ENTIRE SCHOOL FACULTY RE-ELECTED

SCHOOL BOARD SAYS WORK IS SATISFACTORY

In a sweeping act that covered the entire city school system last night, the school board adopted the recommendation of the committee on teachers and that of the superintendent, by re-electing the teacher staff for the school year 1937-38 at the same wage scale, subject to assignment by the superintendent. The school board placed its check on the work done by the teaching faculty for the entire school system last night by electing all teachers for the next term. Superintendent coaches and all principals had been re-elected at a former meeting. The work of teachers of communities that affiliated with Cisco schools this year, was found to be very satisfactory and the board gladly tendered them their places again, subject to re-making of contracts between the communities and the Cisco district. "Obviously," said Frank Walker of the school board, "if these communities do not choose to bring their pupils to Cisco again next term we would have no place for the teachers but their work was entirely satisfactory and their re-election was heartily recommended."

It was emphasized that all teachers were employed subject to assignment and their pay will be according to the scale applying to the place to which they are assigned for work.

Cisco schools have made marked progress this year in all departments. Superintendent, principals, faculty and board have acted in harmony and have displayed a vision commendable in planning and executing all educational work. The winnings in educational activities have emphasized the quality of teaching done. With no break in the

Cleo Everton Shoots Wife and Kills Self

SHOOTS WIFE AGAIN ON WAY TO HOSPITAL

Special to Daily News.
EASTLAND, April 20—Murder and suicide were written Tuesday into the Monday night deaths of 26-year-old Cleo Everton and his wife, Opal, 19, at their farm home five miles south of Eastland. Justice of Peace E. E. Wilson, Eastland, who conducted the inquest, at 10 o'clock Monday night, two hours after the death, rendered the verdict that the man shot his wife and then himself. From testimony delivered at the inquest, it was theorized Everton shot his wife to whom he had been married two years in February, in their bedroom.

Lived On Jones Farm
R. L. Jones, former county clerk, and his wife, upon whose land Everton resided, came to the vicinity of the young couple's home when they heard the sound of confusion. According to Jones, Mrs. Everton was being put into a car. Jones had offered to take her to a hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Jones were returning to their residence when the other automobile, a model Ford coupe, with pick-up bed, stopped and three shots were fired. When the Jones arrived Everton was at one side and his wife on the other. It was theorized Everton took his wife's body from the car, laid her upon the ground, and shot her a second time when he became suspicious that she was dying. Also it was believed in Everton's nervousness.

CROPS, RANGE AND GARDENS GET MOISTURE

A one-inch rain fell in Cisco last night that will be worth thousands of dollars to farmers, ranchers and gardeners over the section which had almost reached the point where they must have rain or suffer big losses, especially on small grain, which needed moisture to hold the growth that had been made. Some land had not yet been prepared, corn and early feed that had been planted was not up in many cases and where sprouting had been made, lack of moisture was checking growth. Gardens were suffering for water where irrigation could not be had. Grass was short in heavily grazed sections. But with the precipitation which seems to be general over the south plains will be of vast benefit to grain and range. Dust storms in the making will be arrested and a general optimism will pervade those sections.

Ranges, crops and gardens in the South Plains area received beneficial moisture yesterday and last night as rains varying from slight showers to downpours descended. The precipitation region extended west from Wichita and Young counties.

Scattered reports of rain came in from over West Texas last night, with heaviest precipitation reported at Haskell, Rule and Wink. A light shower began falling in Abilene a few minutes before midnight.

An estimated 85 inch of rain fell at Haskell, with several hard showers coming before nightfall. At Rule rain was reported heavier. Heavy rains fell much of the night at Wink, and it was raining heavily in Big Spring late last night. Monday also reported light precipitation.

POST, April 20—Rain varying from one-half an inch to one and three-quarters inches fell over Garza County today. Range grass

DRY ELECTION ORDERED TO BE HELD ON MAY 1

Commissioners court Monday morning at Eastland granted the petitions of 799 citizens and set Saturday, May 1, for a county-wide election to determine whether all liquors shall be prohibited for sale.

The petitions were presented through the United Dry Forces of Eastland County. Among representatives of the dry forces presenting the petitions to commissioners were G. M. Meglason, Cisco, president, and Rev. Robert E. Bowden, Eastland, secretary-treasurer.

The petitions, addressed to the court, said in part: "We the undersigned qualified voters of Eastland county, Texas, being not less than 10 per cent of the votes cast for governor in the last preceding election of Eastland county, Texas, do hereby respectfully petition your honorable court to order an election in Eastland county, Texas, for the purpose of determining whether or not the sale of all liquors shall be prohibited in Eastland county, Texas.

A heavy survey of the petitions disclosed possibly the largest number of signers were from Cisco. It was figured 542 petition signers would have been minimum number to call the election, which mandate of the commissioners court.

According to legal opinion of the court, if the proposition carries the sale of malt and vinous beverages, now legal, would be prohibited and should the proposition fail then the present arrangement would continue.

A year ago Sunday the county voted for legalization of 14 per cent malt and vinous beverages. The April election last year following one in January in which sale of 32 beverages was defeated. The January election was necessary because of a November 1935, ruling of the Supreme Court that a wet precinct can not exist in a county dry, as had existed prior to the high court's opinion.

Spring and Softball

The crack of a bat on a ball is the favorite spring song of many Americans. Boys may be seen over the town in groups playing ball—Sunday mornings before Sunday school you will see the youngsters, dressed and ready but snatching a few moments for a game. In the afternoons after school, knots of boys and even girls may be seen arranged in regular order and playing the game.

It is a healthful recreation, for both boys and girls. Some say it will make the girls too rough. Perhaps so. If it does, then it is up to some counteraction force to gentle them up again. But girls love to play ball and vie with the boys of their class in running, catching and even batting. We saw some girls knocking the ball further than some of the business men were able to do. But it is spring and baseball is here. Who is going to say them nay?

Baseball is a great game, but now a new game, softball, has come to the front. A softball field is much smaller than a baseball diamond, having a 60-foot base line with a pitching distance of 40 feet. Those who are too young or old to chase long flies or throw curves now have a chance to get in on the fun. A vacant lot or the cow pasture is just the place for a merry game. Softball is here to stay; it is less expensive than baseball, a larger ball is used (12-inch), and gloves and masks are not necessary. A softball team has ten players, there being four fielders. A regulation game consists of seven innings. Bunting, fouls, strikes, outs, etc. are the same as in baseball.

Many big league baseball players got their start playing in the back pastures. Who knows but you may play with the Dizzy Deans and Lon Warnecks of tomorrow.

The South's Lopsidedness

It is high time to get away from all the lopsidedness that has so long held back the south.

- 1. We have depended too much on brawn and not enough on brain, too much on muscle and not enough on mind. 2. We have developed too much on agriculture and not enough on industry. 3. We have depended too much on plant production and not enough on animal production. 4. We have depended too much on making money and not enough on saving money.

5. We have depended too much on education to fit for economic independence and the enrichment of life. 6. We have depended too much on our relatively small wealthier classes to make the South prosperous and not enough on the development and improvement of the vastly larger numbers of all our disadvantaged classes.

Only by getting away from all such lopsidedness and laying an infinitely broader and sounder foundation can we have a genuinely great and prosperous South, freed from the handicaps under which all classes of Southern people now suffer.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON — Roosevelt's chief purpose in his recent statement as to "inflationary" prices of steel, copper, and other basic products was to serve notice that the administration would not stand idly by and see prices run properly.

The promise that the government would curtail expenditures for purchase of durable goods, and emphasize expenditures which would be reflected in consumer goods purchases, was the first official step toward forestalling the economic collapse which many believe is threatened by the rising price level. Almost certainly, there will be other steps taken.

Aside from the obvious effect of the promise, it was also meant as a reassurance to business. When in doubt as to whether prices will keep on going up, many are accustomed to buy ahead, thereby accelerating prices to an extent which would have been avoided had they purchased normally.

Last month this writer outlined a 10-point plan which had been proposed by administration economists to put the brakes on disastrous price inflation. The President has now moved on one front, then described as "pressure" through allocation of government purchases.

Other points, it may be interesting to recall, proposed federal action against monopolies and collusive bidding; selective taxation on profits; patent law revision; encouragement of consumer co-operatives; tariff reductions and government yardstick production to keep down prices of things the government buys.

Perhaps you overlooked it, but the Federal Trade Commission has just ordered General Electric, Westinghouse and two other companies to cease price fixing with respect to turbine generators. It has also entered a price fixing

OUT OUR WAY

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY

We Need Diversified Industry

Governor Charles Aycock of North Carolina used to say that perhaps the chief reason the South is poor is that we are taking the labor of our people at 50 cents to $1 a day in things we sell and exchanging it for labor of Northern people at $3 to $5 a day in things we buy. Cheap labor is an economic curse. We need both better educational and vocational training for all our people, white and black, on Southern farms, and we need ten times as much vocational training to provide both skilled workers for existing factories and to set up new industries. Dr. Charles H. Herty's monumental work in showing our people how to make paper from pine will bring many millions of new money to the South and should be followed by many small industries of all kinds. As Walter W. Liggitt wrote recently in Scribner's:—

The only real hope . . . is to establish packing plants, canneries, cooperative creameries, factories to make paper and fiber board, and distilleries to render industrial alcohol from waste farm products, in the heart of the agricultural West and South so that the sons and daughters of farmers may have gainful employment close to their homes, and also be available for work on the farms during the height of the seasonal activity.

Failing, with the help of GERRY NEAL, to locate her companion, BETTY HAYNES, abducted by JACK SPEDDON, MARTHA BRITAIN starts north from San Francisco on the west coast and suddenly she decides, even though she loves Neal, that he is implicated in Betty's disappearance. So she has him arrested.

Arriving in Seattle, still in search of Betty, Martha is abducted by Speddon, who proves to be an agent for JOHNNY CIZNIK, underworld character. Eventually Martha finds herself aboard Ciznik's ship. Then it is that she learns she and Betty have been the innocent victims of a gigantic dope ring, whose leaders wanted to try out a new recipe as a narcotic conveyor and used the girls to make the test.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIV

MARTHA screamed, opened her eyes again. But it was not Ciznik who had fired. His revolver clattered to the floor, and he stood there clutching his right wrist and rocking with the sudden pain. Suddenly the room was filled with men, all struggling around Ciznik and Ling.

A young coast guard officer shoved through the mob. "Take them aboard," he ordered, and came toward the two women. "Are you all right?"

"Y-yes," said Martha weakly. "I'm Lieutenant Howison. We didn't know you girls were aboard here or we wouldn't have got so rough on them." Quickly he loosened the rope which Ling had bound them. "We'll take care of you. There's a doctor aboard."

Howison's men made fast work of sending Ciznik and the Oriental along the passageway. With the officer between them, Martha and Betty followed, both glad for his firm assistance.

On deck the confusion had subsided. Ciznik's men were meekly transferring to the coast guard. An officer and crew were making ready to take over the smuggling ship. Suddenly Martha stopped dead still, her face growing paler than before.

"What's wrong?" Howison asked. She rubbed a trembling hand over her damp forehead. "Nothing. I'm all right now." She had seen Gerry Neal, unmistakably, aboard the coast guard cutter! His presence among Ciznik's men was not what had struck her motionless. But rather it was the hurting thought that not once had he tried to help her, even make her more comfortable. Not once had he owned the courage to face her at last, and admit the truth.

Suddenly she felt herself leaning too heavily against the young officer. "I—I think I'm going to faint . . ."

"FEELING better now, Mart?" It was Betty, sitting on the edge of her berth. Martha saw the port hole above her and sprang from the pillow. "Betty! Betty, we're not back on that—"

"No . . ." Betty pushed her gently back. "We're on Uncle Sammy's ship this time, heading for Seattle. And friend Ciznik and his playboys are in the brig, or so Lieutenant Howison says." Betty grinned infectiously. "He's nice, isn't he?"

"I—I was too scared to notice." "Well," Betty told her, "you should have stayed on your feet and you'd have had time to notice!"

"How long have I been here?" "We've been under way an hour. The doctor says you're okay. You came to once, and he gave you a sedative. While you've been snoozing I've been having dinner in the officers' quarters. Hungry?"

"Sort of." "The cook's keeping something for you. I—" She was interrupted by a polite knock on the door. It was Lieutenant Howison.

"How are you by this time?" He smiled pleasantly, set his neat officer's cap on the table. "Much better," Martha told him. "Sorry to go out on you like that."

"You should get him to tell you what we were up against," Betty suggested. "Probably Miss Brittain doesn't want to hear about it right now." "I do, though," Martha assured him.

"WELL . . . the fact is that you girls found yourselves right in the wind-up of a case the T-men have been working on a long time."

"T-men?" "Yes. Treasury Department men—customs agents. We were just helping them out on this little deal. Ciznik has had a syndicate for the past 10 or 11 years, I'm told. It stretched all up and down the coast, and back into Chicago and Detroit. He had the idea to really go in for transporting quantities of dope—with trailer-caravans. He figured they would not be regarded with suspicion, and they wouldn't be running afoul of the truck legislation and license laws in all the various states. Also, he figured they'd be big enough to carry other stuff, too. Unstamped liquor. Maybe bring aliens into the industrial centers. Oh, he was going to go in for it on a big scale."

"That was the trouble," Betty mentioned. "He got too darned big."

"That's right. You see, what he didn't realize when he started all this new idea was that one of the T-men had been working a long time right in his syndicate. His name was Guy Weeks, and he'd even taken a Chinese blood oath with some of Ciznik's Chinese gang, so he could get more information."

"But if this T-man knew all about Ciznik why didn't they get him long ago?" Howison shrugged. "If they'd shot too soon they wouldn't have been able to clean up the whole mess. This was a big thing, you know. There were more than 200 customs men all over the country closing in on it, and several score border patrol agents were transferred to the coast to help trap the opium smuggling rings that Ciznik had built up. Then the coast guard came into the picture. This boat was sent around from the east coast to replace a slower cutter. We didn't even know why ourselves until now."

"YOU should see the opium Ciznik had aboard!" Betty exclaimed. Martha nodded. "I did see some of it. Why is it put into cans filled with flour?" "That's to keep it dry," Howison told her. "You see, the opium smuggling liners from the Orient toss the stuff overboard in sacks tied with cork floats. At the top of the sack is a flashlight sealed in a bottle. Then the faster, smaller boats, like Ciznik's, come along the steamer lanes and pick the stuff up. They transfer it to shore where Ciznik planned to transport it all over the country."

Martha looked at Betty. "If ever we get to the old home town again will never leave, will we?" "Don't say that," Howison went on quickly. "Miss Haynes has promised to come to Seattle again next summer, after I've done Alaska duty . . . Anyhow, you can't leave the coast right away. You may have to stay to give some evidence—and you're both going to have dinner with me ashore."

Martha smiled. "Isn't three a crowd?" (To Be Concluded)

LIQUOR INDUSTRY FACES CRISIS, SELF-POLICING NECESSARY, SAYS FEDERAL ADMINISTRATOR

By ALLEN DIBBLE
Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP)—Federal Alcohol Administrator W. S. Alexander of the alcoholic beverage industry today said it is necessary to police itself so rigidly that it is unnecessary to have federal and state control.

complaints have, it seems, largely grown up around the taproom and tavern," said Alexander. "There we find a scene that is entirely new in American life—women and young girls drinking at the bar, women and young girls soliciting trade, and women and young girls serving customers.

CKLES and His FRIENDS — By Blosser

if it is not corrected will be visited with a terrible punishment. "A wise policy would be for the industry to police itself so rigidly as to weed out all these offensive practices and thus make it unnecessary to strengthen federal and state control," the administrator declared.

Retailer Represents Industry
Alexander said that because the retailer of alcoholic beverages comes directly in contact with the public he is considered the liquor industry by "those who seek to cure these social evils by legislation and by ballot, rather than by the old-age plan of education."

The administrator said a group of "liberal in views and tolerant in sympathies" had complained that the price of liquor is too high. "Naturally, when there was a small quantity of spirits on hand to meet the large consumptive demand, the price was as high as the traffic would bear," he said.

Vast Quantities In Storage
"But this is not the case now. There is an enormous quantity of spirits in storage. Distilleries are turning out 20,000,000 gallons a month and the public is consuming only 6,000,000 gallons.

Denying that taxes imposed on liquor caused the continued high price, Alexander said a high "mark-up" on alcoholic beverages is necessary to enable the retail trade, described as "an over-stuffed branch of the industry," to stay in business, under the standardized price system.

Fewer Outlet Stores Likely
"To save the industry from a severe blow," he said, "I confidently look to some system to be evolved which will reduce the number of retail outlets and thereby cut down the price of liquor."

Alexander said the Federal Alcohol Administration believes that "a heavy advertising expense is also laying an excessive toll on the consumer."

PWA RECLAIMS NEW ORLEANS' HISTORIC AREA

By EDWARD WALDO
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS, April 20 (AP)—The city's first apartment buildings, constructed by a Spanish nobleman nearly 100 years ago and once temporary residence of the heir to the throne of France, have been reclaimed through a WPA project and once more are a show-place of the city.

For the past four years the WPA in conjunction with the city, has been repairing the Pontalba buildings with manpower lent by the government and materials bought by the city. Nearly a quarter of a million dollars has been spent on reconditioning the buildings. Workmen have recaptured much of the old charm of the structures, yet have installed every modern convenience.

Daughter Yielded Title
Although the old Don gave many buildings to New Orleans, his daughter, Micela, surpassed him after his death by presenting the people of New Orleans all rights, titles and claims to the city and its government, thus relinquishing the title.

he said. "To control that we have adopted certain restrictive regulations to prevent deception of the consuming public.

"We have no authority to prevent or curtail the use of advertising matter which, while informative to the consumer, is offensive to the general public. "In view of the present lack of federal power to deal with all objectionable advertising practices the industry and state enforcement officials are invited to give careful thought to the formulation of a program for the elimination of all offensive advertising," he said.

held by her father as Perpetual Rigidor and Royal Alferez. But if Micela's gift has been forgotten among the old archives in the Cabildo, which faces the Place d'Armes, visitors recall it in the beautiful iron tracery on the balconies of the Pontalba, whose medallions present the scroll initials of Micela Almonster and her husband, the Marquis de Pontalba. Ten years after building the Pontalba, the couple sailed away to France, never to return. European heirs, through their agents, sold the buildings to local philanthropists, who gave one to the city and one to the state.

In place of total disrepair and dilapidation the 77 apartments of the building given to the city have been restored. Marble mantles, many of them stolen or broken were repaired, replaced or copied by WPA workmen on the premises. Some apartments are even being furnished with period furniture.

After its heyday the building finally succumbed to the gradual decline of the neighborhood. Families numbering as many as 15 often lived in one room.

Strange Conditions Found
Repairing the structure has been only one item. Eviction of the tenants was a problem. One man hadn't been out of his room in 10 years. He was so fat that the door frame had to be removed before he could leave. Another family had taken a calf to the third floor of the building and it grew to a full sized cow. The aged tenant of 40 years finally was evicted. Workmen found tons of garbage in her attic apartment. It had been deposited there by the women over a period of nearly 50 years.

Now, all but two apartments have been replaced. Silver door-knobs, so crusted with paint that vandals didn't bother to steal them, shine anew. Marble floors have been replaced and coved ceilings remodeled.

Seeking Mayor at $1.92 Weekly Wage

VIENNA, W. Va. (AP)—This Ohio River town is looking for a mayor who will be satisfied with a salary of about $1.92 a week. Town councilmen receive no pay.

A splendid program is assured those who attend the performance. Several solos, duets, quartets, mixed numbers, and others will be a part of the program. Miss Lucile Robinson, and Miss Ella Andrus are sponsors of these clubs and have done some fine work with their material. Hit By Automobile; Dies in Hospital

GREENVILLE, April 20 (U.P.)—Clarence Pippett, 14, living near Commerce, died in a hospital here today after he was struck by an automobile as he stepped from a bus.

Shoots Wife

ness, he shot a bullet from his pistol which lodged in the steering wheel. Also evident to authority, was that he shot himself and laid upon the ground at the opposite side of the auto from which his wife was found. Pistol was shoved partially in his hand. Five empty cartridges were found, four were in the pistol and another in the bedroom of the Everson home. Blood was found spattered in the room.

The first shot, according to investigating officials, was fired into Mrs. Everson's body slightly below the breast bone, the second, believed to have been fired at the car, was through the breast in the region of the heart. The first shot went through her body.

Everson was shot through his breast, the fifth cartridge was unaccounted for. The husband was clad in overalls and wore no shoes, hat, socks, or shirt. His wife wore a silk slip and a smock, similar to the type used in a peanut plant at which she had formerly worked.

Jones' Testimony
The testimony of Jones, at the inquest was: "About 8 p. m. I heard his wife, Opal, scream and my wife and I ran to his home and upon our arrival he told us, Opal had shot herself; he had been there at the time. I offered to take her to the hospital and Opal told Cleo that he had promised to take her to town and 'Now take me.' I then left her and him and his car and walked back to my house and he started around the road to my house, before he got there he stopped his car and I heard three shots fired. I then went to this place (Jones' farm and home) and found Opal on the right side of his car. He was lying on the south side with a gun or pistol nearby. They were both partially dressed, underwear only. He had on overalls, I saw the gun near the last place of the shooting. It was a 32-20. It had four empty shells in it and we found one empty shell at the place where he had put her in his car near his residence. I had understood that they had domestic trouble and on two occasions about 2 or 3 months ago, he went from his home and was gone some two weeks at a time. It is my opinion that he first shot her and decided to take his own life. He was shot through the heart and his wife shot twice either of which being fatal and could have caused almost instant death."

Everton Farm Laborer
Everson was a farm laborer and friends said the farmer worked for Jones in return for rent. The couple had one child which died.
Burial of the husband and wife will be at 4 o'clock Wednesday in Simpson cemetery in Kokomo.

Mrs. Everson is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Hooper of Kokomo; four brothers, Audrey, Gorman; Elton, Arizona; Jiggs, Breckenridge; Jack, Kokomo; and three sisters, Nellie, Bobbie and Betty Sue of Kokomo.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Everson of Kokomo; three brothers, Lois, Kokomo; Cyrus of Eastland and Elvin of Kokomo; five sisters, Mrs. C. E. Goodwin of Gorman, Miss Johnson of Flatwood; Mrs. Lewis Fagin of Carbon; Edna Everson of Kokomo and Nunial Lee of Kokomo.
