Peggy "Lane" Ober, and granddaughter, Brandi Istre, both of DeLeon, stopped by The Press last week to renew their newspaper subscription. Peggy is a 1953 graduate of Cisco High School, and as she said, "Once a Lobo, always a Lobo." She said she has an old CHS cheerleader megaphone made out of pig skin, and she wants to give it to the museum at Conrad Hilton.

Brandi, who is 12-years old, was wearing a few face injuries, caused from an accident in a dune buggy about two weeks before. The vehicle hit a tree and Brandi, who was driving, hit the steering wheel.

She had 52 staples going across the top of her head, in a Mohawk hair style. She said she was on the operation table for 12 hours, to repair the damage of her face being shattered. They had to take a picture to the doctor to show him, what she looked like. But, even with all her injuries, she was so bubbly, happy and was in good spirits.

Poster entries for the T-Shirt Logo contest for the "Cisco Just Say No Club" have been turned in here at The Press. These are all great, but more will be needed. The deadline to turn in a Logo, on poster board, will be at 12 noon, on Friday, April 14, at The Cisco High School, Cisco Elementary School, The Cisco Press, 700 Conrad Hilton, or at Ray-Ram, 105 East 9th.

Reports are out that scissor-tail birds have been spotted in and around Cisco. And that the mesquite trees are budding and blooming. So Spring is here to stay!

Earl Ray, said he has a list of jobs that the United States government needs done and if anyone would like to know where to get lists such as them, to stop by his business at 105 East 9th. He thought maybe some business in this area, could get this list of work and might be able to increase their industry.

The students in the One-Act Play at Cisco High School, had a pleasant surprise waiting for them at their Tuesday night practice. Carrol Brown, CJC drama instructor, gave each actor a flower with a note of encouragement for their hard work.

The One-Act Play participated in Waco for the Area contest on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A.L. Tarver, from El Campo, Texas and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Siemp and three children, Tiffina, Tasha, and Tanner from Conroe visited Mrs. Vera Doyle, Mrs. Tarver's mother, and her Aunt Velma McCrary as they returned from a visit to Albuquerque, New Mexico, with Mr. and Mrs. Gregg Tremes, Mrs. Tarver's granddaughter and grandson.

CORRECTION

In the Courthouse News, Leslie B. Vance was listed, by mistake, as the defendant in a D.W.I. case. Leslie B. Vance was rather the attorney representing the defendant, and his name was copied by error rather than the name of the defendant.

We regret this mistake and offer our apologies to Mr. Vance.

Applications For Sue Witzsche College Scholarships Are Now Being Accepted

The Cisco Service Club is now taking applications for their annual Sue Witzsche Memorial Scholarship. The scholarship is available to any female resident of Cisco who has lived here for one year or more, and who would like to have some financial aid for her pursuit of technical or vocational training. The Cisco Service Club voted to dedicate their scholarship program in memory of Sue Witzsche in 1977. Mrs. Witzsche was a devoted club member and an active community worker. Applicants need not be presently in school, nor is the scholarship limited to college-age students. The scholarship is designed to help those in need of financial aid for books, fees, tuition, clothing or room and board. Women who graduated earlier in their life and are now wanting to continue their education are encouraged to pick up an application. Applications may now be picked up at the Cisco High School, Cisco Junior College Financial Aid office or at Dean Drug, 618 Conrad Hilton. The deadline to turn in the application will be Monday, May 1, 1989. Each applicant will be interviewed by a scholarship board of directors. Interviews will be informal and the results will be the basis for selection of the recipient. For more information call Betty McGrew at 442-2155, or 442-1051, or Sue Lacy at 442-2346.

Prizes For Fix-Up Dress-Up

How do you qualify? Put on your long, pioneer type dress or calico skirt and blouse... or denim jeans and western shirt... granny bonnets are a cute addition for the ladies, as are bandanas for the men. Clean window panes in the store fronts are so important to help our town put its best face forward, and having the display areas decorated with appropriate pioneer items will be like icing on a cake. Be watching for the mystery couple, and hope that you will be one of the lucky ones to collect some very spendable Festival tokens.

Convicts Help Ducotel Family In CJC Play "My Three Angels"

By Wanda Hallmark
Everyone needs to hurry up and make their reservations to see the Cisco Junior College play, "My Three Angels", by Sam and Bella Spewach, to be performed April 10-15, at the Mobbey-Conrad Hilton Community Center. All of the actors, especially the three convicts, who use their "talents" to help the Ducotel family on Christmas Eve, give magnificent performances. The convicts, two murderers and one embezzler, are working on the roof of the Ducotel's home when they overhear a conversation by the Ducotel family. The convicts decide to help the family out of a tough situation.

The convicts make an unusual entrance into the home when the daughter, Marie Louise, (Danetta Bible) faints after reading a letter from her friend Suzanne. One of the convicts, Alfred Monsard, (Frank Spangler), who murdered his step-father when he caught Alfred stealing from his safe, really enjoys helping the damsel in distress, and wants to help awaken the young lady with a procedure he once read about in a book.

Another convict, who murdered his wife in a jealous rage, Jules Entremont, (Scott Bradshaw), told the girl's mother, Emilee Ducotel (Lou Jane Davis), that he feels as though he has the chance to be father to the child he never had. The embezzler, Joseph LeGron, (Dan Huff) makes himself at home working in the general store, located at the front of the home, and can always sell anything to

Ray Pryor Retires After 38 Years At Victor Cornelius

After 38 years with Victor Cornelius, Ray Pryor will begin his retirement Monday. Friday morning he was honored by his fellow employees and Cornelius at a surprise party. Pryor started with the company August 19, 1951, when theatrical advertising was the only product of the printing firm. At that time his work was making offset plates. Later he was involved with shipping, paper cutting and as order clerk. When the company began to produce large "Change-A-Play" theatrical advertising boards what could not be printed, but must be silk-screened, he learned that process. In 1967 when Cornelius invented his plastic Redi-Clips for menus, their tiny business logo or advertising messages required silk-screening also. Pryor's background made him a natural for this new specialized task. After a day's instruction in Dallas, he came home to face the challenge of his new job. Since that time he has been screening several million slips per year. Recently Pryor says he has been reminiscing about the early days of the business and the many people who have been with it over the years. He says he plans to play his retirement "by ear," tackling first some of the work he

Strawberry Shortcakes Withstand Tromp

CEO Jeanne Rains of the Cisco Folklife Festival Strawberry Shortcake Producers, Ltd. has announced that there will again be an abundance of those tantalizing, taste-tempting delicacies at the Civic League food booth at the '89 festival. It was feared by the executive staff that due to the phenomenal popularity of past shortcakes, there would be an attempt at a company take-over by entrepreneur Dunmore Tromp. Rains has asked to assure all readers that all of the enjoys around the home he shares with his wife, Betty. The two are ardent gardeners, and both the exposed and the enclosed areas of their yard at 504 South Daugherty reflect their skill and talents. Both are active in the First United Methodist Church where Pryor is on the Board of Trustees and the Administrative Board. Active with the Boy Scouts of America for 26 years, he was a scoutmaster for 10 years and on the Council Board for several years. He was a member of the Lions Club for 30 years. Both Mr. and Mrs. Pryor are graduates of Eastland High School and have lived here ever since except for Pryor's service time in the Navy and the Marine Corp. Mrs. Pryor is legal secretary for Jack and Cyrus Frost. The couple's daughter, Jennifer, and her husband Don Wilson and their sons, Stephen and Cory, live at Lake Arlington.

Dr. Cal Guy To Be Primary Speaker At Cisco Baptist Assoc. Meeting

Dr. Cal Guy will be the primary speaker at the mid-year meeting of Cisco Baptist Association on Monday, April 10, at the First Baptist Church of Breckenridge.

Supper will be served at 6 p.m. by the host church and the mid-year meeting will convene at 7 p.m. Officers for the 1989-90 associational year will be elected for the district association, and the Women's Missionary Union officers for the same period will be elected by WMU members.

Music will be under the direction of Wyley Peebles, and Dr. Guy will bring the message of the evening. Dr. Guy is a native of Tennessee, a graduate of Union University and Southwestern Seminary with three degrees. He pastored in Tennessee and Texas, and served as Professor of Missions at Southwestern Seminary for 36 years. Since retirement, he has pastored in Belgium and in Paris France. He has visited mission fields in every continent of the world, and is credited with influencing more persons to enter mission service than any other single individual in Baptist life.

There will be no Executive Board meeting nor WMU meeting since the messengers of the churches form the Mid-Year meeting to transact the business of the association.

Science Education - A Local View

By Viola Payne

These days newspaper writers are confronted with a mass of information about public education. Two main themes seem to run through this one-way correspondence: (1) The schools are not preparing children to compete in Science, and (2) more money is needed to improve the educational system.

Many times these ideas are linked together in one letter.

Since I belong to the prehistoric tribe of people who simply had a foundation of basic subjects, I am sometimes astonished at these complaints and demands.

But lately several things have jolted me on the subject. For one thing, I have been informed that in the large Universities (in Texas, at least) there are more foreign students enrolled in the Science Ph.D. courses than American students.

Some of these from countries I wouldn't characterize as "friendly", if you count people who would bury us literally as well as financially.

Another shock was an Editorial on Science Education from the National Science Foundation in Washington, D.C. It says flatly that science education is inadequate in today's schools. "Our standing as a world power, our national security, economic competitiveness and personal well-being depend on, among many things, a knowledge of science."

The writer goes on to say that around 94 percent of the population are probably unable to comprehend issues such as acid rain, the condition of the ozone layer, or genetic engineering.

"Living in modern society has raised the level of science education we all need," the author states. "New technology is changing our lives so fast that today's high school graduates are exposed to more information than their grandparents were in a lifetime. The challenge is to provide students with the capabilities to meet these demands. But it's not happening."

After reading this and some other equally strong stuff, I decided to find out more on a local level. So I took a sampling of opinions from Science teachers in area schools and colleges. Please remember that this is a random sampling - it does not include every Science teacher.

What amazed me was that, although questioned independently, the teachers agreed on almost everything.

All stated that not enough students were majoring in Science at the College level. They also agreed that Eastland County appeared to be "about average" or "maybe had less" of a problem with Science than schools in other parts of the state. They said the level of preparation in Science seemed to vary from school to school.

Several teachers recalled some outstanding Science students who had come out of Eastland County schools - youngsters who had won prizes in Science Fairs and the like. Other Science Majors had graduated from the local colleges and gone on to Universities and careers in Science.

"But these young people are too few and far between."

One teacher remarked sadly.

All of the teachers said that the problems with Science Education were very complex, and had no easy solution. Each of them discussed different facets of the riddle, occasionally mentioning things they thought should be done.

One teacher said we were in a low cycle, as far as Science was concerned.

"In the 1960's and 70's things were better than now," he stated. "People were all excited about the space program. Emphasis in that field and others carried through the 1970's. There was more Federal funding then too."

"Now the nation is more concerned about societal and personal fields."

When interest in a subject runs down it's hard to regenerate, he added. Some of the problem does lie with funding, he also said.

"It takes money for good Science facilities - more, say, than for an English class. Good labs and equipment cost a lot."

"School administrators are generally not trained in Science. The funding priorities for schools go into extra-curricular activities."

This teacher said he felt that children were not lacking in basic ability. "But they lack familiarity with some of the basic sciences, such as math and physics. Science requires more study outside the classrooms, and the majority of students simply don't have a study ethic."

Some of these young people are going through a difficult time in their lives, and are simply too distracted to study, the teacher added. Some are from broken homes, and others are having to live with poverty or deal with other problems.

"But there's no way they can get through College without Science," the teacher said.

"The problem is very deep-seated," another teacher remarked. "Information is coming fast in our world. College-level courses are long and involved."

"Yet it seems that when a student is confronted with a complex problem he will back off and say: 'I can't do this - I can't follow it.'"

"They just want to get out of school as soon as possible - get a job and make a living."

"Science courses take time, labs, a large amount of material. They also take skills in communications."

"I would say our students lack the ability to look at complex material and follow it through. They are not interested - don't have enough motivation."

When asked about solutions, this teacher remarked that part of the problem might be involved with Science teachers who also have to teach other subjects.

"That drains off enthusiasm," he said. "Another problem is involved with electives. Kids go for Biology rather than Math, and math becomes their weakest point."

"This makes College very difficult, and only about one percent actually major in Science. Most of these go into medical careers."

Another teacher said that he saw some need for basic discipline in students.

"Discipline in the Colleges is not such a problem, but it is worse on the High School level. I've had students say: 'You can't make me do anything', and threaten me with their parents if I try."

"Students need to have a basic understanding of how to read and take directions. Science takes time and patience - it is more complex."

The students who have no interest in a Science Course will disrupt the class for those few who might want to learn, this teacher added.

When I asked another teacher what he thought on the subject of Science Education, he laughed and said I probably wouldn't print it if he told me. But then he settled down and said that he did not feel the fault lay with individual teachers, but with the whole educational system.

"Some of the students can neither read, write, or take directions," he said. "Something is wrong with a system which is based on Education Majors. The teachers need to be majors in the subject they are going to teach, in order to make the material interesting to the students."

"With the entry-level exams looming for all Colleges now, I predict that about 60% of all High School graduates will have to take remedial work to get into College."

"They are not taught enough Science and Chemistry in the lower grades, much less High School."

"It's easy to see where the priorities are in State Schools. There is a Science competition once a year - a football competition each Friday night."

"If you want a nation of athletes, rather than one of scientists - not to mention the arts - keep right on with things as they are."

This teacher said he wouldn't cut out all sports and extra activities, however.

"I'd hate to see American kids turned into a bunch of robots like people from some of the other nations," he said.

"I do believe in having fun." Another teacher said that the kids come to College weak in algebra and geometry, not knowing such simple things as the area of a circle.

"Historically Americans are weak in math and math-related things. Foreign students are better as a rule," he remarked. "Americans want to do things the quick way. They are used to multiple-choice questions, and don't like to take the time for creative thinking or to write out answers in detail."

"Something is wrong down the line. Education for all is turning into quality education for none."

"I have decided that education after grade-school level should be non-free - a privilege rather than a right. I think there should be some divergent programs, but with easily obtainable scholarships for those who really want to study and go into academics."

"Right now there are jobs waiting for students who will apply themselves to Science. Industry wants them, the Government, Medicine, the engineering fields. High Schools and Colleges need teachers in Math and Science. Yet we're not turning out enough of those students to fill our basic needs."

Another teacher echoed the thought that there was more interest in Science a few years ago.

"I've had some outstanding students, and I still have - about one or two a year. They are only a small percentage of the student body," he said.

I would say that part of the problem is that more Math is needed in the student's younger years. But I would also say that in Science or anything else parents need to point their children in the right direction.

"They should give their kids more aspirations, let them know that they need to go to College."

"It's hard to find anyone who wants to settle down and study a detailed subject like Science. They want to be in sports, have fun, or just do nothing."

"It really hurts me to see kids drop out of things that take a little extra effort, like Band, for example."

"I tell them: 'Life is more than an 8 to 5 job. Music is something you can use all your life.'

"Science is like that too. It can lead to all sorts of great fields if a student will put out the effort."

"I think House Bill 72 was a good thing in most ways - it did help Science and Math."

Another teacher said he agreed that students entering College were weak in writing, reading and Math, especially Math. But he wasn't sure how much good HB 72 had done.

"I believe one problem lies with having too many electives in High School, so that students are not made to take the most difficult courses," he stated.

"I suppose HB 72 was a step in the right direction, but its 'No pass, no play' rule has worked against Science in one way."

"The students have a lot of pressure to stay eligible for the athletic program, so they take easy courses they can pass. They become so limited in a Math background that they are really afraid of higher Math when they reach College."

"They back off and say: 'Maybe I'd better go some other direction. The Science courses are too demanding.'"

"Some students take no algebra in High School, and not much Chemistry or geometry."

This same teacher said he felt that football and other sports had some value. He said he had seen students who were excellent athletes and who also excelled in Science - so he knew it could be done.

He stated that a big change was coming in preparation for College - he called it "the biggest shake-up in Texas."

He told about the new law requiring that each student entering College will have to take a Texas Academic Skills Program test. Students failing the test will be required to take a lot of remedial work if they hope to enter College. The first test for Eastland County was given early in March.

"This test is going to wake a lot of people up," the teacher said. "It's going to seem pretty bad at first, but in the long run I believe the TASP test will improve education."

"It will certainly be one way of knowing which school systems are turning out students who are ready for College, and which are not."

As his comments ended I felt very appreciative for this teacher and the others who took time to discuss Science Education. It seemed to me that their dedication and interest made their comments worth thinking about.

I realized also that their remarks did not end the discussion on the subject - they were only a beginning. For this subject is not going to fade away.

Letter To The Editor

Letter To The Editor:

This is a note of appreciation to Jim Simmons, who for the past ten years we have lived in Eastland, has never failed to deliver our daily newspaper... through rain, snow, ice, heat and cold. What a record of public service! Nearly four thousand days of arising long before dawn to have all the elements of weather as well as other obstacles to deliver the daily news to our homes.

We often need to express our appreciation to all those folks who perform menial daily tasks which provide comfort for each of our lives... the postal employee, the garbage collector, the law enforcement agencies, and numerous other who quietly perform civic services without fanfare and little recognition.

Several years ago, I interviewed a medical doctor who moved to the small town where I was employed in the newspaper office. I asked him what one thing really prompted him to become a doctor. He quickly replied, "Well, I was serving in the armed forces in a very cold climate. I was on garbage patrol collection one terribly cold, snowy day. We passed the hospital cafeteria and seeing all the interns there drinking steaming cups of coffee and apparently enjoying the warmth of the surroundings, I thought THIS is for me!" (This is not to imply that doctors are exempt from adverse conditions, however, perhaps not as consistently and mostly with much more recognition for their services.)

Thank you, Mr. Simmons. We trust you may enjoy many years of well deserved rest from the daily grind of collecting, wrapping, and pitching newspapers!

Sincerely,
Mrs. Tom Nevill

American Cancer Society News

The Eastland County Unit of American Cancer Society met at K-Bobs. Dale Squires opened the meeting by asking Letty Craddock to lead the prayer. Roy Gevara updated the Crusade plans, Helen Lund said that The Eastland volunteers had begun and Rosemary Ferguson reported that the Home Extension women of Olden will begin after their meeting the 11th. Letty Craddock plans to visit the Cheaney Community this week. Leaders and volunteer block workers are needed in Ranger and Cisco. Danelda reported the amount of donations in memorials this month. Lesa Oswald reported that public education had some good films and programs on good nutrition. Michael Parrot, District Representative showed the group a new nutritional cookbook compiled by the American Cancer Society. American Cancer Research has found links between sun tanned small children and skin cancer as they grow older. Also research shows the tanning beds have more harmful rays than the sun which is blocked by filters in the air. If none calls on you for a donation, call one of the group or mail to P.O. Box 788, Eastland, 76448. We hope you or yours never have this horrible disease, Cancer. Letty Craddock, Secretary

Safe Driving Tips from Rhonda

Avoid distractions during driving. It has been surveyed that only 17-20% of our attention is focused on driving. Women apply their make-up, curl their hair, tend children, eat or read a book while driving. Men are just as guilty. Men read magazines, maps, shave, put on neckties, eat or talk on the mobile telephone. Learn to realize the inherent danger in driving. Since driving an automobile is the most dangerous thing most of us do in a lifetime, it demands our full attention. Keep the "main thing" the main thing.

The Tragedy Of The Disappearance Of Courtney Lyn Clayton Recalled

Children abducted by strangers, children abducted by parents, children who run away - every disappearance leaves broken hearts and shattered lives behind it. Everywhere, the police are overwhelmed; the tragedy spreads. The heart, minds and eyes of all America are needed for this terrible search.

Abduction by persons unknown is the most devastating of all the missing children tragedies. And as brutal as it is in big cities, it is even harder in the small, All-American town. All the trust, all the peace of mind that people have been building among their friends and neighbors over the generations is shattered in a single moment. Such is the case of Courtney Lyn Clayton.

Stan Clayton felt good about moving his young family to Stamford, Texas, in 1982. He had every reason to believe that none of the dark things that can happen to children in big cities could happen here. After all, Stamford had been breeding good friends and neighbors for more than a century. Clayton, a plant manager, his wife, Candace, and their three vigorous children counted themselves lucky to live in secure Stamford. Little Courtney grew up to be a special favorite around town. She was a seven year old spitfire with a mind all her own and a heart bigger than she was.

are nearly empty by big town standards, but on the cool evening of September 2, 1988, there were even fewer people than usual round town. Seventy-five miles away, Stamford's football Bulldogs were losing to Eastland and the town had followed the team. The stage was set for the tragic mystery that would change Stamford forever.

The nightmare was to begin on the lawn of the Clayton's Mill Street home. In the fast falling dusk, Stan Clayton was deep in conversation with his son, Ryan. Courtney was there, in a non-stop state of fidget, as always. She fussed at her father to take her over to the M System market, just around the corner. No doubt, she felt perfectly capable of going to the friendly little neighborhood store, all by herself.

Although it was only a three minute walk, Courtney knew that her careful father would never let her go alone. To quiet her, Stan told her to go wait for her brother at the corner. He would be right along. Little Courtney set off for the market. With all that impatience welled up in her, she wasn't going to be able to wait for anyone. Mr. Clayton would look up, moments later, into the gathering gloom, and she would be gone. He has not seen her since.

Courtney arrived at the market and went to the soda machine. Her neighbors often saw her touring the shelves of the store, a small, familiar figure in the aisles.

By the time she got to the check out counter, it was close to 9. A woman shopper let her go first. Courtney was four cents short at the check out. But the clerk told her she could bring it next time. She was seen leaving the store, and crossing the small parking lot with the drink held carefully in her hand.

A woman motorist was heading for the lot. In the falling light, she caught a disturbing glimpse. She later remembered there was a car standing with the driver's door open. In the front of it stood a man; he seemed to have ducked away to avoid her headlights. A second, shadowy figure stood at the passenger side. The nervous woman thought better of using the parking lot. She eased past to the turn about of a small house. She had some brief business there. When she pulled away moments later, the men in the darkness and their car had gone.

With no sign of Courtney, Stan Clayton sent Ryan to look for his sister. When the boy's search of the aisles proved fruitless, Clayton knew it was time to call the police. They responded immediately.

Even as the distraught parents gave details to the police officer, they hoped against all hope that Courtney would walk in and leave them feeling sheepish; she didn't.

The Stamford police began by combing through the more likely places. They found no more than the Claytons had. Slowly, they began to turn their search to the places where no policeman ever wants to look for a missing child. In a small town like Stamford, it was even more painful.

M System's manager, Jim Dean, was called by the police to open the market. It was thought Courtney might have hidden herself inside. The tension wound tighter. Every dark corner they found empty, their hearts fell a little further.

More help was needed. Police poured in from the surrounding counties. The market became the command center for a rapidly expanding search. Texas Park and Wildlife Rangers arrived. The people arrived in the hundreds to help their popular neighbor find the little girl they all loved.

The police split the town into segments. Then they broke the townspeople up into teams and sent them to search in an every widening arch. Fear had suddenly replaced tranquility in peaceful Stamford. The night sweep would go until 4 in the morning before the people stumbled, but they would be back, early and determined.

The next day was Saturday. The search for Courtney Clayton moved outward. It now focused on the fields, the woods, the lakes and streams. The people of Stamford moved shoulder to shoulder. They scoured the countryside with no results. The Clayton's agony clamped down even harder.

One of the worst things about a child going missing in a small town is the inevitable suspicion. Suddenly, the townspeople couldn't be sure of one another; it hurt.

To enhance the recall of the woman motorist, a hypnotist was brought into the local FBI office. From the woman's subconscious, he now began to draw up details, seen but not remembered. A startling vision, she now remembered, there had been a little girl playing near the ominous car. From the description, it could only be Courtney. The woman also remembered, in greater detail, the features of the man who had not ducked away. A police artist assembled a sketch. The hypnotized woman dimly remembered the little girl putting something on the trunk of a light blue car.

Manager Jim Dean now recalled finding a coke on the trunk of his car the night he was called back to the market. "Kids," he had thought, but had it been Courtney's?

"No," the FBI said. He could not dive from the market without it spilling. An experiment: Dean drove three times with a full cup on the trunk. Not a drop was spilled. Confirmation: The little girl in the parking lot had been Courtney.

Even so, the search for Courtney Clayton was to slowly wind down. It had hit a stone wall. Frustrations grew. Courtney and her brother, Ryan, had worked for many weeks building a house in a tree. In a helpless rage, Ryan smashed the beloved hideaway to bits.

Says Courtney's mother, as she nears tears, "We want to know what happened to Courtney. I mean, it's hard to think she's gone, that she's not here. And I know, if she's alive, somewhere, that somebody could see her. She would stand out; she really would. We'll never give up on her, never until the day we know what happened."

And so goes the story of Courtney Lyn Clayton's disappearance. And truly, the hearts, minds and eyes of every American are needed in the quest to find our missing children.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

I sent the following letter to the Honorable Mayor and City Council of Cisco. It said:

- Zoo (Lake).
- State Fish Hatchery (Lake).
- Skating Facilities (Lake).
- Hollow Concrete Dam.
- Swimming Pool (Lake).
- Lodging facilities (Lake).
- Rides at Lake.
- Miniature Golf.
- Homes on Lake.
- Industry for community.
- Young people having to leave Cisco to make a living.

The above list are assets the community has lost due to the lack of support by whomever. I was raised in Cisco and have watched it go down hill from the early 40's.

The City has allowed people to build dams for tanks all along the watershed. Why?

Also the people of the Community should not want to do this if they have the survival of the City in mind. There have been 2 dams recently built along Highway 6, just past the dam - one just on left past the dam and another on the right about 1/4 mile. It would be interesting to fly over to see how many dams have been built to stop the Watershed water.

If everyone is interested in saving Cisco, we must have water. This is a number one priority. Here are suggestions to help.

- Corps of engineers study.
- Condem dams on watershed. If not all, then at least the most recent, or eliminate any others being built.
- Eliminate the old Bernie Dam. If need another, fill up old swimming pool, stock with trout and other species.
- Develop old dam site for historic reasons. Give tour of old dam.
- Develop the picnic area for summer camp-outs--hook ups, etc.
- Use these facilities to promote tourism. This will bring people back that have quit coming because of no attraction.

With the betterment of Cisco in mine!

Sincerely
Fredrick K. Smith, Jr.
Abilene
P.S. As you know we must have water to survive!

traction.

- Create water district to watch our watershed.
- Get an alternate source of water for consumption.
- When above items done--advertise.

If something isn't done soon the folks that have lake property will leave and you will not have that as base.

My friends, and I have been property owners at the lake and have watched it go down as have other things in the past.

Cisco has more going for it then most communities in the area, but I'm appalled that we haven't taken care of it's assets and developed them so that it will grow. Please start now and work hard to see that these things change.

If I can help in any way I will!

With the betterment of Cisco in mine!

Sincerely
Fredrick K. Smith, Jr.
Abilene
P.S. As you know we must have water to survive!

The Next Best Thing -

...to a clear conscience and a good night's sleep is the feeling of security in owning your own home with a clear title. Peculiar to the real estate field, values are based on land and the improvements thereon, if any. But values on these are based on the title. The title then comes the most important item to be considered when purchase of real property is contemplated. So be careful to buy good title based on an abstract of title or a policy of title insurance.

TMA President Speaks To Eastland Area Physicians On Patient Advocacy

"We are the true advocates of patients when it comes to keeping them healthy," said Dr. Val F. Borum, president of the Texas Medical Association. This and other patient care issues continue to be the focus of Dr. Borum's year as president and will be the subject of his talk Wednesday, April 12, to the Eastland-

Diane Wagley Harris Fund Established At Olney Savings

The Corinth Baptist Church, located between Cisco and Eastland, has started a Fund to help Diane Harris of Cisco and her family.

Diane, a nurse here in Eastland County, has been diagnosed with a Braine Aneurysm. An aneurysm is a thinning in the wall of an artery or vein, this one is around her brain, which could easily rupture. The surgery is very delicate.

Diane does not have insurance and is in the Parkland Hospital, in Dallas, thanks to Doctors and Hospital Administrators from here. Diane's children and husband are having to stay in Dallas, plus travel back and forth as necessary.

This fund is set up at Olney Savings in Cisco, under the "Diane Wagley Harris Fund", and will be used for helping her and her family through this.

She has a son flying in from Colorado, a married daughter that lives here, and a son in high school (Gary Brewer). The surgery will be scheduled as soon as tests are all in.

Any organization or private citizen can contribute by making checks out to "The Diane Wagley Harris Fund", and sending to either P.O. Box 32, Cisco, Texas 76437, or Olney Savings, Cisco, Texas, 76437. If anyone has any questions or wants more information you can call 817-442-4568 or 817-442-2313.

Credit Doctors Bring New Challenge To Credit Industry

A new method of credit fraud is emerging that is easily performed and more sophisticated than that of credit clinics.

For the past several years, "credit doctors" have referred to those who claim they can improve the condition of consumers' credit reports. In these cases, the patients become their own victims when they ask for help. The new credit doctors, however, don't claim they can cure anything; they just give their patients new identities - the identities of people with common names and good credit who don't even know what's happening.

They begin by obtaining identifying information from personnel records, files at security companies, or letters at the post office, for example. They go through trash cans and find bank statements and doctor bills. One man was able to piece together the information he needed with only a business card and a few telephone calls.

The credit doctors take this personal data on consumers and sell it to their patients, who fill out credit applications, establish credit, and start spending. The patients list the victim's current address as the former address on the application, so the victim doesn't receive the bills or statements. The victim often is introduced to the debt by a collection agency or a rejected loan or line of credit.

Credit doctors don't need to do much searching, though if they possess a computer with a modem (telephone) and steal a credit bureau access code. Many just enter the credit bureau data bases illegally using the capabilities of credit granters, including car dealerships and mortgage companies. Once a credit doctor has accessed the data base, he must only scroll the electronic files for names that match those of his clients.

One police estimate said that about 20 percent of the people who've received credit through credit doctors actually try to pay the credit they've received. The Houston Chronicle recently reported a case where a woman named Linda Thompson discovered after her mortgage loan was rejected that a credit doctor had helped another Linda Thompson establish a line of credit for $30,000. Her experience led to the arrest of six credit doctors by a joint effort among the Houston Police Department, the Harris County district attorney's office and the Secret Service. The credit doctors were said to have run up credit totaling $15 million. Five of them face charges of theft. Thirty of their clients also were arrested on similar charges. One of the credit doctors supposedly bought himself 28 cars; another is charged with processing about $900,000 worth of fraudulent home loans through the Veteran's Administration.

Similar cases have cropped up in Chicago and Los Angeles, and articles on the credit doctor scheme have appeared in the New York Times, Newsweek, and Good Housekeeping.

Credit doctors, generally, violate Section 619 of the Fair Credit Reporting Act by obtaining information under false pretenses. This could subject them to one year in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Many are also violating the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act. As technology develops and new methods of credit fraud emerge, the credit industry must implement additional safeguards. Many credit bureaus and credit granters are keeping up. The credit bureaus offer a variety of fraud detection services. Several credit reporting entities want to employ machines that automatically record the telephone number of any person who calls their computer for a credit check. If an inquiry is made from a telephone number not on their list, a warning will appear. The system is similar to that used by emergency 911 phone numbers in many areas. The Federal Communications Commission must approve its use by the private sector.

Some major credit card issuers screen data on credit applications for inconsistencies, similar information, and excessive amounts of credit being sought under one name or address. Visa and Mastercard are working together on a computerized clearinghouse in Chicago that is expected to reduce the companies' annual fraud and personal bankruptcy losses.

Take Action To Save Agriculture

Texas Farm Bureau has adopted a resolution that establishes as a top legislative goal of this legislature the establishment of an Agricultural Commission.

The Texas Department of Agriculture comes under Texas "Sunset" review this session, meaning that in the next 60 days we must persuade the Texas Legislature to abolish the present system.

Accomplishing this goal will require your taking an active part in contacting your personal State Legislators and the Governor. I cannot over-emphasize the importance of this task. Texas Agriculture is counting on your help.

Unless you are willing to help persuade your State Legislators and the Governor to change the system, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower and the present system will likely continue.

The only qualification for participating is that you are a

Homemaking Hints

From Janet Thomas, County Agent

In recognition of April 2-8, as the "Week of the Young Child," I am devoting my column to parenting.

Becoming a parent is one of the most natural things in the world, being an effective parent is quite another story. Raising children to be happy, productive people is not a skill we are born with.

In addition to lots and lots of love, what kids need most are limits and guidance. When you set limits for behavior, you let your kids know what they can and cannot do, and what the consequences are. Your guidance helps them live within those limits. Instead of equating discipline with punishment, think of discipline as the way you teach your child to function in society.

There are more pleasant and effective ways of enforcing your standards than to spank and yell.

Here are some guidelines:

- ✓ Be a good example
- ✓ Work out parenting issues with your spouse before they come up with your kids
- ✓ Be consistent when enforcing limits
- ✓ Make consequences of misbehaving - if your daughter uses her scissors on one of her good books, she can buy a new book with her allowance
- ✓ Allow your child to make some choices
- ✓ Show kids that you trust them; show them they can trust you
- ✓ Let kids help set family rules
- ✓ Deal with problems before they become crises
- ✓ Remember that it's normal to get angry with you kids. Let them know you're angry with their actions
- ✓ Remember that physical punishment teaches a child that hitting is okay, which is not desirable
- ✓ Do not use verbal abuse
- ✓ Always respond to good behavior with praise and affection

Effective punishment for younger children is "time out." Let them know the family when they are ready to calm down and act appropriately.

For older children and teen-

Homemaking Hints

From Janet Thomas, County Agent

In recognition of April 2-8, as the "Week of the Young Child," I am devoting my column to parenting.

Becoming a parent is one of the most natural things in the world, being an effective parent is quite another story. Raising children to be happy, productive people is not a skill we are born with.

In addition to lots and lots of love, what kids need most are limits and guidance. When you set limits for behavior, you let your kids know what they can and cannot do, and what the consequences are. Your guidance helps them live within those limits. Instead of equating discipline with punishment, think of discipline as the way you teach your child to function in society.

There are more pleasant and effective ways of enforcing your standards than to spank and yell.

Here are some guidelines:

- ✓ Be a good example
- ✓ Work out parenting issues with your spouse before they come up with your kids
- ✓ Be consistent when enforcing limits
- ✓ Make consequences of misbehaving - if your daughter uses her scissors on one of her good books, she can buy a new book with her allowance
- ✓ Allow your child to make some choices
- ✓ Show kids that you trust them; show them they can trust you
- ✓ Let kids help set family rules
- ✓ Deal with problems before they become crises
- ✓ Remember that it's normal to get angry with you kids. Let them know you're angry with their actions
- ✓ Remember that physical punishment teaches a child that hitting is okay, which is not desirable
- ✓ Do not use verbal abuse
- ✓ Always respond to good behavior with praise and affection

Effective punishment for younger children is "time out." Let them rejoin the family when they are ready to calm down and act appropriately.

For older children and teen-

Bass require 8 pounds of forage (Bluegill) to put on one pound of gain.

Aquatic vegetation can reduce the value and use of Farm Ponds and may require identification and control.

Cisco Elementary School Update

Congratulations to all the UIL representatives from our school. They made a fine showing in Hamilton last week. The names and results have already been printed on the front page of a previous paper, but I just wanted to say again how proud I am of our students and teachers who participated.

April 10 is a weather make-up day and we WILL have school. Remember all that ice and cold temperatures in February and early March!

April 10-14 is achievement test week for all in grades 1-6. Please have your child present on time and well-rested.

Saturday, April 15, is a WORK DAY on the playground at school. Parents, please plan to help us get our playground finished. There will be two work days. We are asking parents of children in grades K-3 to come on Saturday, April 15, to lay poles as a border around existing equipment and rake rocks off the playground. Bring shovels, rakes, hoes, and gloves at 8 a.m. and we'll quit by noon. Water will be provided. We'll ask the parents of the 4-6th graders to come at another time to spread sand and pea gravel around the equipment. Anyone with carpentry skills would be welcome. Please come.

The weekend of April 22-23 is the Annual Folklife Festival in Cisco. To get our school children in the spirit and to make them aware of what the Folklife Festival is all about, we have declared the week of April 17-21 Frontier Week at the Elementary School. We will have a dress-up day on Friday, April 21. We will have judges that come around to every grade to choose the boy, girl and teacher that is most authentically dressed like a pioneer. As a reward, the winners will get to ride the PTO float that will be a representation of the Frontier days school room. Each room mother is asked to work closely with her teacher in helping for that week of needed. If any parents or anyone wants to share something of interest with the children, get in touch with your child's teacher or call the school office, 442-1219.

Our Cisco business people are so generous! Many thanks to Austin's Furniture for donating carpet squares to the 2nd grade classes.

As a reminder, PTO is still collecting Campbell's soup labels. Send them to school; there is a box outside the office.

If anyone failed to register a child for kindergarten, please call the school office.

442-1219, to set up a time to register the child. Immunization records and a birth certificate are needed. This should be taken care of in April. Spread the word if you know of a school age child that may need to be registered. Thank you.

Attention Class Of 1959

The graduating class of Cisco High School 1959 will be having their 30th class reunion on Saturday, April 22, 1989.

Anyone who wants to be in the Folklife Festival parade will need to come to the Conrad Hilton and find our trailer.

Registration will be immediately after the parade at the White Elephant in the meeting room. We will visit and get ready for lunch, which will be served at 2 p.m. Oscar's Bar-B-Q will be serving the meal. If you plan

Cisco Lions Club Officers Nominated For Year

Members of the Cisco Lions Club approved a motion for the names of the 1989/90 Officers at their regular meeting held last Wednesday at Tradition's Restaurant.

The officers will be as follows: president, Ronnie Ledbetter; 1st vice president, Willard Johnson; 2nd vice president, J.V. Heysler; 3rd vice president, John Dyer; secretary/treasurer, Jerry McBeth; assistant secretary/treasurer, Orville "Robbie" Robinson; Lion tamer, C.B. "Runt" Dill; tail twister, Brad Kimbrough; assistant tail twister, Ivan Webb; song leader, Wylie Peebles; and assistant song leader, Jim Manning.

New 1989-90 board of directors will be Bob Conner, John Adling, and Orville "Robbie" Robinson, for a one year term; and Phillip Cockerell, Eddie McMillan and immediate past president John McGuire for a two year term.

Mel Serratt, became a new Lions Club member Wednesday. He moved to Cisco, in December. His wife, Carol, is the head of the math department at Hico High School.

E.L. Jackson, inducted Mr. Serratt in and told him about the Lions Club. Mr. Jackson said it is the obligation of club members to contact new citizens in Cisco and explain what the Lions Club is about.

He said when a club works hard for the community and then the community will support the club. Jackson said the Lions Club can touch the lives of so many people through their works. He said the club members work hard to make money to give to people who need it, such as the Lions Club Cripple Children's Camp in Kerrville, and the eye glass bank, who help area children buy eye glasses when needed.

He said the Cisco Club has been here since 1922 and has a record of long service. Two such projects that the Cisco Lions Club took over was to build a baseball field and get the lights for the football field. At that time Lions Club members donated $25.00 each and donated several hours of work to get it done. And there will be several more projects in the future.

Norman Whitfield gave the Lions roar, Wylie Peebles led the singing and the Pledge of Allegiance, and Jim Manning gave the invocation.

Howl Echoes

Busy is a good descriptor of the students at CHS for the past two weeks.

The Student Council election for the 1989-90 officers and representatives were held Friday, April 7. The results of the election will be reported in the Lobo Howl next week. Students running for the respective offices were required to place application, secure signatures from peers and faculty, and give a campaign speech before the student body. The student council officers are president, vice-president, treasurer, secretary, parliamentarian and reporter. In addition to these officers, each class elects two representatives - a girl and boy.

The CHS Concert Band participated in the CJC Band contest on Saturday, April 1. The CHS Band performed at 8:15 a.m. The band received a rating of I in concert and a rating of II in sightreading. The judges enjoyed the performance and gave the band tips on improving and polishing their performance for UIL. The UIL contest will be Tuesday, April 18, at Cooper High School.

All students at CHS will be taking the MAT Test (achievement test) on April 11-12. The test will begin each morning at the beginning of second period and last through the fourth period. These tests are very comprehensive and cover all skill areas.

ONE ACT PLAY DIRECTOR Mary McGrew is pictured with the plaque won by the cast at the UIL District Meet in Eastland.

The FFA Judging Teams at CHS competed at Anson and at Tarleton State University. There are seven teams: Dairy Products, Dairy, Livestock, Range and Pasture, Land, Meats, Poultry, and Ag. Mechanics. Several Ag. students are involved in these judging teams. The results of this competition will be reported at a later date.

The Lobo Relays were held at the CHS track on Saturday, April 1, 1989. Students from Bangs, Breckenridge, Coleman, Goldthwaite, Baird and Cisco competed in the track and field events. In the girls' events, Breckenridge won first place with a total of 196 points. Coleman took second place with a total of 131 points, and Cisco placed third with 120 points. In the boys' events, Bangs placed first with 184 points, Goldthwaite placed second with 166 points, and Cisco placed third with a total of 105 points.

Texas Circuit Literary Festival To Be Held Here

Cisco will be the scene of a Texas Circuit Literary Festival at the Hilton Community Center on May 5-6. Cisco Junior College and the Cisco Writer's Club are sponsoring the event, with Drs. Monte Lewis, Ken Hammes and Cleatus Rattan as hosts.

Dr. Lewis, history professor, Dr. Ken Hammes, Head of the English Department, and Dr. Rattan, English Professor, are resident staff Editors of "The Cross Timbers Review," a CJC Literary publication.

The purpose of the Festival is to bring together publishers, authors and those interested in writing to exchange information, study material, and learn of needs in various publishing fields.

Members of the Texas Circuit group held another meeting in Cisco in March, 1988, and found a lot of interest. This 1989 Festival is expected to draw another large crowd to the Hilton Center.

The meetings will begin at 1:30 p.m. on Friday, May 5. Editors from around the southwest will open the discussion by telling what kind of material they currently want. Books and other material will be on display. Dr. Terence Dalrymple of Angelo State University, Editor of the Concho River Review, will be one of the featured speakers.

At 6 p.m. a dinner will be catered at the Hilton by Oscar's Barbecue. A dessert will be furnished by the College cafeteria.

At 7 p.m. H.V. O'Brien of the Eastland County Newspapers will speak, presenting a book he and his wife Gaynell O'Brien have written. It is a southwestern historical book titled "Painting For Freedom."

Another Friday evening speaker will be Dr. Jim Linebarger, University of North Texas, who will discuss poetry.

On Saturday, May 6, the Festival will begin at 8:30 a.m., and last through most of the day. Speakers from the Texas Circuit will be Philip Stevens, who publishes books at his award-winning Backyard Press in Austin, and Akwari Evans, Austin poet.

A noon meal will be catered from the College, and there will be Open Readings all during the afternoon.

The public is invited to the Literary Festival programs and also encouraged to attend the Meals. Oscar's Barbecue and the noon lunch on Saturday will each be $7.50.

Attendance at the Festival (with no meals) is free to students and writer's club members - there will be a $1 charge daily for others. Reservations need to be made for the meals, and may be obtained by calling Cisco Junior College at 442-2567 and leaving your name. Refreshments of doughnuts, coffee and tea will be available for those attending, courtesy of the College and Writer's Club.

WHO CAN HELP ME PLAN MY FUNERAL?

"I am alone. No family members live near me and I'd like to talk to someone about making plans for my funeral."

There is help available to you! Our city is fortunate in having fine, thoughtful funeral directors who are prepared to consult with you about planning a funeral in advance.

This service is called "pre-planning a funeral." Here at our funeral home, we can serve as your personal consultant and will inform you completely about all the services and costs. After you set your own price range, we will discuss music, clergyman, and scripture readings, things which are most meaningful to you.

Because of our highly mobile society today, pre-planning of funerals is a request we hear more and more often. Feel free to contact us about this very personal service at no charge to you and without obligation.
