About Our Friends

By STEP A. LONG

John Lewis, and his daughter, Mrs. Mary Lewis, of Sioux City, Iowa stopped in and chatted with us today.... They were on a tour that had carried them through Washington state.... down through California and back through El Paso and to Cisco.... Told them they were about to pass by the new hollow type dam.... the largest artificial swimming pool in the world, only a three-minute drive out on a good highway.... and by all means see them.... Gave them a copy of our Lions Special edition and a copy of our Pre-Centennial edition.... both of which give outstanding items of interest about Cisco.... Were glad to get these papers and requested the second copy of the Lions special.... had a friend that would want a copy.... we were glad of an opportunity to advertise Cisco....

Cecil Lotief on his way to Baird to speak.... Turner Collie handing out cards in Cisco.... Frank Leach painting the mail boxes.... R. E. Grantham trying to get Leach to let him do it.... Leach, like Tom Sawyer, wanted it done well and so did it himself since Grantham would not pay enough for the privilege....

Pete Nance with some kind of sign painted on his car.... says it is air-conditioning machine is working well.... Dick Giles eating breakfast.... W. Frank Walker adds he is a little old fashioned.... thinks the Sabbath should be observed....

Mrs. J. J. Collins and daughter, Mrs. Catherine, shopping.... Mrs. E. E. Morhart shopping.... Mrs. L. M. Mobley shopping.... Mrs. M. Aycock shopping.... Ed Aycock crossing the street.... Miss Lilian and Frances Caldwell down town.... Mrs. Randolph Lee Clark shopping.... W. F. Bruce glad to be back in Cisco.... been having vacation in Kansas and Oklahoma.... much cooler here....

This little girl is amused at the older generation which is always talking about the weather, but is too dignified to do anything about it. For her a hot time in the old town is just a barrel of fun. She just buys her puppy and herself a cone, gets a water hose, ties to the good old rain barrel and lets the sun do its worst.

Can't Beat the Truth

A number of army officers were up for promotion. The colonel was feeling them out with a preliminary oral examination in order to decide which of them were equipped to take the more elaborate written examination.

"How much salt is a ration?" the colonel asked Lieutenant Hostetter.

"I don't know, sir," replied the lieutenant.

"How much pepper?" inquired the colonel.

"I don't know, sir," said Lieutenant Hostetter.

Thus the examination proceeded. There were many questions to which Lieutenant Hostetter did not know the answers; but when one was asked him he didn't know he frankly said, "I don't know, sir."

Now the other officers were cuter than Lieutenant Hostetter. They knew better than to admit ignorance. When the colonel asked them things they didn't know they made shrewd guesses with all the assurance of one familiar with his vegetables. These officers felt they had acquitted themselves quite creditably, while poor Lieutenant Hostetter was exceedingly blue; he was sure he had made such a flop that he wouldn't be permitted to take the written examination.

But here is a funny thing: The colonel passed Lieutenant Hostetter on the strength of the oral examination and did not require him to take the written one. And he was the only applicant so honored.

"Hostetter has the makings of a splendid officer," said the colonel, "he is straightforward and honest. When he didn't know an answer he said so; he didn't try to fool me into thinking he knew. The points he didn't know are purely technical anyway; they are all plainly described in the regulations. He can brush up on them in an hour when he needs them."

Everybody admires honesty and straightforwardness. The yarn about George Washington and the cherry tree is based on the fact that unvarnished honesty is a great virtue. Many people don't believe that cherry tree episode ever happened. But it is a good story and should be told to little children, along with other constructive fairy tales. Any story that bears down on the importance of being honest and aboveboard should be told to little children; and it wouldn't hurt some grown-ups to ponder a few such stories.

There are persons who prefer an evasion when an out and out answer would serve them better. There are those who will dodge the truth when a flat-footed, honest reply would get them something good.

"Are these the same kind of cantaloupes you sold me day before yesterday?" a housewife asked a grocer.

"Yes, ma'am, the very same," replied the grocer eagerly.

He was lying; the melons were a different variety and from a different section.

"Then I don't want any of them," declared the housewife emphatically. "Those I got from you day before yesterday weren't fit to eat."

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Decades ago, a railroad magnate, one Vanderbilt, stirred up much resentment when he coined a slogan—"The public be damned!"

In case you were thinking that long strides of enlightened progress have been made since, your attention is called to the reason there is no longer any federal coordinator of transportation, whose job was to point out methods by which railroads could save lots of money by modernization and elimination of waste.

Incredible or not, railroad executives, railroad labor, and even federal officials charged with regulating the railroads ganged up to block continuation of the office of Co-ordinator Joseph B. Eastman. They didn't say the public could be damned, but that was the effect.

Eastman was empowered to order railroads to consolidate facilities and otherwise cut out waste. Rather than be dictatorial, he gave the industry a chance to effect these ends by itself.

But he kept urging methods of modernization, standardization, and cheaper buying, and suggested solutions for the problem of facilities made obsolete through buses and trucks.

Railroad executives, under leadership of J. J. Pelley, decided they were "being told how to run their business." They didn't like to have their mistakes pointed out to stockholders.

Behind them were New York bankers who, acting as railroad fiscal agents, foresaw reduced profits. Railroad labor unions, their memberships hard hit by unemployment, made an agreement with operators to oppose continuation of the co-ordinator.

And finally there were members of the I. C. C. itself, jealous of Eastman's exalted prominence, who joined in the fight.

The recent meeting between Senator Wheeler, who is chairman of the Senate committee investigating railroad financing, and Oris P. Van Sweringen, who made something of a record as a wizard of railroad financing, was in the nature of a surprise party.

The committee had been trying to dig into the intricacies of the so-called three-billion-dollar Van Sweringen railroad empire and its obstructive tactics when it asked for information.

Hearings were called to put the heat on Mr. Van Sweringen. He pleaded that he was a very busy man; he would send his lawyers on a Monday, but couldn't get to Washington himself until Tuesday. The committee agreed.

The lawyers asked for a private session with Wheeler, which was granted. Wheeler was tough and demanded that they sign an agreement to produce promptly what the committee asked for. They said they would have to take time out to decide.

A couple of hours later the lawyers returned to report: "Mr. Van Sweringen happens to be in town and would like to talk to you privately."

It developed later that Mr. Van Sweringen had motored to Washington on Sunday.

At first he emphatically refused to sign any agreement. Wheeler then announced that Van Sweringen would be called to the stand the next day, with a veiled threat of contempt proceedings.

The railroad man repented overnight, the agreement was signed, and the hearing was canceled. (Copyright, 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

OUT OUR WAY

Reconstructing Ramparts of the Confederacy

EARTHWORKS encircling the city of Richmond, Va., as shown in the map, used in defense of the city when it was the capital of the Confederacy, are being reconstructed and set apart as the Richmond National Battlefield park, under the direction of the National Park Service. With title to approximately one-third of the old defenses already obtained, it is expected that the park will eventually be extended to include the entire system.

The work being carried on consists of clearing the underbrush from the earthworks, building roads to make them accessible and reconstructing embankments where necessary. Very little reconstruction has had to be done because the fortifications have been preserved under a protecting blanket of vegetation. Visitors find it difficult to believe that tall pines covering some of the embankments have grown up since the war.

The attempts of the federals to penetrate this powerful defense resulted in some of the most important battles of the war. Relics of these conflicts are being assembled in a park museum which also houses a library and trained historians to supply data to visitors.

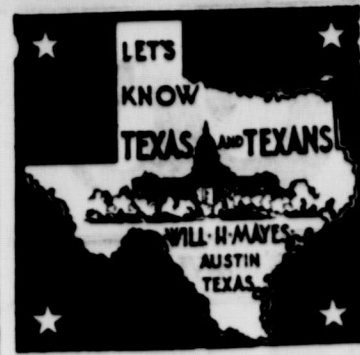

One of the most prized relics is a large valve from one of the observation balloons used by Prof. T. S. C. Lowe, chief of aeronautics for the Union Army, and his staff which included young Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin, who lived to see his own invention, the Zeppelin dirigible airship, used in the World War.

Though 71 years have elapsed since the fortifications were used, powder removed from explosive type shells uncovered by the reconstruction work is found to be just as active as fresh powder.

When Pierce became president he appointed Hays surveyor general of California where he spent the rest of his life. He founded the city of Oakland and became wealthy.

Q. When and by whom was Sam Houston defeated for governor of Texas? G. G. Crystal City.

A. Hardin R. Runnels of Red River county, then lieutenant-governor, the Democratic candidate defeated Houston, independent, in 1857, by about 9,000 majority. Two years later Houston defeated Runnels for re-election by about the same majority. The slavery and Indian questions were issues in both campaigns which were bitterly fought. Runnels county was named for Governor Runnels.

Q. What Indian tribe assisted the Texas Rangers in the battle with the Comanches on the Canadian river in 1858? T. C. Comfort.

A. The Rangers had the help of about 111 Toncawha Indians (Tonkaways), inveterate enemies of the Comanches, under the leadership of Chief Placido, who directed them to the Comanche camp and fought the enemy like fierce demons. The battle was fought May 12, at a place known as "Antelope Hills."

My message to you is that a straight spine is the fundamental necessity for health. This is so because the process of life depends upon free nerve transmission. The branch off from the spine and if a spinal bone is out of alignment there is pressure on a nerve, and a failure of nerve transmission. As a result ill-health and disease follow.

TEN REASONS WHY Cecil A. Lotief Should be Re-elected as REPRESENTATIVE 107th DISTRICT

1. He has fulfilled all promises that he has made to the people as a representative.
2. He stood for economy, honesty, integrity and decency in government.
3. He worked for public schools, and his vote made it possible for boys and girls who reside in the county to receive the same schooling as in cities and obtain $19.00 per capita and teachers got their pay promptly without an additional tax on farmers or home owners.
4. He fought the battle for Old Age Pensions. He is not satisfied with the law as it is and so stated when he voted for it. (See page 291 of House Journal called session.) He will if re-elected work and vote for a better Old Age Pension Law as he has repeatedly promised in his speeches.
5. He has offered many amendments to cut out the cost of State Government and kill unnecessary expenditures thereby saving many thousands of dollars.
6. He has tried and proved to be honest, capable, faithful and able to do the job, then, why take a risk on wild promises when he already proved to be alright in every respect.
7. He has conducted a clean campaign, did not abuse or conduct a whispering campaign, but he fought a good fight and kept the faith.
8. He is not connected with any special interest or groups and did not accept any campaign fund from any corporation, lawyers or lobbyist.
9. His record never has been challenged by anyone—a record to be proud of.
10. His life, public or private is clean, and he never betrayed your confidence, so for these reasons he solicits your vote and support July 25.
