ITALIANS OCCUPY ETHIOPIAN CAPITAL

About Our Friends

By STEPHEN A. LONG

It was an impressive ceremony when sorrowing relatives filed out between a long line of more than thirty pall bearers, some dressed in the uniforms of the Knights Templar, all with the aprons of the ancient Order of Masons, symbol of their trade, followed by all that was mortal of Aaron L. Mayhew, leaving his lovely earthly home at 808 Avenue F, which was a part of the fruits left from his life of activity, so far as financial gains were concerned.

It was fitting that the two ministers, who had preached his funeral, should precede his body as the undertaker and his assistant came down the line of men doing their acts of homage to his character, with the casket taking him to his eternal reward. These ministers went as far as they could to the grave... then all left but the undertaker, who would see to the burial of his grave... and then... only God....

Sorrowing loved ones and friends will return to every day walks of life... soon only a memory... but one that will last as long as memories of deeds of kindness and fair dealing remain in the hearts of men... Many reminiscences were held around the home Monday afternoon, of the sterling worth, fair dealing and constructive town building of Aaron Mayhew in the thirty years of his life in Cisco... His remains remain to carry on... he has left them a heritage of honor... they cannot fail to follow... They and Mrs. Mayhew will keep his memory green....

Thought they must be having a mass meeting of the local citizenship at the Cisco Gas Corporation... house full of men... then found force and his staff counting and sorting money into piles... Just as regular payday, said Duckett... But is quite a payroll....

It seems there are lots of old coins laid away... Cisco was not broken... Since publishing about the old coins of Mr. Yates, Jr. and Mrs. Davis, we hear of many old ones... Here is Tub Wilcox... 25c piece, 1820; 3c, 1867; 2c, 1864; 5c, 1831; Shin Plaster, 1874; Substitute Shin Plaster, 1837... who next?....

HALF-MILLION AVAILABLE FOR COUNTY LOANS

George J. Lane, supervisor for the Resettlement Administration in Eastland county, has been informed by the regional headquarters that almost half a million dollars are now available for cooperative loans in Texas and Oklahoma will be diverted to other use unless it is used before the end of June. This fund amounts to $312,000 in Texas and $143,000 in Oklahoma, but only a few thousand dollars have been loaned to date. Most of the loans so far have been for purchased sires and farm machinery. The loan is usually made to one man, and his neighbors sign an agreement to use the animal or machinery at a specified price. Many other types of cooperative enterprises may be financed through such loans from the Resettlement Administration, including syrup mills, and facilities for grading and shipping farm products such as fruit, vegetables, eggs, and poultry. Loans may also be made for membership in existing cooperative associations. In one county a loan now being considered which would enable borrowers to become stockholders in a cooperative hospital. "I am sure that there are many worthwhile enterprises that should be started cooperatively in this county," Lane said. "And I hope that farmers who are interested will call on me at an early date in order that we may make requests for loans

No West, But a North

A youthful writer in the Kansas City Post makes a clear statement of a real problem confronting American youth. "One trouble with us younger people," he says, "is that there is no longer a West for restless youngsters to cut out and build up. In the old days, when the East was tired of a young man, it told him to go West, and that settled the trouble. He went to the frontier and found plenty of work and adventure. But now we young people must remain at home and try to get thrills by burning Dad's gasoline. If we should go West with a rifle, an ax and a wife, we would run across cities and farms and seek in vain for land where we could live off the country. The older people have taken the frontier from us, and now it is their problem to find an outlet for our energy. We sons of sturdy pioneers are in need of a West. Would-be pioneers, however, are not necessarily baffled. The West indeed is mostly taken up and civilized and developed beyond the pioneering state, but there remains the North. There is our great, glamorous, almost unknown territory of Alaska, calling to hardy youth; and there are the vast stretches of northern Canada, empty and calling for conquest and occupation. Our young men, no doubt, will follow the North Star more and more, they learn of northern opportunities and overcome the prejudice of an easeful age against the northern climate. Arctic explorers are rapidly sweeping away old notions on that point. And the North, says an ethnologist, is the origin of the white race, and destined to win it back again.

No Sweets for Children

What may seem a revolutionary change in children's diet is urged by the federal public health service. Sweets are ruled out. "Certain articles of food," says the service, "are to be placed on the tabooed list. Chief among these are all forms of sweets, including sugar itself, jellies, jams, pies, cakes, honey, syrup, etc." Probably the average mother, and certainly the average child, will exclaim in horror: "A meal without anything sweet? It's impossible!" Many mothers will say that if there is no sugar in some form to tempt the children, they will not eat enough to keep them healthy and growing. The government's health experts, for all that, may know what they are doing. Doctors generally are less inclined than they were a few years ago to recommend plenty of sugar and candy for children on the ground that "they need it to provide the energy they use up." Doctors have seen more clearly the ravages caused in children's digestive systems directly by too much sugar, and the indirect harm they suffer from perversion of appetite and artificial distaste for wholesome foods. The health service isn't going to starve the poor kids. It urges plenty of health-giving, energy-producing, body-building foods, particularly such standbys as milk, eggs, whole wheat bread, fresh vegetables and fruits. This last item is not to be overlooked. Children do need sugar, but "grape sugar," found in fruits, is the most wholesome of all the sugars. With plenty of oranges and other sweet fruits they will not crave candy. Another recommendation made by the government health experts is novel and suggestive. They urge mothers not to insist on the sugarless children eating, and not to bribe them to eat, but to set them down to a table spread with wholesome, simple food five times a day, and let nature take its course. That may be worth trying, especially if the mothers are careful to make the food look attractive.

If we had only thought of it while we at Dunkirk in Belgium back in 1918 we could have added many bugs to Professor Duff's collection. They probably would not be as large and beautiful as his collection, but the numbers were there.

FOLLY and FAREWELL

BEGIN HERE TODAY
LINDA BOURNE, 26 years old, pretty, is left almost penniless by the sudden death of her father. PETER GARDNER, newspaper reporter, helps her get a job writing society news. Linda is in love with DIX CARTER, but he turns down a job in Hollywood. When Peter asks her to marry him she agrees, but postpones the wedding.
HONEY HARMON, film star, comes to Newtown, making a "special appearance" for Peter. Peter goes to interview her and writes a scenario written by Linda. COOPER KEVILL, an actor, has been miscast. She is quoting Peter, though no one knows this.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XII

FOR two months Linda had spent the days since her arrival in Hollywood sitting with her feet on the pulled-out drawer of her desk, idly reading old scripts. At luncheon time she had found a secluded table in the Commonwealth lunch-room, then wandered over the lots, watching the making of pictures and going back to write gay little letters to Pete in which she pictured herself as Alice in Wonderland. Studio life was fascinating to watch, but Linda had been bored.
Then came that fateful day of the conference. Linda had been invited out of courtesy. Directors, producers and writers had met to discuss the falling stars, the pictures that were not good "box-office," and out of it all had come one suggestion from the unknown Linda Bourne. And a falling star had become once more a brilliant possibility.
Linda was no longer bored. The studio had bought Myron's "Life of Keats" and they were already at work on the picture for Cooper Venell.
Linda was famous. Miracle girl, they called her. But, by this time, Linda was no longer surprised by Hollywood. And in a little time she forgot it hadn't been her own idea—that she had only said what Pete had written. She had long since thrown away the telegram from Pete. She accepted her increased salary as easily as she accepted her move to the executive offices and the services of a secretary.
When they brought her a copy of her original script, which Pete had sold to Honey Harmon almost half a year before, Linda thought the plot was really her own. If there was a third character that Pete had written into it, long before in the Blade office, Linda didn't remember and Pete had never told her what he had done.

WHEN Linda made the first speech that made her famous in movieland that day she took several rounds of the ladder of success at once, but when, three months later, lunching casually with Hogarth James who had played English character parts for the past five years, she suggested that he had a kind of menace in his kindly face that was exactly right for a series of new mystery stories, she was made!
She forgot that Pete Gardner had pointed this out to her after a movie they had seen together at the Palace at Newtown.
It wasn't long for Linda in Hollywood after that. She had moved from the hotel to an apartment house, bought herself a modest car, and, like everyone else in Hollywood, went to the movies.
A young woman with power—and Linda had power since she was credited with "discoveries"—need not have feared loneliness. Linda could be useful and she was attractive.
She was chic. She learned to dress well. Any old hat and knitted things didn't go. In Hollywood the fashion was sports clothes and evening clothes, and Linda's tailored white tweed, her broad-shouldered, slim-hipped tailcoats, her fresh violets, white or deep purple, which she always wore, her Paris-made evening frocks were distinguished where all clothes were beautiful. Her soft, clipped voice and her dignified bearing were often unkind contrast to her sensational pictures in the picture colony. Picture people wanted to know Linda for herself, as well as for what she could do for them.
SHE spent money recklessly on clothes. She bought a good car, not because she wanted to create an impression but because she liked to drive a good car. She gave parties. They were small and intimate. Dinners for four or six, at the most, and never for two. Sundays she was "at home" from 4 to 7, serving a discreet number of cocktails and excellent food. It became smart to be invited to a Bourne Sunday afternoon.
Linda knew the stars, the important directors, the producers. She went to the fights, the football games, to Palm Springs and Arrowhead for week-ends. She spoke a few words into the "mike" at the important openings at Sid Grauman's Chinese Theater. She became a celebrity among celebrities, and she still wrote to Pete, but her letters grew less frequent and told him more than she thought. Pete knew he had lost her, and pride kept him from intruding into the life she had made for herself.
Pete put himself into his play. And one day it was done and he sent it to New York.
Linda was in Hollywood 18

Texas Topics

AUSTIN, May 5—Candidate Roy Sanderford, in his opening speech, criticized Governor Alfred as spending much time officially in "queen crowning" exercises over the state. When called asked where Acting Governor Walter F. Woodul was one day the week he presided at Austin, the answer came "he is out at a queen crowning." Woodul had gone to West Texas to take part in a local Centennial observance.

The Texas capital building distinctly has been in dishabille for many Centennial-year visitors of the past few days. Its floor tiles have been scraped off, leaving the rough, jagged mortar matrix exposed, with swirling limestone dust covering everything, and piles of broken tiles and debris all about the corridors.

This has been a necessary incident to the re-flooring of the capitol, when a fine terrazzo surface will be laid, its central feature a 36-foot circle containing in true colors and exact replica, the coats of arms of the six nations whose flags have flown over Texas. Much of the work has been done at night, to spare capitol workers the noise and obstruction which daytime work entailed.

There will be a little problem of tact for someone at the capitol when Governor James V. Allred leaves office. . . In the picture gallery of all presidents of the republic and governors of Texas, Governor Miriam A. Ferguson's portrait is hung between those of Pat M. Neff and Dan Moody. Then after Moody and Ross S. Sterling's, in the row, another oil painting of the only woman governor now appears. This is a precedent—two pictures of the same chief executive. When Allred leaves office, the legislature will provide for placing his portrait on the wall, and normally it would go into the panel where the second portrait of Mrs. Ferguson has been placed. There aren't but a few panels left. . . Artists are very eager to have their work in this group, and if one of Mrs. Ferguson's pictures is withdrawn—both an excellent—it will cause professional heartburning no doubt, even though tentatively it has been considered that one of the pictures was there only temporarily.

A marble bust of Mrs. Ferguson presented by admiring friends at the close of her first administration, stands in the rotunda of the capitol.

A Primitive Nursery in Baby-Minded America!

In a dark, ill-ventilated cabin, this backwoods grandmother fans away flies from a baby, as she rocks his crude, wooden cradle. Not a phase of pioneer life, but a glimpse into a present-day home near Sheffield, Ala. This scene affords a striking contrast to the healthful environment and scientific care to which National Baby Week and Child Health Day are dedicated. Primitive homes such as this rapidly are being supplanted by modern ones, as the Tennessee Valley project develops.

USSR Ready to Recall Trade Credit Missions; Exports Exceed Imports

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD
United Press Staff Correspondent.
MOSCOW, May 5.—(U.P.)—Foreign trade organizations of the Soviet Union abroad, such as Amtorg in America, soon may be abolished, F. Rabinovitch, head of the Export Department of the Commissariat for Foreign Trade, indicated in a statement here.

Although he did not officially and specifically sound the death knell of the Russian trade missions abroad, he strongly hinted that they were no longer necessary for a nation with a large favorable balance of trade which is beginning to feel aggressively independent on the world economic stage. He said: "We have been faced during the last six months by a very important problem—that is to transfer our foreign trade operations, in many branches, into the U. S. S. R."

During the first nine months of 1935, the Soviet Union had a favorable trade balance of 130,150,000 gold roubles. Exports totaled 301,207,000 roubles, imports 171,000,000.

Trade Debts Reduced
Gone are the days when Soviet Russia goes begging for credits at any price and implores foreign countries to buy its goods on virtually their own terms. Increase of production and reduction of the foreign trade debt—though they may have been bought at a staggering price in human suffering—have made Soviet leaders feel like a young boy who, winning his first

Basic Change Advised
"Heretofore," Rabinovitch said, "a great number of our export trust workers understood that their duty was only to prepare goods and that the sale of these goods would be handled by representatives abroad. Hence workers in the Soviet Union knew little of foreign markets or their languages. Now a basic change is necessary. "We must raise the technical knowledge of our workers in the Soviet Union and carry out all trade operations here, not only without losing a penny but, further, we must profit by the transfer of trade operations to our country."

Women seem destined to play an important part in this new program. Recent statistics revealed that four out of every ten workers are women. More than 500,000 women are engaged in Soviet building industry, while 64,000 work as engineers and technicians.

Women Do Heavy Work
It is nothing unusual in Moscow to see brawny young girls carrying heavy timbers, digging a subway shaft or driving a truck. They at least the younger ones, grin and seem to like their new role.

The Soviet government pays women exactly the same wages as men for the same classes of work. Everything is done to make them feel economically independent.

Rise of woman labor over the last eight years is shown by these figures:
In 1926 the ratio of female labor in the oil industry was 3 per cent; in power stations 3.6 per cent; in the iron and steel industry, 7.7 per cent; machine building, 7.4 per cent. In 1934 the corresponding ratios were: oil, 11.4 per cent; machine building, 24.5 per cent.

BIT OF TROPICS IN NORTH VANCOUVER ISLAND, B. C.
—Basil Keys, British Columbia horticulturist, is creating a tropical paradise. Seeking to prove that his theory that bamboo trees can grow in Canada, Keys completely surrounded his home with a half-score varieties of the tropical trees. The trees were flourishing.

Black-Draught Good Laxative

Black-Draught has been kept on hand for all the family in the home of Mr. W. A. Lemons, of Independence, Va., since twenty years ago. Mr. Lemons writes that he takes it as a laxative in cases of "headache, dull, tired feeling, biliousness." "And I take it if I feel uncomfortable after a heavy meal," he adds. "I especially use it for sick headache. It certainly is good." When a man says "Black-Draught is good," it is probably because he remembers the prompt, refreshing relief it brought in constipation troubles. Its benefits are felt because it is a simple, herb laxative, so natural in composition and action that thousands and thousands of men and women prefer it when a laxative is needed.

Davis' challenge was unanswered early Saturday.

It was unofficially reported the Eastland players will lay down on the chamber official in order that spectators may be furnished with an unprogrammed event.

OFFICIAL Straw Hat Day!

Wednesday, May 6th Throw away that felt!

Yes, fashion has decreed that every Cisco citizen shall don a straw on that day. Dire misfortune may overtake anyone daring to disobey this fashion ordinance.

Don't be a "Slacker", but join your buddies in the straw hat day parade and let's start the summer by being cool.

The three merchants whose ads appear below, have a complete stock of new straw hats at popular prices. Get yours today.

Love Washed Out in Bathtub

It was a washout to romance when Michael Farber, 32, entered his bathroom and there found wife Georgia, 30, scrubbing the back of Charles "Pop" Parker, 65 and toothless. But "Pop," in hurt amazement, told a Chicago judge that he just had the old Saturday night urge during a party, climbed into the tub, and then couldn't reach between his shoulders. So Mrs. Farber came to the rescue and Farber sued for $25,000. Above are Parker and Mrs. Farber, at right Farber.

OUR seasons are not due to the varying distances of the sun. The northern hemisphere has winter when the sun is about 3,000,000 miles closer than it is in July. The heat of summer results from the fact that the sun's rays strike us from a position almost overhead at that time, and the nights are so short that one day's heat is held over into the next.

Cisco Pioneer Dies At Breckenridge

Burial in Oakwood Cemetery followed funeral services held Monday afternoon at Breckenridge for Daniel W. McKoy who died early Sunday at his home in Breckenridge.

Mr. McKoy was born in Arkansas in 1849 and came to Texas about 1876, first stopping at Fort Worth, where he worked for the government, hauling freight to points west of Fort Worth. He later settled near Ellison Springs in the eastern part of this county, where he lived for several years before moving to Sabanno community in the southwestern section of this county. He was also a resident of Cisco for a number of years. For the past several years he had lived in and near Breckenridge.

Mr. McKoy was one of the great number of true pioneer citizens that came to Texas when it was sparsely settled with a determination to master the difficulties and hardships which people had to face at that time.

He was laid to rest with his wife, formerly Miss Alice Keith, and son, Eddie. He was converted at the age of forty, uniting with the Baptist church. Later he was ordained a deacon, which office he filled with distinction.

He is survived by seven children: Boyd McKoy, Breckenridge; John McKoy, Arp; Mrs. Sallie Ellison, Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. Mary Ogle, Los Angeles; Dan McKoy, Jal. N. M.; Mrs. Jessie Price, Ilex; Riley McKoy, New York. Eight grandchildren, one sister, Mrs. Ragen Hemphill of Los Angeles.

Tompson-Kiker Funeral Home of Breckenridge assisted by Green's Funeral Home had charge of funeral arrangements.
