

Hall Of
by Herrol Hallmark

BETTYE MCGINNESS, president of the Cisco Civic League, which is in joint operation with the Cisco Service Club for the Cisco Beautification Committee, informed me on Wednesday of this week that some persons in town have received anonymous letters sent by the Better Cisco Community Beautification Committee.

These letters are not being sent out by the official Cisco Beautification Committee. All letters from the official committee are signed by Joyce Schaefer, president, Cisco Service Club and by Bettye McGinness, president, Cisco Civic League. The letters also have each of these persons' phone numbers.

The anonymous letters set out some supposed "goals" of the Better Cisco Beautification Committee, such as saying that certain peoples homes do not met up to specifications. THESE ARE NOT GOALS OF THE CISCO BEAUTIFICATION COMMITTEE. Mrs. McGinness stated that their committee is not going to tell anyone that their house does not met specifications. The goal of the committee is to try and make Cisco a better looking place to live and visit.

A NUMBER OF people seemed to be enjoying the nice weekend which offered clear skies and warm temperatures. Several persons were seen fishing at Lake Cisco, with others enjoying the sunshine by the lake.

A DRIVE OUT by Lake Bernie Sunday afternoon found the lake to be filled completely, with water continuing to run over the spillway and cross the road.

ISAWBY the papers that the late Kelly Kent of Cisco was awarded a trustee award by Abilene Christian University at its 73rd annual commencement held at 2:30 p.m., Sunday afternoon.

The article in the Abilene Reporter News, stated that this is the first time a trustee award has been given posthumously. Garvin Beauchamp, vice president for student personnel services, was quoted as saying, "The student life committee felt that Kelly Kent had made outstanding contributions to ACU in athletic, academic and other leadership roles. We simply felt he was the most outstanding nominee for the award."

Kelly was an outstanding football player at Cisco High School, as well as at ACU. He graduated from CHS in 1976, and was attending ACU

Cisco 4-H Club Meet Postpone Until May 24

The meeting to reorganize the Cisco 4-H Club scheduled for May 10th has been postponed until Thursday May 24th. The meeting will be held May 24th, at 7:00 p.m. in the Cisco National Bank Community Room. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the reorganization of the Cisco 4-H Club. There is a real need for a 4-H Club in Cisco. All interested persons are invited to attend. If you would like further information, contact the County Extension Office at 629-2222.

when he died of an apparent heart attack in February.

I UNDERSTAND that the hotel owned by Cisco Junior College is now being called the Laguna Hotel. It was formerly known as the Victor Hotel.

The Laguna Hotel, located in the 400 block of Avenue D, is undergoing some work on the outside of the building as well as on the inside. From the outside one can see a newly built awning over the doorway which leads to the Corral Room and workers were painting the lower, wooden parts of the building earlier this week.

SPEAKING OF remodelings, the J.C. Penney store in Cisco recently did some work on the inside of their store, such as laying new carpet and rearranging the store layout. The way the carpet is laid gives a nice effect to the store since it seems to lead a trail from the front door to the rear of the store where the catalog department is located.

The J.C. Penney store also had a new aluminum awning installed on the front of the store. It still looks nice although the recent hailstorm put a number of dents in the aluminum material.

I HEARD THAT the local progressive country band, headed by Jim Roberts of Cisco, has recently undergone a name change from the Cherry Creek Road Band to Texas Crude.

campus. The course will be taught each Monday evening for 16 weeks.

The instructor will be Mr. Ralph McMullen, popular square dance instructor and caller from Baird, Texas. Only male and female couples may enroll because of the requirements of the dance--so bring another half!

The cost of the course will be $2.50 per couple for each of the 16 week lessons. Because of the cost, Mrs. Lynn Williams underwent surgery Tuesday morning at Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene. She is reported to be in satisfactory condition. She is listed in Room 517C.

Cisco Beautification Committee Letter

Dear Cisco Beautification Committee:

In case you missed the last meeting of the Cisco Beautification Committee (CBC) this letter will try to bring you up to date on what's happening.

We decided to use some of the steps suggested in the Beautification Booklet. The Service Club and Civic League retained Chairmanship of the Committee. This was the desire of everyone present.

It was also decided to concentrate on the area on Avenue D from Interstate 20 to the Railroad Tracks. We felt this was a large

Several Items Of Interest Discussed At Council Meeting

Several items of special interest to local citizens were discussed at 2:00 Tuesday afternoon when the Cisco City Council held its regular meeting. The two items of main interest were animal control and Front Street paving bids.

The discussion of animal control was brought up by council member William Eudy who stated there is a large number of dogs running loose in Cisco, with most of those not having a rabies vaccination or city license.

Cisco Mayor Hugh (Chief) Brown stated that due to a near-epidemic of rabies in Dallas County, the city is going to begin taking measures to control unlicensed dogs and those which run loose in the city. He further stated that local citizens could help lessen the dog problem by seeing that their dogs are either kept inside of a fenced yard or chained.

Two bids for the paving of Front Street were opened by Billy Jacobs, city engineer. Council member Raymond Whitley made a motion to accept a bid from Pioneer Construction Company, Incorporated of Abilene, for a hot mix paving of asphalt and concrete at the price of $67,609.77. This bid was chosen over one for the same type of mix at $94,109.95 submitted by Bailey Bridge of Abilene. Council member Lucy Collier seconded the motion with all present voting in its favor. Those members present were Mayor Brown and council members Collier, Whitley, Louise Allison, Eudy and Morgan Fleming.

The minutes of the past meeting were read, with council member Collier requesting that potholes discussed at the last meeting have yet to be filled. A discussion with City Manager John Boland brought out the information that there are only two full-time employees in the street department and two part-time. These men are required to cover the entire town, not concentrating their efforts in any certain part of town.

Two representatives from Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the Council of Governments (COG) were present to inform council members of an Urban Development Action Grant Program being made available to eligible towns. The reason for the discussion was to explain to the city that they should send a pre-application for the grant just to let HUD know they are interested. The pre-application would be good for three years and the city could either send a formal application for a grant or not do anything.

The main idea behind the program is to join private enterprises, federal government and local government in joint efforts to (1) increase employment in cities experiencing a deficit and (2) increase tax revenues to cities.

The representatives stated that Cisco is already listed as being eligible to apply, along with about 38 other cities in this COG area. Of those cities only six have shown any interest in the program by submitting a pre-application. He went on to say it does not cost anything to get the city eligible, except the time to fill out the pre-application.

In the City Manager's report, Boland said the pump at Battle Creek was turned off Tuesday morning around ten or eleven. He stated it had been in operation since a week ago Tuesday, pumping an estimated 1,000,000 gallons per day.

Major projects of the report were: the one dead transformer at Battle Creek is planned to be replaced as soon as large vehicles can get in near the equipment; Leon Boles is averaging the installation of over five dead water meter replacements per day; a total of 60 tons of asphalt has been used in pothole repair for the month of April and three barrels (approximately 125 gallons) of crack filler have been used; the fence is being installed at Cisco Municipal Airport, Youth Conservation Corp funds are assured with this year's project beginning to start by concentrating on a camper site and supportive facilities. There will be 14 enrolled and two adult leaders; there were a total of nine fire calls--3 rural (2 grass, 1 electrical pole)--4 city grass-one city auto and one smoke in a structure; a total of 21,185,000 gallons of water were used during the month; 8,743,000 gallons passed through waste water treatment plant in April; during Spring Clean-up there were a total of 50 clean up calls, with the most in one day being 18 with a daily average of 6 per day from April 12th through the 26th; there was an average of 2.6 water leak calls and 2.0 sewer backups with the full month being as follows:

37 sewage calls, 12 meters changed, 55 work orders for water leaks, 2 gas inspections, one plumbing inspection, 24 repairs or taps completed, 9 turns offs and 6 turn ons; the sewer plant centrifugal blower threw a gasket and a new one was ordered with balancing seen as a problem source; the municipal court monthly report went as follows: For April 1979, Judge O.T. Killion was in his office a total of 49 hours. There were 44

tickets for a total of $888.50; 4 complaints (one dismissed) for a total of $360.50; 7 warrants for a total $129.50 and there was one case appealed and sent to Eastland. Grand total for the month of April was $1,378.50; for April 1979, the police department had 49 complaints; 12 reported offenses, 6 arrests held (3 transferred to County); 47 traffic citations issued; 214 parking tickets; and 6 accidents worked. There were a total of 1120 man hours worked during the month. There were 7 false alarms; the total interest income earned last month was $350.38 and the year to date figure being $3,111.93.

Council member Allison made a motion that the information and discussion concerning a Texas Aeronautics Commission grant offer be put on the agenda for the regular meeting on May 22, with a public hearing scheduled for the next meeting on June 12. Council member Eudy seconded the motion which was approved.

Council member Allison also reviewed the council on a disaster plan meeting held last week in Eastland. Mrs. Allison stated it was a well represented group of interested people throughout the county.

Mayor Brown instructed each member of the council to make a list of five names for possible appointments to the Housing Board of Adjustments and Appeals. Those lists are to be given to him before the next meeting, at which the appointments will be announced.

The general consensus of the council seemed to be that the purchase of insurance for the Battle Creek pump station would be a bad use of city funds.

Council member Whitley made a motion that the monthly bills be paid. It was seconded by council member Collier and all members voted in its favor.

The Tuesday Tornado

Is Eastland County Prepared ?? ? ????

THE TUESDAY TORNADO
(Editors Note: The following article was compiled from news reports and other sources about the terrible tornado that hit Texas Tuesday, April 10, 1979.)

While the human casualties are still experiencing the aftershocks of their hometown's worst natural disaster, weather experts and government officials are busily calculating theories and lessons to be learned from the ruins of the North Texas tornadoes.

Several weeks ago, in what seems to some like another lifetime, Wichita Falls' 100,000 residents were in the transitional phase of a daily routine, exchanging work duties for home and family. Before supper, all their lives would be unalterably changed—at least 44 ended.

It was early in the tornado season, which officially began April 1, 1979, but Wichita Falls had already acknowledged the familiar weather conditions ripe for a storm with a tornado watch, issued at 1:55 p.m. Tuesday, April 10. The whirling winds materialized and struck nearby Vernon, Texas, at 4:30 p.m., killing 11 persons. But their neighbors 50 miles to the north, who also live in the region known as "Tornado Alley," (stretching from the Gulf Coast to the Great Lakes), took it in stride.

At 5:08 p.m., a funnel cloud was reported at Rocky Point in Wichita County and a tornado warning was issued, telling residents that a tornado had been spotted in the area.

The warning was broadcast on television and radio while the city's 28 warning sirens shrieked the "take cover" signal simultaneously throughout the city. That three to five minute blast was followed by another at 6 p.m., when the tornado was spotted five miles west of Memorial Stadium, and a final signal at 6:08 p.m., as the black column moved eastward through a heavily populated residential area of the city at 70 miles per hour, packing winds in excess of 225 miles per hour.

By the time the devastating winds had crossed the Red River at sundown into Oklahoma, 56 Texans had been killed, 1,570 were injured, 172 hospitalized; 2,738 houses had been destroyed, 921 sustained major damage and 1,802 with minor damage; 104 mobile homes were destroyed; 1,274 apartments and condominiums were destroyed and 170 damaged; 98 small businesses and ten churches were destroyed. A total of 7,107 Texas families had been personally touched by the storm.

In a few minutes more people were killed by tornadoes along the Texas-Oklahoma border than all the people killed (53) in 788 separate tornadoes in 42 states last year. Early dollar damage estimates by the Property Claim Services of the American Insurance Association from the North Texas tornado topped $221 million, only the fifth tornado in history to wreck more than $100 million damage.

A Texas Insurance Advisory Association (TIAA) spokesman, Tom Lee of Austin, estimated insured damage would be more than four times greater than the 1970 Lubbock tornado.

Within 24 hours, Texas insurance industry representatives were on the scene; within days (as soon as communications could be established), special claims offices were opened, and individual companies accelerated efforts to assist in recovery. Hundreds of extra additional claims personnel were sent to the area; within three weeks, nearly half of the estimated claims had been paid.

While people crawled out from the rubble of nature's violent weather war, the entire city fell into darkness and disbelief. Power, water and communications were out everywhere, although the storm hit only one-fifth of the city directly.

But Wichita Falls' only electrical trunk line was ripped apart by the storm, as were steel high voltage towers (built to withstand 400-mile-per hour winds) that has been spaced 10 miles apart to prevent such a disaster.

One telephone line remained opened, hopelessly jammed by the 17,000 to 20,000 efforts per hour to reach the city. One radio station, KTRM-AM, somehow managed to remain on the air frantically relaying requests from the mayor for blood, fuel and calm.

Messages from ham radio operators hooked up to Amarillo reported the extent of the damage over empty air waves. Without the essentials of power, water and communications, the city's disaster preparedness plans, which had been smoothly practiced one week earlier, were less than adequate, often virtually useless.

Emergency vehicles moved directionless through unlit streets while hospitals and morgues filled quickly with the injured and their searching relatives.

More than 500 major surgeries were performed without full power, some on cafeteria tables by flashlight; bones were set with X-ray and patients were stacked in hallways in the first hours after the tornado's slaughter.

Without a coordinated rescue effort, cars became ambulances and dismantled doors became stretchers for the city's two hospitals. Those who were supposed to direct disaster operations sat beside silent, powerless radios in the downtown police station.

"We had all our operations set up with the CB radios and a base station here," City Attorney H.D. Hodge said of the impotent command center. "I don't think we ever established satisfactory communications on that front. Those ham operators were it."

Storm's victims were unable to find supplies—food, water and blankets—ready and waiting for them at emergency shelters that were prepared, but largely unused.

"I guess a lot of people didn't even use them from what I hear," Hodge said. "I heard several reports people were just sitting on their bare slabs (of their houses) all night. I guess they were just too dazed to do anything."

In the light of the next day, emergency teams, repair crews, police and National Guardsmen worked more efficiently to rescue citizens, clear streets, and restore some of the city's operations.

Insurance industry representatives swarmed to the scene, with contact points established not only in Wichita Falls, but in Vernon and in Lawton, Okla.

Officials who rushed to the areas to assess the damage were stunned by the total obliteration of one-fifth of the city.

A path at least eight miles long and up to two miles wide had been cut to the ground, leveling houses, trees, street signs and all visible landmarks.

"There's nothing left," said a shaken Gov. Bill Clements after a helicopter tour of the area. "I was shocked. Those homes are not damaged. They are gone."

National Red Cross Chairman Jerome P. Holland, who toured the area days later at President Jimmy Carter's request, expressed the same sentiment.

"From the helicopter, the extent of the damage is almost incredible. It's going to be hard to give a real accurate picture to other board members of the damage."

U.S. Sen. John Tower, whose hometown is Wichita Falls, compared the damaged area to the war-torn Japanese cities he saw in 1945 after U.S. bombers pounded the living daylight out of the city.

"I don't believe what I've seen in Wichita Falls today," Sen. Tower said after an aerial tour. "This is the worst natural disaster that I believe I've ever seen. I toured the disasters of Hurricane Carla, Hurricane Beulah and Hurricane Celia, but this is much worse. None of those did as much damage as this tornado."

National Severe Storms Laboratory researchers in Norman, Okla., ranked the tornado in the top one percent of all such storms in size, intensity and damage. It was probably the strongest in Texas history, according to experts at the Institute for Disaster Research at Texas Tech University, which is even more remarkable since Texas has more tornadoes than any other state, averaging 105 a year.

Chicago Meteorologist Ted Fujita (who developed a scale measuring tornadoes on the basis of wind speed from F-0 to F-5) ranked the Wichita Falls tornado on F-4 on the Fujita scale, which applies to wind speeds of 207 to 260 miles per hour. Such winds can level houses, hurl cars and trains through the air and debark trees with flying debris. F-4 tornadoes are so rare they can be expected statistically to strike the same spot only once in a million years.

The Wichita Falls tornado was also above average in width and length of its path on the ground, both measurements of a twister's destructive power. The tornado measured one-half to one-mile wide and traveled about 50 miles on the ground, eight of them within the city limits. The average twister is approximately one-eighth mile wide and travels about five miles on the ground.

The Tuesday tornado was so large it seemed to have a discernible "eye," like hurricanes. Those who survived its direct hit told of a moment's calm before the "back" of the tornado hit. Vernon's tornado was a weaker F-4 and the tornado that hit Harrold was an F-2, with wind speeds between 113 and 157 miles per hour.

SURVIVING THE ASSAULT

While officials surveyed the damage, individuals repeated their survival stories to anyone who would listen, amazed to have lived through such an assault. Many who survived the onslaught had heard the sirens or broadcast warnings and took immediate refuge in closets, bathtubs or hallways in the center of their homes. Mattresses and blankets buffered people clinging to the floor while their homes blew apart around them.

Some tried to flee in their cars, although an automobile is considered one of the most dangerous places to be in a tornado. Those who made it told of trying to outrun the funnel at speeds of up to 110 miles per hour, then seeking shelter under a bridge abutment with others, straining to hold onto the concrete when the tornado caught up with them. One trucker told of panicked drivers turning a two-lane highway into a six-lane, one-way free-for-all at 80 miles per hour when the black funnel aimed at the highway.

Customers in the city's two largest shopping malls had time only to run or hit the floor after loud speaker warnings. About 100 people hugged a tile fountain in the center of fashionable Sikes Senter Mall, while others wormed their way under counters and merchandise to escape the flying debris.

Supermarket shoppers and restaurant customers were herded into coolers by quick-thinking employees and emerged minutes later to find their sanctuary the only thing left standing for blocks. Those caught in parking lots were less fortunate. May of the 44 deaths occurred in cars tossed and battered like styrofoam by the powerful winds.

Even those who took precautions were not immune from the storm. A woman and her two daughters were sucked out of the bathtub they covered in the center of the spiraling winds. Both girls were killed and the woman was left with critical injuries. A man and his teenage son lay down in a culvert while the storm passed over them. Thinking it was over, the man raised his head and a board propelled by the winds killed him.

Others, grateful simply to be alive, picked through the rubble that had once been their homes to find anything salvagable. They found eerie souvenirs of the tornado's character. Mirrors were etched with swirls; an unopened coffee can was driven through a mobile home wall; sealed soda pop bottles had somehow been invaded by dirt and debris; and a new pair of boots, still boxed and wrapped in tissue paper, was found with rocks inside. Incredible escape stories, such as the family of five racing to a relative's house in a van that was picked up by the tornado and deposited unharmed in the relative's demolished back yard, circulated quickly.

Contacting friends and relatives was one of the biggest immediate problems for survivors. Hospitals jammed with casualties could not cope with the throngs of frantic people searching for their missing family members, and stunned morticians, aided by students from a Dallas school, had to work around the grief-stricken relatives moving among the sheet-covered bodies laid out in a funeral home garage.

COMMUNICATION PROBLEMS

Communications out-of-town were impossible until the next day. The sole functioning radio station attempted to ease the chaos by broadcasting lists of the casualties between the mayor's pleas for calm, but the panic extended far beyond the Wichita Falls city limits.

In addition to the massive telephone jam, hundreds of telegrams stacked up in nearby cities undelivered. Some who were unable to get through to friends or relatives resorted to emergency trips to the devastated area, ignoring officials' pleas to stay away.

One distraught father drove as far as the debris would allow, and then ran the last mile to find a missing daughter who had been working at a steak house in the tornado's path. The destruction was so severe, that he first ran mistakenly to a flattened pizza parlor before finding the restaurant his daughter had been killed in. Others rode bicycles through the littered streets and one Oklahoma grandmother, a licensed pilot, rented a plane to fly to her safe, but homeless, family.

When it was over, the beleaguered city that had earlier seemed helpless came into national focus as relief teams rushed in with medical supplies, generators, water trucks, food, clothing, repair crews and communications.

Downed power lines, gas leaks, contaminated water and the threat of uncontrolled fires were primary concerns, as was the disposal of hundreds of thousands of pounds of food ruined in scores of restaurants and grocery stores.

Looters were anticipated, and 150 National Guardsmen arrived to help police patrol the ravaged southwest side of the city, although many shopkeepers and homeowners guarded their own vulnerable property, carrying clubs and guns against further assault.

The TIAA advised policyholders to consider personal and family safety first, and then consider property damage by making temporary repairs to prevent further damage.

The City Council enacted emergency measures, including a curfew and price freeze, to control heating, profiteering and general problems that plague victims in the aftermath of a disaster.

Wichita Falls residents exhibited their self-reliance throughout the disaster by pitching in to help wherever it was needed. Churches still standing became communications centers when families posted messages to one another on bulletin boards. Other painted outside their demolished houses assuring passersby all had survived. Sunday school classes appeared in force with the sun to sift through the debris for fellow members, and strangers offered trucks to load and haul away salvage for homeless people.

Airmen from Sheppard Air Force Base came by the dozens to lend a hand.

Soon, the crisis professionals—from Civil Defense to insurance industry claims specialists to the Red Cross—had their well-coordinated relief plans in full operation. By Friday, when the first of the funerals began, North Texas had recovered from the initial cruel shock of Tuesday evening and was coping with the reality of rebuilding.

The River Road

BY VIOLA M. PAYNE

Not long ago I read an article in the Fort Worth Star Telegram which stirred up a nest of unpleasant memories. Not that I needed reminding of this situation—it has followed me around most of my life. But the article stated that Texas was No. 50 among the States in contributions to the arts, including music. And since the United States contributes the lowest per capita of any civilized nation on earth, that puts Texas in quite a spot! That is something to think about here in the middle of National Music Week.

The amazing part is that some music does survive, subsidies or no subsidies. But it usually takes the form of folk music, and some of it lasts long enough to become classics. But folk music must be bred into an artist to be authentic, whether it is the flamenco music of Spain, the Cajun-style fiddling, or the Black Chain Gang songs from the Brazos.

The really sad part of the lack of musical education in our Grade and High schools is that talents of many classical players and composers—particularly on stringed instruments—is being plowed under. The piano does not seem to be suffering from this total devastation—perhaps it has been integrated more into American life. And bands seem to be accepted and thriving. But there are few young violin players around any more, and few violin teachers outside of large cities. Many of our concert violinists are imported from Europe, where good training is begun in grade schools.

When I was young, people said to me: "If you want to learn to play the violin, just play the violin!"

But this simplistic approach, I found, failed to take into account the delicate and complicated nature of the instrument, or the accumulated technical knowledge which can speed the progress of a beginner. To expect a person to master the violin without instruction is like telling a child who wants to be a scientist: "Oh, you just go be a scientist!" This attitude also fails to consider that every beginning player needs a tonal vision—a beautiful sound imprinted in his brain, toward which he can strive. For we are all tonal imitators, and develop musical accents just as people develop speaking accents.

A basic right of every child should be to explore the world of music—to try various instruments, and learn which one he can communicate with. Music should be a joyful and natural experience—a means of expression. Children who find such outlets for their talents rarely grow up maladjusted.

Under the present situation in public schools, children are taught to do a lot of things. They also have innumerable extra activities, and physical education is required. Where I grew up, physical exercise was something you hoped to escape from, when you went to school. I can assure you that none of us needed a gymnasium, after our activities on the farms and ranches!

But I realize that conditions are more confining these days, and young people need some form of sports. But I wonder if they need as much and as often of it as they are getting now, and if some of the time, money and energy spent on it wouldn't reap more lasting results if diverted to other fields? I realize that I am not only tackling a sacred cow here, but the herd bull and all his offspring. But I have often wondered why instrumental music has to take such an inferior place in the schools, operating on a low budget or no budget?

This is a self-perpetuating situation. And like the proverbial devils who moved into the empty house, the emptiness in musical culture has been filled by a mindless, zombie-like apparition of sound, posing as "popular" or "disco" music. The popular choice of whom? Perhaps of the commercial vendors, who dump records upon radio stations who then dump them upon the hapless public.

Sometimes good music has been called "impractical"—a visionary thing which will buy neither food nor rainment. But I say that it is very practical—an International passport and language which can assure safe passage anywhere. For money and land and power can be swept away, health can fail, and loved ones desert you—but music remains.

This is National Music Week, and it will soon be gone. But I have decided that every week, the rest of my life, will be Music Week for me. With music I am rich, although I have little else. Without it I would be poor indeed, even if other things were heaped upon me.

Health Check '79 Set For May 15 At Abilene Civic Center

An informative, beneficial and very exciting day is upcoming for all older persons in the Big Country. As an array of activities begins to dot the calendar for May—National Senior Citizens' Month—the date May 15th should be "checked" for HEALTH CHECK '79!

Planned as a Sandra Hale Is Administrator

Leisure Lodge-Valley View has announced that effective May 1, 1979, Sandra Hale will be the administrator of that home with Judy Chaney serving as assistant administrator and book-keeper.

Four years ago, May 1st, Sandra came to the home as bookkeeper and assistant administrator. She began her 200 hour Administrator in Training course September, 1978 at the University of Texas. She served her six months internship under Joyce Pylant and Lauretta Lowler.

Sandra is a 1968 graduate of Cisco High School. She will now continue her education by obtaining her Associate Degree in Long Term Health Care.

Judy is a 1962 graduate of Eastland High School, attended Cisco Junior two years, and has continuing educational units in Gerontology from Tarleton State University. She has been employed at Valley View as Activity Director the past six years.

Sandra would like to take this opportunity to extend and invitation to the community families, and friends to come by and meet with her and her staff, to become more familiar with the home and get to know each and everyone.

We asked Sandra if she had any future plans or goals she would like to initiate. "Yes, most definitely! We have a very enthusiastic staff who wants to continue to strive for improved community relationship and involvement, to increase and improve staff efficiency, and above all, to maintain and continue to improve patient care!"

participant-centered health fair, HEALTH CHECK '79 will be in action at the Abilene Civic Center from 9:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. and is free to all older persons in the area.

Actual health screenings will be conducted throughout the day. Height and weight; anemia testing; hypertension, and blood pressure screening will be available. Additionally, glaucoma testing, diabetes screening, and a presentation by a local Podiatrist will be offered.

Practical, important information on special diet preparation and other aspects of good nutrition will be given by a dietician in programs throughout the day.

Screenings will be conducted by nurses from the West Central Texas Home Health Agency and from Public Health Region 4, and specially-trained volunteers will be on hand to assist those present in completing their HEALTH CHECK lists. Follow-up telephone calls will be made by volunteers to determine whether participants who had significant test abnormalities have received further medical care they need.

Although the emphasis will be on active and participation in on-the-spot services, many attractive exhibits and challenging health education presentations will be scheduled. Much valuable information from service organizations and agencies will be available for the taking.

To add to the excitement, Abilene merchants and banks have contributed a generous assortment of fine door prizes. All older persons who register will be eligible, and winning names will be drawn and announced throughout the day.

A delicious noon meal will be provided by the Abilene Senior Citizens Nutrition Project. Contributions from persons 60 and over will be accepted to cover the cost of the meal. There will be a charge of $2.00 per meal for persons under 60. "Are You Planning on Living the Rest of Your Life?" will be the theme of a lively noon-time discussion on the need for a program of total health for the older adult.

HEALTH CHECK '79 is one of hundreds of health fairs being conducted nationwide in May as a project initiated by the Administration on Aging and Department of HEW. HEALTH CHECK '79 is being sponsored by the Abilene Coordinating Council--Aging Cluster, Taylor County Red Cross, and the Area Agency on Aging.

Be good to yourself! Plan now to be on hand for the services and fun at HEALTH CHECK '79, May 15th at the Abilene Civic Center.

When The Time Comes-

...to sign the deed, both buyer and seller are usually in a hurry. But alas! it is then that the buyer demands an abstract and the seller discovers that he has lost his abstract or never had one. As all title work must be carefully done in these modern days, it takes time and much work. To avoid situations such as these, let us suggest that you place your abstract or title insurance orders well in advance of an anticipated need.

How To Avoid Telephone Problems On Mothers Day

This Sunday, Mother's Day, will be the busiest telephone day of the year, and Southwestern Bell offers these tips to customers for the fastest, most economical ways to place long distance calls:

-If possible, customers should dial their long distance calls direct. One Plus is the fastest, most economical way to go.

-Lowest long distance rates are in effect all day Saturday and before 5 p.m. Sunday. One Plus direct dialed calls out-of-state will be discounted 60 percent during this time. One Plus calls within Texas will be discounted 40 percent during this time.

-Customers should experience the least delays if they call Saturday or during the afternoon period Sunday.

-Customers who make calls Sunday evening between 5 and 11 p.m. will receive a 35 percent discount on out-of-state calls and 25 percent discount on calls within Texas.

-If customers experience busy circuits, they should be patient and try the call again later.

-Area codes, sample rates and other helpful calling information is listed in the front Call Guide section of your telephone directory.

Doug White, local manager for Southwestern Bell, said the company expects to handle almost two million long distance calls originating in Texas on Mother's Day.

"Handling this volume - about 64 calls per second - is a big challenge," White said, "but we will have the employees and resources on hand to meet the demand. "Experience has shown us that most people try to call between 9 and 11 a.m. and between 7 and 11 p.m. on Mother's Day," White said. "That's why we recommend

Questions For The Doctor

The nagging pain of arthritis can force victims to seek relief from almost any source, however hopeless or false it may be. The Texas Medical Association (TMA) says one of the latest additions to this realm of medicine-show magic is WD-40, a substance sold to lubricate, loosen and protect parts in machines, but not in people.

After hearing reports of people putting WD-40 on their skin to treat arthritis, TMA checked with the WD-40 company in San Diego and found they also were baffled by the phenomenon. Glen Agnew, WD-40 technical director, said that the product has been on the market for 20 years but the company had heard of it being used for arthritis only in the last couple of years.

There is nothing in the product that would help arthritis and the company definitely does not recommend or encourage its use as a medicine, Agnew said.

Yet some people insist that it has helped their arthritis. Ed Easley of Houston, executive director of the Gulf Coast Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, said people who claim it has helped probably have rheumatoid arthritis, one of about 100 types of arthritis. Rheumatoid arthritis victims often claim that odd, unworkable remedies help them because they are tricked by the nature of their disease. Rheumatoid arthritis tends to get better and worse in an unpredictable pattern so if someone tries an unproven treatment about the time the arthritis gets better by itself, the quack cure naturally gets the credit. Unfortunately this pattern happens a lot since about 20 percent of the nation's 31,600,000 arthritis victims have rheumatoid arthritis.

But if WD-40 does not help, can it hurt? The answer, like many medical issues, involving a definite yes and a definite maybe.

The warning on the side of the product says WD-40 is flammable and also is dangerous if swallowed. The "maybe" comes in when considering its action on skin.

Most people can use it under normal working conditions with no problem unless they have an allergy to the ingredients. The question becomes cloudier when talking about long-term exposure because no tests have been run. However, Agnew and Mike Ellis of the Southeast Texas Poison Control Center in Galveston both said the only long-term danger for most people might be dry, cracked skin with perhaps red spots. They urged anyone with these problems to stop using the product or the conditions could get worse.

But using WD-40 for arthritis has more subtle dangers than dry skin, TMA said. Reliance on the product can waste money and distract patients from dependable treatments. People seeking information on trustworthy treatment should contact their physicians or local chapter of the Arthritis Foundation. If no local chapter is handy, write: Arthritis Foundation, Suite 108, 800 Vantage Drive, San Antonio, Tex. 78230.

4-H To Meet

Lights From The Christian World

By Josephine Cleveland

The story is told of a lady who went to a Christian counselor and told him all the problems she was having with her husband. His work was in the business world. One of her complaints was that he would often bring his business papers home, stack them on the table and spend night after night working on them. Other times he would bring guests home without telling her in advance.

The counselor asked that she make a list of everything good about her husband. She said that she could not think of anything.

The counselor in reply said he knew one she could list...and that was humiliation. Then he told her to go home and read James 4:6.

Her curiosity was aroused as to what the writer, James had written in the Word. Immediately upon returning home she opened her Bible to the passage and read, "But He gives more grace." And He says, "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble."

She began to praise God. Then she sat down and listed all the things she could praise God about.

A few days later after retiring for the night her husband was asleep...she shook him awake and said, "I just want to say I praise the Lord for you."

Needless to say, the marriage relationship improved.

"Humble yourself in the sight of the Lord, and He will lift you up." Relinquish your source of irritations to Him. Relinquish your personal rights....For He giveth more grace.

Putnam News

By Mrs. R.B. Taylor

Putnam was blessed with more rain last week, in fact almost too much we had over four inches early Tuesday morning. All stock tanks and creeks are full and running over. Some places had hail.

Benton Pruet had one field north of Putnam completely ruined. Everything looks wonderful. The wheat knee high, grass and weeds growing by leaps and bounds. The wild flowers are the most beautiful, I have ever seen and gardens growing, such a contrast to this time last year. We are so thankful for the good water we are getting from Lake Cisco.

United Savings Assn. Reports 7.5 Decline

United Savings Association of Texas today reported a 7.5 percent decline in total first quarter consolidated mortgage loan production, $91.3 million vs. $98.7 million in the first quarter of 1978. Originations of loans on single family, townhome and condominium residences were off 17.4 percent at $53.7 million versus $64.9 million for 1978. Sales of mortgage loans at $41.9 million were off 5.2 percent from the $44.2 million in sales reported last year.

Robert M. Dawson, Executive Vice President of the statewide savings association, predicted that, "As a result of FNMA's refusal to purchase insured mortgages produced in Texas and the Governors's apparent unwillingness to consider a proposed change in the State's usury limit, the Texas home buyer will soon be unable to obtain mortgage financing. The effect on our State economy will be drastic," said Dawson.

"What these results don't show," said Dawson, "is that United has now just about run out of commitments for future sales of mortgages. Over the last 2 and one half years, we have sold over one-half billion dollars in loans, most to out-of-state investors. Unless we find a solution to this usury problem, we will no longer be able to import these funds. Home buyers will not find credit and our building industry will suffer.

United Savings of Texas, a Houston based savings association with division offices in Abilene, Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Fort Worth and Dallas, and Houston, recently reported one billion dollars in total resources. United Savings is a subsidiary of Southwestern Group Financial, Inc., a Kanab company.
