TO CURB CRIME

Grand Jury Asks Coordinated Effort

The 91st District Court Grand Jury which recessed this week issued a statement requesting a county task force to help combat crime and asked to be held over for an extended period for further service.

The document, read in open court, was signed by all grand jurors except one man, who was absent the day the report was made.

The statment is addressed to 91st District Judge Jim Wright, County Judge Scott Bailey, the Commissioner's Court and the citizens of Eastland County.

The statement said in

"This Grand Jury is unsatisfied with the overall progress of the prosecution of criminal cases...It is our opinion that the Criminal

District Attorney should aggressively pursue all cases to see that justice is obtained for all the citizens of this

"We believe that the recent number of arson cases, drug cases, burglaries and other criminal activity dictate that a new and innovative approach be made to reduce the criminal element in Eastland County.

"It is apparant to us that many of those involved are arrested and indicted time after time but are free to carry on their criminal activity because of a lack of diligent prosecution.

"Therefore, as a possible solution, we suggest that a task force be organized by the Sheriff, Assistant Criminal District Attorney and the Department of Public Safety, with the help of the various other law enforcement agencies in Eastland County, to actively identify, apprehend and prosecute those persons of being actively engaged in criminal activity in our county...Additionally, we request that the county commissioners appropriate suffi-cient funds to make the task force successful." Criminal District Attorney Emory Walton said that he appreciates the interest expressed in drug cases and the drug problems of the county.

He noted that his office had filed 383 criminal cases so far this year and had disposed of 447 criminal cases which is in addition to the other responsibilites of

Also, he said that the law does not provide for any priority of drug cases over cases involving home burglaries, sexual assault of children or others.

He stated that he appreciated the endorsement of the idea for the task force concerning drug related matters which is what he had previously submitted to the various law enforcement agencies and the commissioners court.

Also, he stated that he is considering requesting the commissioners court to authorize the appointment of an investigator to coordinate the criminal investigation of the various law enforcement agencies in the county.

Around Town

By Duke Dixon-

After a weeks vacation, it's good to get back into the groove. We didn't go anywhere or do anything special, just had a good rest. A vacation is for relaxing and enjoying one's self, and that's just what we did.

We here at The Press office have some pictures that were drawn by children from Cisco that were displayed during the Discovery-Fest celebration in Eastland in June. These pictures are the property of the young artists who drew them. So, if these young people would like to have their pcitures back, come by the office to pick yours up.

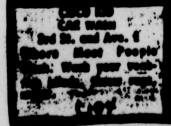

A drive-in Band Camp is on tap at CJC, slated to begin Aug. 4. This is a good oppor-tunity for our area young people to get to know one another, and also get back into the swing of another school year, lurking around the corner.

History At Folklife Festival

Local Talent Shares Texas

Make plans now to attend a special four-day summer session specializing in crafts, dances, music and food of Texas. Nearly 6,000 participants help more than 100,000 visitors learn about the fascinating pioneer heritage and ethnic diversity of the state during the 15th Annual Texas Folklife Festival, July 31 to Aug. 3, sponsored by The University Cultures at San Antonio. Helping visitors learn more about the contributions of many Texas ethnic groups to the growth and development of the state are members of the Cisco Civic League.

of Texas Institute of Texan

Working under the direction of Jo Ann Cermin, members of the Cisco Civic League demonstrate how early Texas residents made bread without ovens and fashioned candles without wicks.

Civic league members make "hoe cakes" from cornbread dough cooked on the blade of a hoe. Festival visitors, curious to know why those folks from Cisco stand around with their hoes in a hot fire, learn that the American Indians probably originated the technique by cooking their corn cakes, called appones, in hot ashes or on hot stones. Members demonstrate how pioneers coated cattails with several layers of tallow to make candles. If it's back to school to study frontier life, what better place to start than the Festival's one-room schoolhouse? The clang of the bell summons children of all ages to class, where the schoolmaster teaches the three R's as students copy their lessons on slate boards.

Step out of the schoolhouse and into the "Back 40" area of the Festival where participants provide impromptu lessons in a variety of pioneer skills. They demonstrate how to make boots and saddles, quilts and rugs, clay pots and cedar bark baskets, horsehair rugs and rawhide whips to bring Texas history vividly back to Offering live instruction in folk music and dance are hundreds of participants featuring the rhythms and movements of many cultures through continuous performances on the Festival's 11 stages.

Serving a wide array of ethnic food are Festival chefs preparing courses of Korean bul-go-gi (grilled beef), Cajun shrimp jumbo, Greek souvlaki (shish kebab), an assortment of desserts including Jewish honey cake and Polish jablka w ciescie (apple fritters) and much more.

Festival visitors don't earn a special diploma, but they do graduate with a greater understanding of Texas history.

The Festival, an extension of the Institute's role as a statewide learning and communications center concerned with the history and culture of the state, is held on the Institute's grounds on HemisFair Plaza at Durango Boulevard and Bowie Street in downtown San Antonio. Tuition for this hands-on course in Texas, history is $5 admission for adults, $1 for children 6-12 and free for children under 6. Festival hours are 5 to 11 p.m. Thursday, July 31; noon to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Aug. 1-2; and noon to 10 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 3. In honor of the Festival's 15th anniversary no gate admission will be charged from noon to 1 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 1. For more information write the Texas Folklife Festival, Institute of Texan Cultures, P.O. Box 1226, San Antonio, Texas 78294, or call (512) 226-7651.

Local Fireman Attends Training School

Rex Fields, volunteer-fireman of the Cisco Volunteer Fire Department, attended the 57th Annual Texas Firemen's Training School July 20-25 at College Station. The school, attended by nearly 2,000 students representing about 750 cities from more than 25 states, was held on the Texas A&M University campus. Firemen can choose their course at the school from a list including Fire Fighting, Fire Prevention, Fire Department Officer Training, Fire Department Pump Maintenance, Specialized Fire Protection, and Disaster Rescue Training.

Fireman Fields was spon-sored by Eastland County Farm Bureau and Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies by contributing toward the cost of the school. since volunteer firemen are interested in attending this school to help do a better job of fire fighting and fire prevention, 100 County Farm Bureaus and the Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies in the statewide program have sponsored 100 firemen at the school.

"The Farm Bureau Insurance Companies believe Volunteer Fire Departments have been very effective in reducing the amount of loss involved by fire in rural areas," said President S.M. True, Jr. of Plainview. "It is our hope in sponsoring this program that the fireman will help the Claco Volunteer Department to better serve the residents of Eastland

Why Ulcers Bite In The Night

If you wake up in the middle of the night with a sharp pain in your gut, chances are you may have a duodenal ulcer. Nighttime pain is a hallmark of ulcer disease, but nobody knows exactly why ulcers bite in the night.

In recent years, special sleep laboratories have been established all around the country where medical researchers are spending a lot of time and effort to find out how the body functions during sleep, in sickness and in health. Sleep-related symptoms can be very helpful in leading to a correct diagnosis. Heart disease, diabetes, breathing disorders, and ulcer disease all send out special signals during the night.

There are five distinct stages of sleep, each with its unique pattern of brain wave activity. These stages basically alternate every 90 minutes between periods of light sleep, marked by rapid eye movements and therefore called REM, and the tranquil state known as Non-REM sleep, when heart and breathing rates are slow and regular. REM periods are of special interest to medical researchers because this kind of sleep is marked by dreaming and by increased blood pressure, heart rate, respiratory rate, and altered brain

Gastroenterologists, the medical specialists concerned with digestive diseases, have a special interest in the sleeping gut. They found that the digestive tract continues its "housekeeping functions" while we are asleep, secreting digestive juices and moving food through the stomach and small intestines. Some studies have shown that ulcer patients produce more acid during REM sleep, perhaps accounting for nighttime ulcer pain. But other findings indicate that ulcers bite even when acid levels are normal, because the stomach has been emptied and there is no food to take up the acid.

Doctors use their knowledge of the sleeping gut to protect ulcer patients from unnecessary pain. For instance, when Carafate (sucralfate) is prescribed for duodenal ulcer patients, one tablet is taken at night. The drug goes directly to the ulcer site, where it forms a protective barrier against acid that accumulates in the empty stomach. This allows the healing process to continue and keeps the patient comfortable.

As one physician observed, "A sleeping patient is still a patient." Therefore, it is important for anyone being treated for any kind of illness to follow medication schedules very carefully so that the medicine can work during sleep as well as during the waking hours.

Some stains are more seasonal than others. Prompt attention to stains helps insure easier removal. Once set, some may be impossible to remove. Knowing the stain and fiber content of the fabric also aids treatment. If you are not sure, test the stain remover first on an inconspicuous part of the garment. Here are some methods for removing some common summer stains.

GREASY STAINS-Bicycle and car grease, Butter, Cooking Oils, Mayonnaise Pretreat with a heavy-duty liquid laundry detergent or a prewash soil and stain remover. For heavy stains, place stain face down on paper towls. Apply dry cleaning solvent to back side of stain, replacing towels frequently. Let dry. Then rub in liquid detergent or dampen area with water, rub with bar soap, liquid detergent or detergent paste, made with granules and water. Rinse and launder.

MUSTARD--Apply a prewash soil and stain remover. Or. dampen stain with water and rub with bar soap. Rinse and launder using chlorine bleach, if safe for fabric. If not, soak in an enzyme pre-soak product or an oxygen bleach using hottest water safe for fabric, then launder. Several treatments may be needed to remove the stain.

Wagon Train Brings A Bit Of History

The Lone Star Wagon Train arrived in Cisco at noon Wednesday and was escorted through town on Eighth Street by an enthusiastic group of Ciscoans. They escorted the train all the way to the campsite on Interstate 20 access road. During the evening there was an old time gospel singing, led by James Crosswaite, minister of music at the First Baptist Church. The message, entitled "Frontier Spirit," was brought by Rev. Harry Garvin, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

There were booths where one could purchase momentoes of the Wagon Train. These items are keepsakes. and in the future could become valuable as historic items from the wagon train that came through Cisco.

Winner of the bicycle given by Western Auto was Jenny Townson of Cross Plains. Winner of the Tony Lama boots was Kael Bostick of Cisco. Western Auto also gave away two cases of six pack cool can holders, one to each family in attendance.

Don Shepard, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said, "We at the chamber are real pleased with the turn out for this special occasion, and we appreciate all those who participated." He also expressed appreciation to those who met the tain and escorted it to the camp site. These included Mayor and Mrs. Joe Wheatley, The Cisco Riding Club, AARP, Boy Scout Troop 101, Little Miss Cisco representatives, the Cisco Chamber Red Coats, and Neal Moore.

Re-evaluation notices from the County Appraisal District generally reflect increases in valuation, according to reports from throughout the county. A number of cases are being discussed between the property owners and appraisers, with those who are not satisifed with their arrangements scheduled to appear before the county board. The Chief Appraiser points out that the Appraisal office has nothing to do with the tax rate from the various entities, so the estimated tax cost shown on the notices are just an estimate. Several years ago the state enacted legislation which stated tax equalization as a goal - it was called a "Tax Relief" Amendment, in fact. In mandated tax reappraisals at regular intervals.

Two men, Ray Alderton and Thomas Wayne Markham, have been charged with the June 10 Cisco Lumber and Supply Company fire. Both men lived in Cisco at the time of the fires. A tip alleging Alderton's involvement in the fire led to his arrest, accoring to Cisco Police Detective Risa Livingston. Sheriff Don Underwood said the fires might have been set as a diversion to burglaries. On the night of the Cisco Lumber Fire, Dean Rexall Drug Store was broken into.

Against Top Bodybuilders Production "Annie"

Darryn Willoughby recently placed third in the heavyweight division of the West Texas Bodybuilding Championships held July 12 in Odessa.

He competed against some of the top bodybuilders in West Texas, as well as the rest of the state, in this Level II National Physique Committee sanctioned contest. These contests consist of a preliminary, or pre-judging, round held in the morning. It involves three different rounds which include a symmetry--proportion round, a muscularity round and a presentation, or posing round.

Finals, or the "Night Show", are held in the evening. The top five competitors from each weight class return for the night show, when a fourth and final muscularity round is held. From these five, only the top three are awarded trophies.

Darryn's win in Odessa qualified him for state level competition, which is one step away from national competition -- "Mr. Universe" and "Mr. America"

He has recently moved to Lubbock where he is training for the Texas Bodybuilding Championships, more commonly called the "Mr. Texas" contest. This is the largest most renowned and prestigious contest in the state and will be held August 23 in Austin.

A "Texas Size" Title Dispute Shows

The Value Of A Clear Title

FOREWORD:

Recently the Telegram published a story about an Eastland woman's difficulty in recovering oil royalty on land claimed by the state. There are probably similar experiences in other parts of Texas, for all title difficulties were not solved by the Constitutional Amendment of 1981.

One very strange true story is of the title on the land where the State Capitol stands. This account comes from a recent news release by the Texas Land Title Association

TEXAS-SIZED TITLE DISPUTE SHOWS VALUE OF CLEAR TITLE

There's a piece of land in downtown Austin that one owner - or, to be more accurate, one claimant - has occupied for the past 147 years. During that time, this occupant has paid for the property on three separate occasions, buying it from different "owners" each time. Today, the occupant's only real claim to the land is a deed, dated 1925, that was written to end a nearly century-long dispute over the property. But even with that deed, the title to the land and the red granite building on it is far from clear.

The disputed property in downtown Austin is the land on which the Capitol stands. The building is the Capitol of Texas. The owner with such an uncertain hold is the State of Texas. According to the Texas Land Title Association, this is one sesquicentennial story with a lesson for anyone owning or intending to buy property.

The story of the disputed title to the Capitol building and grounds begins with Jefferson Thomas Chambers, a Superior Judge of Texas while it was still under Mexican rule and later a general in the revolution against Mexico and a four-time gubernatorial candate. Other participants in the story include Chambers two daughters, Stella and Kate: Texas Governor James Steven Hogg; and three children of a Samuel Goucher, who were kidnapped by Indians and whose descendants may yet have a better claim to the Capitol of Texas than the State itself does. As is so often true in cases of unclear titles, none of the confusion would have occured if the paperwork had been filed properly in the first place.

When Thomas Jefferson Chambers was appointed Superior Judge of Texas in 1934, he chose to draw his salary in undeveloped land rather than in cash. Chambers' tract of land began on the northern bank of the Colorado River, in the western outskirts of today's Austin. It ran 13 miles northeast to just south of Round Rock. Its western boundary extended south, back to the Colorado and ran through the eastern edge of the present city of Austin. The State Capitol and Capitol grounds are located within this

Chambers neglected to file his claim to this land at the land office. He had recorded his land grant promptly, Chambers never would have lost control of the land and the State of Texas would have gotten clear title when it later purchased the pro-Country Villa Apartments perty. But with revolution brewing, perhaps Chambers had more pressing concerns than paperwork on his mind. General Chambers served with distinction in the 1836 revolution against Mexico and settled afterwards on some property he owned in Liberty County. Meanwhile, settlers began pouring into the new Republic of Texas. Since General Chambers had not filed a claim to his property in the Austin area, the land office began granting tracts of Chambers' land to the newcomers.

Settlers weren't the only land-seekers who found General Chambers' land attractive. The Republic of Texas was anxious to build a permanent home in the form of a new capitol. A congressional commission was charged to locate an appropriate site and obtain the land through purchase or condemnation. In 1839, this commission chose the site where the Capitol now stands.

This tract of land had been granted to a Samuel Goucher more than a year earlier. However, shortly after receiving the patent on the land, the Gouchers were attacked by Indians and all members of the family were presumed dead. The land was granted again, this time to two real estate developers who, in turn, sold it to the Republic of Texas.

Unknown to the Republic, three of the Groucher children had been taken captive by the Indians and were later ransomed. While these children and their heirs had a legitimate claim to the land, General Chambers also had a claim to that particular piece of property which pre-dated any other claim. In 1840 General Chambers got around to filing his original claims. In so doing, he discovered that 150 patents had already been granted on his property and now held by the Republic itself. The General turned to the courts to regain his land from the settlers, but he and his heirs were never permitted to sue the Republic or the State of Texas for the portion of his land it held. In 1858, however, the Texas Supreme Court ruled that Chambers' title to his land was as perfect a title as the law could bestow.

Before Chambers could benefit from this favorable ruling, the Civil War broke out. In 1865, the General was killed by an assassin, leaving two young daughters as heirs. In time the daughters would press their claim to the Capitol grounds. But before that would happen, the old Goucher claim reappeared.

As heirs of Samuel Goucher, the three Goucher children who had been kidnapped by Indians had a legitimate claim to the Capitol lands. James Goucher died a bachelor in 1849. Jane Goucher married and had several children before her death in 1850. In 1853, E.M. Smith offered $500 to the surviving child. William, if he would sign a Quit Claim Deed to the 'Government Tract' Goucher signed the deed and took the money. By 1874, Smith successfully pressed the Goucher claim - which Once the Chambers sisters were grown, they pursued their own claim to the Capitol. Although they won supporters as influential as Governor James Steven Hogg, it was 1925 before the legislature recognized their claim as legitimate. The sisters then agreed to deed the Capitol and its grounds to the State for $20,000, marking the third time the State "bought" the property.

he now owned - and had been paid by the State for the

But how clear is the State's title today? The Chambers' claim has been settled, and so has William Goucher's claim. But William inherited only a third of the Goucher lands. The two-thirds inherited by his brother and sister might still belong to their descendants. Someday from somewhere, an heir of Jane or James Goucher might vet come forward and reopen the title dispute over the Texas State Capitol and its grounds.

So let that be a lesson to all of us, say members of the Texas Land Title Association. Proper research and documentation can establish whether clear title exists to a State Comptroller Bob Bullock Monday said out-ofstate companies operating in Texas may end up paying more than half of the taxes collected in the near future.

Firms May Pay

Out of the top 2,000 taxpayers in 1985, firms headquartered outside Texas paid 47.8 percent of the dollars collected and this was up 1.2 percent from the 1984 payments," Bullock

Bullock said the tax payments were another indicator that the Texas economy is becoming more directly related to the national economy and nationwide business operations.

He said a survey of the state's 2,000 top taxpayers revealed that while there are fewer out-of-state firms on that list, these companies are paying almost as much in total dollars as Texas businesses

Texas firms surveyed paid the state $975.8 million in taxes in 1985 and out-of-state firms paid $894.8 million.

There were 1,282 Texas firms included in the survey and 718 non-Texas companies.

The figures were drawn from information in audit reports conducted by the Comptroller's office.

AUSTIN, Tex .-- State Comptroller Bob Bulock Monday sent checks totaling $12.1 million to the 220 counties and 426 cities as their share of the state's 12 percent mixed drink tax collectd during the second quarter of 1986.

The Texas Legislature raised the tax from 10 percent to 12 percent in 1984.

Bullock said the state collected $50.7 million in mixed drink taxes for the second quarter, compared to $51.3 million collected during the same period in 1985.

Texas cities and counties now each receive a 12.5 percent share of the tax collected on mixed drinks in the state. Cities and counties received 15 percent rebates until the rate was changed in

Of the total $50.7 million in state collections, counties received $6.3 million, down from the $6.4 million received during the second quarter in 1985. Cities received $5.8 million, down from the $5.9 million rebated to cities last year during the second quarter. The state's general revenue fund received the balance.

20-Year Success Story Launches THE HAPPY TIMES

Third Decade With Expansion

Twenty years ago, when Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Pulido opened their original restaurant in Fort Worth, they never dreamed it would blossom into a thriving 13-restaurant chain with more than 300 employees. Eastland's Restaurant, located at I-20 and FM570, will celebrate its second anniversary in November.

Jose Gomez is manager and there are about 25 employees.

The multi-million dollar family-owned company, now managed by two of the Pulido's sons and other family members, recently built a tortilla factory and will introduce two new restaurants by Christmas.

The tortilla factory, located in Southwest Fort Worth, is a perfect example of the Pulido family's commitment to expansion during this special anniversary year. Valued at $1,000,000, the newly constructed 10,000 square-foot factory supplies fresh corn tortillas and tortilla chips to all 13 of the Pulido's restaurants, as well as to many other restaurants across the country. The factory employs 16 people.

We are also preparing to introduce our tortillas and chips to area grocery stores during the next several months," said company president Robert Pulido.

All of the tortilla chips are fried in 100 percent pure coconut oil, "more expensive to make, but better quality and lighter, fresher taste," Pulido said.

When the Pulidos opened the factory in May the main objective was to supply their own restaurants.

'Outside customers have come to us requesting our products," Pulido said. "The tortilla factory has turned into a great opportunity for Pulido Associates, Inc. We're just in our third month at the factory and we are already using more than 10,000 pounds of raw corn a day."

The corn is purchased in San Antonio. Once it arrives at the factory it is cooked, washed and ground on site. Then tortilla dough is made, the dough is rolled, cut and placed on conveyor belts that pass through the ovens. The tortillas are than packaged while the chips move on to the fryers. An average day yields 6000 pounds of tortilla chips and 4200 dozen tortillas. "It is a very efficient process," Pulido said. Another area of the business that has done especially well this year is the Pulido's catering division. Catering sales have increased 30 percent over the last year, Pulido said, and the most popular catered dinners are for the Pulido's award-winning fajitas. Pulido's catering can accomodate groups up to 2500.

Pulido says he is excited about the growth and progress of the family business. "Our sales have more than doubled in just the last four years," he said. "It's great because we've all worked so hard for so long, it's gratifying to see such results."

When I was growing up Mama sold her cooking to friends, neighbors, and Papa's co-workers. Her cooking, especially the tamales, was so popular that they encouraged her to open a restaurant," he said.

So twenty years ago we took the plunge and built the first restaurant ourselves. Papa and my brothers and I all had other jobs and we would meet right after work at 5 o'clock to build the place from scratch," he said. "The street name over there was recently changed to Pulido Street in honor of the original restaurant."

'Mama and Papa say that they retired seven years ago, but they still show up and work everyday because they want to. They really love the

SWIMMING IN THE TANK by Lillian Cogburn Price

Early in the spring when days were warm and sunshinny, we were so happy to shed our long union suits and go barefooted. But the best thing to do to keep cool was take a swim in the tank in the pasture, where trees were big and flat shodows lay in dark, lacy patches along the water's edge.

We had lots of fun ducking and "baptizing" each other. My brother Thurman delighted in swimming underwater and sneaking up to surprise us by pulling our legs out from under us. I guess brothers are all pretty much alike.

We couldn't really swim but we could float enough to feel safe in shallow water business and are proud of what they started.'

Pulido's restaurants are located in Fort Worth, Arlington, Benbrook, Brownwood, Cleburne, Eastland, North Richland Hills, Irving, Mineral Wells, Stephenville and Weather-was a little deeper, if we dared. Anyway, we never had an accident and we surely had lots of fun!

By Lillian Cogburn Price

When the sun was low and the shadows were long out of the water, grabbed our clothes from the bushes where they hung like little tents, and away we went. Good-bye until next time. Oh, what fun!
