Strike Peace Is Left To Federal Authority

Measuring Up to Queenly Stature

Figures can't lie in the novel gadget demonstrated here—the "figureometer" employed at Venice, Calif., in preliminaries of the search for beauty to be climaxed by the selection of "Miss California" for the city's annual Mardi Gras. At the left, Mitzi

Uehlein has stepped into the frame and measured rulers have been moved in to surround her entire outline. At right, Mermaid Andree Holden gazes at the aperture she left in the "figureometer."

PEACE BOARD NOT ABLE TO END STRIKE

WASHINGTON, June 29 (U.P.)—Chairman Charles Taft of the Federal Steel Mediation Board said today the Board had recommended to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins a face-to-face conference of steel operators and strike leaders. Miss Perkins refused to divulge what the next federal step might be. "I am continuing to do everything I think can be useful," she said.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 29 (U.P.)—Two mysterious explosions in the mountains near Johnstown cut off the major water supply of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation today and forced the company to suspend operations at its big Cambria plant, scene of a strike called by the Committee for Industrial Organization. Whether full suspension would be necessary had not been determined. While company crews sought to repair the damage, Governor Earle at Harrisburg ordered state police to begin an investigation "with the idea of finding the perpetrators."

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, June 29 (U.P.)—Police sought today the CIO chieftain who called a general industrial strike at Warren, Ohio, last week on charges that he lead a "terrorist" plot to blow up property at strike-bound steel mills.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 29 (U.P.)—America's own "Romeo and Juliet" romance, with the difference of a happy ending, will culminate at 5 p. m. tomorrow with the marriage of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and Miss Ethel du Pont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene du Pont, at Christ Church, Old Christiansa Hundred, four miles from here.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt, all their children and their children-in-law, the President's mother, many other Roosevelts and Delanos members of the president's cabinet—a large representation of the New Deal—and most of the du Ponts and their household servants comprise the 300 guests invited to see the union of two families as strongly opposed politically as were Shakespeare's Montagues and the Capulets of Verona.

The head of the du Pont clan, Pierre S. du Pont, will not be there, however, as he and his wife sailed for Europe a week ago.

The marriage of any child of the president is of social interest to the American people, but excitement over this romance has been augmented by the political differences between the Roosevelts and the du Ponts. Twelve du Ponts attended the famous Liberty League dinner in Washington and applauded bitter attacks on President Roosevelt. Only a few weeks ago, the bride's uncle, Irene du Pont, announced that "We are living under a dictatorship."

Influence in Different Spheres
The industrial and financial influence of the du Pont family, with its munitions, motors, rayon, paint, and cellophane, goes around the world. The political influence of the Roosevelt family goes around the world. Both have been dubbed "royal families."

The young people do not let this disturb them. Franklin, Jr., now 23 years old says he is not going into politics. Ethel, who is 22, has never been in one of the industrial plants owned by her family. There are 78 of them, in 28 states, employing 50,000 workers.

Furthermore, Ethel was picked by Don Flowers, an artist, as the most beautiful and most eligible of the wealthy heiresses of America. Those who will attend the tall and slender bride and groom as they approach the lily-banked chancel in the little Episcopal church include the sister and three brothers of the bridgegroom, three du Ponts, young women of Eastern society, and young men of Harvard and Groton, who went to school with the Roosevelt boys.

Mrs. John Boettiger, of Seattle, Wash., a society editor who is the president's daughter, will be matron of honor. Miss Aimee du Pont, sister of the bride, will be maid of honor.

John Roosevelt Best Man
John Roosevelt, youngest of the president's sons, is the best man.

Bridesmaids chosen by Miss du Pont include: Barbara Cushing, New Haven, Conn., sister-in-law of James Roosevelt, the president's oldest son, and a friend of the bride's for many years; Harriet Jackson, Providence, R. I.; Mrs. C. Porter Schutt, Greenville, Del.; Mrs. James P. Polk, Glen Head, L. I.; and Mrs. Thomas le Boutillier III, New York City.

Ushers include: James Roosevelt, Washington, and Elliott Roosevelt, Fort Worth, Texas, the other two brothers of the groom; Eldredge Jackson, Providence, R. I.; A. J. Drexel Paul, Jr., Radnor, Pa.; Percy Pyne III, Bernardville, N. J.; Frederick A. Delano II, New York City, a cousin of the groom; John Clarke, Bala Cynwyd, Pa.; John Lyman Boston, Mass.; Thomas M. Bullitt, Louisville, Ky.; Philip Staples, Jr., Ardmore, Pa.; Thomas Husband, Chicago; Eugene du Pont III, Richmond, Va.; and Nicholas Ridgely du Pont, Greenville, Del., brothers of the bride; and John Boteiger of Seattle, brother-in-law of the groom.

Oil Development Stirs Interest

Three important developments stirred West Texas oil activities today to the highest level since the boom of 1919.

The developments were:
1. Discovery of a new shallow pool pay stratum on Iron Mountain Oil Company's wildcat test in eastern Jones county, north of Abilene.

2. Finding of a new field by Henry Zweifel of Fort Worth, with his wildcat 16 miles west of Graham in Young county.

3. Testing of a new record-producer for Foster pool, brought in by Stanolind Oil Company on the Cowden ranch of Ector county.

Man Admits He is 'The Man You Want'

EASTLAND, June 29 (U.P.)—Sheriff Loss Woods of Eastland county today arrested a 50-year-old man employed by a dairy and held him as a fugitive from the Marietta, Georgia, state penitentiary.

"I'm the man you want, alright," the suspect told Woods.

ROBERT IRWIN WILL PLEAD INSANITY IN MURDER TRIAL

NEW YORK, June 29 (U.P.)—Robert Irwin was indicted for murder three times by the County Grand Jury today—once for each of the three persons he strangled and stabbed.

The indictment charged the insane asylum inmate with strangling the artists model, Veronica Gedeon, her mother, Mrs. Mary Gedeon and stabbing with an ice pick Frank Burns, who boarded with them.

All doubts that Irwin will plead insanity vanished when his attorney assented to immediate arraignment and announced that "in my

LITTLE GIRLS ATTRACTED BY HUNT PROMISE

INGLEWOOD, Cal., June 29 (U.P.)—Twelve men with asserted records as degenerates were questioned by police today in the kidnap-slaying of three little girls lured from play Saturday on the promise they would be taken "on a live rabbit hunt."

Police Chief Oscar Campbell said that he sought a man known as "Eddie, the sailor." The twelve men arrested all have the first name of "Eddie."

Madeline, 7, and Melba Everett, 8, and Jeanette Stephens, 8, were taken to the Baldwin Hills, garroted, beaten outraged and slain. Police sought a "handsome young man with a black mustache."

The slayer left "definite and clear" fingerprints on the bodies of his three victims police said.

Sheriff's deputies and State Highway Police guarded highways leading from Southern California. Two brothers were stopped by deputies at the Santa Clara bridge because their roadster resembled the description of a suspects car.

They denied all knowledge of the murder, but were booked as ex-convicts in possession of a gun.

Arrest of three suspects last night all of whom were soon exonerated, was sufficient to draw a howling crowd of 1500 persons to the jail prepared for a lynching.

"This jail won't be strong enough to hold him if the officers get him," they yelled.

INGLEWOOD, Cal., June 29 (U.P.)—The father of two of the three slain Inglewood girls today said "lynching is too good" for the killer.

Merle Everette, the father was dazed and weary. "I told the police that if they let me come near him, I will kill him," said Everette.

CISCO BEING DECORATED FOR JULY HOLIDAY

Cisco business concerns are being decorated by the Oil Belt, Flag & Decoration company of which James Haynie is owner, to add to the holiday spirit of the town for the July Fifth celebration to be held at Lake Cisco Monday.

Mr. Haynie stated that he was being sponsored by the Band-Parade club for the Lobo band which will receive 40 per cent of the proceeds to add to the band's instrumentation fund.

Mr. Haynie also has the contract to decorate Stamford and Quannah for their July holiday celebrations.

PAROLE BOARD WONT COMMUTE DEATH PENALTY

AUSTIN, June 29 (U.P.)—The State Board of Pardons and Paroles today refused to commute the death sentence given Clement Matura, 65, sentenced to die at Huntsville prison on July 2nd.

Without the Board's consent, the Governor can issue only one thirty-day reprieve.

Matura was convicted of killing Miss Rebecca Courney, 73, at O'Brien Haskell County on May 6, 1936.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Johnson and son, who have been the guests of A. D. Estes and family, left today for their home in Stanton.

Two Men Held in Jail for Murder

DENTON, June 29 (U.P.)—Two men were held in jail on murder charges today in connection with the shooting of Lee Roy Franks, 33, laborer, whose wife also was shot and wounded critically.

The men, Otis Hudson, 32, and Dewey Burns, 30, were arrested last night at Decatur after the shooting here.

Hudson and Burns both made statements to County Attorney Gerald Stockard. Hudson claimed that a pistol in his hands was discharged accidentally during a scuffle. Burns said that he was struck on the head and did not remember what happened.

Huestis Beats Scranton 11 to 9

Smitty's Sinclairs were pushed hard to defeat a much improved Scranton softball team last night. Scranton came into town determined to win and they almost did. At least they almost scared to death one of the strongest teams in the city league and had one of the league's best managers so worried that he lost several pounds during the game. Score was Sinclair 11, Scranton 9.

Scranton batted around in the first inning and hopped on Bevins Smitty's pitcher for seven runs to get a lead they held until the fifth.

PRESBYTERIANS OPEN CAMP AT LAKE CISCO

The opening service at 6 o'clock Monday evening at the Presbyterian encampment at Lake Cisco opened as scheduled and the 7:30 breakfast this morning was a decided success, said Mrs. M. H. Applewhite wife of the local dynamic pastor. Classes began at 9 o'clock and the day's activities were entered into with enthusiasm by both instructors and students.

All are delighted with the splendid accommodations that have been built this year. The Haskell church unit is not completed but will be a beauty when finished. The program for the week will be both educational and recreational.

See back page for Presbyterian program outline.

Wyoming Convicts Over Half Trusties

RAWLINS, Wyo. (U.P.)—More than one-half of Wyoming's 310 convicts are trusties, according to Warden Alex McPherson.

The warden attributes the large percentage of trusted prisoners to liberal policies of the administration of the prison and honor parole system.

Fire Marshall Asks Cracker Observance

Fire marshal O Gustafson cautions July Fourth celebrators about shooting fire crackers in the fire district, since it breaks a city ordinance that forbids such fire hazards. With the extreme dry condition existing now in the city, extreme caution should be observed against anything that might cause dry material to become inflamed.

WORLD NEWS FLASHES ON WIRES TODAY

BORDEAUX, France, June 29 (U.P.)—Revelt broke out today in two refugee camps for children evacuated from Spain. Youths of ten to twelve years of age attacked or threatened the runs and teachers in charge of them with knives and revolvers.

FORT WORTH, June 29 (U.P.)—A dream of the late W. P. Waggoner disappeared today with the sale of all trained race horses of the Three D stock farms at Arlington to T. P. Morgan, wealthy Houston oil man.

"We've sold everything but the Three D colors," said Manager Trav Daniel. "All of the trained horses were sold to Morgan and the others will be sold soon."

Heefly, this year's Kentucky Derby candidate, was included in the Morgan purchase at a reported price of $20,000.

For a Happy Holiday

The "Glorious Fourth" can be just as glorious as we choose to make it. This year the long week end created by the holiday will intensify the hazards which the Fourth always produces. The watchword should be, "Take Care!"

Independence Day celebrates the independence of a nation. The coming week end will demonstrate vividly the modern interdependence of people. Great streams of traffic pouring over the highways will show how essential are mutual regard and courtesy among drivers. Fireworks will demonstrate it too. A "firecracker thrown by another" is, according to the National Conservation Bureau, the greatest single cause of the tremendous number of fireworks accidents every Fourth of July. At the beaches and lakes, impudent swimmers will again remind us that human life must be risked to save the life of a drowning person.

Reasonable care divides a happy holiday from the tragedies which mar it. Reasonable care will insure you, your family, and the other fellow against mishap. For instance: If you drive—see that your car is in good mechanical condition. Check tires, lights, brakes, steering mechanism, windshield wiper, rear-view mirror, horn. Drive skillfully, at a reasonable speed. Observe the rules and courtesies of the road.

If you must use fireworks—give yourself plenty of space. Keep away from children and animals and buildings. Throw firecrackers away from people and inflammable materials, not at them. Never hold an exploding firecracker, nor set them off under a bottle or can. Cauterize the smallest wound immediately—treat burns with water. Avoid fireworks fast and kills.

If you go swimming—swim in safe and protected places. Beware of strong tides and currents. Know your limits as a swimmer. Wait two hours after eating. Avoid shallow places.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The desire of some labor leaders to collect everything possible in the way of union dues appears alongside the unwillingness of many manufacturers to pay higher wages as a factor in the opposition to the Black-Connelly wage and hour bill.

The most contentious point in the bill is its section five, which would give the proposed labor standards board power to fix a "minimum fair wage" in individual industries up to the equivalent of $1200 a year.

It is probable that the blank spaces in previous sections will be filled in so as to fix a general minimum wage and hour standard of 49 cents an hour and 40 hours a week, which would be the equivalent of $306 a year or $16 a week for anyone who had 50 weeks of employment.

The theory behind the measure is that there is no collective bargaining worth talking about for the wage group which earns less than $800 a year, and that many workers in the range between $800 and $1200 have no money with which to organize and bargain collectively. Thus, after the bill previously has authorized the board to vary its non-oppressive standards upward or downward, section five authorizes the board to establish a minimum fair wage in cases where facilities for collective bargaining are inadequate or ineffective, and where lower wages paid by some employers threaten to undermine the labor standards of other employers. But there are labor leaders who foresee that many unskilled workers will feel less incentive to join unions if and when the government fixes wages for them at between $16 and $25 a week.

So, they say away from it. On the other hand there are labor leaders who say that the head of a family who makes less than $25 a week is unlikely to have enough food in his stomach to make good fighting union material.

Woman 64 Years Old Ate With Sam Bass

KERRVILLE (UP)—A 64-year-old Kerrville woman, Mrs. Benjamin F. Bennett, can recall eating watermelon with the noted Texas outlaw, Sam Bass.

On a sultry midsummer day in 1881, Mrs. Bennett, then Lula Belle Turner, age 11, was accompanying her parents by covered wagon from Terrell to the Plains. They drove their wagon under a tree to stop for lunch. Under the tree they saw a stalwart, grizzled man, sleeping with his head on a saddle, bridle reins tied to his foot, and his horse grazing quietly. The man was Sam Bass.

When the sound of creaking wagon wheels reached his ears, he sat up alert. The Turners invited him to dine with them, and together they shared a big red watermelon. Mrs. Bennett's father, John Turner, and a partner operated the first stage line to run from Terrell to

'Brief Parting' Was for 36 Years

MINNEAPOLIS (UP)—Thirty-six years ago three young brothers shook hands in far-off Lithuania and set out in different directions to make their fortunes. They expected to meet again within a short time.

But the meeting did not take place until recently—and then not in Lithuania, but Minneapolis.

When the Sussman family parted, William, the oldest, struck out for South Africa, and Louis came to Minneapolis. The third brother, Maurice, remained in Lithuania for a short time and then he, too, came to Minneapolis.

Fasting years frequently brought plans for a reunion, but somehow the meeting was delayed.

William Sussman is a cattle rancher at Bulawayo, Southern Rhodesia, South Africa. His two brothers are in business in Minneapolis.

Odd Negro Receives Marriage License

DALLAS (UP)—A middle-aged negro, his mouth split with an enormous grin, walked into the Dallas county clerk's marriage license counter and announced:

"Mistuh, ah wants to change mah life from single blessedness to double cussedness."

Between chuckles, the clerk made him out a license.

STUART BLAKE, erstwhile "shiner" tourist, Carolee's lover.
HENRY COLTER, prospector, Paul and Silas Colter, prospector's sons.

Yesterday, Blake meets Carolee riding in Superstition and both become lost in the maze of slopes and distance.

CHAPTER V

FIRST realization that you are lost usually brings mild hysteria. Such emotion gripped both Carolee and Stuart for a few moments when they looked about on strange forest. Neither, however, showed nor admitted it.

"This is a lot of fun, but not very efficient," said Stuart, after a quarter-hour of riding. "See anything familiar, Carolee?"

"No, I don't. It's rather confusing, isn't it?"

"Ha ha!" Stuart had relaxed now. Naturally optimistic, he disliked to entertain danger. "We ought to make swell headlines—COUPLE LOST ON HORSEBACK RIDE. Or imagine the tabloids—MAN LURES GIRL TO MYSTERY MOUNTAIN. Anyhow I'd like to see a Chicago newsboy right now. I'd know my way around."

Carolee smiled a little. "Are you ever afraid of anything, Stuart?"

"I am, just a little. But it's silly. I know; two grown people losing themselves like little children. We'll get out somehow."

"Check. We will. Say, it's so thick here with brush that we can't see far enough. I have field glasses in the saddle pocket. Let's climb that rock and study the landscape."

"O-o-oh!" she was gleeful. "It's home! That's where I live! I know it. I recognize it. That's our clothes line. I know. Mother has hung out sheets or something. And that green clump of trees is where I live. It's home!"

Stuart was amazed. "Your home? Away up there?"

"Yes, Stuart! We're camped there, in a shack. We're going to stay until father and the boys find their silly gold mine. Oh gee-ee!"

CHIEFTAIN turned his head to look at her, she was giggling so in her excitement. Stuart, too, was beaming again now.

"It's away up," she continued. "At least 3000 feet, Father says. It's marvelous but it's—lonesome. I'm a little afraid sometimes."

The distant dot of the Colter home, almost like an eagle's cry from the riders' position, gave them just the direction they needed. Their horses, in fact, had instinctively been headed approximately right all the time. Carolee came to her senses then, remembered more of her farm rearing, and quietly gave Chieftain free rein. He soon plodded them back to trails that they recognized, and from which they could catch glimpses of Superstition Lodge still further below. They agreed to go to the Lodge for lunch, for it was well past noon now.

"I should be afraid you'd fall off," mused Stuart, gazing upward.

"It's not that," she laughed. "I just have vague fears about—about the whole thing, sometimes. The gold business, I mean. But it's nothing. Did you know I can see the roof of your lodge from our cliff?"

"No! Can you? Say, that's great Carolee! Listen, let's arrange a signal. Hang out a—flag or something, maybe a sheet, when you can meet me down the trail. Will you?"

Carolee laughed gaily. "You wouldn't be a Boy Scout in disguise, would you, Stuart?"

"Nor I," she laughed again, sweetly. "I feel as if I were 16 again." She spurred Chieftain to a gallop.

"A trying place!" He was sentimental about it. "I've never had one before."

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, June 29 (UP)—The transcript upon which the Texas Supreme Court upheld the state anti-trust law last week probably was the most bulky ever filed in the court.

After it had been much reduced in size by agreements of counsel, the record submitted on the appeal still contained 2,265 pages and made up four printed octavo volumes.

The ruling is one of a number on which the Supreme Court and the Third Court of Civil Appeals at Austin have disagreed recently. The Third Court of Appeals by reason of its location gets practically all the cases testing state regulatory laws. A notable disagreement between the courts was on oil well-spacing regulation. The Supreme Court issued an explanatory supplement to its original ruling on this question and now the appellate court rulings on the topic necessarily follow the Supreme Court decision.

In the anti-trust case, the Third Court of Civil Appeals held outright that the anti-trust law was void because there was discrimination in exempting co-operative agricultural marketing associations.

The Supreme Court held that the anti-trust law was not void and that it had not become invalid by the later passage of the marketing act. That far all members of the Supreme Court agreed to differ with the Third Court of Civil Appeals. There they split. They arrived at the same destination by different routes.

Chief Justice C. M. Cureton thought that the marketing act created an exemption but that the exemption was void. The majority of the court thought the co-operative marketing act did not create an exemption and did not authorize association members to violate the anti-trust statute.

A nice little lawsuit with big complications will break when anticipated oil developments reach proper location. Then Texas and Louisiana will be launched willy nilly into a boundary contest with oil royalties as the prize.

Even Arkansas may be drawn in as an innocent bystander. The trouble is threatened because of old treaties and surveys. The Eastern boundary of Texas was specified to be the Sabine river from the Gulf coast to latitude 32 degrees, and then due north. The boundary line was run along the West bank of the river. Later it was decided that Texas extended to the middle of the river, but the Northern extension of the boundary never was changed. It still runs north from the West bank of the river. There is only half the width of the river involved but in oil territory a few feet may make a big difference.

An amusing angle of the anti-trust law case from the viewpoint of state attorneys was less funny to attorneys for out of state oil concerns. When the state sought to include Standard Oil Company of California, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Socony Vacuum Company in the suit, attachments were issued against stock in Texas oil companies owned by the three. The State Supreme Court held those attachments were invalid. It was the only point in the decision in favor of the oil companies. But the decision of the invalidity of the attachments because they had subjected themselves to the jurisdiction of Texas courts when they appeared to contest the attachments. If the attachments had been ignored they would have been no use to the state.

When Gov. James V. Allred, utilizing six donated pens, signed the paramount race repeal act, the setting was his reception room on the second floor of the state capitol. A large table was placed at the West end of the room. Seated there he inscribed his name at the bottom of the act while he was surrounded by Senators who had fought for its passage and Rep. Bryan Bradbury of Abilene, its author. Cameras clicked after the group had been arranged so all would be in the picture.

Had the table been placed at the East end of the reception room, instead of the West, the photograph would have included a bust of Texas' No. 1 racing fan, Vice-president John Nance Garner.

A bronze bust of La Salle, presented to Texas as a centennial gift by the French government, is at the West end of the room. It did not appear in the picture because it still rests on the floor. The pedestal being prepared for it has not been completed.

Governors of Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Oklahoma have been requested by Gov. James V. Allred to endorse the invitation of the Texas Legislature to the National Tax Association to hold its 1938 meeting in Texas.

master of Groton School, who "has always married the Roosevelt boys," will perform the ceremony, assisted by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Frederick Ashton, whose father was formerly pastor of St. James Church, Hyde Park, N. Y. which President Roosevelt is senior vestryman.

Tremendous preparations have been made by the du Ponts for the wedding. Additional roads have been built to facilitate the arrival of 300 wedding guests and the thousand guests invited to the reception at Owls Nest, the home of the bride's parents.

A green and white marquee has been set up on the lawn at Owls Nest, under which reception guests will dance to music by a New York orchestra.

The numerous valuable gifts of gold, silver, china, crystal and linens, together with jewels presented to the bride, are under careful guard in the study, from which the bride's father's collection of stuffed animals and birds has been removed.

The story book romance of the president's son and the du Pont daughter—"the fair daughter of rich Capulet"—differs from Romeo and Juliet's sad fate in many ways other than its happy climax.

They have been sweethearts for about four years instead of just a day. Neither ever had a previous sweetheart.

Their parents interposed no obstacles to their love. Ethel has frequently been a guest at the White House and at Hyde Park. She listened to election returns with the joyous Roosevelt family at Hyde Park while her relatives were encompassed in gloom at Wilmington, Del. Franklin, Jr., likewise often to Eth Suffered Illness. Franklin, Jr., recuperated from his serious throat infection of last November at the du Pont winter home at Boca Grande, Fla., with his fiancée and his future mother-in-law to care for him. Ethel recuperated from an apendicitis operation at the White House the following February, having been stricken as she arrived with Franklin, Jr. from Florida.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Ethel played together at Cambridge, Mass., during Franklin, Jr.'s illness shortly after the couple's engagement was announced.

But thrills have attended the romance too. Franklin, Jr., once smashed a photographer's camera to keep him from making a picture of Ethel with him at a Philadelphia boxing match—and bought a new camera for the camera man. They were chased by a wild bull at Owls Nest. Some automobile accidents marred life momentarily.

Where they will spend their honeymoon is a secret. But they have taken a small white colonial cottage at Charlottesville, Va., for the coming winter. Franklin, Jr., will study law at the University of Virginia, and both will find plenty of opportunity to ride in that "horsey" section of the Old Dominion.

Man Achieved 97 Per Cent Calf Crop

KERRVILLE (UP)—A 97 per cent calf crop has been achieved by Adam Wilson, Jr., a Dyvide ranchman who lives 45 miles southwest of here. Wilson's 1937 crop from 118 cows, most of them hand bred, totaled 114 calves, all Herefords. Registered bulls are used and Wilson swaps around so as to avoid breeding to his own best. He has used registered bulls since 1918.

He daily gives his cows a balanced ration and he attributed the high percentage of his calf crop to the good condition and high grade of his cows. He found it profitable to sell his calves when they are eight to nine months old. At present, his herd includes, besides 118 cows, 30 yearlings and a few two-year-olds. Wilson also runs about 800 each of Angora goats and Rambouillet sheep.

Mrs. Camfield Gets Shower at Church

A most enjoyable occasion took place Monday evening when about sixty guests met in the basement of the First Baptist Church to do honor to Mrs. Roy Camfield, nee Miss Wilma Mason, a recent bride in a bridal shower.

The spacious room was made very attractive by vases of cut flowers pink and white in color.

The hostesses on this occasion were Mesdames Chumney, Homer Hensley, Leon McPherson, Misses Langston and Louise Karkalits of Eastland. The guests were met at the door by Mesdames Letha Estes and Louise Karkalits who presented them to the bride, Mrs. Roy Camfield who had come to what she thought was a meeting of her S. S. Class of which she has been a faithful member.

Pleasant conversation was engaged in, and several amusing games were played to the enjoyment of all present.

Mrs. Ben Krauskopf, who furnished violin music for the evening, accompanied.

Texas Coast Urged To Grow Linen Flax

ANGLETON, (AP)—Flax from which linen is made will grow better in Texas, than anywhere else in the nation, according to R. H. Stanzel, chief of the Texas agricultural experiment station here.

In a report on flax culture, Stanzel advised farmers of the Texas coastal region to try the new crop, pointing out that 20,000,000 bushels of flax are imported annually.

Flax is produced extensively in North and South Dakota and in Michigan.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) ing her own way entered the office of the president of the aforesaid company. "I understand," she said abruptly, "that you are going to deface your beautiful tower by making a billboard of the clock you are going to put in it."

The president of the company smiled. "I should hardly put it that way," he said. "What we are going to do is to use the letters that make up the name of our company instead of the characters which commonly appear in the faces of clocks."

"You will do nothing of the sort," declared the lady decisively.

The president raised his eyebrows. "Yes, and with whom have I the pleasure of conversing?"

The lady gave her name. She was next in kin to the great financial house of—well, there is no need to get too personal. But, as soon as the president of that large corporation heard the name he rose, smiled sweetly, bowed gracefully, and said, "It will give us infinite pleasure to honor any request of yours."

Now, had that high executive had a mind like that of the cook who "doan tek nuthin' off'n nobody" he might have told this determined woman where to get off and perhaps—his company might have encountered some serious difficulties in financial circles.

But of course that president had more to risk than a job at seven dollars a week, which could be duplicated around the corner tomorrow morning.

Fingerprint Expert Honored in London

LONDON (AP)—The who, through fingerprints, has brought more murderers to the galows than any other police officer at Scotland Yard has been appointed Chief Inspector and second in command of the fingerprint department.

He is Detective-Inspector Fred Cherrill, a red-faced, bowler-hatted little man who looks more like a farmer than a fingerprint expert.

He has figured in most of the great murder cases of the past 20 years. Cherrill once obtained fingerprints of a man who had burned the tips off all his fingers before committing suicide. The inspector took the perished skin, removed the flesh from the inside and obtained perfect prints—the wrong

Long Candle Symbol Welcome Years Ago
