'DICTATOR IS FAR FROM HIS MIND I KNOW'

PARIS, France, Aug. 30 (U.P.)—President Roosevelt does not want a third term, his mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt said today. "I am sure my son does not want to run for a third term as president," Mrs. Roosevelt said in an exclusive interview. "He feels that when he has completed the next three years, he will have done what was expected of him and will be ready to let someone else take his place. #### FRIENDS DONATE TO FINISH FOOTBALL FIELD—WHO'S FIRST?

"Cisco's magnificent football stadium is receiving finishing touches this week," said W. Frank Walker, business secretary today, as he showed us over the structure and pointed out some things yet needed to make it complete in every detail. "Some friends of the school and the football team have remarked that they would have been glad to donate work, material and money, had they known just what a splendid structure was being built, that we are taking them at their word and swallowing them the privilege of doing those very things if they will act immediately," said Mr. Walker this morning. He then pointed out some things that were yet needed to make the football stadium complete in every detail. The state money and the local school funds have both been exhausted and if football fans will come to the rescue, these appointments may be made at once. A fine press box has been built, there are no seats for the newspapermen and their wives who will come to report the results of the games. Neither is there a back stairway for entrance to the box. Both of these needs should be provided at once. Four big lightposts remain at the

Mexico Without Revolutions

More and more people are becoming interested in the economic struggle that is going on with a surprising lack of audible fireworks in the sister republic across the Rio Grande.

A year ago learned observers visited Mexico by the dozen and returned with the word that it was only a matter of time until the land of manana would become another Spanish battlefield, another testing ground for communism.

That hasn't happened because Mexico seems able to get all the excitement it wants these days from labor troubles, agrarian divisions and expropriation experiments. President Cardenas apparently has kept peace among his people by the simple scheme of making peace more exciting and unpredictable than war.

Admittedly the agrarian experiment has not worked out even remotely to the extent so farly hoped for. The plan to take the land from rich hacendados and give it to the peons found most of the peons ill fit to care for their new possessions. They had to seed, no tools and no money to buy any of these things, and they were exploited by politicians.

But this did not keep President Cardenas and his socialistic regime from confiscating more plantations and cultivated ranch land and dividing it among the poor classes. Theoretically the land was paid for in agrarian bonds. Actually most of the bonds have never been redeemed, often were never even issued.

But all this experimenting does keep things moving in Mexico. Admittedly, many of the laws under Mexico's labor constitution were passed as experiments and then abandoned. The Mexican government saw nothing more unusual in that than in the United States, for instance, taking the NRA out for a trial run. There have been a few attempts to better the Mexican agrarian plan and make it workable. Presumably there will be more.

The expropriation measure, which allowed the government to step in and take over industry as well as agriculture without notice, has been used more as a threat than as a weapon. It has been said that the government wouldn't dare step in and take over technical industries, such as oil and mining, because it has not available the trained technicians necessary to operate those industries successfully.

That may be true, but the law has certainly resulted in some extraordinary labor situations—such as oil workers striking and demanding, among other things, a two-month paid vacation for every workman with rail transportation for himself and family to any destination in the world and back.

President Cardenas seems to have provided a system that beats the old order, for Mexico—when the peon grabbed a gun and galloped off to battle every time someone with a silver-trimmed sombrero yelled "Viva la libertad."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY HADNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Friends and foes of Senator Hugo Black agree alike that the brief disturbance in the Senate over his confirmation is likely to prove more pop-gun stuff as compared with what may happen after he gets on the Supreme Court.

It is not necessary to impugn the "judicial temperament" of Senator Black, if any, in order to demonstrate the indubitable fact that Hugo has taken violent issue with the judicial attitudes of some of the sitting justices in the past, or to arouse the horrid thought that he may introduce some of the rough-and-tumble practices of the Senate floor to the Supreme Court's sacred cloisters.

One does not suggest that the distinguished whiskers of Chief Justice Hughes are in the slightest danger of being pulled by the aggressive senator from Alabama. Figuratively, maybe, but never literally.

The gentleman who will soon be Justice Black has publicly charged that a bare court majority for "years has been assuming the right on their part to determine the reasonableness of state and federal law. The Constitution never gave that majority any such power." Since the senator was never merely "informed," the chances are that he will attempt to bowl out his conservative brethren of the court, both in conference and in his opinions, more bitterly than they have been slammed in years. Black, his friends and enemies figure, simply has to let off steam.

The conferences at which the justices air their views to each other in complete secrecy may never be the same again.

Arguments have been made that no vacancy existed in the court—a contention which made no great dent in view of Justice Van Devanter's retirement—and that Black was disqualified because he was not a "liberal majority" of 6-3. Now that Black is to be a justice. But there is no assurance of that and if those twin returns to the narrow interpretations they made in the 6-3 decision against A.A. the conservative justices will outnumber the liberals by 5-4.

The one thing certain is that Black's appointment passes the scales of justice to Chief Justice Hughes, who will now be the man in the middle.

MELITA HOWARD—Kay's roommate and co-adventurer.
PRISCILLA DENN—third adventurer.
FORESTER BROTHERS and GRANT HARPER—young scientists whose expedition turned out to be a rare experience.

CHAPTER IV
NEITHER Magellan nor Columbus set out with hearts keyed higher for adventure than the three girls aboard the little power cruiser "Chinook."

Jim Pike was there to wish them well and give some welcome last-minute advice. The truth was that he was just a bit nervous, now that he came to the full realization that he was more or less responsible for sending off the "Chinook" with her comely cargo. But he hid his concern as best he could, knowing that a little confidence on the part of his proteges might not come amiss.

Keeping the boat at half-speed, and with a sharp lookout for busy commercial craft, Kay Dearborn stood at the wheel. Melita and Priscilla bustled themselves stowing the supplies which had been literally dumped aboard in the last-minute rush as the first day of their vacation started.

Once out of the bay, with its discomforting traffic, Kay breathed easier. She found that she was quickly learning the trick of keeping the little boat on its course. The first day's course she had literally memorized at Jim Pike's instructions. "You're in for clear weather, and I'll give you some leading marks with which you can wear a life-ring around your neck so you can find your way home."

Unused to the work, Kay found that an hour at the wheel was enough. She was then relieved by Melita and Priscilla in turn—but she stood by for the changes in course, since it was at Kay that Jim Pike had directed most of his instruction.

Their trip would lead them along comparatively quiet and sheltered seas. But Jim had warned that in crossing two or three straits they might easily find themselves open to the "tail-end" of nasty weather from the open ocean beyond. So they were all subconsciously alert and deliciously sensitive to possible danger.

There was nothing untoward happened that first day in the way of seagooing trouble—but it was not without its high points. Along about the middle of the morning Melita fell overboard, and it was quite a little time before Kay got the meaning of Priscilla's yelling. Fortunately, Melita was a good swimmer, and lightly attired in slacks and sneakers. Nevertheless, Priscilla, in the excitement, tossed a small case of beans into the water—and these proved their usefulness as a life preserver by sinking at once.

"W-what's the idea?" gasped Melita as Kay and Priscilla brought her aboard. "I thought this darned boat was never going to turn around and come back for me. And then you drop me a case of beans instead of a life preserver. "I'm sorry," Priscilla apologized. "It was just what I happened to see handy."

"Well, hereafter I suggest you wear a life-ring around your neck so you can find your way home," Kay grinned. "That might not be a bad idea for you to take on, Melita. That is, if you're going to be falling overboard again." Then she flew back to the wheel before Melita could think of a suitable reply.

PRISCILLA had been mightily pleased when she found that lunch time would bring her a trick at the wheel—for this relieved her of duty in the galley. Carefully Kay pointed out a towering hill in the distance and advised Priscilla to keep the nose of the "Chinook" pointed toward it.

"Is that all there is to it?" "That's all," said Kay. "Except don't argue about the right of way if it looks at all close. And remember that sailboats have the right of way over a powerboat at all times."

"Well," Priscilla mentioned, "I don't see any traffic at all, so I guess I'm a cinch." "Just keep watching the mountain," Priscilla touched her beret. "Keep watching the mountain, sir."

When compared with the little galley of the "Chinook." In another week they would have learned to appreciate it as a masterpiece of compactness, without waste-space and everything in its place. But now it seemed absurdly small, and the little gas burning galley range seemed a mere toy.

After Melita began to get things under control in the galley, Kay went aft and rigged up the folding table in the small cabin. This she set hurriedly, then decided to go on to the after cockpit. To her amazement and shock, the "Chinook" was only a few hundred yards from shore, and heading to it at full cruising speed!

KAY dashed through the boat toward the wheel, knocking over dishes and pots in her speed. With a final bound she was at the wheel, whirling it hard over while Priscilla stood back pop-eyed.

"W-what's the matter, Kay?" Kay leaned against the wall, heaving a great sigh of relief. "Another minute and we'd have been aground!"

"I—I thought we were getting kind of close to the beach," Priscilla said contritely. "But you said to just keep the boat's nose pointed toward the hill." "Well," grinned Kay weakly, "I guess it was my fault. I should have been up here sooner to change the course. Now you see, we head for that point way over there."

DEVELOPMENTS IN EASTLAND COUNTY AREA

Hickey et al No. 1 W. M. Martin, mile and a half east from the Desdemona pool which it apparently is extending, was shut down for storage after it made an unexpected estimated 20 barrel head flow following penetration of 12 feet of sand topped at 2.85 feet.

Oil, like that found years ago from the Desdemona pool, tested 42 gravity, it was stated.

The bottom of the sand has not been reached. The Desdemona pay sand in other wells of the vicinity varied from 10 to 40 feet in thickness.

Arnold Oil company is reported drilling another well one-half mile west of the Hickey. The Hickey No. 1 is in Erath county, a mile and one half from the "main" part of the Desdemona pool, oil men stated.

Dorothy Oil company this weekend was to drill in No. 1 Taylor-Beard, E. Finley survey, six miles south of Ranger and six miles east of Eastland, which topped the sand at 1,297 feet. No showing had been reported.

N. A. Moore, Eastland No. 57 Colman county school land survey, block 8, Coleman county, was being swabbed for five barrels daily from the sand, 2,114-25 feet. It will likely be plugged.

Clark and Cowden No. 2 Ehol's section 10, S. P. R. R. company survey, block 3, four miles north of Caddo, Stephens county was shut down. Last depth reported was 4,005 feet.

Lean Brothers No. 1 Watson, two miles northeast of Frankell, section 28, T. & P. R. R. company survey, block 6, Stephens county was drilling below 1,190 feet.

Anac Oil corporation et al filed application with the Railroad Commission at Eastland to drill No. 3 J. P. Morris section 73, H. G. & B. R. R. company survey, 10 miles northwest of Coleman, Coleman county. It is 690 feet from the west line 690 feet from the north line of the H. G. & B. R. R. company survey 73 and 1,320 feet from the east and 1,320 feet north of the Morris No. 2.

J. F. Brock of Brady is to drill No. 1 J. H. Livingston, section 208, J. D. Waters survey, six miles southwest of Gouldbusk, Coleman county. Location is 1,200 feet from the west line of the Livingston 430-acre lease and 300 feet south of a public road.

FORT WORTH (AP)—Constable W. H. "Dusty" Rhodes rushed to the hospital recently when informed that his wife had been seriously hurt in an automobile accident.

He hurried to the hospital room where laid a red-haired brown-eyed woman.

Before Rhodes spoke, the woman turned her eyes to him and exclaimed: "You're not my husband!"

Rhodes quickly agreed. Hospital attendants had called the wrong Rhodes, although the injured woman had the same name and resembled his wife closely. The woman, moreover, was not seriously injured.

A cold drink stand has been built to serve the north side. Another is needed for the south side.

Cinders are needed to finish the one-fourth mile track. Who will finish that work?

A big native stone arch way with the words "Cisco Football Stadium" on it, similar to the one at the cemetery or Randolph college, would add greatly to the looks of the field. Stone, cement and work are needed. Who will provide these things?

Turnstiles and runways are needed for ticket entrance and some sort of housing for ticket offices, also a big gate for exit. Who will provide materials and work for these improvements?

The fence all around the park should be painted for preserving the lumber. The school board will give free sign space, as much as you want, provided businessmen will paint both sides of the fence. You may reserve your space from Secretary Walker and use any color and any sign you wish. First come, first served!

"There is need for much work and many materials for these improvements," said Mr. Walker. "If you can donate work please report at once. If you can donate lumber, old pipe, cement, stone or anything needed for these improvements, report at once and they will be gladly received."

All work will be under the supervision of W. F. Wilson, superintendent of construction for the project. Act at once. The job should be finished now.
