Hollywood Star Entertains Texas Doctor

Texas Doctor Wins Free Trip To Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25.—A Texas doctor who proved he could write letters as well as prescriptions has just been honored with a free trip to Hollywood, awarded by the Guaranty Union Life Insurance company, of Beverly Hills, Calif., according to A. L. Rose, president of the company.

Accompanied by his wife, Dr. Dye was royally entertained at leading Hollywood resorts and attractions of Movieland. Rushing back and forth from his "base of operations" at the Roosevelt Hotel on Hollywood Boulevard, the doctor's busy itinerary included the Rose Bowl football game, the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, as well as Graumann's Chinese Theatre, where many world premiers of motion pictures are shown. Following a night studying the stars of the sky at the famous Griffith Planetarium, Dr. Dye was guest on the lot at RKO studios, in company with stars of Hollywood.

Among the film celebrities who visited with the prize winning guest, was Edward Everett Horton, popular comedian, who personally escorted him on the set where Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire were going through their latest dance steps for their forthcoming musical picture, in which Mr. Horton is featured. Another of the stars personally met by the guest and his wife was Maxine Jennings, beautiful RKO actress who, appropriately garbed as a Red Cross nurse, escorted the doctor on the set of view Paul Muni and Miriam Hopkins enact a scene from "Escadrille." Dr. and Mrs. Dye took in the alligator, lion and ostrich farms, dined at the Brown Derby and Trocadero, motored for hours past Hollywood studios, homes of the film luminaries in Beverly Hills and the playgrounds of the stars along Malibu and the beaches of Southern California. Another event attended by the contest winner was the grand opening of the new Hollywood Columbia Broadcasting studios, where such noted artists as Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, Dick Powell and scores of others were featured in person. Dr. Dye, whose father was a doctor before him, has long been a resident of Plainview, where he conducts a sanitarium with his son and daughter-in-law, both of whom are also physicians. Wants Teeth In Driver License Law

AUSTIN, Jan. 25.—The question of highway safety to which Texas communities are giving constantly increasing attention was brought into sharp relief with the opening of the 45th regular session of the legislature.

Among the first of the bills introduced was one to strengthen the drivers' license law passed at a special session of the previous legislature. The authors stated it was their purpose to put some "teeth" into the law to provide better enforcement. Sponsors said they believed public opinion being whipped ceaselessly by civic organizations, was beginning to crystallize in favor of a strong, workable law that would adequately care for the conditions on the highways.

Drafters of the driver's license law pointed to figures that approximate two per cent of the drivers cause most of the accidents on the road. They announced an intention to make diligent efforts to keep the law from becoming a burden on the majority of good drivers but asserted, at the same time, that sane, sensible drivers should not go wholly unprotected against the careless, reckless operator.

The condition existing with reference to highway safety is not nearly so bad as some would have us believe when measured in terms of highway miles traveled and the number of persons actively involved in driving cars on the open road and in the cities. The human activity in the motor transportation is tremendous and the enormity of the figures challenges the imagination. There are only a comparatively few citizens today that do not, at one time or another during a 24-hour period, find themselves riding, either as a driver or as an occupant, in a motor vehicle.

That the nation is gradually acquiring a better accident record is apparent from statistics. However, the loss of life and property on the highways is tremendous, even when all factors are considered. It can and will be reduced. Effective enforcement, highway engineering and education will do it. When compared to the number of accidents that occur annually in the supposedly safe precincts of the home, the highway as a one-way ticket to another life shows up favorably.

With the inauguration of effective enforcement coupled with other encouraging factors, the death toll next year should take a drop despite the prospect of increased usage of highways and automobiles.

Among the first bills introduced was one to reduce the motor vehicle registration fee to a nominal amount. The bill will be opposed by leading members of the legislature interested in a continuation of the highway program on an orderly basis and in making needed improvements that will improve safety features of the roads, such as elimination of dangerous curves, railroad grade crossings, deep ditches and other hazards.

The proposed reduction would severely cripple the finances of the highway department and the counties, as well. The bill would take approximately two-thirds of the income from the present registration levy, an unusually sharp cut.

Last year the state and counties collected $16,699,756 in motor vehicle registration fees on 1,509,700 vehicles. Of this total, the state received $5,828,756 and the counties retained $10,871,024. The state's share went into the general construction and maintenance fund. The portion retained by the counties constituted the major source, and in some cases the only, of revenue to county road and bridge funds.

In the case of the state, it would not require an expert to figure out what would happen to the highway program. The state, under the proposed reduction, would receive little or nothing from the registration fees. This would, therefore, leave the highway department dependent solely on the income from two cents of the four-cent gasoline tax. The net to the highway department from this source last year totaled $17,831,440. The "fixed charges" against the department for next year are in excess of this amount as shown by the following figures.

Unless the state chooses to forego some of its federal aid, it must match the $7,957,000 appropriation made by the federal government. The annual cost of maintaining the system is some $9,300,000 and the cost of equipment $429,407. During the next year the department also must match an extra federal grant of $1,591,522 for secondary roads. Legislative appropriations from the highway fund total slightly in excess of $900,000 annually. The grand total of these charges is approximately $20,000,000 and could not be met if the proposed reduction was carried out. This could mean only one thing, curtailment of road building and maintenance activity somewhere along the line.

which Dr. Dye won first place, Guaranty Union Life awarded 27 other prizes, ranging from $2 to $100 to persons in various states.
