FRICITION MAY RIPPLE PLACID CALM MONDAY

AUSTIN, Jan. 23 (UP)—When members of the 45th legislature return Monday, the third week of the session may see the first rift in the harmony thus far displayed. Governor Allred's message on liquor regulation, horse and dog race betting and consolidation of state departments is due Tuesday or Wednesday.

Speaker R. W. Calvert's announcement of committee appointments Monday will end widespread guessing as to who will get the top assignments.

When committees are announced, the house will get down to considering pressing bills among the 200 already introduced as well as a proposed investigation of the Texas Gulf Sulphur company's public relations.

The senate will receive Monday a committee's all-investigative report from Senator Joe Hill of Henderson, who said his report had to be written on "asbestos paper."

A new controversy appeared when Senator L. J. Sulak of LaGrange questioned the ten year term and reported $15,000 annual salary University of Texas regents are offering D. X. Bible as head football coach.

Hearing has been set for Monday tentatively on the 199th district election contest in which E. E. Hunter of Cleburne, a former member is questioning the seating of Representative J. K. Russell of Cleburne.

TROTSKY PLAN REVEALED IN TRIAL TODAY

MOSCOW, Russia, Jan. 23 (UP)—A strange tale of international intrigue in which the exiled Leon Trotsky was accused of seeking the military aid of Germany, Poland and Japan to overthrow the Soviet government, was told today at the trial of seventeen former officials.

The defendants accused of aiding Trotsky all pleaded guilty, and apparently were headed for the firing squad.

The many allegations included a plan to give an island to Japan for its oil supplies in event of war with the United States, and to aid Germany's conquest of the Danube countries and the Balkans.

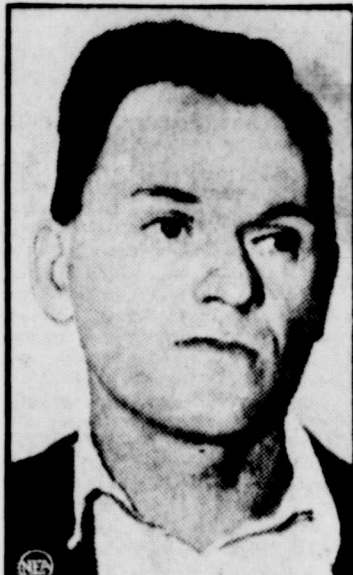

According to the indictment, Trotsky wrote to Karl Radek, the principal defendant, outlining the plot.

TEXAS BRINGS BIGGEST SUIT IN GREEN CASE

AUSTIN, Jan. 23 (UP)—Texas played for the biggest stake in its tax history tonight as attorneys completed service on all parties in a suit involving the $80,000,000 estate of the late Colonel E. H. R. Green, son of the railroad queen, Mrs. Hetty Green.

If it can prove that Colonel Green's legal residence was in Texas, the state hopes to collect from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 in inheritance taxes, enough to lift the Texas general revenue fund out of the "red."

Survivors include: two sons, Joe and Rex Carrothers; one grandson, Bobby Joe, son of Rex Carrothers; and three sisters, Mrs. L. L. Pond and Mrs. Irene Gallagher of Pennsylvania; and Mrs. Louis Bowman of California.

OVER 300,000 FAMILIES ARE FLOOD VICTIMS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (UP)—President Roosevelt, concerned over the disastrous floods in the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys today issued a proclamation calling for citizens to contribute at least $2,000,000 to Red Cross for relief work.

Mr. Roosevelt's appeal was issued after conference with Admiral C. T. Grayson, Red Cross chairman, who estimated 270,000 families were suffering from flood effects.

"There is every likelihood that until the crest of the flood is reached, this number of refugees will be largely increased. Snow, sleet and freezing weather have added to the suffering and made hazardous the work of rescue," the president's proclamation said.

As President of the United States and as President of the American Red Cross, I am urging all our people to contribute promptly and most generously to this relief fund.

Grayson said: "With the utmost economy, at least $3,000,000 will be required. From funds on hand, the Red Cross can make available approximately $1,000,000 leaving a minimum of $2,000,000 which must be promptly raised if suffering is to be avoided."

Refugees hunger, cold and illness as rivers of the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys surged to their highest point in history.

Flood damage in 11 states from Pennsylvania to Tennessee and Mississippi was estimated at more than $10,000,000. Industry counted its losses at least equal to that.

Twenty-six were known dead and hundreds were missing. Homeless crowded in flimsy shelter, abandoned schools, city halls and churches. A blizzard sweeping across the devastated area brought hopes that the rising streams would be halted, but suffering of refugees was doubled. Wholesale influenza and pneumonia epidemics were feared.

The situation by states: Pennsylvania: Flood crests were believed passed as streams started to recede slowly.

West Virginia: Ohio River flood waters rose more than 3 inches an hour at Wheeling and covered streets in the business section, 40,000 were homeless.

Ohio: The river was 32 feet above flood level at Cincinnati, and was expected to rise another 2 inches an hour before reaching the crest. An epidemic threatened Portsmouth, where a shortage of food and medical supplies were reported.

Kentucky: The state was experiencing the "worst disaster in the history." Water supplies were rationed to Louisville residents where 15,000 were reported homeless. State officials prepared to vacuate 4,900 inmates at Frankfort prison.

Indiana: Fifty thousand reported homeless. At least a dozen small cities were abandoned.

Illinois: Floods of major proportions were feared at Cairo. Fourteen hundred residents were advised to evacuate Shawneetown.

Missouri: Sleet storms added to sufferings of refugees in the St. Francis River Valley. Carbondale, isolated, had less than a ton of coal, no fresh meat, and little other food for its 1,000 population.

Arkansas: Nearly every city and town in two eastern counties near Jonesboro were isolated by St. Francis River waters. More than 25,000 were homeless.

Tennessee: Two were drowned as refugees fled from floods in the northwestern corner of the state. unusual in this state added to the Mississippi. Freezing temperatures suffering. Rivers rose rapidly.

The first sit-downers to quit the plant where they had lived for a week, they set an example authorities hoped other strikers would follow.

Wife of Explorer Suffers Relapse

LCS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 23 (AP)—Cora Johnson, injured in a plane crash that took the lives of her famous explorer husband, Martin Johnson, and four others, suffered a relapse today.

Forster is touring the United States to revive interest in disarmament and also to arouse a popular demand for collective security as a means of preventing war.

As regards America's policy in the Pacific, Forster declared the three alternatives are:

- 1.—To abandon all idea of restraining Japan's militarists from going wherever they will in Asia and the Western Pacific, and reduce the American navy to a coastal defense unit.
- 2.—To maintain the traditional policy of seeking to defend certain agreed principles of peace and commercial opportunity in China, such as the Open Door Policy, even against Japan if necessary.
- 3.—To maintain a long-range navy, as efficient as possible for trans-Pacific service, answering menace with counter-menace, fort to enlist the co-operation of the other powers to defend an agreed rule of peace.

Peril Seen in Isolation

Forster said that he would not presume to suggest which of the first two policies might be better for the United States, but insisted that the third one, which combines all of the dangers of isolation and of "interventionist non-intervention," must be the wrong one not only for the United States but for Europe as well.

Forster declared that the armament race, which was conceded to be one of the principal causes of the World War, has reached proportions that are of the most alarming character. During the six years of the arms race before 1914, he said that nations as a whole merely increased armaments expenditure by about $785,000,000 within two years. But in the 1932-35 period the expenditure was about $1,000,000,000.

"Three years after the 1932 disarmament conference began," he said, "the world was spending at least double what it spent before the conference convened. Still more important is the increase in striking power and especially the power to bring a sudden and devastating blow at long range."

Forster said that during the World War, the greatest number of airplanes that ever reached London at one time was 22, starting fires in five different places. The recent production of an incendiary bomb, he believes, creates an entirely new problem for urban mankind.

Favors Collective Security

As the representative of the British Peace Movement, Forster is still an ardent advocate of collective security as the only means of safeguarding the world against war. He frankly places the blame for the breakdown of the League of Nations machinery on the failure of Great Britain to take a definite stand in the Japanese-Manchurian and Italian-Ethiopian affairs as well as the European nations to respond favorably to the Hoover plan of June, 1932 or to the Roosevelt plan of May, 1933.

As to the present arms race, Forster declared there are two questions to which every nation should be called upon to respond.

The first is whether armaments are being built for enforcing collective security or whether they are being amassed for the private use of each nation concerned.

He believes if the latter premise is true, nothing can save the world from another disaster similar to that of 1914-18.

Disparity between the number of casualties unnecessarily caused by disease and the number killed in battle within American borders within the last 70 years is greater than the disparity between what Congress will vote for national health and what it will vote for war.
