

Gasohol's Boosters Air Pleas

By DEBBI STALTER

Several hundred area farmers and ranchers here today for a special Senate committee hearing on gasohol production were urged by one state official to increase output of the alcohol-gasoline fuel to help ease the energy shortage.

The session at the Koko Palace was the third in a series of Senate hearings scheduled to provide potential gasohol producers necessary information on setting up their own plants and to allow testimony to be relayed to the Legislature to prompt facilitation of gasohol production.

Serving on the Senate committee are Sens. E.L. Short of Tahoka, Lynn Kothmann of San Antonio, Bob Price of Pampa, John Traeger of Seguin and Raul Longoria of McAllen. Longoria, who is serving as chairman, was not present at today's hearing.

A bill passed during the last legislative session allows the production of gasohol, which is usually a mixture of 90 percent unleaded gasoline and 10 percent distilled alcohol.

First testimony this morning came from Texas Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent, who displayed charts showing the decline in production of Texas oil and natural gas over the past several years.

Nugent made a plea for increased gasohol production and use, saying that if Texans continue to use the state's natural gas at the current rate, the supply will be exhausted in 7½ years.

Nugent again criticized the federal government and what he calls a north-eastern power bloc for choosing to "rig the game" to get Texas natural gas for less than fair market value. This claim has been a major point in Nugent's recent campaign to win re-election to his position on the Railroad Commission.

Nugent urged Texans, especially farmers, to seize the opportunity to help themselves by finding a feasible fuel source through gasohol, noting that the national energy policy is not designed to benefit either Texans or farmers.

Area residents learned at the hearing that efforts are being made to cut red tape in applying for the necessary Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission permit to produce gasohol.

Commission executive director Sherman McBeath said the state application is one of the simplest TABC forms to fill out.

Fires Slow Search For Riot Victims

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Fires still burning in the prison gymnasium today blocked searchers hunting for more bodies in the ravaged New Mexico State Penitentiary where at least 35 inmates died, many the victims of inhuman atrocities.

Prosecutors, in the meantime, said they will seek the stiffest possible penalties for up to 100 inmates believed responsible for the weekend riot, the most savage in modern history in this country.

State Police Maj. Charlie Anaya said portions of the roof collapsed in the still-burning gym and added "it's doubtful" authorities would be able to get inside today. Officials expect to find at least three more bodies in the gym, which reportedly was used as a torture chamber during the 36 hours of carnage Saturday and Sunday.

Meanwhile, other states and the federal government opened the doors of their security facilities to house some of the more than 1,000 inmates left without shelter as the 23-year-old state prison was reduced to near-rain by flames and violence.

Federal officials said prisons in Texas and Kansas could be ready to house New Mexico inmates today, and Arizona, Colorado, Oklahoma and Nevada offered help. Space for 570 was offered, but Gov. Bruce King said there may be room for as many as 900 within the state.

Joanne Brown, administrative assistant to the director of corrections, said only about 300 inmates will be able to remain in what is left of New Mexico's only maximum-security facility.

Inmates were being housed in tents on the prison recreation field as temperatures dipped below freezing.

By late Monday, 979 of the facility's 1,136 inmates were reported "safe and accounted for," but the death toll remained uncertain. Warden Jerry Griffin said 35 bodies had been found, while Gov. Bruce King placed the count at 39 and said 15 persons were missing. Fifty-five persons were hospitalized.

Officials said it would be months before they could answer all the questions about the 36-hour siege that left some victims mutilated beyond recognition. King, in calling for an investigation of the takeover, said, "This didn't happen overnight."

Before the takeover ended Sunday, one prisoner was beheaded and another killed when a metal rod was forced in one ear and out the other. Witnesses told of eyes being gouged out, blowtorch burnings, skulls crushed to a pulp, faces carved to the bone. Some inmates were doused with gasoline and set afire.

"Everybody turned into animals once this whole thing started," said Robert Moseley, a 21-year-old prisoner who said he was bound, gagged, and hooded before being raped until he lost consciousness.

Santa Fe District Attorney Eloy Martinez, who will assist Attorney General Jeff Bingaman in the investigation, said authorities "feel there is a nucleus of

West Europe Gets Tough With Soviets

A-J News Services

France and West Germany today strongly condemned the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and warned Moscow that one more such attack would lead the Atlantic Alliance nations to take action to safeguard their security.

Even as the two West European powers hurled their warning, a flotilla of Russian warships was reported heading toward the South China Sea or Indian Ocean in an ominous buildup of Soviet strength in the tense regions of Southeast and Southwest Asia.

In a joint statement demanding that Soviet forces immediately leave Afghanistan, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France and Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany said East-West detente will die unless the Soviet invasion forces are pulled out from Afghanistan.

In a bilateral "declaration" issued from the Elysee Palace, Giscard and Schmidt said their countries would fully carry out their obligations as members of the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance.

The French and West German leaders, apparently heeding warnings that Moscow's move into Afghanistan might be followed by other military incursions, said "detente would not survive a new shock of this kind."

"In such a case, France and the Federal German Republic, in cooperation with their allies, would take measures that would be necessary in such circumstances to guarantee their security and defend international stability," the statement said.

The Western warning came as a Soviet flotilla of 10 warships, including a large missile cruiser, sailed southward past Japan today toward the South China Sea or Indian Ocean. The Japanese Defense Agency said it was the largest number of Soviet ships ever spotted in the area during a single day.

About 30 Soviet vessels, including cruisers, destroyers and submarines, already are stationed in the Indian Ocean. The United States has roughly the same number of ships in the region.

In another development, the Kuwait newspaper Al Anbaa said it has learned that the Soviets are building submarine pens in South Yemen, a Marxist state at the southern tip of the Arabian Peninsula.

The French-German declaration put an end to the two nations' initial cautiousness in reacting to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

It also dispelled speculation that Paris and Bonn might choose to take a more moderate stance than Washington to safeguard their close commercial ties to the Soviet bloc, diplomats said.

The statement was issued following a three-day summit meeting at the Elysee Palace between the two European leaders.

The statement said the two leaders believe "it is indispensable" that the Soviet invasion "be terminated without any delay, as demanded by a large majority of the United Nations General Assembly."

"It is the only means of re-establishing a situation in conformity with the rights of the Afghan people and requirements of international peace," it said.

A few hours earlier in Moscow, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, in his first public remarks since President Carter's State of the Union address, called for the continuation of detente, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said today.

Brezhnev's comments were made at a banquet Monday night in honor of Cambodian leader Heng Samrin.

"Our peoples have mutual concern to overcome international tension," Brezhnev said in his address to the Cambodian delegation. "Detente is a result of many efforts. It is the mutual achievement of all peace-loving states, so one can't allow unreasonable imperialistic forces to ruin its fruits."

"As for the Soviet Union, we do not want to give up anything good of that kind that was obtained during the 70's in the international arena," he said. "Moreover, we consider it necessary to move forward."

Brezhnev called for a curbing of the arms race and an end to "conflict situations" in Southeast Asia and the Middle and Near East. He also urged the establishment of a "zone of peace" in the Indian Ocean.

"Every road is acceptable and desirable for us, if it leads to a durable peace," Brezhnev said.

Garza Bids For Place On Council

Local attorney Tomas Garza today became the first candidate to announce his plans to run for the Place 2 seat on the city council.

The Place 2 post currently is held by Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan, who already has filed as a candidate for state representative in District 75-A.

Garza, a Mexican-American, formerly served as an attorney in the recent suit contesting Lubbock's at-large method of electing city council members. In that suit, which is currently under appeal, minority plaintiffs claimed that Mexican-American and black candidates have not had a chance to be elected to the council.

At a morning news conference, Garza acknowledged that no minority candidate has ever been elected to the city council here, but said that his chances are good to win the post. Garza said he "has faith" in the citizens of Lubbock that they will look at a candidate's qualifications rather than just his race.

Garza said that Lubbock will face its share of problems in the future and that members of the council must be prepared to foresee any problems and properly resolve them for the benefit of all citizens.

"Such future planning will require our city council to be broad-minded, flexible, willing to listen to experts and aggressive as well as innovative and creative," Garza said.

The attorney noted that Lubbock's population is made up of many different people, including Texas Tech students, Mexican-Americans, blacks, the elderly, property owners and businessmen.

"The ability of our city councilmen or women to deal with all the people of the City of Lubbock will depend on their knowledge of these people and their circumstances," Garza said.

According to Garza, he has spent the past several years working for the betterment of the city and its people. He noted that he has served on the boards for Guadalupe-Parkway neighborhood centers, public responsibility committee for the Lubbock Mental Health-Mental Retardation Board and the Community Services Commission and Permits and Licenses Appeals Board for the city.

"Now I wish to serve the City of Lubbock in a larger and more meaningful manner, that is as a city councilman," Garza said.

The 35-year-old Garza is married and has two children.

District 76 Race Draws Two Area Republicans

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Two Republican candidates barely beat the filing deadline late Monday to enter the previously uncontested race for state representative in District 76, which covers Hale and Swisher counties and a portion of Lubbock County.

John Kirchoff and David Howard, both of Plainview, mailed their filing papers Monday to place their names on the ballot for the May 3 Republican primary. The winner of that primary will face Democratic incumbent James E. "Pete" Laney of Hale Center.

The 29-year-old Kirchoff, who is involved in the real estate business in Plainview, said he decided to enter the legislative race at the last minute after a number of people had approached him about running. He currently serves as the Republican committeeman for the 30th Senatorial District.

Kirchoff described Laney as "a heck of a nice guy," but he said it is time for a change. "And I think I can do a good job," Kirchoff added.

"I have some ideas that I would like to interject into the system," Kirchoff said, "and the only way to do that is to get into the system."

According to Kirchoff, there are very few areas in which he plans to take issue with Laney's voting record. However, he said there were some areas in which Laney failed to take a stand that concerned voters in the district. Kirchoff said he would elaborate on issues later in the campaign.

Howard, 31, is a teacher at Ash Elementary School in Plainview. In a news release announcing his candidacy, Howard said he believes the incumbent "is tired of the office and has run for the last time."

Included in Howard's campaign platform is a promise to reduce state spending by eliminating duplicated services. He also said he would maintain the freedom of the teaching profession by defending the state's right-to-work laws.

"As state representative, I would strive to represent both the rural and urban areas of this district and respect their interdependence," Howard said.

Monday's filing deadline also brought in additional candidates in other races on the county level.

Two sheriff's candidates — Republican Charles Southerland and Democrat Willy Turner — officially launched their campaigns at news conferences Monday afternoon. And Eliseo Solis, a former Raza Unida official, announced Monday that he will seek the county commissioner's post for Precinct 3, which covers the northeastern portion of the county.

Both of the new entries criticized incumbent C.H. "Choc" Blanchard, who is seeking his fourth term as sheriff.

Southerland, a 13-year veteran of the Lubbock Police Department, called the Square Dancers Aid Crime Line

A check for $3,459 was presented to Crime Line board members Earlene Garland and George Scott by the Lubbock Area Square and Round Dance Federation at a morning news conference at City Hall.

Mayor Dirk West said the contribution to the crime-fighting organization was the second largest since its inception 10 months ago.

In their presentation, dance federation members John Neal and R.B. Young said they hope the money raised at a benefit dance in January will "help put criminals out of Lubbock and its surrounding area."

The private, tax-free donations to Crime Line are used to pay for information leading to the arrest and conviction of criminals in the area.

Young was president and Neal general chairman of the benefit dance held Jan. 19 in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center. More than 700 member dancers worked to secure the donations.

"We hope to do it next year and make it bigger," Neal said. "We want to make everyone aware of what they can do. Next year we want a $1 contribution from every residence in Lubbock."

Also attending the 11 a.m. conference was Charley Pope, Crime Line president, who assisted in the dance.

Thanks were expressed to numerous Lubbock businesses for their contributions and to the news media for the free time and space offered in publicizing the dance.

Additional contributions to Crime Line can be sent to P.O. Box 2000, Lubbock, 79401.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A source close to the FBI's 14-month investigation of political corruption says a ninth member of Congress may be involved in the case.

But this source, who asked not to be named, said that at this time the ninth member does not appear to be the subject of further scrutiny, unlike the seven House members and one senator whose names became public over the weekend.

They remain subject to possible grand jury action.

Meantime, House Ethics Committee members voted in closed session Monday to hire a special counsel to lead their independent inquiry into the case. And the Senate Ethics Committee chairman informally asked the Justice Department for help with that panel's own investigation.

Department officials said they would await a written request for aid before responding.

Details of the possible involvement of a ninth member could not be learned.

Declining to identify the ninth member, the source nevertheless emphasized that only one member of Congress who met with FBI undercover agents, Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., has been cleared by the government. Sources have reported that Pressler stormed out of a meeting with undercover agents when it was indicated they represented a client willing to pay for political favors.

The source also denied that the ninth member was among three New Jersey congressmen who told reporters Monday they had rejected overtures last year similar to those made during the FBI undercover investigation. Those three were Reps. James Howard, William Hughes and James Florio, all Democrats.

Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti, who has ordered an investigation of news leaks of the investigation, told a Senate hearing the disclosures "are very unfair to the people involved." He said 20 to 25 persons at the Justice Department had the kind of detail about the case that appeared in the press.

Howard and Hughes said they called the FBI Monday to discuss the overtures. Florio said he did not do that because he felt the FBI already knew of unsuccessful attempts to strike a deal with him.

Howard issued a statement describing what he called "an effort a few months ago by so-called Arab sheiks to set up a meeting with me in regard to their investing money in New Jersey."

Without identifying who approached him, Howard said the possibility of campaign contributions was raised and he rejected the scheme.

Hughes said, "I received a call from an individual who identified himself as Joseph Silvestri and proceeded to tell me in general terms that his group was interested in investing hundreds of millions of dollars and would be very appreciative of any help I could give." Hughes said.

"I just didn't like what I smelled," Hughes continued, adding that the man never showed up for a scheduled meeting.

Sources have said the undercover men posed as aides to a wealthy Arab sheik willing to buy favors.

Mrs. Johnson Seeks Revelation

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Sonia Johnson, returning to her native Utah for the first time since her excommunication from the Mormon Church, said she believes the church's prophet should ask God for a revelation about the Equal Rights Amendment.

"This subject is worthy of a real revelation," the ERA advocate said Monday. "Women are worth it."

Mrs. Johnson was excommunicated in December, accused of ridiculing church officials and hurting the church's missionary effort.

In 1978, after the last formally announced revelation of Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball, black males were granted admission to the priesthood of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Church leaders oppose the ERA without claiming a specific revelation on the issue, although members believe all of Kimball's official words are inspired by God. The church First Presidency — consisting of Kimball and two counselors — has formally urged members to work against ERA ratification.

Mrs. Johnson, excommunicated by her bishop in Sterling, Va., is on a visit sponsored by the Equal Rights Coalition of Utah.

Athletes Helping President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter was looking for opinions on his plan to boost opportunities for jobless young Americans. After he got all his advisers together in the Oval Office, there probably wasn't much room left for the president.

That's because the advisers were four larger-than-life professional athletes: Basketball magician Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers, football titan Franco Harris of the Pittsburgh Steelers and baseball sluggers Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees.

Carter has asked Congress for $2 billion to provide jobs for 500,000 young people, and Erving described the program as "one of the greatest things that could happen to our country."

"In New York and Philadelphia, there are youths out there starving for the opportunity to better themselves," said Erving. "Hopefully, with this budget and our advice, we can not only get it off the ground, but make it very, very successful."

Danger Doesn't Worry Astronauts

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Problems ranging from engine breakdowns to defective tiles have delayed the space shuttle program by nearly two years. But two astronauts being trained to fly the Columbia dismiss ideas of danger.

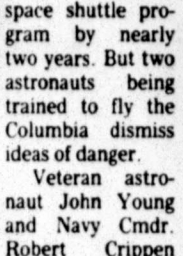

Veteran astronaut John Young and Navy Cmdr. Robert Crippen concede that they will be taking a risk when the reusable spacecraft is launched — possibly by the end of this year.

"Yes, there is a personal risk," Crippen said. "But driving on a freeway is worse."

"That's what we get paid for," said Young, adding, "The safety factor is far better than an airliner."

YOUNG

Young is a veteran of four space flights, including a moon walk on the Apollo 16 mission.

"The shuttle is an unbelievable, mind-boggling opportunity that is going to revolutionize the way we do business in space," Young said.

The shuttle will be launched into space, but will fly back and land, as an airplane would, on a runway.

Julian Bond Loses Race

ATLANTA (AP) — The post was mostly honorary, but when defeated in a bid to become the Georgia Senate majority whip, State Sen. Julian Bond of Atlanta seemed disappointed.

"I feel like the former governor, Marvin Griffin, who said once, 'A lot of people who ate my barbecue didn't vote for me,'" said Bond on Monday.

The veteran black legislator and civil rights activist lost 27-21 to Sen. Loyce Turner of Valdosta in voting by the senate's Democratic Caucus. On Bond's motion, the vote was declared unanimous.

She Answered His Ad

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — The marriage of Herbert Morrow and Cora Wilson wasn't actually made in heaven. It began in the classified advertising section of the local newspaper.

Morrow, 72, of Bessemer City, who advertised for a bride, and Mrs. Wilson, 64, of Morganton, who saw an Associated Press story about Morrow's search, were married on Sunday in South Carolina.

"I just really thought she had something when I read her letter," Morrow said. "Seemed like she was real nice and I liked her looks when I saw her."

The Lighter Side Of The News

Morrow, a widower since 1973, said he wanted a wife who was between 40 and 65 years of age, shorter than 6 feet 3 inches, and who weighed less than 250 pounds but more than 165. Morrow also specified he sought a Christian who was humorous, a good cook and cleaned well.

Morrow was beset with inquiries from women across the nation. He was still receiving offers the night before his wedding. But it was Mrs. Wilson's letter that impressed him enough to ask her out.

Said the new Mrs. Morrow: "Don't ask me why, but I'm glad I wrote."

After honeymooning in North Carolina, the newlyweds will live in Mrs. Wilson's mobile home.

Judge Ordered To Reopen Spring Case

BOSTON (AP) — A probate court judge has been ordered to reconsider a decision to halt life-sustaining kidney treatment for Earle Spring, the incurably ill nursing home patient whose family says he would choose to die if he were mentally competent.

Massachusetts Supreme Justice Francis J. Quirico, in reopening the Spring case Monday, directed Probate Judge Santoro B. Keedy to hold new hearings, seek further medical opinions on the mentally confused 78-year-old man, and take into account the patient's own statements.

Spring, a former chemist and out-doorsman from Montague, has received kidney dialysis treatments three times a week for the past two years. Without them, doctors say, he would die within weeks.

The treatments were stopped briefly, with court permission, after Spring's wife and son argued that Spring would prefer a relatively quick death if still mentally alert.

However, a doctor and several nurses who have observed him at the Holyoke Geriatric Center contend Spring is sometimes lucid and has expressed a will to live.

Quirico temporarily reinstated dialysis. The stalemate ended after the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which operates the airport, reached a State Department-sanctioned agreement with Aeroflot on the handling of future Soviet flights here.

Under the agreement, the Soviet airline said it would not fly scheduled flights into Kennedy "until it has made arrangements with another carrier already serving the airport to handle them," a spokesman for the authority said. Earlier Monday the Soviet news agency Tass called the delay of the aircraft "the crudest sort of provocation ... which must be viewed as part of the unremitting campaign aimed at interfering with the normal air communications between the Soviet Union and the United States."

Stock Broker Held For Stealing Gold

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An E.F. Hutton & Co. broker caught short in his personal gold trading has been arrested on a federal charge of looting customers' accounts of more than $270,000, the FBI said.

Michael R. Hamaoui, 40, was arrested recently at his home. Hamaoui admitted to Hutton officials that he had been making unauthorized withdrawals from customers' accounts, FBI agent Tom Shell said.

Hamaoui had sold "futures" contracts promising to deliver gold at $300 an ounce and was caught when the price jumped to more than $700, authorities said. Hutton spokesmen were not available for comment.

Drinking Violation May Have Started Prison Riot

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The savage rebellion at the New Mexico State Penitentiary that claimed the lives of at least 35 inmates — many through mutilation and torture — apparently erupted when a guard caught prisoners drinking home brew, a prison official says.

At least 28 convicts were killed and seven died of drug overdoses in the riot that left the maximum-security penitentiary in near ruins, authorities said Monday.

Deputy Warden Robert Montoya said unconfirmed reports indicated a group of inmates seized shift Capt. Greg Roybal, who was on a routine security check early Saturday, when he found them drinking.

The inmates were able to release other convicts, and that started the bloody uprising, officials said. But they were not certain what triggered the brutal violence of inmate against inmate.

Survivors said an execution squad armed with blowtorches and axes tortured and killed inmates during the 36-hour siege. Another inmate said he was among prisoners who were bound and repeatedly raped.

One man was beheaded; another was found with a metal rod driven through his head — from ear to ear. Others had limbs chopped off or their eyes gouged out. Many were beaten beyond recognition.

Officials said some of the violence was directed against informants, but Dr. Marc Orner, the prison psychologist, said there was evidence racial hostility and personal grudges were behind some of the deaths.

"None of us really understand what happened in there," Orner said. "The depth of the violence is incomprehensible to me both as a human being and as a psychologist. It is as if all the aggression a human being can have was savagely unleashed. We just can't understand why they did this to each other."

Orner said officials are interviewing all the inmates. "Maybe after they give their views, we'll have a clearer picture."

Warden Jerry Griffin said 35 deaths had been confirmed, but Gov. Bruce King put the total at 39 and said 15 convicts were missing in the nation's worst prison revolt since 43 died in the 1971 uprising at Attica in New York.

"There were 55 inmates who rushed the corridor after seizing Capt. Roybal, and they took three to four guards hostage," Montoya said.

Another report said corridor guards were confronted without warning by a man dressed in a guard uniform and carrying a flashlight and a prison-made knife. As the guards struggled for the knife, they were surrounded by inmates who blindfolded, beat and stabbed them.

All but three of the guards were released before a special police weapons team and National Guardsmen marched in Sunday afternoon to retake the prison. No shots were fired in the police move.

The prison consists of eight buildings linked by a central corridor.

Montoya said once the first inmates got into the central corridor they had little trouble making their way to the glass-enclosed control center, which supposedly was bulletproof and impregnable.

"They had some heavy-type tools. They had the time and the equipment to break into the control center," Montoya said. "The guard in the control center was able to gain access to the outside of the prison and get to the main guard tower and escape."

Once they held the center, the rebels released other prisoners.

Orner said most of the inmates did not participate in the riot.

Destruction, Deaths Overwhelm Media

By S.J. GUFFEY

SANTA FE (AP) — Inmates who seized the New Mexico State Penitentiary over the weekend didn't have firearms. But the destruction reporters saw after the holdout left no doubt that human rage can wreak havoc with primitive weapons.

About 75 reporters and photographers toured the riot-torn prison Monday with Warden Jerry Griffin. I was one of them.

Inside the door, the magnitude of the 36-hour siege became apparent. It was worse than anyone had thought possible.

Although the inmates didn't have guns, they did have blowtorches, baseball bats, billyclubs seized from guards, flammable liquids from the cleaning supplies, knives and axehandles.

Inmates used all of them to raze the buildings and to kill and mutilate fellow prisoners.

Cell 23 was splattered with blood along one wall, although the mattress remained intact. Most of the mattresses in the prison had been burned.

Next door, nothing was out of place, but we were told the occupant died on the blackened mattress.

Inmates had locked themselves in Cell 24 and several others in an attempt to escape the carnage. It didn't do any good. Other inmates sprayed them through the bars with flammable liquid and set them on fire.

In No. 69, there was a pool of thickening blood on the floor. You could see that someone had been attacked there, dragged from the toilet through the door and apparently pushed over the railing, to land two stories down.

Parts of cellblocks were undamaged.

The bunk in cell 10, cellblock 4, was properly made, the blanket tucked around the mattress. It looked as if it didn't belong in the building.

That cell attracted as much attention as the devastation that surrounded it. "I wonder whose this was," one reporter said.

The library also was untouched aside from broken glass on the top of the door and some trickles of water coming through the walls. Row after row of books were stacked neatly on shelves. In the study carrels, chairs were on still on top of desks where they had been placed Friday night for cleanup.

There was relatively little damage to the classroom on the third floor of the library.

In other areas the damage was devastating.

It seemed the inmates tried to destroy everything twice. They smashed or ripped up furniture, windows and equipment, then set fires to make sure the damage couldn't be repaired.

It looked like the prisoners' hatred was directed at certain areas.

The warden pointed out the gutted offices of the deputy wardens of operations and programs.

"They didn't like them very much, did they?" a reporter asked. Griffin replied, "You should see what they did to my office."

Later, we did. It looked like a bomb had gone off inside.

Fury Of Inmates Seen In Mutilations, Executions

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — From the back of a tiny cell, a 10-foot-long and 4-foot-wide rivulet of blood flowed, the horrifying evidence of a sadistic execution in Cellblock Four.

The entire prison population — convicts and guards alike — knows the cell block as the "snitch hole," a place for informers and nonconformists.

The fury of rampaging, murderous inmates was focused there early Saturday morning, and an indelible blotch attesting to the worst prison uprising in this country since Attica in 1971 remains.

Evidence of death pervaded the unit bordering Cellblock Three, where the hard-nosed criminal population at New Mexico State Penitentiary was kept.

Reports of mutilations were widespread, both from the prisoners who survived the rioting and from law enforcement officers and National Guardsmen who retook control of the prison late Sunday.

A United Press International reporter who entered the compound while negotiations were under way between inmates and state officials said the body of a black inmate was carried out to the prison yard by other prisoners.

He had been decapitated and his head was cradled in his lap," said reporter John Gillis.

Margaret Babcock, a secretary working at a makeshift office set up shortly after the uprising began, focused her binoculars on a window at Cellblock Three. Aghast, she watched while several inmates held a convict for another man who approached with an acetylene torch.

"I saw them stick the torch in his face," she said.

State officials said several bodies were burned beyond recognition and most of the dead inmates bore multiple stab wounds or slashed throats. The heads of some victims had been caved in by pipes and weapons fashioned during the riot.

A photographer who toured the compound Sunday said he saw three decapitated bodies and a fourth inmate whose neck had been partially severed. In one cell, a metal stake had been poked in a man's ear and shoved through his head. It exited through the other ear.

Prison officials reported some of the dead had their eyes gouged out, their sex organs removed and their arms and legs severed.

State Sen. Manny Aragon, D-Bernalillo, said, "I saw one guy whose testicles had been burned off with a torch. And another one ... they went through his face with a torch from what I saw."

A New Mexico National Guardsman who took part in the removal of 22 of the bodies said he saw one burned so badly it had "shriveled up to the size of a little boy."

"The guy's head was the size of a cantaloupe," said chief warrant officer Alford Ortiz.

A prison guard who declined to be identified said he counted "at least 28 stab wounds" in one body and found another corpse with a noose around its neck.

Although a list of the dead had not been released, a National Guardsman who worked in the body removal said most of the victims were Mexican-Americans, the most prevalent ethnic group in the prison.

"They had snitch riots and then they had race riots," said State Police Major Don Moberly, who said the bloodbath was the worst he had seen in 20 years of law enforcement.

On Monday, as the surviving prisoners huddled in the early morning cold, separated in groups of 50 to 60, a small flock of buzzards hovered in the sky above the smoky stench wafting from the still-smoldering prison.

Many Prisoners Remain Uncounted

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Mela Kramer was consumed with horror and anxiety for two days, emotions that ultimately were swept away with three words: "Ronald Gary Gonzales."

When she heard her son's name blared through a State Police car loud-speaker late Monday, Mrs. Kramer knew the 21-year-old had survived a macabre bloodbath and weekend rampage at the New Mexico State Penitentiary.

She burst into tears, content for a moment just to repeat, "Thank God, he's alive. Thank God, he's alive."

Earlier, fearing her son's name would not be on the list of survivors, Mrs. Kramer fainted from despair. Later, she declared, "My family and I prayed a lot and we never gave up hope."

Rita Armijo's husband, Jacobo, is serving a 1,200-year sentence for heroin trafficking. Word that he had survived was good news anyway.

"At least we know he's alive," she said.

When officials failed to call some names, there were powerful displays of grief and despair. But officials explained eventually that some of the lists were incomplete and they urged the grief-stricken to maintain hope.

By late Monday, officials had accounted for about 1,000 of 1,136 inmates incarcerated before the riot.

A dozen people huddled around a bonfire and pressed correctional officer

Larry Padilla for details of when they could see their relatives inside. Padilla could offer no specifics.

One wife asked when she would be told if her husband was being transferred. Padilla said, "As soon as possible."

A Red Cross bus laden with hot beverages and food arrived, and portable toilets were unloaded. It was an atmosphere of kindness in stark contrast to the hostility demonstrated by some relatives earlier in the day.

As a car containing Corrections Secretary Felix Rodriguez drove away Monday morning, a woman jeered, "Where's our favorite governor? We ought to have a party for him." Another woman agreed: "Yeah, a hanging party."

A distraught Jeanette Michaelback of Albuquerque, awaiting word on the status of her brother, Walter, collapsed in hysterics. Someone called for an ambulance.

A Lovington, N.M., couple who had raised their grandson, now an inmate, from the age of 2 stood by the gate glowering.

"We've been going through hell down in Lovington for two days to call somebody to find out what's going on. And we haven't been able to get through to anybody in two days," said Glen Umstead. "It's just a damn shame the way they treat people in this state."

Their grandson, Wayne Traxler, 21, is serving a 10-50 year term for two armed robberies.

Some of it's worth knowing. If I hadn't gone to Georgia and South Carolina last week, for example, you might never have known—or cared—that the roof of an Augusta disco club is sagging by 10 inches because a load-carrying beam was cut during remodeling to create a dance floor.

South Carolina proponents of the Equal Rights Amendment said they'd given up trying to get approval this year of the Equal Rights Amendment, which the state senate rejected in 1978 by a vote of 23-18.

Here are a few other things I learned from reading the papers: A federal court inquiry in Georgia raised several questions about sanitation at the state prison. Among them: the kitchen adjoins the TB ward.

A headlong commitment to disorder rules out squeamishness about the results. For Carter to say he doesn't panic in a crisis is surely gratuitous.

The calm voices of the Carter administration—Vance and Young and Brzezinski and the President himself—urged us to sign treaties and normalize relations and cut military spending.

Carter now profits himself as the ideal man to lead us out of the dream world he has led us into. It is a measure of the toll he has taken on the national sanity that many Americans seem to believe him.

Save Big Bucks Buying Made-In-USA Products

WASHINGTON—At a famed Fifth Ave. shoe store, a pair of men's loafers—with a familiar designer stripe and the little snaffle bit—now costs $145 a pair. A few blocks away from the Italian shoe store, American-made men's loafers sell for $44 to $60—not cheap, but a bargain by comparison.

Victor Kiam II, president of Remington Products, Inc., emphasizes that as a consequence, fascinating opportunities are being opened up both for the U.S. manufacturer and consumer.

At a top-notch food market on 6th Ave., near where I live, my favorite Italian fontina cheese has doubled in price since my last purchase a few months ago.

Remington "invented" the shaver, but a full decade ago quality European shavers invaded the U.S. market and because they could be priced more economically, they snatched a share of the market.

Some Monterey Jack or Wisconsin Swiss may lack the panache of Boursin or Brie, but there's no missing the difference to the pocketbook—$3 or $3.50 a pound vs. $4.50 or $5 for the imports.

Now Kiam is introducing an electric shaver for under $20, the retail price back in 1965—by taking advantage of the currency relationships, improved productivity, sacrificing a bit on packaging, chrome and the profit margin. To Kiam, the word to you is clear.

JUST LAST WEEKEND, a neighbor informed me that the snazzy German sports car he purchased for $7,000 in 1972 would cost more than $30,000 today.

Look at your opportunities for smart shopping—in cars as well as shavers, shoes, clothing, books, banjos, soup, typewriters.

A Dodge Omni propelled by the same engine as the "cheap" Porsche and presumably providing a near-identical performance is available at one-third the import's price.

Accustom yourself to the fact that the most exotic label now is not "Made in France" or "Made in Italy," but "Made in U.S.A."

Of all the evil ravages of inflation, one that has seemed to escape major attention is the fact that foreign-made goods have soared out of sight compared with a U.S.-made counterpart.

A FEW MORE comparisons—a mere sampling—between quality imports and comparable-quality American goods:

The United States of America marketplace is a coast-to-coast bargain counter! And some of the bargains are remarkable!

A domestic London Fog, lined trench raincoat, $100. Burberry's unlined trench, $255.

Most of us became adults in the post-World War II period, when the dollar was all-powerful.

A domestic Mustang Turbo sports car, $7,000, an imported Porsche 924, $18,000.

YOU SHOPPED ABROAD for bargains in European and Japanese-made goods with ill-concealed delight. And as you gobbled up those bargains, you drove some U.S. industries—such as TV and radio set manufacturing—right out of business.

A domestic American Sunbeam food processor, $98, a Cuisinart, $150-$250.

But beginning in the late 1960s-70s, the pendulum swung heavily in the other direction. European and Japanese currencies have soared against the dollar.

Domestic Head skis, $139. Rossignol skis, $225.

Meanwhile, many foreign lands have been punished by inflation rates exceeding ours.

Domestic Harley-Davidson 1,000 cc motorcycle $3,800. Honda, $4,200.

The British economy, for instance, has been cursed by an inflation rate 50 percent greater than our own for a decade.

Thus, a Turnbull & Asser cravat that may have remained exactly the same in terms of real pounds today costs you, the U.S. consumer, 56 percent more than two years ago because the value of the merchandise has been boosted 20 percent by inflation and 30 percent by the upward valuation of the British pound vs. the U.S. dollar.

Thus, a Remington XLR 2000 was priced at $45; a Remington XLR 3000 rechargeable, at $50. And CR rated these above the $85 Eltron and the $60 Sanyo.

AS ANOTHER INSTANCE of upside-down relationships, Consumer Reports recently ranked 22 electric shavers. The "top-of-the-line" Norelco ranked by CR costs $100.

A Remington XLR 2000 was priced at $45; a Remington XLR 3000 rechargeable, at $50. And CR rated these above the $85 Eltron and the $60 Sanyo.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Can GOP Sweep House?

CONSERVATIVES must really believe 1980 is their year since their strategists already are predicting substantial gains not only in the Senate—where they have a good chance of capturing control—but in the House as well.

for the picking. In three cases, the Democratic incumbents already have announced they will not seek re-election.

As many as 35 Democratic seats in the House will go to the GOP come November "with a little luck," nationally syndicated columnist Robert J. Wagman predicts.

There are two each of the targeted districts in Texas, Colorado and Ohio. There are three each in Missouri and Pennsylvania, and six in California. The remaining 17 are spread around the country.

This will signal more Republican progress than Senate control or a return to White House power in the eyes of the professional politicians behind the scenes.

The National Republican Congressional Committee so far has held three special workshops to help candidates put together effective campaign organizations.

That's because House seats are won on local levels, congressional district by congressional district. It has nothing to do with who heads the ticket. Instead, it reflects how the party is doing at the precinct levels—where the power, and the patronage, rests.

CONSERVATIVES PREDICT the Democratic party will lose much of its strength in the House if its share of representatives drops near or below 240.

THE RELATIVE numbers of Democrats and Republicans in the House have changed little in the past six years. Currently, the mix is 276 Democrats vs 159 Republicans.

Party unity is becoming a thing of the past," said Wagman. "And with conservative Democrats voting with Republicans on ever more issues, a 35-seat swing could represent a major shift in the House power balance."

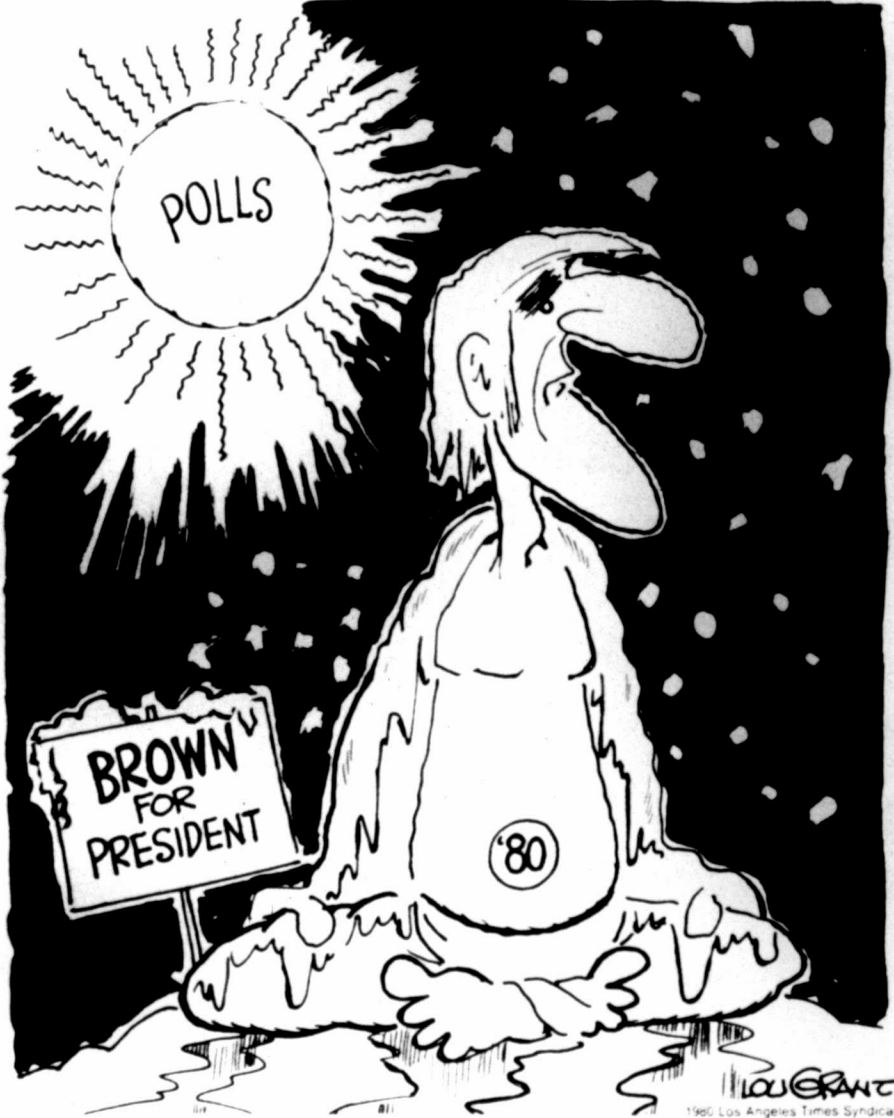

The last major shift came in 1974. Forty seats primarily as a result of Watergate swung to the Democrats that year and most of those new seats were kept in 1976 and 1978.

One private study shows that only one of the 276 seats currently held by Democrats is openly leaning the other way. Eight are toss-ups, 23 are possible upsets and 26 are remotely possible upsets, but don't bet on it.

But the GOP believes this year could be the year. To this end, it has targeted 35 current Democratic seats it believes are ripe

The experts say about the only way for the GOP to gain more than 11 House seats, about what they managed to win in 1978, is for them to nominate a presidential candidate "with very strong coattails." But that may be less likely than the 35-seat net gain.

THE BIG THAW

James J. Kilpatrick:

The Old Teddy Is Real Teddy

WASHINGTON—When Sen. Edward M. Kennedy announced his presidential candidacy last November, some of us in the pundit business predicted he would make a perceptible turn to the right.

Oh, he is a bold one, this Kennedy. He condemns the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. He finds it "abhorrent." He thinks it must be met with an "appropriate response."

After all, we reasoned, no man with a 17-year record of knee-jerk liberalism can hope to be nominated and elected in a time of increasing conservatism.

He spells out his appropriate response. He would: 1) seek the views of other nations, 2) be thankful for the condemnation of the Soviets by the international community, 3) strengthen our naval and air forces in the area, 4) provide economic assistance and political support to oil-producing nations, 5) demand in return the assurance of more certain oil supplies, and finally, 6) "we must not overreact."

The reasoning was fine, the prediction has turned out to be lousy. After a few weeks of unconvincing conservative murmurs, Kennedy last week reverted to form.

WE MUST RATHER "convince the Russians that there is reason for fear, but also reason for hope, in their relations with the United States."

At Georgetown University the real Ted Kennedy stood up. He once again embraced every cause of the liberal left, running alphabetically from greater appeasement of the Soviets to larger welfare for the poor.

By George, that will scare the wits out of the Soviets! Even the possibility of so resolute a fellow in the White House must have Brezhnev trembling in his boots.

I AM CERTAIN he feels much better now. We can all feel better now. Kennedy has performed a most useful service in defining issues both at home and abroad.

After all, that possibility has me trembling in my boots.

If he stays the course—and Democrats of every persuasion must pray that he stays the course, lest five months of political headlines be yielded to the opposition—we can expect a full-scale debate instead of an afternoon nap.

That is the substance of the gentleman's intrepidity abroad. He is rather more positive here at home. In his Jan. 28 address, Kennedy returned to the prodigal son to the house of his fathers. To his credit he did not pussyfoot around.

Where stands the senator? We see him as President of the United States a year hence: "This is your commander in chief speaking. I will not move toward the brink of sending another generation of the young to die for the failures of the old in foreign policy."

Kennedy first demanded that President Carter "impose an immediate six-month freeze on inflation." It is the trick of the week.

THIS FREEZE SHOULD be followed by "mandatory controls, as long as necessary, across the board, not only on prices and wages, but also on profits, dividends, interest rates and rent."

That is vintage Kennedy. It is the real juice, not to be diluted by his assertion, four paragraphs down the text, that he wants to be the President under whom "free enterprise will be free in fact."

His whole cast of mind tilts toward the notion of mandatory controls administered by a vast and all-powerful bureaucracy. Consistently with this approach, he demands gasoline rationing.

He plugs anew for his comprehensive scheme of national health insurance—a scheme guaranteed to tie every hospital in the land into knots of red tape.

It was a fascinating speech. I loved every word of it. But will it be loved in New Hampshire? Will it motivate Maine? Will it knock 'em dead in Florida, Arkansas and Illinois?

DON'T HOLD YOUR breath until a tide of delegates rolls in.

The senator's demagogic liberalism, with its appeals in the name of injustice, monopoly and the profits of Exxon, may galvanize his disheartened constituency, but that constituency is relatively small.

What Kennedy has done is to enliven the campaign and further to reassure Carter's renomination. Considering the alternatives, I am bound to voice thanks.

Scandal Prompts Shock, Denials From Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest Capitol Hill scandal is prompting statements of shock from Congressional leaders and denials of wrongdoing by some of the eight men under investigation.

The House session Monday was curtailed, many personal appearances were canceled and emergency strategy sessions with lawyers were commonplace.

Congressional Democratic leaders pledged support for efforts to uncover the truth behind charges that eight members agreed to take or accepted payoffs from FBI agents posing as aides to Arab sheiks.

"Am I shocked?" House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill asked rhetorically. "Yes, of course I am shocked. We want to expeditiously clean it up and let the cards fall where they may."

The individuals named as targets of the FBI probe were generally keeping a low profile.

The major exception was Rep. Richard Kelly of Florida, the only Republican named in the investigation. Kelly fielded reporters' questions for more than a half hour in a crowded conference room in a House office building.

"I have not been involved in any criminal activity," he said in a brief statement. He added it would be "inappropriate" for him to discuss details which he referred to as "technical aspects of the investigation."

He refused to go much beyond that despite persistent requests for specifics.

"Did you ever take a bribe?" he was asked.

"That's covered by the statement," Kelly replied.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., the only senator named in the probe, said he had hired a lawyer. He declined comment on the charges.

The others was a brief statement from Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J. He interrupted a meeting in his office to step into the hallway and deny that he had broken any law.

Three Pennsylvania Democrats who are said to be objects of the FBI probe stayed out of the public eye Monday.

Pretrial Publicity May Delay Prosecution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pretrial publicity about the FBI corruption probe implicating members of Congress probably won't damage prosecution of those who may be charged, but could produce legal challenges delaying the cases, say experienced criminal lawyers.

The Justice Department is trying to learn who told the news media about the investigation, but such missions almost always fail.

"It's practically impossible to find out who talked to the press because there are literally hundreds of people who know something about a case," said one attorney familiar with previous leak inquiries, who asked not to be identified.

"The only way you find out is if someone admits it or a reporter tells you. The

NY Solon Subject Of Probes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John Murphy has often been chased by law enforcement officials, but he hasn't yet been charged.

The New York City Democrat was said to be the subject of at least three other federal investigations already when sources told The Associated Press this weekend that Murphy was among eight members of Congress who allegedly took bribes in an FBI undercover operation called "Abscam."

Murphy denied the latest allegations, just as he has denied reports that he evaded taxes, engaged in questionable business dealings or wrongfully advanced the interests of foreign dictators. He has never been indicted or faced other formal charges.

"I am not in violation of federal or local laws. I am not and have not been involved in any money transactions. To date I have not been advised of any charges or allegations by anyone from the Department of Justice," Murphy said Monday in a written statement.

Much of the investigative interest in the 53-year-old, nine-term congressman can be traced to the "Koreagate" scandal. Murphy had accepted legal campaign contributions from Korean businessman Tongsun Park, the central figure in that episode.

While that inquiry resulted in no formal charges of wrongdoing against Murphy, some of the evidence turned up appears to have whetted official curiosity about Murphy's affairs.

Published reports, denied by Murphy and never officially confirmed by federal agencies, say the Internal Revenue Service, the Securities and Exchange Commission and a Manhattan grand jury are all looking into the congressman's activities.

Official Quits Amid Charges

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Gov. Brendan T. Byrne has vowed to act promptly in selecting a replacement on the Casino Control Commission for Kenneth N. MacDonald, who quit after allegations were made that he solicited a $100,000 bribe from FBI agents posing as representatives of an Arab sheik.

MacDonald denied any wrongdoing, but said Monday the credibility of the five-member commission must be preserved.

Byrne said MacDonald's resignation and his pledge to fill his seat quickly would keep the commission above public question.

Before going into seclusion, MacDonald, 58, of Haddonfield, submitted a three-page resignation letter to Byrne.

"My conscience is absolutely clean and I am confident that once all the facts are known, my reputation will remain unscathed," MacDonald said.

MacDonald released his letter through commission spokesman Ben Borowsky.

first rarely happens. The second never does," he said.

The first news accounts of the FBI's biggest political corruption investigation broke Saturday evening and Sunday.

There was no official comment until Monday, when the department announced an internal inquiry "to see whether deliberate disclosures have been made by federal employees."

The news reports raised the possibility that the defendants ultimately charged could argue that pretrial publicity prevents a fair trial.

But several criminal lawyers, including some former prosecutors, said in interviews that such arguments could only delay a trial or force it to be moved to a city where news coverage has been slight. The lawyers asked anonymity.

Two former department officials said pretrial publicity would never dissuade the department from bringing a case to trial.

"I don't think the department has a pretrial publicity problem at this stage, and the case appears to be so broadly spread that I doubt they'll have any later," said another former department official.

The investigation was carried out in New York, Washington; Philadelphia; Newark, N.J.; and Miami.

A defense lawyer who is an ex-prosecutor said the publicity issue often is a useful defense tool.

If the defense attorney can convince a judge that publicity has been prejudicial, he may win transfer of the trial to an area perceived to be friendlier to his client. Even if the argument fails, the defense lawyer gains more time to plot trial strategy.

"If I were a defense counsel in these cases, publicity would be the one thing I would be working to stir up," said the ex-prosecutor. "Of course you can't get caught at it."

Court rules prohibit lawyers from discussing their pending cases.

Government officials, attorneys and reporters who follow criminal matters saw nothing startling about the leaks. "I'm just surprised that it went on this long without leaking," one attorney said of the 14-month investigation.

State Department Studies World Human Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department, analyzing human rights around the globe, reported today that Cambodia, Vietnam and North Korea were among the most violently repressive countries in the world.

The 154-nation study said conditions generally have improved in Africa and Latin America. But it was sharply critical of the Soviet Union, estimating the number of political prisoners at between 2,000 and 10,000 and stating that the regime "recognizes no right to any opinion or behavior it chooses to regard as deviant."

Although torture in the Soviet Union is "less prevalent" than before, the report said Soviet prosecutors have not failed to convict prisoners accused of political crimes in the 62-year history of the revolution.

In summary, the report said, "impressive strides" were taken in 1979 in the building of international institutions for protecting human rights.

The study cited as one example a call by African nations for a permanent Pan-African human rights body as well as the new American Convention on human rights, which sets forth standards for members of the Organization of American States.

Among non-communist countries, the report was perhaps most critical of South Africa where, it said, the non-white majority "suffers pervasive discrimination in all areas of life, their basic human rights are systematically violated."

The annual report previously was limited to analyses of recipients of U.S. military and economic aid but this year was broadened to include all countries. The report is mandated each year under a provision of the Foreign Assistance Act.

In Eastern Europe, the report said East Germans are "tightly controlled" in all aspects of their lives while in Czechoslovakia, "overt opposition in any field is punished." On the other hand, the regimes in Hungary and Poland were said to be more tolerant of dissent than some of their communist neighbors.

Outside the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact group, communist Albania was found to be "marked by xenophobia, a harsh brand of Marxism, militant atheism and a singular and abiding respect for Joseph Stalin."

Many of the country-by-country reports refrain from passing judgment. For the most part, objective accounts provided by human rights groups and other sources are outlined without comment.

Occasionally, however, the State Department draws its own subjective conclusions.

As an example, the report stated flatly that "nowhere in the world are human rights more beleaguered than in Cambodia." In the areas of Cambodia under the control of Vietnamese occupation troops, the report said, "the conditions of life regressed to a level of suffering" reminiscent of the Khmer Rouge regime of 1975-78.

In Vietnam itself, the report said tens of thousands are held in re-education camps under harsh conditions and that tens of thousands more died at sea trying to escape the country.

The report said repression in North Korea is similar to that of the Stalinist era in the Soviet Union. "North Korea's society is perhaps the most highly reg-mented and controlled in the world today," it said.

Conditions in South Korea improved somewhat after the October assassination of President Park Chung Hee although censorship was continued and political meetings banned.

In Iran, where 50 Americans have been held hostage at the U.S. embassy since Nov. 4, the report said several thousand Iranians were in jail at the end of 1979 for political reasons.

Nonetheless, it said Iranians were freer to express political views than they were under the deposed shah who, according to the report, was responsible for the imprisonment and torture of thousands of his subjects.

Israel was given high marks for its human rights performance within the pre-1967 border but the report said some basic guarantees have been suspended in Israeli-held territories.

On the whole, the report on Israel is more favorable than last year, when that country was alleged to have mistreated some Arab detainees in the territories.

Elsewhere in the Middle East, violations were found to be prevalent in Iraq, Lebanon and Syria while the picture was brighter in Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

The report found some improvement in Argentina and Chile, which came under heavy criticism in the past because of arbitrary arrests and the large numbers of persons who disappeared for unexplained reasons.

The incidence of disappearances in Argentina, the report said, has declined significantly, from more than 500 in 1978 to 44 known cases last year. There also has been a substantial drop in the number of Argentines held without charge.

As for Chile, no confirmed disappearances have occurred since 1977 and cases of torture also have declined although "about a dozen credible incidents occurred in 1979."

In Cuba, although freedom of speech is severely circumscribed, the report said the incidence of torture has been drastically reduced. It noted that 3,600 political prisoners were released between late 1978 and late 1979.

President Undecided On Drafting Women

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite what his wife says, President Carter claims he hasn't made up his mind about the details of his draft registration plan, including whether women will be included.

Last month, Carter said he plans to reinstate registration for the draft, a move he can make without legislative approval. There are no plans to reinstitute the draft itself.

But one of the biggest questions left unanswered is whether women will also have to register. Another undecided point is just which age groups would be affected.

At a White House party Monday night, Carter contradicted his previous statements and denied he has made the choice about whether women will be included.

"I haven't decided anything," Carter said at a White House buffet dinner for the cast of the musical, "West Side Story."

Told that his wife, Rosalynn, had said earlier Monday that she knew what his decision was, the president replied: "She doesn't know. She may think she knows."

At that point, Mrs. Carter appeared and was informed of the president's remarks. "I think I know," she answered with a smile.

Carter said he would be receiving some position papers Wednesday and expects to "let my people know" his decision on Thursday.

Carter has said in the past that registration should include women.

Barry Lynn, chairman of the Committee Against Registration and The Draft, said Monday he thinks Carter's program will be limited to persons aged 18 to 20.

Lynn's comments Monday came after he was briefed at the White House by a Selective Service official.

Lynn also said he thinks Carter will include women in the program.

Tyranny Examined In Communist Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — In its first official evaluation of human rights in the communist countries of Europe, the State Department reports conditions ranging from harsh repression to tacit tolerance of some kinds of dissent.

In the Soviet Union and East Germany, dissent is not tolerated and there are thousands of political prisoners, the department's annual human rights report said today.

But in Hungary and Poland, the regimes have eased internal controls, the department reported. While there is still no political freedom by western standards, the governments afford opportunities for travel, intellectual and religious activities which are unknown to most citizens of the harsher regimes.

This was the first year the department included Warsaw Pact countries in its evaluation. Previously, it covered only countries receiving American assistance or weapons.

Congress broadened the scope of the report last year. The evaluations are supposed to help it use human rights criteria in considering aid and other policy questions.

Following are summaries of the reports on the Warsaw Pact nations and Albania:

— The Soviet Union: "The regime recognizes no right to any opinion or behavior it chooses to regard as deviant," said the report, drafted before the internal exile of the symbol of Russian dissidence, Andrei Sakharov.

The report found "torture is less prevalent," but many other Stalinist forms of repression still flourish. It estimated that the Soviets have 2,000 to 10,000 political prisoners, many confined in psychiatric hospitals.

Soviet prosecutors are highly efficient, the report notes. They have not failed to convict prisoners accused of political crimes in the 62 years since the Russian revolution.

The report credited the Soviets with managing to feed, clothe and care for the population, although there are severe housing shortages and the Soviet party elite commands a disproportionate share of the wealth.

— Albania: The department had little information on Albania. There have been no American diplomats there since 1946. The information available, however, indicates the country is "marked by xenophobia, a harsh brand of Marxism, militant atheism, and a singular and abiding respect for Joseph Stalin."

— Bulgaria: The government is among the more repressive in the communist bloc, but Bulgarians have never known anything better, the report says. They lived under Turkish sultans and a monarchy before the Russians installed a communist government in 1945.

"Political freedom does not exist," the department summarized. There may be as many as several hundred political prisoners, and all media and religion are controlled and manipulated. On the other hand, the report said the government does provide an effective pension system, universal education and employment. It apparently does not employ torture.

— Czechoslovakia: "Overt opposition in any field is punished" by the Czech government, the report says, and it specifies the arrest, trial and imprisonment of the dissidents of the "Charter 77" group in recent years.

Repressive Regimes Continuing In Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department's human rights report on Iran is a case of one repressive regime succeeding another.

Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi fled the Peacock Throne in January 1979. The feared SAVAK secret police was disbanded and many political prisoners were released.

The Islamic revolutionary courts, which took over after the shah's fall, trying people summarily and at night, sentenced more than 700 Iranians to execution and perhaps as many as 15,000 to jail, the new report says.

But there were some signs of reform. Toward the end of the year, Iranians were freer to express political views than under the shah, the department said. A major reason was the dissolution of SAVAK.

On the other hand, however, religious minorities experienced anxieties. "The absence of effective central government control has allowed vigilantes with members of the Bahai faith seeing its most sacred shrine demolished by a mob and the government confiscating community property."

Iranian militants have held 50 American hostages in Tehran since Nov. 4 in an effort to force the return of the shah to stand trial for such violations. The United States is refusing to discuss the Iranian grievances until the are released.

There has been discussion at the United Nations of an inquiry into the shah's regime to end the hostage stalemate, now in its 94th day.

Asian Countries Listed As Most Oppressive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite improvement in China, Asia continues to be the home of some of the world's most repressive regimes, the State Department said today.

In its annual report on human rights, the department cited the records of Cambodia and North Korea as among the worst.

"Nowhere in the world are human rights more beleaguered than in Kampuchea (Cambodia)," said the report. It concluded that because of famine, war and repression, the very survival of the Khmer people, let alone their human rights, is in danger.

The report said both the Vietnamese and the remaining Khmer Rouge forces have been guilty of beating, deliberately starving and executing the people in areas under their control.

In North Korea, the "society is perhaps the most highly regimented and controlled in the world today," the report said.

North Koreans must engage in mandatory propaganda exercises daily. "Observation by informers is so prevalent that the average citizen is distrustful of even his closest associates," the report said.

In China, the department said the record was mixed. There has been "movement in the direction of greater freedoms" in the years since the death of Mao Tse-tung, including a livelier press, a formal legal system, and some tolerance of dissent.

"But the reforms have not yet broken the entrenched patterns of harassment, arbitrary arrest and harsh punishment for political dissent," the department said.

The Chinese still maintain large prison systems and labor camps, an extensive police system, and deny rights taken for granted in the West, such as the inviolability of the home from arbitrary search.

Government Claims More Subscriptions

WASHINGTON (AP)—Uncle Sam — not Time-Life, McGraw-Hill or any other well-known publishing firm — is the nation's biggest publisher of magazines and periodicals.
The Government Printing Office offers 420 titles and claims to be the "largest subscription service in the United States." Paid circulation totals only 1,051,260, far less than many commercial magazines. But Uncle Sam does seem to make an effort to offer something for everybody, with such varied offerings as "Aerospace Safety," "Aging," and "Fish Health News."

Chevron energy report:

In 1979,
Chevron made a nickel on a sales dollar.

But, most people think we made ten times that much.

A recent independent nationwide survey found that people believe, on the average, that oil company profits are about 57¢ on each sales dollar. That just isn't the case.

57¢ What most people think is oil company profit on a sales dollar, after taxes.*

Actually, Chevron's 1979 profit on each dollar of U.S. petroleum sales was 5.1¢ — about a nickel. Worldwide it was 5.3¢. (This compares to a 9-month average of 5.6¢ for all other major U.S. industries.)

5.1¢ Actual 1979 Chevron U.S. profit on a sales dollar, after taxes.

Part of Chevron's profit, of course, went back to our shareholders. The remaining profit and other cash from operations provided the funds for Chevron's expenditures in such areas as exploration and development of oil and gas fields, refineries, and transportation facilities.

In the U.S., these Chevron expenditures were equivalent to 10.7¢ per dollar of U.S. petroleum sales, more than double our U.S. profit.

Thank you for listening.

There is nothing ignominious about going down one trick at a small slam. At least the victim can take a certain pride in the boldness that led to the loss. But to be set one trick at a contract of five in a major suit which you reached under your own power is as devastating to the morale as it is to the exchequer. He who climbs to five hearts or spades when there is no one in pursuit is in a most unenviable position—he finds no hope of glory; no pride in having dared.

Which brings us to the sad case of Mr. North in today's hand. More properly our condolences should be extended to Mr. South, who had no voice at all in shaping his destiny, rough-hewn by his overenthusiastic partner. North got himself into trouble with his first rebid. Under the impression that he was making an absolute force, he jumped to three spades. No one could even quibble with South's raise to game. North, slam conscious all the while, suddenly decided that he had not yet done enough. He launched into Blackwood and settled in five spades when he discovered that two aces were missing. But the damage had already been done. There was no way to avoid the loss of a heart, a diamond and a club.

If North wishes to investigate slam possibilities, he should have done so at a level that was within his means. He could not afford to experiment at the five level, for such a contract ran unnecessary risks. Even if North showed up with an ace, there was no guarantee that he had trumps sufficiently well controlled to merit a slam.

North had placed his partner in a position where he could not come out whole. If South passed the three spade bid, he would miss a game. If he proceeded to game, his partner was intent on getting him overboard.

North's wisest rebid after his partner's one spade response would have been a leap to four spades. We are well aware of the cry that will greet this statement: "But that would be a shutout!" Fiddlesticks. After having opened the bidding with one heart, could North jump to four spades to deny a good hand? A player who has opened the bidding cannot thereafter make a shutout bid—he can only show a minimum. Bidding three spades ran the risk that South, with a dead minimum response, might pass! Have you been running into double trouble? Let Charles Goren help you find your way through the maze of Doubles for penalties and for takeout. For a copy of his Doubles booklet, send $1.70 to "Goren Doubles," P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07048. Make checks payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.

CASUAL DRESS — Casual Time accents this canvas jacket with striped trimmings, D-rings and pockets which lend fashion emphasis. The jacket's sleek appearance belies its hidden treasures — a warm lining and detachable hood.

WIN Project Helps Welfare Recipients

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — "I just couldn't wait to get off welfare. I guess that was why I was so determined," says Vera Guerro, 20-year-old mother who has gone from $287 per month from Aid to Families with Dependent Children to a job earning four times as much.

Thanks to the training she received through the San Jose Work Incentive Job Corps program, Guerro, the mother of four-year-old Angelo, is an electrical-mechanical draftsman with the City of San Jose.

Another former welfare recipient who earns $600 per month after receiving help from the WIN program is Irene Alarcon, 19. She began her training in November 1978 and is now an insurance secretary for a local real estate agency.

Her job is to take information from applicants for real estate insurance and to prepare applications and forms for use by reviewing insurance underwriters.

Michele Genero, 23, who is training to be an auto mechanic, expects no trouble in getting a job when she finishes her curriculum.

"My dad showed me how to do a tune-up on a car when I was 12 years old," she says. "Since then I have always wanted to be an auto mechanic. I like being around cars and I like to work with my hands. This (training) is a dream come true."

Genero, who has a two-year-old daughter, Kathleen, had received welfare payments for almost two years before she was accepted into the program, funded by the Office of Human Development Services in HEW and the Department of Labor.

The WIN project, for welfare recipients, trains mothers for jobs in private industry while providing day-care services and education for their pre-school children.

"The program provided these women with the personal confidence and job-skills training they needed to become independent," says Jacqueline Simon, San Jose WIN Project coordinator.

"Once we take these women into the program, we work very closely with them to help them change their attitude and perceptions about themselves through testing, peer review and counseling.

"And while we are working on attitudes," she adds, "we are testing them for skills abilities, informing them about the real-world facts of various occupations — including hours of work, physical requirements and pay — and training them, after very careful testing, in the vocation of their choosing.

Not a small part of the success of the project to date has been the Child Development Center, which is located on the premises of a former elementary school in an area of the city with a 65 per cent Hispanic population.

"This isn't just a day-care center," said Melba Lyons, center director. "The mothers bring their children here in the mornings, enjoy breakfast and lunches with them, and we teach the children social skills, colors, the alphabet, and how to read. While their mothers are learning, they are learning."

"The children, who range from infants to kindergartners, like knowing that their mothers are nearby," she pointed out. "And their mothers appreciate knowing that their children are well taken care of. This takes a lot of pressure off the mothers to find baby sitters. It works quite well."

"It's a real joy for me to see their faces or hear the thrill in their voices over the phone when they tell me that they have landed jobs," said Simon. "They are so proud of themselves."

According to Merwin Hans executive director of the Federal Work Incentive Program in Washington, D.C., 291,698 former recipients of AFDC got non-subsidized jobs in fiscal year 1978.

"We estimate that taxpayers were saved an estimated $900 million in welfare grants, Medicaid payments and food stamps when these recipients went off the rolls," Hans said.

Hairstylists say the curly look is definitely in, among men and women.

"Hair styles are just like fashion," said stylist Terwilliger. "It's a continuous cycle. Over a period of time the style will change, but men will probably continue to get perms."

In New York City, salon owners Eddie and Eleanor Krause said more than 45 percent of the haircuts and almost 33 percent of the permanents done by one of their stylists during the past six months were for male customers.

Among those getting perms recently were Don Blackburn, a bearded film director, model-actor Tom Fitzsimmons and former police officer Monte Walsh, who resigned recently because of a service-related leg injury.

"I'm going to get a couple of waves put in," said Walsh, to hide a receding hairline and give body to his hair.

Blackburn was having his second perm because the first had grown out.

"I was really tired of my straight hair," he said. "I wanted a change."

Fitzsimmons was having his straight blond hair curled "because I have a TV audition tomorrow for a curly-haired guy."

Mrs. Krause said many male clients are executives concerned about their image.

Men Enter Hair Fashion World

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI) — Hair-stylist Kathie Hoffman says five years ago she wouldn't have dreamed of giving a permanent to a man.

Now, she says, it's not only a routine part of her business but one she enjoys.

"The men are more easy to please, generally — except for the younger ones," said Hoffman, who works at a Philadelphia area salon.

Perhaps the male customers are easier to work with in Hoffman's view, but not to Wayne King, who works at a St. Clairsville, Ohio, salon.

"Men are harder to please," said King. "They're more finicky."

One thing most hairstylists in the area do agree on is that men nowadays are entering salons — once a woman's domain — in increasingly large numbers. Some are a bit bashful.

The trend began five or six years ago, says Max Matteson, national styles director for the St. Louis-based National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, but it's just now becoming strong in smaller communities such as Wheeling and Grand Rapids, Mich., where Matteson is co-owner of several salons.

"A few years ago, men didn't even want to stick their noses in the door to pick up their wives or girl friends," Matteson said in a telephone interview.

Now, he said, the women are asking salon operators if they'll accept male customers. Haircutting is the number one service for males, he said, with permanents second and manicuring, third.

Matteson said men getting permanents account for about 15-20 percent of his business and estimated "that's pretty close to a national average."

He thinks men are turning to salons because "style trends have changed and the barbering industry hasn't kept up with clients' requests."

He said men are getting permanents mostly to control straight hair and to give body to thinning hair.

Whatever the reasons, King, whose Ohio salon is near a school, says some of his male customers need a few stiff drinks before they muster the courage to come in for a permanent.

"At first, they don't want anybody to see them in curlers," said Elaine Smith, who owns a salon in Wheeling. "After the first perm they're at home. One man insists on coming in here early, before anyone else is here."

Stylist Patty Raab said: "Some men want a perm, but they're too chicken to come and get one."

"Men want to be pretty, the same as women," said Bill Wayne, a stylist at St. Clairsville.

"They all want to look their best. They're learning to take care of themselves the same as women," said Steve Terwilliger of Martins Ferry, Ohio.

Garp Feathers of Philadelphia didn't want to go to a salon for his first perm, so he had it done at home by a friend.

Rick Heckathorn, a high school student, says his friends teased him after his first perm but "they were just jealous" and he didn't let them bother him.

Chinese Like Western Clothing Designs

By ALINE MOSBY
 PEKING (UPI) — Western clothing is infiltrating the land of the Mao uniform.

People-watching on the streets of Peking disclosed one recent hot day that about one of every 75 women passing wore a timid copy of a Western skirt or dress.

Since the Gang of Four fell from power in China, a more relaxed leadership is transforming China's economy and the way people live. Clothes are part of the new look.

In a popular shop on Wang Fu Jin, one of the capital's busiest shopping streets, smiling manager Sun Thin Tai displayed short pleated skirts while a crowd of curious shoppers crowded around.

"See — Western style," Sun exclaimed with brisk salesmanship reminiscent of New York City's Seventh Avenue garment district. Taking up a jacket, he showed the gold embroidery on pockets and collar and added, "No deviations like this were allowed in the past."

Sun made clear his invasion of Western fashion does not mean the end of the famous unisex Mao uniform.

"But it is not possible to abolish the uniform. Everybody likes to have at least one," Sun said.

The Chinese have worn the loose trousers and jacket since their 1949 revolution.

"Varieties of clothing will be increased," Sun said later in his small office on a narrow side street near the shop. "The demand for Western clothing is increasing since last year. The variety of garments has been liberated."

Sun manages five shops on Wang Fu Jin. Merchandise is supplied by eight tailor workrooms around Peking.

In another shop he displayed women's trouser suits with jackets of a conservative Western cut reminiscent of a U.S. mail order catalog.

The Mao suit in summer synthetics sells for the equivalent of $9.49 and the Western suits, $56 to $111.

The baggy trousers and simple jacket foreigners call "the Mao uniform" is called the "liberation suit" by the Chinese. Possibly because the late Mao Tse-tung is less deified now, several Chinese were careful to point out that Sun Yat Sen, founder of the Chinese republic in 1911, designed the suit as a way to get Chinese men out of long robes and into a modern, yet Chinese, outfit.

Going abroad for the first time, Sun Yat Sen noticed the Japanese kimono was shorter than the constricting Chinese robe and devised the loose tunic jacket with a stand-up collar in ancient Chinese style. Loose trousers always had been worn by both men and women in China.

Mao wore the same suit as a guerrilla leader. After his 1949 victory, his regime manufactured the outfit for the populace, at first only in black or blue. The original jacket had nine buttons and pleats on the four patch pockets. Now there are five buttons, and the pockets are plain.

Last year the Mao suit blossomed into khaki green, pale blue, beige, pale gray. People now mix-match jackets and pants in different colors and women add blouses in bright prints.

Women also carry black fake leather shoulder bags slung over their shoulders in correct Western style.

Women no longer appear in public in the cheong-sam, the traditional narrow Chinese dress with side fastenings. As Sun explained, "That style is not convenient for women workers who are bicycling or getting onto buses. It is very tight. But some women wear it at home. That dress will be popular later on."

Sun said last year the government showed women Western styles and asked their opinions so "we can make designs according to what the customers like" — a novel thought for a communist nation. The poll showed women wanted Western suit jackets with lapels.

Sun promptly asked his tailors to make that style. "There is no interference from the Ministry of Commerce (which runs the clothing industry) regarding fashion," he said. Such styles have boosted his sales 41 percent from the Gang of Four days in 1976-1978.

While Western styles are surfacing in China, Western women in a reverse rush are buying the Mao uniform.

Around the corner from Sun's shop where Chinese girls crowded to buy accordion pleated skirts, two American fashion models — Esme Marshall of New York and Kim Charlton of Seattle — posed in a hotel lobby in Mao suits they had just bought.

On them the Chinese uniform looked different. They tucked the top into the pants and added a tight belt, stuffed the trouser hems into boots, rolled up the sleeves and turned up the collars.

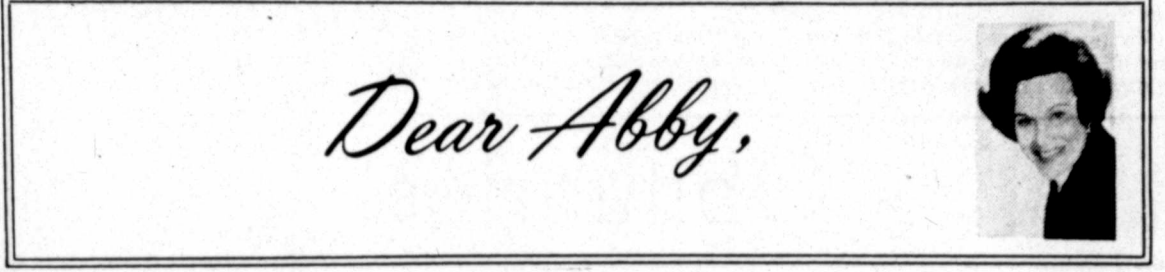

"These local clothes are great," said Miss Marshall.

Dear Abby,

DEAR ABBY: From time to time I read complaints from readers insisting that you didn't answer their letter, even though they sent self-addressed, stamped envelopes.

Well, I have written to you several times, and I have always received a prompt, personal and very helpful reply.

Our newspaper seldom prints your address, so I write in care of the newspaper.

Doesn't it ever occur to people that once in a while the mailman goofs up? Many times honest neighbors will bring us our mail which had been placed in their box by mistake!

Abby, please print your address. I'm sure your readers would appreciate it.

BELIEVES IN YOU

DEAR BELIEVES: Thanks, I needed that. My address is:
 ABBY
 BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF. 90212

Now, for some ground rules:
 Unlike "Letters to the Editor," you need not sign your name in order to have a letter answered in my column. But because I receive thousands of letters each week, the chances of being answered in the column are small. However, every letter accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope receives a personal reply. (I do not send form letters!)

Every letter is held in strictest confidence. Those sent in care of the newspaper are forwarded to me, unopened.

I never disclose the writer's name or location without his consent. (Some suggest their own "phony names; some are dreamed up by me.) Their locations are also changed in the interest of privacy, and to protect the innocent as well as the guilty.

Some published letters must be edited for clarity and length, but I do not alter the contents.

There is no charge for a personal reply, but I am not obligated to answer letters unless they are accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

So, if you have a personal problem and need help, write to me. I care.

 ABBY

DEAR ABBY: A recent column regarding the son who didn't want his father to visit him because he considered it an invasion of his privacy, struck home with us. We have a similar situation in that our married son, who lives in another city, doesn't want his mother to visit him for the same reason.

Three years ago my wife wrote to our son saying she would like to visit him and his wife. His response was out of this world! He told her in no uncertain terms that she could visit them only when it was convenient for him. The tone of his letter caused considerable anguish, and my wife was in tears for several days.

My wife has written him several times, asking when it would be convenient for her to visit, but he keeps putting her off with one excuse after another. Surely in three years there should have been one week for her to visit!

Our son has no use for me, so I stay out of his way, however, I feel very sorry for my wife.

Personally, I doubt if I never see the selfish guy again, but his mother is hurting.

What should I do?

CONCERNED

her son. I suspect that there is another side to this sad story.

DEAR ABBY: Re: Throwing birdseed instead of rice. Experience shows that the birds will eat the rice as wholeheartedly.

You "mustard seed" this one coming!

Syrian Withdrawal Plan Spurs Guerrilla Action

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria's announcement that it is withdrawing its peacekeeping troops from Beirut brought armed guerrillas into the streets of the Lebanese capital today, raising fears of a renewal of the 1975-76 civil war between Christian rightists and Moslem leftists.

Leftist gunmen in checkered battle fatigues slung AK47 Russian-made assault rifles over their shoulders and took up positions in predominantly Moslem West Beirut, ready to take over any spot the Syrians might vacate. Some 22,000 Syrian forces have been in Lebanon, about 5,000 of them in Beirut, ever since halting the war more than three years ago.

Spokesmen for rightist militias in mostly Christian East Beirut reported their forces were put on "maximum alert." But they said the measure was only a precaution and that they do not intend to rekindle the civil war.

There were no reports of fresh violence in the divided Lebanese capital since midnight. Rival leftist gunmen clashed in three different spots in West Beirut after the first word about the Syrian pullout leaked Monday.

After a hurried trip to Damascus by Lebanese Premier Salim el Hoss, Syrian President Hafez Assad agreed to delay the withdrawal of the 5,000 Syrian troops from the city for "a few days." But the Lebanese government has maintained that its army, which disintegrated during the civil war, still is not strong enough to enforce peace between the Christians and Moslems. No explanation was given for the sudden Syrian decision. But Hoss and Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam both said Syria's peacekeeping role in other parts of Lebanon would not be affected.

Chicago Teachers Disobey Court Order

CHICAGO (AP) — Teachers defied a court order to return to work today, and the city's classrooms were shut to students for a seventh day in the throes of a financial crisis.

Teachers picketed in protest to budget cuts approved by the Board of Education. They stayed away from classrooms all last week because they had not been paid.

Parents today were told to bring their children to school only to pick up learning materials or to have lunch.

"I don't think anyone can possibly feel children should be prevented from entering school to get lunch," acting Schools Superintendent Angeline Caruso said. "We have children in this city that would be hungry unless they get a meal in school."

Teachers were told that schools would be open for them, but the head of the teachers' union ordered members to defy a temporary restraining order designed to send them back to work.

Lawyers for teachers and the school board lawyers were headed back to court.

Meanwhile, the head of the Chicago Fire Fighters Union accused city negotia-

One Lebanese official said the troops from Beirut would move to the Bekaa valley in eastern Lebanon, only 40 miles from the capital, and could be moved back quickly if needed.

Meanwhile, housewives jammed supermarkets on both sides of the Green Line, the buffer zone between Beirut's Christian and Moslem sectors, to stock up on food and other supplies. Long lines of cars formed at gas stations throughout the city of 1 million people.

Bashir Gemayel, the commander of the Christian Phalange Party's militia, urged the Moslems to unite with Christian factions to "create solid bases for stability and sovereignty." But there was no response from the other side.

Gemayel indicated he hoped the pullout from Beirut was the first step in the withdrawal of all 22,000 Syrian troops.

One Dead, Two Hurt In Train Accident

DENISON (AP) — Seventy-nine boxcars loaded with grain broke loose from a stranded diesel train on an incline Tuesday and slammed into two switch engines, killing an engineer and injuring two crewmen.

At least 40 cars were jammed on top of each other after the impact, which scattered tons of corn and wheat across the countryside four miles north of Denison. Tracks and ties were uprooted for hundreds of yards.

The stranded Missouri-Kansas-Texas train was en route from Kansas City to the Gulf Coast when it slowed to 10 mph — complying with railroad rules — just across the Red River in Oklahoma. Because of the slower speed, the train could not make it up an incline into the Ray Yard terminal, just west of Denison.

The two switchers, sent to help the train over the incline, were only a few hundred yards away when the grain cars broke loose about 2:30 a.m., railroad officials said.

"All we know at this point is that the grain cars were parked at the 'Y' in the Ray Yards waiting for power to take them south," said Katy northern division manager, M.L. Janovec. "They broke loose and rolled down the track, gaining momentum as they rolled toward the river."

It was not known if the box cars broke loose from the engine car or had already been unhooked and broke loose from their own power brakes.

Buildozers worked through the early morning hours trying to free the dead engine. Jimmy Dershwiler, who was crushed beneath the engine car, buried under dozens of grain cars.

"We have to get our man out before we can begin to clean up," Janovec said. "We will still have to have more help."

Civiletti Refuses To Call For Prosecutor's Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti said today

he will not call for a special prosecutor to investigate the role of Treasury Secretary G. William Miller in questionable payments made to foreign officials by Textron Inc.

Miller's conduct as head of the company has been thoroughly investigated in the past by the Justice Department without any evidence of wrongdoing, Civiletti told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee.

"None (of the investigations) indicated culpability on the part of Mr. Miller at all," the attorney general said.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., said he was not convinced that the Justice Department had explored recent allegations by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

"These are very serious allegations by a government agency," Weicker said.

Jury Views Alleged Robbery

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Jurors this morning were shown 11 photographs allegedly depicting Cecilia Munoz Richardson's participation in a Sept. 3, 1979, aggravated robbery.

The store manager who says she was robbed that morning told the 13th District Court panel the woman pictured taking money from a cash register is Mrs. Richardson. However, the manager did not elaborate on when the pictures, taken by a "Crime Eye" hidden camera, were made.

Mrs. Richardson, 25, of 2220 Second Place is accused of helping Valton Donnell Lewis rob the 7-Eleven store at 802 Ave. Q last fall. The same pictures admitted into evidence this morning and passed through the jury box were crucial during Lewis's trial last November.

Lewis was convicted of the robbery and sentenced to life in prison.

Store manager Martha Scott told the five-woman, seven-man panel the 11 pictures show Mrs. Richardson and her male companion that morning taking $160 cash from the store register after they had beaten her. Mrs. Scott said the male bandit threatened her with a knife which Mrs. Richardson had handed him only moments earlier.

Mrs. Scott said the duo had come into the store about half an hour earlier and a brief argument had erupted when Mrs. Richardson tried to shoplift a burrito.

The manager told lead prosecutor Hollis Browning that after exchanging words with the couple, they left and returned about five minutes later.

Upon re-entering the store, Mrs. Scott said, Mrs. Richardson began "cussing and raving and said they were going to beat me up."

Mrs. Richardson and her companion then began throwing items across the counter at Mrs. Scott, the manager said, and when she reached for a phone to call the police, the man jerked the phone from her hand, ripping the receiver from the telephone. He handed the disconnected receiver to Mrs. Richardson, who then used the receiver to beat her, Mrs. Scott said.

Mrs. Scott told the panel she was able to reach a pay phone in the back of the store but said the bandits followed her and continued the beating.

It was then, Mrs. Scott said, the male bandit got the knife from Mrs. Richardson and said, "Let's get all the money."

She told the jury the robbers ran from the store when a police car drove up outside.

Although defense counsel Byron Chappell tried to shake Mrs. Scott's identification of Mrs. Richardson, the manager emphatically told the attorney, "That (Mrs. Richardson's) face is written in my mind."

Chappell also suggested that Mrs. Richardson acted drunk, but Mrs. Scott said, "Well, no, sir — just acted crazy."

Mrs. Scott was the first witness to testify this morning. The jury hearing Mrs. Richardson's case was seated late Monday afternoon, after Judge Robert C. Wright denied a defense motion to have the trial moved from Lubbock County.

Screening Program Helps Combat Hypothyroidism

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A baby born with hypothyroidism is in real trouble, but still has a chance if attending physicians can catch the problem in time.

Catching the problem — which leads to mental retardation — is the thrust of a statewide screening program to be administered to all infants born in Texas. A Health Sciences Center physician explained the problems of the thyroid condition and the benefits of the screening at an early morning news conference today.

Dr. Surrendra Varma explained that if the condition is not detected within the first three months of life, irreversible brain damage may cripple the infant. The screening program, signed into law in 1977 through the efforts of Varma, former State Senator Kent Hance and city councilman Alan Henry, is geared at reaching the more than 4,700 potential victims of hypothyroidism.

Though the legislation creating the program was passed several years ago, the operation was funded only through the last legislative session.

Once the condition is detected, treatment is fairly simple — a daily oral dose of thyroid hormone, which must be taken throughout the patient's life.

But a positive reaction in the screening (a simple blood test) is not a diagnosis. Confirmation tests from across the western and Panhandle sections of the state will be done at the laboratory of the Texas Tech medical school, and will be reviewed by Varma, associate professor and associate chairman of pediatrics.

Varma is a pediatric endocrinologist with a major interest in thyroid research. Varma displayed a book containing photographs of children retarded by a lack of thyroid hormone, stressing that these results can be avoided through the proper screening. Alaska, Idaho, Montana, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Washington, and now Texas, require the screening by law in all hospitals.

Of the approximately 1 million children screened since the programs first started in 1974, 280 cases of hypothyroidism have been detected and treated. "If you do it effectively, you can start treatment within two to three weeks," Varma said. "Treatment, begun in time, will prevent or greatly lessen the mental and physical retardation resulting from the condition."

Texas Politicians Face Tough Primary Races

AUSTIN (AP) — There will be no lack of competition among Texas politicians in the May 3 primaries or in the Nov. 4 general election.

Not to mention at least one presidential primary poll to stir up voters. After the filing deadline Monday afternoon, the big attraction of primary election day remains a straw vote on candidates for the GOP presidential nomination.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and Sen. Howard Baker joined former Texas Gov. John Connally and George Bush, former United Nations ambassador, on the May 3 ballot that will decide Texas' delegates to the national GOP convention in Detroit.

There was no sign of petitions reported circulating for San Francisco businessman Benjamin Fernandez or Rep. Phillip Crane.

Also submitted for the straw vote was a petition from John Kelso, columnist for the Austin American-Statesman who has carried on his campaign in his column.

Each petition is subject to further checks. Texas Democrats decided to elect their delegates by conventions, but will say on March 10 whether they will sponsor a "beauty contest" Democratic poll that would not affect delegate representation.

In the statewide and congressional races, Republicans decided they would contest Democrats in the two Texas Supreme Court races, both of the Texas Railroad Commission races and at least half of the district congressional races.

There were no Republican candidates for the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals but incumbents in all three races are contested by fellow Democrats.

Among the Democrats, Railroad Commission Chairman John Poerner officially declared himself a candidate for a full six-year term. He faces Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll. John Thomas Henderson, Austin real estate broker, is on the Republican ballot.

Commissioner Jim Nugent, Kerrville, seeks the two-year unexpired term on the oil and gas regulatory commission. Jim Hightower, former Austin magazine editor, filed as his opponent. H. J. "Doc" Blanchard, former state senator from Lubbock but now an Austin attorney, filed as a Republican candidate.

Associate Justice Will Garwood of the Texas Supreme Court, first of his party to hold such a high court job this century, has a Democratic opponent, Associate Justice C. L. Ray of the Texarkana Court of Civil Appeals.

San Antonio attorney Wayne Scott filed as a Republican opponent to the winner of a Democratic supreme court race between Chief Justice John Phillips of the Austin Court of Civil Appeals and James P. "Jim" Wallace, former state senator and associated justice of the Houston Court of Civil Appeals.

Two Democrats, Dallas attorney John E. Humphreys and Michael McCormick, Austin, are challenging Judge W. T. Phillips of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Edith Roberts, Austin attorney, was a last minute entry in the Democratic race for Place 3, Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. Already in the race were the incumbent, Judge Tom Davis, Austin, and Houston attorney Walter Boyd.

U.S. Rep. Joe Wyatt, Democrat of Bloomington, withdrew as a candidate for re-election and there quickly were four Democrats and two Republicans seeking his place. Among the Democrats were Sen. Bill Patman, Ganado, and Nueces County Judge Robert W. Barnes.

However, the Secretary of State's elections division announced that the filing date in that one race would remain open until Feb. 19 because Wyatt had officially filed for re-election then withdrew.

Wyatt voluntarily committed himself to Bethesda Naval Hospital last month for alcoholism treatment.

Formal filings at State Democratic Headquarters for a place on the May 3 ballot included:

Texas Supreme Court:
Place 1 — James P. "Jim" Wallace, 51, associated justice of the Houston Court of Civil Appeals; John C. Phillips, 62, chief justice of the Austin Court of Civil Appeals; Wayne Scott, 41, San Antonio, attorney.

Place 2 — Associate Justice Sears McGee, 62, Austin, incumbent.

Year Of Decision

Personal Troubles Force Wyatt To Withdraw From Campaign

AUSTIN (UPI) — Candidates for the Democratic nomination to Congress in Texas' 14th District will have another 15 days to file, with the removal of the incumbent, Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Texas, from the race.

Wyatt's recent troubles, including his admitted alcoholism and allegations of homosexual activities, which he has denied, prompted his withdrawal via a letter hand delivered to state Democratic headquarters only three hours before Monday's filing deadline for the May 3 primary elections.

Wyatt had announced weeks ago he would seek a second term, but was forced to reconsider after he entered Bethesda Naval Hospital for treatment of alcoholism and was accused of alleged homosexual activities. Wyatt said Saturday

'Doc' Blanchard Seeks TRC Post

AUSTIN (UPI) — Former Sen. H.J. Blanchard, a longtime Democrat, has joined the Republican camp and filed as a candidate for the Texas Railroad Commission, but Republicans failed to produce other major switch-overs from the Democratic Party to run in the GOP primary.

"I think that's a big gun," GOP Chairman Chet Upham said of Blanchard's entry into the race for the powerful Railroad Commission less than two hours before the filing deadline at 6 p.m. Monday.

Blanchard filed for the GOP nomination for the seat now held by James Nugent, a former Democratic representative from Kerrville who was appointed last year to a vacancy on the commission by former Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

"Nugent is a short-term," Upham said. "He has not really captured the support of the industry that he anticipated."

Blanchard, 56, served 11 years as a Democratic state senator from Lubbock before he was defeated in 1974 by Kent Hance. After his loss, Blanchard moved to Austin and opened a law office in the capital.

Blanchard's brother, C.H. "Choc," is a Democrat and incumbent sheriff of Lubbock County.

Upham said he personally recruited Blanchard and is excited about his chances.

"I think Blanchard's ability to generate support is very important," Upham said. "He probably has a wider area of support than any of the candidates in the Railroad Commission races."

Besides Blanchard, last minute filings at GOP headquarters produced none of the surprise switches by major Democratic incumbents that Gov. Bill Clements and some other Republican officials had predicted.

"I had hoped we would get some congressional switchovers but we didn't get them," Upham said. "Most of them are in pretty safe positions."

Upham said he also argued hard in an unsuccessful effort to convince longtime Sen. Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, to run as a Republican rather than retire from the Legislature.

Sen. Bill Braecklein, R-Dallas, did change his party affiliation with much praise from Clements last fall, but opted not to seek re-election when he drew strong opponents in the Republican primary.

Upham said the seats left open by Creighton and Braecklein are at the top of a list of eight to 10 Senate positions targeted by the GOP this year.

Republicans also are targeting 25 to 30 House seats in hopes of electing 20 to 25 new GOP representatives, Upham said.

Republicans gained one House seat last fall with the switch of Rep. Anita Hill, R-Garland, from the Democratic party.

Rep. Clay Smothers, R-Dallas, also switched from the Democratic to the Republican party but is running for Congress rather than re-election.

Other former Democratic candidates or officeholders running in the GOP primary this year include:

—R.L. Smith of Austin, elected to two terms as Travis County district attorney as a Democrat, seeking election to the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals where he was appointed to fill a vacancy by Clements last week.

—Martin P. Ross of San Antonio, a candidate in the Democratic primary for Congress two years ago, now on the GOP ballot.

—Jay Brummett of Cleburne, a former State Democratic Executive Committee staff member, seeking Creighton's former Senate seat.

—John Thomas Henderson of Austin, a former candidate in the Democratic primary for the Railroad Commission, seeking the GOP nomination to challenge the Railroad Commission chairman, John Poerner.

Kennedy Still Wants Debate With Carter

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is still trying to goad President Carter out of the White House and into the campaign, but Vice President Walter F. Mondale contends the voters want him in Washington and at work.

Kennedy tried a couple of new ploys Monday.

First, he accepted invitations to 35 debates in 22 states on the condition that Carter come, too.

Then he waved an invitation to the White House at a campaign rally in Concord, N.H., saying, "I didn't get this, but 300 citizens of New Hampshire did."

While Democrats debated their debateless campaign, a crowd of Republicans courted New Hampshire voters, chiding criticism of the administration.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan was staging a nine-town campaign swing today — the eve of his 69th birthday. At a Monday night campaign rally, a turnout of perhaps 100 people sang "Happy Birthday" while Reagan beamed.

He said all the discussion of his age didn't bother him a bit.

Reagan said New Hampshire is "a very important state" to him, but avoided calling a victory here essential to his campaign. He said no one state is a make-or-break test.

Former United Nations Ambassador George Bush, who beat Reagan in Iowa's Republican caucuses Jan. 21, said he came to New Hampshire to do it again.

"My main objective is to beat Reagan," he said. "He was clearly out in front and he's the man I must beat."

Bush's triumph in Iowa came in a non-binding straw poll.

He placed a distant third Saturday, behind front-running Reagan and Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, as Arkansas Republicans selected 12 of their 19 delegates to the Republican National Convention.

After a 14-hour campaign day Monday, Bush wound up before a crowd of 1,100 at Plymouth State College reiterating his contention that he won't make phony promises to get votes.

"Jimmy Carter ruined the campaign promise business for everyone," he said.

Carter, who has not been campaigning on grounds he must devote his time to world problems in Iran and Afghanistan, was represented Monday by Mondale in Portland, Maine.

The vice president said campaign issues are being debated despite Carter's absence and added, "We have only one president of the United States. We've got this crisis, and I am convinced that at this time, the American people much prefer having their president in Washington."

day in Victoria he would quit the race, but he denied involvement in any homosexual activities.

The secretary of state's office said Monday because Wyatt withdrew on the day of the filing deadline, it would be automatically extended until 6 p.m. Feb. 19 for candidates in the Democratic primary race for his office.

Former state Rep. Joe Salem of Corpus Christi; Nueces County Judge Robert N. Barnes; Sen. William N. Patman, D-Ganado; and former Corpus Christi Mayor Jason Luby all have filed for the Democratic nomination in Wyatt's district. Russ Baird of Wharton and Gerald D'Unger of Corpus Christi are seeking the GOP nomination in that district.

Several other Texas congressmen face opposition in the May 3 primary elections.

Steven Schmidt filed against Rep. Martin Frost, D-Texas, in a Dallas race; Allen L. Sumners of Lufkin is opposing Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas; W.L. Pate and Jack Brookshire filed for a primary race against Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas; Jerdy Gary and former state Sen. Ralph Hall are competing for the Democratic nomination to the seat being vacated by the retirement of Rep. Ray Roberts, D-Texas; Paul Rich of Von Ormy is running against Rep. Abraham Kazen Jr., D-Texas; Greg Stallings of Austin is challenging Rep. J. J. Pickle, D-Texas; and Marilyn Gibson Jones and Joe Sullivan, both of San Antonio, are competing for the right to challenge Republican Rep. Tom Loeffler in November.

In a Houston area race that should attract considerable attention, Joseph Pentony, Michael Andrews and former Rep. Bob Gammage are seeking the Democratic nomination for the seat now held by Rep. Ron Paul, R-Texas. Gammage previously beat Paul in a special election, then lost to him in 1978.

Texas Republicans fielded candidates in at least 11 congressional districts.

Clayton Challenged For Speaker's Post

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas formally announced today he will challenge Speaker Bill Clayton for speakership of the 1981 Texas House of Representatives.

Clayton is seeking an unprecedented fourth term as presiding officer of the House.

Bryant, 32, said he had commitments from 62 incumbent House members that they would vote for him when representatives choose their speaker next January. In addition, he said, 11 incumbents oppose a fourth term for Clayton but fear to commit this early to another candidate.

It takes a majority of the 150-member House to elect a speaker.

Powell Rejects Candidacy Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. says Texas authorities cannot temporarily enforce candidacy restrictions struck down as unconstitutional last month.

In a one-word order — "denied" — initiated late Monday, Powell refused to postpone the effect of a Jan. 23 ruling by U.S. District Judge Harry Hudspeth in El Paso.

The ruling struck down two sections of the Texas Constitution that limited the rights of certain elected state officials to seek other elective offices.

The Texas attorney general's office had asked Powell to stay Hudspeth's ruling

Connecticut GOP Airs Budget Plan

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Republican leaders of the General Assembly today proposed a $2.59 billion state budget for the coming year and they said it can meet the needs of government with no tax increases.

Senate Minority Leader Richard Bozuto of Watertown and House GOP Leader Ralph Van Norstrand of Darien said that the Grasso administration is playing with numbers when it calls for tax increases in the year ahead.

Gov. Ella Grasso's budget message to the legislature Wednesday is expected to include a proposal to increase the state sales tax from its present 7 percent to 7.5 percent.

The GOP proposal for a $2.59 billion budget compares with the current state budget of just under $2.4 billion. Mrs. Grasso is expected to propose a budget of $2.67 billion Wednesday.

The Republican leaders said new taxes are not needed.

"The key to sound budgeting is to first establish available income and then appropriate within that amount," Bozuto said. "If this is done, we can have an increase of $153 million this fiscal year ... a greater increase than last year with no increases in taxes."

They said state revenue should increase about 8 percent during the coming year, more than enough to support the budget with no tax hikes.

The two GOP leaders accused Mrs. Grasso of calling for a tax increase this year so that she can begin building up a surplus for 1982 when she has said she will run for a third term. They said come 1982 she will have enough money salted away to cut taxes and increase spending at the same time.

Bozuto said her plan was designed "so we can begin the same process all over again; to build up money for some future year, some future election."

The GOP leaders said their proposed budget would not mean massive spending cuts, although it would require setting careful priorities. They said Mrs. Grasso has not done that and has increased state spending by 50 percent since she took office in 1975.

"We should not spend more than we are going to take in under existing taxes," Van Norstrand said.

Six House Chairmen Decide Not To Run

AUSTIN (UPI) — Aside from opening up races in their home districts, the decisions by a half-dozen House committee chairmen not to seek re-election puts a powerful tool in the hands of House Speaker Bill Clayton.

The loss of the six committee chairmen will cut into Clayton's "team" in the House, but it also will give him additional clout in his bid for an unprecedented fourth consecutive term as speaker because he can use the chairmanship appointments as political plums to solidify his support.

In all, about 20 incumbent members of the House have said they will not be candidates for nominations to new terms in the state's May 3 primary elections. Three members of the state Senate also are leaving their posts, either for retirement or to try for higher offices.

Sen. Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, a Senate veteran and chairman of the Economic Development Committee which routinely handles bills affecting business and industry, is retiring, along with Sen. Bill Braecklein, R-Dallas, who switched from the Democratic to Republican parties, then decided to drop out after he encountered opposition in the GOP primary.

Fortune Magazine Changes With Times

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — It was once popular to say that magazines had a life-death cycle. They were born to serve a new or developing need, it was said. They blossomed with it, and then they faded away together.

Fortune magazine, celebrating its 50th birthday, researched the notion and found that when exposed to the facts the notion also faded. Forty magazines have observed or will observe their 50th anniversaries.

They — Business Week, Harper's, Atlantic, New Republic, Reader's Digest among them — did it, said Robert Lubar, Fortune's managing editor, by changing with the times. And how the times have changed.

The first Fortune weighed more than two pounds, and measured about 14 by 11 inches. It was sumptuous; its cover was stiff as cardboard; its pages felt like parchment and looked like ivory.

It wasn't for a mass audience, but seemingly for those fortunate few who by the good God's guidance had come to run industry... the tycoons, the founders, whose names might identify their companies.

The magazine was not for a subway or even a commuter train, but for the parlor car en route to the Hamptons or Palm Beach. At home it wasn't to be tossed with the daily newspapers, but placed neatly on a coffee table and then bound in volumes for the library.

It wasn't for consumers, who barely were a force, but for producers, who were a power. The nearest thing to a consumer article in the first Fortune was "A Budget for a $25,000 income in Chicago" that included $3,300 for servants and $2,500 in savings — and $830 for taxes.

Its advertisements honored smokes-tack America, Herculean figures, and fire, steel and towering skyscrapers depicted industrial might. And ads for sports cruisers, Pierce Arrows, and the White Star Line suggested the comfort that came to those who ran the show.

It's a different show now. Regulation, taxation, and economic democratization ("Socialism" cried the old guard) grew from the New Deal. Depression was followed by wars, mass prosperity, the consumer movement, inflation, and now by who knows what.

Magazines that survived these decades have done so by changing while miraculously remaining the same.

Fortune especially has had to accommodate to a swifter pace that means smaller articles. While corporate biographies remain, there is as much news of government, and in fact Washington seems to dominate business news generally. Fortune readership is more widespread, as is economic well-being. But some of the elegance — some would say extravagance, as in paper stock — has given way to inflation and cost-cutting.

But Fortune, says Lubar, is the same — only changed. It is now a biweekly (every two weeks) rather than a monthly.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

- AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It would be a costly mistake to try to use money as the solution to winning others over to your side tomorrow. Be open and honest and they'll respond with the same fairness.
- PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be tempted to make excuses in order to dodge responsibility for something that went awry. Much to your credit, you'll face up to it.
- ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be extra careful tomorrow that you don't handle a co-worker in a harsh manner. Later, it would take all the diplomacy you could muster to patch things up.
- TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A task facing you tomorrow will be easier to tackle if you think about rewards you'll be getting rather than of the person who caused the inconvenience.
- GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't think you have to manipulate family members in order to get your way tomorrow. Use a little flexibility. They'll cooperate with your desires.
- CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may do a lot of fancy talking in an attempt to get out of certain domestic responsibilities today. Don't waste your breath. Your nobler instincts won't permit it.
- LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're the most charming and kind person tomorrow in dealing with others in all matters except one: Money. In this, you tend to be a little tight-fisted.
- VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In your zest to take care of all your responsibilities and get your work done

Shows To Be Captioned For Deaf

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three television movies a week and several popular prime time entertainment shows will head the list of programs to be captioned for the deaf with the initiation of a unique system by three networks March 15.

Participating in the so-called "closed captioning system," will be ABC, NBC and the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS).

The system is considered "closed" because the captions will not be visible without a special decoder which must be attached to a TV set. It is thus designed to avoid the problem of irritating viewers with normal hearing who don't want to be distracted by captions on their screen.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. has agreed to sell the special decoders nationwide and has already listed the device in its spring catalog at a price of $249.95.

According to network officials, the new system remains on schedule for the March start-up and decisions have now been made on which programs will be captioned.

NBC has announced it will close-caption the "Wonderful World of Disney" as well as its Monday and Friday night movies.

ABC will caption its Sunday night movie, in addition to "Eight is Enough," "Vegas," and "Barney Miller" — plus a fifth program still to be announced.

PBS, meantime, will close-caption "Masterpiece Theatre," "Once Upon A Classic," "3-2-1 Contact," "Mystery Theater" and "NOVA" when the system opens, and will add "Over Easy" and "Odyssey" by May.

The key to the new system is the use of a small portion of the television signal to carry captions.

TV pictures are made up of lines, some of which are blank. The new system will use one of the blank lines — Line 21 — to transmit captions similar to the subtitles in foreign films.

According to federal statistics, there are an estimated 1 million persons with hearing impairments in the United States, 2 million of them totally deaf.

Strange Political Parties Formed

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — For some University of California students, politics means having to say you're sorry.

They're members of the Apology Party, one of seven parties vying for 16 student senate seats at the Berkeley campus. No matter how the election turns out, the group vows to be sorry.

One member, Stephen Mazur could only express his regrets.

"I'm really sorry," he said. "I'm sorry about death and unhappiness and Fresno and hypocrisy and DC-10s and the Olympics and refrigeration and any disease and also Jerry Lewis. I don't want to leave him out."

Other parties include the Apathy Party, which proposes turning the California School for the Blind into a health spa, and the Conservative Gumbo Party, which advocates hamster worship and "whips and chains for all."

A university spokesman who asked not to be identified said he "seen it all."

DR. LAMB

New Hope For Acne

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I read a magazine article about a new treatment for acne. I'm 29 years old and have had acne since I was 13. This new treatment is 13-cis retinoic acid (a vitamin A acid that's taken orally). I was wondering how effective this treatment is and if there are any side effects.

DEAR READER — The preliminary research work on the new derivative of vitamin A is promising. The results noted in individuals with severe acne that hasn't responded well to other treatment is really quite remarkable.

This new treatment is not available for doctors to prescribe to patients at this time. It's still undergoing testing. While the results are good, it needs to be tested long enough to be sure that there are no important side effects or complications of the medicine itself.

I'd like to point out that this is not the same thing as standard vitamin A that people can buy in stores. Often young people will try to take large amounts of vitamin A to control acne. It doesn't and, worse than that, too much vitamin A can cause a vitamin A toxicity.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 151, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This issue will provide the necessary information that you need to do whatever can be done with a home management program.

Basically, this entails using warm, moist soaks to help loosen the fatty secretions that have plugged the pores of the skin and effort to decrease the overproduction of the oily sebum material to begin with.

If such simple measures won't work to provide adequate control of acne, a person really should see a doctor. There are many things he can do for you, including prescribing antibiotics when needed.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a friend who broke his neck in a diving accident six years ago and is now paralyzed from the waist down. Recently I've heard of experimental operations being performed on dogs that have been successful in reconstructing the break. Has this type of operation ever been performed successfully on human beings? If so, I would appreciate any information you might have concerning this.

DEAR READER — Some other readers might not know that the spinal cord and the brain will not regenerate if they've been injured. That's why if you damage the spinal cord in the right place, you may be paralyzed.

For years doctors have sought some means of inducing regeneration in injuries of the cord and brain — without a lot of success.

You probably read about some research in which the spinal cord in dogs was crushed and then the segment that was crushed was cut out and replaced with a special nerve tissue grafting which did result in re-growth of the damaged area. That's very promising research but it's still at the animal stage. It will be quite a long while yet before we know whether or not it will be successful in humans. And even then it may be useful only in those who have recent injuries.

Disney Studios Roll Out Love Bug For Movie

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Volkswagen doesn't sell its bug model in the United States anymore but Herbie, the lovable 1964 VW of Disney movie fame, rolls out of the starting gate for the fourth time in "Herbie Goes Bananas."

The familiar sun-roofed VW with red, white and blue racing stripes and the number 53 stenciled on its doors heads for Latin America this time around, confounding Cloris Leachman and Harvey Korman in the process, both in the United States and abroad.

The doughty little automobile made its debut in "The Love Bug" in 1969, topping all other films that year at the box office.

Disney produced "Herbie Rides Again" in 1974 and "Herbie Goes to Monte Carlo" in 1977. The combined box-office receipts for the three VW pictures so far is $200 million, an incredible figure considering the star is a car.

Don Tait, who wrote and produced "Herbie Goes Bananas," thinks "The Love Bug" could not have been made with any other automobile.

"The VW is a sort of symbol of the little guy," Tait said. "Stacked up against all the big cars in the world, Herbie is the underdog who can do superhuman things. Most people in the audience can identify with him."

"Not every car would have been a success as the hero of a movie. I mean, a Dodge or an Oldsmobile just wouldn't have cut it. Herbie is a car with personality."

It may be lunacy, but everyone on the Disney lot refers to Herbie in the third person singular personal pronoun. Herbie is "he" and "him" to the men and women who make the movies.

"During the course of writing the script I just began thinking of Herbie in terms of being human," Tait said with a self-conscious grin.

Tait's co-producer, Kevin Corcoran, said, "The VW was picked in the first place because it looks like a little creature — a beetle.

"And if you think we're crazy for talking about Herbie as if he were human, you ought to see the fans. They do everything but ask Herbie for autographs. They pat the car and lay all over it."

"When we transported Herbie to Mexico we had to keep him covered with tarps so he wouldn't disappear. We had to hide him from his fans."

Neither Tait nor Corcoran were associated with previous Herbie movies, but special effects man Danny Lee, a Disney veteran, has designed modifications for the VWs on all four pictures.

According to Lee, Herbie is actually a 1964 VW, a model that is increasingly difficult to find. Because 26 VWs were used as Herbie in the new film, Lee had to scour the Los Angeles area to find the cars.

"We had to settle for some later models which we then modified," Lee said. "We replaced parts to make them all look alike. We even had to cut sun roofs in some of them."

"The studio paid between $800 and $1,500 for the cars. Then we put an average of $5,000 into each one to meet the needs of the script."

In "Herbie Goes Bananas" the VW is dropped off a cruise ship into deep waters off the Mexican coast, converted to a taxi, involved in a bullfight, badly banged up in a "dogfight" with an airplane and drives through the Panama Canal.

It takes considerable engineering to enable Herbie to pop wheelies on his rear wheels. A Fiberglass body is used on the VW frame which is truncated slightly; lead weights are added to the rear. Fast acceleration does the rest.

"We've floated Herbie in almost all of his pictures," Lee said. "It wasn't too complicated for the Panama Canal scene. We used expansion foam under the tenders and hood. And the tires were made of foam."

"We replaced the engine with two electric motors which propelled Herbie through the locks in great style. He's the first car ever to travel through the Panama Canal on its own power."

Royal Wedding May Occur

LONDON (UPI) — Rumors of a royal match between Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, and Princess Marie-Astrid of Luxembourg, are once again cropping up.

The News of the World said Sunday the attractive daughter of Grand Duke Jean and Grand Duchess Caroline had a private audience with Pope John Paul II last week that church sources believed centered on problems of "mixed marriage."

Marie-Astrid, 26, is a Catholic. Charles will someday succeed his mother, Queen Elizabeth, as head of the Church of England.

The royal family has previously denied there were family discussions on the matter. But the newspaper said the queen has favored Marie-Astrid since the princess was 18 and has a photograph of her in the queen's apartment at Belmora, the royal home in Scotland.

Queen Elizabeth is scheduled to meet the Pope during a visit to Italy later in the year. The News of the World said Dr. Robert Runcie — who will become the archbishop of Canterbury, primate of the Church of England, in the spring — said he would not object to a mixed marriage for Charles.

Afghanistan Rebels Push New Attacks

By The Associated Press
Anti-communist rebels have launched a new series of attacks in eastern Afghanistan, it was reported today in Moscow and New Delhi, but the accounts differed on whether Soviet or Afghan troops were bearing the brunt of the fighting in the snowswept mountain region.

Tass said the upsurge in attacks coincided with U.S. National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski's visit to neighboring Pakistan last weekend.

Tass today also denounced as "monstrous misinformation" U.S. reports quoting Afghan refugees as saying that Afghan troops led by Soviet advisers massacred more than 1,000 men last April in an eastern Afghan village whose people were accused of collaborating with the rebels.

According to the refugee accounts reported by the Christian Science Monitor and Newsweek magazine, 200 Afghan troops led by 20 Soviet advisers ordered all men in the town of Kerala to assemble in a field, forced them to line up in crouching positions and then opened fire with machine guns. A bulldozer then plowed the bodies under the ground, the refugees said.

Afterward, the troops went through the town gunning down any other males they found.

In another development, Western diplomats in New Delhi said about 100 shops in central Kabul, the Afghan capital, burned down in the early morning hours Sunday in what may have been an attempt to cover up looting by Soviet troops.

The fire occurred about four hours after the start of the 11 p.m. curfew, when the city is patrolled by Soviet troops and armored vehicles, they noted.

One source said there have been recent reports of widespread shoplifting by Soviet soldiers, and that rumors of new looting spread quickly through the Kabul bazaar later Sunday.

The Tass battle report, in a dispatch from Kabul, said the new fighting erupted in the eastern provinces of Nangarhar, Badakhshan and Paktia.

In Nangarhar, bordering on Pakistan, bandits cruelly slew peaceful people, burned down several schools, blew up bridges and roads, Tass said, and units of the Afghan army "have started liquidating the gangs."

It said similar "liquidations" were under way in Badakhshan and Paktia.

But reliable Western sources in New Delhi said Soviet forces were engaged in the fighting.

"The Soviets are taking casualties," said one source. "But just how many, I couldn't say."

"The Afghan troops in the area do not seem to have the heart to fight the rebels," Times of India correspondent J.D. Singh wrote from the Kabul. "They return fire when attacked, but merely as a formality."

The Western sources in India, who asked not to be identified, reported continued fighting in Badakhshan involving well-coordinated attacks by rebels, some armed with captured mortars and possibly howitzers.

ON GUARD — A National Guardsman watches over prisoners at the New Mexico State Penitentiary near Santa Fe Monday as the inmates mill around the grounds of the severely damaged facility. anywhere from 75 to 100 primarily responsible for the atrocities."

He said he expects to charge as many as 100 inmates with crimes ranging from murder to vandalism.

"The emphasis of our investigation is being placed on the more violent crimes such as homicide and kidnapping," he said.

Martinez said he will "ask for the stiffest penalties possible."

New Mexico allows the death penalty for a murder committed during a prison escape, but it remained unclear whether the incident that began early Saturday could be considered under that statute.

Twenty-eight inmates were isolated and held under administrative arrest, officials said.

David King, Secretary of Finance and Administration, estimated it will cost $26.6 million to rebuild parts of the prison that can be salvaged. State Rep. Fred Mondragon estimated the cost of building a new prison at a minimum of $40 million.

All prisoner records were destroyed in fires that burned until early Monday, Griffin said. Richards said other copies exist, but officials were having some difficulty obtaining them.

City Hearing On Gasohol Under Way

complete, saying "it only takes about 10 minutes."

The state production permit, which costs the applicant $100, must be obtained along with the permit from the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms for alcohol plant construction on a small scale.

McBeath said a farmer or rancher can operate a distillery to produce alcohol for other than human consumption on any leased or owned property under his control.

Also speaking at the hearing was Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms representative Hershel Stewart, who explained that the federal permit is free to the applicant but that a distiller's bond must be obtained.

Stewart said that if production is under 2,500 gallons a year, the bond costs $100.

To compute the cost for a larger capacity, Stewart said the applicant should multiply $21 by the estimated 15-day production.

Stewart said that new legislation, art said that new legislation, if passed, will do away with the distiller's bond for the small-scale producer.

The hearing was expected to continue throughout the afternoon.

Solons Vote To Boost Flight Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, apparently concerned about reports that non-commissioned officers are leaving the military in droves, has approved a package of increased allowances and bonuses for the military.

The measure, approved 87-1 Monday evening after several hours of parliamentary wrangling, would cost taxpayers $486 million a year. It now goes to the House.

The Senate opted for that proposal instead of a bill to raise the pay of the 2 million members of the armed services by 3.4 percent.

The package approved, with only Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., dissenting, authorizes variable housing allowances pegged to local costs and hikes in moving allowances, subsistence allowances, sea pay and flight pay.

In addition, it authorized re-enlistment bonuses for military personnel with 10 to 15 years of service.

Bellmon apparently felt the bill would boost the budget deficit.

The approval vote came after freshman Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., caught the legislators off guard with a parliamentary ploy that launched an eight-hour battle.

"An element of surprise," was what Armstrong called it.

Armstrong chuckled about the parliamentary warfare later, and viewed the outcome as a half a victory. He said Nunn and Warner would not have offered their proposal unless they had been forced to as a way to counteract his amendment.

And Armstrong said he would propose his pay raise amendment again. He refused to discuss his next strategy, saying disclosure now "may be not too wise."

Poerner Opens Vote Bid, Rips Opponent

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Texas Railroad Commission Chairman John Poerner opened his re-election campaign today with a swing through West Texas, hurling charges that his Democratic primary opponent, State Rep. Buddy Temple of Diboll, would have "built-in and inescapable" conflicts of interest if elected.

Poerner, 47, a 1978 appointee to the commission who was elected to serve out the remainder of an unexpired term later that year, criticized Temple for his interests in Temple-Eastex Corp. in a 9 a.m. news conference at the Hilton Inn.

"Unfortunately, there is no way for him to separate his vast Temple-Eastex interests from those of the Railroad Commission," Poerner, an attorney and former state representative from Hondo, said. "The use of regulated motor carriers, trains, production of oil and gas on millions of acres of timberland and setting a price on natural gas in the areas of their manufacturing are just a few."

Temple, 37, is board chairman of Executor Investment Co., which has bank and real estate holdings throughout the state, and is on the boards of nine other companies and financial institutions, including Temple-Eastex, a Time-Life subsidiary that has timber, wood processing, mortgage lending and manufacturing operations over the state.

Temple — Arthur "Buddy" Temple III — is the son of Time Inc. board vice chairman Arthur Temple Jr.

Poerner said today that he supported a bill pushed by Temple in the past legislative session to change the name of the Railroad Commission, but since has changed his mind.

The unsuccessful bill would change its name to the Texas Commission on Energy and Transportation, but Poerner said the agency "will again have a role in the railroad industry" in coming years.

As part of his platform, Poerner is proposing "bullet train" passenger service between Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio and Houston.

Referring to the increasing costs of operating motor vehicles, he said, "I think we need the railroads more today than when we gave them land to lay tracks across Texas."

Poerner said Railroad Commission relations with the federal Department of Energy have improved greatly since the replacement of James Schlesinger by Texan Charles Duncan as secretary.

He said the commission should encourage the development of more energy sources, including the vast coal reserves in the state, adding, "The only way we're going to survive as a nation is to use all the sources of energy available to us to free ourselves from the shackles of foreign oil."

Poerner will serve a full six-year term on the three-man commission if he is re-elected.

He was appointed to replace the retiring Jim Langdon, and he defeated former commissioner Jerry Sadler in a run-off election.

He was named chairman last year.

Tehran Radio Reports Sabotage Of Pipelines

By The Associated Press

A series of explosions damaged six pipelines in Iran's oil-producing Khuzestan province and started a fire that blazed for eight hours before being put out, Tehran Radio reported today.

In New York, meanwhile, a delegation of 50 Americans prepared to leave tonight for Iran to hold an "intensive dialogue" with militants who have held some 50 Americans hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran since Nov. 4. The embassy militants invited the delegation for a private, one-week visit, with the understanding they agreed not to discuss the hostages but to concentrate on learning about the Iranian revolution.

Tehran Radio, monitored in Kuwait, said the explosions Monday night occurred about 7 miles from the provincial town of Aghajari.

Earlier, it reported Iranian authorities had arrested three Iraqis who were charged with carrying out subversive acts in the southwestern province, which is bordered on the west by Iraq.

The three, arrested Sunday near the provincial capital, had 10,000 rounds of ammunition in their possession and admitted they had hidden another 18,000 rounds in a cache on the highway between Ahwaz and Abadan, the radio said.

An initial investigation showed the men "have links with groups that have carried out sabotage operations in the Khuzestan province," the radio said.

Autonomy-seeking Arabs, who form the majority of the population in Khuzestan, have been carrying out sabotage attacks against oil installations for the past nine months.

The explosions near Aghajari raised to eight the total of pipeline incidents in the province in the past four days.

NBC News quoted State Department sources as saying they understood former U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young "is either on his way to Tehran or already has arrived there" to meet with representatives of Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and the embassy militants.

President Carter, asked about the report, said Young was "not going as an emissary of the government." Presidential spokesman Rex Granum said earlier the White House was unaware of plans for Young to go to Iran, and a senior State Department official said Young was going to Nigeria and Algeria.

In Tehran, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said the government was not aware of any visit by Young. "We have not invited Andrew Young to Iran and we do not know if he is in the country or not," he said.

Spokesmen for the embassy captors declined to comment and Khomeini's office in the holy city of Qom said it had no knowledge of any such visit.

Members of the Committee for American-Iranian Crisis Resolution gathered in New York prior to their 7 p.m. departure, but spokesmen refused to discuss details of the trip, its purpose, or the committee itself.

Two Plainview Republicans Vie For Nomination In District 76

current operations in the sheriff's department "a lopsided organization."

According to Southerland, "A lot of money is being poured into the new jail, but the rest of the sheriff's department has been forgotten."

An example of this, Southerland said, is seen in the salaries currently paid the chief deputy and the jail administrator. He said the chief deputy draws approximately $3,000 less than the jail administrator.

"We went from one extreme to another with our jail," Southerland said. "I think if it continues under the same operation and with the same system, the jail will someday become a burden on taxpayers."

Southerland, noting that all other candidates have been employed in the sheriff's department, said, "A new person from the outside comes in with new ideas."

One of Southerland's new ideas is to reorganize the sheriff's office under three divisions, covering the jail, administration and patrol. Under his plan, Southerland said there would be three equally paid supervisors, all working directly under the chief deputy.

Southerland said his plan should provide better patrol coverage in the county's rural areas.

The 47-year-old Southerland, a native of Brownfield, served 17 years in the Army before joining the police department in 1966. He was made a corporal in 1977 and has been a member of the department SWAT team.

Turner ripped into the incumbent for what he described as mismanagement of law enforcement and jail administration during the 11 years Blanchard has been in office.

Campaign co-chairman Bob Van Sycle announced at Turner's campaign opening that the campaign "will be open, direct, issue-oriented and fair — but it will be tough."

Turner said, "I would like to stand here and tell you you have a good sheriff who has a good program going. I can't because he doesn't."

The 46-year-old Turner served as a Lubbock County deputy 10 years under Sheriff Grady Harrist and three years under Blanchard, resigning in 1971 to work in airport security at Lubbock International Airport. He also was chief deputy in Hockley County from 1974 to 1977.

Since that time, he has been employed by Verna Drilling Co. at Levelland and has worked as a truck driver out of Lubbock.

Turner criticized Blanchard for the several unsolved murder cases remaining on Lubbock County books and said he obtained convictions on all 15 murder cases he was assigned as a deputy. He also said he is an authority on forgery cases.

Promising "efficient public service at the least cost," Turner said he would use economy cars for serving civil papers and other non-patrol work and would use larger cars only when necessary.

Solis, chairman of the Lubbock County Raza Unida Party in 1977 and 1978, said any philosophical differences he might have with other commissioners could prove beneficial. He said he moved to the Democratic party because La Raza did not garner enough votes in the last election to qualify as a party.

Solis outlined what he sees as the primary concerns of Precinct 3 as better road conditions, employment and beautification, explaining his own candidacy as a "sincere intent to serve."

He criticized the commissioners court for voting themselves a pay raise last year while claiming budget limitations when asked to spend money in other areas.

"I don't believe their point of view is necessarily representative of the whole community," Solis said. Using community standards, he said that he would probably be classified as a liberal.

Solis added that if wishing to better the community made him a liberal, he was comfortable with the label.

Solis holds a M.A. degree in communications from Wichita State University and a B.A. degree in Latin American studies from Texas Tech. He is currently the executive director for the migrant worker program, Llano Estacado.

Another candidate for the Precinct 1 commissioner post also filed shortly before the deadline Monday. Local furniture store owner Rodney G. Harvey filed for the post as a Democrat. The precinct covers southwestern Lubbock County.

Other candidates who had previously filed in the sheriff's race include Blanchard and former deputy Mike DeRosa, both Democrats, and former deputy D.L. "Sonny" Keesee, a Republican.

Candidates who filed earlier in the Precinct 1 commissioner race include the Democratic incumbent, Edgar Chance, and Boyd Roberts, a Republican.

Other candidates in the Precinct 3 commissioner race are incumbent James Lancaster and Franklin Dunn. Both filed as Democrats.

University Launches Heart Care Program

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California School of Education has embarked on a $150,000 program, funded by the Los Angeles affiliate of the American Heart Association, to teach children from kindergarten through the sixth grade about heart care.

The program is designed to show youngsters how the heart functions and to instill sound ideas about proper diet, nutrition and exercise.

Army Plans Duty For Retirees If U.S. Mobilizes For War

DALLAS (AP) — The U.S. Army is gearing up to put 200,000 retirees — primarily officers — on pre-assignment notice, telling them where to report if war breaks out, according to the latest issue of an Army publication.

The retirees will be concentrated in various training duties should mobilization be required, according to a story in the "Army Echoes" and an Army spokesman.

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, told The Dallas Morning News retirees already are receiving questionnaires seeking residence and health status information. Next, the retirees will be told where to report in case of war, the spokesman said.

Those plans will be presented to the Defense Department in the next few months, the spokesman said.

"What it really boils down to in very simple terms is that the Army is making sure it has detailed information on retirees as a potential source of trained manpower if we ever have to mobilize," the spokesman said.

"All these people are really the key to the early actions of mobilization."

The plan should circumvent problems caused by weakened reserve ranks, which are "several hundred thousand" short of authorized strength, the spokesman said.

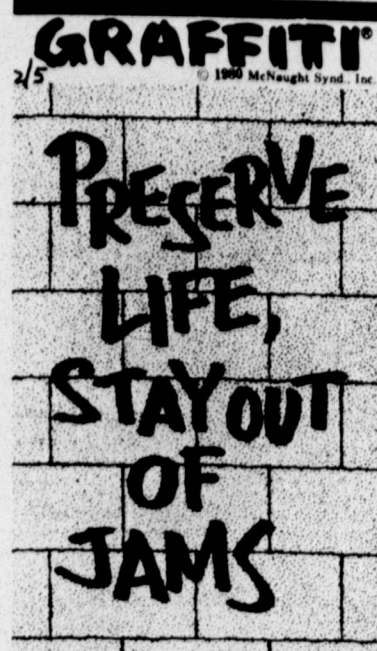

"It's something we're very concerned about," he said. Retirees under the age of 60 in the continental United States are listed in three categories: those who have been retired less than five years, those who retired more than five years ago and disabled veterans, the spokesman said.

He said retirees with permanent disabilities will be exempt from the plan.

The program calls for the Army "to match up skills needed with skills retirees have and assign selected retirees" to major U.S. Army bases, the spokesman said. The program's "basic thrust is to assign them to some training capacity," he said.

The Army realized during a mock mobilization trial in 1978 it "didn't have a good handle" on where retirees live and what skills they possess, the spokesman said.

Job Cutback Plan Draws Cool Response

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Gov. Bill Clements requested 5 percent cut in the number of state employees at Texas Tech University and its medical school is receiving only lukewarm support from school officials, who will present resolutions on the issue to the board of regents Friday.

The resolutions were requested last month by Clements, who asked all state agencies and state colleges and universities to adopt statements agreeing to reduce the number of state employees by 5 percent during each year of the 1980-81 biennium.

But the resolutions drawn up by Tech officials offer less than enthusiastic support for the proposed cuts.

"We support the governor's program for improving the efficiency of state government," said Dan Williams, Tech's vice president for finance and administration. "But, we can't take the meat ax approach" to reducing the number of employees, he added.

Through turnover and attrition, we occasionally will have the opportunity to reduce and consolidate staff. But if a reduction will seriously jeopardize a program or cut off a service, then we can't do it," Williams said.

The university's chief financial officer said the resolution university officials will present to the regents stresses that Tech already has had a 6.2 percent drop in the number of employees during January to December 1979.

"And in fall 1978, before the governor was inaugurated, our physical plant eliminated 55 positions," Williams noted. The loss of those 55 positions should be included in the governor's accounting, he said. "We shouldn't be penalized by not being able to count all those people. We were way ahead of (the governor)." Clements, who has called the state's university and college system the most wasteful part of the state bureaucracy, wants staff cuts in classified employees, such as maintenance and clerical workers, plus faculty and administrative positions. The Legislature, however, Williams notes, has indicated that staff reductions only should apply to classified employees.

"The governor has gone further (in his request)," Williams said. "But legally, he has no real basis on which to force us to do it."

"He says, 'You will reduce the number of employees or tell me why.' The Legislature says we should attempt to reduce the staff." As of January 1979, the date Clements says state institutions and agencies should use in calculating their number of employees, Texas Tech had 1,167 classified employees and 1,146 faculty, professional and administrative staffs working for the university and being paid from state funds. A 5 percent reduction in these staffs would mean 116 employees would have to be cut.

State-paid employees at Tech's Health Sciences Center, which includes the school of medicine and affiliated regional centers, number 552 classified and 315 professional, administrative and faculty positions. Forty-four medical school employees would have to be cut to implement the governor's proposed reduction plan.

Medical school officials, who will present a separate resolution to the regents, also offer only limited support for the governor's plan.

Although the medical school will "make an honest effort to try" and reduce unnecessary staff positions, officials say, for a school that is still developing, "it's hard to talk about cutting," said one administrator.

"We made it clear to the governor (when he visited Tech two weeks ago), that Tech is in the developing phase and has not achieved steady growth.

"You can't hold back the development of a school to meet a quota," the official added.

Medical school officials say that in those areas that have achieved steady growth, "We will make every effort to comply" with the governor's call for staff cuts. But those areas, such as faculty recruitment, that were funded by the Legislature at a higher level in order to aid development, there will be very few reductions. "We will exercise restraint and maximize those hired," an administrator said, but attrition may satisfy the governor's demands without the need for further reductions, he added.

"It's like a growing tree," commented Williams in regards to reductions in medical school staff. "You cut off its root, you can't expect it to grow."

Judge Sets Hearing In Dean Suit

DALLAS (AP) — The attorney for country singer Jimmy Dean said a federal judge Wednesday will hear a proposed compromise settlement in a $4.3 million libel and slander suit filed against Dean by his brother, a former partner in a sausage company.

Dallas attorney Jim Cowles declined to be specific about the settlement, saying only "The case, in all probability, will be resolved."

Ray Besing, who represents Dean's brother, Don, also declined to talk about the 2-year-old case. But other sources said Dean — a lanky good ole boy singer from Plainview — has agreed to pay an unspecified settlement sum to his brother.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders has set a hearing on the matter for Wednesday morning.

The suit grew out of comments allegedly made by Jimmy Dean during radio and newspaper interviews on a bitter family dispute over Dallas-based Jimmy Dean Meat Co., Inc.

Don Dean owned half the company and served as president until he sold out to his brother on Jan. 21, 1977. A year later, he filed suit, claiming Jimmy had made "untrue... slanderous and defamatory statements" about him and his business practices.

Copies of newspaper articles from several Dallas-Fort Worth area newspapers, two St. Louis newspapers and statements from radio interviews were filed with Dean's petition.

In one newspaper interview, the suit claims Jimmy Dean said:

"It's a terrible thing when the biggest mistake you made in your life was trusting your brother."

In another interview, the suit contends, Dean said:

"I had a partner, and partners are very funny people. Somebody once said partners have been known to develop eye trouble — they can't tell their money from yours."

No Bids Given On Miles Of Panhandle Railroad

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Panhandle contains most of the approximately 254 miles of track unspoken for by other railroads' bids to take over Texas portions of the bankrupt Rock Island line.

The Transportation Department announced Monday it had received bids to acquire 601 miles of the approximately 885 total miles of Rock Island track and related facilities in Texas.

Town Meetings Scheduled For Decade Goals

Civic leaders hope to get input from thousands of Lubbock residents in developing the goals for the city in the 1980s in a series of meetings held in 10 locations across town tonight.

Last fall, civic leaders established several goals for the city in the coming decade, but Chamber of Commerce president John Logan stresses that "these are only suggestions. We want the people's input to decide just what we need to do."

Among the goals listed and attained during the 1970s, were the construction of the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, teaching hospital and airport, and the development of the Canyon Lakes.

A slide presentation outlining some of the suggested goals for the next decade will be shown at each of the meetings tonight. All meetings are similar, and persons are urged to attend the gathering closest to them. About 4,000 persons attended the meetings 10 years ago.

Tonight's meetings are set for 7:30 p.m. and will be held at Alderson Junior High, Atkins Junior High, Dunbar High School, Evans Junior High, Hardwick Elementary, Hutchinson Junior High and Thompson Junior High.

An additional meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Lubbock High School.

Probe Begins In El Paso Shootings

EL PASO (AP) — The case against a "scrawny looking" man, arrested after a barroom full of people was sprayed with bullets, was being prepared for a grand jury today, police said.

Detectives said they were gathering evidence in the case of Barry Chvarak, arrested after five tavern patrons were killed and three others were wounded just after "last call" early Sunday.

Officers said Monday they plan to present the case to the grand jury when it meets here Thursday.

One of the wounded, 19-year-old Leon Sell, said a man walked by his table and said "Hi" to the girls sitting there. Sell said the man walked out, returned "and the shooting began."

"It was like pow, pow, pow, pow," said Sell, who was shot in the chin.

He said a woman at a table five feet away "was hit in the forehead, right between the eyes."

Police said they believed Chvarak was drunk when he was arrested after being subdued by several customers at the club, described as a "cowboy bar."

Roger Dean Miller said he hit the gunman in the head with a pool stick after the man stood several steps inside the door and fired about 12 shots randomly with a .22-caliber semi-automatic rifle.

Police described Chvarak as "scrawny-looking, tall, skinny with long hair."

Police Lt. Ed Agan said, "When we talked to (Chvarak) he was in a state of shock and appeared intoxicated."

Agan described the incident as the worst in El Paso's history. Police said they knew of no motives in the shooting.

"No argument, no loud talking, no anything until he came in and cut loose," Agan said.

Guardman Failed To Get Order To Alter Course

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Two fishermen who hauled surviving Coast Guardsmen to safety after a deadly collision say a crewman was waiting for an order to change the Coast Guard cutter's course just before it crashed into a tanker. But the order never came, they said.

The Marine Board of Inquiry spent Monday listening to the three crewmen of a shrimp trawler which became a rescue vessel after the Coast Guard's worst-ever peacetime wreck last Monday.

The collision of the cutter Blackthorn and the tanker Capricorn left 23 Coast Guardsmen dead. Sixteen bodies still hadn't been recovered. One surfaced late Sunday, bringing to seven the number of bodies found.

Three crewmen from the cutter were scheduled to testify today, the fifth day of the board's inquiry.

All three crewmen from the shrimp trawler The Bayou testified Monday.

"I heard one man ask another, 'Why didn't you turn if you knew the boat was coming?'" testified Charles Whitelaw, 21. Another Coast Guardsman replied that "he was waiting on orders to change course," Whitelaw said.

His coworker, Ventrice "Vince" Dyer, 41, also said he overheard a similar conversation by Coast Guardsmen who had been plucked from Tampa Bay after the wreck.

"I heard one fellow say he had seen the ship (Capricorn) and was watching it close in. He was waiting for an order to turn and the order never came," Dyer

AUSTIN (Special) — The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation reports Lubbock received $103,829 in public transit funds as part of $7,815,746 distributed in the first quarter of fiscal 1980.

Crewmen Saved In Rig Collapse

PORT LAVACA (AP) — An offshore oil drilling platform with 42 crewmen aboard capsized in the Gulf of Mexico off the Texas coast today, dumping the men into the water, but all were rescued, the Coast Guard said.

Petty Officer Joe Gibson of the Coast Guard Search and Rescue Center in New Orleans said the crewmen were quickly picked up by a tugboat towing the platform.

Six of the crewmen were reported injured, Gibson said, and a Coast Guard helicopter was taking him to a Texas hospital.

He said the platform Topper I, owned by Zapata Offshore Co., capsized in some 60 feet of water about 40 miles southeast of Port Lavaca.

Port Lavaca is about midway between Galveston and Corpus Christi, on the Texas coast.

Gibson said no information was immediately available on the possible cause of the capsizing or whether the rig had sunk.

The energy crisis has affected everybody, one way or another. We don't blame you. We're concerned about it, too. But, we have a good solution for you. A Butler building.

We're not giving you a line to take advantage of the fuel shortage. It's a fact. You see, Butler has always been concerned with things like tight construction and good insulation. That's the way our buildings are designed. That's the way we build them. Fuel shortage or no.

In nut and bolt terms, the combination of Butler's roof and wall systems, insulated properly, can give you the best available seal against the outside heat and cold. A seal that will put your fuel to its most efficient use. To mention nothing about the money it'll save you.

We can build you a solution to the energy crisis. But, then, we always could. Call us, and find out how.

day on the Chicago Board of Trade in a continuation of heavy commercial selling and reciprocal buying by brokerage firms that pushed prices upward.

Traders say some commercial firms are trying to get rid of as many of their contract commitments in wheat and corn as possible to prevent the government from looking at their customer lists. In order to be reimbursed by the government under an agreement to buy grain embargoed from the Soviet Union, the exporters reportedly will have to open their books.

Red Raiders Turn Aggie 'Wall' To Dust

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 Using defense as a chisel, and clutch free throw shooting as a hammer, Texas Tech did what no other Southwest Conference school had been able to do yet this year — the Raiders knocked a few bricks out of the vaunted Texas A&M Wall.

When the demolition work was completed Monday night in the Municipal Coliseum, the Raiders owned a stunning 63-53 upset over the Aggies and all that remained of A&M's perfect Southwest Conference record was rubble. It was the first SWC loss for the Aggies in 10 league outings.

The Raiders — effective in shutting off the Aggies' inside attack of Rudy Woods, Vernon Smith and Rynn Wright — delivered a 10-point knockout as 8,139 delirious fans and a television audience in 47 states looked on. Tech is now 7-4 in SWC play and 13-8 on the year. The Aggies' season record fell to 17-6.

The loss knocks the Aggies out of sole possession of first place and into a tie with Arkansas for the league's top spot.

According to Tech coach Gerald Myers, it was the Raider defense that proved to be the difference.

"We had to start off by stopping them," explained the Tech coach. "(Ralph) Brewster, (Ben) Hill and (David) Little just did an outstanding job stopping their inside game. And, of course, so did (Jeff) Taylor and (Kent) Williams outside. Thad Sanders came off the bench and also gave us a lift. He (Sanders) played as good as anyone.

"I can't single anybody out," he added. "It was just a great, great team win. Hopefully, our defense is picking up now — we can play decent defense."

All the Raiders' "decent defense" did was hold Woods to three field goals — including a meaningless slam dunk at the buzzer. Smith to only two from the field; and Wright a mere three field goals. Smith and Wright fouled out in the second half. Between the three of them, the Aggies tallied 27 points. Claude Riley, the fourth member of the infamous Wall, did come off the bench and score 10 points to keep the Aggies in the game.

It wasn't until Jeff Taylor skirted down the lane, slipped past a couple of defenders and dropped in a layup with 8:07 remaining that Tech could go ahead 41-40 and take charge of the contest. Moments later, Tyrone Ladson hit a free throw to tie it at 41-41 and then Tech made its run.

Ralph Brewster got an inside feed from Williams and slammed home a two-fisted dunk to put Tech up 43-41. Woods was called for a foul on the play, but Brewster missed the free throw. The ball somehow bounced out to Hill, who dropped in another short one to make it Tech 45-41 with 7:26 to go.

Down on the other end of the court, Smith drew his fifth foul, sending Little to the line with 7:01 remaining. Protesting the foul, Smith also drew a technical as he left the game. Little hit both ends of the one-and-one. Williams connected on the technical free throw and Brewster got a layup on the inbounds play. Score: Tech 50-41.

Brewster also drew a foul on the bucket, hit the free throw and the Raiders had racked up six unanswered points since Smith's departure. Suddenly, with 5:59 to go, the Raiders owned a 10-point lead, 51-41. Both coaches agreed that was the turning point.

"Tech deserved to win," said A&M's Shelby Metcalf. "They played better than we did. They had a good game-plan and they stuck with it all night. Tech did an excellent job inside tonight, unlike our first game."

The Aggies claimed a 63-60 win over the Raiders in that first game when Woods scored 20 points and Wright had 15. But this time, the Tech defense kept Woods from getting the ball inside.

"Woods is the heart of their team," explained Tech's Brewster. "So we just tried to keep him from getting the ball. Before we'd been playing hard, but we hadn't been playing defense. Coach Myers had been stressing that and that's what we worked on."

Brewster scored 12 points for the Raiders and hauled down seven rebounds while working on the bigger Woods. Taylor led Tech in scoring with 13 points, while Little and Williams scored 12 apiece.

Little was four of four at the line in the game's waning moments and Williams hit eight of nine charity shots in the contest, including four straight in the game's final three minutes.

Once the Raiders got their 10-point spread, they went into a delay game that looked like it might cost them dearly. Wright got a layup and then hit four straight free throws and the Aggies had quickly cut Tech's 10-point spread to only four, 51-47, with 4:20 left.

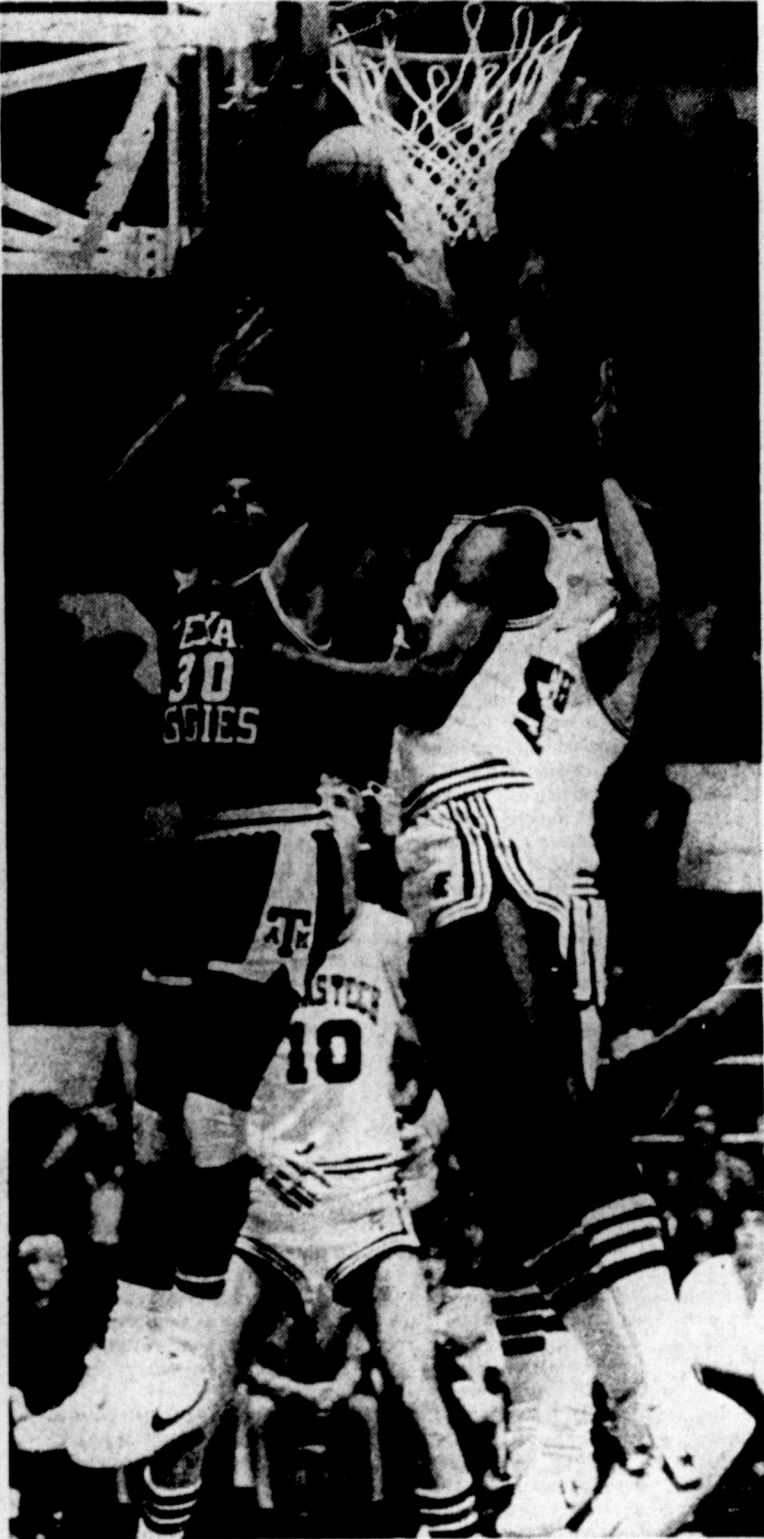

At the 2:52 mark, Williams hit both ends of a one-and-one, and Tech was

A&M's Women Cagers End Tech's Streak

The Texas Tech women's basketball team lost its shooting touch Monday in the Municipal Coliseum and dropped its first home game of the season 66-64 to Texas A&M.

The Red Raiders are now 19-7 this season, and 10-1 in the Coliseum. The Aggies, under new coach Cherri Rapp are now 14-8.

Tech trailed 63-54 with a little over two minutes left in the game, but the Aggies responded by missing the front end of four straight one-and-one free throws.

When Lynn Webb connected on a behind-the-back layup with 12 seconds showing on the clock, the Raiders had cut the gap to 65-64. But the Raiders were unable to get the ball in the game's final seconds, and the Aggies tacked on a free throw with two seconds remaining to seal the victory.

Tech could connect on only 22 of 63 field goal attempts in the game for an anemic 34.9 percentage. Tech's Pam Stone hit on only five of 16 efforts, Rose Penkunis went one for seven and Miss Webb was three of 13 as the Raiders could not find the range. Only a 20 of 24 effort from the free throw line kept Tech close.

The Aggie women, on the other hand, hit 30 of 68 field goal efforts, but could only connect of six of 17 free throw opportunities. Lori Foreman led the A&M attack with 16 points and nine rebounds.

Louise Davis, who hit on six of 10 field goals, led the Raiders with 14 points. Vicki Lee was next with 12. Miss Davis hauled down 10 rebounds and Miss Stone had 12.

The Tech women will continue their schedule Friday when they host the Texas Longhorn women, the nation's No. 1-rated women's college team.

Wallace To Coach DHS

Kenneth Wallace is the new head football coach at Dunbar High School. It was announced today by Pete Ragus, athletic director for the Lubbock public schools.

Wallace, 29, has been an assistant grid coach at Coronado since 1975 and replaces Van Jefferson, whose five-year stint ended with his resignation following the Panthers' 1-9 record this past fall.

Ragus said that Wallace was selected from a field of 12 applicants and will begin his duties Monday. Terms of his contract were not disclosed.

Wallace was a quarterback on the 1968 Estacado state tile team and made all-city, all-district and all-South Plains in both his junior and senior years.

He graduated EHS in 1970 and enrolled at Texas Tech University, where he was a three-year letterman in addition to being named all-Southwest Conference as a defensive back his senior season.

"Kenneth is an outstanding young man," Ragus said, in making the announcement. "He came up through the Lubbock school system and he's been outstanding as a student-athlete, here and at Texas Tech. He graduated Tech in '74."

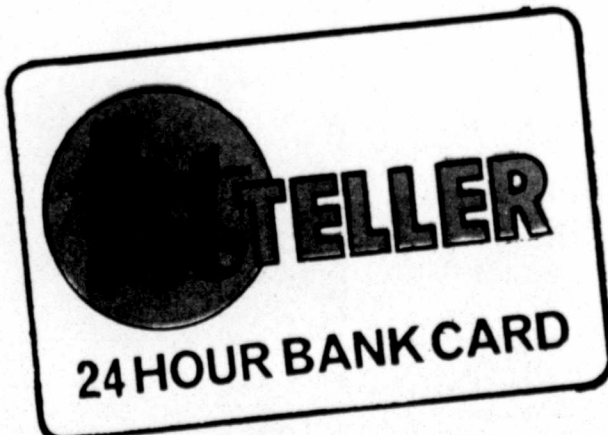

"He's a young man with a lot of quality and I feel he'll do an outstanding job at Dunbar High School."

Eddie Sutton Kept Faith With Tech

By United Press International
Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton had little reason to get excited during his team's romp over Texas Christian Monday night, but after the game was over he found cause to sweat a little bit.

Texas Tech and Texas A&M were still playing and by means of a telephone hookup, a play-by-play account of that game was being relayed to the press table at Arkansas' Barnhill Arena.

The first score Sutton heard was Texas Tech 51, Texas A&M 41. "Gerald isn't going to lose this one," Sutton said, referring to Tech coach Gerald Myers.

Sutton was right. Texas Tech, thanks in part to a critical technical foul called on the Aggies with seven minutes to play, took the upset, 63-53. It was the first league loss for A&M this season and left the Aggies and Razorbacks tied for the top spot in the Southwest Conference race at 91.

"Obviously this puts us back in the race," said Sutton, whose team hosts the Aggies next Monday night. "But we still have a tough road trip coming up."

A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said it was simply a matter of the team that deserved to win the most doing just that.

Arkansas moved into the first-place tie with a 74-47 drubbing of outmanned Texas Christian, while Texas and SMU picked up what could be key victories.

The Longhorns (6-5) thus moved a game ahead of Houston into sole possession of fourth place and stayed in the running for a shot at third place, which carries a bye in the first round of the SWC postseason tournament.

SMU also moved into a tie for sixth place and with that spot goes a home-court advantage.

Sul Ross Lowers Boom On Chaps

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The Sul Ross State basketball team decided to throw a surprise party at the expense of the Lubbock Christian College Chaparrals Monday night in the fieldhouse.

It was only fair. Right? After all, LCC had made a mockery of Emily Post one week earlier during an 86-68 Chap victory in Alpine.

This time, however, it was Sul Ross that was made to feel perfectly at home while on the road as the Lobos scraped out a 64-62 victory in a Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association game.

This was a game which the Chaparrals lost despite a field goal accuracy of 63.6 percent, compared to 47 percent for the Lobos.

LCC coach Larry Hays found himself surrounded, however, by the odds and ends of defeat that had all but rendered the shooting percentage a tired statistic.

"When we got the ball, we shot it well," Hays said, "but we just didn't get enough shots. They took 55 and we only attempted 44. That's 11 more field goal attempts for them, which makes it tough."

The Chaps' undoing was a result of 25 turnovers and free throw shooting that could not have been less effective had the Chaps worn blindfolds.

"We were six of 15 at the free throw line," Hays said. "That didn't help either. You put that together with our turnovers, and you really cut down on our scoring opportunities."

Even so, the Chaps were not counted out until the final second of a game that produced 11 ties in the second half following a 30-30 halftime union.

When Sul Ross forward Bill Koenig nailed the front end of a one-and-one with five seconds remaining, LCC's Jim Steensma rebounded his missed second shot and called an immediate time out.

That left the Chaps four seconds in which to travel the length of the floor.

Rick Murdock, who started in place of flu-ridden Bill McGee at guard, fired a half-court pass to Steensma, who, in one motion, caught the ball and flipped it to guard Marshall Smith cutting across the center circle.

Smith dribbled three times and attempted to hit center Kevin Wharton on the low post, but the ball was deflected by a Lobo as time ran its course.

The Chaps had squandered numerous other chances to unravel Sul Ross, including an offensive foul against Murdock that nullified his eight-foot basket with 20 seconds left. It would have cut the Lobos' lead from 63-60 down to one point had it counted.

"There was another turnover," Hays said, "but it was no more important than any of the others. We just made a lot of little mistakes."

The Chaps, who lost their second straight TIAA game and fell to 4-3 in conference, 14-14 overall, also had difficulty regulating the speed of play. The Lobos exemplified patience in running their offense.

"Our club needs to go up and down the floor quickly in order to be effective," Hays said, "and Sul Ross did a good job of slowing things up. "We knew better than to let them get ahead because we knew they'd let the air out of the ball. They made us play their game."

Sul Ross coach Chet Sample said, "We were patient on offense. We passed the ball around and got it inside. Last week, we rushed a lot of shots against LCC's good match-up zone. But, hey, we feel we can win any game we play."

The Lobos, in fact, have won seven of 18 but are tied in the TIAA with LCC at 4-3.

"This is a crazy game," Sample said, referring to the radically changed result of a week ago. "If I could figure out a way to always get a team to play as well as mine did tonight, I'd make a million dollars."

Lady Chaps Overwhelm Sul Ross Women 69-38

The Lubbock Christian College women's basketball team raced to a 27-8 half-time lead in the process of clobbering Sul Ross State 69-38 Monday night in the fieldhouse.

All 12 Lady Chaps played in the game, which raised their record to 4-2 in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association and 6-12 overall.

Paving the way for LCC was center Darla Lynch, who scored 14 points. Sherry Williams added 11 points and eight re-

Wobbly LHS Faces Plainsmen

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Just over two years ago — Feb. 3, 1978, for those keeping score — Lubbock High won its last District 4-AAAA basketball game.

Since that win over Plainview, LHS has gone through one head coach (C.E. Carmichael), 14 straight conference kickings and twice as many heartaches.

And, while numbers seem to be the order of the day, let's explore further: The Westerners have not had a winning season since Doyle Edmiston's 1971 club posted a highly respectable 22-9 mark. Also, during the 1970s only three teams (1971, 1972 and 1977) finished with more than 10 wins.

But Lubbock, now 8-14 this time around and 0-4 in conference play, will attempt to improve on those numbers tonight when it meets Monterey in the MHS gym at 7:30 p.m. Prior to the boys' contest, the LHS and MHS girls are scheduled for a 6 p.m. contest.

While the Westerners were staggering, Monterey was busy running up 22 consecutive conference wins. The Plainsmen, winners of the first-half title after posting a 4-0 mark, own a 21-5 season record.

Tonight's meeting is the second-half district opener for both clubs. "Monterey's still the favorite, by far," commented LHS Craig Wells early last week. "It's going to be hard for anybody to knock them off."

So far, it's been impossible.

In running up their perfect district record, the Plainsmen knocked off both Coronado and Plainview in overtime affairs, plus held off a late Hereford rally before posting a victory. In fact, MHS' only easy win of the first half came over the Westerners by a 70-50 count. It was the only district contest MHS won by 20 points.

In that first LHS meeting, Monterey lost starter Ian Hyslop with an ankle injury. However, reserve Gary Hodges has filled admirably during Hyslop's absence. He's filled in so well, as a matter of fact, MHS head coach Joe Michalka said Hodges would continue to start until otherwise notified.

"He's really played well for us," commented Michalka about Hodges. "It's going to be tough to move him out."

Both teams are reportedly in pretty healthy shape heading into tonight's bout. Michalka and the Plainsmen have been battling an epidemic of the chicken pox for the past three weeks, but the coach indicated that scare has passed.

Meanwhile, the Monterey girls', winners of the first half with a 4-0 record, hope to run their second-half mark to 2-0 tonight against the LHS girls. The Plainsmen own a 2-2 overall mark, while Lubbock stands 0-2 in conference play and 4-22 for the year.

Monterey opened the second-half action last week by knocking off determined Plainview 71-62. The Plainsmen took Friday night off for R&R. On the other hand, LHS was in action twice last week, losing to Coronado 43-32 and to Plainview 65-28.

Coronado drew an open-date tonight.

NBA Teams Visit Market-Place

By The Associated Press

A flurry of trades, and rumors of yet another, involving National Basketball Association teams, occurred Monday.

The Milwaukee Bucks, who Bob Lanier says play the kind of team basketball that excites him, announced Monday that they have acquired the National Basketball Association star from Detroit.

Also, the Washington Bullets picked up guard John Williamson from New Jersey and are said to be nearing a deal for Portland all-star forward Maurice Lucas.

A trade that transfers the 6-foot-11 Lanier to Milwaukee reflects coach Don Nelson's campaign to staff the Bucks with a tall starter who is good on offense as well as intimidating on defense.

The swap involves sending third-year center Kent Benson and a 1980 first-round draft choice to Detroit, a deal which has been in the cooker for many weeks but which reportedly was delayed while Lanier recovered from a Dec. 26 broken finger.

Benson, 25, said he hates leaving Milwaukee. "But life must go on."

Lanier, 31, remarked in Detroit he could hardly wait to get to Milwaukee where life might be fulfilled with an NBA championship.

The Bucks said he was expected to be on hand Wednesday as they open a five-game home stand.

Playing with a team that is a potential champion "is the most important thing in my life right now," Lanier said. "I won't settle for anything less."

"They got real good talent," he said. "They play the only way you can go to the top, and that's team basketball. Hopefully, we can go to the far reaches of the earth together."

Benson, 6-foot-11 and the 1976 most valuable player in the Big Ten, was the No. 1 NBA draftee in 1977 when the Bucks chose him along with Marques Johnson.

The Bucks presumably see great promise in Lanier, who possesses career and game-high (33) rebounding records for the Pistons, was the Detroit leader in blocked shots, the club's career leading scorer with more than 15,400 points, and the No. 25 NBA career scorer.

Benson said he was not surprised by the trade, noting it had been rumored for several weeks.

"I hate leaving Milwaukee," he said. "The people in Milwaukee have been terrific. I think Milwaukee has got excellent fans."

Benson's career in the NBA has been a disappointment, and his role on defense never matured. In 56 games this season, he started 48 and has averaged 8.8 points and 5.9 rebounds.

Lanier was averaging 21.7 points and 10.1 rebounds when he broke a finger

Dec. 26 in a court collision.

"I have a great amount of respect for Kent Benson and his future in the NBA," Nelson said. "My misgivings about his ability were early ones, and perhaps based on too high an expectation level."

Meanwhile, John Williamson's stormy career with the New Jersey Nets came to an end — again — and the high-

Williamson — his off-the-court problems almost guaranteed his departure as soon as the Nets found a taker. It was the second time the Nets traded "Supe" away. They sent him to Indiana in 1976 but he was reacquired a little more than a year later.

Williamson, 27, recently passed Julius Erving as the Nets' all-time leading scorer, but his questionable moves away from the court prompted his exit. In October, Williamson, a moody but multi-talented 6-foot-2 guard, staged a one-day walkout when New Jersey management refused to renegotiate his $185,000 a year salary, which is guaranteed through next season.

He scoffed at owner Joseph Taub's offer of a $40,000 raise, asking instead for an increase that would put him in the $300,000 bracket.

Williamson's agent, Irwin Weiner, said Monday the Nets agreed to renegotiate at the end of the season in lieu of the $40,000 raise but failed to tell the Bullets of the arrangement. He said Williamson will not report until Washington agrees to talk contract at the end of the season. Weiner said the Nets deny an agreement was ever made.

Starting Dec. 9, Williamson missed 20 consecutive games as his weight ballooned to 226 pounds. He was told to reach 215 before he could rejoin the team.

New Jersey coach Kevin Loughery recommended Williamson be suspended from the National Basketball Association team at the time, but was overruled by Taub. His guaranteed contract saved him from the waiver wire. Williamson instead was sent to the Fitness Institute in Hartsdale, N.Y., to work off the weight. On New Year's Day he was charged with third degree assault for allegedly striking his wife but the charges were subsequently dropped.

He finally returned to the team on Jan. 11 after weighing in at 212 pounds.

Phegley was the Bullets' first round pick in the 1978 draft from Bradley. He was averaging 11.1 points in 59 games this season after averaging 2.9 in 29 games as a rookie. He was the 14th player selected in the 78 draft.

The Bullets were in desperate need of a shooting guard with Kevin Grevey, Larry Wright and Kevin Porter having off-years. Jim Clemons is strictly a play-maker.

The Bullets, reeling in fourth place in the Atlantic Division with a 23-29 record, confirmed Monday that they and the Trail Blazers are seriously discussing a deal that would send Maurice Lucas to Washington in a trade for Mitch Kupchak.

Blazer coach Jack Ramsay said talks were held with both the Bullets and the New Jersey Nets last weekend in Washington D.C.

EHS Returns To District

J.J. Wood says the thing he liked best about Estacado's win over Dunbar Friday night was the consistency the Matadors showed.

Dunbar was one of our most complete games overall," he said. "We got us a lead. We kept the lead. And we built on the lead."

Estacado has been getting by all season doing only one of those three things. The Mats are expert at getting leads, but they seem to enjoy it so much they keep allowing the other team to catch up so they can do it again.

A case in point was the last time Estacado met Dumas. The Matadors blew leads of 12 and 19 points on the way to a 77-67 win.

Tonight Estacado will find out if, as Wood says, their only consistency is inconsistency. Tonight the Matadors travel to Dumas to try to put together their second solid win in a row.

Dumas, I've always said, always has a knack of playing real well against Estacado," said Wood. "We're going to have to play a good basketball game to win up there."

This game is a key one not only for Estacado, but for the rest of District 1-AAA as well. Dumas finished only 1-4 in the first half of loop play, but remember, the Demons stood 11-5 in pre-district competition. They've got a good team.

And, they've got a good second-half schedule, too. Dumas must venture on the road only twice in the second half, and one of those trips is to winless Dunbar.

As for Estacado, which finished the first half in a tie on top with Borger, Wood says, "We can't afford to have any more goofups at all."

There's only two weeks left in the season and everybody's got to be prepared to play their best.

Like against Dunbar, "We really hustled up and down the court well on the press. We were getting down quickly with the ball when we got the turnover and we were scoring."

"We didn't really throw the ball away a whole lot. We kept the pressure on, hit the boards well and hit our shots."

Dunbar, the victim of all this consistency, is also on the road tonight. The Panthers travel to Canyon and the question Joe McWilliams faces is whether his club can put together another game like Friday night's.

Despite losing, Dunbar played some of the best basketball it has played all year.

The Dunbar girls also played well in beating Estacado. Tonight they face Canyon, a team which knocked off first-half champion Dumas in its first contest of the new half.

Estacado must face Dumas.

In the other District 1-AAA game, Levelland, paced by Dwight Phillips, travels to Borger to go head-to-head with the team that probably has the best shot at winning the loop.

The Bulldogs tied with Estacado for the first-half championship and now have to travel only twice in the second half. Again, one trip is to Dunbar. The other is to Dumas. Those two teams finished on the bottom of the first-half standings.

In other area play, Monahans is at Ector and Pecos travels to Fort Stockton in District 2-AAA play and Sweetwater visits Brownfield and Lake View hosts Lamesa in District 3-AAA.

Olympic Enthusiast Owens Befriends Games

By The Associated Press

While the country wrestles with the dilemma of boycotting the Moscow Olympics, all of us should pause a moment and give a thought to perhaps the greatest Olympian of them all, Jesse Owens.

Jesse, now 66, has had to fight most of his life. Son of an Alabama sharecropper, he has had to overcome bias in this country and slurs of being "of an inferior race" when he invaded Berlin for the 1936 Nazi Olympics.

The swift, coordinated black athlete shamed Adolf Hitler by winning four gold medals and overcame numerous obstacles to emerge as a successful businessman, America's Olympic "elder statesman" and most fluent spokesman.

Now he is facing his toughest battle — lung cancer.

A telephone call to his Phoenix, Ariz., home brought good news. He is reacting favorably to drugs and gaining strength after treatment at the University of Arizona Health Sciences Center.

"He is up and about," said his wife, Ruth, "and we are encouraged, but he isn't up to a lot of conversation."

Asked if Jesse had expressed himself on the present Olympic situation, Mrs. Owens said: "Oh, no. He's not ready to bite that bullet yet. You know, he gets very emotional."

There are few more emotional or dynamic men than Jesse Owens, who is reminiscent of the late Dr. Martin Luther King when he takes the podium in defense of Olympic ideals and pride of country.

The Olympics have become the whipping post of politics," he once said, "but, thank God, they are still run by man. Man has a way of overriding such influences."

There is no indication how Jesse would view President Carter's call for a Moscow boycott. He undoubtedly would be torn between patriotism and a strong belief in the sanctity of the Olympic code.

While the press sensationally played up the theme that Hitler, surrounded by storm troopers, snubbed the black man who shattered the Fuehrer's theory of Aryan supremacy, Owens himself always has downplayed the incident.

"I don't know," Jesse said. "I never looked toward the box where Hitler and his entourage sat. I was too busy worrying about fulfilling my childhood dream."

"I was conditioned to discrimination when I went to Berlin. I was not politically oriented. None of us was. We were too busy working on our personal goals."

It was Owens, his name and his stature among the athletes that prevented a mass walkout of U.S. blacks after the clinched fist demonstration by John Carlos and Tommie Smith in 1968 in Mexico City.

Killanin, IOC To Grapple With Olympic Crisis

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The harassed International Olympic Committee (IOC) takes up residence in this small mountain ski resort this week to try to save the tottering Olympic Games.

The XIII Winter Olympics, for which this village of 2,700 people has been preparing for six years, opens in eight days and no major problems are expected. But next weekend the IOC will meet in a quaint, rambling timber-built country hotel to ponder over the fate of the threatened Summer Olympics in Moscow.

As the Russians pour more and more troops into Afghanistan, and President Jimmy Carter presses on with his call for a boycott of Moscow, it appears likely the 1980 Olympics will be dramatically reduced in size or perhaps collapse altogether.

The governments of some 30 countries have supported Carter's call for the Games to be moved or canceled or boycotted if Soviet troops are not pulled out of Afghanistan. National Olympic committees are the bodies to decide ultimately whether to send athletes, but many are expected to fall in behind their governments or be pressured by public opinion.

What can the IOC do in the next week to stem the tide that threatens to engulf the Games?

Not much.

It is bound by the Olympic Charter and dedicated to the ideals of bringing the youth of the world together in sport every four years, irrespective of politics.

It is a purely international body with a curious and unique constitution of its own which gives it complete autonomy and makes it answerable to no one — governments, national sports authorities or anyone else. And it belongs as much to the Russians, who were admitted to the Olympic movement 30 years ago, as to the West.

The IOC is under contract to Moscow, which has been preparing since 1974 to stage the 21 sports and house some 10,000 athletes, coaches and sports officials and 7,000 members of the media.

In these circumstances Lord Killanin, Irish president of the IOC, has taken a firm line. He has said the Games cannot be moved from Moscow.

Ali Mends Fence, Returns To Junket

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Presidential envoy Muhammad Ali, striving to get his African assignment back on course, blamed State Department advisers today for a misunderstanding between him and President Carter, and said, "Now we have straightened the whole thing out."

Then, in typical Ali style, he led a press delegation off to a park near Nairobi where he attempted to challenge a lion to a fist fight.

"I am in 100 percent agreement with President Carter. President Carter's purpose is right," Ali told reporters after meeting Kenyan sports officials. "President Carter did not put me on the spot."

On Monday, Ali said Carter "got me on the spot" by sending him to Africa, where he was surprised to discover that black Africans oppose the U.S. record of dealings with South Africa. He said he was continuing his five-nation tour to drum up backing for President Carter's stance on the Moscow Olympics only because he opposed Soviet actions in Afghanistan and because he feared nuclear war if someone didn't stand up to the Soviet Union.

On Tuesday, Ali transferred the blame to "The people who came from Washington." He said they didn't inform him about African complaints against U.S. policy and thus "got me in a position where I had to defend myself."

Ali was referring to a group of State Department officials traveling with him, including Lannon Walker, deputy assistant secretary of state for African affairs.

Kenya, with the best world-class runners in Africa, announced before Ali arrived Monday that it would boycott the Olympics unless the Games were moved from Moscow.

"What is the Olympics without Kenya and America?" Ali asked.

Tickets Move Slowly At Games

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — If you want VIP treatment and the best seat in the house to all the Winter Olympic events here, you can buy a "gold card" for a mere $10,000.

But don't worry. There are still some tickets available somewhere for virtually every event, and some are being sold below cost.

With just over a week to go until the Games start here, officials of the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee say they have sold less than 80 percent of their total tickets but still maintain they expect to sell 90 to 95 percent in all.

But some programs, like gold cards and tightly-organized tours are faring badly, even as the first reports of scalping filter in.

The LPOOC has 550,000 tickets to sell to some 90 events over 12 days. Prices range from $10 to $60, before tax and handling charges, and average $25.

But because housing in and transportation to this isolated village are so difficult, the actual cost of attending a day's events is a lot higher.

Cost, along with mild weather and political uncertainties has eaten away at the LPOOC's early hopes for a sellout, and at least one tour operator has started to sell some tickets below retail.

A check at the office set up here for individual over-the-counter sales showed tickets available for 55 events, including some hockey playoffs but no figure skating.

"We're probably very close to 80 percent of capacity right now," LPOOC admissions director Kevin McHale said Monday. "If the demand maintains as it has been right now, I think we'll get pretty close to a sellout."

Many of the tickets the LPOOC counts as sold have been wholesaled to tour agents but not necessarily sold to the public.

One agent, Arlo Tours, opened an office just a few doors from McHale's today to try to unload a backlog of tickets and housing.

"Our prices have been greatly reduced," Arlo vice president Joseph Massaro said. "I think there's still a chance to pull out of this one."

Gymnast Thomas Receives Sullivan Award

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Anything Kurt Thomas does, he does to win. Finishing second, he says, is like finishing last.

"Winning is best," said the 23-year-old gymnast, who last year became the first American to win an all-around medal in international competition. He added another first to his list of accomplishments Monday night as recipient of the Amateur Athletic Union's annual Sullivan Award as the nation's top amateur athlete.

"This means a few things to me," the former NCAA champion from Indiana

State University said. "First, it's important to me because it is given in Indiana, and this is where my gymnastics really began. Another thing is that this is the most prestigious award given."

Thomas, now an assistant coach at Arizona State University, beat out Renaldo Nehemiah, the world record-holder in the high hurdles, and 15-year-old Cynthia Woodhead, who set two world and nine American swimming records in 1979, in the voting for the 50th annual Sullivan Award.

In addition to his own personal achievements, Thomas said he sees the emergence of American gymnasts as serious contenders in international competition as a source of "a lot of satisfaction."

"It's definitely improved overall," he said. "We competed (in the world championships at Fort Worth, Texas, in Deember) very well as a team, winning the bronze medal. And this is the first time we've had much depth."

Thomas, an intense perfectionist, finished fourth in the World Cup meet in Tokyo in June, then was runnerup in the all-around to Russia's Aleksandr Ditiatin in the world championships. It was the highest finish ever for an American.

It was the second year in a row Thomas had been nominated for the Sullivan Award. He finished third a year ago, behind swimmer Tracy Caulkins, the winner, and marathon runner Bill Rodgers.

Raiders Defeat Tall Aggies back up by six, 53-47. Wright hit two more clutch freebies, though, and the Ags were within four.

When Brewster missed the front end of a one-and-one, the Aggies had a chance to cut it to two. But Williams picked off an errant David Britton pass and Tech controlled from there.

Britton could connect on only three of 12 field goals and threw the ball away three times in the final minutes of the game. The Aggies could hit only eight of 22 field goal tries in the second half while the Raiders were 10 of 21 in the second stanza.

The Raiders trailed 30-28 at the intermission but tied it up when Taylor banked one in at the 17:06 mark. Only 10 points were scored in the first seven-and-a-half minutes of the second half as both squads came out cold.

"I hate to say it," said Tech's Williams after the game, "but this win here pumped me up more than any win since I've been here. This proved a lot of things — it proved we're not as bad as we've been playing. And we know we can play with anyone in this league."

The Aggies went into a fullcourt press for the game's final five minutes — a tactic that has hurt the Raiders at times this year — but Tech escaped without a turnover.

"We played a good first half," said Metcalf, "but we never got it going in the second half. We just didn't get the good effort."

So much for the Wall.

Syracuse Mistreats Woeful Siena On, Off Court

By The Associated Press
When they played last week, the Syracuse basketball team buried Siena by 52 points. It was "as bad this time. The Orangemen only won by 35."
"It was a good opportunity to give everyone a shot to play," said Syracuse coach Jim Boehm after Monday night's 99-64 rout. "It gave us a chance to work on our defense and positioning, and I thought we did a good job on our defense."
"Hoosevelt (Boehm) makes such a difference against a team like Siena. Roost-evit dominates so much, they just give up. They can't handle him."

Last year's 144-92 Syracuse romp which set several all-time school scoring records, by the way, prompted a tongue-in-cheek "Beat Siena Week" on the Syracuse campus. The promotion brought banners, chants and a sea of "Beat Siena" T-shirts to Monday's game.
"Our only regret was that they were making a zoo out of the game," said Siena guard Rod Owens. "We took it very seriously. I think all the yelling and T-shirts got us psyched up a little more."

"I'm not at all embarrassed by our play," Owens added. "A lot of people expected us to get beat by 50. We've got a school of 2,300 and they have I don't know how many thousands."
The victory by the nation's second-ranked team was one of four by Top Twenty clubs Monday night. In other action, No. 3 Louisville whipped Memphis State 88-60; No. 9 Notre Dame trimmed Navy 67-53; and No. 11 North Carolina stopped Yale 85-74.
Boehm scored 19 points as Syracuse won its 57th straight game at home and improved its record to 20-1 this season. Boehm also grabbed 10 rebounds in only 21 minutes of play.

Darrell Griffith scored 31 points to lead Louisville's conquest of Metro Conference foe Memphis State. Eight of Griffith's points came in a 22-2 Louisville spurt midway through the second half that put the game out of the Tigers' reach.
Orlando Woolridge scored 18 points to lead Notre Dame over Navy. The Fighting Irish outscored Navy 29-7 at the foul line in the second half en route to their 13th victory in 18 games.
The Irish played once again without forward Kelly Trupcka, who sat out his fourth straight game with a strained back. He was joined on the bench by Gilbert Salinas, who sprained an ankle Saturday night in Notre Dame's 105-71 victory over Davidson.
"The service academies always play good defense and they play a very controlled offense," said Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps. "Navy showed good discipline throughout the game no matter what the score was."
"I was pleased with our free throw shooting, especially Orlando's (Woolridge, who was 10 for 11). I thought that was the best he has done in a long time from the free throw line."
Mike O'Koren's 20 points paced North Carolina over Yale. The Tar Heels played for the most part without the services of three of their top players — Rich Yonakor, Dave Colecott and John Virgil, all suffering injuries.
"I thought we played good defense in the first half," said North Carolina coach Dean Smith, but added, "In the second half, we kept coming down and missing open 15-footers and they would get the rebound and go down and score."
Elsewhere, Michael Brooks scored a game-high 30 points to lead LaSalle over Lehigh 90-79; Randy Smithson and Mike Jones teamed for 25 points to lead Wichita State over New Mexico State 80-78; Bill Fields scored 23 points as Providence defeated Canisius 88-72; Terry Adolph scored 27 points and dished out 14 assists to pace West Texas State past Tulsa 92-80 and Rosie Barnes hit a jump shot with 20 seconds to go in overtime, lifting Bowling Green to a 79-78 decision over Ball State.

Also, Mike Doyle triggered a second-half rally and Jim Strickland scored a career-high 25 points to lead South Carolina over Rhode Island 84-75; Edmund Sherod and Tim Harris sparked a 16-4 run to help Virginia Commonwealth beat New Orleans 72-64; a 26-point performance by Ricky Pierce led Rice over Wright State 84-78; South Alabama defeated Jacksonville 65-58 as Ed Rains scored 15 points.

Stable DePaul Remains At Top

By The Associated Press
DePaul coach Ray Meyer waited over 37 years to reach the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press basketball poll, and now that he's there, it appears he may be planning to stay for a while.
Meyer's unbeaten Blue Demons were tabbed No. 1 on all 59 ballots and collected a perfect score of 1,180 points from a national committee of sports writers and broadcasters Monday in easily outdistancing runner-up Syracuse. The vote also marked the third consecutive week DePaul, 19-0, has been the unanimous selection of the board and fourth week overall they have been ranked No. 1.

There's no monkey on our back anymore," Meyer said last week after victories over Creighton and North Texas State.
"But the monkey played havoc on a number of the teams in the Top 20 last week with only two teams managing to remain in the same position they held a week ago.
Syracuse ranked fourth last week when they posted triumphs over Temple with 865 points — five more than No. 6 Louisiana State, which was ranked 10th last week when it upset the Wildcats 65-60 at Lexington.

Up-and-coming Maryland, No. 12 a week ago, skyrocketed into the No. 7 spot with 844 points. The Terps, the surprising leaders of the tough Atlantic Coast Conference — five ACC teams are in the Top 20 — posted victories over Virginia and Duke in action last week.
St. John's and Notre Dame switched positions this week with the Redmen taking over the No. 8 spot with 697 points. The Irish, knocked off by LaSalle last week, were ninth with 660 points — two more than No. 10 Duke, which dropped five notches after being thrashed by Maryland 101-82 last Saturday.
North Carolina headed the Second Ten for the second straight week. Purdue jumped sixth places from last week's ranking and was 12th followed by Ohio State. No. 6 last week, Brigham Young, Missouri, Clemson, Weber State, Virginia, Arizona State and preseason favorite Indiana.

and Providence, replaced Oregon State to the No. 2 position with 1,066 points.
Louisville, ranked No. 7 for the past three weeks, leaped into the No. 3 spot this week with 1,001 points. It's the highest ranking the Cardinals have held this season and comes just one day after their thrilling 76-71 victory over St. John's on national television.
Oregon State, upset by UCLA last week, fell to fourth with 946 points. Kentucky, No. 3 last week, slipped to fifth

EL PASO (Special) — The Lubbock Christian College baseball team begins its tenth season when it plays double-headers today and Wednesday against the University of Texas-El Paso. Both days' games are scheduled to start at 1 p.m.
The Chaparrals, winners of the District VIII title in six of the last seven years, were 42-24 last year, but coach Larry Hays is concerned with their depleted pitching staff.
Two-time NAIA All-American first baseman Tim Leslie will split duty between the infield and the pitcher's mound and is expected to start one of Wednesday's games with UTEP.
Hays had selected Rick Coskrey and Noel Delgado as his first-day starters, and Leslie and Kenny Toney as his pitchers Wednesday.
Hays' starting lineup elsewhere is expected to consist of catcher Bob Nottebart, first baseman Leslie, second baseman Tim Inman, shortstop Steve Brigante, third baseman Toney, center field-

Cage Magic To Appear

The Harlem Globetrotters will visit the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum Thursday at 7:30 p.m. for a continuation of their world-famous cage antics.
The Globetrotters will be led by dribbling specialist Curly Neal and Geese Ausbie.
Tickets are priced at $5, $6 and $7 and can be purchased at all Flipside Record locations and at Sears at the South Plains Mall. Tickets are also available at the Coliseum ticket office.

Junior High Meets Head Into Finals

The city seventh-grade boys' and girls' basketball tournaments conclude tonight with three contests scheduled in each.
In the boys' tournament, being held at Wilson Junior High, Slaton and Thompson battle at 5:30 p.m. for the consolation championship. The game to determine third place will be played at 7 p.m. between Atkins and Evans. The boys' championship contest between Wilson and Alderson will get under way at 8:30 p.m.
In the girls' tourney, Matthews and Slaton meet at 5:30 p.m. for the consolation trophy. Mackenzie and Wilson square off at 7 p.m. for third-place honors. The title contest will pit Atkins and Evans at 8:30 p.m.
There is a $1 admission charge at each tournament.

St. John's and Notre Dame switched positions this week with the Redmen taking over the No. 8 spot with 697 points. The Irish, knocked off by LaSalle last week, were ninth with 660 points — two more than No. 10 Duke, which dropped five notches after being thrashed by Maryland 101-82 last Saturday.
North Carolina headed the Second Ten for the second straight week. Purdue jumped sixth places from last week's ranking and was 12th followed by Ohio State. No. 6 last week, Brigham Young, Missouri, Clemson, Weber State, Virginia, Arizona State and preseason favorite Indiana.

EL PASO (Special) — The Lubbock Christian College baseball team begins its tenth season when it plays double-headers today and Wednesday against the University of Texas-El Paso. Both days' games are scheduled to start at 1 p.m.
The Chaparrals, winners of the District VIII title in six of the last seven years, were 42-24 last year, but coach Larry Hays is concerned with their depleted pitching staff.
Two-time NAIA All-American first baseman Tim Leslie will split duty between the infield and the pitcher's mound and is expected to start one of Wednesday's games with UTEP.
Hays had selected Rick Coskrey and Noel Delgado as his first-day starters, and Leslie and Kenny Toney as his pitchers Wednesday.
Hays' starting lineup elsewhere is expected to consist of catcher Bob Nottebart, first baseman Leslie, second baseman Tim Inman, shortstop Steve Brigante, third baseman Toney, center field-

Raiders Appear Set To Move

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attorney for the Oakland Raiders says the team's shift to Los Angeles appears imminent if a federal judge rules the franchise can be moved without the approval of National Football League team owners.
As of the weekend, we believe that if the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum can deliver what it promises to deliver — and we believe it can — we have an agreement," said Joseph Alioto, former mayor of San Francisco who is representing the Raiders in their negotiations with the Coliseum.
"We are prepared to conclude a written contract this week and start construction next week," Alioto told U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson on Monday.
The Los Angeles Coliseum Commission has asked for a preliminary injunction barring the NFL from enforcing its rule that requires three-fourths of the league's 28 club owners to approve a move by any team.
Pregerson did not issue a ruling, nor did he say when he would make a decision. He ended the hearing by asking both Coliseum Commission lawyer Maxwell Belcher and NFL attorney Henry Thumann how soon they would be ready to present arguments at a full trial.
Belcher said he could go to trial immediately, but Thumann made no commitment, saying only that another lawyer would be handling the case and would have to be briefed.
Both Alioto and Belcher stressed that a quick and favorable ruling is necessary if the Coliseum is to complete construction work it has promised the Raiders in time for the 1980 season. The Coliseum has reportedly offered the Raiders a package worth $17 million to move.

CLU Plans To Challenge New School Prayer Law

BOSTON (AP) — Officials of the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts said today they will file a suit in state Supreme Court today challenging the constitutionality of a new state law reviving spoken prayer in public schools.

At least two school districts, Newton and Beverly, ignored the law that took effect today, saying they are hoping for a quick court test of the law's constitutionality.

John Roberts, director of the CLUM, said the group will first seek a court injunction suspending the law, then challenge its constitutionality.

The measure, approved overwhelmingly by the Legislature last year, requires teachers in public schools to ask each morning if any student wants to lead the class in prayer. Students who do not wish to participate are to be excused from the room.

The law replaces an existing statute requiring teachers to announce a minute of silence each day for either prayer or meditation. That procedure is neglected in many school districts.

Roberts said CLUM is convinced the state courts will strike down the new prayer law because it so closely resembles a voluntary prayer period the state Supreme Court found invalid in 1973.

When you look at the case law, it's a sitting duck, he said.

Meanwhile, several school systems, including those in Newton and Beverly, decided to delay implementing student-led prayer though the state Education Department has advised them the new procedure is valid until the courts rule otherwise.

The stance prompted state Rep. A. Joseph DeNucci, D-Newton, to complain to the state attorney general's office.

"I'm not saying it's a perfect law," DeNucci said, "but it's not up to individual school committees to determine its constitutionality."

DeNucci said Thomas R. Kiley, first assistant attorney general, told him the office would wait until the law is actually in effect before taking any action to force compliance.

James Nash, spokesman for the Massachusetts Council of Churches, said his Protestant-Anglican organization had not taken a position on the latest school-prayer law but had opposed similar measures in the past. He said he personally found the measure "distasteful."

However, Paul Pierce, a Watertown man who drew up the prayer bill, contended the measure enhances individual liberties.

"I believe if you say students can't vocalize prayer, you're abridging their freedom of speech," he said.

Suspect Arrested For Indecent Exposure

A 28-year-old Lubbock man was arrested Monday afternoon after a 12-year-old girl told police the man exposed himself to her in the 5000-block of Utica Avenue.

Reports show the girl was walking south on Utica Avenue about 3:30 p.m. Monday when she saw a man walking toward her. The girl told police the man ducked into an alley and returned to the sidewalk, exposing himself to her as she approached him.

The girl ran home and her father called police. According to reports, the girl's mother came home while officers were there and asked for a description of the man. She told police she had seen a man matching the suspect's description walking south in the 5200-block of Salem Avenue.

Police stopped the man and arrested him after the girl identified him. He was booked into county jail on suspicion of indecency with a child.

Reports indicate Roy L. Brillion told

NRC Considers Request To Halt NY Nuclear Plant Operations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two atomic reactors still operate and a third stands dormant on Hudson River shores within 30 miles north of New York City, despite warnings the region could never be evacuated in a nuclear emergency.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission today was to consider a petition from the Union of Concerned Scientists, demanding that Consolidated Edison's Indian Point nuclear station be closed as a potential menace to the area's 19 million

Longshoremen To Appeal Order To Halt Boycott

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Attorneys for the International Longshoremen's Association say they will file an appeal this week of a federal court order forcing dockworkers to load vessels with grain for the Soviet Union.

from encouraging a boycott of Soviet-bound ships and cargo, in effect sending longshoremen back to work.

Victor Hess Jr., an attorney for I.L.A. Local 1418 and 1419, said Monday the appeal would be filed before the end of the week in the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals after he had a chance to examine last week's order from U.S. District Judge Veronica Wacker.

Hess said he received permission to proceed with the appeal Monday from I.L.A. general counsel Seymour Waldman and other union officials in New York.

"We had in our mind the idea of appealing, but it was something we had to talk with New York officials about to be sure they felt the same way we did," Hess said.

"I think I have one, maybe two, good legal arguments," Hess said.

The petition also tests the NRC's response to a recommendation from its own independent Three Mile Island consulting team that reactors for which adequate emergency evacuation plans cannot be made should be closed.

The scientists, including a former Indian Point NRC inspector, seek suspension of the operating licenses of Indian Point 2 and 3 until the NRC resolves pending safety issues, assesses the impact of a major accident and determines whether the densely settled area is suitable for a nuclear power station.

The petition also seeks revocation of the provisional operating permit issued in the early 1960s for Indian Point 1 and the decontamination and decommissioning of the reactor.

The early Babcock & Wilcox reactor, now dormant because it lacks an emergency core cooling system and other new safety features, has never been able to qualify for a permanent operating license.

Robert Abrams, attorney general of New York state, has told the NRC "We fully support the petition with respect to Unit 1."

But Abrams said operating licenses on the two newer Westinghouse reactors should not be suspended unless an NRC review shows that defects alleged in the petition pose serious hazards.

State Says Letters Show Ford Misled Agency

WINAMAC, Ind. (AP) — A series of letters will help show Ford Motor Co. misled a federal agency that asked the automaker for information about alleged defects in the Pinto sedan fuel system, say prosecutors in Ford's trial on reckless homicide charges.

A dozen letters exchanged by Ford and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration were admitted into evidence Monday in the automaker's trial on criminal charges stemming from a fiery Pinto crash that killed three young women.

Certain (Ford) responses were false responses, misleading responses, that show Ford's recklessness," DePaul University Law Professor Terrence Kiely said of the letters, which contain Ford answers to NHTSA questions about the Pinto's design and crash testing.

Admission of the correspondence and a NHTSA report about its investigation of alleged defects in the Pinto fuel system represented a victory for the prosecution in the trial, now in its fifth week.

Prosecutor Michael A. Cosentino hopes the May 1978 report and the letters, written between September 1977 and August 1978, will help establish the relevance of documents about crash tests involving Pintos made before and after 1973, the model year involved in the Indiana crash.

Ford is charged with three counts of reckless homicide in the deaths of three teen-agers who burned when their Pinto sedan burst into flames in a rear-end collision.

The prosecution contends crash tests performed on 1971-72 and 1974-77 model Pintos show Ford knew that defects in the car's fuel system made the vehicle likely to explode when struck from behind but decided to forego repairs to save money.

Lance Probe Prompts Banker's Conviction

ATLANTA (AP) — A north Georgia banker faces as much as two years in prison after his bank fraud conviction in a case that grew out of the investigation of former federal budget director Bert Lance.

Walter Kenneth Hayes, former president of the First State Bank of Gilmer County in Ellijay, Ga., was found guilty Monday afternoon. By coincidence, a representative of the same bank was testifying in Lance's trial while the Hayes jury was reaching its verdict two floors below.

Although the charges against Hayes emerged during the federal grand jury probe of north Georgia banking practices that focused on Lance, the former budget director did not play a role in the Hayes case.

Hayes and an Ellijay woman, Inez Bramlett, were convicted in connection with allegedly forged endorsements on a loan to Mrs. Bramlett and her husband, Billy Joe, from the Gilmer County bank.

Bramlett, a former preacher, businessman and truck driver, was originally indicted on the same charge, but that and other charges against Bramlett and Hayes were dismissed last week by U.S. District Judge Marvin Shoob.

Defense Rests In Bundy Murder Trial

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The defense in the Theodore R. Bundy kidnap-murder trial rested today after using color slides to dispute testimony from a witness who said he saw a man who looked like Bundy pick up the victim at a school.

Prosecutors were expected to call rebuttal witnesses, and it was expected to be Wednesday before jurors trying Bundy on charges of kidnaping and killing 12-year-old Kimberly Leach could hear closing arguments and begin deliberations.

The defense presented 3½ days of testimony to counter prosecution arguments that the 33-year-Bundy abducted the seventh-grader from in front of a junior high school on Feb. 9, 1978, just three weeks after the clubbing deaths of two Chi Omega sorority sisters at Florida State University in Tallahassee. Bundy was sentenced to death last July for those killings.

The last evidence presented by the defense were a series of color slides showing the North Florida school. Bundy lawyers used the slides to try to dispute testimony from an eyewitness who said he saw a man who looked like Bundy drive Miss Leach away from the school in a white van.

Career Seminar Scheduled For Students, Parents

A career seminar for students considering cooperative education programs in the Lubbock public schools is scheduled for Wednesday in the Struggs cafeteria of the Dunbar-Struggs High School complex.

Students and their parents will have the opportunity to learn about various careers and to hear business people in the community discuss careers available.

Slated for discussion are the demands of different careers, pay scale and fringe benefits, broad descriptions of occupations, educational requirements and the outlook for jobs on the local level.

The opening session begins at 8:30 a.m. with an orientation by Priscilla Sims, chairwoman of the Home Economics Cooperative Education advisory committee.

Career sessions, which will cover food industries, environmental services, child care industries, clothing industries and home furnishing industries will follow throughout the morning.

Also included in the seminar are personal sessions following the career sessions. Presenters will discuss how to get jobs through private and public employment offices and company personnel offices.

A general session on how to keep a job will top off the morning's activities. The seminar, entitled "Opportunities Unlimited," is sponsored by the Home Economics Cooperative classes of the Lubbock public schools.

Cold Front Barely Nips South Plains Region

A-J News Services
A cold front that moved through the Lubbock area late Monday proved to have little punch, causing only a temporary effect on the region's unseasonably mild temperatures.

Today's predicted high of the mid-50s will be a considerable drop from Monday afternoon's top reading of 75, but the mercury is expected to bounce back to the mid-60s by Wednesday.

The front touched off some showers in Northeast Texas during its passage through the state, but no precipitation is forecast for the Lubbock area at least through Wednesday.

Lows tonight should be in the middle 20s, somewhat cooler than this morning's low of 33. Northeasterly winds of 10 to 15 mph today were expected to shift to the southeast at about the same velocity tonight.

Minimum temperatures over the South Plains this morning ranged from 25 at Dimmitt to 36 at Matador. No precipitation was recorded at any of the reporting stations.

The extended forecast calls for partly cloudy skies and no important temperature changes Wednesday through Saturday.

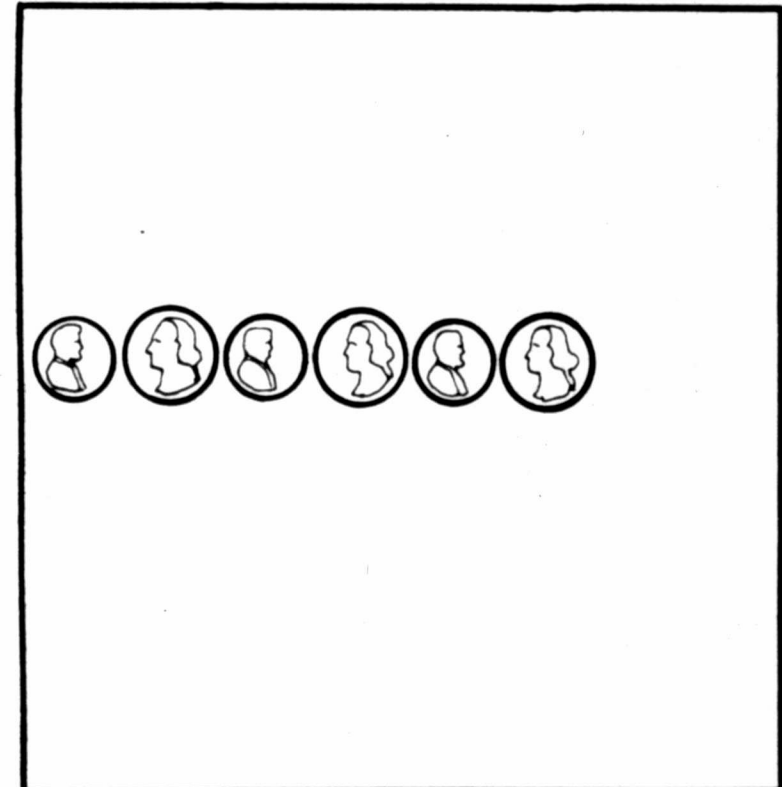

Snow fell this morning across the mid-and upper-Mississippi Valley creating hazardous driving conditions and resulting in heavy snow warnings. Two-to-4 inches of new snow were reported.

Snowshowers were expected to reach today from the lower Great Lakes across the Ohio Valley, the Tennessee Valley and the northern two-thirds of the Mississippi Valley into northern parts of Georgia and Alabama. Rainshowers were forecast from the lower Mississippi Valley into Alabama. Snowshowers were also forecast for northern New England, with rainshowers in Northern California through western Washington.

Heavy snow warnings were in effect in southwestern Minnesota and over most of Missouri. Travelers advisories for snow were up in parts of Nebraska, South Dakota, Kansas, Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Missouri. Advisories for a mixture of freezing rain, sleet and snow are in effect for parts of Missouri, Arkansas and Tennessee. A winter storm watch is up over Kentucky.

Leaves Make Pretty Winter Place Mats

By SHARILEWIS

Writer is here, and in many places snow covers the ground. However, I've been traveling around the continent performing with symphony orchestras in really cold places like Winnipeg, Canada, and Rochester, N.Y. and I've seen some leaves that still remain on the trees. Now, leaves can add a spot of cheer to even the bleakest of winter days but leaves don't last. Here's one way to hold on to autumn. Make leaf print place mats.

You'll need fabric (for the mats), carbon paper (regular paper, fixative and, of course, a leaf).

Place the sheet of carbon paper on a table, carbon side up. Then lay your leaf, vein side down, on the carbon paper, and place the sheet of regular paper on top. Carefully press with a warm iron.

Take off the top sheet of paper, and place the somewhat blackened carbon-coated side of the leaf on the fabric that you are using for the place mats. Press the leaf with a hot iron to transfer the print. Take off the leaf, and spray the mat with a fixative to set the print. You don't have to stop with just place mats. You can transfer your leaf prints onto any fabric you want, even plain white T-shirts.

In other words, until winter leaves surround yourself with winter leaves!

Yesterday's Brain Twister: What do you do if you have an injured lemon?

Answer: Give it lemonaid!

Today's Brain Twister: Lay out six coins so that three of one kind are alternating with three of another (for example, penny, quarter, penny, quarter, penny, quarter). Now, moving only two adjacent coins (that is, two next to one another) out of line at a time, how can you get all the pennies together and all the quarters together?

(Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.) (Mail to Shari should be addressed to Kids-Only Club, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.)
