Changing Ideas About Exercise

It is odd how ideas of doing things and why change constantly.

A certain idea becomes the vogue and all accept it, then someone else gets a different slant and, presto, we change our ideas and completely reverse ourselves in certain practices.

We have gone mad about exercise during the past decade and now here comes announcement of a different school of ideas that are fast taking the place of the strenuous life.

It seems that the rest cure so successful in treatment for tuberculosis and other wasting diseases has given the medical experts a thought along this line. They are now getting away from the idea of wearing ourselves down to grow stronger and instead are suggesting that we take it easy and grow healthy and beautiful at the same time. No more laborious exercise for reducing. The heart must be taken care of.

The tendency today is away from exercise as a reducing panacea, because it doesn't reduce weight, merely firms muscles.

The accepted way to reduce weight now is to reduce the intake of food and water because people eat more and drink more water when they exercise a lot and often actually gain instead of lose.

Strenuous exercise, particularly for women, also has given way to smooth, leisurely movements and stretching which will relax while limbering up the body. The theory is that the chief injury through exercise is trying to do too much. Strenuous exercise tends to make knotty muscles instead of sleek firm flesh and is also hard on the heart.

Lots of passive exercise, where the instructor does the kinking and kicking, is now being recommended for those with weak hearts.

The vast industry of physical culture for women which has been built up in the last decade is improving the feminine figure which, it is stated, any man on the street can readily see.

Cause of Spring Fever

While spring fever submits to no test by a clinical thermometer, it is probably caused by the weather bringing about changes in blood-pressure, muscular tension and the state of tissues throughout the body.

Part of the body's function is to make use of its equipment for adjusting itself to fluctuating weather extremes and this brings about a seasonal rhythm for the race.

Turbulent climatic conditions characteristic of spring weather, even tend to upset an expectant mother's glandular system, producing abnormal individuals in the direction of genius or insanity.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—Congress apparently has very little enthusiasm for a lasting solution of farm tenancy evils.

That's why it has been easy for big owners of farm land, strategically placed on the House Agriculture committee, to torpedo—at least temporarily—the administration's first feeble nibble at the problem presented by a growing army of farm tenants and sharecroppers, which includes 1,900,000 families in the south alone.

The committee decided on a "compromise" measure which would provide $50,000,000 for loans to tenants who want to buy farms. That compromise also leaves such tenants free to revert to tenancy by selling their equities, by letting their farms go to ruin or by getting into debt. Attempts were made to cut the fifty millions to a smaller sum.

The "compromise" takes the place of a plan which would have provided for supervision and safeguards designed to preserve security of tenure for tenants who might become landowners. This plan called for purchase and sale of land by the government.

Tenants would have been given from 20 to 40 years to amortize, and titles would not have passed in less than 20 years. Meanwhile, a federal agency would have supervised the farming, seeing to it that the soil was protected and farms kept up.

However paternalistic this may have seemed, nearly everyone who had studied the sharecropper problem intensively and sympathetically was favoring it as the only practical method of approach to an acute condition of misery, poverty and squalor.

THE committee at first voted by a narrow margin to throw the whole plan out. Asked to reconsider, the committee stood 12 to 12 on the second vote.

Three members were especially vehement in opposition to the government purchase-lease-sale plan and are given credit for killing it. They were:

Congressman Richard M. Kleberg of Texas, part owner of the King ranch, largest ranch in the world and twice as big as the state of Rhode Island.

Congressman Harry B. Coffee of Nebraska, president of the Coffee Cattle Co., which has extensive ranch holdings and owner and operator of several farms.

Congressman Hampton P. Fulmer of South Carolina, proprietor of the big Barnes farm in Orangeburg county.

Six of the seven Republican members also voted against the administration program, proposed by Chairman Marvin Jones. Opponents said they "didn't want the government in the real estate business."

The President's Committee on Farm Tenancy had pointed out that there was always danger that farmers, after being given a purchase contract, might be induced by a rise in land values to pay off the loan to obtain a deed, then sell all or part at a profit. Land speculators might aid them financially to do this.

"The contract should require the purchaser to maintain buildings, fences and other structures in good condition," said the committee, "to carry on a type of farming that will maintain the fertility of the soil and to avoid other forms of unnecessary wastage . . . yet the purchaser is assured a right to use (but not abuse) the land at low annual cost, to make reasonable improvements, to accumulate an equity and dispose of it at current appraised value, subject to exercise by the government of its right to repurchase."

AFRAID to Love

By MARION WHITE

CAST OF CHARACTERS: JOAN HARRIOTT, heroine, secretary to John Hendry. JOHN HENDRY, mining investment head. DON ANDREWS, Hendry's assistant partner and Joan's fiance. SYBIL HENDRY, societyite, Joan Hendry's niece and Joan's rival in love. PHILIP HENDRY, Sybil's brother. DOROTHY STARKE, Joan's childhood friend. CHARLES NORTON, California mining promoter.

Yesterday, Joan attends Sybil's tea and is horror-stricken to meet the same Dorothy Starke whom she had just seen in Seattle seven years ago.

CHAPTER IX

BACK once more in the lonely confines of her room at the hotel, Joan faced the end of her dreams. Hopeless and defeated, she sat on the narrow bed, and looked out across the dreary rooftops.

In her ears, Sybil's voice, honeyed and soothing, still rang, and Joan could sense the studied sympathy it would hold as she repeated the story to Bob. But Sybil's eyes would remain cold through the telling of it, and in her heart there would be no compassion for the girl who loved him.

Joan did not blame Sybil. Long ago she had ceased to blame people for drawing away from her; it was not their fault that they could not understand. Neither did she feel any anger toward Dorothy Starke. Dorothy's only sin had been her genuine pleasure in seeing an old friend. She could not have known what misery her presence brought to light.

If, as she had noticed Joan's confusion, the thought did occur to her, she had responded sympathetically. It was Dorothy who covered up the matter of the broken cocktail glass, insisting that she herself had knocked it from Joan's hand. It was Dorothy, too, who had kept the conversation gay and meaningless, until the time Joan found courage to tear herself away.

SYBIL had been delighted to learn that Dorothy had known Joan in the past. There was no end to the questions she asked. They had lived in Seattle? Strange, we thought Joan came from Chicago. . . . In school together? Eastman High School? How very, very interesting. . . . To think you had to find each other right here in New York, after so many years. . . . how many years?

She recalled Sybil's clever maneuver to detain Dorothy after the others had left. Dorothy had followed Joan upstairs, suggesting that they walk to the station together. But downstairs, Sybil sought out Dorothy's cousin. "Won't you and Dorothy wait just a moment, Barbara?" she heard her suggest. "I have a little gift I want you to enjoy in Florida. . . . Just a minute after the others leave!"

Joan could picture her, inquiring into details, drawing Dorothy out delicately, bit by bit, piecing facts together, guessing, confirming. . . . By this time, she knew everything—the whole horrible story.

"My reprieve is up," Joan thought. "I've had two years. . . . Two perfect years." She got up, walked to the window and pulled down the shade.

Perhaps it was better, getting it all over quickly like this. At least she was spared the suspense of wondering, and eventually, the agony of a last parting with Bob. It was easier now, while he was far away.

She would write him a note and explain. . . . No, she could not do that. She could never explain in a way that he would understand. . . . Let him hear the story from Sybil. He would, anyway. She would merely say goodby.

Bob would love her, despite whatever the world said. She knew that. She knew that, as she knew the sun would rise again on the morrow. He would stand by her side against the world. But deep within his own heart, the words would ring: "Her father killed a man. It's in her blood, too, to kill." If they had children, he would watch them too, with suspicion and fear, wondering if the curse had been handed down to them.

No, she could not ask Bob to live through that shadow. . . . SHE took her bags from the closet, and slowly began emptying bureau drawers. She did not have much to pack. Her mother and she had never acquired the habit of accumulating things.

Where should she go this time? Boston? Somehow she felt afraid of Boston. Its people were interested in families and backgrounds; they would ask questions, too. Philadelphia? Philadelphia was the city of Friends. Surely there would be a place for her among them. . . .

With a sudden shrillness, the telephone on her wall rang, and its echo jangled through the room, filling her mind with new dread. She stood still in the center of the room, her arms filled with clothes she had just taken from the closet. Who would it be? Who could it be, but Sybil? And now she did not want to talk to Sybil. She did not want to explain, to plead with her for understanding. She could not feel safe with her secret locked in Sybil's breast. For Sybil could not remain true to a trust; her eyes were too cold, too uncompromising. She might promise, she might pledge, but she would keep the secret only as long as it suited her to do so.

Joan tried to shut her ears to the phone's insistent ringing. She would not answer it. It was not Sybil Hendry, however. For Sybil, at that moment, was pacing up and down her own rose and silver boudoir, waiting impatiently for the call she had put through to Philip in Chicago.

TWENTY minutes later, her brother's voice came to her across the miles.

"Hello, Philip. Any news in Chicago?" "Not a thing." His tone was discouraging. "This is a wild goose chase, Syb. The girl worked with Ward & Cleaver, all right. I checked on that. Got good reports on her, too. She lived at a girls' club—the old metron even remembered her there. But beyond that, I'm stuck."

Sybil's thoughts raced beyond Chicago. "Philip," she said excitedly, "I found out something today. Forget Chicago. Go out to Seattle, will you? She lived in Seattle, and went to Eastman High School there, seven years ago."

"Wait a minute! I'll write that down. Eastman High School, you say?" "Yes. That gives you something more definite to work on, doesn't it?"

"I hope it will. At any rate you're getting closer to facts."

"Philip, have you enough money?" "Enough to get me to Seattle. I'll wire you from there."

"Please do, Philip. I'll be anxious. Bob's out of town, and I'd like to get something definite before he returns."

"O.K. How's the old man?" "Just fine. I've told him about your splendid new position—selling bonds. He's beaming over it. I know you can talk him up to a new roadster when you get back."

Philip chuckled. "Good work, Syb. I'll write him a note from here promoting myself. What sort of bonds am I selling?" "Oh, I don't know. Ask Bill Harris. . . ."

She hung up the receiver, well pleased with the success of her tea. It had indeed been a brilliant idea to pretend a friendship for the girl. Now to get a little closer to this Dorothy Starke. (To Be Continued)

Game Today Ends Spring Practice

A football game at 4:30 this afternoon will close the current session of Spring practice, it was announced today by Coach W. E. Cooper.

The squad has been divided as evenly as possible for the game. Curtis Yancy has been elected captain of one group and L. M. Yarbrough, captain of the other one. The game is sure to be ragged because of several recent changes in the line-up. Several boys have been shifted from one position to another and have not had a chance to learn all their new assignments. The Spring practice has been very successful, stated Cooper, and several good prospects have been uncovered. The boys have shown a tendency to be a little rough and tough but at the same time play hard clean football. From Spring practice indications the Lebores give promise of being just as tough as any one they meet and of not being whipped until the last gun is shot.

The boys have worked hard and long most of the time for the past four weeks, staying on the field until 7:30 and 8 o'clock. This shows the amount of interest they are taking. About 22 have not missed a single practice and are eligible for a miniature football promise by the Coach.

Hawaiian Fish are Color of Rainbow

HONOLULU (UP)—A color-blind ichthyologist would have little success in classifying Hawaiian fish. The colors of the rainbow are just a starter. From there they go on to infinite gradations and blends. One visitor to the aquarium, apparently still a bit dizzy from the swirl of color, described the little kikihi as "floating masterpieces like modernistic rainbow-hued delicately tinted chiffon."

The late David Starr Jordan of Stanford University found it necessary to use more than fifteen color designations in describing a single fish. They were: Old gold, indigo, blue, green, white, violet, tarnished silver, light steel blue, rose, pearl, yellow, purple, black, orange pink and bluish-fuscous.

The attack took Mola's advanced troops within six miles of the Basque capital. Frontier reports said Mola had selected May 2nd as the day to "capture" Bilbao.

RURAL DECLINE IN SOUTH MORE RAPID SINCE '20

By FRED O. BAILEY
 Staff Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON, April 29 (U.P.)—The population of the South is being drawn in large numbers to cities and other sections of the country, according to a survey by the Department of Agriculture.

The urban population of the South constituted 15 per cent of the total population in 1900, 25 per cent in 1910, 32 per cent in 1920, and 46 per cent in 1930, the survey showed.

There was an increase in urban population of 17 per cent in 30 years, according to Carl C. Taylor, department economist who made the survey. The national increase for the same period was 16 per cent, he said.

Despite this migration to cities, the South still is the most rural section of the country, Taylor said. Out of 88 per cent of the Southern population is rural as compared with 67 per cent of the national population as a whole.

33 Million in 12 States
 In 1930 there were 33,771,653 persons in the 12 Southern States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas and Tennessee.

If the rural population is divided into rural farm and rural farm villages of less than 2,500 inhabitants, it is found that 46 per cent of the people of the South live on farms, Taylor said.

For the country as a whole, only 25 per cent live on farms. In Northeastern states fewer than 10 per cent of the population lives on farms.

In 1900, three-fifths of all the gainfully employed persons over 10 years of age in the Southern states were on farms, Taylor said. In 1930 two-fifths were on farms.

Birth Rate Higher
 "One-fourth of the nation's population which lives in the South annually contributes one-third of the children born in the nation, Taylor said. Further, this area contributes nearly one-half of the excess births over deaths, that is, the natural increase in the population of the nation.

The South has more than its share of young persons, slightly less than its share of old persons, and considerably less than its share of persons in the middle-age group, Taylor said.

In the nation as a whole, slightly less than 3 out of every 10 persons are under 20 years. In the South, more than 4 out of every 10 persons are in this younger age group.

"The basic explanation of the age distribution of southern population can be found in two facts: first, the excessive migration from Southern states of young adults; and second, the dominance of rural population in the South, where there, as elsewhere, has more than its share of the middle-age group," Taylor said.

Exodus to East, West and Coast
 "Where do the people who leave the South go? There are three major streams: One flowing into the Northeast, chiefly into New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey; another flowing into the Middle West, chiefly Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and Michigan; and a third flowing into the West and Northwest, chiefly Colorado, Arizona and California.

"As one would be expected, the stream to the Northeast is mostly from Virginia, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina. The stream to the Middle West is mostly from Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky. And the stream into the West and Northwest is mostly from Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma," Taylor said.

Of southern migrants going into the Northeast, 88 per cent go to cities, 10 per cent to small towns and 2 per cent to farms. In the Middle West 80 per cent stop in cities, 10 per cent in small towns and 10 per cent on farms. In the West and Northwest, 60 per cent go to cities, 24.5 per cent to small towns and 15.5 per cent to cities, Taylor found.

had been raised west of the Mississippi river. The donations at the pie supper Friday night amounted to nearly $1000. The great object of the crusade is to start a great spiritual awakening.

Mrs. Dink Fulcher of Stephenville visited Mrs. S. T. Stover and family Sunday afternoon. The two friends had grown up together but had not seen each other in twenty years so it was a great pleasure for them to be together. Mrs. Fulcher was accompanied by her married daughter from Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Sparks, accompanied by Jack Powers, Earl Parks and Jim Hal Parks, drove over to Gorman Wednesday night and attended the picture show.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Davis and their daughter, Mrs. Aaron Henslee, who was visiting them, drove down to Brownwood Thursday and stayed until Friday night while Mr. Davis was being treated at the hospital there. Then on Sunday they went to Cisco where Mr. Davis entered a hospital where he will stay several days for treatment. His many friends hope he may soon recover entirely.

N. D. Gallagher was here on business Thursday.

Revival services began Sunday night at the Church of God. The pastor, Mrs. Earl Alexander, is being assisted by a preacher from Olney.

Missionary Society was for the Spiritual life group program which was an informal hour of Bible study, prayer and personal experiences. During a few minutes business session, it was voted that the president, Mrs. Charles Lee should order thirty packages of Sun-Gold Sandwich Spread which comes in several flavors. Most of the advance orders were for Black Raspberry. The Society gets a nice commission on the sale of this quick-making jelly. Those present this week were: Mmes. C. A. Brazz, G. S. Bruce, O. D. McDonald, W. H. Whitworth, Charles Lee, W. C. Bedford, Miss Valla Whitworth, and little Charles Bragg who was presented with his certificate of Life Membership.

Mrs. A. C. Moore and Mrs. J. H. Rushing, Sr. were among the large number of Desdemona people who went to Gorman to the picture show on Tuesday night of last week to hear the Desdemona Glee Club sing several numbers, all of them being much enjoyed.

The Desdemona Glee Club and the leader, Jack Enoch, went to Gorman on Tuesday night of last week and gave a program at the New Deal Theatre. The Glee Club won first place in the county contest and then went to Denton and won third place in the state contest. Mr. Enoch has a splendid reputation as an instructor and leader of choral clubs and Desdemona has been quite fortunate in having him as one of the high school faculty this year.

Saturday night at the high school in the Home Economics room, a banquet was given honoring the pupils of the 7th grade who will graduate from the Grammar school in a few weeks. The banquet was planned and arrangements for it were made by Principal Prestsch Sparks who was assisted by the other teachers of the Grammar school and also by Mmes. Wiley Power, Roy Ashburn, A. C. Moore and Ed Hansen. The banquet motif was the "Circus" and it proved attractive and amusing. There were thirty-five present besides the teachers and the four mothers who assisted in serving.

Mrs. Cliff McCoy and little son, Dale, of McCamey, have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hansen, the past week. Mrs. McCoy has been suffering from sinus trouble and has been going over to Gorman for treatment.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Olive Ayres had improved enough to be able to be brought home Saturday. She was able to be up part of the time but is not entirely well yet. She had been in the hospital at Ranger for two weeks.

WOMEN WHO ARE WEAK

 Mrs. Robert Newton of Route 6, Little Rock, Ark., said: "Some time ago I suffered from nerves, and felt weak and all played out. When I had taken part of a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I noticed a decided improvement, and it required only a couple of bottles of it, taken as a tonic, to help me in every way. I was soon enjoying a keen appetite and had the strength necessary to carry on." Buy now.

Dusts May End Silica Dangers

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—Two University of Wisconsin scientists have discovered a means of combating silicosis, a disease dangerous to miners and other industries where workmen breathe deadly silica particles into their lungs in rock dust.
 Prof. R. C. Emmons, mineralogist, and Ray Wilcox, graduate student, after two years of research have published in "The American Mineralogist" their theory that the preventive for this dust disease is more dust. They pointed out that certain "protector dusts" mingled with the silicate dust, enable the body to use effectively its own disease-attacking weapons, the phagocytes, or scavenger cells.
 Unless the silica dust is mixed with protector dusts in the lungs the silica particles escape these cells, the scientists found. They discovered a double reason: that the silica particles when absorbed into the lung walls and dissolved into a poisonous solution are so infinitesimal they can slip through the walls of the scavenger cells and that if a cell does collect several silica particles they give off an electric charge that repels other particles and prevents the cell from reaching them.
Opposing Particles Found
 Emmons and Wilcox then looked for dusts whose particles bore the opposite electric charge, thus would be attracted to the silica particles. They found that carbon hematite and calcite dust carried the opposite electric charge and their particles would join the silica particles, neutralizing their charge and marking them large enough for the cells to collect.
 Effectiveness of the method will not be known until it has been tested by university pathologists when experiments on animals, the mineralogists said.
 If the method proves effective, they pointed out, it can be applied by simply scattering "protector dusts" into air containing silica dust.

1936 Largest Year For Fruit Growers

CHICAGO, April 29 (UP)—American fruit growers pocketed more dollars in 1936 than they had for three years, a report by the American Fruit and Produce Association showed.
 Gross sales in 10 city auctions from New York to Chicago brought a return of $131,015,740 in 1936, an increase of more than per cent over 1935 and of 2.7 per cent over 1933.

Traffic Rules to Be Drastic for 36 Hrs.

LONDON (UP)—The London Transport Board and Scotland Yard traffic experts, after six months' work, have evolved a plan to deal with the 36-hour Coronation rush of May 11, 12 and 13. The arrangements deal with all transportation facilities including the police regulations of private cars and taxicabs.
 The Underground service, which does not operate all night under ordinary conditions, will be open all the night prior to Coronation Day. Twelve of the less important stations will be closed May 12 to prevent delay. Four stations along the route of the Royal Procession will not be opened until after the procession has passed.
 Bus and trolley service will be more frequent during that period with special emphasis being placed on improving the night schedules. The suburban trains also will extend their schedules to meet the demand.
 A large area surrounding the route of the Coronation procession will be closed to ordinary vehicular traffic and the actual route has been divided into six parts. A map supplied by the Transport Board shows the six parts in different colors and gives the easiest means of reaching and leaving the different parts.

BILLY ROSE TO DRILL FOR OIL IN FORT WORTH

FORT WORTH, April 30 — "An actual drilling well—not a make-believe affair—but the real McCoy with flaming boiler, hissing steam pending drill, eighty-foot derrick a bull-wheel, calf-wheel, driller and tool-dresser, will be shown at the Fort Worth Frontier Fiesta," declares Billy Rose, director-general. The little Barnum, who received $100,000 for putting on the magnificent Fort Worth Frontier Centennial last year, packed 'em in by the multiplied thousands. His Casa Manana grossed almost $1,000,000. Having found a treasure above the ground, Rose is going to seek treasure beneath the surface, too, along with his Casa Manana Revue and other super-shows of the Fort Worth Frontier Fiesta. He's in earnest and the City Council has already issued a permit for an 8,000-foot test at an estimated cost of $80,000. One of the most experienced contractors in the oil industry has agreed to direct operations. "It is the most picturesque of industries and Texas is, of course, the greatest oil state in the Union," Rose says. "Yet, three-fourths of the people right here in Texas never saw a well at close range." With all his interest in the oil test, Rose is busy with plans for the Casa Manana Revue of 1937 in new acts, scenery, costumes—with Harriett Hooter, world's greatest ballerina; Everett Marshall former Metropolitan Opera singer; Paul Whiteman and his orchestra; the Cabin Kids—and over in his Finner Palace Honky-Tonk Revue Rose will feature the Original Dixieland Jazz Band, creators of "swing". The Frontier Fiesta opens June 26 and runs through October.

VETO IGNORED BY SENATE IN 'JOINT RULES'

AUSTIN, April 30. (U.P.)—The Texas senate today ignored a vote of the legislature's joint rule by Governor Allred and continued to act under the rules adopted April 22.

The governor for the first time in history had vetoed the rules asserting that they permitted a minority to block the will of the majority. Allred claimed the veto right under the constitution.

The vetoed rules provided for adjustment of differences between house and senate by conference committee.

Immediately after the governor's veto was read in the senate a conference committee was appointed. There was informal discussion if there could be a conference committee under the veto but no senators raised that as a point of order.

In the house, the veto met mild applause. Allred said the rules had been used to prevent a direct vote on race track betting repeal.

"It is high time to protect the majority instead of the minority," Allred said. "When it has become possible to block the will of the people by a minority."

"I am not discussing these rules solely from the standpoint of repeal of the racetrack gambling law. On its face, this particular rule does show what could happen to the repeal bill at a special session, but let me point out where we would be on other matters. Taxation, for instance,—perhaps the most pressing problem of all."
