Cries of Nepotism Heard in House Today

'INQUIRY' AND LIQUOR BILLS INTRODUCED

AUSTIN, Jan. 26. (U.P.)—Cries of nepotism heard forcibly in the 43rd legislature today, as Representative Ben Cathey of Quitman attempted to have the house print a 56-page report on a nepotism investigation four years ago.

He withdrew his motion after lengthy debate, but served warnings he will introduce a bill strengthening the state nepotism law. Cathey said it was "widespread practice" for one official to appoint another's relatives on a job on a reciprocal basis.

The senate voted today to continue a general investigating committee as a permanent "grand jury" to inquire into state affairs. A committee appointed two years ago filed a partial report Monday.

A new committee of five members was authorized today.

A bill carrying out insurance reforms recommended by the committee were offered.

One which applies to every form of insurance except life, health and accident, limits earnings to eight per cent, and permits State Insurance Commission to regulate salaries and other expenses of insurance companies.

Drinks with meals in bonafide hotels, restaurants and other dining places will be possible under a bill offered in the senate. The bill was offered by Senator Weaver Moore of Houston, largest liquor sale section in the state.

STUDY E. E. HUNTER CHALLENGE

AUSTIN, Jan. 26. (U.P.)—Records of former election contests were studied today by house sub-committees mapping procedure on the current 99th District Election contest.

Public hearings on the contest in which E. E. Hunter of Cleburne, a former member, is challenging the seating of Representative J. K. Russell was delayed because one of the attorneys was absent. He was Representative O. W. Reed of Dallas, whose mother died last week-end.

The sub-committee, headed by Representative Wilson Fox, of Taylor, turned to a 16-year-old senate election contest record for a pattern of procedure.

Veteran Rockman Dies at Lueders

The Kinney ambulance of Stamford passed through Cisco today en route to Marble Falls with the body of A. C. Fox, 71, veteran rockman from Lueders, who died Saturday afternoon from a heart attack. Mr. Fox went to Lueders in 1901 and began the rock quarries which have made that town famous all over the nation as headquarters for fine building stone.

Burial will be made Tuesday morning 10:30 at Marble Falls.

Clark Gable Named As Father of Child

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26. (U.P.)—Mrs. Violet Wells Norton, 47, who alleged in letters to the federal district attorney that Clark Gable was the father of her 13 year old daughter was under arrest today charged with attempted mail fraud.

CISCO HAS NO NEWS FROM AREA AFFECTED BY DISASTROUS FLOOD

A number of Cisco people have relatives in Louisville, Ky., in the flood area, but none have been able to receive news from that section. Rev. Edwin Skiles is in Mullins Hall at the Louisville Baptist Seminary, which has been made a relief station for the city. Mr. and Mrs. Asa Skiles, parents of Elwin, are concerned about him on account of the lack of lights, heat, drinking water and sanitary conditions, but think he would be safe at Mullins Hall which is away from the low area.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. West each have relatives in the flood area but have likewise failed to receive any news from them.

Their daughter, Mrs. Swinebroad, who recently married and moved to Lancaster is not in the flooded dis-

Red Cross Asks Funds For Flood Sufferers

J. E. Spencer, Eastland county chairman of the Red Cross organization, received a telegram this morning asking that all quotas be at least doubled to aid in the dire catastrophe now confronting the nation in caring for flood sufferers in the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys where victims are without food, shelter, clothing, drinking water, fuel and light.

Robt. T. Bridges, Red Cross field representative for this district in Cisco today, said he was sure his district and Texas would respond generously. Quotas should be ignored and help given to the limit. He asked that people do not wait to be solicited but to make their contributions either to Mr. Spencer at the chamber of commerce or to Horace Conley, disaster chairman, at the Cisco Gas Corporation.

The telegram follows: J. E. Spencer, chairman Eastland County Chapter American Red Cross, Cisco, Texas.

Because relief need in flooded areas of Ohio and Mississippi Valleys increasing every hour as continued rains send rivers to highest levels in history, with more than 400,000 persons driven from homes, urge you DOUBLE YOUR RELIEF FUND QUOTA AND GO AS FAR BEYOND THE DOUBLED FIGURE AS POSSIBLE. We are contributing million dollars from national funds. Three hundred Red Cross relief workers now in disaster areas giving immediate emergency relief to flood refugees. Three hundred fifty Red Cross nurses in field engaged in battle against feared epidemic. Food, clothing, bedding, medical supplies being rushed by train, truck and boat. Rescue work con-

COUNTRY CLUB TO INVESTIGATE PROPOSED IDEA

About 25 stockholders and directors of the country club met in response to the call of President J. E. Caffrey Monday evening and discussed the project for improving the country club grounds, golf course and eliminating the debt now against the organization.

A committee was appointed to investigate the proposition and report back to the body after which steps may be taken to seek approval of the governmental project that could mean so much to Cisco in the development of its recreational facilities.

The committee personnel is, Forest Wright, R. L. Ponsler, E. P. Crawford, W. J. Foxworth and Dr. Hubert Seale.

After the lunch regular procedure will take place. Every Baptist is urged to attend these men's gatherings where fellowship is cultivated and interesting and instructive programs are carried out.

Dr. Paul M. Wood is to head plans for a stag party at the country club February 6, it has been announced. Further announcements will be made as plans mature, Dr. Wood said.

$81.46 CONTRIBUTED IN CISCO

$81.46 for Red Cross flood relief was collected in Cisco by 2 p. m. today, it was announced by the Chamber of Commerce office.

PENSIONERS OF 'OLD AGE' MAKE LOUD CLAMOR

J. T. Elliott accompanied a group of old age clients who have been temporarily removed from the pension rolls pending investigation, to Abilene Monday where they visited the district office of J. O. Shelton. Mr. Elliott said he found hundreds of people waiting for an audience with the district supervisor.

It was impossible to see Mr. Shelton in person, Elliott said, but he contacted him over the telephone and had a private audience with the assistant, Mr. Brelford, who stated that they were investigating these records as fast as it was possible to get to them.

It was found that about 50 per cent of all clients in this district have been temporarily dropped from the pension roll in this district, Mr. Elliott said. Two assistants have been added to the working force of the district office and two additional ones are to be placed at once to hurry up efforts to settle the present turmoil of the seemingly unjustified removal of so many old people from this relief measure.

Those who know themselves to be proper individuals to receive the old age pension should insist on their re-instatement at once and if enough pressure is brought to bear, justice will be speedily done in the matter.

R. E. Grantham was in Abilene this morning and talked with Mr. Shelton who assured Mr. Grantham that investigators would be in the Cisco territory within a short time to make thorough investigations of all pensioners who had been dropped. Mr. Shelton explained that the main factor contributing to the suspension was the information that these persons had relatives who would take care of them, and since there were not enough funds to go around, these were suspended from the rolls.

Mr. Grantham also visited WPA offices and inquired regarding the progress of the water treating plant machinery which would be ready to install but which has been delayed in purchasing. The Presbyterian project is progressing and should be worked out soon, he said.

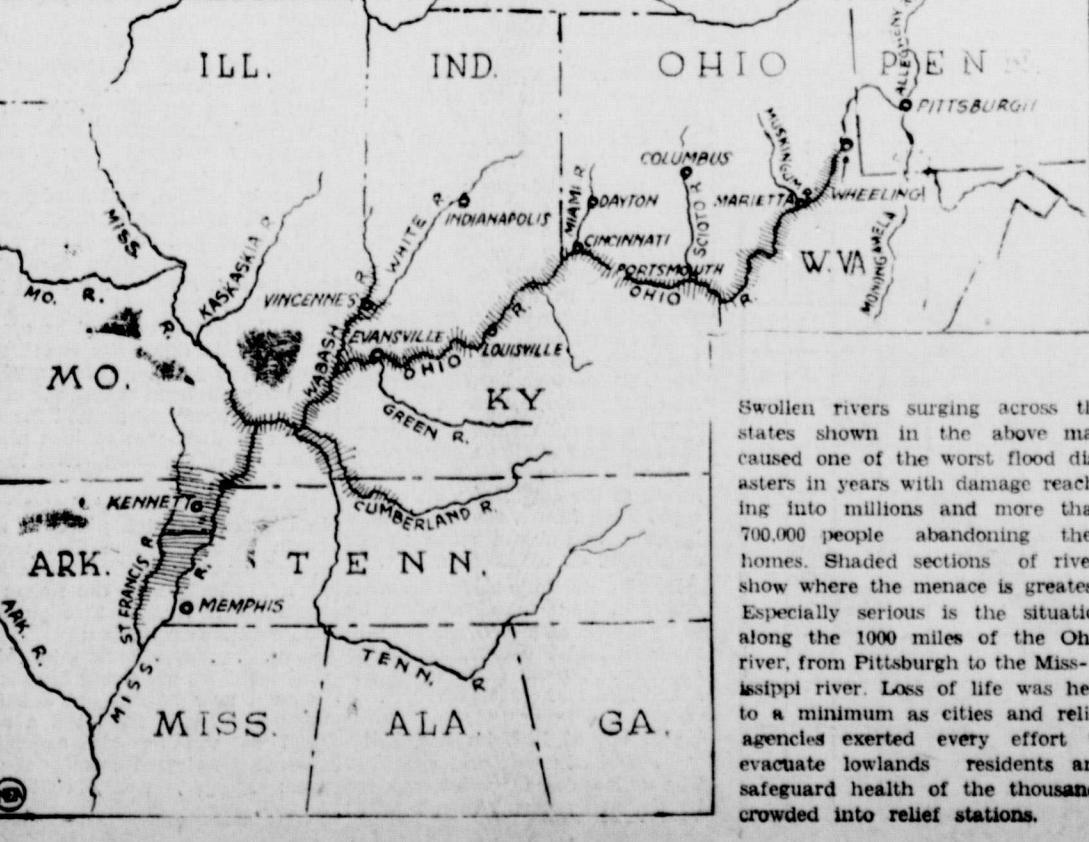

AS FLOOD TOLL MOUNTS

Through this huge gap ripped in Bechnout levee, Cincinnati by the Ohio river's pounding flood waters a roaring torrent poured down on lowlands, converting them into a shallow sea and inundating Lunken airport. Even the higher land seen in the background the water rose to a threatening level, in the third greatest deluge in Cincinnati's history.

Derailed when the surging waters of the Cumberland river undermined the Louisville & Nashville railroad tracks near Palmyra, Tenn., 15 cars of this freight train were spilled into the torrent causing heavy damage. This picture, taken from the air, shows the remainder of the train still on the rails and all the surrounding area submerged. Service on the L & N main line from Bowling Green, Ky., to Memphis, Tenn., was delayed by the disaster.

Swollen rivers surging across the states shown in the above map caused one of the worst flood disasters in years with damage reaching into millions and more than 700,000 people abandoning their homes. Shaded sections of rivers show where the menace is greatest. Especially serious is the situation along the 1000 miles of the Ohio river, from Pittsburgh to the Mississippi river. Loss of life was held to a minimum as cities and relief agencies exerted every effort to evacuate lowlands residents and safeguard health of the thousands crowded into relief stations.

TEN MILLION IS ASKED FOR FLOOD AREAS

MEMPHIS, Jan. 26. (U.P.)—Fear that the record-breaking flood was approaching Memphis was expressed today by U. S. Army engineers. They predicted the Mississippi would reach 65 feet by Sunday night or Monday. That mark would be 10 feet higher than the previous record.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26. (U.P.)—President Roosevelt is prepared to allot the entire $790,000,000 emergency relief appropriation for flood relief "if necessary," Chairman James Buchanan of the House Appropriations Committee said today. The announcement came as the Red Cross estimated 700,000 persons were driven from their homes. The Red Cross raised its appeal from $4,000,000 to $10,000,000.

OHIO RIVER SETS RECORD—80 FEET

Rains ceased in the flooded Ohio Valley today, but the raging river reached new crests which threatened to add 200,000 more to the 700,000 already homeless.

Cessation of rain brought a hope to the stricken valley that the end of the disaster was in sight. The crests, however, threatened a super-flood as they rolled around Cairo Illinois, and started southward down the Mississippi river between the billion dollar levees, which have been untested since the 1927 floods.

In the eleven-state-area, 83 were known dead and scores were believed drowned.

The river crest was at 80 feet in Cincinnati, more than 3 feet higher than ever before, and 30 feet above flood stage.

In southern Illinois, however, the crest was not expected until Friday. New rises threatened to send the stream over the 60 foot flood walls at Cairo where 4,000 men, remaining behind after 10,000 women and children left, were packing sand bags against the levy.

At Wheeling, West Virginia, the Ohio was 11 feet above flood stage, and was expected to rise another 2 or 3 feet.

U. S. Army engineers prepared for a long siege. At Portsmouth, O., the 25,000 refugees were told that the city would be inundated for another two weeks.

Added to the menaces of flood, fire, pestilence and food and water shortage was the danger of panic among the marooned and homeless.

Martial law was declared at Louisville where 200,000 persons were concentrated in temporary shelter. Southern Indiana's regions were governed by martial law. An emergency dictatorship was set up at Cincinnati. Reports of panics 1,000 refugees at Mounts, Ill., resulted in a request for national guardsmen.

The U. S. government warning that the Ohio was rising at all points south of Pittsburgh sent additional thousands of men into the area.

General Malin Craig, chief of staff, said "every available resource" of the army was being used.

The 3,000 inhabitants of Huntington, West Virginia, fled to the state capital at Charleston. Evansville, Indiana, sent 10,000 refugees to other communities and planned to remove 5,000 more.

Smaller towns in southern Indiana Illinois and Ohio were evacuated.

Shortages of food, medicine and water plagued the larger cities. Cincinnati's reserve supply was quarantined. Water famines existed in nearby towns.

Louisville's water supply was limited. A food shortage was feared.

A survey showed:

Known dead: Tennessee, 5; Arkansas, 17; Missouri, 16; Ohio, 12; Kentucky, 12; West Virginia, 9; Indiana, 6; Pennsylvania, 3; Mississippi, 2 and Illinois, 1.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 26. (U.P.)—The War Department today cancelled without explanation its previously announced allocation of $900,000 for emergency construction of refugee camps in the flood zone. It was understood technicians in the law prevented use of the fund.

How Many Babies?

The legislators of this country have passed statutes which virtually outlaw birth control.

We don't believe in gambling, but there is one thing we would bet on because we should not consider it gambling but a sure thing: If the men of this country had to have the babies, they would not only legalize birth control, but make it compulsory. And the law would be rushed through as an emergency measure ahead of raids on the pork barrel.

Legislation which attempts to tell women that they must have children whether they want them or not has been enacted in all conscientiousness, and is based on the Bible instruction that the earth be populated. However, there is nothing in Holy Writ that we have noticed which says anything about over population; nor that one should have more children than one can take care of and bring up in the way they should go.

In the days when the Bible was coming into being, large families were highly desirable. All conditions favored them. The more sons and sons-in-law and daughters and daughters-in-law and grandchildren a man had the more help he had to tend his flocks and work his fields, protect him from attacks and assist him to plunder, enslave and kill other tribes.

The head of a family was a pumpkin in those days. He was a big chief with despotic authority. His children honored him. They not only cast him nothing but had high social, physical, and financial value. The earth was so big and empty that the nations then existing rattled around in it like a cowpea in a hoghead—no wonder the Lord commanded the people to be fruitful and multiply.

Society made few demands, too. The children did not have to be supported until they were twenty-one and then some, and be supplied with fivers and spending money. You may rest assured Gideon never would have had any seventy sons under conditions such as now exist. But in olden days large families were so desirable and important that a man was allowed a multiplicity of wives and near wives to speed up the child crop.

The Lord always has modified His plans as conditions have changed. In the Old Testament, war had God's approval; he sanctioned slaughter and even commanded it; Christ made war; but today war is ungodly and wine is wicked.

As human beings progress they are able to move into higher spheres of thought and action. Probably no one can say that those ancient barbarians of the Old Testament with their barbarous customs were not operating under Jehovah's directions; yet when Christ came he suggested some radical changes; and Christ declared He spoke for God.

The matter of having children should probably after all be decided as one decides how much to give to the local church, to foreign mission, and how much time to put in convancing for the community chest; one should let one's conscience be one's guide and also not to be unmindful of expediency. Of one thing we are convinced, that no group of human being—male, female or "ministeriale"—setting in solemn conclave, has any business to tell a married woman how many children she shall or shall not have. That is her business.

King without a country

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Surrendering his throne for the love of ARDATH RICHMOND, Canadian-born actress, PAUL, King of Northumbria, becomes private citizen PAUL FERRONE, and squirts his soda that he has made a bad bargain.

He soon tires of the COUNTESS DE WINDIC, BECKLE, C.A. TWINE, and the gay, vaporous crowd that people the Bay of St. Francis, near Paris. He travels, but always restless, and the shadow of the lost throne follows him. . . Finally he and Ardath quarrel with her friends. Paul takes more and more to his boat. One day he suggests to Ardath that they have a child, who says, "Paul, are you insane?" After that they cool toward each other increasingly. . .

CHAPTER XII
ALL the rest of that day and evening Paul wandered idly about Gailport, unrecognized and lonely, drifting from one casual group to another, asking questions and directing each conversation to the subject of the king. . . When he went to bed, at last, in the cabin of his sloop, he had to admit that the thing he had come back to Gailport to find had eluded him. For he had come back to bask in the radiance of the old days—to struggle up against the warm love his people had once had for him—and he found that it no longer existed. . .

The truth of the matter was that they had simply forgotten him. They did not look back at his reign with the fond longing he had imagined; they did not look back at all until someone reminded them of it, as he had been doing; and then their attitude was one of, "Oh yes—King Paul. To be sure; he was king before King Joseph, wasn't he?" . . .

When he got up the next morn- ing he found the little city decked out with flags and busting in honor of the expected visit of Joseph. Each house, no matter how humble, had found some means of putting on a festive aspect. . . By 10 o'clock the sidewalks were crowded. Paul found a place by the pedestal of a dust-grimed war memorial at the entrance to the common. A pang of memory as- sailed him as he recognized it. . .

FAR off, at last, he heard the sound of music and cheering. The noise came in intermittent bursts, at first, and then swelled to a steady tide of sound, given rhythm by the blood-stirring pulse of drums. It came nearer, and an electric current seemed to pass through the waiting crowd. They could make out now the tramp of marching feet, the blare of trumpets and the shrill scream of the rifles, and a wave of cheering came sweeping in toward them as the people hailed their king. . .

There it came, at last, down the street on the far side of the open common. The regimental band of a famous regiment of regulars—a regiment that had fought the king's wars for three centuries, and had the names of great battles and obscure ones inscribed on its banners—swung into view. . . A mist came into Paul's eyes as he watched them. His amber spectacles fogged, and he impatiently jerked them off and thrust them into his pocket. He had been honorary colonel of this regiment. They were great men; he knew all of the officers and half of the men. They were great men and a great regiment; he looked on with a lump in his throat as the steady blue ranks swept past him, the jaunty caps bobbing over bronzed faces. . .

Then, as the roar mounted to a crescendo, there came an open touring car. Standing in the ton- neau was a slight, straight figure in a plain business suit, bare- headed, a white, earnest face look- ing out over the town—Joseph, King of Northumbria. . . The car moved abreast. Instinctively, Paul snatched off his hat and held it over his heart. He stood in an exposed position, and his sudden movement must have caught the royal eye; Joseph turned his head and looked squarely at him, and Paul saw a start of quick recognition. Then the car moved on again, a com- pany of local militia filled the gap behind it—and the royal pageant had passed. . .

Paul climbed down. The crowd was surging down the street, fol- lowing the parade, to find a place by the waterfront where the cere- mony of breaking ground for the new coal dock was to take place. For want of anything better to do, he followed. . . Paul saw the slight figure step to the front of the platform and, begin to speak. The first words were lost; then a shift of the wind, or a diminution in the noises of the crowd, let them through, and he heard Joseph saying: . . .

". . . and I like to think that what we are doing here is to begin a new battle—not a battle against external foes, but a new fight in the age-old campaign against the eternal enemies of our race: hunger, want, cold and misery. . .

"Sir," he said, "his majesty the king would like to talk with you. Will you come with me, please?"

O. K. Tire Shop Now Open on Fifth St.

G. W. Evelt, 105 West 5th street, has moved to Cisco from Brady and is putting in a new tire shop. Mr. Evelt says his method of tire repairing makes the broken, or out, tire the strongest part and flexible, soft and positively safe. He repairs high speed and low pressure tires permanently, and reports that a buy in a used tire repaired by his method is one bought with no risk.

Pastor's Association Makes Reports Today

"Our regular meeting of the pastors' association met Jan. 27 in the study of the First Baptist church, for the purpose of setting goals for the current year. The following preachers were present: Revs. T. J. Sparkman, Luther Pryor, C. S. Moad, E. S. James, Joe I. Patterson, Fred Chunn, and Preston Broxton.

"It is again our privilege to conduct chapel services in the public schools of the city every principal and Prof. Clark being hearty sympathetic with the work. On account of some changes in lesson schedules since mid term we will have to change the hour schedules in some of the schools, but this will be published soon.

"Rev. T. J. Sparkman will conduct services Wednesday as per arrangement with principals for the present. Rev. Luther Pryor Feb. 10; Rev. C. S. Moad, Feb. 24; Rev. Preston March 10; Dr. David F. Tyndall March 24; Rev. E. S. James April 7; Rev. M. H. Appiewhite April 21; Rev. Joe I. Patterson May 5.

"After discussion of ways we are to conduct a church population census taking advantage of the splendid offer of the N. Y. A. of the high school young men and young women, giving them something really interesting to do, and perhaps finding open doors for the workers. This will be started in time to finish by the first of March.

"We are trying to improve the church and Sunday School attendance again this spring, a sort of report system is being tried, each church reporting to the newspapers on Mondays the number of pupils enrolled in Sunday school, and the number present on Sunday.

"Special thanks was voted to the splendid newspapers for their cooperation in our work last year, these are better papers than any small town papers we know of.

"T. J. SPARKMAN, President.
"PRESTON BROXTON, Sec."
