P. P. SHEPARD FUNERAL HELD HERE TODAY

Beginning with the singing of "Abide With Me," and "Lead Kindly Light," by a select group of singers, a beautiful funeral service was held for P. P. Shepard, who died Tuesday morning at 9:20 following a long illness. Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist church in which the services were held, spoke from the scripture, "In My Father's House are Many Mansions."

The altar was decorated with a profusion of lovely floral offerings, tokens of the esteem in which the deceased was held, and tribute from his many friends in Cisco and elsewhere. Officials from Abilene and towns in Group B came to pay their last respects to the leader they had loved and followed so long. The casket was opened by Undertaker Green and friends past by the bier to look their last on the countenance of their friend, and co-worker. Funeral rites will be held in San Antonio Thursday morning 10 o'clock, and interment will be made in the old Confederate cemetery there. The procession left immediately for that city following the services here. Immediate survivors of the deceased are wife, Mrs. Janie Shepard, Soh, Charles, and his wife.

ITALY, GERMANY WALK OUT ON INTERNATIONAL PATROL PLAN

Germany and Italy walked out of the international patrol of Spain again today precipitating a dangerous situation.

Britain and France conferred anxiously, fearing that the whole non-intervention plan would be wrecked and that the two fascist powers actually might walk openly into Spain.

Mussolini has regular army divisions ready to send to Spain if he decides to do so, including one of 15,000 men. Germany has strengthened her war fleet in the Mediterranean.

A significant dispatch from Valencia said foreign warships were active off the coast and that more Italian and German destroyers were observed than at any time since the civil war started.

It was feared in London that if Germany and Italy moved openly

SIX CHARGED IN MEDDLING WITH MAILS

CLEVELAND, June 23 (UP)—United States Attorney Emerich Freed today authorized issuance of warrants charging six men with interference with the mails in connection with picket activities of steel workers in the Mahoning Valley.

United States marshals set out to serve the warrants while four steel companies maintained a "united front" in negotiations with the Federal Steel Mediation Board for settlement of the 28-day old strike in seven states.

Meanwhile, developments indicated that danger still existed in the militia-guarded strike area.

1. Guardsmen with bayonets pushed back an angry crowd of strikers demonstrators from the gate of the Republic Mills at Warren when company officials began evacuation of 2,600 to 3,000 non-strikers.

2. The Federal Mediation Board resumed sessions at Cleveland with executives of four struck companies.

3. National guardsmen arrived in Canton to enforce military rule under order of Governor Martin Davey.

WARREN, Ohio, June 23 (UP)—Strikers paraded through this steel town today, some of them shouting "a general strike is on." No immediate confirmation that a general strike had been called could be obtained, however, from union leaders.

Mr. and Mrs. Nance Visit Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Nance were notified Tuesday of the serious illness of their daughter, Mrs. John W. Speir of Bastrop, Louisiana, and left immediately for that city to be at her bedside.

A telegram, received today by Mr. Pete Nance, stated that Mrs. Speir had been operated on Tuesday night at about nine o'clock, and that she was resting well today. Doctors have advised that if no complications later develop, which of course under such conditions are possible, Mrs. Speir will recover speedily, but at the present time however, Mr. Nance stated, his sister's condition is not regarded as seriously.

Walters Family to Daughter's Bedside

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Walters have been notified of the serious illness of their daughter, Mrs. Carl P. Hulsey, who resides at Abilene. The details of her illness, nor the extent, could not be learned at press time today.

Waving at Train Wins Reward

Violet Kathleen Schmidt, just 9 and as cheerful as she looks above, became a familiar figure to the crew of the Twentieth Century Limited, which rumbles past her home at Elkhart, Ind., Daily she waved a greeting to both eastbound and westbound trains. So she was selected to go to New York to help celebrate the flyer's 35th anniversary.

CECIL DeMILLE REPORTED FOR 'AVOID TAXES'

WASHINGTON, June 23 (UP)—Internal Revenue Commissioner Guy Helvering submitted the name of Cecil B. DeMille, motion-picture producer, to the congressional tax committee today as a citizen who employed a personal holding company "to avoid taxes."

Helvering explained that the case had been in the courts and that the method used by DeMille was sustained.

Helvering said that "sometime ago a corporation was formed for DeMille, which he dominated, consisting of himself, members of his family and his attorney."

Register Now For Grasshopper Poison

Farmers in Eastland county whose crops are being attacked by grasshoppers should register their names with the county agent, Eastland, the Cisco Chamber of Commerce, or the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, giving their name, address, location of farm, and crops and acres affected as the county agent has announced that efforts are being made to secure an allotment of grasshopper poison from the U. S. Government. It has been announced that those who have their names registered will be allotted the poison if any should become available.

T. G. Caudle, Cisco teacher of vocational agriculture is in charge of registrations in the western part of the county, J. E. Moriarty, Secretary Ranger Chamber of Commerce in the eastern part of the county, and any farmer who is nearer Eastland can register at the county agent's office, Eastland.

WORLD NEWS FLASHES ON WIRES TODAY

AUSTIN, June 23 (UP)—The Texas legislature, with only three days remaining of its thirty-day special session, was still confronted with the bookie shop and dog-racing problem.

HOLLYWOOD, June 23 (UP)—Joan Blondell today was ordered off the set at Warner Brothers by her doctor and sent to the hospital suffering from a severe attack of neuritis.

Her work in the picture "The Perfect Specimen" cannot be resumed for at least a week, her physician said.

TEXAS SPOTS SIZZLE UNDER HEAT OF SUN

DALLAS, June 23 (UP)—Texas sizzled again today under a blistering sun after the season's high temperatures were recorded Tuesday, and the usual summer forecast of "fair tonight and tomorrow" was made by the government weather stations.

At Houston, where 95 degrees was recorded yesterday, four persons collapsed from heat.

Wichita falls was Texas' hottest spot, with a maximum temperature of 100 degrees, while Palestine, Austin, San Antonio, Abilene, Del Rio and El Paso sweltered with thermometers registering 98 degrees. Port Arthur reported 94 of an inch of rain.

Lem Mayhew has returned to Monahans after spending a few days with his family here.

Cisco Gas Corp. Loses to Albany Last Night

Cisco Gas Corporation lost to Albany 12 to 11 last night in one of the hottest contests of the season. Going into the fourth inning the Gas Corporation was five runs behind but as has been their custom in the past few games, they staged an uprising in the later innings to over come the Albany lead and to grab a three run margin for themselves. In every game played so far the Cisco team has had to come from behind to win. Last week they had to wait until the seventh inning against Ranger. As has been the custom of late in games played in Cisco the Albany team protested the legality of Tunnell the Cas Corp. Speedballer and he was removed from the game. Boyett came in and pitched a good game, getting several strikeouts. In the first of the ninth Boyett filled the bases with no one down and Bevins came in to relieve him. Bevins struck out the first man to face him but

WEB WORMS CAUSING ALARM IN CISCO AS TREES ARE DENUDED

Many Cisco people have been complaining about the web worms that are denuding Mesquites and other trees in yards of city homes. Some are fearing that trees may die from the effect.

Web worms always follow an abundance of miller flies and millions of these flies followed the recent rains, even swarming into stores and residences.

Any kind of spray for eating insects will kill them if sprayed on the plants, but since they are poisonous, they are dangerous to use as most sprays of such nature contain lead arsenate which is poisonous to human beings. T. G. Caudle, agriculturist, says he hesitates to recommend them to the general public. A little child coming along and putting the leaves in his mouth might die a horrible death from the effects.

The 19 overpowered a guard, Dike Allen and made away with his horse and gun.

Four of the fugitives were murderers. Bybee was the most notorious.

Six Ways to Fight Mosquitoes

Mosquitoes pass through four stages (1) the egg, (2) the larva (wiggletail), (3) pupa, and (4) grown-up winged adult. The first, second and third are the water stages, and here is where the fish get in their work. There is a special kind of fish that feeds on mosquito eggs and larvae. These are Gambusia affinis, or the common top minnow. Mosquitoes do not breed in damp grass or wet weeds or bushes, but in pools of stagnant water too small for them to breed in. The female Anopheles is the malaria mosquito, but she has to bite a person who has malaria before she can carry malaria germs to another person. But the thing that interests us is how to avoid all mosquitoes:

1. Screen.
2. Break up breeding places. Get rid of anything around the place that will hold a spoonful of water for as long as a week. If there is a good reason to have such water, cover it over with cloth, wire or oil.
3. Cut all underbrush near the house where mosquitoes can harbor during the day. Spray oil on ditch banks near the house, if such ditches hold puddles of water.
4. Use a dip cup of oil on flowing ditches or branches near the house, suspending a half-gallon bucket of crude oil over the ditch so that a drop will fall about every half-minute.
5. If mosquitoes get into the house, close all doors and windows tight and burn a pound or two of sulphur. Use a pot to burn it in and set the pot in a tub of water. Use a spoonful of coal oil to start the fire.
6. If you have an open well, exchange it for a pump with the well top closed. Mosquitoes breed in open wells.

Prepare for High Prices

A timely warning for farmers is this short editorial. Economists all over America are discussing the rapid advance in prices and predicting much higher prices—possibly very much higher. There is still time for most farmers to change their 1937 farm programs enough to provide for more food and more feed. Even with recent advances in cotton prices we are sorry for anybody who must depend on it to buy still higher-priced food for his family and feed for his livestock next winter, spring, and summer. The year 1937 is likely to illustrate again the soundness of Plank No. 9 in Progressive Farmer Platform as follows:

"Full gardens, corncribs, smokehouses, and feed barns to insure a good living at home plus at least two money crops and an important cash income from cows, hogs, or hens" as the business policy of every farmer."

JONES WEIGHS RUGBY STYLED TROJAN PLAYS

By JACK GUENTHER
United Press Staff Correspondent
LOS ANGELES, June 23 (UP)—Hard on his 13th season at University of Southern California, Howard Jones has temporarily abandoned his research into rugby for plays that might end four years of football fame.

The "head man," whose teams a few years back were the most feared in the nation, admits he will temper his rugged power plays for a more open game next season, but casts a lingering last look at the "slam-bang" style in passing and explains that rugby is out after serious consideration.

"In regard to lateral passing and the open style of play used in rugby, I have talked to leading lights of the game about introducing it into American football. I have seriously considered trying out rugby laterals to open up my game," he said.

Power Steps Lateral

"But it has not been proved that rugby will work effectively and constantly in American football. The last two Rose Bowl games brought out the fact that power football can stop a lot of laterals and fancy plays. Stanford stopped the aerial circus from Southern Methodist and Washington's passes were ineffectual against the Pittsburgh power attack this year.

"I tried rugby plays as long ago as 1909 when I was at Yale, and I'm not against them. But the passing in rugby is a little difficult to fit into American football. Perfect blocking is needed and by the time a team gets the opposition all blocked out, they might as well run with the ball and not take a chance of tossing it about wildly.

"Moreover, it requires a certain definite amount of fine material perfectly timed, to complete these plays successfully."

Jones first started tinkering with the multi-lateral pass combinations this year at Santa Ana Junior College, while visiting. He studied the plays for approximately a month, hinted he might work them into his 1937 attack, then finally dropped them in favor of more conservative antics.

Material Better for 1937

In the past three seasons Jones has won 13 of 32 games, but his material for the coming campaign is considered the best he has had recently. Thomassin, Fiske, Slatter and Gasper are four sophomores looked to as possible first string linemen, while three other second year men—Shell, Sanister and Anderson will boost the backfield. At least a dozen seasoned performers will return.

"The men I have coming up are faster than the ones on Trojan teams for the past few years," he said. "If they progress satisfactorily, we may use a greater number of open plays, but at the present, I don't think those plays will come from rugby."

The open plays to which he referred were given their first airing in the "breathers" last year, and consist of modification of the old Jones system under which ball carrying was the chore of the quarterback and fullback almost exclusively. The quarterback started a buck over the line, swerved into a cutback, then flipped the ball to halfback who continued around end. A similar play was run through tackle, and of course was varied with several "fake" formations.

Toughest Sport

Oarsmen submit to greater physical punishment and receive less personal recognition than athletes in any other college sport. Why they do it, probably every one of the participants, but not more than a few spectators, can answer.

CASE OF CHARACTERS
CORAL CRANDALL, her fine and senior at Elton College, DAVID ARMSTRONG, Elton chemistry professor and Coral's husband, DONNA ALLEN, Coral's sorority roommate, HOYT MARQUIS, Coral's one-time fiance.

Yesterday, David and Coral are cleared of suspicion when Donna confesses that Hoyt stole the process.

CHAPTER XIII
THE commencement exercises were almost over. Coral, sitting on the platform with the rest of the graduating class, was beginning to feel too warm in the folds of her academic gown. Her mortar board, set at a jaunty angle on her black curls, seemed tight.

Her thoughts began to wander. How different this Commencement Day was to what she had anticipated a few weeks before! She had been afraid then that she might never even graduate, for even after her innocence and David's had been established in connection with the theft of the process, there had been a faculty committee to face on the subject of her marriage. Dean Mathews, the librarian, and some of the other professors, had wanted to drop her from school in spite of everything, but the words of Professor Maxwell and Professor Bendorf had finally swayed their judgment. She had been given a great deal of advice; some good, kindly and well meant, some acid and disapproving. But in the main everyone had been amazingly generous and understanding.

Then, too, the last of Hoyt's threats had been hanging over her. For many days, even after his father had been notified of his son's part in the theft of the process, she had not known whether or not he would refuse to give her father an extension of time on his loan. Coral shuddered a little at the recollection of those days, when with her graduation day growing nearer and nearer, she saw in its approach only financial catastrophe for her beloved father. But even that had come out all right, she thought happily.

SHE was recalled from her reverie, then, by the realization that Dean Mathews had stopped speaking and that President Norton stood once again on the rostrum. She listened attentively for his words. At last they came, deep and sonorous, booming out over the respectfully quiet audience. "Each year, through a special endowment, the faculty of Elton University has the pleasure and honor of presenting a prize of $500 to the student who in its estimation has made the finest record in his or her career at the university. The winner of the Faculty Prize for 1937 is Coral Crandall Armstrong!"

The huge auditorium resounded with applause, as Coral, too surprised and touched for coherent speech or thought, allowed herself to be led forward, presenting the check, and led back again to her seat, the applause still ringing in her ears. The Faculty Prize, the most coveted honor which Elton had to offer, was hers! As she collected her thoughts, she became more and more excited. How proud David would be! But he must have known about it all along. And her parents, Dad and Mother would be so pleased.

THE rest of the exercises passed in a dreamlike fashion. After more words and the announcement of names, her name was called, she stepped forward and received her diploma and degree, and returned to her place. At last all the names had been read. The audience and the students arose. In the back of the auditorium the organ pealed forth the opening bars of the Alma Mater. As she joined in the singing, Coral's eyes stung with sudden tears. Her college days were over.

She found David and her parents waiting together for her outside the building. With them was Professor Maxwell, his silver head inclined politely over her mother's soft blue hat. David and her father were talking together amicably. Her heart glowed at the sight as she approached them. As she came up to the little group Professor Maxwell saw her first. "Here she is!" he cried. "You should be very proud of your daughter today."

"Indeed we are proud," Mrs. Crandall said, taking Coral by the hand. She smiled at her husband. "I believe this is the happiest day of both our lives."

PROFESSOR MAXWELL laughed. "You're a fortunate family, thrice happy and thrice blessed! I envy all of you. But now I must get back to my house. Some of my old students are here today, and I expect them to call." Just then President Norton approached them. "Coral, I want you and David and your parents to come to my house for luncheon." After they had accepted, he went on. "Mr. and Mrs. Crandall, won't you come on ahead with me? It's very warm here, and I can guarantee the coolness of my front porch. I'm sure Coral and David are as eager to get out of those hot caps and gowns as I am, so they can change and come over later."

Her parents and President Norton walked off together, and Coral and David strolled off toward the other side of the campus. "Are you happy, darling?" David asked tenderly.

She looked up at him, her eyes shining. "Yes, David, I am happy. There's just one thing lacking. I wish Donna were here. I sometimes think they were too severe, asking her to leave without receiving her degree."

David smiled, and pulled a yellow oblong from his pocket. "You're the most unselfish child alive. I think this is from Donna. Your mother gave it to me before we saw you, thinking she might miss you. A messenger brought it to the sorority house just after you left."

Coral tore open the telegram. "David, listen to this! 'Wish could be with you but sailing at noon for South America with Dad. Good luck and congratulations to you both, Donna, David!' Coral's face was alight with excitement. "Hoyt's father is sending him to South America to start over again, too. Do you suppose . . . ?"

"You're an incurable matchmaker, my darling, but who can tell. Let's hope they each find as much happiness as we have."

Coral caught his hand. "I hope they do! Oh, darling, doesn't everything seem perfect? An all-summer honeymoon to California for us, then back here next fall. Why, my days at Elton aren't really over. They're just beginning aren't they?"

"That's how it seems, sweetheart. Are you glad?" David slipped his arm around her. "Think you'll like living in that little house next to Professor Maxwell's . . . and being the wife of a struggling young chemistry prof?"

Coral kissed him. "I'll love it. I'll simply adore it. I love you, David." She chuckled. "And I think I'll make a pretty good wife, if I do say so."

David forgot onlookers and caught her in his arms. "You're that now . . . my co-ed wife." And then, as his lips met hers, "The most wonderful wife in the world."

Peanut Inoculation Boosts Growth

Peanuts inoculated by Ben Weise of Cook community show 26 per cent more growth as compared with plants not inoculated in the same field and under the same conditions, according to a report to Elmo V. Cook, county agent. The same plants have 66 per cent more nuts than the uninoculated plants. Although final yields of peanuts and hay at the thresher are what counts and there may not be as great a difference at that time as is indicated by inspection of inoculated plants now, the county agent is urging all Eastland county farmers who inoculated to run thresher tests on inoculated fields as compared with uninoculated ones 200 or more Eastland county farmers inoculated their peanut seed this year. The county agent has pointed out that it costs less than 35 cents per acre to inoculate peanuts and if the increased yield is only a small per cent, the practice pays. Even if there is no increase in yield, the nitrogen added to the soil to be used by plants the succeeding year is valuable. Inoculation will not substitute as the plant food added by inoculation is only a fraction as much as can be added by a moderate application of commercial fertilizer.

County Agent is Surveying for Tanks

After receiving instructions and suggestions from D. W. Porter, construction engineer, State Department of Agriculture, on planning dams for dirt tanks, County Agent Cook has announced that he can now assist any ranchers or farmers of Eastland county in selecting sites, running lines for prospective tanks, or checking completed or partially completed dirt tanks. Last week the county agent ran tank lines for Ben A. Brown of Cisco, Cecil Shults of Rising Star and W. T. Duncan of Eastland. He also has requests on hand for surveys on several other tanks. Cook estimates that at least half the 100 ranchers who are participating in the range program will build surface dirt tanks as part of the program.

Dealer Says Public Is Safety Conscious

Motorists in 1937 are more safety conscious than they have been in a long time, according to J. W. McKinney, local dealer for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company. "In almost every newspaper and magazine these days are stories and articles stressing safety on the highway," Mr. McKinney said. "Safety in capital letters stares the car owner in the face at every turn and it is to be hoped that accident figures for 1937 will show a decrease, indicating that the safety messages have been taken to heart. "Already responsible for avoiding many an accident and saving many a life is a development introduced by Goodyear some time ago," he continued. "This development is the Life Guard tube, which eliminates the danger of accident following a tire failure at any speed. "The tube is in reality a 'double tube,' having a conventional outer tube and a special 'inner tire' being joined at the base. The two air chambers are connected only by a single tiny vent hole, which allows air to pass through at a slow rate. "When a tire failure occurs, air escapes instantly from the outer tube, but can escape from the 'inner tire' only through the tiny vent hole. This allows the driver ample time to come to a safe stop, with the car under complete control no matter at what speed he had been driving. "Hundreds of unsolicited testimonial letters have been received by Goodyear from motorists who have avoided accident and possible injury or death when tires failed at high speed. Life Guard tubes allowing them to come to a stop without a swerve into the ditch or into oncoming traffic. "The tube has been declared 'one of the most important contributions to motoring safety in a decade' by police and fire department officials and heads of safety organizations. It is the only form of insurance I know of that prevents accident and damage from happening," he concluded.

Eastland Farmers Should Raise Goats

The average Eastland county farmer with 75 acres of pasture should run 35 to 40 goats," thinks Cecil Shults, livestock raiser and merchant of Rising Star. He also advocates that these goats be fair quality Angoras and that there be a goat-proof fence made of 36 inch goat wire with 12 inch staves and 3 barbed wires. Wire with closer staves will trap and starve goats that get their heads caught in the wire. To kill brush, Shults advocates 2 goats per acre browsed April through August, and for normal browsing one goat per 2 acres over a 12-month period. His estimates are made for average brush land. In pastures where there is no livestock it is necessary to feed during four cold weather months. To winter during these four months on roughage cost not over 35 cents per head. An average Angora goat will shear 4 to 6 pounds of mohair per year which is clear profit since the animals earn their keep by killing out underbrush which prevents grass and weeds from growing. After a brush pasture has been browsed for two years by goats, sheep and then cattle can be maintained on the same pasture. It is important to control lice on goats if they are to be profitable. Mr. Shults has just dipped his goats in wettable sulphur in cooperation with the county agent and invites those interested to inspect his goats for lice. Shults is running 250 goats and 100 sheep on 725 acres of range land, 125 acres of which he is clearing off. In thirty-nine states and Alaska the unemployment compensation fund is made up of contributions collected from employers only. In Alabama, California, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey and Rhode Island, contributions are collected both from employers and employees. Billy Grozier Gets Bicycle Back Again

By PEARL SQUAGLIA. Billy Grozier, proud and happy, hitch-hiked to Abilene Tuesday to ride back the bicycle that was stolen from his home Sunday afternoon between three and five o'clock.

Police found the bicycle in Abilene Monday and notified police here, who in turn notified Billy.

Billy's bicycle, new and shiny, had been bought on the installment plan and its owner rode it through Cisco streets in the pride of possession that characterizes all who buy and own. Billy made his payments regularly, and was looking forward to the day when that little slip "paid in full" would repose in the recesses of his pocket, or in a safer place in his home.

But another little boy living somewhere in this vicinity, looked enviously upon Billy as he rode back and forth, and in his heart was born that covetous longing that brings one to the brink of disaster. He watched and watched, and when he could bear it no longer, did what that covetous inborn nature prompted. He went into Billy's yard and took the thing that had caused him no little thought and trouble.

This little culprit didn't stop to think how he would feel had he been the proud owner of the bicycle; he didn't stop to consider the consequences. He listened only to one thing: That evil spirit speaking inside of him as it goaded him on to get what he wanted by hook or crook, by fair or foul means.

For a time he, too, knew the pride of possession, but it was short-lived, for the following day police recovered the bicycle, and the offender, instead of possessing a new shiny wheel, the envy of his friends and acquaintances, possessed only the consciousness that he had broken the law, had transgressed the commandments, "Thou Shalt Not Covet," and "Thou Shalt Not Steal," and has, no doubt, resolved never to do it again. A painful lesson, but perhaps an effective one.

the next man we got Bevins out of a bad spot by hitting a home run over the right field wall. This run ended the Albany scoring for the night. Rev. G. C. Williams Continues Revival

After a discussion by Rev. G. C. Williams, at Twelfth Street Methodist church last night if "The three great questions of life, What is it to be lost? What is it to be saved? and What must I do to be saved?" many stood about in small groups with tear stained faces, and from trembling lips such comments as this were to be heard: "I never heard it like that before." "An old truth in a new setting." "The finest sermon I ever heard." "The old fashioned Gospel, just like I believe it."

The subject announced for tonight is "The Mark of the Beast. What is it, Who receives it, and its consequences." In commenting on this discourse the Evangelist said: Much has been said and written concerning the mark of the beast mentioned in the thirteenth chapter of Revelation, the most of which has served to confuse the minds of the public, rather than to enlighten them. The purpose of this sermon is to make at least a small contribution toward the removal of this confusion, as well as to make the definite appeal for church loyalty. Come and be with us, and we will do you good. — PRESTON BROXTON, Pastor.

Woodmen Enjoy Picnic at Lake

About 225 Woodmen and their families assembled at the lake last night and enjoyed a basket picnic and program which followed. Rev. M. H. Applewhite spoke on the subject "Know Thyself, Control Thyself, and Deny Thyself," but J. E. Proctor, one of the committeemen, says that no one paid much attention when it came to the eating.

Robert Maddox' German band known as the "Hungry Five" made music for the occasion. Dr. W. I. Gormley gave the invocation. The younger set enjoyed skating and swimming following the program.
