Court Dissolves Beer Election Injunction

COURT HOLDS ELECTIONS TO BE NECESSARY

Holding without jurisdiction, 91st district court Thursday dissolved a new injunction granted recently which enjoined canvassing by Commissioners court of return in the May 1 beer election.

"It is the settled law of this state that elections are essentially the exercise of political power and that the canvassing of the returns of the election is necessary to determination of the results," George L. Davenport said in rendering a decision.

Dissolution of the injunction which was granted to beer retailers and wholesalers was in recognition of a motion filed by Commissioner's Court, Criminal District Attorney Earl Conner Jr. after the testimony in the hearing had been completed, asked the court to dissolve the injunction for the reason that it had no jurisdiction to interfere with the action of County Judge and Commissioners' court in canvassing the returns and declaring the results of the election.

Commissioners' court, advised of the court's action dissolving an injunction, made immediate preparation to canvass the returns to further results. Members of the court were in session at the time the order was made.

At the same time, the court, when rendering its decision said the "holding only relates to the motion to dissolve the injunction and does not effect the trial of the case on its merits which will be heard during the June term of this court but has the effect of leaving the county judge and commissioners court free to complete their work of canvassing the votes and declaring the results from the election."

Unofficial returns of the election show a victory for drys in the proposition all liquors shall be prohibited from sale in this county.

Wets in the hearing of the case upon its merits will protest that the issue should have been upon 14 per cent beer and wine which were legalized last year.

A Fishing Fable Comes to Life

A small boy, a fishing rod, and a BIG fish--all of this hal-lowed American idyll came true for Ray Knox, 10, when he hauled this fabulous bass from the San Joaquin river delta near his home in Stockton, Calif. The fish, scaling 29 pounds, was the envy not only of many an adult angler, but of the family cat, below, as well.

ALLRED ASKS BETTING LAW REPEAL TODAY

AUSTIN, May 27 (U.P.)--Governor James V. Allred, dressed in white linen, today appealed to the Texas legislature to repeal the State race track betting law.

The plea was made to a joint session of the house and senate convened to wipe out the parimutuel act of 1933.

History repeats itself, the Governor reminded the present legislature, which includes one member of the legislature that first prohibited horse race betting in 1909 Ben Cathey of Quitman was a member of the 31st legislature.

Allred retorted the futile attempt to get a final senate vote on repeal at the regular session adding:

"I regret that the state has been put to the expense of this special session, but in simple honor and in justice to my conscience, I could not do otherwise. I earnestly urge that no effort be made to keep the bill from coming to a final, fair and clear-cut vote."

Five bills on racing were tendered to the house as the session opened. Speaker Robert Calvert drew names of the representatives offering the bills from a hat. The first slip bore the name of Representative Conde Hoskins of Gonzales. His bill asked straight out repeal of the parimutuel law effective August 1, 1937.

Two bills to allow counties to decide for or against parimutuels in local option elections were offered. "Repeal of the race track gambling law will remove the temptation, the opportunity, and to some extent the inclination to gamble," Allred said.

Less of state revenue was termed a "weak and shallow" argument. "If we are to accept tribute from an evil which all concede is bad, then let us legalize all forms of vice. Texas doesn't need gambling revenues," he said.

Investment in racing plants was discussed.

"We're not these investments made with full notice of the temper of the people of Texas?" Allred asked.

C. I. O. STRIKE CRIPPLES BIG STEEL WORKS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 27 (U.P.)--With increasing bitterness, a strike sponsored for the Committee for Industrial Organization crippled three of the country's biggest independent steel producers today.

The strike was called by the CIO's field workers to force union contracts upon the Republic Steel Corporation, third largest in the United States; the Youngtown Sheet & Tube Company, and the Inland Steel Corporation.

In a score of their major units in the Ohio and Chicago steel centers, furnaces were cooled and machinery stopped. More than 50,000 of the company's 90,000 employees were on strike, or were kept away by pickets.

Van Bittner, regional director for the steel workers, charged in a telegram to President Roosevelt that the Republic Corporation was in a "conspiracy to violate the national Labor Relations Act" and "has enlisted the support of a captain and other high officers of the Chicago Police Department."

Bitter asked that the Justice Department be directed to investigate the "heinous scheme."

Cisco Boys Made Corporals at JTAC

STEPHENVILLE, May 27--M. P. Barnes and Durwood Boyd, students in John Tarleton, were presented the commission of Corporal in John Tarleton ROTC Cadet Corps last Monday morning at the John Tarleton commencement exercises. The final retreat parade of the 1936-37 cadet corps was held on the Tarleton drill field last week. The cadet corps was this year highly commended by Major R. O. Page of Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio inspector officer for the Eighth Corps area.

Judge Victor B. Gilbert, formerly of Cisco, is vacationing here this week.

BEARMAN TEST SHUTS DOWN TO CEMENT CASING

The 6-inch casing has been set and cemented at 3,520 feet in the Bearman townsite well on the R. L. Poe tract in the southern part of the city and work has been shut down until Sunday when work of pulling the large casings and further drilling to the Marble Falls structure will begin. It was reported this morning by R. A. Bearman.

Ineffectual efforts to case off water found in the hole after a gas showing in the Lake Eastland sand, by running the 6-inch casing and mudding at the bottom, made undreaming necessary after the well had been drilled to 3,520 feet. This work was completed Wednesday and the well was Halliburtoned this morning and work suspended for cement to set.

An interesting sidelight on the Luce well of which this is really an offset, was revealed by Bruce Grosse, driller for that well, who said that production was obtained at 3,624 which was either the bottom of the Marble Falls or the top of the Ranger sand, and that no oil was found in the Lake sand.

PROGRAMS TO BE HELD 8:15 IN AUDITORIUM

Honor students and program numbers have been released for both high school and grammar school graduates who are to get their certificates of graduation the one from four years of high school work taking them into colleges of affiliation; the other, certificates showing they have completed work of the lower and grammar grades to enter the high school for four years of training to fit them for life, or for entrance into some college or university for further qualifying them to live their individual lives as useful citizens of this great country.

The high school program will be held at the high school auditorium Tuesday night, 8:15, June 1, following the baccalaureate sermon to be preached by Dr. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist church, Sunday evening at the school auditorium, May 30.

The Grammar school program will be held at the high school auditorium, Friday evening, May 28, at 8:15 o'clock.

Post Office to Close All Day Monday

L. H. McCrea announces that the post office will be closed all day Monday on account of Memorial Day which is Sunday. The office will observe Monday instead.

There will be no mail delivered at windows, rural routes or otherwise on that day, but mail will be placed in boxes and dispatched on trains.

MAGNOLIA TO BEGIN STATION BUILDING TODAY

Announcement was made today of the letting of contract for a new Magnolia station at the corner of G Avenue and Eighth street, on the location of the former W. K. Johnston Grocery store. Cisco Lumber & Supply company has the contract for work which starts today to be finished about July 1.

The present brick building will be remodeled into a modern, equipped station with the latest service station conveniences of 3 electric computing pumps, enclosed wash and lubrication housing with hydraulic lift power for the lubrication unit.

This station places this major company on the new highway as designated for Eighth street and will be in keeping with architectural beauty of Magnolia stations everywhere, said J. B. Pratt, local distributor of these popular products.

COW UPSETS POLICE RADIO

BOSTON (U.P.)--Cruising Patrolmen John Devlin and Arthur Jobert were puzzled when their prowl-car radio began blaring static. Down the street they found the answer--a cow munching the antenna that had been chewed off the rear of their automobile.

WEATHER

EAST TEXAS--Mostly cloudy, probably showers in western tonight or Friday.
WEST TEXAS--Probably showers, portions to.

About Our Friends

BY STEF A. LONG

THE MOST OF A GOOD THING is said, and much written, of the person who is the best of bad circumstances. Caricatures of paper are used telling how the boy born dumb, into a poverty-stricken family, with a drunkard father, a good education, and eventually fame and fortune.

Stories are told of the with a reprobate husband, who, unceasingly until she was completely reformed him and turned him into the desirable citizen.

A finite number of tales are told of persons who have themselves in all sorts of situations, and who by shrewd and intelligent application have worked themselves through those conditions and into states.

.....

It is all right. But why isn't it said about the individual who makes the most of good things? What about some of the boy who is born some where his parents have and refinement and intelligence who are anxious to give every help that a fellow could? What about some stories that sort of boy--telling of made use of every one of advantages?

.....

What about some stories of a man who finds herself a prince of a fellow, and appreciates her husband, 100 and helps him to rise still higher?

.....

What about some stories of people who are blessed in a thousand ways?

B. DENNING INVITED FOR SCOUT MEET

Invitation has been extended to B. Denning, Sr., of Dallas, president of the Lone Star Gas company, who is chairman of the tribo scout council of Texas, to attend a group of boy scouts to their parents on June 25 to them on matters pertaining to this organization. The invitation is being carried in a letter from E. P. Crawford, chairman of the scout group.

Denning will be in Cisco on occasion of the Lone Star picnic at Lake Cisco June 26. Since Denning is so prominently connected with the scout movement, it was felt possible that he could be invited for the address to the scouts which meets here on the day of the picnic event.

Jury Reported Lumber Suit Case

SENIORS WILL GET DIPLOMAS TUESDAY, JUNE 1, 8:15 O'CLOCK

Principal O. L. Stamey will present the awards. Supt. R. N. Cluck will present the class and Mrs. N. A. Brown, board member, will award the diplomas to 68 graduates of the Cisco high school Tuesday evening at 8:15, June 1, at the high school auditorium, when Dean K. G. Beger of McMurry College will speak to the group on the subject of "Leadership."

The names of the honor graduates will be released for publication Sunday. Most Valuable Boy, who is to be given an honor medal by the Rotary club, will be announced at that time.

This is an ordinary class so far as numbers are concerned, Mr. Stamey said, not nearly so large as the 1936 class which was the largest in the history of the school, but it has been a hard working one and deserves the honors of graduation which is about to be bestowed upon them, the principal continued.

Senior program as follows:

Presiding Senior, Joe Slicker.

Time to Swat the Fly

Swat that fly! Especially important, swat the first flies! Since a female lays 120 eggs at a time and a generation is produced every tenth day, the first fly to appear may increase to amazing numbers before the summer is over, every one of them spreading disease and filth.

For their size flies probably carry more filth than any other living thing. Their cup-shaped feet and hairy legs bring filth from the dirtiest places on your lot or your neighbor's lot.

"The kind of bacteria the fly brings depends on where he has been. Flies carry all kinds of disease germs—tuberculosis, smallpox, typhoid, infections of the skin, pink eye, cholera, dysentery, etc.

"What to do about flies? Screen—more screen, better screens. Small mesh screen. Screens which fit. Screens which close tight and stay tight. Screens without sags, rips, or rents—screens that absolutely keep flies out of the house. Of course there are flytraps and fly paper, preventives, sprays, and the like. But in my opinion there is only one way to handle the fly question—prohibition by screens.

"The mesh of the screen should be not larger than 16; an 18-mesh would be better. Screen should cover the whole window, always on the outside. All porches, both front and back, should be securely screened. The porch should be boarded up at least one foot from the floor in order to prevent small animals from scratching holes in the wire or children from knocking holes. All chimneys should be covered by screen."

How a 15-Year-Old Girl Helped

An unusual little human interest story about a farm girl and her difficulties is this one:

"I am only fifteen but have been helping father take care of the family and had to handle most of the plans for increasing income and taking care of the family budget in 1936. At the beginning of the year we had 52 hens, 6 cows, 2 calves, 2 mules, 2 hogs, and a mare but the family was without money.

"By March we had enough money from eggs to buy 2 0 baby chicks. By June 15 we had sold the young roosters for $30.50 to take care of the feed bill. We planted more truck, corn, and hay, and less cotton. We made $62.50 on potatoes, $42.66 on beans, $57.31 on peas, $69.50 on tomatoes, $30.50 on cabbage, $30.33 on onions, $19.67 on lettuce and $37 on peanuts, watermelons, and cantaloupes, a total of $349.50 from truck products. We banked $337 of this.

"By July there had been a colt, four calves, and 11 pigs born on the farm. We sold the mare and colt for $175, which we banked. We sold two cows and calves for $90, which we used for feed bills. We sold a sow and six pigs for $25, and used that money for clothes.

"We made one bale of cotton, plenty of corn, and a lot of hay. By careful planning, wise spending, and studying farm papers, we reached the end of 1936 with $512 in the bank, 174 young pullets just beginning to lay, and a barn and silo full of feed. In 1937 we ought to make a better profit and a good living for the family.—NORVELLA SHUFFIELD Hot Springs County, Ariz.

CHAPTER I

"I MUSTN'T cry until I get home." This remark was not audibly spoken. It was simply a mental reminder that in spite of coldly disinterested theatrical and employment agencies, one did not burst into tears on a crowded New York street. The girl's name was Patricia and it suited her. Topaz-colored hair, blue eyes, long curling lashes, skin of warm ivory and rose. Although close to tears her proud little head was high and her round little chin jutted stubbornly.

Climbing the stairs of a five-story walk-up she silently commended with herself. "You're licked, Pats my girl. Just because the folks back home said you were an actress you spent your last cent to learn that you're a flop. You can't even get a job in the back row of a chorus. So what's the next step, if any?" And wistfully she thought, "I hope Trissy has beaten me home."

Opening the door of a tiny apartment she called hopefully and was answered by a cheerful voice from the kitchen. A girl appeared in the doorway. She bore a sharp resemblance to the colorful Pats; might have been her reflection in a mirror even, and strangely enough they both bore the same name, Patricia Hunt Warren. They were cousins and each had been named for her paternal grandmother. Trissy's home was on a small prune ranch in Oregon and Pats, eight years younger, had spent her life in a quiet Indiana city, reared by the grandmother for whom she was named.

TRISSY said excitedly, "Get ready for a thrill, darling," and Pats' eyes widened, sparkled. "I've got a job—a real job with a salary."

"Not really," gasped Pats. "Tell me."

"Well, this morning on the subway I overheard two girls talking about Don Monteray. It seems he fired his secretary again last week."

"Not Don Monteray, the movie star?"

"Yes, he's in New York for a few weeks. Lives at the Avalon on Park avenue. One of the girls on the subway had applied for the position without any luck. She said applicants had been streaming in by the dozen, but up to last night no one had been engaged."

"And so?" Pats was childishly eager.

"So I joined the throng. Waited until this afternoon before getting an interview."

"With Don Monteray?" breathlessly. "Did you talk to him?"

"Gracious, no. I saw an agent or somebody. Well, he hired me. She ended on a deep sigh of relief. "Now you can get your chance on the stage. It will take time, of course, but—"

"I'm no actress, Trissy," Pats broke in. "I only think I am."

Taking a theatrical makeup box and several other articles to the bureau, she set to work.

contagious that Pats joined her without knowing why. "Because I'm so homely. Isn't that a yell, Pats?"

"I don't think that's funny," said Pats, sobering.

"It is though. The whole setup is funny. Let me tell you about this Monteray fellow. The agent frankly told me that my negative appearance is the thing he liked because Don Monteray is absolutely fed up with beautiful women. Negative appearance," she mused. "John used to say I was beautiful."

"You are beautiful inside, Trissy. I know and John knows." Abruptly she turned to the table. "There's a letter from John."

"Where? Oh, Pats, let me have it." Trissy snatched the letter and tore at the envelope with trembling fingers. "I thought he'd never write again when I refused to go home." A slow flush spread over her pale face as she read the letter. Pats watched her anxiously. "He wants me to meet him in Minneapolis—to marry him."

Trissy went on in a queer hushed tone. "His invalid mother died a month ago, his last sister is educated and married. He's free at last, Pats, after all these years of waiting. Oh, John..." She blinked her eyes as if they smarted.

Pats put her arms around her, pressing the fragrant smoothness of her cheek against Trissy's. "I'm so glad, darling—so glad. When does he want you to come?"

what, Trissy. You go ahead and make your plans, we'll spend our last dollars on a few pretty things for you. It'll be fun, and I'll hustle around and find a job. It won't be hard—a bright girl like me."

TRISSY shook her head. "I wouldn't have a minute's happiness. I'll be Don Monteray's secretary. I'll write John and explain—he'll wait." She smiled but her eyes were miserable.

Pats wasn't listening. She stared fixedly at Trissy without seeing her. She seemed to be turning something over in her mind.

"Hm—" she said at last. "You marry your John and I'll take the job with Don Monteray."

Trissy laughed. She couldn't help it. "You're too good-looking. I can fix that. Wait here—don't move."

She vanished into the tiny bedroom, opened her trunk and searched wildly through the contents. Taking a theatrical makeup-up box and several other articles to the bureau she set to work. Pinning back her mop of golden curls she applied a thick dab of cream to her face and miraculously the roses were gone. Her skin appeared lusterless, gray, a little shiny. With a pencil she etched two outward slanting lines leading from nostrils to lips. Over her shining hair she pinned a sober wig of dark brown.

From the closet she took a suit of Trissy's, a suit bought for its durability. It was woefully unbecoming. The blouse fit her poorly, the skirt sagged wretchedly. Quickly she changed to cotton stockings of a muddy hue and low-heeled shoes of the health variety. As an added touch, mainly to disguise the delphinium blue of her eyes, she put on a pair of tinted sun glasses. Pulling her lips to a prim line she opened the door.

"Good morning, Mr. Monteray," she said in crisp, unnatural tones. "I have just killed two lady admirers. What shall I do with the bodies?"

Trissy stared in amazement. Then she laughed in a confused, half-frightened outburst. "You scare me, Pats. Is it really you? Where did you get the outfit?"

"Out of my trunk and the closet," she confided in her own charming voice. "I used this make-up in my theater training work."

Trissy rocked with laughter. "And they say you're not an actress."

"Who says so?" Pats inquired indignantly. "I'm not much of a secretary," she confessed, "but Don Monteray will never find it out. My typing is pretty good and I'll bluff about the shorthand."

Trissy was aghast. "You don't mean you are actually thinking of—"

"Let's have no more words about it. I am Don Monteray's new secretary and you are stepping out right now to send John you Wednesday in Minneapolis. Have the license." Determinedly she took her protesting cousin by the arm and together they headed toward the nearest telegraph office. (To Be Continued) different ways and who value those blessings, every one of them, and who do everything they can to make the fullest constructive use of those blessings, and who sit down at night and count up their opportunities, and check them over to see that they are letting nothing get by?

Well, tales of that sort aren't particularly interesting. They haven't much punch. There are no situations. It is just a plain everyday matter of having sense enough to know a good thing when one sees it. There isn't anything exciting about that. A fellow has to get himself in a hole, or be thrown in a hole, then get himself out of the hole, if his case is to grip public imagination; and sad it is, but true, that too often a man has to find himself in a hole before his case grips his own imagination.

200 San Antonio Shippers at Dinner

SAN ANTONIO, May 27 (U.P.)—Benefits to San Antonio derived from the opening of the Port of Corpus Christi were reviewed at a dinner of 200 San Antonio shippers. The business men were the guests of the navigation committee of Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce. The opening of the port was made through the support of San Antonio over a decade ago.

Reagan Houston, speaking in behalf of San Antonio, pointed out that the port had 193,920 square feet of storage space when it was opened in 1926. Now it has 480,354 square feet of storage space. Since the opening of the port 4,000,000 bales of cotton have passed through at a saving of $2 a bale—a total of $8,000,000.

WHERE DOES THIS GO?

IT'S NUMBER 14 A... IT FITS INTO A SLOT MARKED 14-B! JUST FOLLOW THOSE NUMBERS AND YOU CAN'T GO WRONG! I'LL BE BACK LATER!

OKAY!

SURE... THAT'S NUMBER NINE... IT MUST GO INTO PLACE ALONG THAT LINE MARKED WITH BLUE PENCIL! I WASN'T SURE IF IT WAS A 9 OR A 6!!

IT MUST BE A 9, BECAUSE I'VE ALREADY NAILED IN A BOARD MARKED 6! YOU CAN'T MAKE A 6 OUTTA THAT 9, UNLESS YOU TURN IT UPSIDE DOWN! AN' IF YOU START THAT, WE'LL HAVE THE WHEELS FASTENED ON THE ROOF!

BUT... WAS IT REALLY A NINE?
