About Our Friends

By STEP A. LONG

It's Goodbye for a Month Well, Our Friends will have a month of rest from this column as Step A. Long takes a vacation and visits relatives in California. Some more solid reading will occupy the space of this column until our return September 1.

The hired hands, Truett, Mrs. Maglia, Mrs. Richardson, Swen-Lawrence, Floyd and Wheeler, carry on, and as to how well, depend largely on you. Our friends, who have been so splendidly tell us news, give us tips and as to what might be going on that we could give the facts on afternoon that all readers might know the latest news of the locality. The late Will Rogers said he only knew what he read in the papers, all the newspaper editor knows that his friends tell him, in a local community like Cisco territory.

Let us say here that we appreciate our friends more than we can tell. You have aided us so much and as we play snowball on Rocky Mountains, look at Old Rocky and feed the bears in the stone, bathe in Great Salt Lake, wonder at the Golden Gate, with the movie stars in Hollywood (if we should) or bathe with beauties on Long Beach (ditto), shall remember our good friends and will know that you are still helping to Carry On. And as we turn our faces homeward, we shall look forward to again talking to you each day as we revive this column and chat in a light vein, or on some of the philosophies

BILL ATTACKS LONG HOURS AND LOW WAGE

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, July 31 (UP)—The Senate today passed and sent to the house a wages and hours bill encompassing a broad attack by the federal government on low wages and long hours.

WASHINGTON, July 31 (UP)—Administration forces today defeated an effort to kill the wages and hours bill by sending it back to Senate committees. The test vote presaged passage of the measure. The administration pressed the bill toward a "showdown" vote, after beating an amendment affecting Secretary of State Cordell Hull's good neighbor tariff policy. The bill, a key factor in President Roosevelt's free adjournment program, headed for a final decision with neither side very confident of victory. Senator Pat McCahen of Nevada offered an amendment later defeated, which would have barred importation of products made abroad under so-called "sub-standard" labor conditions. He sharply assailed foreign dairy and agricultural products sold in this country in competition with domestic products. Debate was interrupted when a white-haired gallery spectator rose and demanded that he be heard as a representative of millions of unemployed.

The man was ejected from the gallery after he demanded that a petition he carried be read from the desk. He tossed the petition over the gallery railing. The man was identified as W. A. Maxwell of Chicago, representing the American Federation of the Unemployed and the aged. Final passage of the measure which would set up a Labor Standards Board, empowered to regulate wages, to minimums not exceeding 40 cents an hour, and hours not lower than 40 a week, came after a dramatic battle by southern Democrats and Republicans to recommit the bill to committees.

FOUR THIEVES GET AWAY WITH PAYROLL TODAY

HOUSTON, July 31 (UP)—Four gunmen, armed with sawed-off shotguns, held up two payroll messengers today and escaped with $3,400 in cash. The money was being taken from the bank to the Shipside Contracting company. Three men leaped from an auto after forcing Guy Graves, treasurer of the company and a special officer guarding the money, to drive their car to a curb. Then the robber reached into the car and took the money bags.

TIENTSIN TURNED INTO INFERNO OF HATE AND FEAR AS WOMEN FLEE TO RIVER, DRAGGING CHILDREN

TIENTSIN, China, July 31 (UP)—Tientsin was turned suddenly into an inferno of hate, fear, and jangled nerves today at a moment when it seemed that the brief tragic war between China and Japan had ended. Japanese artillerymen kept pounding shells into the smoking ruins of the Rockefeller library. Next they opened up without warning in a terrible bombardment of the native city. For the days of fighting when their men had made a hopeless stand against the Japanese, the Chinese people had remained unmoved, but the bombardment caught them weakened. In a few moments panic broke. Women, dragging children with them, began running toward the barbed wire and sandbag barricade of the foreign settlement. As they ran there burst on the city one of the most severe thunderstorms in memory. There were scenes of madness. The terrorized Chinese turned away from the foreign concessions went to the river. They thronged the banks trampling the bodies lying there; sometimes nudes and human-beings being piled together the rain soaking all. Police, soldiers and armed volunteers of the British concessions began herding the refugees as gently as they could toward the former German concessions. As these events occurred a potentially serious clash occurred between the French and the Japanese. The French consul charged that the Japanese had cut communications between the French concessions, and that during the fighting Thursday Japanese troops machine-gunned a French detachment.

He stated that there was no epidemic of it in or near Cisco, and that the fears of various persons in the community were perhaps apprehensive hallucinations.

In truth, some of its subtle evils are just beginning. If the far-reaching aftermath of these upheavals was better understood, we should be less easily gratified by their immediate conclusion and more concerned with their prevention.

AUSTRALIA COMPUTES DEBT
CANDERRA (AP)—Australia's national debt is officially announced as $1,262,911,546 (about $6,314,558,730) representing $900 per capita.

Taxes 'Over There'

After surveying the plight of labor "over there," as recently summarized by Col. Frank Knox of the Chicago Daily News, one is bewildered by some of the actions of organized labor in this country. A typical skilled worker in Germany, a linotype operator, earns $540 annually. From this is deducted such items as taxes and insurance, contributions to relief funds, etc., etc. The $540 ultimately shrinks to a net annual income of $444.60.

On the assumption that the worker in question has a wife and three children, living expenses were divided as follows: Rent, $57.71; light and heat, $20.70; food, $244.06; clothing, $56.88; miscellaneous, including transportation, washing, furniture, education and amusement, $61.26. This makes a total $440.56, leaving $4.04 for a rainy day!

Of course, simply because the workers of another nation happen to be less fortunate than the workers in the United States, is no valid reason per se for criticizing American labor. But the straightened circumstances of labor in the illustration just cited, should indicate the advantages enjoyed by labor in our own country.

Freedom, as we know it, demands as its price of continued existence, constant vigilance to see that the rights of the individual are not destroyed by regimentation and bureaucratic dictation from any source, as they have been in many foreign countries.

The Habit of Idleness

No matter what may be the basic cause of long periods of unemployment, one of the most unfortunate developments is that some of the unemployed get the habit of idleness. When work re-opens, these men ignore their opportunity and continue to drift. They and their families suffer and tend to become public charges.

In the large cities charitable organizations have found the calls upon them greatly increased as a result of the unemployment situation which prevails for so long. They look for still further drains if the strikes continue. This is not only because families run out of funds while the crisis is on. In many instances the chance for work will find the breadwinner a confirmed idler or even a deserter from his home.

Deep in the heart of every man, according to one writer, is a rooted aversion to idleness. The majority fight this feeling successfully all the time. Some never fight it at all. They are the professional bums and crooks. Others resist bravely until a long period in which they cannot get work throws the balance to the idle side. Then they are lost, and society pays the bill in charitable work to be done, and in criminality, the sure accompaniment of deliberate idleness.

When a long period of unemployment is ended, the tendency is to heave a sigh of relief and say, "that's over."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The national capital has a slightly closer contact with the labor movement than derives from the fact that Bill Green, John Lewis, Frances Perkins, Ed McGrady, Bob La Follette and Warren Madden live here. But not much.

Local industry means little more than the few breweries, ice cream plants, roach powder and patent medicine factories needed to take care of the city.

But now, the fact that the C. I. O. is going to take governmental employees into its ranks is causing a certain amount of excitement—not to say concern. The specter of an army of federal employees owing allegiance to or taking orders from John L. Lewis is calculated to give the willies to anyone who normally spends much time worrying about John L. Lewis.

There are two unions of federal employees already formed. Neither bears close resemblance to a labor union and both bar strikes and picketing as weapons, although one—the American Federation of Government Employees—is affiliated with the A. F. of L.

PERHAPS the most interesting point of the proposal of some government employees to get into the C. I. O. is the fact that this group has been conspicuous in a campaign against government economy. The A. F. of L. E. suspended seven of its lodges because they staged a mass meeting against what they called "foolish false economy." Officials of the lodges have asked Lewis to help them in their campaign.

Lewis, apparently after considerable cogitation, acted. He selected Jacob Baker, former assistant administrator of WPA and chairman of a group bent to inquire into European co-operative industries, to organize government workers into a new branch of the C. I. O. It will be called Organization supported the candidate in the last election. You also know that the C. I. O. has important powerful advocates in Congress and the White House. With the support of the C. I. O. the Committee Against False Economy will defeat Foolish False Economy. With the support of the C. I. O. it will organize all government workers into one strong union that will be able to work effectively in the interests of the government worker and for government efficiency.

They are the jolliest chaps in the world when at leisure but demons for work and relentless when on the trail in duty... We had an enjoyable glimpse into the life of the law Friday, which turned to somewhat of an endurance contest as we laved with them over three counties, saw more officers of the law than we knew existed, and saw how seriously they took their job of protecting the public from the lawless... looked for automobile tracks, grass blades that might have been disturbed... examined for blood stains, listened to questioning that brought out ridiculous stories that anyone could tell were fabrications in an effort to account for strange doing and conditions... Stories that were conflicting, interviewed parties who were mere witnesses in a way... saw how loyal fellow-officers were to aid their brother officers... learned to endure heat, thirst, hunger and lack of hotel accommodations when night fall came... all this in one afternoon... Thirty-five Years Caring for Eyes Exclusively

Best-Dressed Woman

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JUDITH IRVING, heroine, America's best dressed woman.
PHILIP IRVING, Judith's estranged husband.
MARTA ROGERS, Judith's rival.
BRUCE KNIGHT, author, Judith's old classmate.
MILICENT BAYNE, Bruce's protegee.

Yesterday, Fearfully certain that Phil is in love with Marta, Judith proposes a week-end at Phil's lodge to talk things over. But words will not come to voice "that something."

CHAPTER III

PHIL put down a magazine as Judith had picked up casually, as Judith paused. She noticed that his eyes had been resting on a picture of her, clothed in purple crepe pajamas, lounging on aavenport in their sun room. Odd, she thought, that she should be wearing those pajamas now.

She could not mention Marta's name to Phil, though he had given her an opening. He himself went on. "Judy, what's happened to me?" He raised his voice. "What's happened? You ought to know! You're a woman! You're my wife! It's your business to know."

"Tell me about it!" She dropped down on a hassock at his feet. The mood passed. "You'll think I'm an ass. I'm not certain of myself, my feeling of anything any more. Not even of my love for you, Judy. Judy—" She remembered a favorite little brother who had come to her when their father had been drunk and unkind long ago, as she met the puzzled blue eyes. Life was being that way to Phil now. It had removed the wrapping from his emotions. She couldn't advise him. She could only stand by.

So to change the conversation presently she mentioned the gleaming jackets she had bought a few days before. He didn't smile appreciatively. His lips curled a little. "They matter a lot to you, don't they, Judy? Clothes, I mean."

"Why no, not at all!" "But you wouldn't wear gingham aprons and live with a man on a Georgia farm or on a Pacific island and never have a picture in the paper. Not you! Oh, no! Not Mrs. Philip Godfrey Irving, who wears the most becoming clothes in America!"

She glanced at him swiftly, scrutinizingly. No, he hadn't been drinking. But he wanted to hurt her, terribly and dreadfully. She fought back an inclination to defend herself. This was not the time for alibis. When she spoke her voice was quiet.

"Phil, we need the lodge this week-end. Shall we go?" His mind came back from a long distance. The lodge? Oh, yes, of course. Now his eyes were quiet again. "Judith, I think that might be an excellent thing to do."

BUT when Phil called on Friday he said: "Judith! The Cabies are here from London. Just got a ring from old Pete. How about taking them along?"

Because there was nothing else to do, she agreed. Anyway she liked the Cabies, who were a little older and fond of the out of doors. And later, when Phil began to suggest that a house party might be in order because the week-end would not be theirs alone anyhow, she understood. He had decided that he couldn't face the two days alone with her, lest he make a disclosure he wasn't ready to make.

Illustration by Virginia Krausmann

Judith went to the terrace to greet her husband and the two aides followed her. "Hello, Judy dear," came Marta's fluted tones. She helped plan the guest list. Another woman was needed. "Why not Marta?" she asked. "She's beautiful and we need her for ornamentation."

Phil's guarded answer showed that he didn't know how much she suspected. "Do you think so? She hates New York over week-ends."

When she replaced the telephone in its ivory cradle Judith stood up, gave the heavy rose hassock a mighty kick that sent her silver marta spinning after it, bit her lips. Marta wouldn't fit. That should be good news—should show up a woman. But Marta was clever enough to get the men to protect her. For one thing she didn't know how to dress. She would have no rust and green and brown sweaters and skirts along. Or—maybe she did know how to dress. She would be fragile in rose and blue. And every man longed to be a Launcelet.

The day went on. She prepared to meet some friends for lunch. There was a sheer black frock of chiffon, that went with a large black hat whose only ornament was a knot of pink wax flowers. She was ready to leave when she was summoned to the telephone by her maid.

"You never reported on the play," Bruce's voice said. "Let me come to tea and tell me where I bungled my lines." "You couldn't bungle them. But I can make a better suggestion. Why not bring Millicent and come to the lodge for the week-end?"

that were always honest. "I know—you doubted me as I doubted you. You thought I had turned you down and when I didn't seem to recognize you, you wondered if I was keeping Judith Bole's boat house a secret. And I thought you didn't want to know me any more."

When she started to lunch Judith had a warm glow in her heart. A lost friend had returned. A lantern had swung down to light the path. Only Phil mattered but she was glad she had found Bruce.

SATURDAY afternoon, about 5 o'clock, Judith heard the claxon of Phil's car sounding down the valley. There were fires in all the rooms for rain had come again and the night would be chilly. The great, spreading lodge, which was almost all living room with a den tacked on one side and bedrooms scattered above on the second floor, was bright with lamplight. The brass shone softly, the deep chairs and divans waited.

Judith was wearing green tweeds with a rust sweater and matching oxfords. She went to the terrace to greet her husband and the two aides followed her.

"Hello, Judy dear," Marta's fluted tones called from the depth of the car. "It's sweet of you to let me come."

"You're an angel to come," Judy lied with perfect grace. "Hello, darling," Phil flung out carelessly. "This child was relying on trains and you know how they run up here."

"Oh, my dear, you should have called one of us," Judith reproved, never disclosing by so much as a flicker of an eyebrow that she knew that was just what Marta had done. "It was thoughtless of me not to suggest getting you this morning."

"I had to give up my car. Dick was sort of forgetful about alimony," Marta explained with the air of a martyr who does not censure but accepts life with its reverses.

"How lovely you look," Judith went on, talking against time. More cars were coming now. Guests were welcomed, retired to their rooms to prepare for dinner. Laughter and gay voices went drifting down the halls. Judith did not change except to add a small strand of pearls to the turtle neck of her sweater as a dinner gesture. They had been a gift from Phil a few months before. When Phil went into his den she followed, determined to make no mention of Marta. Love, faith, devotion were intangible substances that could not be touched, or they would move away. Quick-silver stuff. You couldn't pick them up. You knew, though, they were there so long as you did not touch them with words. Here in the out of doors she sensed the old truth again.

"A good day, Phil?" she asked. He turned slowly and when she saw the haggard look on his face, read the suffering in the blue eyes, her heart turned over and didn't move again. So this was the way women felt when their husbands came to say goodbye.

It was very still in the den, just the snap of a twig as the breeze found it, and the showering raindrops on the window. "Judy," he began and paused. "Judy..." (To Be Continued)

Veteran Waits 20 Years for Discharge

ROBBINSDALE, Minn. (U.P.)—Recently received honorable discharge papers of Walter G. Grinols, of Robbinsdale, were 20 years late.

Grinols was discharged from the 151st Field Artillery regiment when he contracted pleurisy. At the time he received the customary $60 bonus and a blue discharge certificate on which was the statement "loyal and faithful service." The blue certificate, however, "Grinols learned many years later, meant dishonorable discharge.

He started action to obtain redress and after several years he received the correct papers honorably discharging him from service.

Quilt Making Keeps Woman, 83, Happy

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (U.P.)—Forteen months of work in "piecing" a huge quilt of 19,200 separate parts is "no job at all" for Mrs. Lillian Edwards Stead, 83.

Mrs. Stead in 1908 went alone to the bleak Montana plains and homesteaded 150 acres of land.

"It's sin and a shame the way so many people refuse to work," said Mrs. Stead, who during the World War worked in a garment factory on a power machine, despite he advanced age.

Born in Ohio, a school teacher at the age of 13, Mrs. Stead has crossed the continent "times without number" she says and has been in Japan, Persia, India and other out-of-the-way places.

Mrs. Stead is proud of that fact she is of "real pioneer stock."

PAINTERS AT WRONG HOUSE
ST. LOUIS (U.P.)—Residents of St. Louis suburban home thought the landlord sent painters who removed their awnings and screens and began painting the window frames. So they said nothing until the men moved on after painting only the back porch, a side door and several window frames. The painters explained they had the wrong house, should have been working a block away.

 EUREKA, Ariz. (U.P.)—A wooden cross with the words "Here lies the Jinx" marks the center of a small burial plot at the Buckhorn mine, 60 miles northwest of Eureka. Miners at the camp buried mining machinery that caused them considerable trouble in a fenced-in grave in a conspicuous place.

WASHINGTON NEWS

FROM CONGRESSMAN
CLYDE L. GARRETT

VISITORS—The office this past week has seen the smiling faces of Jack Sweney of Beckenridge, A. H. Demke of Stephenville, George Bennett and James Beall, Jr. of Sweetwater, W. L. Fletcher of Hamlin Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Stephenson, formerly of McCauley but now residing in Baltimore, and Chief Caldwell of Abilene.

YEARBOOKS—In the installation of the air cooling system we found several thousand Agriculture Yearbooks which were being discarded and we have made up about sixty complete sets of them for 26 years which are being shipped out right away for the school libraries. They will go to those schools which have Vocational Agriculture first. Then to the other schools in order.

DIVERSIFIED INTERESTS—From what I have been able to see of the work here in our office we have about as diversified interest in the 17th district as it is possible for any inland district to have. Water transportation is about the only interest which our district does not have some action in at this time.

NORMAL GRANARY—A letter was sent to Chairmen of the Senate and House Committees by the President asking favorable consideration for a broad program of farm legislation, including continuance of soil conservation efforts and Secretary Wallace's ever-normal granary plan for stabilization of farm prices over prosperous and lean years. The bill has been introduced by Chairman Marvin Jones of the Agricultural Committee.

TENANCY BILL—The Administration's farm tenancy program, after a Conference report, was passed by the House and sent to the Senate. The measure calls for a permanent program of loans to tenants and includes a provision of $50,000,000 to purchase and retire sub-marginal land over a period of three years.

SOCIAL SECURITY—Every State and territory in the United States now has an unemployment insurance law that conforms with the Social Security Act. The last State law, that of the state of Illinois was approved by the Social Security Board. It is estimated that nearly twenty-one million workers are in employments covered by the 51 approved unemployment insurance laws which provide compensation to employees who lose their jobs through no fault of their own. The amount given, varies in different states.

TAX AVOIDANCE—The Joint Congressional Tax Avoidance Committee concluded hearings, and executive sessions were started to draft legislation to plug loopholes in existing income tax laws.

AIR TRAINING—Any young men between the ages of 20 and 26 have an opportunity to go to an Army Air Corps Training School for two years and serve another year as a second lieutenant in the Reserve Corps with all expenses paid and $75 a month pay during the training period. Besides being between 20 and 26 years of age, an applicant must be unmarried, in sound mental and physical condition, and must agree to stay with the corps for at least three years. An applicant must fill out in triplicate application blanks to be obtained from the Adjutant General, in Washington, D. C. and return them with three letters of recommendation and a certificate from his college showing that he has completed at least half the regular college course. The applicant will then be notified when and where to appear for a physical examination.

LAG IN BUILDING—Home building early this year showed promising signs of giving the nation's business a decided lift. Then in May came some slackening and in June a definite set-back. This is regarded by the President and his advisers as a major important point. They have taken the matter into consideration and the point they make is that there exists a definite shortage of one family dwelling units in this country. There is a pressure on the existing supply as population increases, marriage increase and the "doubling up" of depression days goes into reverse. Rents have skyrocketed, as a result of this President Roosevelt is exploring the situation, and is working on a remedy.

Soldier Boy

fronted by him Friday night. He said he walked about one-fourth mile and lay down by the side of the road and slept until about daylight. He then resumed his journey until he was picked up by Palo Pinto officers near the "Y" east of scenic Point.

The Sheriff's Story
 Palo Pinto officers were loaded out for a trip to Austin when notified that a soldier-hijacker was wanted for the slugging of Mr. Anderson. They had their women folks in the car with them. They saw the young chap at the above place in the road and were going so fast they could not stop. When they did stop the car and turn around, he was walking back eastward and "thumbed" them for a ride eastward. They picked him up and asked him where he wanted to go and he replied Mineral Wells, as that was where he lived. They asked him about the names of officers there and he did not know any of them, finally saying he lived out in the country. Later when they had gotten his bag which had been left with the night watchman at Strawn, he admitted he was a soldier on furlough and gave his name and residence as Fulton, Ark. Atkinson to be Married

 Atkinson later told Chief Perdue that he was going to get married shortly to some girl he had met somewhere. He also stated that he left school in the eighth grade and had worked in a fish market in Louisiana. He is a smooth talker and has an easy way about him. Is self-possessed but gets nervous after talking a while and begins to assure you he is telling the truth. Appears to be at home with strangers, not backward at all. He has sandy hair, sleepy eyes that hide themselves from you during his talk, bold if you appear to believe him, but looks away mostly while talking. Has what you would term a fighting nose, long, sharp with hump at the middle. Rather brazen air.

Atkinson is being detained while points of his story are being checked. He was brought to Cisco from Palo Pinto by Chief of Police Perdue and Constable Gustafson.

The above story as told officers by Atkinson, does not check out with facts as stated by Mr. Anderson. Mr. Anderson does not know of any dark man, he says, but believes the young fellow was the one who slugged him and from whom he saved himself by sliding under the wheel and dashing away after the blows.

JOB INCREASE IN AGE GROUP FROM 40 TO 65

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31 (UP)—Life is really beginning again at 40, and even 50, 55 and 60, according to the California State Employment Service.

Statistics just completed by the agency show that where with the depression the man at 40 or 45 could apparently never hope again to find work there is now an ever increasing demand for men even beyond these ages, provided they are skilled workmen or their muscles will still stand up under strain of ordinary manual labor.

Skilled Men In Demand The agency discovered an ever increasing demand for skilled carpenters, iron workers, auto mechanics, sheet metal workers, lathe hands construction workers and others where skill is paramount regardless of age, and where the middle aged skilled worker is accorded preference over the younger and less experienced man.

Planning mill workers are making as much as $8 a day, the agency said; sheet metal workers $8.80 and cabinet workers $6 to $9. All of these and many other occupations require a degree of skill that the young university or technical graduate cannot yet supply, and employers prefer the older and more skilled men.

Age Average Up Sharply Statistics of the state agency show that at present roughly 20 per cent of the men being put to work through its efforts are between 45 and 65 years old. Last year at this time the number in the same category was only about 20 per cent.

From a national standpoint, statistics just received by the employment service indicate that the situation is even better. Where 10 men between 45 and 50 were placed at work a year ago, 20 now find jobs. Between the 50- and 55-year span 15 men are now placed where only 10 were employed last year.

ultly are being carefully considered in order that teachers of unquestioned ability, character and scholarship may be selected.

Since the College is recognized as a Junior College of the first class, students of Education may receive Teachers' certificates valid throughout Texas. All requirements of the State will be met and young teachers will be given all possible encouragement and assistance in preparation for teaching in the public schools of Texas.

Honor pupils from affiliated high schools are entitled to scholarships, and, if they have not been already issued, may be had on application. The College still has some openings for students who desire to work for part of their expenses and would be glad to have personal application at once from those interested.

Citizens desiring student help are requested to telephone the College office stating whether boy or girl is wanted and the nature of the work to be done.

Friends of the College are requested to send names of prospective students, in order that the College bulletin may be sent to them and contacted later, if necessary.

For a number of years Randolph College has not solicited financial support from the citizens of Cisco and has been a real asset in furnishing the young people educational advantages at great financial saving; has made it possible for many to attend College who otherwise would not have done so; has made no local debts; has spent practically all its income in Cisco and has furnished in its Faculty several families who have contributed to the social, business and religious life in the city.

Few schools in Texas have as small indebtedness as Randolph Junior College and with proper cooperation and support the College will be made a much greater asset to the community.

Rural Electric to Have School Tues.

Assuming that electric service can be made as practical for the rural sections of West Texas as it is in cities and towns, officials of the Agricultural Engineering Committee of Texas A. & M. College will meet with farm leaders and representatives of electrical dealers and power companies in Abilene Tuesday morning for a one-day school of instruction.

Knox Parr, Taylor county agent who will serve as chairman, arranged the session to be held in the ballroom of the Wooten hotel, opening at 9:30 a. m. Invitations to attend the school were sent to county agents, teachers of vocational agriculture, representatives of electric service companies, electric dealers and agricultural leaders in 20 counties in the Abilene area.

The meeting is one of a series of 17 rural electrification schools being held over the state. Others in West Texas were scheduled at Fort Worth, San Angelo, Lubbock and Wichita Falls.

F. T. Montfort, of the Agricultural Engineering Department at A. & M. College, will be in charge here. The Texas Committee on the Relation of Electricity to Agriculture is co-sponsor to the schools with A. & M. College. The West Texas Utilities company, a member of the committee, will be represented by T. J. McCarty, rural power engineer. McCarty is assisting Parr in preparing electric displays and demonstrations.

The primary purpose of the schools, it was announced by Montfort, is to demonstrate practical use of electric appliances in rural sections—a problem which has long vexed the power companies due to fluctuating farm income.

"We hope to make available information regarding the many practical uses of electricity on the farm to those agricultural leaders who will be called upon to assist the farmer with his problem of putting electricity to work in the most practical and profitable manner," Parr said.

Subjects to be discussed include farm wiring, farm lighting, household appliances such as ranges, refrigerators and washing machines, water systems and electric equipment suitable for use in the dairy, on poultry farms and in feed processing. Talks, Montfort advised.

Liberal use will be made of charts, illustrations, sound movies, models and other means for making discussions "more interesting and effective."

SACRED SKULLS OF INDIANS TO BE RECOVERED

By WALT RUNDLE
United Press Staff Correspondent.
NISHU, N. D., July 31 (U.P.)—Stalwart Hidatsa braves have sworn in solemn tribal council to restore themselves to favor in the eyes of the rain god, Thunderbird, by recovering from the White Fathers the Sacred Skulls of the Two Eagles.

Chief Long Bull recounted how the white man carried off the Sacred Skulls and brought the great "never rain" upon the Hidatsa tribesmen and western North Dakota.

As he spoke, hot winds rattled corn leaves in nearby fields and whipped spirals of dust from the dry plains of the Fort Berthold agency. Drought has withered this year's crops and the Hidatsa faces another winter of privation.

Things were not always so. Long Bull told his councilors—not until 1909, when the faithless keeper sold the skulls to a white trader.

For 28 years the skulls have been in the Heys Museum of the American Indian in New York and for 28 years droughts have blighted the maize fields and impoverished the tribe.

The Hidatsa commissioned Arthur Mandan, chairman of the tribal council, to seek the aid of the Indian office in Washington. Next week in New York, tribesmen will meet the representatives of the Museum and the Indian bureau.

Long Bull has told his councilors that while the pledge of the two eagles was kept "there were plenty rain, much buffalo."

The legend is that 180 years ago the warring Shiwahwa and Hidatsa were brought together by two youths, one of whom became a tribal leader, the other powerful in "medicine."

Their people grew powerful. Rains were plenty and buffalo numerous. Enemy tribes fell before them. The leaders became renowned heroes, were known as the Two Eagles.

Then the Shiwahwa was killed in battle. His friend preserved his skull. Later, the Hidatsa eagle man by his death bed, he called the tribal leaders to him and said: "Now I die here, but I make a solemn promise. My skull and my friend's skull shall be the medicine of my band which shall be known as A-wapti-taka. Choose a trusted man among you to keep them in his lodge. So long as my skull and my friend's are kept in honor, my spirit will remain among you to help the people and be their guide."

The dying eagle revealed the mysteries of the skulls:

"If drought shall come and the fields wither, let the keeper of our skulls, mine and my friend's, set them on aromatic herbs and sprinkle over them some water. Then there will be rain."

"We must keep the pledge of the Two Eagles again," Long Bull told his tribesmen. They nodded assent.

THE GLADEWATER (TEXAS)

DAILY TIMES-TRIBUNE

There's always something different about anything Fort Worth does, and this show is no exception. There's a bigness about it all that brings the feeling that what is shown is tops. The show was no different from the Casino in Dallas, rival show, that it could not be compared.

Dallas' Casino is sophisticated, finished, polished. The sort of place where formal clothes and courteous service appropriate. Ft. Worth's Casa Manana is big, boy-tonic, and whooping. The men and women of the press enjoyed the show, and doubtless will write much of Fort Worth's unsurpassed hospitality.

Engineer 58 Years; Last Train Late

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (U.P.)—Ira Enos, who completed his last run in 58 years of railroading by pulling his train into the station 15 minutes late, advises young people to "choose the job you like."

"If you're doing something you enjoy, it's easy to stick to," the 74-year-old veteran engineer explained.

When Enos started his railroading career, it was necessary to haul freight trains by hand and to get going slowly down a mile by way you wanted to stop or to get away if it was on a down grade.

"From now on I'm going to play," he said as he left the station for the last time.
