Public Opinion and Law Enforcement

Deplored the increasing lack of respect for the liquor control act in some sections of the state, Liquor Administrator Bert Ford this week called attention to the vital part the public can play in remedying the situation.

"In the final analysis," Mr. Ford said, "it is the people upon whom we must depend for enforcement of a law of this kind. If it is wanted, the weight of public opinion will bring about the desired result."

Referring to a recent editorial in the Dallas Journal as reflecting the apparent attitude there, the Liquor Administrator said much the same situation existed elsewhere in the state, and correction of it could come only through a changed public viewpoint.

The Journal's editorial, according to Mr. Ford, read as follows:

"Liquor cases continue to contribute to the disrespect for law in Dallas county. The enforcement machinery in this part of Texas has broken down to the point, apparently, where there are to be no more serious attempts to attain a conviction here in 1936. In considering the situation every citizen of this section should keep reminding himself that this is not a dry law which is sagging in the middle and dragging at both ends. It is a wet law. It is a dripping wet law.

"Defendants who are called upon to answer at the bar of justice are not charged merely with selling intoxicants. Instead they are charged with not abiding by the rules under which they are expressly permitted to sell liquor. The liquor men asked for this law, representing that, with the package sale of liquor authorized, Dallas would be more sober, more law-abiding and more content.

"You would think that the people who urged that law would now come sternly to its support. But do you see any of our friends of the reforming-prohibition days trying to get their own legislation enforced in Dallas county? Check over on your fingers the people who a short time ago were urging package sales and see how many of them are doing anything about having it obeyed. Call them name by name. Where are these ladies and gentlemen? Whither has fled their interest in temperance and obedience to law? What ails them now?

"It is one of the strangest instances of general and complete loss of voice and interest ever observed in the history of Texas."

Jingo dictators anxious to get that next war worked up will be glad when Mrs. Sampson and the House of Windsor dispose of their newspaper rights.

An Atlantic City lighthouse is for sale, in case anyone cares to go in for light housekeeping.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Sees No Star Outcomes
 WASHINGTON—Harry Hopkins has not decided to resign as boss of WPA, despite various reports.

His only present plans are to stay in Washington and fight against the campaign for liquidation of his huge work-relief organization. Part of that campaign, according to the administrator's friends, calls for liquidation of Hopkins himself, which may explain inspired reports that he had accepted a big job with a Chicago mail order house.

General confusion following large cuts in WPA rolls and subsequent retreat from the reduction program call for a reorganization of the WPA situation in Washington. Hopkins and Assistant Administrator Aubrey Williams have taken the rap for both those steps and the confusion as well, but here's what has happened.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau and Budget Director Daniel Bell sold Roosevelt on the idea that industrial recovery warranted a gradual decrease in relief expenses. They convinced Hopkins that they hadn't enough money for WPA to last even to Jan. 20 if the payroll wasn't cut.

Roosevelt confided he'd like to have WPA costs cut to between a billion and a billion and a half for the next fiscal year—as against a WPA estimate of two billions—and suggested WPA expenditures might gradually be brought down to $100,000,000 a month.

HOPKINS, who has never known for more than a month ahead how much money he would have, gave in. He knew he could hardly get a deficiency appropriation from Congress before Jan. 20.

Orders went out which meant dropping 150,000 from WPA's administrative, non-relief, and relief personnel, as well as 250,000 who all along had been slated for transfer to the Resettlement Administration (which will pay them less money, in dole form).

Expenses were to be cut from $168,000,000 in November to $152,000,000 in December.

At the same time Hopkins girded himself for a bitter-end fight with Morgenthau, Bell, Chairman of Commerce and Against-Roosevelt-Before-Election elements and a reported "Liberty League Lobby" over proposals to gradually strangle WPA and toss the able-bodied unemployed back to local politicians.

BUT soon LaGuardia of New York and other members of the U. S. Conference of Mayors were raiding the president, then in southern waters, that if WPA workers were to be dismissed on the theory that private industry would absorb them, it would be much better if someone would point out the jobs they were to take.

WPA workers staged demonstrations. Pro-New Deal and anti-New Deal newspapers cast scorn at an administration which would keep WPA intact to help it win an election and then start firing WPA workers indiscriminately as soon as the election was won.

Radiograms crackled back from the cruiser Indianapolis to Morgenthau, Bell, and Hopkins. Suddenly, by what legend is not yet known, Morgenthau and Bell found there really was enough money to take WPA through January at the November rate.

Hopkins called a special press conference to declare over and over that "No one in need will be dropped."

Even though it tended to make WPA look foolish in the light of conflicting official statements based on the previous policy, Hopkins loyally covered up for Roosevelt and the Treasury-Budget Bureau crowd.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The guests of the Christmas party at "Thunder Mesa," the dearest hideout in New Mexico, was a tragic ending when PEARL SAW THE POLICE. Chief of three brothers, it was found dead with a knife in his throat.

Each of the three brothers was the first name of "Pearl." PEARL JOHN is the youngest, PEARL PIERRE next, and PEARL RAMON, the oldest. They were all in the house when the police broke down the door.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIII

RAMON and Angelique waited until Pearl Pierre had gone, and the Indian, too, had walked slowly back to his post. Then they ventured from their hiding place.

"You'd better wait here and watch to see that no one comes from the house while I go see what disturbed the Forest so," Ramon said, walking toward the ash pile. Then he too, gave a start, and the exclamation which burst from his lips brought the girl running.

"What is it, Ramon? Oh—" Her voice trailed off in horror.

Visible among the mass of twisted, blackened boughs that had been the Christmas tree was a portion of a human arm—apparently Pearl Sam's arm, the hand looking much as it had when they had seen it with the candle dipping on it, except that now the gold ring was gone.

Angelique swayed weakly and Ramon grasped her, pressing her face down on his shoulder.

"Quick, let's get out of here, before he comes back!" He led her, stumbling through the snow.

"Not one word of this, Angelique, to anyone," Ramon warned. Let Pearl Pierre make the first move, then we'll have something to hold over him."

face to his. "Trust me just a little, won't you? It's plain as can be that Pearl Pierre murdered his brother and then burned the evidence of his crime, but only you and I know it."

But the girl's mind was back again on what they had seen among the ashes, and she shivered and pressed closer. "What do you suppose he's going to do now, Ramon? About that—I mean."

"He'll probably finish up his job so no one else will stumble on evidence that could be used against him. See—what'd I tell you?"

Pearl Pierre, carrying a large can, emerged from the kitchen end of the house, and circled around toward the edge of the mesa. Ramon and Angelique hurried around the corner of the house, so that they would not meet him.

"Remember now—not a word to anyone, dearest," Ramon warned again as they came into the patio.

"I promise not to tell, Ramon, if you think we shouldn't," she answered.

PEARL JOHN met them in the hallway. Instantly Angelique was all smiles and coquetry, and as Ramon watched her talking with their host, he had to admit she was a good actress.

"Almost too good," he told himself. "If she was against a fellow instead of for him—look out! I'll wager she'll have Pearl Pierre's number before night."

"Where's Bob?" he asked.

"Down at the garage, looking over his car," Pearl John answered. "It would sound silly, wouldn't it, for me to say how awfully sorry I am that all this had to happen, so you have to stay here? But my brother's sure the men will come today from Santa Fe. Then maybe we can get things straightened out."

"What things?" demanded Ramon, looking at him coldly. "What are you going to tell the officers if they do come—which I doubt?"

private affairs, if you want to know."

For a moment the younger de Forest did not answer, then he said, through set lips, "I only know what my brother said he had done. I'm sorry if you don't believe it. However, I can assure you that the road down the canyon is being opened at this very minute. I sent the men to do it myself."

"Don't pay any attention to Ramon's tempers, please," broke in Angelique. "He's likely to be crabby when he's hungry. We worked up an appetite walking on the mesa."

PEARL JOHN started to say something, then evidently changed his mind. After a minute he excused himself, saying that he would see about hurrying lunch.

"How much do you think he knows, Ramon?" Angelique asked, curiously looking after her host. "Sometimes I think he's very, very nice. Then again—"

"He's probably not a bad sort when he's left to himself," he replied, "but I wouldn't put anything past any one of them when they're together. Listen to that now, will you?"

Shrill screams came from the direction of Tante Josephine's room, bringing several maids running from the rear building. Betty, too, ran in from the porch with a watering pot in her hand. Angelique rushed up to her.

"What's the matter, Betty?" "I don't know. She was taking a nap when I left her," gasped Betty. "Here, take this, will you?"

Tante Josephine's door was open when they got there and the old woman was standing in the middle of the room, pounding her gold-headed cane on the floor and screaming wildly. Flecks of foam showed on her shriveled lips, and her short white hair was in disorder, as though she had run her fingers through it in her rage.

"What is it?" asked Betty, easing her down into a big chair.

"Here, drink this," Pearl John held out a glass of wine. "Now what's the matter with you, Tante Josephine? Tell us."

"The smoke—it's blowing into my room off the mesa! I won't have it! I hate smoke!" she cried breathlessly, pointing a skinny finger at the open window, where a thick spiral of smoke could be seen, rising from the edge of the mesa.

CIA Girls to Name Conference Favorite

DENTON, Dec. 30.—Just because! What more reason is required of any woman? And so the girls at Texas State College for Women (CIA) last week selected what they deemed the outstanding football player in the Southwest Conference. Ability to block and tackle, kick and pass, run the ends or plunge the line may enter into the decision to some slight degree, but the vast majority will make their selections "just because."

Who was the lucky young hero? Not a soul on the campus will know until he appears at the college soon after the Christmas holidays. At that time a suitable trophy will be presented to him by the Lass-O, student weekly newspaper, and sponsor of the poll.

No football team proudly carries the colors of the State College for Women, but this does not dampen their interest in their favorite Southwest conference team. Hundreds of eager football enthusiasts leave the campus each week-end to follow games played in this vicinity.

Eastland Farm Loan To Hold Annual Meet

Claude Strickland, sec-treas. of the Cisco and the Eastland Farm Loan Associations advises that arrangements are being made for most interesting programs for the annual stockholders' meeting of these associations of the Federal Land Bank of Houston.

The Eastland association will meet at the court house at 10 a. m. on January 12, 1937. And the Cisco association will meet at the chamber of commerce at Cisco at 2 p. m. the same day, but due to the number attending the meeting same will likely adjourn to the city hall or some other larger meeting place for the complete program.

In the past only members of the associations have attended these meetings, but this meeting is held for and open to all farmers and those interested in farm improvements or farm credits. The county agent will cooperate and give timely talk on the 1937 farm program. All farmers will be interested in knowing more of this program. There is also a special invitation extended for all farm women and wives to be at this meeting. The farm problem is as much a woman's problem as it is for the men, and their cooperation and assistance is needed for the success. An interesting discussion of special interest to the ladies will be included in the program.

All farmers, their wives and sweethearts, are asked to plan now to attend one of above meetings whether they have a Federal Bank loan at this time or not. A worthwhile and interesting program is assured.

ANTI-COMMUNISTIC BLOC RISES IN BALKANS AS NAZI INFLUENCE AFFECTS LITTLE ENTENTE IN '36

By ROBERT H. BEST... Germany had imported on credit such quantities of Danubian agricultural produce that it was able to use each country's frozen credits in Berlin as a whip. Toward the oft-heralded anti-Communist bloc of European states some progress was made culturally during 1936 but much less politically.

that during the months since Belgrade was demanding the punishment of Hungary as a land which allegedly harbored terrorists who plotted King Alexander's assassination. Hitler's ambassador to Austria, Franz von Papen had been busy explaining to Hungary and Yugoslavia Der Fuehrer's reasons for thinking that they should settle their differences and join in a war against Communism.

Yugoslavia Finally Relents... Through the more moderate of the Croatian emigres in Vienna, von Papen and other negotiators from Berlin and Rome had been exerting influence on the Croatian part of Yugoslavia's population to accept the hand of reconciliation which Yugoslavia's Prince-Regent, Paul, had extended to them through Premier Milan Stoyadinovich and to cease their agitation for an independent Croatian state.

Nazi Influence Spreads... As 1937 approaches, this emblem is influencing both the international and domestic policies of every country in the Danube valley. For this expansion the reasons are believed to be primarily two in number: first, capitalistic Europe's fear of Soviet Russia's politico-economic creed and activities and second, the fact that throughout 1936 and 1937 the party which has been in power in Germany or in an economic crisis.

Rumania Beside Poland... Toward Moscow Rumania's standpoint is approaching ever more closely that of Poland. Insofar as Warsaw joins Germany in an aggressive anti-Soviet policy, Rumania, it is believed, will do the same. The construction, or rather revival of a common front in this sense was the purpose of Viktor Antonescu's visit to Warsaw while Horthy was in Rome during the latter part of November.

Simone in a Real Romance Role?

It may be just because they are appearing together in a new film, but Simone Simon and James Stewart, above, figure strongly in Hollywood's newest romance speculation. Since she was "imported" from France in 1935 by American film producers, Miss Simon, 22, has rapidly scaled the heights to film fame. Stewart, 26, is a native of Indiana, Pa.

Agent Cook Urges Keep Farm Records

County Agent Elmo V. Cook is urging Eastland county farmers to keep accurate records on their 1937 farm operations, beginning January 1, and as an inducement to those interested he offers to supply an AAA farm record book free to every one who wants one. "We have 600 of these record books on hand and would like to put them to good use," Cook said. The AAA record book is easily kept and simple. Those wanting a more complete record can get a book covering separate farm operation for 25 cents through the county agent.

Heats Up Ice Scoring Race

Behind the surprising rise of the New York Americans in the International division of the National Hockey League is the fact that Dave (Sweeney) Schirner, above, classy left wing, again is battling for scoring honors in the circuit. Schirner, 25-year-old flash from Calgary, led the loop in pushing the puck past goalies last season, and is off to good start in the current one, fighting Larry Aurie and Herb Lewis of the Detroit Red Wings for the lead.
