Texas Senate Revolts Against Allred Tax

CLINT SMALL SUBMITS BILL COLLIE OKES

AUSTIN, Oct. 11 (U.P.)—Texas Senators took a second step today in their revolt against Governor James V. Allred's tax program. By vote of 14 ayes and 11 nos, the senate admitted a bill by Senator Clint C. Small of Amarillo to take all but one-fourth of occupation tax collection for the state general fund. Now, one-half of the oil tax, one-third of the cigarette tax and 55 cents of each $1.93 sulfur tax goes to schools. The constitution requires a fourth to go to schools.

Small estimated this would add $5,000,000 a year to the general funds. Senator Wilbourne Collie of Eastland voted to reject the bill because he thought it was within the Governor's call to reduce the state general fund deficit, but said he will vote against its passage. Senator Ben C. Neal of Wichita Falls said he voted to admit the bill because reduction of appropriations already has been admitted.

The Senate sub-committee on appropriation has cut $5,582,931 from the departmental appropriations. The committee did not recommend abolition of the State Liquor Administration, but cut deeply into its million dollar-a-year appropriation.

Lowering of temperatures and 6 inches of rain sent Cisconians into coats and heavier clothing and created a demand for rain coats for both sexes of workers here. Work at the fish hatchery is suspended today. Supt. D. C. Harper said, on account of the mud.

The rain which has been general of this section, will replenish stock water and will create winter pastures, many of which were perfectly dry and almost bare compelling local stockmen to feed hay and cake.

Many farmers who had allowed peanuts to remain on sandy land as long as possible to get growth and maturity had them pulled just in time to catch this rain and ruin the hay; some have already threshed and saved the valuable hay, still others have them still remaining in the fields.

Late gardens and winter greens will be greatly benefitted and late seed crops wherever there are any will make now if frost is not too early.

Substitute Respect for Salutes

His six children barred from public school because membership in Jehovah's Witnesses forbids them to salute the American flag, August Ludke, officiates at a ceremony at his Oxon Hill, Maryland home to prove that while his family may not "worship" the flag because it is man-made, they respect it "as much as anyone." Ludke, Washington postal employe, and his wife, left, are shown with their children at the flag raising. Private tutoring was planned to continue the children's education.

DEFENDS LOVE OF LIBERTY IN SPEECH TODAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (U.P.)—President Roosevelt for the second time within a week expressed today American determination to oppose efforts to substitute force for freedom in international relations.

In an address honoring celebration of Pulaski Day, Mr. Roosevelt reaffirmed the sentiment he expressed last week in his Chicago discussion of international affairs. He paid tribute to Poland's struggle for freedom and cited it as typical of the American ideal of free people.

Speaking while consultations went forward between American and British diplomats looking toward a conference of signatories of the 9-power pact concerning Japanese aggression in China, Mr. Roosevelt made a ringing defense of democracy and democratic ideals. "We as a nation seek spiritual union with all those who love freedom," the President said. "Of many bloods and of diverse national origin, we stand before the world today as one people, united in a common determination."

"That determination is to uphold the ideals of human society which makes conscience superior to brute strength, the ideal which would substitute freedom for force in the governments of the world."

AUSTIN, Oct. 11 (U.P.)—Governor James V. Allred puzzled the newsmen today. He refused any comment on any topic. That was number one surprise and a complete reversal of form.

The puzzle was the governor hinting that he planned for putting over his tax program in the closing hours of the legislative session.

PUBLIC ROADS TRANSFER CUT FEDERAL AID

HOUSTON, Oct. 11. — T. H. McDonald, chief of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, ruled today that transfer of $5,500,000 from the road bond redemption fund to the general revenue fund would subject Texas to the loss of one-third of its federal aid for highway construction. A bill proposing the diversion is pending before the Texas House of Representatives.

The ruling was issued at the request of Rep. A. B. Tarwater of Plainview, one of the leading opponents of the plan to transfer balances in the county and district road bond redemption fund to general purposes of government. Rep. Tarwater stated he would insist that any balances in the fund be returned to the highway department for use in financing badly needed construction projects, particularly farm-to-market roads.

Replying to your letter of Sept. 29 as to whether House Bill 24 pending in the Texas Legislature would constitute diversion of gasoline tax revenue, in our opinion enactment of such a bill would serve to divert gasoline tax funds to other than highway purposes within the meaning of Section 12 of the Hayden-Cartwright Act. Mr. McDonald advised Rep. Tarwater. "Such diversion therefore would subject the state to a deduction in the amount of its federal aid appropriation as prescribed by said Section 12."

The Hayden-Cartwright act is the act making federal highway aid appropriations. Section 12, in substance, states that since it is "unfair and unjust" to tax motor vehicle transportation unless the proceeds of such taxation are applied to the construction, improvement or maintenance of highways federal aid for highway construction shall be extended only to those states that use local highway revenue only for such purposes.

"Should Texas be so foolhardy as to bring itself under the penalty provisions of this act, it would lose approximately $4,015,834 in regular and extraordinary federal aid now available," Rep. Tarwater stated.

"The highway commission now is working on programs calling for the expenditure of $7,777,604 in regular federal aid, $1,500,000 in federal aid on the farm-to-market road program and $2,710,000 for the elimination of railroad grade crossings."

The regular federal aid and the appropriation for secondary roads must be matched by the department. The commission has been hard pressed for years to find sufficient funds to match federal aid, maintain the system and provide even the most badly needed improvements on roads that are not on the federal aid system. It would appear to me to be the course of wisdom to use whatever balance is available in the road bond redemption fund to match the federal grant for farm-to-market roads, releasing the state money now allocated for this program to other pressing projects.

"The one cent now allocated to the bond redemption fund came from the highway fund and it would appear logical to return any balances to that fund to be used in worthy construction of highways for which all sections of Texas are crying."

STRICTER RADIO CONTROL URGED OVER SHIPS IN MEDITERANEAN AS SUREST WAY TO END PIRACY

By PETER C. RHODES
 PARIS, Oct. 11 (AP)—Charging that pirates operating in the Mediterranean have a perfect spying system for watching ship and land radio stations, the French National Federation of Radio Operators of the merchant marine has called on the government for an immediate tightening-up of radio control for all ships operating in the danger zone.

The memorandum presented to the French Minister of Merchant Marine and the department of Radio, Telegraph and Telephone charges that French warships are not on the alert for radio distress signals, that radio service aboard ships carrying wireless apparatus works only eight hours in the day at most, and that 778 French merchant vessels out of 894 have no regular listening service. In addition, many ships under 1,600 tons, radio apparatus for ships above this tonnage being required by law, are entirely without means of communication in time of distress.

The communicate charges that "The Mediterranean pirates have such a perfectly organized radio spying system that they generally avoid attacking ships equipped with radio and when they halt ships it is usually at hours when demands for help risk not being heard."

French Warships Blamed
 It further charges French warships with "being so occupied in contacting naval land stations that they do not listen steadily on the SOS wave length of 600 meters. That is the reason they are burning fuel and they should be required to comply with it."

Insisting that there is confusion under present regulations, in which the Ministry of Marine applies one set of rules and the Ministry of Posts another, the federation demands immediate rulings requiring all ships, regardless of tonnage, operating in the Mediterranean to carry radio. Moreover, it insists that ships already equipped with radio should be required to carry out a more perfect system of listening.

It is estimated that any SOS signal under present conditions has only one chance in 35 of being heard by those able to come to the aid of the distressed ship. The reason for this state of affairs is that operators are scarce, most ships carrying only one, who is on service only eight hours each day. The remaining 16 hours are dead, without counting the hours when the operator is listening in on weather reports, taking or sending general messages, etc.

The Federation, therefore, demands that three radio operators be taken aboard all ships above 1,600 tons, thus assuring a permanent listening service. The full list of demands follows:

1. Impose an effective daily service of at least eight hours per operator on ships equipped with wireless.
2. Inaugurate a system of three operators aboard most ships to assure permanent listening service.
3. Obligation for all warships stationed in the Mediterranean to maintain a permanent listening watch on the 600-meter wave length.
4. Installation of wireless aboard all ships of small tonnage.
5. Organization of a network of security wireless service for all ships under 1,600 tons.
6. Nomination by the Ministry of Merchant Marine of several wireless inspectors selected from among professional operators to examine all apparatus of ships when in port.

their wives are invited. Governor E. W. Marland and his wife are also expected to be special guests.

All individual company organizations are expected to arrange for a breakfast for their own particular groups at 8:30 Saturday morning, Nov. 6. A special automobile trip for visiting ladies has been arranged by the chamber of commerce of the city of Tulsa. A football game will be played between the University of Tulsa and Drake University of Des Moines, Iowa, Saturday afternoon, Nov. 6, at 2:30.

which will be known as the 90th Division Memorial game. Colonel Ernest C. Thompson of Austin, will deliver a memorial address at the beginning of this game. The annual business meeting of the association will be held at the close of the banquet. The address of welcome will be given by Mayor T. A. Penney of the city of Tulsa. Judge Frank P. Culver, Jr., of Fort Worth will respond to the address of welcome. Reverend Father P. N. McDermott of Atlanta, Iowa, Division chaplain, will deliver the invocation. Governor Charles H. Grocers Will Aid in Moving Tomato Crop

Aid in moving large packs of Texas tomatoes in prospect as a result of the season's bumper crops will be extended through a nationwide program mapped out by the Independent Grocers' Alliance of America at its Canned Foods Marketing Conference, held in the Knickerbocker hotel, Chicago, Sept. 27 and 28.

In the conference discussion of bumper farm yields, J. Frank Grimes, IGA president, expressed the opinion that gradual lowering of food costs to consumers may be in prospect for consumers toward the end of the year.

"Despite these expected lower prices," he told the organization's executives and buyers, "the very ample production this year insures the farmers of having one of the best cash income years in recent history and the prosperity of the farmer will have a helpful influence on business throughout the winter."

The program as formulated by IGA will take form in a country-wide canned foods sales event through the organization's 6,000 retail members from Oct. 29 to Nov. 5.

As a feature of the conference's opening day luncheon crowd meat-canned for the first time—was served but the collective opinion of the food experts was that the new delicacy should be placed on the list for further experimentation before being offered as a table dish to the nation as a whole.
