FORGET AND REGRET
I do not regret anything. In the place, regrets are useless; and in the next place they helplessness into one's soul. When you look at your new hat say, "I wish I had bought a one," that gives you a feeling of satisfaction; be glad you bought a brown hat; it won't show dirt. Wish I had bought a No-Tube; it's the best radio set on the market for the money.

DO NOT regret that you have done things, or that a thing has happened, because your regret may come to mock you. That which you have put in your valuable time may turn out to be a thing for you; then you will rather cheap and more or less used in your own estimation; you can't pat yourself on the back and say, "I knew that was to turn out all right."

THE whole, everything works all right; and a matter which is to be working out all wrong ends quite nicely; one cannot for a year, or a decade, or perhaps a quarter or half a century, the outcome will be.

DO NOT refuse to regret has a psychological effect on shaping as for you.

Wish I had not bought that shows a man. Yet that lot prove a handsome investment.

Wish I had married Jim instead of Jack, wails a woman. Jim may go to the penitentiary; Jack to the legislature. And

Negro Torture and Lynching Investigated

NO MEMBERS RECOGNIZED BY OFFICERS

DUCK HILL, Miss., April 14 (U.P.)--A grand jury investigation into the lynching of two negroes was promised today. Sheriff E. E. Wright and two deputies announced they had not recognized any member of the mob that tortured the prisoners with blow torches before killing them.

The full details of the lynching spread over the countryside today. It was indicated that the negroes had died slowly, under frightful torture.

They were Roosevelt Townes, 25, and "Bootblack" McDonald, 26, accused of murdering the proprietor of a crossroads store on December 30.

In Washington, Representative Hattin W. Summers of Texas, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, today sent a telegram to Governor Hugh White of Mississippi, saying he considered the lynchings "a reflection on the state." His message read in part: "Impression created here by the Duck Hill lynchings is that if the press reports are approximately correct, and they seem to be, these lynchings, both with regard to lynchings and the officers involved, were as dastardly a crime as cowardice could devise, and brutality execute. It is the sort of thing which makes it hard for us who are here trying to protect the governmental sovereignty of the state."

Band-parent club members and friends of the band are invited to attend the presentation ceremonies.

QUINS ALL SMILES AS THEY START A NEW DAY

It's morning at the Dafeo Nursery, and here's Yvonne, first up, beginning a day which the camera will record for you.

Yvonne finds the coast clear, so at her signal the others appear at the door, brimming with anticipation. "Boo!" cries Yvonne to the nurses, as Marie, Emilie and Annette prepare to back up her rally into the nursery bathroom. Cecile must be a bit of a sleepy-head, for she hasn't kept up with the others in this race. But Emilie evidently sees her coming up and you can bet she isn't far behind the others.

According to the trio of utility managers their type of companies in Eastland pay 60 to 65 per cent of school taxes in the Eastland district.

The expressions from Ponsler, Lewis and Pettit came after K

Time and Talent Wasted by Thief

FORT WORTH, April 14 (U.P.)--A thief wasted his time and talent stealing a leather jacket here--he should have asked for it.

A decrepit 36-year-old man took the jacket from the boiler room at a utilities company. He was arrested, and the owner, J. E. Williams, identified the garment. He glanced at the suspect, then ordered:

"See that he gets it. He needs it worse than I do."

The thief spent the night in jail for drunkenness, and took the jacket with him when released the next morning.

BAKERS STRIKE INVESTIGATED WHEN SETTLED

FORT WORTH, April 14 (U.P.)--Dr. Edwin A. Elliott, regional director of the national labor relations board, said today he had begun investigation of the strike of 12 union bakers against the Worth Bakery after both sides yesterday agreed to arbitrate their differences.

The announcement to submit the strike to arbitration came a few hours after fists flew last yesterday in the first violence since the union men walked out Sunday.

George Koenig, 35, non-striking baker, suffered a battered face when he fought with six men who, union officials denied were strikers.

Union leaders said the strike was called because George Kogan, proprietor of the bakery, allegedly had broken an agreement not to discharge any men until a contract was signed with the Bakers Union. Two union bakers were dismissed last week.

Tell Us About It!

A man came home one evening and found his wife with the tears very near the surface. "Do you know," she said tragically, "I went into Claymore's this afternoon and asked them to cash a check for me and they wouldn't do it? I never felt so humiliated in all my life before all those clerks. I'm never going into that place again, never, never."

"There, there," said the husband soothingly "don't get fussed up. Nobody intended to offend you, I am sure, or to be disobedient. There must have been some mistake somewhere. I'll find out."

The husband took the pains to find out; he got in touch with the proprietor of the store and discovered that the whole trouble was due to a new and undiplomatic book-keeper.

"I can't tell you how glad I am that you brought this matter to my attention," said the proprietor. "You have pointed out a weak place in my business and have given me a chance to explain. If all of our customers would do that it would help us immensely. But so often when they get mad at us they say nothing about it—to us—but they say plenty to everybody else."

"That's the rub," said a merchant discussing the above incident. "My help are always doing things to displease my customers and I rarely find out about it. Now the other day I learned that a woman was bawling me out to a whole street car full of folks because of the lack of brains of one of my salesgirls. It seems that this woman had wanted to buy two yards of lace. There were two and a third yards in the piece. The clerk refused to cut off two yards because she said that would leave only a third of a yard, which she couldn't sell to anybody else. The woman contended that she was not going to buy more lace than she wanted; the clerk wouldn't cut the two yards off, so the woman in a great huff left my place and proceeded to tell the world about her grievance. If she had only come to me, or if the clerk had had sense enough to send for me when the matter came up, I would gladly have given the woman the third of a yard rather than send her from my store knocking my business; that's the sort of publicity I'll pay not to get."

It is not fair to the merchant to turn against him because some employe gets off on the wrong foot. The merchant is eager to please his trade. His success depends on pleasing his trade. It is not fair to him not to give him a chance to square himself.

Faith Healing Called Science

MINNEAPOLIS, April 13. (UP)—Faith healing, according to Dr. Charles Bird, professor of psychology at the University of Minnesota, is a form of treatment in which every doctor should be trained. "Faith healing," Dr. Bird said, "is more than the curing of diseases by a gifted healer. It is important today because it is an effective method of removing symptoms of illness found in a large percentage of people who consult physicians."

and sympathy for him in sickness teaches him that personal satisfaction can be derived from illness. Based on Sympathy. "Sympathy for the sick child," he said, "enhances a feeling of worth. Illness often releases him from irksome or unpleasant work. And when he is older the individual tries to escape social responsibilities through formation of dramatic illnesses. But such an individual cannot be accused of deliberate perpetuation of his illnesses. The frequency with which some people have found in illness their chief escape from greater troubles or their chief avenue of satisfaction makes it easy for feigned disorders to pass beyond control. These people now are in reality the victims of their own illnesses. The disorders of these neurotics are not imaginary. Faith Removes Symptoms. "Faith healing includes cures at 'holy wells,' 'holy steps' and pilgrimage shrines. The explanation of these cures lies in the fact that time has a healing effect. None of these people has been really cured. Only the symptoms have been removed. When confidence is shaken or when fear is aroused, such a person relapses. Dr. Bird explained that a great many of the persons who consult physicians are "mentally" ill. And doctors who appreciate this fact prescribe bitter medicines and "sugar pills" of no value in themselves. "Because many patients today are mentally ill," he said, "training in psychiatry should be required of every doctor."

TRAILER ADVENTURE By Nard Jones © 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY. Feeling, with the help of GERRY NEAL, to locate her companion, BETTY HAYNES, advised by JACK SPEDDON, MARTHA BRITAIN starts north up the coast. She faces a critical problem since she is in love with Neal, yet suspects him of being involved in the disappearance of Betty. At a small California border town she suddenly decides to cast love aside in favor of better judgment and she has Neal arrested, charging him with complicity in Betty's disappearance. Then she speeds north to Portland. There she gets a strange note from Betty referring to a "Ciznik in Seattle." Betty tells her that Ciznik is an underworld character and that Betty might have been murdered. Arriving in Seattle, still searching for Betty, Martha gets a letter from the Yukon parking block from MICHAEL SPEDDON, head of the Astoria Trailer Company, instructing her to turn over her equipment to a certain agent who would meet her there. The agent, in disguise, proves to be Speddon. Martha screams but a flash Speddon has struck her. She awakens hours later to find herself bound and gagged, lying on the floor of a dock warehouse. Standing over her is Speddon, who tells her she may see Betty in an hour. and Neal don't. Once I made the mistake of telling him I wanted to get out. "What—what did he say?" "He said I was crazy to talk about leaving it. He said I'd better forget it or he'd mention it to the chief. I'm still afraid he will—but after this job I'm done. We're close to Canada, and that's where I'm heading." MARTHA felt gone, lost. She knew now that she had some- thing to do. She knew that a criminal, that his connection with Speddon and Betty's disappearance was the result of some circumstances over which he had no control. But now here was the truth—Neal was in it with all his heart. Speddon had wanted to go straight, and Neal had fought it. "I don't trust that guy," Speddon went on in the darkness. "I got a hunch he's after me." "But why did you take Betty with you?" "She made a crack that sounded like she knew too much, and I figured it was safer to have her along." Martha set down the thermos with a trembling hand. "But what is all this—this racket? What have I to do with it?" "Plenty," grunted Speddon. "Whether you know it or not." "I've shot off enough. Anyhow, you'll sleep better nights if you don't know what it's all about." Martha knew from his tight tone that he realized he had talked enough—perhaps too much. She had got as much from him as she could. "You've untied my hands," she said. "Would you mind taking the rope off my ankles? It's hurting." "Okay. The boys'll be here any minute now and you'll have to do some walking." Speddon's deft, thin fingers unloosened the rope at her feet. Then Speddon fell utterly silent, smoking in the darkness. Periodically the tip of his cigarette would sear the blackness pitilessly, throw a soft glow on his sallow face. It was plain that he was thinking hard. What manner of man was he, Martha wondered. SUDDENLY, far down at one end of the dock warehouse, there was a sound of a heavy sliding door moving on its rollers. Then the bright rays of a powerful flashlight. "Here's the boys," Speddon said. "Come on." He took Martha by the arm, lifted her to her feet. Her legs and arms stiffened from their long imprisonment, she almost fell to the floor again. The flashlight came on, bathing that isn't saying either that Jack is better than Jim. "I made a great mistake when I moved to this state. I should have remained where I was." Who knows what might have befallen him had he remained where he was? "I've sure played thunder now!" squeaks the fledgling, looking mournfully up at the nest of which he has flopped; but if he had not flopped out of that nest he never would learn to fly. It is a question if one should regret even one's sinful deeds; for they play their part, too, in one's development. Most folks learn by making mistakes; if one has to learn to stand on one's feet through having one's feet slip, then there is no cause to regret the slip. Repent—face about—but don't regret. "I am glad I made love to Bill Jigson's wife and he kicked me down stairs; for that taught me to let other men's wives alone." "I'm glad I stole that man's chicken, and was put on the chain gang, for that taught me never to steal another thing the longest day I live." Men and women waste valuable energy and deaden their spirits and kill hope through regretting this and regretting that and regretting the other thing. Be glad you lost the dime. Some poor devil who

Effect of Sales Tax In Eastland County

Eastland county merchants do a total retail business of $8,441,300 and a 2 per cent sales tax as now proposed in the Texas Legislature would $168,836 from this county while the sales tax burden to be borne by each resident of the county would amount to $4.94 per year. These figures are based on a recent census of the United States Department of Commerce and are contained in an eight page pamphlet, "Texas Taxes, A Suggested Solution," being distributed by Rev. Ernest Stack of Houston, Editor of the Christian American.

ed in the pamphlet include: "A two per cent sales tax will yield $28,652,300 in annual recurring revenue to the State of Texas. The yearly volume of business done by the 70,000 retail establishments of Texas is approximately $1,432,615,000.

"Under a 2 per cent retail sales tax each inhabitant of Texas would be required to pay $4.72 per year. "Sales tax collections per store under a 2 per cent levy would amount to $417.20 annually.

"Forty-five per cent of the sales tax revenue would come from 10 counties in Texas in which the largest cities are located."

Dr. Stack, a well-known Baptist Minister, recently made the public statement that burdensome and excessive taxes were hampering religious activities in Texas.

"Any man or woman who ever served on a Church Finance Committee knows only too well that High Taxes is too often given as the reason for failure to meet obligations to the church," Dr. Stack said.

Eastland Farmers to Inoculate Legumes

A recent survey made among leading farmers in Eastland county by the county agent indicates that there will be an increase of several hundred per cent in 1937 over 1936 of the acreage of cow peas and peanuts which are inoculated before planting by Eastland county farmers.

Cook stated that prior to 1937 only a few scattering farmers in Eastland county made it a practice to inoculate their legume seed before planting. In 1936 12 farmers in the county inoculated their peas and peanuts with inoculant supplied by the county agent.

Some of these farmers got excellent results from the inoculation in that inoculated peas made twice as much vine and one-third more peas than average plants from uninoculated seed.

The big increased interest in inoculating seed in Eastland county this year is due, Cook said, largely to the fact that several merchants in the county have stocked the inoculant and are urging its use.

Eastland county farmers are being told inoculation of legume seed does not take the place of fertilizing the land with commercial fertilizer, however, if seed are properly inoculated, the operation places on the roots of the plant the bacteria which takes nitrogen from the air and puts it in the soil.

Scientists have been urging inoculation of legumes for years, even when

1937 Farm and Range Sign-Up To Close

Sign-up in the 1937 farm program and the 1937 range program will probably be terminated not later than May 1, according to a statement from the county agent.

Eastland county farmers and ranchers who expect to take part in either the farm or range program in 1937 are urged to sign applications and work sheets now and not wait for the last few days rush.

The county agent has announced that work sheets under the farm program can be signed at any time in the county agent's office or at five other places in the county as indicated below:

Each Monday at Rising Star. Each Tuesday at Cisco. Each Wednesday at Carbon. Each Thursday at Gorman. Each Friday at Ranger.

Approximately 400 farmers and 55 ranchers have signed for participation in the program for 1937.

Writer Predicts New Court Line-Up

NEW YORK, April 12—Here's the line-up for the new Supreme Court according to Frederick L. Collins, noted writer: Brandeis, Cardozo, Robinson, Wagner, Rickberg, Frankfurter, Reed, and Landis. Liberals: Hughes and Roberts, middle-of-the-road: Butler, conservative.

McReynolds, Sutherland and Van Leventer will almost surely avail themselves of the opportunity to retire from a situation which they can no longer affect," he writes and adds they will result in a twelve-member Court.

Senators Joe Robinson and Bob Wagner will get the first Presidential nod, surmises Collins, because of their outstanding ability and past loyalty to the Administration.

"I have concluded that Rickberg, Frankfurter, Reed and Landis are the most likely Presidential choices; and that the most likely of all is Don Rickberg." This most likely choice was first counsel and later head of the NRA.

"Frankfurter is no more a Communist than Justice Brandeis is, or than President Roosevelt is; in other words, he is not a Communist at all," Collins declares. "Frankfurter has no wish to return to the public service. But, in this emergency it is the belief that the President will insist and that the professor will accept.

With The Lobos In Spring Drill

Coach Cooper can say in a rhetorical tone that the moral domination thus far has not been lacking. This thought came to the few observers watching the initial spring practice session of the Lobos Monday.

The usual allotment of time has been spent on fundamentals. In other words, after an hour of tackling, passing, etc., the coach started handing out new plans and running them. An indication of interest was the fact that the whole squad of 35 stuck within close hearing and sight, instead of wandering off to loaf around.

The track squad who will turn loose 5 or 6 candidates at the close of the week, is watching most practices, however, in order to keep up with the procession.

The squads and tackling could be seen down the field charging around the goal post shoulder blocking a team-mate standing in a certain position.

The backs would run up to a set of team-mates and pivot away. The backfield lads cultivated the intellectual faculties of reversing the ball from under one arm to the other, sidestepping, punting and kicking goals. The line was given two or one blocking drills. Later the wing-back and end-men teamed up to block a tackle or guard.

One of the stunts Cooper had the boys doing, both linesmen and others, was practicing the rolling block. It was new to most of the boys. The work consists of one man running full tilt at another and diving at his feet in a roll. The other guy jumps in the air and the roller rolls onto his feet and goes after another man. Some of the rollers kept their backs too high or the rollee failed to jump high enough. This is very fortunate for the jumper because he usually lands on his face with his feet in the air.

Because of this and the novelty of it, the squad went after the new workout and liked it.

The squadmen were put through a short drill of the shoulder block, head on tackling and the side body guard.

The squad was divided into two teams for a scrimmage affray. The first team was given the ball for five plays to see what yardage they could make resulting in a touchdown pass and several neat gains by running. The second team made no yardage.

The coach lost no time in starting his 100-yard dashes at the end of the practice session. Bailey nosed out of the 175 pound Harrison in the tackle post and Tipton won his race with the second group of linemen. L. M. Yarbrough won his race in the backfield, and this boy, Yarbrough, after fretting a month in anticipation of the beginning of training, has showed his speed and stamina for a starting berth at quarterback besides being a tower of strength and defense. The work of Reams has impressed the Coach with his passing and kicking.

The entire practice Tuesday afternoon was made up of scrimmage games. The workout proved successful except for bruises and skinned noses.

Poison Effective Against Rabbits

Replies received by the county agent from 12 farmers who have recently used poisoned grain in rabbit control indicates that this method of controlling jack rabbits is effective if properly used, and a very inexpensive method.

The county agent recently supplied 33 farmers in the county with a total of 100 pounds of poisoned grain to determine whether rabbits will take this type of bait. At the end of the week those farmers who answered a questionnaire sent by the county agent stated that they had found an average of 12 rabbits which had been killed and had no way of estimating the number of rabbits which were killed but not found.

Poisoned grain for rabbit control can be obtained from the county agent's office, Eastland, with instructions for its use.
