How Important Are You?

"Where is Jack?" asked a man glancing at the back of an unknown person occupying a well known desk. I fired Jack," replied the one addressed.

What in the world did you fire Jack for?" he was the cornerstone of the establishment?'

"Well, in a way he was," replied the man who had fired jack. "He was with me when I began business; but Jack has a serious fault, which I had discovered before he was with me a week. I worked on that fault for five years without making the least headway. I got tired of it and fired him. Jack is high and mighty.

Yes, I have noticed that," commented the man who had wanted to know Jack's whereabouts.

'Jack is proud," continued Jack's erstwhile boss. "He came of a fine old family; there is the blood of the old Spanish grandees in his veins. Subconsciously, way back in the dim distance recesses of his inherent memory, I think he feels it a disgrace for him to work. I doubt that he knows that he feels that way, for his family has been in business in one way or another for several generations.

But I have felt all along that when Jack was dealing with my customers he wants to impress them with the fact that he really is somebody; not just an ordinary, every- Eafety Department's jealous divi. mand. clerk, but a man considerably better than common, slor

Jack seemed to have the attitude that he must make people feel that they must not look down on him because he is an employe. But nobody who is anybody looks down on a person who is an employe if that person is discharging his duties as he should. We are all employes in one sense or another. The biggest slave of all is the chap at the head of the business.

'I talked to Jack; talked to him like a brother; he listened to me, but I don't believe he heard me. The fact is, I think he didn't agree with me. Jack feels that his pride is a great thing and that he should stick it into everybody's face. I'm not knocking pride, you understand. The right sort of pride is all right; but not the fool sort that Jack has.

So, after worrying with Jack for half a decade and trying to knock that nonsense out of him, I let him go. He is a good man, too, if he could be put where he wouldn't assistant adjutant general with the have to come in contact with the public, and be constantly trying to impress everybody with the fact that he is a gentleman.

State Staff Ccrps. The new job will mean a salary increase of $300 a year.

'It isn't necessary to go around telling folks that one is a gentleman, or a gentlewoman, or that one has a Grecian nose or a Roman nose. If one is a gentleman, or a gentlewoman, the fact is as evident as the shape of one's nasal

'If Jack really wants to convince the world that he is a superior person, the way to do it is to show superior qualities through superior acts, and not by affecting superiority. And so this story which was selected to drive home our point, teaches that it is not necessary for us here in Cisco or anywhere else, to tell our friends just how great we are. They may discover it any way-and if they do not -perhaps we are not very important after all.

Eight original drawings by Nor-man Price, noted historical illustrator, are to be presented to Texas schools, according to an announcement received today. The drawings, subjects of which were inspired by momentous incidents in Texas history, from the basis for a current $5000 series of nine weekly contests, sponsored by General Foods, makers of Post cereals. Through the courtesy of this company, each first prize winner will have the opportunity to choose the school he considers most worthy of receiving the Price work featured in the contest won by him.

This privilege, however, is not extended to the winner of the first contest in the series, the original drawing for this contest having been presented to Governor James V. Allred.

Announcement of the eighth contest in the series appears in this issue of the Cisco News.

School Activities---

pany launched into the song, "God Bless you Texas." Hundreds of children were happy in Cisco today when their parents and friends gathered at the Grammar and Ward schools this morning to inspect the work of children and to spread their unches, picnic fashion, becoming in their minds children again just for a day. Programs, exhibition of school work and a band concert by Director R. L Maddox and his Fifth Grade band class, the entertaining features of the grade schools. Rev. E. S. James poke on Texas.

The East Ward, with Principal T. C. Williams, assisted by Misser Lucy Kittrell and Lucile Spruill, pened the festival occasions with their splendid pageant last night, "Texas Under Six Flags" at the East Ward auditorium, followed today by a picnic at the lake, transpertation by school buses for children, parents and friends.

Exhibition of Work At the grammar school and West Ward an exhibition of pupils work as made, dinner was spread and fifth period band class under Direcor Maddox, played immediately ternon at the West Ward. Many visitors were at the high cheel though no exhibition of work. r program was held. High school music winners presented their pro-gram Thursday evening. West Ward and Grammar schools had the largest assembly of visitors it was stated.

The colored school pupils under their teacher, Mrs. Haley, picnicked at Lake Bernie from 10 a. m. until 4 this afternoon.
