THREATEN USE OF REPRISALS ON TWO SHIPS

BERLIN, Jan. 5 (UP)—An official communique said today that the commander of the German fleet in Spanish waters had delivered an ultimatum to the loyalist government, demanding release of the cargo and passenger taken from the German steamship Palos.

Unless the Palos' cargo and its passenger are surrendered by eight a. m. January 8, it was said, the German government would "dispose of" the loyalist steamships Aragon and Marta Junquera, seized by German warships.

"Should further acts of piracy be committed against German ships," the ultimatum stated, "the German government reserves the right to take new measures."

SPAIN WONT COMPLY WITH ULTIMATUM

BARCELONA, Spain, Jan. 5 (UP)—The Basque radio today announced the Spanish government at Valencia had decided to refuse to comply with the German ultimatum on the freighter Palos.

NATIONALISTS KEEP HANDS OFF BRITISH

LONDON, Jan. 5 (UP)—The admiralty received word today from the Spanish nationalist government assuring Great Britain that nationalist warships would keep hands off British vessels.

RELEASE OF KIDNAPED BOY THOUGHT NEAR

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 5 (UP)—Dr. William Mattson was in direct communication with the kidnaper of his 10-year-old son today.

Authorities ceased their activities and presumably the climax of the latest abduction was imminent. Dr. Mattson had $28,000 which he had paid, or was about to pay to the man who ten days ago, kidnaped his son, Charles.

WELL YIELDS LOST SILVER OREGON CITY

Eleven years ago Otto Lucht hired a man to clean a well. The laborer said he lost his purse with $5 in it while on the job. Then more than a decade later Lucht swabbed the well himself, found the purse and five silver dollars. But the laborer had died.

At Last Rites for Brisbane

Admirers of his newspaper writings mingled with business associates and relatives to pay tribute to Arthur Brisbane, famous editor, at simple funeral rites in St. Bartholomew's Church in Park Avenue, New York City. So great was the throng that many had to stand on the church steps during the services.

FORMER BAPTIST PASTOR FIGHTS LABOR'S BATTLES BESIDE LEWIS AS PRESIDENT OF AUTO WORKERS

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 5 (UP)—Four years ago Homer S. Martin was Baptist minister here. Friends predicted a successful future for him as a clergyman. He was young, enthusiastic, personable. Because he was the national hop-st-and-jump champion, they called him "The Leaping Parson."

Today he has jumped into the forefront of an industrial struggle that may affect American industry for generations. He is international president of the United Automobile Workers. In that position, he sits at the right hand of John L. Lewis and helps direct far-flung efforts to sign collective bargaining contracts with the nation's motor car magnates.

He quit the clergy because he found it impossible to "fight the battle of labor as it should be fought as a minister." Assistants say his rise as a labor leader was achieved by tenacity and intelligence. He is 44 years old, a teetotaler, and on occasions since leaving the ministry has been known to use vigorous language.

Scholarly in Appearance

He little resembles the caricatured labor leader of other years. He is mild mannered, scholarly, fluent. Long devoted to economics, he believes the "lot of the worker must and can be improved."

It makes him angry when newspapers describe him as a radical. "I'm a progressive," he said. This union is not trying to overthrow the motor car companies. It is necessary that a strong union be formed for the protection of the workers. We have no desire to hurt the companies, because it is where the workers make their living. We believe, however, higher standards for the workers are imperative."

He said his first realization of the "terrible conditions" confronting many workers came when he served five years as a missionary in the West Bottoms industrial district of Kansas.

New Ideals Formed

"I took my labor doctrines to the church," he said, "I even had labor organizers talk in the church. I learned I could not successfully wage the fight for labor—giving it adequate energy—while a minister."

When more than 500 workmen at the Fisher body plant of the Chevrolet Motor company participated in a strike at Kansas City recently, they almost daily heard Martin's voice over telephone loud-speaker arrangement from Detroit, urging them to continue the strike.

Most of the men remembered him as a leader of their strike at

BOXING BOUTS GAIN FAVOR IN TOURNAMENT

By TOMMY LA MORE

The pounding of leather, grunts, groans and the yelling of excited fans were heard last night in the high school gym when the third round of the Golden Gloves boxing tournament got under way. A crowd estimated at 175 were kept on their feet most of the six bouts by the fast and furious attacks of the boys in the ring. Of the six two were awarded by technical knock-outs, two by draws, and two by decision.

In the first frame Harvey Callaway completely outpointed Arthur Courtney to receive the winners decision. In the bout that followed Thurman Mosley and James McQuary fought a fast fight that ended in a draw. In the third fight Wayne Johnson used a hard left crossing with a smashing right to the best advantage on Marion Notgrass. This bout was stopped in the second round when Notgrass was in no shape to continue and was awarded to Johnson. In the fourth fight little Bob Donahoe carried the fight to Paul Mosley to gain a draw. In the fifth frame Lander Cleveland and W. A. Walls staged a slugger duel with Cleveland winning. The fight after Walls was floored for the count of eight in the third round. In the final bout Roy Callerman was carried out after Don Vick landed a lucky blow on the chin in the first round. Proceeding this blow Callerman had completely outpointed Vick. More fights were promised the fans Friday night and this announcement brought much cheering from the crowd.

Upon a promontory 2000 feet above Colorado Springs, Colorado, where the late Will Rogers often visited, the feudal shrine of the Sun, above, built in honor of the noted comedian and newspaper commentator, is nearing completion, with dedication set for the summer of 1937. Part of the low wall bounding a 10-acre park around the spire is seen at left. An ever-burning light will make granite shrine a beacon by night as well as by day. The memorial was conceived and financed by Spencer Penrose, Colorado Springs, Rogers' friend.

CAPITAL AND LABOR HOLDING SEPARATE CONFABS ON STRIKE

DETROIT, Jan. 5 (UP)—Automotive capital and organized labor held separate conferences today to plan new strategy in the tense General Motors shutdown situation which threatened to burst into widespread strike warfare.

Officials of the United Automobile Workers of America discussed the General Motors denial of their rights to represent 135,000 of the corporation's employees.

A the headquarters of General Motors here, it was reported that officials conferred with Vice President William Knudsen, who communicated by long distance with his New York office.

A the headquarters of General Motors here, it was reported that officials conferred with Vice President William Knudsen, who communicated by long distance with his New York office.

Travel is again diverted back to the highway down Main street today, and will continue so until the topping is completed.

It is not known just when the east end of the highway and the overpass will be let, perhaps late in the spring or early summer.

KLEINER NO. 2 BEING WATCHED AS DRILL DROPS

Still pounding away at the shale formation the Kleiner No. 2, just north of the airport showed nothing better than an increasing gas pressure which had risen to show around 4,000,000 feet at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

An oil bearing sand is hoped for just below this formation and should be reached this afternoon or tomorrow. No one would express a guess as to what that finding might be, but all wished for a good flow. Drilling is very slow as no water is used for cooling and each step is watched very carefully for development.

Unhealthy Children!

The director of health education in a large school system made public an astonishing report the other day. He said that 71 per cent of the school children of the city were in poor health. Of 72,961 examined, 52,086 were suffering from some physical defect, ranging from decaying teeth to heart disease. Malnutrition was quite prevalent, among children from well-to-do families quite as much as among the poor. It was found that boys and girls were going to school on breakfasts of coffee and toast instead of the foods that children particularly need, such as milk, cereal, fruit and eggs. Great progress has been made in keeping under control the contagious diseases that used to ravage the schools. But organic defects have been shockingly neglected. Big cities get too little sunshine, because the air is adulterated with soot. People do not take advantage of such sunshine as they have, because they live, work and play too much indoors. Children are in school rooms in the daytime, in movies at night. They don't get enough wholesome exercise or enough sleep. A study of high school pupils disclose the same defects as in the kindergarten and elementary grade youngsters, in more exaggerated form. What is true in one great city is probably true in many other. It may also be true in smaller communities where the rush of modern life has brought about a preponderance of indoor activities and where there is just as much carelessness about proper diet for growing children as anywhere else. There is little reason for pride in fine school buildings and up-to-date homes if the commonsense health rules are ignored.

Advice to Police!

The director of a big police force gives these rules to young men who aspire to be good policemen:
"Get married;
"Regard your work seriously;
"Maintain a neat appearance."
The first of these may include the other two. It is especially interesting, in a time when matrimony is regarded a shaky institution. It is good, regardless of occupation. The famous advice of Punch to a young man contemplating matrimony was merely frivolous. Generally speaking, the biggest step toward a man's success in life, after the training his mother gives him, is marriage. His wife then takes up the training where the mother left off. Next the children take their turn at bringing up father. Thus he gains steadiness, responsibility, purpose, human understanding and better habits.

Noting that auto shows are featuring cars cut in two, a friend, who didn't see the other driver coming, is interested in selling his for display.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—While profound and solemn legal arguments as to what to do about the U. S. Supreme Court proceed amid the general confusion among liberal administrationists and members of Congress, one substantial but loosely formed group is engaged in a hard-boiled maneuver which it feels is the only effective thing that can be done for some time to come.
The theory of the maneuver rests on a widespread belief that Chief Justice Hughes has been rightly worried over the prestige of the court since the election. It is important, New Deal strategists reason, to keep him worried, and hesitant to go against the will of the people as he may conceive it to be expressed through acts of Congress.
This strategy is based on an assertion of the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes that "the court keeps its windows open to notes from the outside."
The noises will begin in a big way after Congress meets. A Washington convention of would-be Constitution amenders and court-curbers, if it achieves nothing more concrete, will contribute heavily to the uproar.
You may expect some loud threats to "pack" the court by adding new liberal members. Although sentiment for that is far from preponderant, there's more of it in the inner White House circle than you might think. There is a better-than-even chance of it, according to present indications, if the court invalidates the Social Security act or legislation of similar importance.
Liberal insiders, after deducing from the 4-to-4 New York unemployment insurance decision and

The HOLIDAY MYSTERY
By IDA R. GLEASON
© 1938, NEA Service, Inc.
BEGIN HERE TODAY
The gaiety of the Christmas party at "Thunder Mesa," the de Forest hacienda in New Mexico, has a tragic ending when PEARL SAM DE FOREST, oldest of three brothers, is found dead with an ancient knife in his throat.
Each of the de Forest brothers has a first name "Pearl." PEARL JOHN is the youngest; PEARL PIERRE next; others at the house are TANTE JOSE, PHINEAS, old and an invalid; BETTY WELCH, her young companion; RAMON VASQUEZ and ANGELO ARBYTA, guests at the party; PROFESSOR SHAW, archeologist and rival of GRHAM, the salesman who killed his brother, in the house chapel, has disappeared. Later Ramon and Angelo leave their beds, but when PEARL PIERRE announces that officers have been sent for, next morning PEARL PIERRE fails to appear. He is found lifeless, below a rock ledge, the same knife that killed his brother, in his hand.
PEARL JOHN announces he is going to destroy the knife but when he goes to get it, the knife has disappeared. PEARL JOHN accuses the Indian servant, BROKEN SHIELD, of the murders. Tante Josephine defends the Indian. Next morning she, too, is dead.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XVIII
STUNNED by the news of Tante Josephine's death, and fully aroused now to the tragedy about them, the household at Thunder Mesa assembled. Outside the blizzard swept across the windy space, holding dead and alive, alike, prisoners in its icy clutch.
Had Tante Josephine's rage burned out her life or was there some other reason for her death? This thought was foremost in the minds of all.
About 10 o'clock the two men who had started down the canyon the day before came staggering back to the hacienda, half-frozen and saying that the road was impassable. They had been unable to get through. All night they had fought the storm and were glad to have escaped with their lives.
"The Indian," Pearl John remarked, "did not bring any report on the road."
"The Indian was not at his post at the top of the trail," the men told him. "He does not know."
This proved to be the case, when an investigation was made. Broken Shield had vanished as completely as had his tribal ancestors.
AFTER lunch Professor Shaw announced that he was going to do some studying, and since his host did not offer any objection, he went to his room and closed the door. Methodically he

ALL the pueblos had their kivas or places for religious ceremonies below the level of the living quarters. Fortunately, the present-day Pueblo Indians still cling to their ancient customs of building so that it was not difficult to reconstruct the life of their ancestors.
The professor had found evidences that they still made connections to the old religion, in case the white man's God failed them—as in time of drought, for instance.
It was almost certain, therefore, that the old kiva was beneath the spot where he now stood, and more than probable that the de Forest family knew about this, too. He was nearing the end of his quest. Perhaps within his hands would lie the solution of all the strange happenings on the mesa.
Just how he would use this knowledge, if he did get it, the professor had not decided. Of one thing he was certain. He would make young de Forest swallow every one of the insinuations he had cast at him. Already he could picture the other man's feelings when he, the despised professor of archeology, took things into his own hands and became the one to dictate.
So engrossed was he in this investigation that he did not hear a slight movement behind him, nor was he conscious that other eyes than his were watching his tape-line, the metal-tipped end of which slithered across the floor with a faint rasping sound.
At last, satisfied by the results, the professor made rapid calculations in his notebook, then propped the electric torch on the floor, so that its beam of light fell directly on the space in the wall where he had been working. He was pressing against the wall with his shoulder when someone leaped upon him from behind. A great fist struck his head, blotting out consciousness. The last thing the professor remembered was the tightening of a tape-line around his bare throat.

FERTILIZER MEETINGS SCHEDULED FOR CISCO, RISING STAR, GORMAN

Meetings of farmers and others interested in using fertilizers will be held at Cisco, Rising Star and Gorman during the next two weeks, according to announcements made by Elmo V. Cook, county agricultural agent. Everyone in Eastland county or the trade territories of these three towns is invited to attend the meetings if interested. Cook says that these meetings are planned because of the increased interest in fertilizers and the great need of something to increase yields on the lands of Eastland county. Plans will be discussed for pooling orders and assisting farmers in choosing fertilizers needed for their land. The Cisco meeting will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday, Jan. 9, at the chamber of commerce and W. B. Starr will preside. The Rising Star meeting will be held at the theatre at 2:30 p. m. Monday, Jan. 11 and Bruce Eberhart will preside. In addition to discussing fertilizers, those watermelon growers in the Rising Star territory, are invited to attend and enter into discussion of watermelon acreage and seed sources for 1937. Cecil Shults, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will be in charge of the watermelon program. The Gorman meeting will be held at a place to be selected later and at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, Jan. 16, with J. J. Brown presiding. More than a score of farmers who used fertilizers in 1936 have been contacted by the county agent and they all are convinced that proper use of fertilizers in Eastland county and similar soil will prove very profitable. The fertilizing of peanuts with phosphates has shown surprising increases in yields. Fertilizer users who study co-operative prices before buying can realize considerable saving, as a recent report from the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, after a study of fertilizers in 1936 states "The most concentrated mixed fertilizer was the cheapest per pound of mixed food, or to put it another way, the highest priced fertilizer per pound of plant food." It has been estimated that tons of worthless filler unneeded fertilizer constituents have been shipped into Eastland county, costing the farmers hundreds of dollars. The fertilizer meetings are intended to prevent some of this waste. T. G. Caudle, teacher of vocational agriculture of Cisco, and C. L. Wilson, teacher of vocational Agriculture at Rising Star are cooperating in holding the fertilizer meetings.

A native of Missouri, he came to Texas in 1826 when 33 years old; was with Travis during the siege of the Alamo until night of March 3 when he was commissioned by Travis as trustee messenger to carry the appeal to the Texas convention at Washington-on-the-Brazos. Questions That Some Folks Ask About Cardui

BENEFIT FOR MAL-NUTRITION Thousands of women testify Cardui has helped them to overcome mal-nutrition and to ease many of the functional pains of menstruation. "What is meant by 'helping to overcome mal-nutrition?'" Cardui contains extracts of two plants which are classed among the "bitters" in medicine because they are known to increase the flow of digestive juices—to improve digestion—so there is a craving for sufficient food for the body's needs, and by their action more energy (or strength) is obtained from the food eaten. The food, of course, brings the additional strength, but Cardui serves as the means to this end by its good influence on the digestive system.

"BE IT RESOLVED: That I will make use of the Electric Servant in 1937."

One of the best New Year's Resolutions - a really MODERN Kitchen!

The West Texas Utilities Company long ago resolved that it would bring the West Texas housewife the maximum in service at a minimum cost. This vow has been kept to the letter. As proof, it reminds you that the average housewife today enjoys thrice the comforts of electric service known less than a score of years ago. Yes, this policy of giving the housewife her money's worth, which has reduced the net average rate per kilowatt hour from as much as 20 cents to 5 cents, today makes electric service the cheapest commodity in the average home. The modern home is equipped with many appliances that use but relatively few watts of electric energy per hour. Electric refrigerators, electric ranges and electric water heaters operate on an incentive rate (discount) schedule that amounts to much less than 5 cents a kilowatt hour. There are 1,000 watts in a kilowatt—1,000 watts of energy for one house for 5 cents. The new electrified home SHOULD BE the model West Texas American Home under these conditions. There is nothing prohibitive about the cost of operating any electric appliance. They have become staple products, recognized as standard for comfortable, modern homes—as much a fixture as the rug on your floor. Modern housewives will pass a resolution today to modernize their homes in 1937, using the Electric Servant to eliminate drudgery and to stimulate the happiness that electricity served up to you has made possible in this great area.

You can secure your modern Electric Kitchen step by step. As you add each major electric appliance—refrigerator, range and water heater—you automatically receive the benefits of low incentive (discount) rate.

Another Long Distance Rate Reduction in keeping with a long-standing Bell System policy

A series of rate reductions in the last ten years has substantially cut the cost of Long Distance telephone service.

Reductions have been made nearly every year since 1926, except in the depression years 1931-1934—in accordance with a long standing Bell System policy to reduce Long Distance rates whenever improvements in telephony and the volume of business allow it to be done.

The latest reduction becomes effective January 15, 1937. Savings are possible on many, not all, interstate calls. Long Distance will give you the new rates after the change is effective.
