Thousands of this county and territory feel a personal loss in the passing Sunday of Mr. E. R pioneer business man of Muleshoe, and they realize fully the significance of his removal from the business and civic life of the section whose development owes so much to him.

The position he made for himself in the community cannot be by another. Those who filled knew Mr. Hart best grieved most at his passing; hundreds of farmers, business men, wage earners of this section, having dealt with him for many years feel that a fine friend is gone; that a tower of strength is no longer available; and that a source of kindly wisdom and ever-present solicitude for their welfare has vanished. Muleshoe and territory seem to enter a different era with the end of his life, and while in the far future they may advance to heights unimagined by Mr. Hart, the people can never forget the part he played in the country's younger and most difficult days.

Help! Cried in unison four mem-bers of the Muleshoe school board of equalization after struggling for several days with the jigsaw puzzle that is the property valuawriter sat and watched the process for nearly three hours and can say that a conscientious man who wants to do what's exactly right would, after serving on this board for several days, have a permanent worry fixation.

Thes men are busy men, like all equalization board members, and you couldn't blame them for wanting to get back to their farm or shop or office. The temptation is always there to "let 'er ride". There is also the possibil ity that one board of equalization may will nilly place a certain value on a piece of proper-ty while the succeeding board may lower or raise it as their experience and judgement dictate.

This board probably went into the matter more thoroughly than any other of its predecessors. They wanted to really equalize taxes. But their sense of failure was a-

To that end they will contact their own school board county commissioners, city commissioners and the powers that be in Bula, Circle Back, and Three Way school districts. We will hear more about this in the future. Meantime, as citizens kindly give this matter some thought in the days to come

GLOUCESTER, Mass., August 12, 1949. I believe in children's summer camps. Money spent by parents thereon is well invested. But I do notice one thing with my grandshildren. grandchildren. What About Summer Camps

The first summer when they are home alone, after being too old for camp, they are "lost" and know not what to do. During previous summers while at camp, every hour of the day was planned for them; they merely followed their camp counsellors and the other children. After outgrowing camp life and left to themselves, they ap pear helpless and bored, while children who never went to camp and lacked the many camp advantages are happier. The above does not mean we should deprive our children of camp life; but it does mean that owners

As these children will be entirely "on their own" after graduating from school and going to work, it seems only reasonable to let them take care of themselves for two months each year so as to get used to indi-

Parking meters in Hereford, we would say, have been a success. Like most questions this one definitely has two sides. People naturally resent regimentation and long when they receive a red ticket. Furthermore, the streets sometimes look barren

In contrast to these objections s the fact that store owners and employees have been forced to move their own cars off Main Street, leaving ample room for customer parking. Strange, too is the fact that rural customers frequently praise the parking meters, declaring that for one cent they are able to run in, make a purchase, and be on their way a saving on gasoline and tires many times over the parking cost, which places them in front of their objective rather than two or four blocks distant.

Advocates on each side of the uestion can easily find plenty of support. The majority, however would object strenuously if the parking meters were removed. -Hereford Brand.

Discussed In New Texas Bulletin

COLLEGE STATION, August 15-The new bulletin, C-266, Grain storage for Texas, is new and chuck full of helpful ideas on grain storage structures for Texas. The publication was prepared by W. S. Allen, extension agriculture engineerbuilder of Texas A. & M. College.

On-the-farm grain storage is due to be a very important part of evties or other subdivisions using ery Texas grain producer's farming operations for a long time and Allen says storage structures should be built with this fact in mind. Build them to last. cheapest structure you can build is the one that will still be usable and safe ten or fifteen years from now, he adds.

Here are a few things you should remember, Allen says. Low moisture content is necessary for prolonged, safe storage of grain. struct a strong, durable building. Eliminate entrance points for moisture and insects. Provide for fumigation, if necessary. Rat proof your grain structure, locate it for convenience on a firm, dry site and don't forget to plan an easy way to get the grain in and out of it.

If you need grain storage on your farm, Allen suggests that you visit your local county agenttalk over the situation with himand get a copy of the new bulletin. You can probably find the answer to a lot of the questions that you'd like to know in C-266, Grain Storage for Texas.

Football training officially got underway all over the state of Texas Monday with many of the teams starting out from scratch and many of the teams having nearly all of their old teams back.

In this district however the quality of the boys and the teams that will go afield next month will not be known until they have been in action. Nearly all of the teams in the district lost some of their best men, but have good material which will replace those losses and in some cases some of the men moving up into the vacancies will strengthen their teams

25 YEARS... on the job

This month marks the 25th anniversary of the day we first went to work for the folks in the Panhandle-Plains-Peos Valley-

Eastern New Mexico area.

We say "went to work"

because that's exactly what we did.

Our job for the past quarter-century has been to keep pace with the great strides these folks-our customers-have made ... agriculturally, industrially, commercially.

We've really enjoyed our work, and we're looking forward to many more pleasant years "on the job" for the area we serve.

Our 25th Anniversary

In the years to come . . . as in the past . . . it is our constant aim to keep pace with the everincreasing power needs of the vast area we serve ... to provide low-cost, dependable electric service for better living-electrically-for everyone.
