LOBO BAND WORKING TO WIN SPECIAL TRIP TO OKLAHOMA

Bandmaster Maddox and his Lobos are practicing day and night preparatory to attending the Lubbock band tournament Friday and Saturday of this week, with the intention of making winnings that will allow them to participate in the National band tournament at Oklahoma City May 10. The Lions agreed to sponsor the trip for the Lobos with a special train to the national music fiesta should their performance at Lubbock entitle them to the trip. The Lions club agreeing that a special for the Lobos from Cisco would be a big publicity for their home city and would lend encouragement to the local band members to strut their stuff at Lubbock. A dispatch from Lubbock has this to say regarding preparations for the event by Director D. O. Wiley and his co-workers: "School musicians from 50 counties of the Western Texas School band and orchestra association are expected here this week end to participate in the ninth annual contests. Advance registrations indicate that more than 40 bands and orchestras would take part in the competition which will last through Saturday night. The registrations indicate that over 2,500 students will be here, according to O. O. Wiley, general director of the contests, and band director of Texas Tech. "Those chosen as judges for the band contests will be: Herbert L. Clarke, the 'crowned Prince' of John Phillip Sousa fame and now director of the Long Beach California Municipal Band; Earl D. Irons, director, North Texas Agricultural College; L. M. Calavan, Oklahoma City Central High; Milburn E. Carey, Phillips University and Ellis B. Hall, Amarillo Academy of music. "A parade composed of 25 bands will be staged downtown Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and the marching contests will be conducted on Tech's athletic field in the evening, and later the contestants will be guests at a spring football game between Texas Mines of El Paso and Tech. "Saturday afternoon, massed bands will rehearse at Senior High school, starting at 4:15 o'clock, and at 8 o'clock the several hundred selected musicians will join in perhaps the most colorful event of the entire tournament, a public concert at the auditorium."

BAPTISTS ADD 47 WITH TOTAL 62 AS RESULT

The First Baptist revival enjoyed a great day Sunday under the leadership of Dr. E. S. James and the preaching Evangelist, J. B. Grant of San Angelo Park Heights church. Forty-two conversions and additions to the church were made at the two Sunday services, bringing the total conversions and additions for the meeting to 62. The largest crowd attended the evening service of this church, excepting a funeral of some unusual special occasion. Rev. Grant was in good form at both services Sunday, speaking of heaven at the morning service in his deep, resonant voice and fluent delivery. His sparkling personality entered into the dynamic sermon that held his audience attentive and pliant to his words. "Prepare to Meet Thy God" was the sermon topic Sunday night at which time the house was packed, necessitating the opening up of the lower auditorium to its fullest capacity. Many visitors from other churches of the city and from surrounding towns were in attendance at both services. Forty-seven additions to the church with an additional 15 conversions not added to any church to date, is the total visible result at present. The revival will continue through next Sunday with the same schedule of hours. Baptism will be administered to the candidates at the close of the services this evening. FOUR PEOPLE DEAD; CAUSED FROM THREAT

PITTSBURGH, Pa., 26 (AP)—An April flood again imperiled the tri-state area of Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia today. Mountain streams, fed by heavy rains and snows, poured torrents of water into the tributaries of the great Ohio river. Three railroad section gang workers were struck and killed by a train. A Johnstown, Pa. woman died of a heart attack induced by fright over the rising flood waters. Principal cities threatened by the sudden rise were Johnstown, Pittsburgh, Wheeling, W. Va. and Cumberland, Md. Rivers and creeks in western Pennsylvania, the "storehouse" of the flood, rose at an unusually rapid rate. In Pittsburgh the Ohio rose nearly six inches an hour. The rain followed continuous rains for 36 hours and snow to the depth of five inches in the Pennsylvania mountains.

Man Takes Own Life With Pocket Knife

Justice Joe Wilson rendered a verdict of "Death by his own hand by stabbing with a pocket knife," in the case of J. B. Cochran, 61, who was found stabbed to death on a pallet at the home occupied by himself and brother today. Mr. Wilson was called to Nimrod this morning to view the body of Mr. Cochran who, his brother, C. B. Cochran, said he found stabbed to death on his pallet at an early hour this morning. The brother said he went a call his brother to breakfast at about 6:30 and found him dead. A pocket knife was at his side and he had been stabbed through the heart. The blade was about 3 inches long. Funeral arrangements await the arrival of another brother. These men lived alone.

MAN HELD FOR HOMICIDE IN MERCY DEATH

SAN ANTONIO, April 26 (AP)—William Rittel, 26 of Randolph Field faced federal charges of involuntary homicide today in the alleged "mercy death" of Lieutenant John Poole, April 17. Arraigned before U. S. Com. P. A. Lockhart, Rittel declined to enter a plea. He was held in jail in lieu of $2,500 bond. Poole died in his quarters at Randolph Field after Rittel, who was chauffeur for the officer and his wife, allegedly gave him two injections of morphine to relieve pain caused by an intestinal infection. An autopsy revealed an intestinal obstruction which probably would have caused Poole's death within a few days, army physicians said. Rittel admitted to officers that he suggested that Poole take morphine to alleviate the pain in his abdomen. The officer agreed and asked Rittel to inject the drug in his arm. Specific charges state that Rittel, while practicing medicine without a license, involuntarily caused Poole's death. Miss Iris Graham of Abilene spent Sunday here, guests in the home of relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Homer Ferguson were Sunday visitors in Brownwood, guests of relatives.

Cisco's Social Activities Full

This week and the weeks following are full one's for Ciscoans. It would seem that a little town the size of Cisco should have plenty of opportunity to attend all functions that might be scheduled and then have a little time to spare for neighboring calls in the evening, or to take in the theatres without missing the special events. But not so. If one will glance at the dates listed here, it will be easy to see how full the program would be if one tried to attend them all.

To begin with the theatres play every night and the churches have their weekly meetings that are standing in the calendar for every week. The Baptists are continuing the revival services each morning and evening through this week. Harley Sadler, whose name is synonymous with good, clean entertainment in the tent show world, is here tonight for a one-night stand. Tuesday evening the Jaycees stage another of their good will community soft ball games at Dan Horn and will enjoy a pie supper to follow.

Friday the band will be in Lubbock with 50 members at least, trying for the honors of national music attendance. Friday night West Ward gives their play which will be pulling the attention of the parents of around 500 students, teachers and their families. Backing up to April 28, five girls and Miss Martha Graves of the Homemaking class will be pointing to the rally at Fort Worth. May 3 will witness the All-Schools community program at the high school auditorium, which is free. Since all children of the city take part in that program it will be rather hard to get an audience anywhere else at that date.

May 7 is the big visitation day, basket dinner and program which includes the address of Attorney General McCraw, an orator of ability.

Then quickly follows Senior play May 14; Junior-Senior banquet May 21; Ex-Student banquet May 27; Baccalaureate Sermon, May 30, with graduation June 1.

Now throw in a lot of other dates and events that we have omitted at the spur of the moment and you can see what a full program is shown by this cross section of Cisco's activities throughout the month of May.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The chief lessons our own military experts have learned from the warfare in Spain have to do with psychology and morale. Although it has sometimes been said that Spain has become a proving ground for the armies of the world and their weapons of death, army officers here say little if anything new has been learned about those weapons or their relative effectiveness.

But it has been demonstrated at Madrid that terrific bombardments from the air do not necessarily demoralize a civilian population, even if carried on for months. On the contrary, it is pointed out informally at the War Department, bombardment appears to have stiffened the morale of the Madrid population by intensifying the anger of the people.

Madrid is the first large city ever to sustain such a severe attack from the air and it was never possible to be sure as to these points before. The effect might have been different had the poison gas bombs been dropped, but the experts here say poison gas is not very effective in a city, that it is hard for planes to achieve concentration in a gas bombardment and that it is relatively easy for citizens of a city to protect themselves from gas. These considerations, rather than any of humanity, are believed to explain the failure to drop gas on Madrid.

On the other hand, the apparently low morale of Italian troops in Spain when under severe attack has also impressed American military strategists. It is believed that Mussolini failed to "whoop them up" with the proper amount of emotion and war hysteria, that they found themselves on foreign soil without conviction that they were fighting for a holy cause of any sort and that this lack of a proper admixture of bitterness, zeal and patriotism helps explain their willingness to retreat when fighting became fierce. The Spanish loyalist troops, on the other hand, have been imbued with hatred and the conviction that they were fighting for their lives, home and freedom against an invader.

STRESSING the fact that the Spanish war would be much more instructive if one strong power were fighting another and each was using its best men and materials, general staff officers nevertheless are insistent that it has demonstrated their contention that airplanes, tanks, artillery machine guns and all new or improved wrinkles of warfare are simply auxiliaries to infantry. No territory or strategic point can be captured or held without an adequate force of infantry, they point out, and the Spanish war has shown no change in infantry tactics. Mechanized units, meaning tanks or other armed and armored vehicles, are said not to have proved especially effective, although they're far speedier and more deadly than they were in the World War.

Italian bombers have been conspicuous, but Russian pursuit planes have done the most outstanding work. The latter appear to be a combination of pursuit and attack plane. "Hodge-hopping" and spraying ground troops with machine gun fire, they have proved that this method of warfare can be extremely effective either in delaying reinforcements or in actual attack when supported by infantry.

Also noteworthy, according to our army men, are the Spanish government's 20 millimeter machine guns which can fire 200 shots a minute and are said to be capable of penetrating tanks. (Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.)

SYBIL HENDRY, socialite, John Hendry's niece and Joan's rival in love.
PHILIP HENDRY, Sybil's brother.
DOROTHY STARKE, Joan's childhood friend.
CHARLES NORTON, California mining promoter.

Yesterday Sybil learns that Joan once worked in Chicago and promptly she seizes that as a starting point from which to check Joan's past.

CHAPTER V

IT was almost midnight when Sybil returned to her own home. She had left her uncle in a particularly jovial frame of mind, and she felt certain that he would relent in the matter of Philip. She decided to wait up an hour or so, in case her brother did get home that night. It would not do for him to believe that she had let him down, because she meant to have him do something for her.

As a matter of fact, she rarely failed him. Philip was extravagant, impetuous and utterly irresponsible, yet he had a certain reckless charm which compelled her admiration. It might have been that she understood his faults because the same desires smoldered within her. If she were better able to control them than he was, it was because she viewed the world's tolerance with more calculation.

There was Uncle John, for one thing. Despite the trust fund which her father had left them, Uncle John was still an economic necessity, and his principles must be appeased. That task Sybil took unto herself and she handled it well.

Jennings, the butler, looked in to the living room. "I put your car in the garage, Miss Sybil," he announced sedately. "Will there be anything else?" "No, Jennings, nothing more." She picked up a magazine and settled herself on the divan. "By the way, did my brother call while I was out?"

"No, Miss Sybil. There were no calls."

"Thank you. Don't bother with the lights. I'm staying up a while."

"Very well, Miss Sybil." He withdrew quietly, leaving an oppressive stillness about the room. Sybil turned the pages of the magazine listlessly and listened to the hall clock tick off the seconds. The house seemed chilly, she thought.

Shortly before one o'clock Sybil heard Philip turn in at the driveway. She went to the window, watched him put the car in the garage, and heard him slam the doors violently. Evidently his day in jail had not left him in a very bright frame of mind. She hurried to the front door to let him in. She wished she had asked Jennings to prepare some sort of a supper. In all probability Philip hadn't eaten all day. However, she could fix up something for him.

"Philip," Sybil pursued tactfully, "I'll make a bargain with you." He looked at her suspiciously. "What is it?"

"I didn't know a thing about it until this evening, Philip. Why didn't you call me instead of Uncle John?" "I didn't call anybody. Those silly cops went through my pockets, I suppose, and found his card. Then the opportunity of talking to the great John Hendry was too much for them to pass up. I don't know what he told them, but today they wouldn't let me make another call."

"Sybil helped him out of his coat. 'Did you have anything to eat?' she asked solicitously.

"Eat! Don't be silly. Why would I want to eat that tripe they hand out?"

"Come on, then. I'll find you something." She led the way toward the kitchen. "I need a drink first," he grumbled. "All right." She opened cupboard doors, brought out a few dishes. "Where does Jennings keep the Scotch?" she asked.

"First shelf, at the right," Philip offered. Sybil took it down, poured out a generous portion, then went to the refrigerator for ice cubes. "Here's almost a whole chicken," she observed, and a bottle of milk. Want me to make coffee, Philip?" "No. I'll take the milk. Got any tomato juice?" "Half a jar of it, all nicely chilled."

Philip's good humor faded. "Don't talk Uncle John to me tonight," he snapped. "I'm getting fed up with his interference. I don't need him telling me how to live."

Sybil sighed. "That's just the trouble, Philip. We do need him, very badly. I've a stack of bills now that are two months overdue. And I hate to remind you—"

"Don't bother! I remember, well enough. Sam Bowser has my I.O.U. for two thousand and he's getting nasty about it. Well, let me handle Sam Bowser."

Sybil shrugged, eloquently. Philip couldn't handle Sam Bowser, and she knew it as well as he did. And if Sam Bowser went to Uncle John, it would be difficult. "Philip," Sybil pursued tactfully, "I'll make a bargain with you." He looked at her suspiciously. "What is it?"

About Our Friends—

something to be said in favor of the procedure; but the cold, bald facts are that he cannot gain anything and he may lose everything.

A FRIEND of mine found his business getting ahead of him so he began to work nights to catch up. He continued to fall behind; then he worked Sundays. Still his work crept ahead of him. After this had gone on for a while my friend made a discovery. He found that in spite of his night and Sunday efforts he was not turning out any more work than when he had put in eight or nine hours a day six days a week, for through placing that heavy strain on himself he had reduced his capacity to turn out work; he had so slowed down his speed that it was necessary for him to work all day and every evening and every Sunday in order to accomplish as much as he had previously accomplished during legitimate business hours. As soon as my friend came to these conclusions he immediately took a vacation and rested up, and hired enough help so that he could leave his office when the whistle blew.

WILLIAM Jennings Bryan used to say that he always rested before he got tired. Perhaps that was the reason he was able to hold the world record for running for the Presidency of the United States.

Cisco Scouts Have Merry Picnic Day

By TOMMY LA MORE
Troop 101 of the Cisco Boy and Girl Scouts enjoyed a trip to Lake Cisco Saturday where they engaged in merry making of different kinds. Several boat rides were taken by the scouts who were lucky enough to find loose boats around the upper end of the lake. Several races were staged in boats with many of the girls engaging in them. A close game of baseball was played by boys and girls and the game was declared a draw. Mr. Ralph Barton was chief cook and was assisted by Mrs. Barton and Miss Ida Mae Collins, who had the dinner ready at exactly 12 o'clock. The dinner consisted of Mr. Barton's favorite dish composed of spaghetti, hamburger meat, sauce, and what-have-you and was enjoyed by all. Serve with this dish were pickles, buns, punch, apples and marshmallows. After lunch the group were taken over to the swimming pool and skating rink where they spent the afternoon. A few of the boys and girls got up the nerve to go swimming in the pool but many of those who brought suits did not go. After swimming and riding in the pool in a small boat, members of the group went skating. A game of tag was played on skates and many of the scouts were seen taking rather awkward-looking spills to the amusement of spectators. At 5 o'clock they arrived in town a tired but happy group of youngsters.

Ran 2 Record-Smashing 440 Yd. Dashes in One Day!

RAY ELLINWOOD, sensational track star of the University of Chicago, clipped .3 second off the world's indoor 440-yard dash record in his first college meet.

HE DUPLICATED the feat 20 minutes later as anchor man on the relay team. Ray's start enables him to jump into the lead at the crack of the gun.

JUST IMAGINE breaking the world's record twice the same day! That takes stamina and endurance of high order.

SURVEYOR William Barrett (left) speaking: "When I begin to feel below par, it's me for a Camel and that invigorating 'lift' in energy. Being a Camel smoker, I don't know what jangled nerves mean."

FLYING is the favorite sport of Mrs. John W. Rockefeller, Jr. (right), prominent in New York society. And Camel is her favorite cigarette. "When I set my feet on firm ground, I smoke a Camel," she says. "It's wonderful when you're tired to get a 'lift' with a Camel."

"Please add me to the athletes who get a 'lift' with a Camel!"—Ray Ellinwood

"I NEVER fully realized just how much 'Get a lift' with a Camel" meant to me until I ran two world record-breaking quarters in one afternoon," Ray continues. "Afterward a Camel helped me pull myself together. That night I ate heartily and digested my meal as well as ever."

In every line of endeavor—active, hard-working men and women light up Camels to renew their vim and energy—to add more enjoyment to meal-times—and to ease strain.
