Race Bill Repealed By a Vote of 94 to 13

ALLRED SIGNS MONDAY; LAW IN 90 DAYS

AUSTIN, June 4 (U.P.)—The partial racing law was repealed finally today in the Texas house of Representatives by votes of 94 to 13. Final senate vote yesterday was 18 ayes to 13 nos. Repeal will take effect 90 days after the present session, or about September 24. Governor Allred cannot sign the bill until Monday. It must wait to be signed by Lieutenant Governor Walter Woodul in the presence of the senate. The house both in committee and on the floor rejected an amendment to permit betting until October 10. This would have allowed a fall meet at Epsom Downs, Houston. A farewell meet at Arlington Downs is possible before repeal takes effect. Governor Allred, sitting in the house, said: "Am I happy? This is the will of the people." The house adjourned until Monday at which time the Governor is expected to submit dog race and bookie shops legislation.

RAINS TOTAL 2.6 INCHES AIDING CROPS

With an added 1.2 inches of rain last night bring the total this morning to 2.6 for the past few days. Crops no longer lack for moisture. The precipitation has been slow and with little run-off, most of it soaking into the dry, parched earth. Farmers say that since no wind has accompanied these rains thus far, there has been no damage to the grain crop which was ripe and ready to cut, some having already been harvested and shocked. These shocks will protect the grain from damage unless there should be long continued cloudy weather to sprout it, or wind to scatter the bundles. Corn and other crops and gardens will be greatly aided by the moisture. Grass in pastures will make growth to carry stock well through the summer months where it has not been grazed too close.

Packard announced that a sit-down strike of 150 workers had brought a partial shutdown to the body division where 2,500 workers are employed. Chrysler later announced that it had been forced to close its DeSoto plant to 1500 workers because of a shortage of motors and bodies provided by the idle Chrysler plants. Luck was certainly smiling on the Eastland bunch last night as every possible break was in their favor. Miscues contributed to three of Eastland's runs. Twice Sinclairs struck out with bases loaded. Watty Binnie, home from Wink where he played on the West Texas League, evidently was thinking he was still in Wink, as he let a line drive hit right at him, get by for a home run, said Coach Cooper.

It was only a part of Oklahoma City's Memorial Air show, but nothing could have been more realistically dangerous than this power dive bombing in which Maj. #### RAINS OVER WEST, SOUTH, EAST TEXAS

Special to Daily News
One death from lightning and several persons injured resulted Friday from rains, a tornado and hail storms in Texas. Shirlene Hayes, 15, was killed and her brother-in-law, C. O. Langston, was injured when lightning struck them as they stood in a farm yard 25 miles northwest of Big Spring. Others in the group were knocked down.

Four persons were injured and damage amounted to $100,000 as a tornado struck McCamey. Heavy rains, ranging from 1.18 at San Angelo and 1.03 at Ozona to 4 inches at McCamey drenched the area.

Severe electrical storms accompanied the rain as they ranged northward and eastward, with 63 of an inch at Amarillo, 1.06 at Wichita Falls, 1.18 at Lubbock, .9 at Abilene, 1.28 at Dallas, .5 at Palestine, 1.26 at Austin; .75 at San Antonio and heavy rains continuing and .28 at Del Rio.

Dallas had 1.28 inches. At Austin the rain totaled 1.26 at 7 a. m. and precipitation continued. The weather bureau said rains were general over central Texas.

Fort Worth and vicinity had 1.28 inches. Rains over western, eastern and southern sections of the state followed cloudbursts in the Panhandle "dust bowl", which resulted in flood damage amounting to more than $250,000.

Numerous derricks in the McCamey oil field brought in 12 years ago, were toppled by the wind and several hundred oil field workers were forced to seek emergency living quarters as their homes were splintered.

WORK RESUMES FOR BEARMAN PA-BAC TEST

Work is scheduled to resume on the Bearman test in south Cisco this afternoon at 4 o'clock, when water will be bailed out and drilling out the plug will follow, it was announced by R. A. Bearman today.

The first job of cementing failed to hold, because of placing too much pressure, it is thought, and the well was cemented a second time, being closed down the past 72 hours to allow the cement to set. If the present work is successful in shutting out water encountered in the Lake Eastland sand, it will not require long to reach the Marble Falls or Ranger sand, should production not be found earlier.

Bad for Railroads—Bad for Public

"Railroad service is a matter of vital concern to every person in the country," said a prominent railroad official recently. "We consume it indirectly practically every hour that we live and depend upon it for our very lives."

"To keep each person alive and supplied with needs and desires the railroads move a ton of material a little more than 10 miles every day. For this service the railroad receives less than 12 cents.

"From the money the railroad receives, six cents out of every dollar goes into the public treasury in the form of taxes. Forty-five cents goes into the payroll. Every hour of every day the railroads pay for services and materials $495,000.

"The public has a proper concern with rates charged by the carriers, but these rates have much less to do with cost of living than is generally supposed. When the purchaser in New York buys a pound of ham that was packed in Omaha, he pays about 60 cents. Three-fourth of one cent of that is for hauling on the rails between the two cities.

"The public needs to be much more concerned with the quality of the service rendered. Our prosperity and our standards of living are much more affected by service than by price.

"The railroad question from the standpoint of the public interest is how to insure a continuation of the present efficiency, sufficiency and speed of service. Public opinion largely will determine the answer. Service will depend upon earning power. Earning power will depend upon the kind of regulation to which railroads are subjected.

"Same, judicial and expert regulation will permit efficient and economical management to furnish a service that will be increasingly good and in the end less costly to the public.

"Regulation animated by political consideration will so hamper and burden railroad operation as to destroy efficiency and add to the cost that must eventually be borne by the public.

"In short, nothing that is bad for the railroads can be in the public interest."

Teachers by Choice

A professor of education at the University of Cincinnati has got himself into a peck of trouble by stating his belief that "too many unhappy old maids" are teaching school. He was so bold as to express this opinion at the Hamilton County Teachers' Institute in the presence of about 500 women teachers. One member of his audience rose to defend her fellow-teachers with the words: "I venture to say there isn't an unmarried teacher in this room who didn't at one time or another have an opportunity to marry. We chose a career rather than a home; it is only recently that a woman has been able to have both."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Supreme Court Justice Willis Van Devanter resigned from the bench when he did, according to friends, because he had been wanting to resign for some time and the new retirement law pensioning justices at $20,000 a year strengthened his desire. He figured that Roosevelt's proposal to pack the Supreme Court was in all probability licked. He relished the thought that if there were still life in the plan his resignation at the psychological moment, just as the Senate Judiciary Committee was about to vote on the proposal, might serve as a final blow.

There is no question, however, that the resignation did serve as a coup de grace for the President's Supreme Court bill in its present form. It was the signal for a quick change in White House strategy and private admissions for the first time that Roosevelt would have to make much larger concessions toward a compromise than he had anticipated.

It was the first time anyone could remember when the President wrote a letter accepting a resignation without addressing the resigning official by his first name. It wasn't "My dear Willis;" it was "My dear Mr. Justice Van Devanter." And the President was hardly in a position to express regrets. For that matter, the justice did not write to "Dear Frank," either.

JIM FARLEY, who calls himself the administration's "whipping boy," is taking another beating, and it's his own fault. New attacks were launched on him when he was quoted as saying, apropos the decision of two Democratic senators on the judiciary committee to vote with the opposition. "When Senator O'Mahoney comes down here wanting help on some sugar legislation, his conscience won't be bothering him, will it? Or when Senator McCarran wants aid for his state?" Although this was seized upon as a public threat of punishment for Democrats failing to support the President, friends of Farley say he was speaking more in sorrow than in anger, as if to say: "Those are our own boys and they're going to be ashamed of themselves."

THE administration could have had a favorable report from the Norris amendment to its court bill requiring concurrence of more than two-thirds of the members of the court to invalidate an act of Congress—if it had asked its forces on the committee to support that proposal.

Senators Hatch of New Mexico and O'Mahoney of Wyoming voted for the Norris plan, although both were among the 10 committee members who voted against the Roosevelt bill. But Chairman Henry F. Ashurst and other Roosevelt supporters voted against it, defeating it.

Norris intends to bring up his amendment on the Senate floor, however, and suspects that it might pass the upper house. It is reported that Roosevelt is not unfavorable to the idea, which suggests that he might accept it as part of a compromise arrangement.

OUT OUR WAY

stead of growing stale in their jobs, he finds them going to summer school to learn the most advanced educational methods, or traveling to widen their outlook and develop themselves along social and cultural lines. Unquestionably, the professor could find examples to illustrate his statement. There are misfits in many walks of life. In the teaching profession, the misfit may have more opportunity to harm others as well as be unhappy herself, because she—or he—is working with growing young minds and personalities. In the school room, particularly, there should be love of the job for itself. Fortunately, that is probably the case more often than its opposite.

DESDEMONA

By MRS. W. C. BEDFORD. Miss Ruth Browning of Freer visited her grandmother, Mrs. John Browning at her home at Ellison Springs, west of town, last week. Rev. and Mrs. O. D. McDonald, accompanied by Mrs. W. H. Whitworth, drove down to Fort Worth Monday to attend the commencement exercises at T.W.C. Mrs. Whitworth's daughter, Miss Mignon Whitworth is one of the graduates and has made a splendid record at the college, being an honor roll pupil the whole year. She was chosen as one of the princesses to attend the May Queen at the Annual May Festival last week. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Davis attended the picture show at Gorman Wednesday night. Mrs. Jake Smith, who has lived in San Antonio for several months

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Abel and was reared here, graduating from our high school two years ago. The groom lives at Coahoma where he has a good job with one of the oil companies. The bride had been visiting friends at Coahoma several days before her marriage. They came home Saturday for a short visit with her parents. Mr. Baker returned to Coahoma Sunday evening but his bride will remain several days. Their many friends are extending congratulations and best wishes to the happy couple. Mrs. Style McEntire and baby James Edwards, left several days ago for Odessa to make their home. CONTRACT WIFE

CAST OF CHARACTERS: PATRICIA WARENE, heroine, secretary to Don Monteray, actor-playwright. THOMAS WARENE, Pats' cousin and roommate in New York. DON MONTERAY, Patricia's boss-superior. ROSAMOND AKERS, Patricia's rival. Yesterday, Pats attracts Don's attention at the Coronet tea garden. CHAPTER VIII. AT 4 o'clock on Friday afternoon Pats sat at a remote table in the well-bred elegance of the Coronet Tea Garden. Music whispered, fountains splashed, couples murmured. She wore a clinging gown of deep blue. The gorgeous fur collar of a smart little jacket framed her flushed, expectant face. Her hat was extremely becoming. There was no hint of uneasiness in her manner as she sat and cold by turns. Suppose Don had thought better of it—suppose he had forgotten. Then she saw him. His eyes rested on her questioning. Then he strode between the tables. Diffidently, almost shyly, he extended his hand. "Good afternoon, Goldlocks," he said. Pats gave him her hand, raised smiling eyes, then dropped them in confusion. "But you are Don Monteray," she exclaimed in pretended dismay. It was as if she felt disappointment, even a slight resentment. "Your pet abhorrence?" he laughed with a touch of embarrassment. "Oh, I wouldn't say that," she sobriety. "But I'd rather—" Leaving the sentence unfinished she looked down uncertainly. "I'm sorry," Don said humbly. "But I'm afraid I can't change my name." This was a new feminine claim. He had never before been called upon to live down his name, so to speak. In fact it had always been the open sesame, the magic key. "It doesn't matter," Pats picked up her purse and prepared to rise. "I think I don't care for tea today." "Oh, please," Don looked alarmed. "I shall be the one to go. But surely there is no harm in drinking a cup of tea together." Pats regarded him with troubled eyes. "I'm not in the habit of meeting married men—not even for a cup of tea." From Don's amazed expression she knew he had completely forgotten the episode in Jersey City. HE started to say, "I have no wife," but stopped with his daughters and Mrs. J. H. Rushing Jr. drove over to Gorman Wednesday night and attended the picture show. Friday afternoon Scoutmaster Prestor Sparks, accompanied by nine members of the scout troop hiked to Herrington Lake, four miles north of town, where they enjoyed fishing, swimming and games and sleeping on the ground. The boys carried coffee, bacon bread and other things for their meals which they cooked over the camp fire. They returned Saturday morning. The boys who went with Mr. Sparks were: Jack Powers, Calvin Williams, Max Bailey, Neely Maltby, Forrest Kith, Donald Collins, Charles Nicholson, Charles Warren, Joe David Lohman. J. H. Rushing Jr. and Earl Abernathy returned Thursday afternoon from Freer where they had visited for a few days. Mrs. Roy Rushing who had been visiting here and at Salem went home with them. During the time Mrs. Rushing was here she spent one afternoon at Caden where she went with Mrs. L. N. Williams to visit Mrs. W. C. Stark who is still seriously ill. Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Rushing are members of Desdemona Eastern Star Chapter. Mrs. M. R. Turner of Fort Worth came last week for a visit with her brother, John O'Rear and her sisters, Miss Mollie O'Rear and Mrs. Annie Daniel. Sunday night, in connection with the rain that fell between 6:30 and 12, there was an electrical storm that exceeded in length of time and in brilliancy any that have occurred here in years. The lightning flashed from every part of the sky and the thunders rolled and rumbled. About 8 o'clock there was one clap of thunder that made people rush to their doors to see where it struck but only those living near found out at once that it had struck Mr. and Mrs. Tom Nabers at their home. Mrs. Nabers was standing at the kitchen sink having just turned off the water when the lightning seemed to come right in the room and she crumpled to the floor. Mr. Nabers, who stood near, was also knocked unconscious but just for a minute. He began applying restoratives but it seemed Mrs. Nabers would not revive so he ran across the street to get help. As T. L. Acree started to go over there he was knocked off his porch by another bolt, but soon was all right. Mrs. Nabers was unconscious for quite a long time. The Methodist Missionary Society met on Monday of last week at the home of Mrs. Charles Lee who was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. C. C. Bragg. It was the first time the members had met at the Lee home since it was remodeled a few months ago and they were interested in seeing the many improvements that had been made. It was always comfortable and convenient but is more so now as well as more attractive. After a short devotional and business meeting, the hostess passed needles, thimbles and thread and tea towels that were embroidered by the members. The towels will be given to the church for use in the little kitchenette. Those present were: Miss Mollie O'Rear, Mrs. S. E. Snodgrass, G. (CONTINUED ON PAGE THREE)

Peace of Mind Will Make Pilots Safer

DALLAS, June 3 (AP)—Mental fitness alone will not qualify pilots of the future to fly giant passenger ship. They will have to have an unruffled home life and a complete peace of mind before they will be allowed to pilot passenger planes.

Such is the policy predicted by R. C. Stunkel, assistant operations manager of Braniff Airlines, in an address before a Dallas luncheon club.

"Although a man may be in perfect physical condition, he may be unfit to fly," Stunkel explained. "Several companies already have begun submitting their pilots to tests of a psychiatric nature to determine if they are laboring under mental strain."

"Worries about finances, sickness in his family, a troubled home life or any of many things may render a pilot unfit to fly."

"Every possible device to insure safety has been installed on ships.

No Door in County Court Jury Room

BEAUMONT (AP)—The county court jury room in Beaumont's modern, skyscraper county court house has no door.

Rearrangement of quarters for the old age assistance of department switched the jury room to a different section of the building. The private office of District Assistant Director George T. McGee was taken over as a jury room. Two doors in his former office were boarded up and the walls plastered solid.

That left the room entranceless. The only means of access to the room at present is up a stepladder from the ground and through a window.

But it will work out dandy, officials say. A new door will be cut in the partition dividing the new jury room from an adjoining courtroom. Until the work is finished, however, jurors will have to climb to reach their place of deliberation.

Garden Terracing Is Urged by Agent

"If your garden plot is higher on one end than the other try making crooked rows to hold the moisture," said Miss Ruth Ramey, county home demonstration agent at the meeting held June 1st at the home of Mrs. N. E. Jenson.

Miss Ramey also stressed the fact it is wise to buy the best quality of seed to get the best results.

To kill the toxin, which is in all canned foods, and which cause ptomaine poisoning, boil the food at least ten minutes before serving. Even leftovers should be reheated as the toxin may form in 24 hours. It is not always the tin which is poison.

I used to be a Private Secretary

Before I married, I mean. Which was three years ago. But I still remember—and I'm never going to forget—how my boss ran his business.

I never saw such a successful man. When I first started to work for him, I thought he was just lucky. But I learned differently after I was with him for a while.

He never gave out a contract—never bought a thing, mind you—until he had studied all the bids made him, and compared all the points. I used to collect and file them for him, so he could get the facts when he needed them. So I know.

I know now, all right. That's the way I run my home. Only I don't have to collect and file my bids. I get them regularly in my newspaper. And do I study the advertisements carefully before I buy? You're telling me!
