A Timely Warning

The imminence of the Fourth of July gives point to a warning just issued by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. The society reminds us that for all the progress we have made toward the goal of a "safe and sane fourth," that holiday still witnesses hundreds of serious accidents from fireworks. Its tabulations for the Fourth of July last year show that 24 persons were killed in accidents of this sort and 6,950 injured. There were 24 cases in which loss of sight was suffered, and 539 more in which celebrants suffered some damage to the eyes.

The greatest casualties, of course, were among children who might have been spared disfigurement, blindness or death if there had been a little more parental care and supervision. The appeal of the society, therefore, is directed primarily toward parents. If they will take the trouble to direct the natural enthusiasms of their children on the Fourth, and to warn them of the tragic price that carelessness with fireworks too often exacts, they will be handsomely rewarded.

The average child is irresponsible in such matters and sorely needs the counsel and advice which will assure his safety. So long as that is lacking, our Fourth of July celebrations will be marred by many tragedies, and despite every organized community effort to make them safe and sane.

Six Steps to Ruin

Unless the constantly widening gap between the government income and outgo is closed, writes Roger W. Babson, one of the outstanding American economists, six financially ruinous consequences will result:

- First, continued deficits ultimately lead to fear of government credit. Second, unsound public credit means unwillingness to lend the government money to pay its bills. Third, the paper money falls like a meteor in value as prices shoot sky-high. Fifth, the buying power of salaries, wages, savings accounts, insurance policies, and bonds drops to practically nothing. Sixth, the ruined, starving middle-class take the reins of government by force to bring order out of chaos.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Mr. Roosevelt tends to segregate people into two groups which, for purposes of simplification, might be called the goodies and the baddies. I have been obvious that most of the people who are in the White House are goodies and public utilities magnates. Nevertheless, it is a curious thing that the lawyers almost from the beginning have been jumping on the President's back in spite of the fact that the relation created a harvest of lawsuit fees beyond their wildest dreams and it is at least equally curious that New Deal legislation keeps right on promising pots of gold to the profession. Now the lawyers are being handed two more trays of plums in the new wage and hour, and agriculture control bills. "Any person aggrieved by an order of the board under this act," says the wage and hour bill, may obtain a review of the order's legal validity before a circuit court of appeals. The court could also order additional evidence to be taken by and upon such terms and conditions as to the court may seem proper." Since the bill is designed to cover the bulk of American employers and employees, the lawyers may well lick their chops.

The new AAA bill also provides for a final appeal to the courts by any farmer who is dissatisfied with the determination of his soil depleting base acreage, normal yield and marketing quota. It also provides for inspection of books and records of food industries, commodity buyers, farmers and others interested in agricultural products—another probable source of much litigation.

THE left wing of the White House often doesn't know

thrift losses for every fire loss, according to the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives. The vacation months, when so many residences are empty and unguarded, provide ideal working conditions for the housebreaker. He does not have to be wary of sleepers who may wake momentarily and sound an alarm. He need have no fear that a dog's angry barking will reveal his presence. He can work leisurely and thoroughly.

If persons who are leaving their homes unoccupied even for a short time this summer will take the following precautions, they will add greatly to their protection and peace of mind:

- 1. Lock securely all doors, windows or other entrances to the house. 2. Inform the police that your house will be empty. They can keep watch on it and try the doors and windows at regular intervals. 3. Take with you or lock securely all jewelry, silverware, furs, valuable clothing and other articles easily converted into cash by a thief. 4. Be sure to suspend all deliveries, such as milk, papers, mail. A heap of newspapers or milk bottles on a porch are sure signs that a house is unoccupied.

In view of the increasing widespread threat of the burglary hazard to property, local citizens should take extra precautions at this time of the year. That is the most effective way they can aid crime control in the community.

Government Pays Publicity Agents

WASHINGTON—More than half a million dollars were paid by the Federal Government in 1936 to persons engaged in full time or allocated part-time publicity work, according to a report of the Brookings Institution. The Institution was engaged by Senator Byrd's committee on governmental reorganization to assist it in studying government costs.

The Institution's report cited the law as saying that no money appropriated by Congress shall be used for paying any publicity man unless specifically appropriated for that purpose.

"No specific appropriations for publicity experts have been made," the report said, "but it is safe to say this law did not put an end to publicity activities nor has it prevented employment of personnel men for that purpose."

Vision Needed Catholic Nurses

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—The nurse of today must be prepared to assist in the prevention of disease by teaching health, giving expert nursing service, and co-operating with the medical and other professions, thereby taking her place in the public health program of the nation, believes Sister M. Olivia, C.S.B., dean of the School of Nursing of the Catholic University of America.

"The nursing profession needs young women of vision, desire for service and devotion to altruistic aims," Sister Olivia said. "For them the opportunities are many."

Essentials of medical and surgical nursing, as well as obstetrics and child care, communicable disease and mental nursing, were emphasized by Sister Olivia in the nursing care of illness and its prevention.

Cheating Leaves Character Blur

KENT, O. (U.P.)—Prof. C. E. Satterfield, head of the English department at Kent State University, believes a person can not cheat on his character. Satterfield, who has been teaching for 20 years, says that a student who cheats on his character is ruined. Satterfield believes that students do as much cheating as high school students and perhaps more.

CAST OF CHARACTERS CORAL CRANDALL, heroine and senior at Elton College DAVID ARMSTRONG, Elton chemistry professor and Coral's husband DONNA ALLEN, Coral's sorority roommate HOYT MARQUIS, Coral's one-time fiance

Yesterday, David and Coral, suspected of selling the secret chemical formula, defied themselves. Their secret marriage, however, establishes the motive for the theft.

CHAPTER XII

THE silence which followed Professor Maxwell's words hung heavy and deep over the six people in the room. No one seemed willing to break it. At last David spoke, addressing himself to Bendorff, Maxwell and President Norton.

"Granted, that we disobeyed the university's wishes in the matter, I am still unable to see how our marriage provides the motive for the theft of the process. Even if I were forced to leave Elton, I feel positive I should be able to gain another position which would enable me to support my wife." He glanced proudly at Coral and held her hand tighter. "The money gained from selling the process to a chemical manufacturer without the permission of two colleagues would be in no way necessary to us. Besides, to the best of my knowledge, no attempt has been made to sell the process."

Professor Bendorff spoke quietly. "I have said nothing about this to anyone since the letter only arrived this afternoon, but I received a letter from the Allen Chemical Manufacturing Company in Chicago, signed by the president who is Donna Allen's father, saying that he had received a letter from someone at Elton signing himself DAVID CRANDALL, offering the process for sale. Mr. Allen had heard of the discovery through his daughter and felt sure that the letter was in some way spurious, since he knew that both Maxwell and myself were also instrumental in the discovery. The price asked for the process was $15,000." He pulled the letter from his vest pocket and handed it to President Norton. "David Crandall, is of course, a not very ingenious combination of the names of the two culprits."

CORAL and David were too stunned to speak, to answer by even a gesture of denial the accusing looks of Bendorff and President Norton. Professor Maxwell sat at the desk, his head in his hands, too deeply shocked by this last revelation to act further. Then Donna spoke. "I can clear up the matter of why they needed the money. Coral's father was $10,000 to the father of Hoyt Marquis, the boy whom she's tried to drag into this affair with me. He and Coral had been engaged for a long time, and when she tried to get out of it after meeting David, he threatened to have his father call in Mr. Crandall's loan on the day Coral graduated. Hoyt told me this himself, and Coral confirmed it. Obviously, if Coral could get the money she could save her father from financial ruin. The extra $5000," he glanced at Coral maliciously, "would just about pay for a nice, long honeymoon trip around the world until the storm blows over."

These words stung Coral out of the black lethargy of despair into which she had sunk. She rose to her feet. "I know that all these things piled together seem to point to our guilt. But I tell you it isn't so, that we are innocent. Don't condemn us without another chance. Let me talk to you, with no interruptions except from David. Give me 15 minutes. If, by the end of that time I haven't proved our innocence, do what you like." All nodded assent and Coral moved over near Donna.

Coral went on, imperturbably. "Donna, isn't it true that after I left you that Friday afternoon, you took Hoyt to the lab? Didn't you tell him about the process as you walked over there, and get him interested in talking to David about it?"

"Suppose I did," answered Donna in a low voice. "That doesn't prove anything. The process was stolen Thursday, and David Armstrong lent you his keys so that you could get into the lab and take it."

"That's not true, Donna, and you know it. I'll tell you what happened. Nobody was in the lab on Thursday. The process was not stolen till Friday. You and Hoyt went to the lab. David wasn't there, he was outside smoking, but the door was open and you went in. You showed Hoyt around, and just for fun, David's desk which you had seen at some time when you were working in the lab. You didn't notice that the paper on which the process was written was in the drawer, but Hoyt, while your back was turned, noticed it, pulled it out and read it, and was putting it in his pocket when you turned around and saw him. Isn't that

"No! No!" Donna cried hysterically. "It's all lies."

"Let me finish," said Coral. "Just then, David came back to the lab and you didn't have time to say anything to Hoyt. Later, when you had left the lab, you accused him of taking it. He probably denied it at first, but when you kept at him, I think he must have admitted it and told you he was going to use it against me. For instance, put the theft on David if I refused to marry him in spite of his other threats. He didn't know, then, that I was married. You agreed to keep quiet about it and nothing more happened until the next morning when you had breakfast with him."

Donna still kept her terrified silence and Coral went on. "The next morning, he outlined all his plans to you and you promised to keep the process for him. You didn't hide it in a very good place, and tonight I found it. She drew a long breath. "Can you deny that, Donna? Isn't that just about as it happened? Don't look away, Donna. It's true, isn't it? Answer me!"

Donna burst into a storm of tears. "All right, I'll tell the truth. It is true. Hoyt did take it. It was all about as Coral said. The reason I wrote the letter to my father was this. Hoyt told me he had some gambling debts which had to be paid soon. They came to about $3000. He told me that if I'd write the letter to my father offering to sell the process, he'd give me the extra money, I said I would, because I wanted to get away. . . . travel . . . and I knew Dad wouldn't give me the money because I hadn't worked here this year and had gotten into trouble with the dean, besides." She began to cry again. "I don't know what Dad'll do to me when he hears about this!"

"You should have thought of that before," Professor Bendorff said sternly. He turned to Coral and David. "I feel that I owe you both a very special apology, for after I received that letter I was convinced of your guilt. Please forgive me." Coral went over to Donna and slipped her arm around her shoulders. Please don't be too hard on Donna," she begged them. President Norton smiled at her. "You're a remarkable girl, Coral. As for Donna's punishment . . . we'll decide that later."

Governors Support Safety Campaign For Drivers' Uniform Arm Signals

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Widespread support has been pledged to a national safety campaign, instituted by the Kansas City Journal-Post in an effort to obtain uniform arm signals for drivers in all states. W. Laurence Dickey, editor, said today. The lack of uniformity in drivers' signals was pointed out by Dickey in a letter to governors of the 48 states. An investigation revealed that there were many methods used to indicate right hand turns, left hand turns, or to signal a slowing down or a stop. In 15 states it was found that the following signals were uniform: Arm extended downward—stop or slow. Arm extended straight out—left turn. Lack of a signal code or rules for drivers was found in 25 states, the Journal-Post survey revealed. Dickey said that many governors or their state officers had pledged support to some uniform signal plan. The consensus was that state legislation would be the best solution unless the Federal government should act. Governors were asked which plan they favored.

MANCHESTER, N. H. (AP)—Thirteen new industries are now located in the former Amoskeag Manufacturing company plant here, once the largest cotton textile plant in the world. The 13 concerns have leased or bought a total of 2,664,650 square feet of the total space since last Fall when the locally-financed Amoskeag Industries, Inc. took over the property. Industries include metal stampings, electrical wiring devices, retreading tires, gauze and cheesecloth, roll covering, electrical instruments, cotton textiles, interlining cloth, men's clothing, yarns machinery, and vesting products. Some 4,000 persons are expected to be employed during the next few months.

Supervisors of projects have been instructed to discharge 5 per cent of the workers on jobs each week to be completed July 15. Being off, it was brought out at the meeting, are old and inefficient workers and those of a type who will experience difficulty in finding work in other channels. Also discussed at the meeting was the impossibility of cities and counties, with finances low, sponsoring projects when the WPA requires 30 per cent of the total furnished by them. The sponsor total formerly was 20 per cent. It has been reported the sponsor percentage will be increased to 40 per cent of the total cost. Workers' Income Share Increases

WASHINGTON—Good news for the workman is contained in a recent report of the Department of Commerce giving figures on the 1936 national income. For it shows that the labor share of the national income last year was the highest on record. Total national income reached $62,656,000,000 of which 66.5 per cent, or $41,250,000,000 went to workers. Per capita income of employees last year increased $58 over 1935 to a total of $1,244. Total compensation to employees in 1936 was 14 per cent greater than in 1935. The entire national income was up $7,411,000,000 over the previous year. Among individual producers of income last year, the largest was manufacturing which provided $14,253,000,000. The government was next with $9,243,000,000, inclusive of work relief wages. The figures were for "income paid out" meaning wages, dividends, interest, royalties, rent and similar costs. "Income produced"—the net

Arthur Easto who flew here with his bride, Janice Jump, to be married, two days later was lodged in Los Angeles county jail facing charges of parole violation for marrying without permission. Then P. O. Hartley, who acted as best man for East, was sent to the Burbank, Cal., jail on charges of issuing a $100 check to pay for use of the plane used on the wedding trip without sufficient funds. Then on his next trip Pilot Rodrick Keenan of the bridal plane crashed at Santa Maria. He was killed.

JULY just around the corner
For many of us, July is the grandest month of all. All year we have been looking forward to vacation, dreaming of a lazy surf rolling up to our sand-buried toes, or finding new reasons for drinking in deep breaths of clear mountain air.
But before our vacation dream comes true, many things must be done—many things must be bought. And there is no better way of deciding vacation needs than by careful study of the advertisements in this newspaper. They are filled with good suggestions, with real opportunities.
These advertisements are more than today's buying news; they are forecasts of tomorrow's necessities. Read and buy now—and you'll have a happier time next month!
Advertisements are news. Vital, practical news.

CITY PROTESTS TEXAS RANGERS IN FORT WORTH

AUSTIN, June 22 (UP)—Fort Worth legislators in the house of representatives today failed to secure introduction of resolutions demanding an investigation and withdrawal of state Rangers sent to Fort Worth for the Lone Star Gas Company strike.

ALLRED RECEIVES MANY PROTESTS

FORT WORTH, June 22 (UP)—Texas Rangers continued their vigil at the Lone Star Gas Company shops today as protesters rang upon Governor Allred from city officials and the Gas Consumers Association.

Twelve Rangers were ordered here Monday to "prevent violence" and to insure that service work was done and regular monthly meter readings taken.

Mayor W. J. Hammond shifted all responsibility in the strike to Rangers.

"Since the Rangers were sent here unsolicited by the city police," he said, "any violence or destruction of property will be their sole responsibility."

Silent Order Testify By Dispensation

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (UP)—Three Cistercian monks, sworn to silence for life, testified orally by special dispensation in a $15,000 damage suit against the Monastery of Our Lady of the Valley.

The suit was brought by William Devro, an alms seeker injured by a crane at the monastery.

The monks witnessed the accident.

was taken from the game and Reize was put in. The Jaycees didn't waste any time in going to work on Reize. They scored six runs in the sixth inning to about scare Smitty Huestis, Sinclair manager to death. Reize was pulled from the game and Claude Wilson sent in to stem the tide. Jaycees scored two more runs in the 7th inning to cke it with one point of the Sinclairs but that was as far as they were able to go.

Lefty Sublett, way down in the batting averages because of a broken finger, worked the Jaycee pitcher for three walks out of three times up. Wattie Bennie got a homer and two singles to lead the Sinclair offensive for the night. Boyett got a homer for the losers.

EYES!

Are you conscious of your eyes? If so, something is wrong. Eyes should function so perfectly that we are as unconscious of them as we are of breathing. People who suffer from nervousness, headaches, indigestion or constipation should have their eyes examined.
