Despite ill health, Walthall rose from a sick bed last month to play his last part in a role that was pathetic of his end. ### FLETCHER, U.S. SENATOR, DIES, HEART ATTACK

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(U.P.)—Duncan Fletcher, 77, Veteran Florida Senator, key administration figure in the senate, and deeply respected by his associates, died suddenly today.

His death cast a new doubt on congressional adjournment plans. There was a possibility that a recess may be forced over the period of the democratic national convention with congress returning later to finish up its business.

The Florida veteran whose age in the senate was surpassed only by that of his close friend and associate, Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, died in his Washington apartment just an hour after being seized with a heart attack. Fletcher was the second ranking member of the senate having served continuously since March 4, 1909.

His invalid wife and his daughter were with him when he died. Fletcher, although noticeably failing in health in the past year, was apparently well when he arose today. A few moments after breakfast, he was seized with the fatal attack.

STANFORD DETHRONES KING

The balance sheet for June 15th reflected for the first time the almost astronomical fiscal operations carried on by the Treasury in connection with payment of the soldiers' bonus bonds.

The statement disclosed an almost overnight jump of more than $1,500,000,000 in the government's operating deficit for the 1936 fiscal year.

At the same time, the public debt mounted into new high grounds and the government's cash balance showed a skyrocket increase.

Permit to Drill in Cemetery is Denied

AUSTIN, Texas, June 17.—(U.P.)—Right to drill for oil in a cemetery was denied by the Third Court of Civil Appeals today when it sustained the State Railroad Commission in refusal to issue a permit for drilling.

The situation was righted when the city highway department discovered that it had made a mistake in painting street signs.

Those who were absent at the morning session of the Lions program today missed the treat of the whole convention as some of the most outstanding entertaining features of the whole program were given at the morning session.

The programs of Abilene and Ft. Worth were especially outstanding on account of the rare talent displayed. Abilene had a versatile program, unusual in many features. The acrobatic syncope stunts by the larger girls and the unusual talent and training displayed in the numbers by the two little girls have not been equaled outside of professional circles.

The Fort Worth trio of boys in their wonderful harmony of voices were also semi-professional in rendition. They as were the Abilene group, recalled many times.

Eastland and Breckenridge also had unusually good numbers displaying rare talent and special training for the numbers which they gave. The morning program was outstanding, and at the luncheon honoring District Governor C. P. Dodson, these outstanding characters were recalled for special entertainment numbers.

The presidents and secretaries breakfast and the key and master key breakfast were the entertaining programs of the early morning session, followed by the general session at the Palace theatre, which Lion K. N. Krer has so graciously donated for use during the convention and which has been so delightfully cool for its sessions. Entertainment by various clubs and business sessions took up the morning hours.

Lion District Governor C. P. Dodson was honored at the noon luncheon at the Hotel Laguna.

Afternoon Session

Ross S. Covey of Sweetwater was elected District Governor of 2-E by acclamation. H. L. Dyer was elected to represent Cisco at the State convention with J. A. Bearman as alternate. Ten men being elected from the district.

Abilene was awarded first prize for the best entertainment, its club drawing the $25 award offered by Cisco club. Fort Worth was awarded second honors with $15 going to the club. Mineral Wells drew the third prize with $10 going to the club by the Host club of Cisco.

Weatherford was chosen as the next convention city of District 2-E for the convention to be held in 1937.

SINGAPORE.—(U.P.)—Alor Star, a small town in North Malaya, which claims to be the last town in the British Empire where cock fighting and bull fighting are permitted by law, is to lose its fame. TOPEKA, Kansas, June 17.—(U.P.)—John Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee and manager of Governor Alf Landon's successful candidacy for presidential nomination, is going to run the party's campaign, he said today.

"I believe in having research officials, but I don't intend to make administrative officials of them," he said.

Hamilton added he didn't intend to try "master mining" in the campaign, and termed the "brain trust" phase unfortunate.

Hamilton's only comment on reports that Father Charles Coughlin, the radio priest, might sponsor a third party, was that such was everyone's privilege.

14 Reasons for Newspaper Advertising

- Why use newspaper advertising? Thomas F. Barnhart, advertising specialist and associate professor of journalism at the University of Minnesota gives fourteen pertinent reasons. They are:
1. Newspaper reading is a universal habit. Newspaper advertising, therefore, reaches virtually all who read and buy.
  2. A newspaper advertisement can always be seen by the reader.
  3. The newspaper advertisement, as part of the complete paper, goes into the home as a welcome guest.
  4. The newspaper advertisement can have as much news value and reader interest as the news items.
  5. The amount of text used in newspaper advertisements is dependent upon the size of the space.
  6. Newspaper advertising is flexible.
  7. Newspaper advertising is quickly controlled.
  8. Newspaper advertising may be adjusted to different conditions.
  9. Newspaper advertising enables manufacturers and dealers to state where their products may be bought.
  10. Newspaper advertising is inexpensive. Merchants have learned that it covers more families, for less money than any other form of advertising.
  11. Newspaper circulation is known and is comparatively unaffected by daily change.
  12. Nearly all of a newspaper's circulation is concentrated in its own market.
  13. Newspaper advertising reduces selling costs because it entails no waste in circulation. This helps reduce costs for the consumer.

Advice to Police

The director of a big police force gives these rules to young men who aspire to be good policemen:

"Get married;
"Ragard your work seriously;
"Maintain a neat appearance."
The first of these articles may include other two. It is especially interesting in a time when matrimony is regarded a shaky institution. It is good, regardless of occupation. The famous advice of Panch to a young man contemplating matrimony was merely frivolous. Generally speaking, the biggest step toward a man's success in life, after the training his mother gives him, is marriage. His wife then takes up the training where the mother left off.

CHAPTER XXV

"HELLO," Natalie said briskly, drawing out a chair at the table at which Gail was sitting. "Having an early breakfast for a lady of leisure, aren't you? What's the idea?"

"I'm going to look at some apartments," Gail told her. "One of the real estate men I met yesterday told me I'd better decide on one soon, even though I don't want possession until September. A uniformed messenger entered the dining room and approached the head waitress.

"Look!" said Natalie. "There's a telegram for someone—why, he's coming over here—"

The messenger was beside them. "Miss Everett?" he asked, as he reached the table.

"This is Miss Everett," Natalie told him. As Gail took the envelope, opened it and unfolded the sheet inside, she went on, "Is it another fortune for you, Gail?"

"What?" Gail asked, looking at the telegram.

"But say—why give up the trip anyway? Don't you want to go out and get acquainted with your uncle? After all, he's your only relative and some of these days the ranch will be yours anyway."

"No, Dick. I've got to get to work again and the sooner I do, the better."

Dick shook his head. "Well, you're going to play this afternoon, anyhow. I'm taking you for a sea voyage as soon as we finish lunch."

"Where?" asked Gail eagerly.

"Wait until you see."

It was not until they had reached South Ferry and entered the terminal that Gail realized they were going on the Staten Island ferry.

"How do you like this?" Dick asked as they left the shore.

"I think it's grand." She glanced at the different boats in the harbor. "I feel as though I were starting on a trip across the Atlantic."

"Well, darling, I'm sailing to England in 10 days. Why don't you come with me?"

"I'd love the trip," Gail whispered, while Dick tightened his hold on her arm.

Then marry me, Gail, and make everyone happy."

Fatal words! "Oh, Dick dear, I—I can't." Gently releasing herself she walked slowly along the deck.

GAIL felt restless when she reached home. Her answer to Dick had been final this time. Suddenly she picked up her handbag and a sketch pad. She'd go to the library and make some sketches.

The fine arts room was not crowded and she found the books she wanted and a little table with no one seated at it in a secluded corner of the room.

Gail started to make some drawings. How quiet it was! Sure! The attendants tip-toed on rubber soles like the rubber-tired trucks they wheeled about. Quickly she made sketch after sketch, her eyes intent on the book before her. Suddenly she raised them. A young man was sitting opposite her. Her eyes looked straight into Derek's! For a tense moment each appraised the other. Then Gail whispered, "Derek!"

He leaned across the table and imprisoned both her hands in his. "Do you still love me, Gail?" he asked. "What a fool I've been! What can you think of me?"

"I missed your letters."

"But you were going to marry Dick Searies. Lucille showed me a paragraph in a newspaper column... I was sure it must be you."

"Why didn't you ask me? How could you think that after I'd given you my promise?"

"Darling, forgive me! I loved you so I wanted you to have your happiness even if it broke my heart."

Tears glistened on Gail's sunny eyelashes.

"Let's go, dearest!"

Once more, as Gail walked along the avenue with Derek, her heart was singing happily. All the doubts that had tortured her were swept away. She told him gaily of the end of her career at Madame Lizette's, of the fortune that had come to her and vanished like a fantastic dream. And then he spoke of Lucille.

"Did you know Lucille was going to marry the Argentinian?"

"No. I'd never heard of him. Perhaps he was her secret love!"

"An old man, rolling in money and crippled with rheumatism—surely not!"

"Did you meet him?"

"No, sweet, but just before they were married Lucille sent for her portrait and he sent me a huge check. I thought there was some mistake and called up, but he said it was all right."

They had reached Central Park. At last they found a bench in a quiet corner of the park, and long after the sparrows had ceased to squabble for the night, they still sat and talked.

At last Derek said, holding her close to his heart. "We'll go to Arizona for our honeymoon and while you get acquainted with your uncle I'll send pictures of the west, my Cinderella sweetheart!"

"Mister, we've moved mountains"

"We've moved mountains in our time — me an' this old truck of mine," grins Jerry Baker. "Mister, when you got some haulin', just 'phone for us!"

Telephone calls mean jobs to Jerry: cracker boxes and crates and grand pianos to be picked up in one place and set down in another. Naturally he wants those calls to be fast and clear—without mistakes that might cost him money. And, at the same time, he wants his telephone bill to be reasonable.

Manufacturing telephone calls which measure up to Jerry's expectations is the big job of the men and women who work for this company.

It isn't an easy job. There are thousands of problems to be solved in the day-to-day workings of a great telephone system. It has been a fortunate thing for Jerry that behind the people who handle his calls stands the entire specialized organization of the Bell System: the services of American Telephone & Telegraph Company's great central staff—the researches and inventions of Bell Laboratories—the savings which come from the buying and manufacturing organization of Western Electric.

Jerry Baker, "moving mountains" with his truck and his telephone, may seldom give a thought to the things they do for him...

Yet with every call that comes to him he benefits from the work they have done. Not only have they helped make his calls faster, clearer and better; but in the face of the growing complexity of the telephone system, they have helped this company hold the cost down to a price he is willing and able to pay.

If you visit the Texas Centennial Exhibit, June 17 to Nov. 29, you are invited to see the Telephone Exhibit.
