City-Laid Eggs Coming Up! *

Eggs from some of her 15,000 "penthouse" chickens are gathered by Miss Lillian Swenson, 19, at a Long Island poultry place conducted on modern lines. Eggs laid in the individual coops slide down to a collecting tray. In front of each cage is a chart, and if Biddy isn't laying her quota of eggs, she goes to market. By use of individual cages, chickens are being raised in New York and Chicago skyscrapers, with approval of health authorities.
