The Slipper Over Man

Of course you know the slipper-over, the individual who is going to get by with anything and everything possible. Sometimes he is a very sensitive person; he cordially dislikes to be found fault with; he is disappointed and even grieved if you are not pleased with what he does for you, but all the same he won't take the trouble to do the thing the way you want it done.

The slipper-over cook is the one who in spite of your admonitions will make the tea long before she should, and serve you something that tastes more as though it had come out of a can of lye than a teapot. She will stir the rice when she has been cautioned emphatically not to stir it, and put before you a mess more like bill-poster's paste than delectable cereal. She knows full well when to make the tea; she knows how to cook rice properly—she should, she has been told enough times; instead she prefers to slip it over and try to make you believe the tea has not been steeping for 30 minutes and that nobody touched a spoon to that rice from the time it was put on until it was taken off.

The slipper-over painter will daub pigment on your window panes, drop it on the floor, smear brown where only white should be and white should be and white where only brown should be. He will mix oil with varnish and it will never dry. He knows how to paint, has been painting for years. He could be a good painter if he would but try; yet he just naturally prefers to slip it over. Of course he is hurt when you find fault with his slovenly application and his careless mixing; but he would rather be hurt and have you angry than to do his work as it should be done.

The slipper-over plumber will put in a line of pipe so there will be a sag in it; and it won't drain, but it will freeze and burst. He will put in your heating plant so that when the steam comes on it will sound as though somebody were hammering on every pipe in the house. He knows how to do his work. For years he has been a master plumber. He becomes displeased when you complain about things. He would rather be displeased and have you raise a fuss than take the trouble to do the work as it should be done even though you are paying him by the hour.

"I don't see why," raged a man at a slipper-over employe, "when you know how to do your work as it should be done, and I am paying you to do it as it should be done, you don't do it as it should be done; it is just as easy to do it right as to do it wrong; it is just as hard to do it wrong as to do it right. Why the devil, then, don't you do it right?"

"I guess if you are not satisfied with me," replied the slipper-over employe haughtily, "I'll quit." He would rather quit wrong than to hold his job right.

The slipper-over is to be found in every walk of life—rich man, poor man, beggar man thief, doctor, lawyer, merchant, chief. There is a strange streak of perverseness in human nature, and it manifests itself prominently in the slipper-over person.

That biology display in the Collins Hardware company's window is a buggy looking affair.

Cartoonist shows Borah throwing the G. O. P. elephant. Well, that's something, most of them throw the bull.

We presume the reason the Lord created Adam first was to give him a chance to say something before Eve got there.

After reading over the book "That Man Landon", we have come to the conclusion that he balanced the budget in Kansas by pulling up on the belts of its inhabitants.

The United States Chamber of Commerce "kinda" reminds us of a bunch of old maids looking for a boogy-man under every bed.

It's an easy matter for a fellow to sit back in plenty and tell the other fellow that he ought to live closer to the earth.

One reason why we think an author is a queer animal is because his tail comes out of his head.

Detroit Banking--

First National Bank of Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, did not reopen except for payment of a small percentage of the three-quarters of a billion dollars on deposit.

Charges were rampant. Finally Harry S. Toy, Wayne county prosecutor, demanded a one-man grand jury investigation of the bank closures. Circuit Judge Harry B. Keidan conducted the inquiry.

Father Coughlin Testified Many notable witnesses were called to testify including Father Charles E. Coughlin. He charged that hooding companies of the two big national banks were "hideout companies" for assets and stock of the two closed institutions. He accused certain stockholders of the Detroit Bankers Company and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce of conspiring to avoid 100 per cent stock liability assessments. The latter was parent com-company of the Guardian National Bank of Commerce.

Senator James Couzens was called to testify and he accused some officers of the closed banks with "check kiting" and other irregularities. However, the investigation came to nothing when Judge Keidan decided there was no evidence to show that any bank officials had been involved in irregular practices.

But the case was revived in the early part of 1934, when the Senate Banking committee began an investigation in Washington. It was conducted by Ferdinand Pecora. Dozens of Detroit bankers were summoned to testify as other charges of irregularities were made. As a result, Bard was sent here to investigate personally. On June 29, first of the indictments were handed down. By August, 34 bankers were under indictment on charges of criminal violation of the banking laws.

AUSTIN, May 2 — Precinct conventions will be held in every county in Texas next Saturday as the first step toward the selection of 100 or 200

Texas who will cast the state's 46 votes for Roosevelt and Garner at the Philadelphia national convention. Precinct delegates chosen Saturday will meet Tuesday, May 5, at the courthouse of each county delegates to the democratic state convention in San Antonio, May 26.

These precinct and county meetings will be the last occasion the voters throughout the state have anything to do with the party's national success until the November general election, except that in the July primary, they will vote on a ticket of 23 democratic and 23 republican electors, to cast the Texas vote for president and vice president. The nominees for electors then will be on the general election ballot.

Republican leaders and voters likewise will hold precinct and county conventions, wherever there are enough republicans to have a meeting.

Reflection of Vice President John N. Garner as democratic national committeeman for four years by the San Antonio state convention May 26 has been assured. Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier of Corpus Christi intrested in the national campaign. Her resignation from the post was declined when she accompanied her husband to Chile, where Mr. Sevier was American ambassador.

While plans of democratic leaders have not been disclosed, it has been rumored that one or more other Texas women also will be nominated for national committeewoman. No definite indication has been given whether Mrs. Sevier will seek another term in this office.

With reports that Miss Margie Neal, only Texas woman senator, will return to Texas this spring to be regional director of the federal social security administration, there has been speculation whether she may not be proposed by some of those participating in the state convention.

Miss Neal served as co-chairman of the national party campaign in Texas four years ago.

The old controversial issues of requiring the 46 Texas votes in the democratic convention to be cast as a unit, and of instructing the delegation to act on candidates and platform, have been brushed aside this year.

Democratic leaders said there will be no question of failing to adopt the unit rule, or of the San Antonio state convention May 26 instructing the Texas delegates to vote as a unit on the first or any number of ballots, for Roosevelt and Garner, nor of instructing them to support a national platform precisely conforming to the campaign platform of President Roosevelt.

In past years, the main issue of a national campaign has been to keep the delegation from being "hog-tied." Pat M. Neff, as governor campaigned the state against instructing the delegates for either Alfred E. Smith or William G. McAdoo.

FOLLY and FAREWELL

By Marie Blizard

BEGIN HERE TODAY

LINDA BOURNE, 20 years old, pretty, is left almost penniless by the sudden death of her father. PETE GARDNER, newspaper reporter, helps her get a job writing society news. Linda is in love with him, but he goes abroad to study singing. When Peter asks her to marry him she agrees, but postpones the wedding.

KNISNEY HARMON, film star, comes to Newtown, making a "personal appearance" tour. Peter goes to interview her and tries to interest her in a play he has written. He breaks a date with Linda, arrives late to announce "Honey Harmon has bought your scenario."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

LINDA looked at Pete Gardner when he said he had sold her scenario as though he had said he had found the missing pearls which she had never owned.

"Pete, have you been drinking?" she demanded.

"Only elixir of the gods," he said. "Now, young lady, let us step into the library while I break the news to you very gently."

"Will you please tell me what you're talking about?" she demanded, not moving a step.

"Yes ma'am," he said patiently. "That's what I'm leading up to. On the occasion of our second meeting, you gave me a scenario to read. True, I practically took it away from you. Remember the one you said you wrote 'in fun' for a Hollywood magazine contest?"

Linda nodded and sat down on the lowest step.

"Well, that's the one."

"That's the one what?"

Pete took her hand. "Shall I wipe the cobwebs away, dearest? Please try to understand me. I have been playing Sir Walter Raleigh. Lord Chesterfield and what-not to Honey Harmon for a whole week. All for a purpose. . . . Just in time, Pete remembered and stopped. He wasn't going to tell Linda he had tried to sell his play to the movie star or that he had changed her scenario to make it salable.

"And so when she saw your scenario she was delighted and offers $5000 for it."

"Five thousand dollars for that trash?"

"Trash?" Pete assumed a surprised attitude. "Surely you don't consider that trash? My dear child, you have an epic. . . ."

"Epic, my eye," Linda retorted inelegantly. "It's a cheap little story about a stenographer and . . ."

"And one boss who is a Menjou and the other a Gable. And you speak of trash!"

"BUT it isn't fair, Pete. Things like that don't happen. There must be some justice in things. That story can't be worth $5000!"

"Linda, it's worth more to Honey, and if Hollywood bought it they'd pay more, but I thought it best to take what you could get before she changes her mind."

"Yes, of course, but I'm . . . I'm stunned. I can't seem to think . . ."

"And will you please forgive me for not showing up?"

Linda kissed him.

"Don't you think this rates a celebration?" he asked.

"How could we celebrate? We haven't got the money yet."

"Honey is going to have her manager give me a check in the morning. And, of course, you'll be there. You're to meet us at the Mason house at 11. And now, the Mason house, you might show your appreciation by cooking some scrambled eggs, with a whole week. I crave scrambled eggs. Any Irish bacon in the house?"

"There is, but Heaven knows what the neighbors will think of such revelry at this hour! But you do rate it, Pete, and we will have it. You break the eggs and mind you, no shells in them!"

"I was going to have half the money," Pete Linda said over her second cup of cocoa.

"I don't take no money from no ladies, Ma'am," he said.

"But we're going to be married, and it will be in the family," Linda answered.

"I'd like to marry you tonight, Linda, but we won't get married until I earn the money."

"We'll talk about that some other time," Linda said then.

"And now you've got to go, because I've got to spend some sleepless hours thinking about tomorrow. Run along."

PETE didn't take Linda to meet Honey Harmon. He told her to be there at 11. He had been invited to breakfast with the star.

"Pete, I have something wonderful to tell you," Honey said when he arrived to breakfast alone with her. "I'm going to take you back to Hollywood with me!"

Pete gave a corner of a piece of toast to Ming Toy, and winked at the Pekinese.

"Don't you think that's wonderful?" she asked, dropping four lumps of sugar into his coffee.

Pete bowed. "It's the most wonderful chance a man ever had," he said.

"Then it's all settled. Jake has a chance to go with another company and I have no press agent. I mean, I had no press agent, but now I shall have Pete Gardner."

"That's pretty fine of you to think of me but I can't do it, Honey. I've got to stick around here. Got a family." Pete smiled.

"You're not married!" Honey looked as though the bottom had dropped out of her world.

"Not yet, Honey, but I'm going to be. I'm going to marry a girl who doesn't belong in Hollywood and she . . . well, she feels the way I do. We both like this little town. We're newspaper people and we belong here. You see, I can't go away."

"Oh, Pete, you're not married yet and besides if she had a chance to go to Hollywood without you, I'll bet she'd go."

"Not my girl," Pete said steadily.

"I'm not going to take 'no' for an answer. I want you in Hollywood. I'll give you one more chance. Will you come?"

"Try to understand this, Honey. I can't go."

HONEY shrugged her shoulders and smiled. "Who's the girl?"

"Didn't I tell you that? Why, it's Linda Bourne, the girl who wrote your story, 'Bleak Spring.'"

"Linda Bourne? But she's . . ."

Honey didn't finish her statement. Her innings was on its way.

Linda, cool, collected and unimpressed, arrived promptly at 11. The two girls had never met. Their meeting was not marked by cordiality. It was a business meeting.

The check for $5000, drawn to Linda, was presented by Robert Hymans, Honey's manager.

"They'll probably want you to adapt it," he said, blotting the check and speaking of the scenario.

"But I don't know . . . what does that mean?" Linda asked, in complete puzzlement.

"You've got a thorough slant on your chief characters and we're very anxious to convey that in the working script. Our company will probably want you to come to the coast and work on the picture. We'll let you know."

"Want me in Hollywood?" Linda couldn't believe her ears.

They did want her in Hollywood. It was another March when the letter came, telling her that there was a contract waiting for her at Commonwealth Century.

"I've got to go, Pete," Linda said. "I should never forgive myself if I let the opportunity go. I have always felt that the answer to my life is not in Newtown. It may be there."

"But, Linda," Pete asked calmly, "you are going to marry me and isn't that the answer to your life?"

Linda didn't answer for a long time. Then she said, "I don't know, Pete. I've got to be honest with you and honest with myself. A woman can't want two things with equal desire. I want to go to Hollywood."

"I guess that means you don't want to marry me."

They stood looking at each other miserably.

ACREAGE NEED GUIDE IN U. S. RESETTLEMENT

Editor's Note: The following outline of aims of the Federal Resettlement Administration was written by Judge Joseph L. Dailey, assistant administrator.

BERKELEY, Cal., May 2—(U.P.)—The depression upset and disrupted many of the traditional beliefs of the American people. One of the strongest of these was the notion that farming could always be depended upon to furnish food and shelter.

This comfortable theory was exploded when more than a million farm families applied for relief in 1934. We could no longer moralize and say the families were on relief because the bread winner was lazy. We had to recognize the fact that through no fault of their own, relief was necessary.

We cannot place the blame for the plight of these million farm families on relief and hundreds of thousands of others on the border line of subsistence on any single cause. It was the result of generations of farming on land not capable of furnishing a livelihood, of low prices for farm products, of heavy debt incurred when farming was more profitable, of farming on the one cash crop plan, and of natural catastrophes which have destroyed homes and farms.

Bare Living Not Enough
Government relief could not offer the farmer any opportunity to plan the working out of a means of existence for himself. No one could consider the continuance of a system under which hundreds of thousands of families would be forced to maintain their standards of living on this low subsistence level.

However, in extending government relief, there was a marked difference between the results as applied to urban dwellers and to farmers. Where it has generally been recognized that it is cheaper to furnish urban unemployed with direct cash relief than to try and create work for them, the government has found that in the case of the farmer it is not only more practical but more economical to seek rehabilitation. The farmer also prefers this to direct relief. The Resettlement Administration has undertaken a program to furnish farmers with aid and guidance that they may become permanently self-supporting. To re-establish destitute and low-income farm families on a firm economic footing, we have undertaken to do three things:

1. To see that the farmers have adequate land on which to farm.
2. To see that they have adequate equipment with which to carry on farming operations.
3. To see that they have adequate technical advice in farm management.

Provide for Loans
Loans are made for purchase of farm supplies, for renting of land, for repair of farm equipment and buildings and for subsistence. Repayment of these loans is partially assured by mortgages and liens on property and crops. But the principal assurance which the Resettlement Administration desires is the assurance that these families have a permanent basis of rehabilitation.

Through a small loan which will be repaid and agricultural advice many a good farmer has been saved to continue the intelligent cultivation of his own farm.

Knowing that many a needy farmer's budget could not be balanced because of one or both of these considerations, the administration is carrying on two services which are available to low income farm families.

The first is the farm debt adjustment service which is designed to relieve the condition of overburdening debt. Voluntary farm debt adjustment committees arrange meetings between farm debtors and creditors, and they try to work out an equitable adjustment that is within the capacity of the farm debtor to pay.

The second is the community and co-operative service which is designed to supplement the farmer's income and at the same time supply those needs which he cannot afford by himself.

Seeks Re-Election

Cecil Lotief, Florist Representative from Eastland and Callahan counties, who has announced he will seek re-election.

Lotief Announces For Re-Election

To the Voters of Eastland and Callahan Counties:

In making my announcement for re-election to the place of State Representative from the 107 Florist District, I wish to thank every voter for the confidence and support reposed in me in the past. I hope and trust that my actions have been such that you will approve of my candidacy for re-election.

Kept the Faith

I have kept faith with the people. In other campaigns I have repeatedly promised the people of this district that I would never vote for the creation of a new bureau or commission except as required by the Constitution. I wish to state that during my tenure of office I have never forsaken this promise, and never shall I do so.

Old Age Pensions

I have worked and voted for old age assistance to be paid to every one of 65 years of age and voted for the tax on liquor to be used to pay off the old pension; I also voted for an increase on the sulphur tax to be used for this purpose, and also voted for a substantial increase on other natural resources of this state. I voted to pay the old aged from the general fund instead of a special fund and did all in my power to provide quick payment, beginning January 31, 1936, at $15 per month for each person over the age of 65 as required by the Constitution. If you return me to the legislature I will continue to devote my labors and influence in behalf of the old people.

Friend of School Children

I have worked consistently for our little "red" schoolhouses. During my tenure of office I have voted on every occasion for large appropriations of rural aid, for the benefit of our boys and girls, for the rural schools to remain open for a longer term. I am proud to say this objective has been largely received and school teachers are now receiving their money more promptly, without any additional tax on the patrons of rural schools.

Favored Reduction and Economy

I have voted at every opportunity for reduction in salaries, and other measures incidental to the reduction of taxes, and I offered an amendment to House Bill 674 on page 1928 House Journal dealing with the Red River Claim and saved the State $50,000.00. I also amended many other appropriation bills thereby saving for the tax payers of Texas many thousands of dollars during my tenure in office. I was author of and sponsored an amendment to House Bill 680 Page 1683 House Journal which makes it unlawful for any and all of the State employees to use the State's owned automobiles for their own pleasure or any of their families to use the State's cars for their own personal use, thereby saving the tax payers over $100,000.00 annually on this amendment alone.

Favors One House

I favored a constitutional amendment to be submitted to the voters for a one house legislature. By experience as a member of the House I have learned that the people will receive much more beneficial service from one house than they would from two. There would be less duplications and more money saved for our taxpayers of the state. If we have only one house the people can readily pin the responsibility where it belongs and thereby expect more conscientious representation.

Stood For the Rights of People

I believe in a fair dealing and I have always treated the Big Business and Small Business; rich and poor, on equal basis, and shall continue to do so. I stayed on the job and fought for the interest of the people of my district, and even though I was in the minority I never backed down on the floor of the House when I felt that I was representing the interest of the people of this district and of the State of Texas.

Committee Membership

I am now serving on five committees, which are: Revenue and Taxation; Oil, Gas and Mining; Municipal and Private Corporations; Highways and Motor Traffic Vice Chairman of Commerce and Manufacturing. These committees are as you know, of vital importance to all Texas. My attendance is about 98 per cent.

In the Service of the People

I shall continue to be obedient to the wishes of the majority of the voters in my district as in the past.

I am willing to defend my official record at every voting box in this district and after careful investigation and consideration if you think that I can serve you to a greater advantage, because of my experience in the past and my knowledge of the House rules, I shall appreciate your support, and I hereby promise you again that I shall never betray your confidence.

Electrolux IS JUST AS SILENT

And this noiseless operation of Electrolux is evidence of its basically different refrigerating method—no machinery at all. It's the key to every one of the famous Electrolux advantages.

- No moving parts to wear
- Lasting efficiency
- Continued low operating cost
- Fullest food protection
- Savings that pay for it

THERE'S good reason for the silence—the permanent silence—of Electrolux. It hasn't a single moving part! A tiny gas flame does all the work.

This simplicity accounts also for the greater efficiency of Electrolux. . . and for the ever-growing popularity of this modern gas refrigerator!

Electrolux has been the choice for more than half a million American homes and apartments. Each year a larger percentage of all refrigerators sold are Electrolux Refrigerators. Electrolux runs for only a few pennies a day. . . and this cost will never be increased through the inefficiency of worn or wearing parts. For, parts that do not move cannot wear or cause trouble!

Remember, too: the constant, steady cold of Electrolux—24 hours a day, winter and summer—keeps perishables and left-overs fresh for days. Owners find that savings on food bills and refrigerating cost actually pay for Electrolux.

Verna Smith, size 16, alters size slip pattern to fit her. The pattern was made three inches larger at the bust and eleven inches shorter. The yoke of the pattern was cut into two pieces along the underarm seam, and spread to make fittingly large. A three inch tuck was taken at the waistline of the skirt and an eight inch tuck taken below the hips. In this way the shape of the pattern was retained and still made to fit.

The Rough Riders designation for cavalrymen has been relegated to history, but that present-day U. S. Charging down the steep slope are members of the army equestrian team in a practice ride at Fort Riley, Kans. They will compete in the Olympics games at Berlin this summer.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Jesus Teaches Forgiveness, Humility and Gratitude

Text: Luke 17:1-19
International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 3.
BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of Advance

IT is the quality of the teaching of Jesus that it meets every aspect of human life and need. There is no social relationship of life to which it does not apply; yet this teaching does not center around a social philosophy and a social system.

While it insists upon the character and duties of the individual in his social relationships, it is equally insistent upon the foundations on which personal life and character must be built. It relates to the problems of the individual in his personal life and character, as well as in his relationships.

There is the master of forgiveness. It is a twofold thing. It has its bearings upon the one who is forgiven as well as upon the one who forgives.

It makes a great deal of difference in life whether men live upon a principle of harshness and exactness, with no element of consideration and mercy, or whether they meet one another on terms of consideration and kindness.

BUT apart from its social aspect, forgiveness has an important bearing on the individual life. No man can harbor resentment in his heart without suffering from it. To harbor hate or vengeance in one's heart is to crowd out the kindlier virtues.

Jesus taught this with the most careful insistence, and the truth of His teaching concerning forgiveness is borne out in the whole range of human life and history.

CISCO VISITOR ENDORSES WORK OF REFORESTRY

J. T. McAfee, friend of T. G. Caudle, vocational agriculturist of Cisco, visited Mr. Caudle a short while Saturday, just to renew acquaintance he said, since they had labored together in past work. Mr. McAfee is in the Agricultural Aid Administration for the Littlefield district in West Texas, where the government is doing much work in soil conservation and reforestation to curb the ravages of wind. They are adding the land in grass, planting trees and listing the land in a soil of terrace work. Much has been accomplished already, said Mr. McAfee. A noticeable check on dust and sand storms has been observed and they expect to accomplish a great deal more in soil conservation as the work progresses. He is thoroughly sold on the possibility of reclaiming the arid ridden country that might otherwise become desert lands had the government not undertaken the vast reclamation projects.

Andersons Attend Chevrolet Meeting

Chevrolet dealers in this territory have just returned from attending a very important meeting at Abilene, May 1, under the direction of Arch Methvin of the Chevrolet Motor company. Attending the meeting from this territory were A. D. and Jack Anderson of A. O. Motor Company.

This meeting was held for the purpose of putting into effect plans covering merchandise campaign throughout this territory in order that Chevrolet dealers might reap the maximum benefit from the great increased automobile market that has developed in recent months.

Due to the increased volume of new car business throughout this territory, Chevrolet dealers are receiving an exceptionally large volume of new car sales—and at the same time—because of the great number of used cars being traded in on new cars, they have acquired exceptionally good stocks of used cars—and due to the popularity of the new 1936 Chevrolet, they have obtained these used cars at a very satisfactory price, which we find as a general rule is considerably below current market values. As fast as these cars are properly reconditioned, they will be offered for sale of the dealers throughout this territory. Mr. Anderson feels very confident that this good volume of business will continue and that he will have exceptional values in his used car stock in weeks to come.

Rain and Hail Fall In Cisco Saturday

"Rain gauge measures 9 of an inch and still dripping," said Leonard Epler at the city hall Saturday night after a dashing rain followed by a down-pour of hail which seemed to do no special harm, had fallen about 6.45.

No report of hail damage, which was whipped to the ground by a strong wind from the north, had been reported at time of going to press last night. Reports from gardeners in town said they observed no damage as far as they could tell.

This is the first rain to fall with any force of run-off, and farmers and stockmen who have been desiring stock water will appreciate this, it is said. Those who were not afraid to predict the weather, said more rain would follow during the night.
