21 ARE KNOWN DEAD IN FLOOD AREA

About Our Friends

BY STEP A. LONG

P. CRAWFORD comes into our office this morning wearing a button with a big '68' on his shirt. Inquiring what it was all about, he explained to us that it meant people were being killed each minute in accidents. No wonder he wants you to insure. Now why did he want to get us all excited? We'll be afraid to step out of the house for fear of being run over or something.

ARTHUR GRIST tells Odie Kean that tonight at 9 o'clock will be the zero hour for the great Cisco cyclone which occurred April 28, 1903, just 44 years ago.

AND Henry Stubbfield has a new pipe. His friends tell of how the barbers would give him free service if he would throw the thing away. And Henry would always simply say, "but then they say he would go out in the street and pick up again when the service was over." It was always there for him when he went, being too strong for anyone else to touch. Asked how came him to have a new pipe, Henry explained that he dropped the old one in the cuspidor and had to throw it away. But Oscar Mason said he didn't see how that could hurt it or make it any worse. So there you are.

AN OLD man was visiting his grandson. The two had occasion to go into the yard after dark and the grandson took along his flashlight.

"WHAT did that thing cost you?" asked the grandfather. "Two seventy-five."

"THUNDER 'n lightning" ejaculated grandpa. "A fifty cent lantern was good enough for me when I was a boy. And it's good enough now. How much does it cost you to run that thing?"

"About a dollar a year." "Hopin' A-sarsappers! I could run a lantern ten years on a dollar. It's the

JAYCEES WIN FIRST GAME IN BALL SERIES

The Jaycees came from behind a 6 to 0 lead by Dan Horn to win their first soft ball game of the season Tuesday afternoon by a score of 14 to 10 after which they participated in the pie auction staged by the ladies of the home demonstration club of that community.

It was a hotly contested game the Dan Horn boys finding the ball for long distances most of the early part of the game. The tide was said to have turned when Starling staged his shut-out pitching in the third act. The next game will be a return game with Romney at Romney next Tuesday, 5:30. The Jaycees hope to get revenge for the former defeat.

Line-up and batteries for the Dan Horn game were: Cisco, pitchers Caudie, Starling and Stamey; Aycock and Holder, catchers. Other players were: Harper, J. McCrack, Grasty, Seale, Harvey and Robinson. Senate Refusal Will Cause Special Session

ATTEMPTS TO TAKE VOTE ON RACE BETTING

AUSTIN, April 28. (U.P.)—The Texas Senate today refused to cast a direct vote on race betting repeal and precipitated a special session of the legislature. Governor Allred warned them that the special session will be called immediately after the present session unless the senate changes today's decision and votes directly on race repeal. While an attempt to take up the appeal bill for a direct vote was lost, opponents of the repeal also failed to kill the bill when they tried to dispose of it finally by a motion to table. Race repeals evaded the rule against debate on a motion to table by repeated parliamentary inquiries whether the vote to table did not actually kill the bill.

Mr. Spencer explained the set-up and functions of the regional chamber of commerce.

BILBAO'S FATE NOW DEPENDS ON VALENCIA

PARIS, April 28. (U.P.)—The fate of Bilbao in Northern Spain "now depends on help from Valencia," which is the seat of the loyalist government, the Basque, loyalist delegation, asserted here today. The delegation declared that "more than 100 German planes daily are bombing the Basque country," in northern Spain. The statement added: "The rebels are bombing the countryside and the towns in the Basque country in an effort to terrorize them into surrendering Bilbao. The rebels carefully avoid bombing the factories because they need them for their own use." Able to operate their planes because the Basque have none, the nationalists intend to destroy towns and exterminate the civil population in order to force Bilbao authorities to surrender the industrial region intact, it was alleged.

Behind Mola's army, the flames of a dozen burning towns lighted the skies. Thousands of wounded men from both sides filled emergency hospitals, and an insurgent corps began collecting tons of war supplies abandoned by the retreating loyalists.

Captain McCormick explained that he "acted entirely on my own responsibility, and I will not permit any such paper to be circulated in my district." The paper, reportedly printed in Jacksonville, Texas, was bitterly critical of Governor Allred.

Gerard, former ambassador to Germany and President Roosevelt's personal representative at the crowning of King George VI. FREE CONCERT GIVEN HERE BY CLASSIC CHOIR

The visit of the Classic Choir which is to visit the Cisco high school Friday morning at the 10:30 chapel period, is being looked forward to with fond anticipations said Principal O. L. Stamey today. The group will arrive Thursday afternoon and will spend the night at the Laguna where they have already made reservations, according to Manager Chapman Williamson. The concert is free and all parents and friends of the school are invited to attend the program. The fifty members of the Classic Choir at T. S. C. W. represents the best voices of over 2400 students, and are carefully selected for the pleasing tone and blending qualities of their voices as well as for their knowledge of music. Each year approximately 250 students of the college express their desire for choral work. Through individual training in the principles of voice culture and group drilling for the first half of the year, Director Jones discovers those best fitted to fill places in the selected choir. The organization has been in existence ten years, and each year the training has become more intensive and the tests for membership have become more difficult to pass. The group makes a study of the best works of the old masters as well as the modern composers, singing representative selections from each group. Besides making appearances in all the larger cities and towns in Texas, the choir has won a widespread radio audience through its concerts over WFAA in Dallas. In the spring of each year the students are taken on a tour of some section of the state, and all during the scholastic term they give concerts and recitals on the campus and in cities and towns near the college.

Favors Program to Force Economy Body

WASHINGTON, April 28. (U.P.)—President Roosevelt favors a program to force economy legislation by impounding up to 15 per cent of appropriation. Speaker William Bankhead said today. Bankhead said the White House is in sympathy with the proposal of Representative Clarence Cannon of Missouri for a 15 per cent "adjustable reduction" and added that it would be impractical to make a horizontal cut as suggested by Senator Byrnes of South Carolina.

OHIO VALLEY NOT SO HARD HIT BY FLOOD

At least 21 persons were dead and 12,000 homeless today as flood waters spilled over parts of four eastern states and sections of western Ontario. Property damage was estimated at $8,000,000. Eight persons were dead in Virginia, five in Western Pennsylvania and two in West Virginia and Ohio. In Western Ontario, six persons were dead, and damage was placed at $3,000,000. Although rain fell late Tuesday, the danger was considered passed. The Virginia streams also receded and rehabilitation work started. While flood waters went down slowly at Pittsburgh, the upper Ohio Valley received the full force. Residents had been prepared for the emergency and the loss of life and property was relatively small. At Wheeling, the Ohio rose to 45.9 feet, ten feet above flood stage. Wheeling Island, home of 10,000 persons was covered with water. About 2,000 fled from their homes.

Today's News

Again the Ohio river valley is threatened as rain and snows start its flood waters on a rampage to overflow its banks that are mere excuses and really no banks at all. The president recently said that floods would continue to be menaces to life and property for a long time to come. Early settlements were made along river banks for the twofold reason it gave them an easy highway upon which to travel and carry their goods to market. They had no ideas of course, that they would grow into great and populous cities or big manufacturing towns.

There is no feasible way to prevent floods along these valleys. The best that can be done is to provide means of escape in times of flood danger and have boats available to take the population to the higher points, and have organizations to take charge of the situation when the dangers do come. The president has recalled the Red Cross group that functioned so capably in the previous disaster to again take charge of refugees and relief when the need shall come. It is a wise measure and a tribute to the efficiency of this great organization of mercy.

Canada is also experiencing floods and lives have already been lost with much property damage.

Lawmakers of our country have become alarmed about war which seems sweeping toward the world despite the efforts of countries to find a way around. Great war budgets have been voted in the United States and in Europe. Preparations are going along on a grand scale—billions are being spent on naval preparations and on munitions of war.

Each day millions of tons of scrap iron is being shipped from Cisco and other parts of the country to England to build warships and guns for the battle for which that country is feverishly arming.

And now the Duke is suing a former classmate for libel. More publicity is due for the former king who had the nerve or lacked the stability to refrain from the step taken that made the world gasp in surprise. Now on top of the wedding which is being expected some time next month, comes this suit of the former king to keep the front pages of newspapers over the world ringing with more about Edward.

Edison Praises Research Work

WASHINGTON, April 28—Charles S. Edison, son of the inventor and Assistant Secretary of the Navy, gave full credit to industrial research for the excellence of America's warships.

"One of the general naval policies is to create, maintain and operate a navy second to none," he told the American Society of Naval Engineers at their annual dinner.

"Progress is made by research and the testing of new products to determine their desired characteristics and adaptability for naval use. New features of design are continuously investigated for possible application. As a result of such research, investigations, and tests, each new naval vessel built represents a marked advance over predecessors of its class.

"The modern man of war is the acme of technological development, embodying in its most concentrated and useful form the accumulated experience of nearly every branch of human endeavor.

"The navy cooperates with other laboratories of the government. It further cooperates with many excellent industrial and university laboratories of the country, many of which have contributed much to the national security.

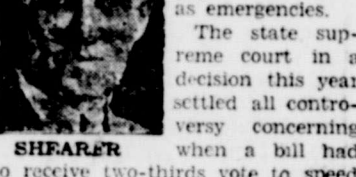

"The excellence of modern naval equipment is largely due to the assistance of American industry in the improvement of methods and equipment through scientific investigation."

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER

United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, April 28 (UP)—Bills of the legislature will not take effect until 90 days after adjournment unless they have been declared emergencies and have received two-thirds vote in both House and Senate. Each bill becomes effective when signed by the Governor. Several bills of the session already have become law.

The state supreme court in a decision this year settled all controversies concerning when a bill had received two-thirds vote to pass.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court's about face in the Wagner act decisions has given both sides new arguments in the historic battle over the Roosevelt judiciary scheme, without appreciably affecting the outlook as to the plan's fate.

The first cry of the opposition that the last excuse for the plan was gone, echoed by a few senators who looked hopefully toward avoiding the issue, has been counterbalanced by a prompt White House effort to turn on the heat. The administration urges now that the court has weakened the position of its supporters by proving its willingness to play politics.

Certain Democratic fence-sitters in the Senate are seeking to jump off in any direction, just so it will enable them to escape voting on the President's proposal. The administration forces say privately they won't let the fence-sitters jump. At the same time, attempts are being made to find a method which would make the medicine for this group easier to take.

Belief that the President's hand has been strengthened by the Wagner decisions is shared by some, although by no means all, of the opposition strategists. They fear it is widely felt that the swing of a court majority to liberal opinions is a personal victory for Roosevelt, achieved by the President's war on the court.

THE two fundamental factors in the court fight have been:

1. Roosevelt's great popularity following, whether understanding the plan or not, largely favorable to the proposal because Roosevelt was for it.
2. Strongest opposition card—traditional popular reverence for the court and a theory as to its sanctity, based on the supposition that it always interpreted the Constitution as a sacred formula, with no other consideration in mind.

The opposition now tacitly abandons the latter theory in order to assert that the court is responsive to public opinion and hence needs reorganization. To which New Dealers, emphasizing the 5 to 4 decisions and the reversal of Justice Roberts' position on the interstate commerce clause, refer in paraphrase of Chief Justice Hughes.

"We are under a Constitution, but the Constitution is what Justice Roberts says it is—until the next time he changes his mind."

If the decisions had been unanimous instead of demonstrating that four justices over 76 still stood grimly against liberal constitutional interpretation, the administration would have no excuse for arguing that the "future welfare of 130,000,000 persons must be left in the hands of one vacillating man."

The actual extent to which the court may have rubbed off some of its own sanctity or diminished its prestige by Roberts' bow to outside agitation is blurred by partisan debate. It is demonstrable, however, that the court has made any new friends by the Wagner act decision, except among Democratic senators reluctant to take a stand on the reorganization proposal.

ROOSEVELT has begun a new drive to jam his program through. John Lewis, outstanding leader of the labor legions benefiting from validation of the Wagner act, scoffs at the court as "variable... unstable." Bill Green of the A. F. of L., insists the Roosevelt plan must go through. Many "economic royalists" who have preached the gospel of the court's sanctity and confidently expected it to smack down the Wagner act are now soured or at least pained.

AFRAID to Love

By MARION WHITE

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOAN BARRETT, heroine, secretary to John Hendry.
JOHN HENDRY, mining investment banker.
BOB ANDREWS, Hendry's junior partner and Joan's fiance.
SYBIL HENDRY, society girl, John Hendry's niece and Joan's rival in love.
PHILIP HENDRY, Sybil's brother.
DOROTHY STARKE, Joan's childhood friend.
CHARLES NORTON, California mining promoter.

CHAPTER VII
LATER, they discussed it over a late luncheon at the Green Hills Inn. They had driven out from town together in order that Bob might pack his things and be ready to leave for the airport at six.

"Just when we had everything practically settled," Bob said gloomily, "this had to come up. I had no idea he would ask me to go. Usually he looks into all new properties himself."

Impulsively, Bob turned to Joan. "Will you marry me, dear, as soon as I get back?"

Only for a second did she hesitate. Then:

"Yes, Bob, I will," she told him quietly. "Whenever you say."

Under the tablecloth, his hand tightened over hers. "I suppose we could be married today—and honeymoon in California!"

"No—not there!" Joan cried quickly, too quickly.

Bob looked at her curiously. "Why not? California's a beautiful place. However, a mining camp is hardly the best spot in the world to take a bride." He grinned. "I'd have a worse time out there trying to keep you to myself than I did here the other night."

Joan breathed easier. "Where is the mine?" she asked conversationally.

"About 60 miles east of Sacramento. Forty miles from the nearest railroad station."

"Is it so urgent that you go right away?"

friend, and Hendry believes in him."

"Don't you?"
"Not particularly."
"Why not? Do you know him?"
"I met him when he was east about four years ago, and—well, he's just one of those people I don't like. However, I may be all wrong." He blew a smoke ring toward the fire, dismissing Mr. Norton with it.

PRESENTLY, with less seriousness, he suggested: "Suppose we forget the Bella Terra, my darling, and consider the future Mr. and Mrs. Andrews."

Joan smiled wistfully. "Mrs. Andrews," she murmured. "It sounds so—so safe."

Each of them drew closer to the other. The coffee in their cups grew cold, but they did not realize it. In the fireplace, the logs crackled with promise, and the flames drew bright pictures of the future.

A moment later Bob looked up and saw Sybil Hendry enter the dining room. She walked toward them, apparently with the intention of taking the next table. Then, carelessly raising her eyes, she saw them.

"Hello, Sybil," Bob greeted heartily.

"Bob?" Sybil raised her eyebrows in surprise. "It is nice to see you. And Miss Barrett! How are you?"

Bob jumped up and pulled an extra chair to the table for her. "Why not join us, Sybil?" he suggested pleasantly. "We've just finished our lunch."

"Oh, I've had lunch, thank you." She sat down with them, nevertheless. "I just stopped in for a cup of chocolate—it's so chilly, driving."

Bob signaled the waiter and Sybil gave the order.

"I just talked to Uncle John on the phone," she remarked. "He tells me that you're going in his place, Bob."

"Yes. Seven o'clock from Newark airport."

SYBIL looked at Joan sympathetically. "That is sudden, isn't it? Uncle John might have permitted you the week-end together. Miss Barrett—or do you mind if I call you Joan?"

"I should love it."
"Joan, then," Sybil smiled graciously. "Why don't you spend the week-end with me? My brother is out of town for a while and I shall be all alone, too."

"Thank you, Miss Hendry—"
"Do call me Sybil."
Joan smiled her acknowledgment of the charming patronage.

"It is nice of you, Sybil," she said, "to want me. But," and she lied deliberately, "I did plan to be with some friends on Long Island."

"Oh, I am disappointed," Sybil said. She hesitated a moment, then asked brightly: "Will you have tea with me then—some afternoon next week?"

"I should be delighted."
"Shall we say Wednesday?" She finished her chocolate and rose. "I really must run along. I promised to see Uncle John."

"Goodby, Bob. Good luck on your trip. Goodby, Joan—until Wednesday."
AS they watched her drive off, Joan said to Bob:

"You know I lied about my week-end on Long Island?"

"I thought so. Why?"
"I don't know. For some reason, I'm just a little afraid of Sybil. I wasn't quite sure why she asked me."

"It seemed as if Mr. Hendry might have suggested it."

"Maybe he did," Bob agreed. "But Sybil was sincere enough. I understand how you feel, though. I've always been a little afraid of her myself. She's so coldly correct. . . . However, she has been a very good friend to me, whether her uncle suggested it or not. Whatever social success I've had here in Green Hills, I owe to her. She laughed me, so to speak. It's helped me to many a good contract in business, too. She's really a fine girl, Joan. I know you'll like her when you know her better."

"Of course."
Nevertheless, Joan felt that she could never feel a genuine friendship for Sybil Hendry. She felt strangely apprehensive, too, about the tea on Wednesday, although she did not know why. Neither did she know that she was going to look back on that afternoon forever and realize that Sybil's tea marked the beginning of all her unhappiness.

its effectiveness. The two thirds is required on the last appearance of the bill before the respective branches of the legislature.
Bills that go to conference committees to adjust difference between house and senate depend on the vote cast on adopting the conference report.

Former Gov. Ross S. Sterling officially proposed a sales tax for Texas. He had investigations of its operation made in Mississippi. Later he invited Mississippi's governor to come to Texas and tell how the sales tax had solved Mississippi's financial problems.
Former Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson also espoused the sales tax for raising state revenue. Her husband former Gov. James E. Ferguson tried ineffectively to get it passed during her administration. Former Gov. Dan Moody advocated an income tax. Gov. James V. Alford advocates taxes on natural resources.

Six of the states that have resorted to a sales tax are reported to have since abandoned it but many Texas legislators still believe that Texas eventually will have a sales tax.
Sen. Ben Oneal, Wichita Falls advanced a novel argument for the proposal to permit a retail sales tax of not to exceed two per cent. The words "not to exceed" caught Oneal's fancy. "A sales tax is coming some time," Oneal predicted. "I want to see it limited to two per cent. Without a limitation, we may see one of three cents or more."

Other senators say they want a sales tax because it will make the people tax conscious. Tax consciousness, they believe, will halt the increasing demand for bigger appropriations. Most of them agree that in whatever form a tax is levied, it eventually works around to the consumer. But they say, the people do not seem to realize that the tax eventually gets to them. They kid themselves that the landlord, the manufacturer or the merchant is not passing it on. A sales tax is a reminder to them every time they make a purchase.

Privately senators will tell you they know the sales tax wouldn't have a ghost of a chance if submitted as alternatively to a natural resource tax plan. "It just isn't human nature for a person to vote a tax on himself when he can vote it on some one else," one senator said. The question of whether the particular industries were bearing their share of taxation would not be considered by any large part of the voters.

Gov. James V. Alford has declined fresh comment on the sales tax fight. "I think my position has been announced frequently," Alford said.

Few, however, have caught the exact wording of his previous sales tax attitude. He has announced he is opposed to a general sales tax. He has not said he will veto one that exempts sales of necessities and smaller comforts of life.

Two State Representatives are being kidded for being caught sleeping at their desks. Others do the same occasionally under the influence of a big dinner and incessant talk but being caught is embarrassing. Rep. A. P. C. Petch, was photographed, sprawled out with feet on his desk and eyes closed. It embarrasses him although he never has been caught napping by an opponent anxious to put something by him. Rep. C. M. McFarland of Wichita Falls, another hard worker, was the other unfortunate member to be caught sleeping. A close vote had been recorded on the electric board. Verification was called for. In verification, each member's name is called to check if he did not respond. He had dozed as the preceding names were droned.

That there will be no pep shows at the Dallas Greater Texas and Pan-American exposition this summer, was the news brought to Austin by Bill Edwin Colbert, assistant director of publicity for the June 12-Oct. 31 display.

He carried along a bunch of samples, like dress goods. They were sample however, of the way the buildings will look at the Pan-American affair.

The samples are called Mayan Toltec, etc. To Americans they look like red, blue green and white. Whatever they are called they represent the gay colors of the buildings. The only buildings the visitors of the Texas Centennial Exposition will be able to recognize will be the Hall of State and the Federal building. Colbert asserted.

Colbert advised the Senate to adjourn by June 12 in order to be ready for the exposition's opening.

The new anti-narcotics act passed by the present session of the Texas legislature will probably require a new division of the State Department of Safety. Col. C. Carmichael, head of the department, has not yet mapped out how the new work placed in his department will be handled. It is said to require highly specialized work.

Government is Big Home Owner

WASHINGTON, April 28— The federal government is rapidly becoming one of the greatest land and home owners in the country. Recently, Chairman John P. Fahey of the Home Owners Loan Corporation disclosed that he expected the HOLC to foreclose on 160,900 homes in the next 18 months. The Farm Credit Corporation, created like the HOLC to help carry debt burdened owners through the depression, also is accumulating millions of acres of farm land. Up to now, the Farm Credit administration has foreclosed on 6,453,000 acres of farm land. It has foreclosure actions pending on approximately 1,500,000 acres more and before the year is out many additional foreclosure proceedings will be instituted.

FRENCH WOMEN TO PHONE USES

PARIS, April 28 (AP)—France soon may rival the United States in the number of telephones and their use by the general public. Today France boasts a million and a half telephones installed in homes and offices, or one for every 35 inhabitants of the country.

Telephone operators in France soon will be overworked to judge by the figures issued by the ministry. Last year there were 968,000,000 calls or 1,737 calls per minute on an average.

In busy parts of the day this number naturally is much higher. International calls to London, New York, Tokyo, Shanghai, Sydney, Moscow, Berlin, Bucharest and other centers totaled 3,500,000 during the year. It is calculated that French callers can be put in touch with any one of 30,000,000 phones in every corner of the world within 10 minutes at the most.

Among the services which have been instituted in Paris by telephone officials are a service for medical aid, a time bureau which is operated by an automatic clock with a mechanical voice which repeats the hour every 10 seconds, an alarm clock service to awaken people and finally an automatic taxi call service.

Pleas for Old Age Pensions Denied

There are 278 people in Eastland county whose pleas for old age assistance have been denied. In the entire State 68,422 have met a similar fate while no decision has been announced regarding 33,607 other applicants. One person out of every three seeking relief has his or her application denied outright. Seven of every ten applications denied are because of no need reflected. These and many other interesting facts are contained in the Texas Old Age Assistance Commission's Analysis Grants and Denials of March 31, 1937 which may soon be made public. Other enlightening facts revealed are: Harris county leads in the number of old people who have been denied old age assistance. The number disproved is 4,851 while the disposition of some 1,500 more has not been announced. Dallas county, with 6,832 has the largest number of approved applications but 4,018 have been denied and no decision announced in 1,468 cases. In the entire State 223,800 old persons have applied for pensions. Of this number 121,771 have been approved with 102,000 denied or still pending.

In several counties the number of denials exceeds the approvals. In this group are Austin, Bee, Brooks, Burnet, Duval, Harrison, Fayette, Gillespie, Jim Wells, Kennedy, Kleberg, Lampasas, McMullen, Medina, Webb and several other counties.

In order to pay every person who has applied for old age assistance $15.00 per month, 12 months in the year an outlay of forty million dollars will be required annually. Legislative leaders concede that no other source of revenue except a retail sales tax is capable of such productivity. A 3 per cent sales tax will yield $43,000,000 and a 2 per cent levy $28,652,000 annually. Strong opposition has developed in the Legislature and among property owners throughout the State to apply the sales tax revenue exclusively to old age pensions. There are about 375,000 home owners in the towns and cities and 183,000 owned farm homes making a total of 558,000 home owners in Texas who outnumber the old age pension applicants two and one-half to one. These property owners will contend that a substantial part of any sales tax revenue be applied to reducing burdensome property taxes.

PROGRAM'S COST STIRS PROTESTS

LONDON, April 28 (AP)—A growing minority of thinking Britons are criticizing the elaborateness of the Coronation program, particularly the extravagant theatrical aspect of the pageantry and the commercial complexion of the celebration. The point to the staggering cost to a heavily taxed people of the rearmament program and to the danger of war and say that a spectacle such as the Coronation is unnecessary.

Two leading weekly magazines contained severe criticism of the program. It is significant that the more outspoken of the two was the ultra-conservative of Spectator, which went much further than the radical New Statesman and Nation.

Labeled as "Nightmare" The Spectator article, by E. M. Forster, was headed, "Coronation Nightmare." It said, in part:

"Grant the kingship; grant, also, the ritual; even so, why cannot a king be crowned quickly? Would it not be more seemly, considering the appalling state of mankind? Why this colossal expense when debts are unpaid and areas destitute? Why this ponderous and fictitious gaiety when the British Empire is being carried round and round on the common whirligig of death?"

"And which will happen first, celebration or catastrophe?"

"Little Mr. and Mrs. Citizen receive hints of the nightmare as they look at their daily newspapers or listen to their wireless. I'm afraid this coronation is going to be rather overdone," is the way they express it. They approve the idea of a coronation but they suspect that it is being run to death; that they are being exploited by some power which they do not understand, and though they will produce the required hysteria they will feel ashamed of themselves afterward.

"Who is running this Coronation, who is behind it? they keep wondering. Their common sense and their good feeling tell them it is not 'run' by royalty; it cannot be due to any personal vanity of the King and Queen. Yet it is redundant constitutionally, for the documents which the King signs crownless as just as valid as those which he signs crowned. And the claims of ecclesiasticism—surely they could be just as well satisfied by a more moderate ritual."

Jab at Commercialism "Good for trade? Exactly. Like armaments. The more one reflects on the approaching ceremony, the more does its commercial aspect stick out. Attempts have been made to spiritualize it, but it is too cumbersome and refractory to respond.

"In Hyde Park today thousands of daffodils will never flower because of the stands which have been erected over the beds, and people will pay vast sums to sit on the stands and watch the procession. The fate of the daffodils is symbolic; crushed beneath great superstructures of steel and wood, the spiritual life finds little in Coronation Year to exalt her to the sky. Commerce, on the one hand, overstatements, on the other."

Said the New Statesman and Nation, referring to the Coronation:

"Whatever the reason may be, there is no doubt about the 'bit extra.' There is a widespread feeling even among staunch supporters of the measures taken or projected by the authorities. It is really necessary to remove the old gateway in front of St. James's Church, Piccadilly, in order to accommodate a few dozen more spectators? This, no doubt, is a trifle, but it is significant of the passion for overdoing the thing which seems to have possessed the authorities."

Wages in Italy 9 Cents Hour in 40-Hour Week

In Italy the average hourly factory wage is one lire and 81 centimes, or slightly less than nine and one-half cents an hour. Since the 40-hour week is observed in all except war industries in Italy, the worker's average weekly wage at present is $3.79.

FALSE ALARM BECOMES TRUE HONOLULU (AP)—What to do with a 12-year-old boy who enjoyed turning in false alarms just to see the fire trucks run is troubling police here. On the occasion of his last false alarm, the fire department found a truck on fire a half block from the signal box, but which it was ascertained, caught fire after the alarm was turned in. Due to the false alarm the truck was saved.

A WORD ABOUT THE VOTE ON THE SALE OF BEER

The ballot will read: "Prohibiting the sale of all liquors" and "Against prohibiting the sale of all liquors." A word of explanation may be in order.

The Attorney General has ruled that a vote against prohibiting the sale of all liquors will not effect the law now in force regarding the sale of liquors of more than 14 per cent alcoholic content, for which the election was called. It will merely mean that beer as now legalized will remain as such. If a vote is cast for prohibiting the sale of all liquors, it will mean prohibiting the sale of all beverages of any alcoholic content, whatsoever.

Which means if the election goes wet it does not legalize the sale of whiskey, only beer and light wines. If it goes dry nothing over 1 1/2 per cent can be sold legally.

MAN ONCE FRIGHTENED BY OIL ADS

CHANGES TO OIL-PLATING

In spite of everything, it paid him to take ads seriously, you see, else he might never have tried Oil-Plating. First of all he was impressed by the explanation of Oil-Plating.

Simple enough, if you'll think what happens as Johnny's dirty little hands touch the wallpaper. Anything greasy or oily on his hands becomes quite a permanent part of the paper. You'll say permanent!

In much the same way—forgetting technicalities—Conoco Germ Processed oil forms a lasting attachment for every working part of your engine. A genuine, enduring Oil-Plating is brought about by the Germ Process—patented.

Thus the Germ Process not only multiplies the strength of the usual flowing type of oil-film, but creates Oil-Plating besides. And once Oil-Plating goes on, Conoco Germ Processed oil does not let it come off in minutes, hours, days . . . or miles.

Thus Oil-Plating kills the old fear of starting "dry." Likewise Oil-Plating refuses to let go in all the fury of 5,000 revolutions per minute. That's why your "good old car" or the latest model will stay more like new, with its engine Oil-Plated. And your whole Summer's driving will take less Conoco Germ Processed oil. SPANISH STRIFE DEFINES SCOPE OF WAR TANKS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lessons learned in the Spanish civil war are already being digested by the world's general staffs in preparation for "the next war." Some of them are analyzed in Nancy of the New York Cable Staff of the United Press.

United Press Associations
By BATES RANEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
The crushing superiority of trained over untrained troops, and the value of combining tanks with airplanes in offensive operations in present-day mixed trench and open fighting is rated today by military observers as the first great lesson of the Spanish civil war.

Tanks have proved far more successful in the war in Spain than they ever did in the World War on the Western Front, and yet their limitations have been more sharply defined than ever.

Military observers note that the armies of Gen. Francisco Franco Spanish insurgent leader, composed mostly of highly trained men swept everything before them to the very gates of Madrid until the Spanish loyalist government hastily organized its bands of foreign, trained volunteers into its new famous International Brigades. From the day those brigades reached the Madrid front the war has been virtually stalemated.

Tactics Shifted By Franco
Franco changed his tactics immediately. He depended less on his trained infantry and more on mechanized warfare. In "cutting" the Valencia highway, south of Madrid, for the first time, he used 200 tanks in a single operation—more than ever used in any one engagement in the World War so far as military observers can ascertain.

Gen. Jose Miaja also changed his tactics to meet changing situations. The loyalist commander-in-chief developed the new tactics of using stationary tanks instead of artillery at key points of defense, especially at bridgeheads—notably at the Arganda bridge south of Madrid during the sanguinary Jarama river valley battles—and to break up attacks.

Tanks were used by both sides in counter attacks but most military experts are agreed now that the war in Spain proves that tanks cannot be used independently of infantry which is still needed to "mop up" behind them and hold ground gained by a mass attack of tanks.

Heavy Tanks Best
The Madrid fighting has proved military observers say, that Miaja's thickly armored Russian-type heavy tanks are superior to Franco's lighter, faster Italian-type tanks which depend on mobility rather than armor plate for protection.

Military observers now believe that "the next war" could be fought best by a medium size, well-protected, fast tank as a compromise between the Russian and Italian types.

The small German and Italian tanks used in Spain are already recognized as being too small and generally unsuited for surmounting serious attacks.

Twenty years ago the battle of Passchendaele showed the folly of using tanks in an offensive under swamp-like conditions, and yet this was exactly what some units of Franco's army encountered in the Fifth Madrid Offensive.

Becomes Liability In Mud
Gen. Emilio Mola, in charge of the drive, on Madrid from the northeast, learned a bitter lesson at Guadalajara when his defeated Italian legions showed that modern mechanized or motorized units are not only unsuccessful but a downright handicap in muddy ground.

The nationalists blame the mud which immobilized their tanks, artillery and trucks as the original cause of the disorganization of the Italian units which led to the Guadalajara disaster and the loss of almost every inch of ground they had taken in the course of a week-long offensive.

Mired in the mud as they were, the Italians were ready objects for the loyalist counter-offensive which came on March 13 and gave the government its greatest victory of the war to date.

The loyalist use of airplanes in offensive combat, in that counter-offensive, showed, as the Ethiopian campaign had done previously, just how formidable are aircraft—especially the loyalists' new "flying machine gun nests" mounting six guns—as offensive weapons in combination with an attacking fleet of tanks.

Bank Arrangements Pending Examination

ARLINGTON, April 28 (AP)—Arrangements for a bank to replace the defunct First State Bank of Arlington are being withheld pending completion of the examination by state and federal inspectors.

Depositors who had not more than $5,000 in the bank, are expected to receive checks soon from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. At least three out-of-town groups are known to be considering establishing a bank here. Merchants now are handling their checks and getting change through a cooperative financial office set up temporarily.

Baseball Squad is Victorious Tuesday

By TOMMY La MORE

The Cisco high school baseball team kept their record of the 1937 baseball season clear yesterday when they romped over Scranton by the score of 8-4.

"Red" Yarbrough, starting pitcher for the local team showed stuff and struck out six of the opposing team. One bad inning was made by "Red" but the remaining six were perfect. For the first three innings he allowed one hit and put the rest down in order. In the first inning Cisco scored six runs with every man batting. Bill Wallace, first sacker, of the home team, played a bang-up game and got several good hits.

Horace Cameron played first short and was seen in some good fielding. Howell Sledge played a nice game at second short and was also seen in good hitting. Joe Slicker, third sacker, played an outstanding game and robbed Scranton of a hit in the fifth inning that more than likely would have put the game back on even terms. In this play Joe took off of the ground like a Olympic diver and caught the ball.

In the outfield Horace Rainbolt, Track Shirley and Tommy La More also played good ball. This combination used for the game seems to be the best yet found by Coach O. L. Stamey. Bill Donahoe, short fielder was also in some nice play and did some swell batting and base running.

The home team plays the strong Futnam team this afternoon at Chesky field and should put up a good fight. Thursday the local team will play Pioneer in the second conference game of the season.
