About Our Friends

By STEP A. LONG

The Early Worm
Just because the early bird catches the worm is no reason why the worm should not get up so early. Should the worm get up later its chances will be worse because there will be both early and late worms after him. The only safe bet is for the worm to rise so early that he will have time to get what is after and dig in before the early bird rubs the sleep out of his eyes.
If man is to get ahead of his competitors he must beat his competitors to it and by enough to give himself a margin of safety. Getting by only by the skin of one's teeth is a risky business. If one's competitor works hard, one must work the harder.
When C. W. Post began making a success of his coffee substitute "that makes red blood" . . . though we could never see why it should. Everybody and his brother began making substitute coffee. Factories for making imitation substitute coffee sprang up. . . The field was literally worked to death and so far as we could see the substitutes were about as good as the original. The early birds were on the trail of the worm.
But Early Worm Post began to get up still earlier. Instead of saying, "Shucks, everybody's in the game now, and there is nothing in it for anybody," and letting the old adage, Mr. Post simply rose sooner

OMNIBUS TAX BILL BEGINS GAUNTLET RUN

AUSTIN, Oct. 6 (UP)—An omnibus tax bill to increase state revenue $10,000,000 a year weathered its first battle without change today and was recommended for passage by the Revenue and Taxation Committee of the Texas House of Representatives.
As proponents urged the necessity of speed, the measure drawn by a sub-committee was argued continuously for 13 hours before final passage. Representatives of the industries affected pleaded that the taxes levied were unfair. Many said there was need for government economy.

When the public hearing was finished, committee members' amendment to change the taxes, or allocations were voted down. Representative Herman Jones of Decatur, head of a five-member group that drafted the bill said floor consideration of taxes for which Governor James V. Allred called the session would begin Monday.
The bill makes flat 46 per cent increases on the following taxes: Oil, natural gas, sulphur, carbon black, cement and the gross receipts of telephone, gas, water and light utilities.
It also reduces the exemption on amusement tickets from 51 cents to 41 cents and levies a 10-per cent tax on all tickets selling for over 40 cents.

The bill was voted upon finally at 3 a. m.
Seven spokesmen for the oil industry were heard. M. M. Blair of Wichita Falls, past president of the North Texas Oil and Gas Association, said that oil taxes now paid 42.4 per cent of the cost of state government, not including taxes on gasoline and other by-products.
Sulphur company representatives declared that $1.50 a ton tax is unfair. Harry C. Webb of the Texas Gulf Sulphur company said the tax would total 10 per cent of the value, higher than any actual resource tax in the United States, except Louisiana.

Marines' Barbed Diplomacy

The United States avowed policy to keep out of foreign entanglements doesn't keep the Fourth Regiment of Marines from setting up entanglements to snag any force that might attempt to invade the International Settlement of Shanghai. The "leathernecks" have strung up the barbed wire barricade along Szechow Creek, beyond which Chinese and Japanese forces fight it out.

SUPT. CLUCK SPEAKS TO LIONS ON ADULT COURSES OFFERED

Supt. R. N. Cluck was the guest speaker at the Lions luncheon today bringing a program for Lion A. G. Tuttle. Other guests were Dr. E. L. Graham, Cisco, and C. B. Nuby of Breckenridge. Lion Clubs Delagh and Perot received club recognition in a special ceremony conducted by President Horace Caudley.
In the brief business session before Rotarian Cluck's talk, Chapman Williamson made the audit report for the club books for the first half of the year. President Condeley announced the club would be an incorporated organization. He also stated that Mr. Nuby, representing the Humble company, had given permission for the Lions to use the Humble grounds at Avenue A for a soft ball park, subject to sale or a decision to use for company purposes. The soft ball park is now located on this property.
Mr. Cluck's talk, which was rather extemporaneous, was an interesting one on subjects challenging the attention of most Cisco people. Touching briefly on the dedication ceremonies to be conducted at the new stadium preceding the game Friday, he transferred his remarks to federal aid on adult school work available to Cisco groups.
Cluck said the Cisco school was sponsoring classes in home economics, part-time commercial courses, social security classes, homemaking courses for colored housemaids, oil field workers and auto mechanic courses. Some of these have already started and the rest is so slight that they are available to most every person who might wish to enroll. He suggested that those interested should see himself or Principal Stamey at the high school.
The superintendent also mentioned the junior business training that had been substituted in the eighth grade for history in that class. Public school music classes are in operation, he stated, being the universal language of all people of the earth.
Mr. Cluck climaxed his talk with a poem on the town of Gossip which placed him in the class with readers of the first water in Cisco.

R. S. Covey, superintendent of Sweetwater schools, was selected to fill the executive committee vacancy created by Pass' elevation to secretary.
Next meeting of the body will be November 9 in Abilene.
Members present were Nat Williams, president; W. T. Walton, vice president; Lanier, Earl Isbill, J. F. Bailey, L. A. Woodridge and Pass.

WIVES PAY A VERY LARGE MEAT PRICE

(Copyright 1937 by United Press)
CHICAGO, Oct. 6 (UP)—The wife paid almost as much for tonight's steaks or chops as she or her mother—paid in world war days, and she may expect to go right on paying those prices at least until next summer. A United Press survey showed today.
Price of beef and pork, especially the choice cuts such as steaks, have risen as much as 50 per cent since last Halloween. The biggest boosts are in the east and on the west coast.
Butchers and packers blame the droughts on past years. Corn and feed of all kinds was burned out, became so scarce there was not enough to feed the usual supplies of prime stock. Many ranchers and farmers sold what stock they had and decided there would be no profit in raising more. Others took a chance on buying expensive feed, but demanded higher prices.
Hope for relief lay in this year's bumper corn crop, Omaha, Buffalo, N. Y., Memphis and Seattle. Sharp price rises were in Buffalo, Des Moines, Cincinnati, Columbus, Indianapolis and Memphis.
Some of the increases:
Omaha—Beef 50%, pork 10-15%
Indianapolis—Beef 50%, pork 30%
Memphis—Beef 25-30%, pork 20-30%
Albany, N. Y.—Beef 10c, pork 10c.
St. Louis—Beef 28%, pork 14%
Okla. City—Beef 7-9c, pork 5-7c.
Chicago—Beef 10-16c, pork 2-5c.
San Francisco—Beef 10%, pork 10%
Seattle—Beef 35-38%, pork 18-20%
Houston—Beef 13-15c, pork 6c.
Dallas—Beef 5-7c, pork 4-9c.

AUSTIN, Oct. 6 (UP)—Representative A. B. Tarwater of Plainview today received a letter from T. H. McDonald, chief of the Federal Bureau of Roads, saying that the proposed diversion of gasoline tax funds from the present use of retiring road bonds would result in reduction of the federal road grants to Texas. #### Japanese Plane Falls—A Plume of Death

The plume of smoke and the plane that hurtles earthward out of control mark the spectacular end of a Japanese bomber in a raid over the Chapei section of Shanghai. #### PEACE LEAGUE VOTING TODAY PEACE SPEECH

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (UP)—Administration officials looked to the League of Nations today for the speedy and "concerted action" demand by President Roosevelt to stop aggressor nations preying upon peaceful nations.

BRITISH CABINET MET TO CONSIDER SPEECH

LONDON, Oct. 6 (UP)—The British cabinet, taking the lead among European governments, met today to consider President Roosevelt's speech and decide whether it offers hope for real United States cooperation in stopping a world drift toward war.

At Geneva the League of Nations assembly frankly spurred by the speech, prepared to vote later today to call a conference to consider action to end the Chinese-Japanese war and leave no doubt of the feeling of league members that Japan is the aggressor.

Statesmen throughout Europe discussed the speech as a development of world importance and reacted to it in their own way.

In Fascist countries it brought sharp retorts. In democratic capitals it was greeted with joy.

JAPAN, STUNG BY SPEECH, MAKES RETORT

TOKYO, Oct. 6 (UP)—Japan, stung by President Roosevelt's speech on peace disturbers, reported today with a statement made through a foreign office spokesman.

"We hear lately heated argument on the question of unequal distribution of resources between the have and the have not countries. If the have refuse to concede the rightful demands of the have not peace will be very difficult to maintain."

The spokesman added quickly, "But Japan does not make demands on this point as her right. Japan's only demand is that her people be permitted to enjoy freedom of movement and happiness which is rightly hers."

OIL MEN FLOCK TO AUSTIN FOR WAR ON TAXES

Oil men groups from over the state flocked to Austin to begin their efforts to defeat an extra tax burden upon their industry today, saying that burdens had been placed upon their industry so often that they felt it would be impossible to carry any further taxes imposed by the legislators in their effort to raise the millions needed to balance the states budget.
From Cisco, Wichita Falls, Amarillo, Pampa, Abilene, Gainesville, Houston and other cities came scores of persons to protest against the omnibus bill under consideration by the committee. It proposed to make 46 per cent increases in levies on natural resources and utilities except telegraph companies and

It's Not So Simple

After referring to the fact that the current legislative meeting is, "indeed, an extraordinary session," and pointing to the difficulty of reconciling the widespread and urgent demand for relief from excessive taxation with the equally urgent demand for equalizing state outgo and income—all in view of expressed sentiment for expanded social ministrations of government—The Houston Post says editorially:

"The task before the Legislature is not any easy one. In the minds of some, no doubt, the idea persists that all that is necessary is to increase taxes on certain lines of business and industry. When the body comes to examine the taxes already paid by business and industry, and their capacity to pay more, it will be found that in most instances these sources of taxation are already being drained to the limit of safety.

"It is easy enough to conclude, without investigation, that this or that industry should pay more taxes but when the matter is gone into, it may be discovered that additional burdens may force that industry to suspend, or to leave the State and relocate where the tax imposition is less burdensome.

"It is not an exaggeration to say that upon the attitude taken by the Legislature in this special session toward taxation of business and industry may depend the industrial and commercial progress in this state for the next decade. It needs scarcely be said that adoption of a tax policy that will discourage expansion of industrial and commercial concerns operating in the State now, and that will frighten others from coming into the State, will be economically unsound, judged from the State's own standpoint.

"If there must be collection of additional revenue to finance the growing State services to the citizenry, let the scheme of taxation be laid upon so broad a base that the burden will not rest unevenly."

Taxation Patchwork is Expensive

"All this discussion" (of the dilemma of the Texas legislature resulting from the fact that "everyone demands lower taxes, and then many vote amendments necessitating additional millions for pet projects and social reforms") leads us back to an oft-repeated suggestion of Farm and Ranch that a study be made of the possibilities of various proposed taxing systems; of the taxable resources of the State, and a new and a more practical and equitable system of raising needed revenue adopted. If necessary the entire taxing a more scientific plan that will spread the cost of government methods of the present should be scrapped and replaced with an equitable manner to all citizens.

"The present taxing system is antiquated and inequitable. It has outlived its usefulness. Under it we raise a very large portion of our needed revenue from a very small portion of the taxable wealth of the state. Taxes are assessed against property and corporations in proportion to the ease with which they can be collected while hundreds of millions escape. The legislature could render no greater service to the people

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY BUTCHER

WASHINGTON—As Justice Hugo L. Black sailed toward the Atlantic coast and Roosevelt headed in the general direction of the Pacific, it appeared that the President had boiled down the Black-Klan issue in his own mind to what he considered by all odds the most important question:

Has Black in recent years had any connection with the Ku Klux Klan?

No answer to that question has been available, since Black has given no explanation, secret or otherwise.

MANY administration critics, including some of Roosevelt's own liberal followers who have been seriously perturbed, take the position that no man who was ever a Klan member should be on the supreme Court.

Roosevelt himself eventually may be forced into that position. But at present he is anxious to keep Black on the court and may be expected to do what he can unofficially to make it easier for Black to stay. Off the record, it seems, the Roosevelt position is that regardless of how regrettable Black's monkey-shines with the Klan a dozen years ago may have been, the man's liberal record in the Senate for many years makes him the type of man Roosevelt wants on the court.

That doesn't mean that the President is even slightly happy about the Black incident. Like everyone else, he thinks it has made one grand mess for him and he is looking for the most graceful, least costly way out of it. He expects a statement from Black. He will expect the statement to make it clear what contact, if any, Black had with the Klan since 1926. And it is

A.E.F. VETERANS TO HAIL EAGLE ATOP HILL 204

PARIS, Oct. 6 (AP)—More than 4,000 American Legion "pilgrims" are expected to be among the thousands of French and Americans who will attend the dedication of the A.E.F. battle monument tomorrow on Hill 204 near Chateau-Thierry. The dedication is one of the events of the "Third A.E.F. marking the 20th anniversary of the American Expeditionary Force to France in 1917. Gen. John J. Pershing will welcome the men he commanded on the field where they once fought and now come to commemorate the heroism and sacrifice of 300,000 American soldiers, 60,000 of whom became casualties in the great counter-offensive of July, 1918, when they drove the enemy north of the Vesle River.

CASE OF CHARACTERS PRISCILLA PIERCE—heroine, young woman attorney. ANNE KERR—Cilly's roommate and mother's victim. JIM HERRIGAN—Cilly's boss. ALBIE HILL—Cilly's boss's strange visitor. SERGEANT DOLAN—murderer assigned to solve the murder of Ann Kerr.

Yesterday, Cilly looks down from the roof and is startled to see that Mr. Hunter, paralyzed for years, walks about with ease in his own bedroom.

CHAPTER XIX

RETURNING to her apartment after breakfast Wednesday morning, Cilly met Detective Martin in the hall.

"Good morning, Miss Pierce," he greeted. "I've just been through the house. Dolan wants everyone down at police headquarters this morning at 10:30."

"Very well. I'll be there," Cilly assured him. She decided that she would be there at 10 o'clock to inform the sergeant of her latest discovery. He had ruled Mr. Hunter out as a possibility because of the man's physical incapacity. This morning, however, Hunter loomed in Cilly's mind as a very important possibility. Why would a man deliberately tie himself to a wheel-chair when he was well able to walk?

Later, however, when a burly policeman had ushered her into a private room at police headquarters, she discovered she would have no opportunity to see the sergeant alone. Several of the Bayview tenants had arrived before her. They sat in a semicircle around a plain flat top desk, nervously expectant. She recognized the Downes; so obviously mother and daughter. Mr. Hunter, looking feeble and frail in his wheel-chair, was there with his wife.

Promptly at 10:30, Sergeant Dolan entered the room, followed by Martin. Dolan seated himself at the desk, his back to the double windows. Martin stood behind him, leaning against a window-sill. The tenants sat facing the windows, where the light shone on their faces clearly and relentlessly. If he lied, Cilly thought, Dolan would be able to read it in their features.

"Everybody here, Martin?" Dolan asked. Martin checked with a list in his hand. "Didn't get in touch with the Wheeler woman yet," he reported. "The three other tenants are still out of town—but I don't see the Corbets."

The Corbets, Cilly looked up in surprise. But, of course, they would be summoned. Mrs. Corbett's mother was the only person who actually saw the murder committed. Her testimony would be very important.

Even as Martin spoke, the door opened and they entered. Mr. Corbett, Cilly noticed, had survived his drinking very well. He was immaculate in a light gray tropical worsted, and he carried himself with an air of assurance.

Mrs. Corbett, the same meek and humble woman Cilly had first met, followed her husband hesitantly into the room. She wore a nondescript blue voile dress, and it hung limply on her thin frame. Her face was pale and drawn. Her mother, in spite of asthma, held her head high and entered the room with a firm step.

As soon as they were seated, Sergeant Dolan addressed the group.

"You all know," he began, in a calm, rather friendly voice, "a young woman was killed in a fall from the roof of the Bayview Apartments last Sunday night—or, to be more exact, at 12:20 early Monday morning. We have a witness present who can testify that the girl did not fall, but was deliberately thrown from the roof. Ladies and gentlemen, which we are investigating, and I need not impress upon you the importance of absolute truth and accuracy in answering my questions. Mrs. Shaw, will you please tell us again, in your own words, just exactly what you saw occur on the roof of the Bayview?"

Mrs. Corbett's mother got to her feet. All eyes were turned upon her. Dramatically, she squared her shoulders and took a deep breath before she spoke.

"As I told you before, sergeant," she said in clear, crisp tones, "I was seated at the window of my bedroom in the St. Ann Apartments. I had not been feeling well, and I wanted to get the air. It was very dark out—there were neither stars nor a moon—and ordinarily I could not see the roof opposite except when an occasional beam from one of the ships in the bay would pass over it. Suddenly I heard this frightful scream, and at that very instant a beam passed slowly over the roof opposite. I saw a man pick this girl up in his arms and deliberately fling her over the side of the house. That is all. I must have fainted. My daughter prepared an opiate for me, and I did not awaken until morning."

"Thank you, Mrs. Shaw. May I ask if the light was sufficiently strong for you to recognize this man in any way?"

"It was not," Mrs. Shaw resumed her seat.

Sergeant Dolan scanned the faces before him. "Now I am going to ask each of you to remember very carefully what happened Sunday night. We'll start with you, Mr. Hunter. You live on the top floor, directly under the roof where the murder was committed. Did you hear any voices on the roof, any sign of quarreling?"

"No, sergeant," Hunter replied. He spoke in a frail voice, as if to match the infirmity of his limbs. "I must have been asleep. It was the scream which woke me up. My wife ran to the window. . . ."

"Did you get up?"

The man shook his head sorrowfully. "I couldn't do that, you see." He made a futile gesture toward his legs. "I haven't walked in 20 years."

Cilly stood up, her eyes afixe.

"Sergeant Dolan," she cried, "will you ask Mr. Hunter how it happens, therefore, that last night from across the street I saw him walking about his bedroom in his pajamas?"

The man gasped; he turned to stare at Cilly, and in his eyes there blazed the malevolent fear of a trapped animal.

"Is that true, Hunter?" Dolan snapped.

"The girl's crazy," he choked through dry lips. "She's crazy or drunk. I can't walk. . . . I have doctors' statements to prove it."

"What time was this, Miss Pierce?" Dolan inquired. "Eleven o'clock, sergeant. There is no mistake about it. I saw him. . . ."

"Say! Wait a minute!" Cilly spun around to face the man who suddenly interrupted her. It was Mr. Corbett. There was a malicious glint in his eyes. "In another minute, sergeant, the young lady will be telling you about pink elephants," he offered with tolerant amusement. "At 11 o'clock last night she was in my apartment, drinking rye highballs. And, believe me, she was in condition to see a great many things walking."

"That's an outrageous lie, Mr. Corbett, and you know it!" Cilly turned to the sergeant, shaking with fury. But in his eyes, she saw doubt and disappointment. It was part of his job to believe the worst—and he believed Corbett's story. She could see it. From now on, the fight would be doubly hard.

"Don't mind the perspiration Carry a Turkish towel," he told his traveling men . . . One by one the early birds found they couldn't catch up with the earlier worm, so one by one they quit and turned their attention to worms less early . . .

But here is another angle of the early worm idea. . . There is no sense in a worm's getting up earlier than early enough to gain himself safety and a sufficiency . . . If a worm should get too ambitious and stay up all night, night after night, for instance, and cut off more tomato plants and string beans, young onions and other things, than he has need of, the first thing he knows he will find himself a slave to his business, his nerves frazzled out, his digestion torn up, life staid and tasteless, everything turned to wormwood and ashes, so to speak, and he can no longer endure existence . . .

After beating the early bird to it year after year and adding millions of dollars to millions of dollars, Mr. Post committed suicide . . . So there.

People We Meet

By Winifred Clark White

No where can a sense of strike one so poignantly as in Mexico; for there it rests not alone on decrepit shoulders, but stares out you from the faces of little children. It was in Piedras Negras that I the faces of little children, trying stolidly through the streets, aged, dirty, tragic caricatures of that children should be. How I had they lived in their few last years? What had they seen of that it should have weighed down so heavily? "We are a people," a Mexican woman told me. "It is in our music, our songs. It is a racial sad that lays its hands upon our children before they are out of their cradles." Watching these bedged little mites in the streets, Piedras Negras, I remembered words, and I thought that might have added. "It is a sad that devours more quickly than years, for it steals childhood from our children."

Trick Saves Boy's Life in Fort Worth

FORT WORTH (AP)—Four-year-old Don Smith owes his life to a trick he learned in the bathtub home. Playing around a pier at Fort Worth where his parents were fishing, Don reached for a pole had fallen into the water and tumbled head-first into water 14 deep.

Heavy clothing and boots, the boy on the bottom until Tom Estes jumped from his boat brought him to the surface. W. Estes and others tried to squelch water out of the youngster's lungs, but there was no water. "I held my breath like a taught me when she ducked me in the bathtub," Don told his parents.

petations of Coach Tex Robertson are fulfilled the year 1939 should see the University of Texas swimming team high in the nation's collegiate ranks.

That is the final year for a group of Olympic and sectional stars that Robertson is tutoring this year. The team includes Ralph Planagan of Miami, Fla., national and Olympic free-style champion; Adolph Kiefer, Glympe backstroke titlist; John Crouch, Southwest champion free styler; and Mike Sojka, one of the nation's ranking breast stroke swimmers.

With this quartet and the bolstering of youngsters whose prominence is confined to the Southwest at present, Robertson believes his team will be ready to pace the swimming world within three years. Texas has won the Southwest Conference swimming championship each year since matches were begun.

Robertson's teams already have made successful journeys to mid-Western and Eastern states. For many years, Texas has stood out in intercollegiate tennis because of the favorable practice season — which makes natives proficient and allows all-year-round playing for out-of-state students.

Robertson believes that good swimmers are choosing Texas and other Southern and Southwestern schools for the same reason. The outdoor swimming season in Austin is almost nine months long and indoor facilities are available for the remaining months.

4-H BOYS OFF TO NATIONAL DAIRY SHOW

EASTLAND, Oct. 6 — Enthused over a 2,800-mile round trip to Columbus, Ohio, where they will compete for honors at the National Dairy Show and Ohio State Fair, members of the Eastland County 4-H Club dairy demonstration team left Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The youths who win the trip to the national show and a chance for taking part of $2,300 in college scholarships because of copying state honors at a contest recently at College Station, will be accompanied by their coach, Assistant County Agent, Hugh P. Barnhart.

Expenses of the boys — James Dean and L. C. Love of Alameda — are paid by a national cheese manufacturing company. On the trip also will be G. G. Gibson, assistant dairy specialist for the extension service, College Station; L. L. Johnson, state boys' agent for the extension service, also of College Station; and a group from Tarrant county to be met in Fort Worth.

The Tarrant county group will be composed of W. O. Woodman, Tarrant county assistant county agent and the three members of his dairy judging team which won first prize at state competition and which will enter the national event.

JUDGE STATES ALL TIRED OF BLANTON TRIAL

Eight days of testimony in the plea of privilege hearing in Thomas L. Blanton's $100,000 libel suit against Congressman Clyde L. Garrett and his secretary, J. W. Cockrill, came to a close Tuesday with no indication as to when the case will go to the jury.

Harsh excitement of the past two days, quelled down as Blanton, plaintiff, counsel and witness in the hearing, began redirect testimony from the stand.

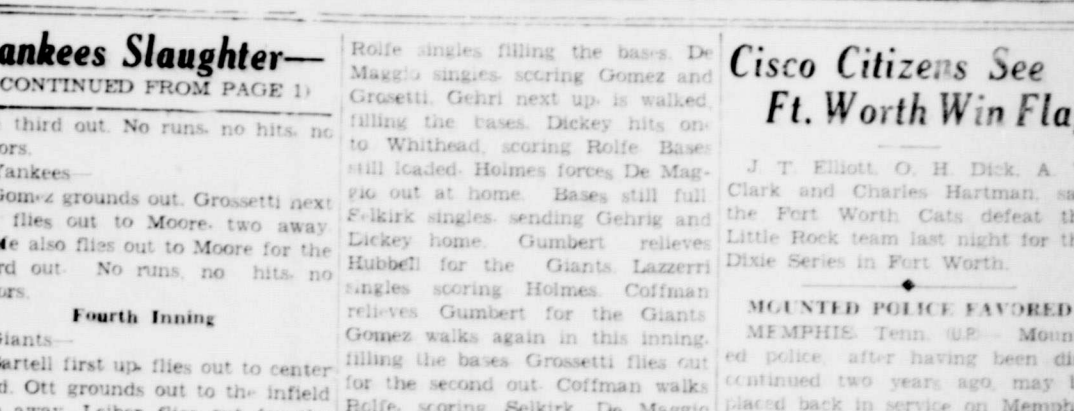

Recess was taken at 4:30 p. m., as sounds caused by the formation of the West Texas Fair parade on nearby streets distracted attention of those in the courtroom.

At one point, as Blanton read a lengthy passage from the congressional record to the jury, Rep. Garrett went to a window and looked out at the floats below, six jurymen twisted about in their seats to watch activities, and Judge Milburn S. Long stepped down from his bench to observe the scene from a jury-room window.

impose a ten per cent tax on admissions to picture shows charging more than 40 cents.

The committee planned to conclude the hearing tomorrow and sponsors of the bill hoped for a favorable report shortly thereafter. Oversupply and high taxes have combined to end the days of getting rich overnight through an oil strike, producers old the house members. State, county and district taxes of various descriptions already are so heavy, they said, it takes the average operator many years to recover his investment.

J. S. Hudnall of Tyler said the bill proposed to take $3,000,000, or one-fifth the amount Gov. James V. Allred estimates is needed from the East Texas oil field alone. Two-thirds of the sum would come from landowners and independent operators, he said, an only one-third from the major oil companies.

E. J. Dunagan, Jr., of Pampa told the committee that under production and present taxes the average panhandle operator had to spend 30 years getting back his original investment.

Position Summarized

M. W. Blair of Wichita Falls, past president of the North Texas Oil and Gas association, summarized the position of his organization as follows:

1. The oil industry cannot stand any increase in taxation.
2. Increasing revenues from existing taxes minimize the necessity of increasing rates.
3. If additional revenues are necessary, they should be obtained from other sources, since the oil industry is carrying more than its part of the burden. At present, 42.4 per cent of the state's revenues are derived from taxes on the oil industry and its products, exclusive of the tax on gasoline and other by-products.

J. C. Hunter of Abilene, president of the West Central Texas Oil and Gas association, said boosting of the tax would force operators to shut down many small wells with a consequent reduction in revenue to landowners, taxes to local communities number of employed persons and oil reserves of the nation.

Representatives of the sulphur industry said the production tax on that resource already was larger than any other resource and if the increase was voted the production and ad valorem levies together would be greater than the tax burden in Louisiana. Louisiana realizes it boosted the sulphur tax too much, they said, and is contemplating reducing it.

Charles Keffer of Amarillo and other representatives of the National Gas Industry maintained there was a limit to natural resource taxation beyond which the state should not go.

R. S. Metcalfe, MK&T agent at Carbon was spending Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Metcalfe.
