not getting sufficient food, were contradicted by the splendid physical condition of the girls.
The quintuplets were 23 months old today and Dr. Defoe said they were in "almost perfect physical condition."
Mr. and Mrs. Dionne charged the babies were hungry and restless. They said their babies were fed a "greenish mass of food, oatmeal porridge, a third cup of milk each and a small crust of brown bread."
Dr. Defoe suggested "hungry babies" could hardly display the energy possessed by his famous charges.

East Cisco Baptist Revival Progresses

The East Cisco Baptist revival held its series of services Sunday with the pastor, Rev. T. J. Sparkman, doing the preaching.
Rev. Ben Morrison of Huntington, Texas arrived Monday and will continue the series, it is announced. Rev. Morrison is well known in Cisco, having been pastor of this church.
J. D. Hall will have charge of the music.

Fish Season Opens May 1, Lake Cisco

Fishing season opens Friday, May 1, and according to those who are acquainted with conditions at Lake Cisco, more fish are in the lake to furnish sport this year than ever before. Bass, especially, are more numerous, and many large stories should soon be floating about unusually large fish that have been taken.
B. C. Harper of the fish hatchery is at Diversion lake near Wichita Falls, catching some adult catfish for propagation purposes. As a part of the $10,000 project at the hatchery now nearing completion, a pen for catfish has been built and brooder stock is being secured from Diversion lake, said Mrs. Harper, who went to much trouble to secure authentic information for the Daily News editor.
In this connection, it would not be amiss to quote Cecil Prickett, superintendent of the WFA project now going on at the hatchery. Mr. Prickett, has been closely associated with the hatchery since its construction, the present project being the third one for the site.
The first one was for $2,500, the second, $12,500; the third, $10,000; with a fourth project coming up on the completion of the present one, for $25,000, said Mr. Prickett. The present $10,000 project called for 50 men for three months work. Less number of men have worked and the project has extended over near six months, but it is to be completed in two or three weeks, according to Mr. Prickett.
Many thousands of fish have been put into the lake and bass show to be very numerous. There is no reason why fishermen should not be well rewarded for their efforts this season, said Superintendent Prickett. Mr. Harper is expected back from Wichita Falls today with his breeding stock of catfish.

RAIN REPORTED SPOTTED OVER LOCAL AREAS

Rainfall for the Cisco country has to have been spotted Monday night according to reports from many sections, which vary from gauge at the city hall which was about 1 inch, to 5 in. var-spots. At Nimrod reports are a nice rain fell while 3 miles W. a bare sprinkle is recorded.
After the two inches that had been recorded and the light drizzle Sunday night, last night's rain will aid gardens and crops. Grain is heading in most places and this necessitates much care if it is to spread out and rip up for length of straw. Of the moisture is needed to fill out the crop, but that could wait another week and still be in plenty of time. However the ground is not too dry and farmers are busily ploughing to conserve what moisture has and to finish planting operations.

Glycerin Truck Is Forced Into Ditch

A truck owned and operated by the American Glycerin Company, Cisco, was said to have been forced off the highway near Putnam last night by a "road hog." The driver, Cecil Barham, was not injured. The truck was empty, and was on its return trip from West Texas. Only slight damage was done to the truck, which turned over once.
DUTCHMAN IN TOLEDO
TOLEDO — (UP)—Although Toledo has a relatively large foreign born population, it has only one born Dutchman, H. M. Hendrick who has not seen a compatriot in ten years, said "It's no fun being a one-man colony."

CISCO'S FIRE DEPARTMENT RANKS WITH ABILENE AND SAN ANGELO

Cisco's Fire Department ranks with that of Abilene and San Angelo, with $65,000 worth of equipment, saving Cisco from $5,000 to $6,000 in insurance premiums annually, according to Fire Chief J. J. Collins, with the surprisingly low insurance loss of only 1,674.00 for the year 1935.
According to Fire Marshall Gustafson, when he became Fire Marshall some four or five years ago, Cisco had a 15 per cent penalty because of the many fire hazards in its city limits. Cisco, at the present time, has a 6 per cent credit rating. There has been a 25 per cent reduction in insurance rates for the City, which means that if you live in Cisco, own your home and make application for insurance on it, you may obtain the same amount of insurance at a much less premium rate per thousand than you could obtain if you lived in a town with lower fire rank. This is due to the splendid cooperation of the men who compose Cisco's Fire Department and to the commendable leadership of its chief.
Cisco's Fire Department was organized some 40 years ago, with a personnel of 25 men, consisting of business men only. They belonged to the Department for the protection of their business establishments, and to secure a low rate of insurance on them. The equipment at that time consisted of a "hook and ladder" truck, pulled by hand, with two hose reels. This was used until about 18 years ago, when the first automobile truck was bought. An old EMP Studebaker car was purchased and converted into a fire truck, with a fire hose, but without ladders. The old "hook and ladder" truck was still in use. It was not until about fourteen years ago that the first truck made

Give The Dogs a Break

A dog is entitled to an owner who will return at least a generous portion of the well known dog devotion. If an owner refuses that much reciprocity it is nothing short of a crime to kill the dog.

While there is a serious question about dogs being permitted to roam at will through city neighborhoods, it is more of a question of easy and practical care of them. City dogs are mostly toys. They have little opportunity to make use of their dog functioning capacities. How can a dog attach himself to a master, orthodoxly, when the latter doesn't know enough to take him by the ears and talk confidentially to him while rolling his head affectionately between the knees? Masters that are impersonal with dogs have not qualified for the franchise of dog ownership. True, nothing can be done about it. That is, nothing but killing the dog because it wasn't fortunate enough to draw a master.

Dogs should be immunized from rabies. A dog that is worth admitted ownership is worth a license and a vaccination—not to mention sensible treatment at signs of ailment. Proper food and easily available drinking water should be the material expression of appreciation of the owner to the devoted slave. Given such treatment, dogs will not take on "mad dog" traits and endanger human lives. They will not be neighborhood nuisances. They may never be able to reach a high degree of dog perfection in the city—but they will be safe and lovable toys. This much we may know—a dog is the reflection of a human disposition. If he dies because of that fact what relation should he claim to the martyrs?—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Famous American Magician Dies

Howard Thurston, one of the world's most famous magicians, passed out of the picture at his winter home at Miami Beach, Fla. He was 66. He was a native American. He was the master of magic. He had appeared before the most important personages of America, Europe, Asia, Africa, and islands of the Seven Seas. He had appeared before kings and emperors, in his earlier years. He had exposed many of the fakery of the spiritualistic world. He was known to scientists and near scientists. He was a highly educated and a marvelous exponent of the Art of Magic. He believed in a future life beyond the grave. He did not believe that the finish here was the end of moral existence. He did not believe that messages could come in a spiritualistic route or sense from the other world but he had promised those who were close to him on this earth when he journeyed to the other side to return messages as to existence there, if it were possible to open communication with those whom he loved and respected and had left behind him.

Youth Finds Its Place

Certainly one of the healthful signs of these times is the growing importance of youth in the nation's affairs. Back in the smug, depression era, youth took little or no interest in public events, because the ship was presumed to be holding an even keel.

But now—after five years of hardship and struggle and search for the way out—youth is taking the wheel and it may be going places.

The colleges, for instance, the turning more and more to an intelligent and earnest interest in public affairs, and in every town and city "young republicans," "young democrats" and so on are concerning themselves about the future.

This is a wholesome trend. In the past youth has made great contributions to the art of government; witness the case of Pitt, British prime minister at 21; and our own Hamilton, a power in his twenties. This is not to argue, of course, that all youths are Pitts and Hamiltons. But whatever they are, they have a place to fill.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUTUMN, April 28 — As a Centennial evangel of Texas and Texas' greatness Governor Allred will, instead of setting a precedent, follow a precedent that dates back at least to Governor James H. Hogg. Several made long good-will pilgrimages as heads of Texas delegations of citizens, in connection with important events of state. Governor Hogg made a trip of two weeks or better, delivering many speeches. One of his Texas speeches was delivered in Boston. Governor Neff made long trips as Governor Governor Dan Moody accompanied the all-Texas booster special train on a trip over the North and East. Texas governors have attended conferences of state executives in Washington, and many of them have gone as members of delegations to democratic national conventions. The presence of the governor lends prestige to such a group, and was a hearing for the Texas message that could be secured in no other way.

BROOKS

Comment is being heard, even in advance of this year's election, that Fat M. Neff Jr., son of the former governor, is looming as a strong prospect for attorney general when Attorney General William McCraw retires. McCraw is opposed for re-election this year. Miss Margie E. Neal, only Texas woman senator, likely will return to the state as a high official of the regional federal social security administration. She took a federal office in Washington nearly two years ago and when the social security administration prepared to set up a regional Southwestern office, she at once became the foremost prospective appointee as its supervisor. A Waco good-will or trade-trip boosters' group has set something of an all-Texas record in its tour, by special train, of Central Texas. This group sent out word in advance to the cities being visited that it did not want entertainment and that the eating and sleeping arrangements of its members were all provided for — that the trip was a serious business visit, and what the members wanted was an opportunity to visit the business establishments of the neighboring cities and towns. It wasn't bellyhoo; there was no land, and no parades or amusing antics. This trade trip was the tour of about 50 prominent business and professional leaders of Waco, including several educators, on the practical if possible mission of getting acquainted with the business life of the communities in the Waco area. Federal help in home-building became an actuality in President Roosevelt's administration. But the republicans have found that President Hoover promulgated a platitude or two about it. Hoover said it was inexcusable that a nation which had succeeded in furnishing a cheap automobile to every American family had failed to put modest homes within the reach of ownership by the vast majority families in the low income brackets. If it was a republican idea, at least the democrats furnished action that has meant much saving the homes of debt-incumbered families, and making homeownership possible for thousands of additional families. BANCHESTRA MAKES BOW PALO ALTO, Cal. — (UP)— A high school instrumental music department has launched a new instrumental combination for future composers to worry about. FOLLY and FAREWELL

By Marie Blizard © 1936 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY LINDA BOHANE, 25 years old, pretty and socially prominent in the little town of Newtown, is left almost penniless after the sudden death of her father. She becomes friendly with PETER GARDNER, political reporter, and shows him a scenario she has written. Peter gets Linda a job as society reporter. DIX CARTER, with whom Linda is in love, tells her he is going abroad for a year to study singing. He says, "Will you wait for me" and she answers, "I'll wait forever."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VI

LINDA never before spent a summer like that one. She was a working girl now, and there was no more traveling east to spend weeks house-partying on Long Island or the Cape with school friends.

Linda was a working-girl with limited time and limited money. The invitations came from the east, and Wilda Jennings begged, pleaded and coaxed Linda to "quit that foolish job and come and have a good time."

But Linda was having a good time. And she didn't think her job foolish. She pored over the columns of news she turned out daily, worked anxiously with the paper's photographer and learned the thrill of a good job well done.

And she had fun. Fun with Pete Gardner. One time they went to a carnival, and Pete proudly presented her with his trophies—a horrible wringing doll, a cotton havoja blanket, two games and a huge box of inedible candy.

Pete learned to play tennis. There was no servant to keep the Bourne courts in order, but Pete and Linda made a game of it. Pete taught Linda to swim and, laughing, spluttering, choking, she clung to him, not knowing that to touch her was a form of sweet agony for him.

HE didn't know about Dix, but he did know about Linda, and he told himself he "wasn't getting to first base." Lots of girls had made it clear to Pete how they felt about it and Linda showed none of the symptoms. But she spent almost all her free time with him.

There was the time that they went to a state fair and judged the hogs and jellies with impartial if inept judgment. There was the time they spent a day beside a small stream talking, talking and Pete told her tales of newspaper tradition, but never that his heart beat faster at the sound of her footfall or that a shadow on her face was like a cloud passing over him.

Did Linda know? What woman wouldn't have known? She tried to pretend that it was not so, that Pete was her friend, that their association was to him what it was to her—a pleasant companionship. It was only when she spent those quiet, comforting evenings at home with Pete and his mother that conscience smote her and she felt she was being unfair to him. But she had so much, she depended on him for so little, that she could not let him go. And, since he did not tell her that he loved her, she couldn't say anything to let him know how she felt.

FOR she had only Pete and her letters from Dix. The letters were few and like water one dreams one is drinking when one is thirsty, it did not quench the thirst. Dix loved Rome. He was studying with Gaetano. He thought he would try for a singing role in a London production. Opera took too long. He had met some amusing Russians. He hoped she was "having a good time." That was all. No more of caring for her. No mention of that last night. No word of the future.

And yet Linda wrote her heart out to him and then tore up the letters. But finally her loneliness and love for him came to dominate her letters and on a cold bleak day, one of those October days that flaunts the coming death of the season, there came a letter from Dix in answer to hers.

"We didn't know what we were talking about," he said. "It was only a few months ago, but it seems like years, Linda, and I think that we were caught up in an emotional wave with my leaving and all that. I suppose you feel the same way. We've been apart now for a long time. You have a job you like, and I'm in this music thing pretty deep. It isn't fair to either of us to be bound to anything as vague as my future."

It didn't matter what else he said. He didn't intend to come back to Linda.

The letter Linda burned, but not before she knew every phrase by heart and every phrase weighed on her heart like stones that pressed into her and surged up into her throat, bringing the tears to her eyes.

She couldn't work. She had to work it out for herself, but she couldn't do it and keep her mind on her job. She asked for a vacation and got it. Then she got out her party clothes, like countless girls before her, and, with a new wave, a determined smile and a heavy heart, set out to join Wilda at the Jennings' camp.

THERE were boys on the party and music and gaiety. It was like the good times that Linda used to have before Calvin Bourne killed himself, and that part of her life came to an end. Once more Linda had breakfast in bed and sat up far into the night, listening to gossip with Wilda.

The fortnight came to an end and she faced the future with no more hope than she had had when she ran away from herself and her job.

But on that last night at the Jennings, Linda laid her emotions and the facts she had to face out on the table of her mind. She was 20 and she loved Dix. Dix did not love her and he had moved out of her life. Therefore, she would get him.

And, when she had decided that she packed away her party clothes and sent a wire to Pete Gardner telling him the hour her train was arriving.

Pete was at the train. "Glad to see me? Miss me?" she asked, sincerely not meaning to be coquettish.

"Terribly," he said to both questions. "Are you glad to be back?" "Terribly," she said, and for some reason tears glistened in her dark eyes.

The tears did it. "Linda, will you marry me?" Pete said, meaning it but not meaning to say it.

Suddenly Linda saw so many things. She saw how polished were his boots, how smartly pressed his old tweed suit. She saw the florist's box in his hand and his heart in his eyes. She saw in Pete the mirror of herself as Dix must have seen her. "If I could be sure you meant it, I think I'd say yes," she told him. (To Be Continued)

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER. WASHINGTON—Among the many American industrialists, the New Deal finally has found one who is willing to provide factory employment for dwellers on a federal subsistence homestead.

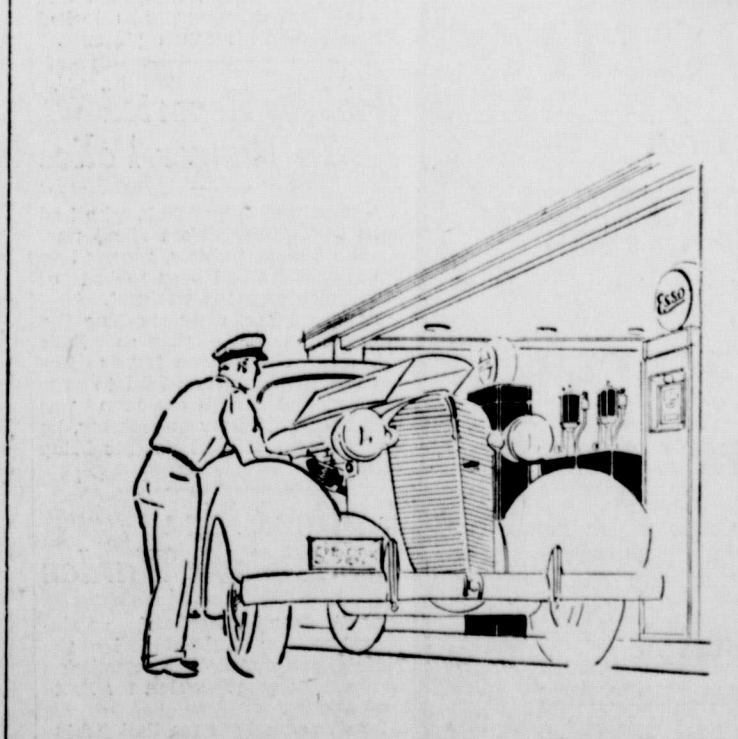

Harlee is the fact that he was 35 years in the marine corps, became a high officer, served in many imperialistic occupations of foreign soil, and now has these things to say in his campaign literature. American occupation and overthrow of a Filipino government after the Spanish-American War was unjustified and the killing of Filipino patriots was shameful.

Reed stressed the fact that information given enumerators will be held in strict confidence. All enumerators and other persons connected with the census work are under a drastic census oath not to disclose or discuss any information submitted for census purposes.

Describing the value of the census, Reed said that from the results, banks and financial agencies are enabled to extend commercial credit more freely because of more accurate knowledge of what constitutes sound operating expenses and stock ratios.

NEW AND EXCLUSIVE PORTRAIT OF AMERICA'S AGING 'OIL KING' AND A VISIT TO FLORIDA HAMLET WHERE HIS HEALTH IS FIRST CONCERN

'How's Mr. R....? He'll Live To Be 100!'

WHAT'S WHAT JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER'S FELLOW-TOWNSMEN WILL WAGER AS OIL KING REARS NINETY-SEVENTH BIRTHDAY; ACTIVITIES CURBED BUT MIND AS ALERT AS EVER

All Annoyances, Aged Magnate Finds Greater Solitude Inescapable

By HARRY GRAYSON

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., April 28—Quiet and mystery shrouding the magnate doesn't mean that anything is wrong with John D. Rockefeller.

Heave it from his local physician, Dr. J. N. Fogarty, and mind and former golfing partner, Rev. George D. Owen, that the health of the oil tycoon is as good as could be expected of a man who will be 97 on July 8.

In a matter of fact, Mr. Rockefeller is better looking than he has in years, in the opinion of a portrait photographer and one of his old golfing mates, E. Engelbrecht, who explains that the confinement has restored the pink complexion of the nonagenarian's earlier years.

As he is referred to by members of his household, was such a serene outdoor man for so long that his parchment skin became somewhat weather beaten.

Misses 'Dressing Up'

Sitting with grace upon his mustache, Mr. R. in his own home, Mr. R. always preferred that showed him to the advantage. When "the richest man" and foremost amongst liked one particular, he'd purchase as many as he could and send them to friends.

He isn't putting on full street attire anymore. It is improbable that a photograph will be taken of him in his best bib and tucker. He isn't donning a color more.

His enforced solitude, those still two years ago saw so much of Neighbor John suspect that he was dressing more than any other thing. He knew how to wear dinner clothes and liked them. He seemed to appreciate the pleasing dignity given him by the top hat, Prince Albert coat, striped trousers he formerly wore for church. On Sunday evenings he was one of the best men at concerts in the big hotel across the way from the seminary.

Alertness Undimmed

He knows how to grow older as he knew how to accumulate, and the few intimates who have seen him recently find him to be as alert as ever.

Only reason why the high fence and sentry boxes of the friendly hedge around the magnate was to make certain that the moving and meticulous care that is prolonging a useful life would be uninterrupted.

A broken old man at 60, suffering from dyspepsia, Mr. R. conquered infirmities by careful living.

It was in January, 1932, that Mr. R.'s physician decided that even more careful living would be necessary if the old gentleman was to attain his goal—100 years. They made this decision when a cold and over-exertion—for one of his age—caused Mr. R. to miss a winter Sunday at the Ormond Community church for the first time in two years, and to miss golf for three consecutive days.

Activities Curtailed

Gradually, Mr. R. who had frisked beneath the burden of four-score years and ten, cut down on his activities to meet the silent pace of sedentary years.

Nine holes of golf became eight, then seven, then six, and finally his favorite sport was eliminated. There were no more long automobile rides, with Mr. R. requesting that the chauffeur step on the gas on the Ormond-Daytona beach. He still requests a short spin almost daily, but seldom takes one.

No more passing out shiny dimes and nickels or printed poems. No more Christmas and birthday parties, of which he was the life, and at which he loved to sing "My Old Kentucky Home," "Swanee River," "Old Black Joe," and "Annie Laurie."

Headed For 100! Short walks in the garden now

Golf Cronies Miss Him On Links, and Town's Youngsters Miss Shiny Dimes

Give Mr. R. his only exercise. On the warmer days he sits on the lawn in a wicker rocker chair and reads or watches little Lucille Frasca, daughter of his chauffeur, at play.

Ward Madison, Mr. R.'s secretary, and Mrs. Anne Mitchell wife of his former secretary read to him, but only what his physicians deem it advisable for Mr. R. to hear.

The schedule will be the same when Mr. R. returns to the Golf House at Lakewood, N. J., in mid-June.

Nothing is to be permitted that will excite or disturb Mr. R., or exhaust him.

And any one of the mighty few who are close to him now will wager that Mr. R. lives to be his coveted 100—and then some.

Cisco's Fire Dept.---

by a Fire Engine company was purchased.

The present equipment consists of one truck known as the "Booster Truck," which carries 275 gallons of water in truck containers. It is the first truck out in case of fire. This truck suffices for small fires. Larger fires require the second truck, which has a 750 gallon pumper attached to fire plug. It pumps 750 gallons of water a minute. This pumper is on what is known as "Model '55."

Still larger fires call for the "Hook and Ladder" truck, which is known as the "Big Truck," also carrying 750 gallons pumper. With all three trucks operating, 1,850 gallons of water a minute can be pumped through the water hose.

This modern equipment cost the City of Cisco the sum of $65,000, and is fully paid for. It nets the city from $3,000 to $6,000 annually, which comes to policy holders in Cisco in the form of low premium rates.

In the old days, Cisco's fire crew consisted of volunteers, and the department was more or less a social organization.

Today, the Department consists of 22 men who are paid a small salary from the city to compensate them for the use of their cars in going to and from fires and to help pay for gas and the wear and tear on their cars.

Two of the crew of 22 men attend school at College Station every year, for six days, where they take a course in "Fire Prevention." The expenses of these men are met by the city.

Cisco's Fire Department consists of well-trained men and in order to obtain the present low insurance rate, are required to, and do, drill four hours every month.

The slogan is "Fight them before they start," which means that more time and study is spent in fire prevention than fire fighting. This is done by a regular inspection of property and elimination of old buildings, etc., considered as fire hazards.

J. J. Collins is fire chief, with Noah Fowler as assistant fire chief, C. L. Tume as day driver, and C. L. Garrett as night driver.

State Inspectors remark about Cisco's well kept equipment as to polishing, painting, etc., and say it is as well kept as any in the whole state.

Game Warden Says Turtle Fish Enemy

Interest in the conservation of fish in this section and action by municipal bodies was urged Monday by J. H. Wood of Brownwood, game warden for the State Game and Oyster Commission.

"Our lakes are being terribly neglected. We could have wonderful lakes if they were only taken care of," Wood declared.

Turtles are destructive to fishing because they eat spawn, he said. Building of inexpensive traps was recommended by Wood.

He stated 856 were caught by the traps recently at a Coleman lake.

"We are building a rearing pond at Brownwood and we believe all lakes ought to have them."

Wood exhibited a turtle trap constructed of wood, and 16 penny nails. The nails are placed inside a square and bait is strung across the top of the trap which is placed in water.

A net is placed under the trap and frequently 15 or 16 turtles are caught in one of the devices. Wood stated.

Counties in Wood's district are Eastland, Comanche, Coleman, Brown and Callahan.

Truckers Must Get License to Work

Works Progress Administration employees must have chauffeur's licenses if they drive trucks. E. D. Baker, traveling inspector for the Department of Public Safety, of Fort Worth, informed Tax Assessor-Collector T. J. Haley at Eastland Monday.

Baker also conferred with the sheriff's department on work of the safety commission in investigation of the H. L. McBee case.
