ATTENDANCE AT ELECTRIC MEET IS FOURTEEN

Fourteen towns were represented in the district General Electric Sales meeting held in Cisco Thursday, sponsored by the Jno. H. Garner store, distributors for these products in Cisco.

The meeting was educational in sales promotion said H. S. Drumwright, manager of the Garner store here. The campaign is nation-wide, will be organized for bonuses and voting like a political organization, with candidates aspiring for president, governor, etc. So much sales entitles one to a certain number of votes and certain winnings mean bonuses.

Will I. Wilt sales supervisor, and Harry Tolson, district salesman, were present at the meeting. Cisco, Breckenridge, Ranger, Eastland, Abilene, Brownwood, Hamilton, Albany, Coleman, Cross Plains, Rising Star, Stamford, Abernathy, and German.

VOTE NOT TO BE AS LARGE AS IN JULY

By United Press
Oil and agriculture, two basic industries of Texas, will provide the principle issues when Texans ballot Saturday for democratic nominations in the second primary.

Three congressional races and local issues will be the only other drawing card in an election expected to bring out only a fraction of the record-breaking total of 1,672,000 votes cast in the first primary, July 25.

Colonel Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the railroad commission, fighting for re-election, and Frank S. Morris of Dallas, his opponent, made the most of last minute campaigning Friday.

Thompson had the endorsement of Governor James V. Allred and the state's democratic executive committee.

Morris, confined to a hospital bed in Dallas with a sinus infection, left his speechmaking mostly to his wife and Commissioner Lon A. Emth, minority member.

George B. Terrell of Alto, former congressman who retired because he disapproved certain Roosevelt policies and Agriculture Commissioner, J. E. McDonald, were waging an active campaign.

The most spectacular of three congressional races was that between Representative Thomas L. Blanton, of Abilene, representative of the 17th district for 18 years, and County Judge Clyde Garrett of Eastland.

PRISONER ROBBED IN JAIL

FORT WORTH, Tex. (U.P.)—Police had a tough case right under their very noses in the city jail. A 27-year-old prisoner, arrested for drunkenness, said he had $11 in his shoes when he entered the jail. Both shoes and money were missing when time came for his release.

American Bar Urged to Oppose All Proposals to Curb Courts

BOSTON, Aug. 21 (U.P.)—The jurisprudence committee of the American Bar Association next week will place before the parent body resolutions opposed to legislation seeking to limit power of the U. S. Supreme Court.

The committee, headed by Walter P. Armstrong, Memphis, Tenn., already has filed a unanimous report opposed to moves which would destroy the court's right to review legislation.

"To lessen its powers or alter its functions would be no less than a tragedy," the report said. "Of all the departments of the federal government, the judicial has functioned most satisfactorily and most nearly in accordance with the conception of the framers of the constitution."

CISCO AND PUTNAM MEN INTRODUCED AT GOOD-WILL MEET

From 300 to 500 people attended the Lobo band concert and merchants good will gathering at Putnam last night when the business men of both Cisco and Putnam were introduced to the audience following a talk by A. D. Starling, president of the Cisco Junior Chamber of Commerce, which body, together with the Lobo band, is sponsoring these series of neighboring communities trips.

Bandmaster Robert L. Maddox played a few numbers on the sidewalks of the west side of Putnam's business square, which formed a kind of stage for the event. Electric lights from the business houses fronts lighted that part of the square around which many cars were clustered.

Writing For A Living

Not long ago a literary man was arrested for attempted blackmail, and his defense was that he was so hard up that the situation had temporarily unhinged his mind. What moral does that combination of circumstances teach? Perhaps it teaches that a man should not attempt to make a living by writing. The judge before whom the case was tried must have had some insight into the troubles of the scribes, for although the man was convicted, His Honor turned him loose.

Folks who are not on the inside have the impression that the individual in the writing business makes money in huge hunks. If they but knew the average price paid for literary efforts they'd get a shock.

One popular author told me that a certain publication asked him for a story. He accepted the assignment and sent in the story, into which he had put about a week's work. His manuscript was accepted and he got a check—for $20.

But that periodical could not afford to pay more than $20 for a story. There are some publications that cannot give more than a dollar apiece for their contributions—and they can get all they want at that price and less.

Many persons would be delighted to get their writings in print without a cent of remuneration; and some would be willing to pay for the privilege of seeing their names on the "By" line.

So alluringly remunerative does the writing game appear to the majority of folks, that the thoughts of the average down-and-outer turn instinctively to writing as a means of quick profit.

Writing like banking, medicine or law, or making soap, is a business—a business that has to be learned and built up by long, slow, tedious processes of inexhaustible, indefatigable application.

A fellow who is broke and says to himself, "I am going to take up writing," might as well say that he is going to take up chemistry; or anything else that must be developed before anything comes of it. The only difference is that the writing game is slower and pays less in proportion, even though one succeeds, than almost any other enterprise.

And success through literary efforts is only here and there; occasionally; now and then. You'd be surprised if you knew how many "wonderful books"—which no publisher will publish—have been put into print at the expense of the authors, and are piled up in garrets getting yellow and brittle. And you'd also be surprised if you could see the tons of manuscripts which are mailed every day to the editors and which—if sufficient postage has been enclosed—come back.

There is more money in blackmailing than in writing because should the blackmailer fail and the cops get him he will have a place in which to stay and something to eat, unless some kind hearted judge turns him loose to perish.

Men above are swinging an electrically controlled anti-aircraft gun into action. Small groups to right and left are range-finding and communications details. Foreign military attaches are observing the maneuvers, which involve all branches of the army service.

Principals of Famous Orchestra That Entertains You

Tommy Dorsey's famous "swing" orchestra is seen each Tuesday at the Gulf Radio studios in the Texas Centennial grounds, Dallas, and is heard by a vast radio audience when it broadcasts over a nation-wide CBS network, appearing on the Ford dealer program in place of Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, vacationing during August. The principals of the Dorsey orchestra are shown here from left to right, front row, Dorsey, Edythe Wright, vocalist. In the rear are the "Three Esquires," Joe Bauer, Jack Leonard and Allen Starr.

on external beauty applications. Here are some of his wise words about water:

"It is difficult to resist the temptation to break into a eulogy of water. No cosmetic ever devised can compare with plain water as a tonic, cleanser and beautifier combined. The only drawback to water is its cheapness. If it could be obtained only in tiny, ornate flasks at $10 an ounce it would sweep a vast amount of perfumed trash off the toilet table."

A mild soap is useful, too. But what's the use of giving such advice? Cosmeticians must live. Also, men and women don't like to have things made too easy for them.

Chance Beam From Flashlight Reveals Wreck, Saves Survivor

CAUGHT by a freak night storm, one of the most sudden and violent ever to sweep Long Island Sound, Edward L. Hocking, of Middletown, Conn., was saved from death by the chance beam of a flashlight after he had clung for several hours to his overturned sailboat.

Hocking was taking his boat up the Sound and had reached a point off Mamaroneck when the storm bore down on him. As it approached, a dead calm prevailed over the entire area in which the sailboat lay. Hocking was thus helpless in the face of the approaching tempest. All he could do was reef down and take the blow when it came.

The storm struck, and the boat at once began shipping water. Hocking could not keep headed in to the wind and at the same time bail out fast enough to keep afloat. He had weathered about ten minutes of the blow when the boat went over. The craft was provided with air tanks, so Hocking crawled up as far as he could on the hull and hung on.

The boat capsized a little before nine o'clock at night. The water was icy cold and there was not a craft to be seen. At the end of an hour, Hocking was numb from the chill. From that time on, it required all his strength to keep from carried away as the wind shifted the boat about in the troughs of the big waves.

Around midnight, he saw what he took to be a ship's searchlight a mile or more away. It gradually worked nearer, the light casting alternately from port to starboard. On one of the casts, at a distance of a quarter of a mile, the beam fell across the overturned boat. At once the lone cruiser set its course toward Hocking. It was the Albatross, owned by William B. Taylor, of the Harlem Yacht Club. It worked alongside and, after some maneuvering, Taylor got Hocking aboard, almost helpless from cold and exhaustion.

"If that flashlight hadn't swung just far enough my way, and hadn't been loaded with fresh batteries so that it cast a sharp beam, I would have been done for," said Hocking. "The hull of my boat happened to be white, and that helped, too. I needed all the luck there was, and I had it." Hocking's luck continued to pursue him after his rescue. His boat was washed ashore by the storm and was recovered, undamaged, the following day.

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 AUSTIN, Aug. 21 (U.P.)—George A. Davison, Jr., Eastland's youthful member for the Texas legislature, was catapulted into the limelight this week. Unemployment insurance was made the subject of a general state study and Davison, author of the first unemployment insurance bill but before a Texas legislature, became a member of the committee on the topic.

When Davison pioneered the 44th legislature with his unemployment insurance bill, he had difficulty in getting members interested. By sheer persistence he convinced members of a House Committee that the bill had merit. He secured a committee report recommending the bill be enacted. It died on the House calendar without having reached a deciding vote.

Davison, 28, is short, has dark curly hair and an engaging manner. He was one of a group of enthusiastic University of Texas students who attended college and worked as members of the legislature at the same time. Elected as a "boy member" in 1934, he recently was returned by an increased vote in the Democratic primary election.

Davison's bill faced the fact that unemployment insurance costs money — much money. But, he argued, it doesn't cost anything like the cost of uninsured unemployment. Citing the existing relief rolls and heavy relief costs of 1935, he said that it had become a matter of public concern and proper matter for state legislation.

To get the money his bill levies a direct tax and calls also for payment of insurance premiums. These premiums are to vary with the likelihood of unemployment in various industries. He proposed a direct tax of two per cent of the gross profits on sales of mercantile and manufacturing business; two per cent of the gross profits of public service businesses, and two per cent of the gross receipts of personal service businesses, after deducting administrative costs other than salaries.

To receive payments an employee would have to register and report his unemployment.

Payments could not begin unless the unemployment continued more than two weeks. Payment of $50 a month was made the minimum for a person totally unemployed and $175 a month the maximum, except that the maximum might be increased $25 a month for each dependent.

For partial unemployment there was a scale provided in the Davison bill. If unemployment caused loss of more than 40 per cent of his normal weekly wage and less than 55 per cent of it, the unemployed man would receive 10 per cent of his weekly wage as unemployment payment. Between 55 and 70 per cent unemployment would entitle him to 30 per cent of his weekly wage and more than 85 per cent of unemployed time would entitle him to 10 per cent of his weekly working wage.

Benefits would be barred to a person unemployed because of misconduct. Quitting work without good cause would also be a bar. There could be no payment during a period of unemployment due to a trade dispute while it was in progress; for idleness when an act of God prevented operation of the business, or when a former employee became self-employed. A commission was provided in the bill to fix the premium rates and pass on defense.

The state board of control is due for a busy season of apology as a result of a booklet it issued for Centennial year. It is William H. Huddle's painting of the Surrender of Santa Anna is mislabeled. It is described as H. A. McArder's painting of the battle of San Jacinto. About the same time Lieut. Gov. Walter Woodliff issued an order against reproductions of the battle of San Jacinto painting. As president of the senate, the painting which hangs in the state senate chamber is technically in his custody.

The state Democratic convention in Fort Worth, Sept. 8, is expected to outline the administration plans for the next session of the state legislature—special or regular.

The platform adopted then can be taken as a pretty safe guide to the legislation the governor will seek to have enacted and that which he will be willing to make law by his signature.

William Repass, managing editor of the Houston Chronicle, is slated for keynote of the convention. Those who remember how Claude G. Bowers, now Ambassador to Spain, keynoted a Democratic national gathering, will not be surprised at a newsmen being chosen for the duty.

Re-election of Myron G. Blalock Marshall, as Executive Committee chairman and of Vann M. Kennedy Austin, as secretary is likely if they are willing to serve another term.

If the state officials are successful in their plans to collect an estimate from the estate of the late Col. E. H. Green, the receipt of the money may not be reflected in a state ad valorem tax reduction for a long time. Inheritance taxes go into the state general revenue fund. This fund now is more than $9,000,000 in the red.

In getting the state ad valorem tax rate to raise money generally for this fund, a state automatic tax board computes how much will be needed. In making the computation the board estimates what other money will go into the fund. But it rigidly prescribed in making the estimate. The board must add the amount of special funds received in the last half of the preceding year and in the first half of the current year and use that total as the estimate of what will be paid.

In the usual process of administering an estate of such enormous size there is little prospect of a payment of the inheritance tax before July 1, 1937. Therefore it would not appear in calculations of the tax board in setting the 1937 tax rate.

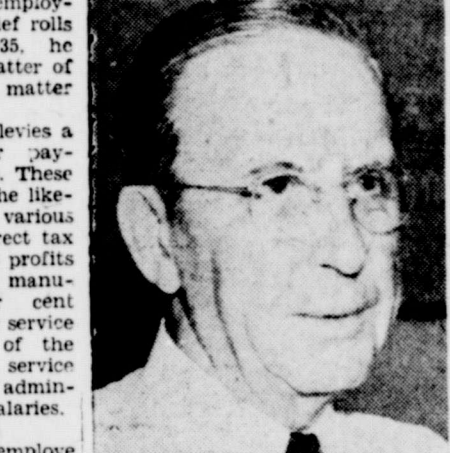

It is possible that the tax may never reach the state general revenue fund. The legislature, which meets in regular session next January, can designate other funds to receive inheritance taxes. Use of such taxes for old age assistance already is being suggested.

Sharks Yield Face Powder
SIDNEY, N. S. W. (U.P.)—Beauties here may soon be powdering their noses with shark's brains. Face powder is a recognized by-product of the shark, being manufactured from a base of dried and powdered brains.

Soviet Protects Elk
MOSCOW (U.P.)—About 250 elk are living in the State hunting estates of the Moscow province. Due to the strict measures taken after the October Revolution for their protection, the herds in certain localities are thriving.

Directs Exposition

Harry Olmsted, one of the best known business men and civic leaders in the Southwest, is the new Director General of the Texas Centennial Exposition. He is at the helm of the $25,000,000 World's Fair at Dallas following the death of William A. Webb, general manager, on August 9. Mr. Olmsted for twenty years has been a director of the State Fair of Texas and for five years its president.

Sheep-Goat Judges Selected For Fair

FORT WORTH, Aug. 20 — The judges who will have the responsibility of selecting the prize winners in the sheep and goat, wool and mohair department of the Official Texas Centennial livestock exposition here, October 3-11, have been announced. All are men well known in sheep and goat circles. One comes from Illinois, one from Washington, D. C., and three from Texas.

Approximately $9,000 in premiums is being offered for this department. Classifications include Ramboulllets, Delaine Merinos, Hampshire, Shropshires, Southdowns, Corriedales, Dorsets, Cheviots, Oxfords, Suffolks, Lincolns, Cotswolds, Romneys and Karakuls.

Angora goats are divided in two groups: B-type, or animals with a preponderance of flat locks, and C-type, or animals with a preponderance of ringlets.

Professor W. G. Kammlade of the University of Illinois will make the awards in the fine wool breeding classes; Roy W. Snyder of the Extension Service and A. K. Mackey of the Animal Husbandry Department, A & M. College of Texas, will judge the medium and long wool sheep classes; Fred Exwood, executive vice president of the Sonora Wool and Mohair company, will make the awards in the Angora goat breeding classes, and Frank Grayson of the Livestock, Meats and Wool Division of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Washington, D. C. will judge the wool and mohair show. Grayson was formerly employed as wool and mohair grader at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

In announcing the judges, D. G. Talbot, manager of the livestock department, and J. M. Jones, superintendent of the sheep and goat department, call attention to the fact that entries on sheep and goats, in fact, on all classes of livestock, must be received by September 4. The show is part of the general livestock show that will be held at Fort Worth, when premiums totaling $75,000 will be paid to the prize winners of the different classes of livestock.

MINNOWS PAID AS SALARY
ALBANY, N. Y. — (U.P.) — When the State Conservation Department decided to enter the business of raising bait fish, Walter Smith of Troy, a fisherman, applied for the job. His salary was 3,000 minnows a week. He sold the minnows to other fishermen for bait. His job was to net 60,000 fish during experiments.

Fossilized Trees Found
ASHLAND, Pa. (U.P.)—Fossilized tree branches and odd rock formations were discovered atop Stormy Hill by WPA workers while leveling the ground for a community park. Rock in the area is of comparative softness and only picks and shovels are required to break it up.

Wide Open Spaces Vanish
CANBERRA, Australia, (U.P.)—Australia's "wide open unmapped spaces" have now shrunk to the extent of a photograph file. Following an aerial survey just completed by two machines of the Royal Australian Air Force. The photographs embrace 1,000 square miles.

Bride Left At Altar
FOOCHOW, China (U.P.)—An army of mice, estimated at 50,000 invaded the town of Schenchong, in Fukien. Cats and dogs ran for shelter while most of the inhabitants of the town took refuge behind locked doors.

"Cerner" on Skeleton Market
LONDON (U.P.)—Guy Rouilly boasts that he has more skeletons in his cupboards than any other living person. Rouilly has a "corner" in England's skeleton trade. Ninety-five per cent of the skeletons sold in England pass through his hands.

Gold Coin Now Mined
JOHNSVILLE, Cal. (U.P.)—Gold mining has become so modernized that miners now dig out the gold already coined. John Pezozia, operating a mining claim near here, struck a cache containing 170 rare $1 gold coins, five $20 pieces and seven $10 pieces.

AUTOS DULL ROMANCE
UFFER SANDUSKY, O. (U.P.)—Courthouse officials are wondering they issued 101 new motor car bills of sale and only three marriage licenses in a month. Apparently Uppesandusky prefers autos to marriage. Or maybe it's because they are buying the cars to go elsewhere to be married.

Vote For Loss Woods For Sheriff

LOSS WOODS

Eastland County is fortunate in having two excellent candidates seeking the Sheriff's office—one a young man, the other thoroughly mature and in his prime.

Loss Woods has lived in Eastland County for 46 years, the last 7 1-2 years he has served as deputy in the Sheriff's office. Previous to this time he made his living from revenue earned on his farm in the Staff community.

His neighbors, in the Staff box, gave him 38 votes and his opponent 4, which proves beyond any question what they think of Loss Woods and his family.

Now is the time to place Loss Woods in the Sheriff's office, and thereby elect a man who, by training, experience and natural ability is thoroughly qualified to serve Eastland County as an excellent sheriff.

In appreciation of the long and faithful services rendered the people by Mr. Woods, his many friends believe that he should now be rewarded by electing him Sheriff of Eastland County.

SAY FOLKS!

Joe Clements has given us the best service we ever had as street superintendent in our town. Let's show him we appreciate his work! A vote for him means a vote for the same kind of service for the county. Let's make him County Commissioner Saturday.

His opponent is running for his third term.

Arch Bint Asks your vote

I wish to express my sincere thanks to the voters of Precinct No. 4 for the lead given me in the first primary in my race for re-election as your county commissioner.

I will appreciate more than I can say your continued support in the second primary tomorrow.

I assure you that if re-elected, I shall give the office my best efforts and strive to carry out its duties in an efficient manner as I have tried to do in the past.
