PRESBYTERIANS BEGIN CAMP PROGRAM

PROGRAM WILL BEGIN TODAY AT 6 O'CLOCK

Presbyterians began gathering for the encampment, Saturday afternoon, and are still coming, it was reported today. The formal opening service will be held at 6 o'clock this afternoon. All units except the Haskell church building have been completed and furnished.

Cots have been installed for both boys and girls dormitory; the dining room and kitchen have been furnished with equipment and cooking utensils; showers, kitchen sink, hot and cold water, have been installed. Two tents will be used for housing quarters for some of the workers and their staff.

Teachers, dietician, recreational supervisors and other trained factors are in evidence. A program has been outlined and the day and night divided into orderly services which will make a well-balanced schedule for the young people who will receive both instructive and recreational training during the whole week.

Local Presbyterians have been working faithfully during the past weeks to get ready for their visitors. The ladies circles have hung window curtains and decorated the interiors of the three units built by the local church.

It is a camp that Cisco may well be proud of, regardless of church affiliations, and they announce they have only started as yet.

ALLRED PARRIES ON QUESTIONS OF THIRD TERM

AUSTIN, June 28 (UP)—Governor Allred today parried questions about a third term, but the topic seemed to interest him.

"It's too early yet," he said. A scheduled trip to West Texas this week will not be for speech-making. He will go to Sweetwater tomorrow for a fishing trip, and to Stamford to attend the Cowboy Reunion.

Allred insisted that his address at a Sillsbee picnic Saturday was not a third term campaign opening.

Cook Tells How to Destroy Leaf Worm

Several inquiries have been received by the county agent's office as to how to destroy worms eating the foliage of mesquite trees. These worms can be controlled very easily by spraying. Hugh F. Barnhart, assistant county agent stated Monday. A spray mixture consisting of one and one-half pounds of arsenate of lead should be stirred constantly while spraying as it is only a suspension in the water and will settle out easily. Barnhart cautioned the users of the spray that arsenate of lead is very poisonous and great caution should be taken to see that animals do not graze around trees that have been sprayed as well as children should not be allowed to play under the sprayed trees.

Stores to Close For July Fifth

At a meeting of the retail merchants association it was decided that all business houses in Cisco would close for the July Fifth celebration, except drug stores and service stations, said Miss Lucile Self.

Business Outlook Mixed

Today the business outlook is curiously mixed. On the unfavorable side, the strike situation grows steadily more tense, even as individual strikes are growing more bloody and embittered, and troubles such as those now being experienced by the independent steel companies may be felt in other important industries before the year's end.

Even so, the strength of the recovery movement—expressed in rising incomes and an almost insatiable public desire for commodities of all kinds—is so great that practically all of the established forecasting services are bullish. Thus, in recent weeks, the Alexander Hamilton service has said, "The world is in the boom phase of the business cycle."

So far as specific elements in the industrial picture are concerned, the commentators agree fairly well. Most of them think that bond prices will be either stabilized at current levels, or may go down slightly due to higher interest rates.

For most industries, the earnings outlook is good—though nowhere as good as the production outlook. Some of

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Vacancies on two of the most important of the independent federal commissions are forcing the administration to decide whether it wants to abandon the habit of filling such vital posts with weak sisters and political hacks.

The Federal Power Commission is commonly regarded here as the New Deal's hottest hotbed of scandal. It has supervision over radio, telephones, telegraphy, and television.

VARIOUS "deserving Democrats" are after the two posts. They include certain members of Congress, none too confident of renomination and re-election next year, who would prefer the assurance of a nice steady job to the trials, tribulations, and expense of the next campaign.

The outstanding job of the FCC has been the investigation of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the subsequent rate reduction in long distance telephone rates negotiated principally by Carl Wheat, former public utilities counsel for the city of Los Angeles.

the largest industries—of which the railroads are a case in point—are doing a greatly increased volume of business with extremely small increases in earnings, due to higher taxes, higher wages, etc. However, practically all industry has emerged from the "deficit period" and is at least back in the black ink.

SUPERSTITION MOUNTAIN By Oren Arnold Copyright 1937, NEA SERVICE, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS CAROLEE COLTER, heroine, prospector's daughter. STUART BLAKE, cowboy "outfit" tourist, Carolee's lover. HENRY COLTER, prospector, PAUL AND NEAL COLTER, prospector's sons. NINA BLAKE, Stuart's sister.

Yesterday, The Colters camp on Superstition Mountain and are warned by a strange Indian that it's "bad" business.

CHAPTER IV

THE highest peak in Superstition Mountain towers slightly more than 5000 feet. This is not a stereotyped mountain with one central point. It is more of a table when viewed from Phoenix. Close up, the table top is saw-toothed in silhouette; between points is a dangerous jungleland.

Carolee Colter loved it from the beginning. Here was Nature in rebellion, a rugged defiance of the petty businesses of man. She loved its cliffs, theatrically highlighted at dawn. She loved to watch the velvety, purple blankets pulled slowly up over the same cliffs and the canyons at nightfall.

THE situation as to the Federal Power Commission vacancy is similar. Those primarily interested in reducing electricity rates to consumers have been promoting Dennis J. Driscoll, head of the Pennsylvania Public Utilities Commission, for the job left vacant by Drane.

Chances are fairly bright that the post will go to a Texas congressman who wants a relatively permanent job.

Several things are more important in Washington than the appointments to the several independent commissions. Inadequacy of the Federal Trade and Interstate Commerce commissions for their huge problems also has been frequently charged. The administration's new wage and hour bill is just another obvious evidence of the fact that no piece of New Deal legislation amounts to very much unless Roosevelt is willing to appoint men who can and will make it function.

They turned in their saddles to study the wild panorama. It was, somehow, strange. "I'm not—not just sure where we are," Carolee said.

"There, there, old thing, I'm not blind. Or as dumb as some of the family. How do you do, Miss Colter? Father mentioned you. And Stuart positively has done nothing but mention you for a week or more. He didn't, however, mention before that you had saved his life. Have I missed something? I ordinarily don't!" Carolee blushed.

"Uhm hum, I get it. You're both secretive about it! But I warn you, young lady, I always learn the details of Stew's love affairs in the end—always! Go ahead and pretend! I'm going home, anyway." She laughed in a friendly manner and turned her horse.

"Well, good morning everybody! I'm just the hostler with this party," but the riddles have got me curious. How are you, my dear? I'm Nina Blake, sister to this dull-witted ox who never introduces people. Isn't it a lovely morning, and aren't—"

"Right here—see, on Chieftain Look, I waved his tail." "Yes, I know, but where are you living?" Carolee didn't answer for a moment, and her smile was gone now. She looked far down the trail, and patted her horse, before she spoke.

"I was Stuart's turn to be silent now. He was frankly mystified by her reply. He changed his tact. "Say, listen," he suddenly spoke again. "I'm going to call you by your first name. If you'll tell me what it is."

"You mustn't pay any attention to Nina," he begged, "she's really a great kid." "I have brothers," Carolee answered. "But say!" he jabbed the words at her, "it's great to find you here, no fooling! I've been looking and looking. You don't mind?"

She turned Chieftain to the left and the other horse followed. The going wasn't easy but the horses were used to mountain slopes. They had left the trail entirely. The riders didn't speak for a time, so engrossed were they in the scenery. One turn revealed a gap through which they could see Squaw Peak 50 miles away, and unidentified ranges even beyond. Great majesties of distance—distance—a new conception of it impressed both of them as their horses moved on it free rein.

"I'm not—not just sure where we are," Carolee said. "Well, now that you mention it, I haven't been sure for several minutes," Stuart laughed a little. "Perhaps we should start back, or at least locate the trail again."

"For the first time in my life," she said, a little nervously, "I'm actually lost. And I'm hungry as a bear." She laughed, but it wasn't convincing. Stuart didn't laugh. He was remembering the tragedies that had occurred in Superstition, the deaths from thirst, and the people who had just disappeared.

COTTON PICKER TRACED TO 1850

MEMPHIS, Minn., June 28 (UP)—Development of the South's first mechanical cotton picker, registered in the U. S. Patent Office nearly nine decades ago, was abandoned because it was feared the device would destroy the market value of Negro slaves.

The machine was registered Sept. 10, 1850, by two Memphis residents, Samuel S. Rembert and Jehiah Prescott. It was similar in principle to the picker being built and demonstrated in Soviet Russia and South America by the Rust brothers, John and Mack.

Available city directories and newspaper files do not identify Prescott, but many of Rembert's descendants still live here.

Family records of Samuel S. Rembert, Memphis grandson of the inventor of the early mechanical picker, show that the machine was demonstrated experimentally with a "degree of success."

Rembert's son decided to abandon the invention because he feared it would supplant human labor in Dixie and thus destroy the large amount of the section's wealth represented in Negro slaves.

Willing to Forego Profit

The same problem of displacing human labor was met by the Rust brothers with the offer to market their machine on a non-profit basis for use as directed by social leaders in such a manner to provide for the rural laborers who would be thrown out of work by utilization of the picker.

Although lacking many of the mechanical refinements of the Rust machine, the Rembert-Prescott invention was "rather remarkable and might have been feasible," according to mechanics who have studied the yellowed drawings.

The Rembert-Prescott picker was mounted on two over-sized wagon wheels. A mule team provided motive power. The machine plucked cotton from bolls by whirling sharp spindles through the plants.

Three Processes Worked Out

There were three successive processes: A horizontal revolving bar set with bars at the front of the machine, knocked bolls open and loosened the lint. The plants then were pulled through a narrow trough which narrowed toward the back—as in the modern pickers. Two vertical disks on each side of the machine were equipped with spindles which whirled through the plants to gather the lint, which raked off by revolving winged cylinders, also covered with spindles, pushed through the lint to take out waste and foreign matter.

The cotton picker was only one of Rembert's experiments. He also worked on a machine to produce ice cubes and developed a cotton press utilizing the same principles now employed.

Mother Doe Repeats On Triplet Fawns

KERRVILLE, June 26 (UP)—A mother doe, a pet of W. H. Ramsey, Kerr county rancher, has repeated for the second successive year the rarity of having triplet fawns.

Twins are an occasional occurrence but game wardens and authorities said triple births to does in this area was unheard of.

The mother was found by the Ramseys, starting and ill when she was three days old. They cared for the deer and it became a pet, never wandering very far from their home. Not yet three years old, the doe is the mother of seven fawns, all does except the new buck, born with two "sisters."

suits which have been accomplished during his pastorate were not of his own making and had not happened by "fate" or "chance." They were obtained only by relying upon the Omnipotent hand of God for guidance.

The past experiences were called "Ebeneszer" meaning "Hitherto hath the Lord led us, and although the present seems to be in a turmoil as the world sees it, He believes the church will be led into greater accomplishments if they will continue to follow in the path they have already tried and found true.

The future, Dr. James believes will be a bright one, because the church knows how to pray and knows from what source her power comes. He said in closing, "I commit this local church to the Great Shepherd who can provide a pastor capable of leading on to greater victories."

YOUNG PEOPLE RETURN FROM GEORGETOWN

By A. C. DONICA

Six young people who attended the Methodist Assembly at Georgetown have returned. All delegates were taken down on a school bus and arrived back at Cisco late Saturday evening.

The assembly lasted from Monday night to Saturday morning. Regular schedules, fixed for each day, included varied activities as well as class work. The classes consisted of two one-hour and a half periods. There were eight courses from which the delegates had the privilege of choosing one. Most of the courses were pertaining to the union and union meetings. Others taught about the life of Christ and Rural Sunday Schools.

The assembly was held at Southwestern University. The Woman's building was occupied by the girls and Mood Hall was occupied by the boys. All classes were held in the Administration building. The large campus afforded splendid recreation and excellent places for night services. The talks made by the platform speaker, Bishop H. A. Boaz, were entertaining as well as vitally instructive.

The assembly was opened with a banquet on Monday night and closed with the final adjournment Saturday morning. In the final adjournment, the retiring president presented the gavel to the incoming president. This was the climax of the assembly.

A picture was made of the group, 176, and sold for 40 cents. One of the most beautiful services of the assembly was the candle lighting service on Friday night. There was a visiting representative from India, Shamino Shastry. He made two speeches on the night of Special Services.

The Cisco delegates were: Mildred Curry, Emojan Hazlwood, Mary Ruth Proctor, Joyce Rainbolt, Louise Statham and A. C. Donica.

Ciscoans Attend De Leon Meeting

It is reported that Dr. Tyndall's meeting at De Leon is drawing the largest attendance in the history of the First Christian church. He has been urged to return for a months meeting with that church next year.

Cisco was again represented at De Leon by the following citizens, Mrs. A. V. Osburn, Lonnie Shockley, T. B. Powell, V. E. McClaren, Alex Ward, J. F. Benedict, James Mobley, James Flournoy, F. M. Hooks, John James Haynie, W. J. Troxell, Misses Alice Bacon, Jessie Lee Haynie, Mary Sue Mobley, Olga Fay Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ward and Mrs. David Tyndall.

Safe Driving Added To Rural Courses

BUCYRUS, O. (U.P.)—A "safe-driving course" has been added to the regular curriculum in the upper three grades of all rural schools here. Credits similar to those given for other studies will be awarded to students taking the study.

Class work will include highway rules, driving responsibilities, mechanics and the effects of drinking. Later in the course, automobiles will be used for practical experience.

MORE AMERICANS EATING OUT
CLEVELAND (U.P.)—R. D. Clark, president of the National Restaurant Association, says the nation's restaurateurs expect an increase of 20 per cent in their business this year.

VILLAGE OF 900 BOASTS POWER IN PRO LEAGUE

SNOW HILL, N. C. (U.P.)—This tiny county seat town, one of the few in this state without telephone service and only 900 persons, now claims undisputed title to being the smallest city in the United States supporting a professional league baseball club.

Baseball has been the most popular sport here for upward of 40 years and Snow Hill teams have been winning clubs in the local leagues. The list of baseball enthusiasts who followed Snow Hill club includes a present U. S. ambassador, who once traveled several hours in a carriage to see the club play.

Joshua C. Exum, 57-year-old general store proprietor and widely known throughout this area, is chief backer of the Snow Hill Billies entry in the Coastal Plain league of North Carolina, a Class D circuit. The league has been in operation since 1930 and for the last five years Snow Hill has had an entry. Only this year, however, has the league been organized under the rules of professional baseball.

Never Misses Home Game
Exum, genial and proud of his record of never having missed a home game of the Billies, is president of the club, which carries 14 players, only two of whom are owned by outside clubs. George Edwards, Green county auditor is secretary-treasurer, and D. C. (Peahead) Walker, 37-year-old athletic coach of Elon College is manager.

Walker, a football player at Vanderbilt University and at Wake-Forest College—Southern conference school—and Howard College at Birmingham, Ala., is sparkplug of the nine, which ran up a string of eight consecutive victories in early season and has never dropped below third place in the eight-club league. Elon college, near Greensboro, N. C., is known as a training ground for baseball players and Walker-coached football teams at Elon have upset older and stronger rivals.

The Billies have a 100-game schedule. When they play here Exum heads the party of townspeople that attend the games. Stores are closed and business ceases while the game is in progress.

The league's salary limit is $1,000 a month, including the manager. This has meant that young players participate with majority of the clubs, which beside Snow Hill include Kinston, Williamston, Goldsboro, Tarboro, Greenville, New Bern and Ayden, all in Eastern North

Players Are Young

The roster includes college graduates from North Carolina colleges and universities and several from schools outside North Carolina. Emil Zak, young pitcher of Newark, N. J., and Vincent Venture, another pitcher from Long Island, N. Y. were sent to Snow Hill from the Norfolk club in the Piedmont league. Norfolk is a New York Yankee farm.

Old-timers who recall the days when parking horses and buggies around the baseball park was a problem, say that Josephus Daniels now ambassador to Mexico, was one of the most consistent Snow Hill team boosters during the late 190's.

The ambassador then resided at Wilson, nearby, and would drive his carriage to the ball park to see the games.

Eastland Advertising Three-Day Program

With the completion of Eastland's WPA Municipal City Park and Swimming Pool its citizens will celebrate the event with a three-day program July 3, 4 and 5.

Saturday's program includes, on the square $100 cash awards, morning and afternoon, soft ball, street dance, square dance and square dance contest, band concert.

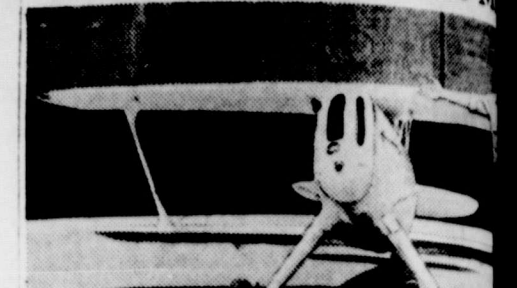

Sunday's program includes Roque Tournament all day at the park. Five hundred voices in community singing from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Sacred band concert by the Eastland high school band. The famous Stamps Quartette, Earnest Rippetoe and J. H. Carr and other leading state and national singers will be here.

Monday's program will start with a water fight on the square at 10 a. m. A rodeo at 1:30 p. m. Old fiddlers contest, string band contests, sack races, greased pig, greased pole, Eastland high school band concert, diving exhibitions, diving contests, bathing beauty revue and fire works display.

The bathing beauty revue in three groups is open and free to all regardless of where they live. Groups No. 1 is for babies and up to 7 years of age. The cash awards in this group are $5, $3 and $2. Group No. 2 is from eight to 12 years of age. The cash awards in this group are $5, $3 and $2. Group No. 3 is from 13 to 80 with cash awards in this group $25, $12.50 and $10. Registrations for entering the revue can be made at the Chamber of Commerce or at the pool up until 7 p. m. the night of July 5. Revue starts at 6:15. Three judges one each from Abilene, Brownwood and Fort Worth will decide the awards.

Plenty of parking space, tables, seats on the grounds, ice water, etc. It's all free. Over $700 in cash prizes.

Fun?

SURE IT IS

... and mighty strenuous too!

"SPORT, even for the fun of it, can be tiring," says Miss Gloria Wheeden, who here shows her skill at aquaplaning. "Yes, I smoke," she says. "When I feel a bit let-down, I light up a Camel and get a 'lift' in energy." A suggestion: When an active day drains physical and nervous energy, you can get a delightful "lift" from a Camel. They never get on your nerves.

20 MILES AN HOUR on a skittery board is thrill enough! But Gloria Wheeden is a daring miss who hikes it up to 40 (upper left picture). Executes a hand-stand (above). Sews around a fast turn with two aboard (right). There's no doubt about her nerves being healthy. "Camels are head and shoulders on top for mildness," she says. "Much as I smoke, they don't bother my nerves a bit."

1060 PARACHUTE JUMPS. That's the record of Floyd Stimson, who started smoking Camels 10 years ago. "I've found just what I want in Camels. Mildness—tastiness—a lift when I'm tired," he says.

"MANY A TIME I've smoked a Camel to get a 'lift,'" says Harry Burmester, printer. "Camels have the goodness you'd expect from costlier tobaccos. Camel's mildness suits me to perfection."

COSTLIER TOBACCO

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCO—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.
