U.S. Studies Afghan Aid Against Soviet Invaders

WASHINGTON (AP) - Administration sources said Saturday the United States is considering ways to assist Afghani rebels against Soviet forces as a follow-up to President Carter's curtailment of grain shipments to Moscow.

But these sources, declining to be identified, said the administration has not yet decided whether, and how, it might help the rebels resisting occupation of Afghanistan by Soviet troops that U.S. officials estimate could number 50,-000. In Pakistan, diplomatic sources said the troop strength may be 100,000 and

The only official statement of the administration on the delicate subject was made Friday night at a briefing for reporters by a senior official who asked not to be quoted by name.

The only other countries, besides the Soviet Union, which border on Afghanistan are Iran and China. But the current crisis and political chaos in Iran precludes action there, and China's border with Afghanistan is small and nearly impassable because of mountains.

Nonetheless, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, who arrived in Peking on Saturday, will have "wide-ranging" discussions with the Chinese that will include an exploration of the possibility of aiding the rebels, the sources said.

Speculation about military options came less than 24 hours after Carter announced a host of steps aimed at bringing pressure on the Soviets to withdraw their forces from Afghanistan.

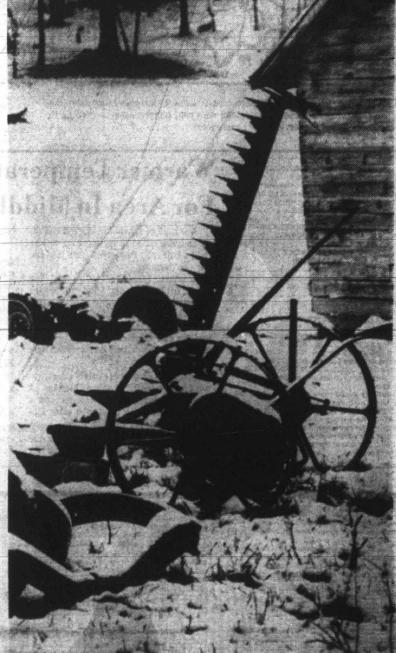

In a nationally broadcast address Friday night, Carter announced a partial embargo of grain supplies and a complete halt to sales of U.S. high technology to the Soviet Union.

He stopped shipment of 17 million tons of grain, valued at $2 billion; threatened to withdraw American athletes from the 1980 summer Olympic Games in Moscow: delayed the opening of new American or Soviet consular facilities and deferred most cultural and economic exchanges. The president announced a severe curtailment of fishing privileges for Russian trawlers in American waters.

Carter also announced the United States would increase military equipment, food and other aid to Pakistan.

Under a five-year agreement with the Soviet Union, signed in 1975, Moscow must buy a minimum of 6 million tons of grain a year. If it chooses, it may buy up to 8 million tons a year without any further U.S. approval. However, if more than 8 million tons a year is wanted, the

On the domestic political front, Iran's second-ranking holy man, Ayatollah Mohammed Kazem Shariat-Madari, whose followers have been behind much recent antigovernment agitation, announced he would withdraw support of the Moslem Peoples Republican Party if it resumed political activities, the official news agency Pars said. The party, main voice of the Turkish-speaking minority in Azerbaijan, suspended political activity after violence in the regional capital of Tabriz last month.

More pro-Khomeini demonstrations were reported in all Iranian cities, including the holy city of Qorn and Tabriz. In those two cites, fights with Shariat-Madari supporters broke out for the second straight day.

In the Persian Gulf port city of Bandar Langheh, factional violence left 28 persons dead and more than 100 injured, the state radio reported.

'Witches" Murder Trial Set To Open

Avalanche-Journal Staff TOO OLD FOR trick-or-treating, yet young enough to yearn for the thrills traditionally associated with the last night of October, five Dimmitt teen-agers set out on Halloween night 1977 looking for some excitement.

Their destination was a modest, onestory frame house on a country road north of their hometown. The couple living there were self-professed witches and the high school students were hoping to catch a glimpse of some mysterious for-bidden ceremony.

Instead, the youths' quest for Halloween thrills quickly turned to terror. Rather than witnessing an occult ritu-

Nearly 50 persons have been subpoenaed to testify at the trial, which defense attorneys Travis Shelton of Lubbock and James Doores of Amarillo predict will take at least two weeks.

But the length of the trial is one of the minor worries for prosecutor Jimmy Davis.

Inflation In Medical Costs May Be Worsened by Health Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) - A congressional report released Saturday claims that inflation in medical costs may be made worse by the government's policy of not taxing employers' contributions to worker health insurance programs.

BAD TRIP

VISTA, Calif. (AP) — The grandson of the late circus clown Emmett Kelly claimed he was on an "acid trip" when he allegedly killed a 66-year-old Presbyterian minister, according to police. Detective James F. Wood testified during a muncipal court hearing that Paul Anthony Kelly told him he had taken LSD a day and a half before the December 15 slaying of the Rev. Henry Kuizenga. The court session was held to determine if Kelly, 22, will be tried in Superior Court for the beating deaths of Kuizenga and 22-year-old Brent Bailey, a Los Angeles antique dealer.

coverage than they overwise would, and this ... encourages more frequent use and more elaborate forms of medical care,'

the budget study said. It said that this, in turn, drives up health care costs.

The study also concluded that the employer exclusion costs the federal government $9.6 billion in lost revenues.

In 1980, the budget experts said, the federal government could lose a total of $14.5 billion on all the special tax breaks it allows for medical care, including the deductibility of health insurance premiums and large out-of-pocket medical ex-

The findings were almost identical to those reached last summer by the General Accounting Office, a watchdog agency of Congress which also looked into the high cost of medical care.

Two congressmen who held hearings on the subject said in a news release accompanying the new report that changing the tax law to "encourage competi tion" could help cap medical costs.

Consumers can and will be smart shoppers if we can release normal market forces in medicine," said Rep. Sam M. Gibbons, D-Fla., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee's oversight subcommittee. However, Gibbons and Rep. James R.

Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the Budget Committee's task force on tax expenditures, said they have no plans to push taxing the fringe benefit.

But conditions might be imposed to make health care choices more competitive," they said in a joint statment.

Jones has recommended that health insurance include a co-payment requirement that would make the patient pay for part of his care up to a predetermined portion of his income

But House Ways and Means Committee chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., proposed legislation late last year that would eliminate the total tax-free status of employer contributions to health insurance policies. That bill is sure to be controversial and face tough hearings.

Police Arrest Rape, Slaying Suspect

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 24-year-old migrant worker was arrested Saturday by Los Angeles County sheriff's officers in the Christmas week rapes and strangulathe courthouse jail, just an elevator ride tions of two 11-year-old Oregon girls.

Deputies said Manuel T. Cortez was picked up without incident while apparently on his way to see his mother in the City of Industry, about 30 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

The arrest came a few hours after Jackson County District Attorney Justin Smith announced in Ashland, Ore., that Cortez was sought in connection with the Christmas week murders of Deanna Jackman and Rachel Isser.

Deputy Brad Welker of the Los Angeles sheriff's office said California authorities got the license plate number and description of Cortez' car after learning that he had first stopped to see a relative in Salinas, Calif. Deputies then staked out his mother's house.

Welker said Cortez was wanted by California authorities on a 1977 warrant from Pomona Superior Court in connection with a kidnapping for ransom and attempted rape of a 16-year-old girl. Welker said Cortez had fled from prosecution during that case and his whereabouts have been unknown for the past two Ashland Police Chief Vic Lively said he had no information yet on when Cortez would be returned to Oregon.

Welker said Cortez was being held in the sheriff's substation in Industry and would be moved later to a jail in Los Angeles. No court appearance has been scheduled.

The Isser girl's body was found the night of Dec. 27 in the pressbox at the Southern Oregon State College football

The Jackman girl's body was found the next day in a wooded area five miles from the field. The bodies were nude. The girls had been sexually molested and strangled, police said.

The two were last seen alive on their way to play tennis at a park near the foot-

Police issued four drawings of a man seen by joggers at the field about the time the girls disappeared.

Later, police revealed that a bloodstained quilt was found near one of the bodies. Smith said publication of the photographs resulted in a call from someone with "vital information" about the quilt, but declined to say whether the quilt belonged to Cortez.

Mariana Wiebenga, publisher of El Noticiero, a Spanish-language newspaper in southern Oregon, såid Cortez worked as a fruit picker at a local orchard.

CARTER COMMENDED WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Governors' Association has commended President Carter for his decision to support renewal of the general revenue sharing program including full participation by the states. Speaking for the association, Govs. Lamar Alexander of Tennessee and Harry Hughes of Maryland said, "No other federal program has delivered so vast a range of public services to thousands of communities across the nation at less cost to the taxpayer." The Carter administration announced last Thursday that it is backing a five-year extension of the $6.9-billion-a-year program and was reversing its earlier opposition to participation by state governments.

James R. Thompson announced Saturday that top-level negotiators had reached agreement on a solution to the Chicago school crisis, averting a possible closing of the nation's third largest school system on Monday. "The plan includes no tax increase," Thompson said after a third day of intensive negotiations with education, banking, union, and Chicago city government officials. "It will keep the schools open, it will

Robert Healey, president of the Chicago Teachers Union, had said teachers would not report to work Monday unless they were paid by then.

The governor said Chicago's 48,600 school employees would be paid on Monday and Wednesday the approximately $83 million owed them from missed pay-Healey said after Thompson's statements that he would meet Sunday with 1,000 delegates of the teachers' union and recommend that teachers return to work on Monday, keeping public schools open for 480,000 students. Thompson said the situation requires 'deep and drastic budget cuts." Asked

The plan, which involves the sale of bonds and loans by Chicago banks, also will provide $225 million in interim funding for school operations and $500 million in long-range funding.

Most of the immediate $150 million will be raised through issuance by the Chicago school board of $100 million in certificates. The state treasurer will purchase $50 million, the city of Chicago will purchase $25 million using money borrowed from city banks, and Chicago unions will purchase another $25 million. Thompson said.

The remainder will come from $20 million on hand at the board and about $30 million in payments of state and federal money which are due, the governor

The $225 million in interim financing would come through the city of Chicago, which has a better credit rating on money markets than the school board.

Thompson said the $225 million would be raised through sale of tax-anticipation notes whose repayment would be guaranteed through future taxes that otherwise would have gone to the Chicago

That solution, which would require legislation, would create a special fivemember control board over the Chicago school board with authority to issue $500 million in long-term bonds to be paid off by taxes levied by the control board.

The Illinois General Assembly returns to session Wednesday. David Gilbert, the governor's press spokesman, said Thompson talked by telephone with several key legislative leaders and that their reaction was favorable.

The control board would have two members named by the governor with the mayor's approval, two members named by the mayor with the governor's approval, and a chairman appointed

As the negotiations went on earlier Saturday, Michael I. Brady, legislative lobbyist for Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne, had said that at least a partial solution needed to be worked out Saturday. "I don't think we can wait until Sunday night," said Brady. "The schools then won't have enough time to resolve themselves to open Monday."

ble-digit inflation and a declining schoolage population.

Anytime you have a tight money situation, as we have now, then private education is among the first to suffer," said Harley Tefertiller, superintendent of the Lubbock Christian schools.

During the past three years, enrollment in area private schools has been steadily declining, according to a survey conducted by the Region XVII Education Service Center, which serves a 20county area of the South Plains.

Shockingly, to us, we found that the overall enrollment in the area's private schools had actually decreased by about 100 students over the past three years," said Dr. Weldon E. Day, director of planning, evaluation and research with the

The survey results were somewhat suprising: Lubbock public school officials speculated last fall that popularity of area private schools may have accounted for part of a 500-student decrease in enrollment in the city's public schools

The recent growth of church schools applies only to the Protestant denominations, not to the Catholic church. Enrollment in Catholic church schools in this country has declined 44 percent since the peak years of the mid-1950s, according to the National Catholic Education Associa-

In Lubbock, the rapidly increasing cost of providing a quality education has forced Christ The King parishioners to consider shutting down their high school.

A nine-month study of the church school conducted by a special committee concluded in December that the parish will be hard-pressed financially to provide a quality education for a relatively small number of high school students.

Enrollments in the church's elementary and junior high schools have shown rapid increase in recent years. But the tween 70 and 75 since 1966, when the first senior class graduated.

The study committee concluded that the best course of action for the parish would be to phase out grades 10 through

In turn, the money, classrooms and other resources being used by the high school would be available for the expanding needs of the lower grades. The church's elementary grades, for example, have increased in students from 180 to 290 in the past five years.

"But the parish council has not accepted the recommendation yet," noted the Rev. Ronald Krisman, one of the church's pastors. "We're in a holding pattern while the council looks at some alternatives.

The committee's study also found that the school's elementary and junior high students scored above average academically when compared with national averages. Juniors in Christ The King High School, however, scored significantly below average when compared with the national college-bound population.

And because of the limited academic studies offered at the church's high school level, about 30 percent of those who complete the ninth grade at Christ

The committee's final report stated, The wide range of levels of academic abilities of the students in the senior high school, together with a small student population, has limited the effectiveness of the school in presenting a program to meet the needs of all students. The present (high school) facilities are limiting severely the development of the elementary school. At the same time they are insufficient to provide the programs necessary to adequately meet the needs of the senior high school students. One of the alternatives being considered by the Christ The King parish council is the creation of a Catholic high school to serve all area parishes.

At the Lubbock Christian schools, a financial crunch that affected the entire institution, including the college, necessitated a dramatic tuition increase of 27. percent for students in the elementary, junior high and high school.

We had incurred a total institutional deficit," said superintendent Tefertiller. "And the college decided that the high school could no longer be a financial bur-

Tuition for students at Lubbock Christian High School was increased from $1,-160 last year to $1,475 for this year.

With the increased tuition tacked onto several fee charges for students, sending children to a private school proved too costly for many parents. Consequently, enrollment in the Lubbock Christian schools dropped from 620 students last year to 520.

The belt-tightening at the Lubbock Christian schools also forced cutbacks in teachers and other school personnel.

In contrast to the problems plaguing Catholic churches is the boom in Southern Baptist church-sponsored schools.

The Christian school movement that swept many Protestant denominations high school population has remained be-during the 1970s also gathered support from Baptists, a denomination long known for its strong advocacy of public education.

In Lubbock, enrollment at the Western Hills Baptist Church Academy has increased steadily" since the school started in 1972, says the church's new pastor and acting school superintendent, the Rev. Jay Bowen.

At the Western Baptist Academy, 210 students are enrolled in kindergarten through the 12th grade, Bowen said. Presently, most of the students attend school in one large classroom, where they learn through the paced Accelerated Christian Education program.

However, Bowen foresees expansion of classroom space and the academic program by next year.

Despite the problems some of the major and smaller parochial schools in the city face, they all are instilled with a definite sense of purpose

There is a great need for Christian schools in Lubbock." Bowen said. "Lubbock is not exempt from the deterioration of the public school system. There is a great amount of drug traffic in Lubbock, and if it hasn't found its way into the public schools yet, then it's only a

The state could ease some of the burdens on parochial schools by providing economic and academic aids, "but without attaching strings," he said. He favors exempting those who send their children to private schools from paying public

"Christian schools enrich the citizenship of the state," he said. "Our kids are far better citizens than they would be if they went to a public school, got on dope and then became dependent on the welfare of the state."

Tefertiller, the superintendent of the Lubbock Christian schools, said he believes the major contributor to the growth of church schools is public distrust of governmental control over their

There is a strong lack of faith in pub-institutions, including public schools," Tefertiller said.

He added that parochial schools should be concerned about separating themselves from the poor and minorities.

It's true that many parents who send their children here do so because they seek a certain degree of isolation," Tefertiller said. "But I don't believe we are here for segregationist purposes. Many of us on the staff wish we had more minority students. But any time you charge a price for admission, then you become eli-

DROPPINGS FINES

NEW YORK (AP) - Dog owners who fail to clean up their pets' droppings on the streets will face fines of at least $50 as the city has stepped up its campaign against violators of the Canine Waste Law. "In recent weeks, many New Yorkers have detected a slackening of the compliance with the law," Mayor Edward I. Koch said Friday: Besides doubling the minimum fine to $50, effective Jan. 10, the minimum penalty will be doubled to $50 for persons who fail to keep their dogs on a leash, effective March 1. The city's Environmental Control Board is now empowered to impose fines ranging from $25 to $100 for violations of law, which went into effect Aug.

Soviet Union Claims Carter Reaching Into 'Cold War Arsenal'

The Soviet Union charged Saturday that measures taken by President Carter to protest its involvement in Afghanistan reached into the "Cold War arsenal" and constituted a "flagrant violation" of American commitments to the Kremlin.

Other Western governments, meanwhile, applauded Carter's moves, which included a partial embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union, a decision not to export high technology items to the Soviets, deferral of Soviet-American cultural and economic exchanges, and curtailment of Soviet fishing in American coastal wa-

The British, in a show of official anger over the Afghan intervention, pressured Moscow into calling off a visit to London by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. The visit had been planned for next month or March.

Britain also said it was urgently consulting with other NATO allies about measures which we and they should Canada said it was considering imposing its own grain embargo on the Soviets, and Australia was expected to back the United States by not selling additional grain to Russia.

There were also demonstrations Saturday in Vienna, Berlin and Bonn, West Germany, to protest the Soviet military involvement in Afghanistan.

Vietnam spoke up for the Soviets, say ing the Afghan operation would help 'preserve world peace and security.'

The official Soviet news agency Tass stressed that the Soviet Union is a "great and mighty power" and said, "Attempts at exerting pressure on the Soviet Union have never brought success to anyone.'

It said: "Carter used his inventions about the U.S.S.R.'s 'aggressive action' in Afghanistan as a pretext for the adoption of a number of unilateral measures by Washington with the aim of curtailing trade, economic, scientific and cultural relations with the Soviet Union.

"These measures, borrowed from the arsenal of the Cold War, are a flagrant violation by the United States of its com-

Diplomats Say Soviets Lost Hope For SALT

MOSCOW (UPI) - Six months after signing it in Vienna, the Soviet Union has given ip hope of ever seeing the second Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty passed

That disappointment, and growing concern over events in the Middle East and Indian subcontinent, convinced the Kremlin that it had little to lose by its Christmas invasion of Afghanistan, Moscow-based diplomats hav concluded.

And, analysts say, those same convictions could signal the beginning of a decade marked by a hard-line Soviet foreign

'They've known for a while that SALT was dead," said one diplomat from an Eastern bloc country. "and of course there would be a reaction.

That feeling is borne out by the lowkey way in which the official Tass news agency reported President Carter's deciav to postpone de

SALT pact in the Senate. The three-paragraph dispatch merely announced the White House move, and said that "reactionary quarters" in the United States were trying to procrastinate ratifiction of the treaty.

A second major disappointment the decision last month by NATO to install some 600 U.S. nuclear missiles across Western Europe - apparently removed the 1st barrier to the long-planned invasion of Afghanistan.

One well-placed source said, "The Soviets had been on their good behavior during the first months after the Vienna summit and during the debate over NA-TO missiles. But when they realized that SALT would not pass the Senate, at least not without amendments, and when NA-TO went ahead with its plans to deploy the missiles, there was nothing to stop them from doing what they wanted." What they wanted was to topple the shaky regime of Hafizullah Amin in Kabul and replace it with a government that could be controlled completely.

They accomplished that with the installation of Babrak Karmal, a one-time protege of the man Amin deposed and executed - Nur Mohammed Taraki.

The Soviets were deeply embarrassed when, three days after meeting with Leonid Brezhnev in Moscow, Taraki was overthrown and killed by Amin, the ruthless prime minister who adopted a hard line toward tribes of Moslem rebels challenging the progsovit government.

But Amin's army was unable to bring a quick end to the insurrection, despite Soviet aid. Worse, the Kremlin apparently feared it was becoming bogged down in a "Vietnam-type" conflict, supporting an inpopular regime against guerrillas well-entreched in the hills.

Finally, sources said, the Soviets believed Amin was about to double-cross them, by using them to quell the rebels, then ignoring or even expelling them.

"By getting rid of Amin, they cut their losses in Afghanistan, and gained an inroad to the Middle East," said a diplomat from the Indian subcontinent.

The decision to send between 35,000 and 50,000 Red Army troops to the mountainous country may also have been a message to the West.

One source suggested the Kremlin was trying to demonstrate to the United States and its NATO allies the high cost of allowing a slippage in detente, that is, of holding up SALT and deploying the nuclear missiles in Europe.

"They obviously felt detente was in reversal so they might as well accomplish a few things," said one diplomat from a NATO nation.

and confirm that the U.S. administration disregards the interests of positive development of Soviet-U.S. cooperation.

Tass asserted that Washington's 'fierce reaction' to events in Afghanistan resulted from the Carter administration's failure "to convert that country into an anti-Soviet military place.

The Soviet Union has charged repeatedly that the United States, China and mitments in relations with the U.S.S.R. Pakistan have been assisting rebels fighting a succession of pro-Soviet Marxist governments in Afghanistan. Last week, the Soviet Union poured thousands of troops into Afghanistan and helped stage a coup against the government in an effort to defeat the guerrillas. Fighting is still going on.

Tass also used the occasion to step up its criticism of the United States' handling of the Iranian crisis forth the false thesis that a certain threat to Iran emanates from the Soviet Union' because it "endeavors to divert the attention of the public from the (U.S.) policy of overt and gross pressure on Iran.'

Many Americans, Tass said, wonder why Carter has not solved the Iranian crisis by the "simplest, most direct and effective means" of extraditing the hangman" Shah Mohammad Reza Pah-

Christmas Spirit High As Retailers Report Increase In Sales

By KRISTIN GOFF

NEW YORK (AP) - Consumers once again defied predictions and opened their wallets and pocketbooks to spend more liberally than most economists expected during the Christmas season.

Retail figures reported by major department store chains this past week don't represent a comprehensive portrait of all spending. But analysts said the reports seemed to indicate better sales than expected in the face of a weakening

Overall sales for the month of December at big department stores were up about 8 percent from 1978 sales, which also was a strong year. That compared with an estimated 6 percent increase in retail prices for the year, leaving the average retail chain with a slight increase in volume after adjustment for inflation.

"It was a decent Christmas season, better than a lot of people had expected," said Monroe Greenstein, an analyst with the Wall Street firm of Bear Stearns

Most economists still expect consumer spending to soften this year - and some of that has already occurred for big ticket items like home appliances and au-

Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. recently predicted a dramatic slowdown in consumer credit expansion this year. Net new mortgage formation, which reached a record $160 billion last year, is forecast to drop to $135 billion in 1980, largely because of a 20 percent drop in new housing construction, the report said.

Real wages have been declining for many months and debt loads have risen sharply - factors which point to major balance sheet corrections on the part of the household sector," the Morgan report said. While, such projections are widespread, many experts also predicted such a spending slowdown last year and were proved wrong. Fooling the experts has ecome almost commonplace in recent

"The consumer sector has become a major enigma wrapped in a complicated puzzle called the U.S. economy," commented a recent report issued by the government securities research unit of Merrill Lynch & Co. Inc., an investment com-

"Beset by rampant inflation, sporadic gasoline shortages, relentless increases in the tax burden, eroding real incomes and a highly leveraged position, consumers have defied dire prognostications circulating since late 1978 to the effect that the time to retrench had come.

Instead, except for some temporary interruptions due to bad weather or gasoline lines, the report concludes that people have gone right on spending. Part of that has been at the expense of saving. Its report notes, for instance, that the savings rate fell to a 28-year low in the July-September quarter and has continued to slip since then.

Part of that, economists think, is a relatively new attitude about inflation. Since prices have risen steadily since the last recession, people have become used to the idea that if they wait to buy an item later, they will probably have to pay more for it. Thus saving for major purchases has become somewhat less attractive than borrowing to buy them immedi-

Some have also argued that the psychology of the "me generation" has also been a factor in the American consumer's recent willingness to continue buying goods when historical patterns indicate they should be cutting back because of a worsening economy. The Merrill Lynch report indicates that may not be the case. The combinaton of higher taxes and inflation over the past several years has been a major incentive for many people to buy homes. They serve not only as tax shelters but also as inflation hedges because housing prices have risen faster than average

ouseholds are saving more in the form of real goods relative to financial assets.

The boom in home sales and other durable goods - such as appliances, furniture and autos - has resulted in an unprecedented increase in consumer debt over the past three years. But housing and auto sales recently have slumped and the pace of increased debt slowed to about a 10 percent gain in the third quarter of 1979 from the previous year's 11 percent rate.

Merrill Lynch does expect consumer to continue to cut back on debt burden in the months ahead. But the past several years of unprecedented consumer spending, may not be a dangerous trend, it

'It is far from certain that this activity has resulted in a deterioration in the financial condition of households. Indeed, one can argue that consumers are in a better position overall than they were at turning points of past cycles and whatever imbalances seem to exist such as higher debt burden - can reasonably be justified in today's inflationary environment.

Nursing Home Care Payments To Stop

AUSTIN (AP) - The Department of Human Resources formally agreed Friday to stop state payments for nursing home care for elderly persons with only minor medical needs.

The change, which was announced earlier, is effective March 1.

Officials said the change, which was ordered by the 1979 Legislature, probably will force more elderly persons who receive Medicaid to remain in their homes or apartments and use visiting medical or housekeeping services.

There are 18,000 patients in the minimal-care category in Texas nursing homes, the department said, but they will not be affected. Only new patients will be involved.

The state will pay the bill for the alternate in-home care if a doctor prescribes it, said Quentin Woomer, head of the state's medical programs.

State agency statistics indicated the average cost of nursing home care for a patient is $518 monthly while in-home care costs $134 a month when 24-hour medical supervision is not necessary.

sented to Congress later this month, is designed to aid construction of 300,000 new housing units.

The result was "the market's worst start of a new year in modern history, if not ever," said Newton D. Zinder, an analyst at E.F. Hutton & Co.

On Wednesday, the first trading day of 1980, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 14.17 points and there were almost three times as many losing issues as gainers on the New York Stock

Gold, traditionally viewed as a refuge in times of uncertainty by many European and Mideast investors, jumped more than $100 to a record $635 an ounce in just two days before losing ground late in the week on profit taking.

Gold's amazing spiral spurred hectic trading in precious metals stocks which also climbed sharply then fell back by late in the week as the broader market scored its best gain in the holiday-shortened-week on Friday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks posted a 8.53 gain on Friday but still ended the week with a net loss of 10.07 points at 828.84.

The NYSE composite index showed a net loss of .11 to end the week at 61.17. Meanwhile, the American Stock Exchange market value index fell 2.06 to

Chrysler Talks Auto Unionists Into New Contract Concessions HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) -

The United Auto Workers' union tentatively agreed Saturday night to give struggling Chrysler Corp. $243 million in new contract concessions.

Almost all the sacrifice comes through the yielding of 17 paid days off for each worker scheduled in 1981 and the first nine months of 1982, UAW and Chrysler representatives said at a news conference. Most of the remainder comes through further delay of scheduled 3 percent annual wage increases. "We greatly appreciate the additional sacrifices that our employees are making to make this possible," said Chrysler vice-president William O'Brien. The union will submit the agreement to its Chrysler council, made up of offi-cers from Chrysler locals, on Tuesday, and hopes to have ratification completed by the end of the month, UAW officials

Stock Market Opens Year With Decline

By J. L. HUTCHESON Schneider, Bernet & Hickman, Inc.

The stock market opened the new year with a 14.17 point decline on Wednesday as frenzied buying boosted gold, silver and other natural resource stocks. Volume was heavy in active trading.

Concern over the Afghanistan conflict was cited as the chief reason for the sharp rises in the prices of gold and silver as well as the weakness in the market on Wednesday. By Thursday and Friday, however, most stocks had regained their losses and seemed to be trying to move higher despite the negative news

Earlier in the week, traders had moved to cash in on profits made on precious metal stocks which had been subjected to "panic buying" prompted by sharp increases of Oil stocks backtracked and took the housing, chemical copper, movie and savings-and-loan issues with them. The defense, computer and electronic stocks gained

Analysts feel that the buying of the gold and silver stocks earlier this week was a fear psychosis arising out of the troubles in Afghanistan and Iran, and continued concern over the rate of inflation. Analysts feel the recent weakness in the market won't carry on very long since last October there has been several downside moves but all J. L. HUTCHESON have had little follow-through.

With the continuing pressure on the dollar, it will be difficult for the Federal Reserve to relinquish its tight rein on the nation's credit policy. The Federal Reserve Board's chairmen, Paul Volcker, said that he is determined to stem the growth of credit and money as a means to fight inflation ear-Currently, economists believe that the economy started sliding into a recession during the current quarter and that gross national product will continue to decline in the next three quarters, with the biggest drop in the first half of this year. Most are looking for after-tax profits to be down 100% in 1980 and that the second or third quarter will see the low point. They feel that short-term interest rates will fall sharply in 1980's first quarter and more slowly during the remainder of the year. The rate on federal funds, the reserves banks lend one another, will most likely fall from an average of 12.5%-13% in the current quarter to 8%-8.5% in 1980's final quarter.

OPEC Profits From Price Controls

OPEC, with the help of the U.S. government, continues to extract billions from the American economy.

The U.S. government has aided OPEC in two areas. First, by leading consumers to believe that they are benefitting from present price controls and sec-ondly, the belief by the government that it is irrational for OPEC to be selling under contract for $25 a barrel at the same time that it is receiving about $40 a barrel on the "spot" market.

Increasingly, it is not the U.S. refiners but OPEC members who are benefit-ting from U.S. controls on domestic crude. OPEC is doing this through its pricing system, in which it sells some of its oil at "official" posted prices of up to $25 a barrel and a growing amount at up $40 a barrel on the non-contract spot market. Such a system appears to reflect a more or less calculated effort to exploit U.S. price controls

As is so often the case, government efforts to regulate the marketplace are having unintended consequences. Their efforts are encouraging profiteering by OPEC and the oil companies have become a pawn in this game.

OPEC's policy of late is to shift growing amounts of oil into the "spot market." When spot oil is mixed with less costly price-controlled U.S. crude the result is oil whose average price is as high as the price paid by the rest of the U.S. companies generally can't sell that $40 oil in Europe or other non-U.S.

markets elsewhere. There's no incentive to import $25 oil because, due to price controls, they can't make any more profit on it in the U.S. than they can on $40 oil. They can sell the $25 oil elsewhere for whatever it will bring

The result is that the oil companies earn a profit by selling high price OPEC oil to the U.S. and low price OPEC oil to Europe. OPEC collects the difference between the controlled price of U.S. domestic oil and world oil prices.

By having two benchmark prices for oil, OPEC will be at ly $40 billion per year more from America. The only alternative the U.S. has is to raise the price of domestic oil to the world price immediately.

Five Man Committee Sets Price Of Gold

LONDON (UPI) - The price that dictates whether speculators, infected by gold fever in the world markets are richer or poorer, is set by a committee of five men twice a day in a quiet room in the hadquarters of the Rothschild bank.

Gold, which passed $500 an ounce for the first time on the first time on the first trading day after Christmas when London markets were closed for a holiday, soared to a record $630 last Thursday before slumping to a Friday close of $590 in

The fixings — at 10.30 a.m. and 3 p.m. (4:30 a.m. and 9 p.m. CST) have been done the same way for so long no one can remember the exact origin of the tradition. The five men representing the five major bullion houses sit inseparate desks with small Union Jacks propped up before them. Around the walls are portraits of the ancestors of the Rothschilds.

One of the five acts as chairman. At this hysterical moment in bullion speculation he is Albert Keller, a Swiss member of Rothchild's. The other price setters are from Sharps Pixley, Johnson Matthey, Montagu and Co. and the ancient house of Mocatta and Goldsmid.

are advised that orders to buy and supply are roughly in balance. At this point they "drop" their Union Jacks to show that a price has been reached.

In normal times the procedure takes only a matter of minutes. But these are abnormal times in the gold market and Thursday's meeting took 70 minutes, one of the longer price fixings.

The record, set last October when gold was $430 an ounce, was 99 minutes.

The fact that the bullion price fixing takes place behind closed doors has occasioned some jealousy among other has sioned some jealousy among other brokers, but the system has worked for a long time and tradition is strong in The City, as London's financial district is called.

The price fixers used to find the high public interest in a metal few of them can possibly own in speculative quantities somewhat intriguing, but they are used to it now and it is good business. Also by tradition, they do not talk for publication

A spokesman for the Bank of England, which does not take part in the fixing, said he was surprised at the continued public interest.

"To the man on the bus, what does this mean? We re not talking about nine and 18 carat jewelry, but very fine gold bars."

Mideast Oil Money Skyrocketing Price Of Gold

money has pushed up the price of yellow gold more than $200 an ounce to the $600 level in less than a month and could take the precious metal to $900 or more within a few months.

By consensus the impetus for the unprecedented surge in the price of gold has come from the Middle East; oil money is being used to buy gold and that gold is going into vaults.

This market is not a public market." said James Sinclair, head of the trading firm bearing his name. "The market is being manipulated by two forces: Arabs buying for keeps and wealthy speculators buying for profits."

The Arabs are exchanging one commodity for another - Black gold for yellow gold," said Louis Vigdor, vice president of Manfr Tordella Brookes bullion firm. "They are taking oil out of the ground, selling it for dollars, buying gold and putting it back into a vault.

The flight of capital from the Middle East began early in 1979 when the shah's regime was overthrown in Iran and accelerated with each new crisis - the taking of U.S. hostages in Tehran, the attack on Mecca in Saudi Arabia, and radical uprisings in Pakistan, Turkey and other

"But the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan turned a steady flow of funds from that area into a torrent," said R. Leslie Deak, vice president of the huge Deak Perera bullion and currency firm.

"It's our belief that about $3 billion of the unaccounted-for Saudi Arabian official reserves was converted to private holdings and gotten out of the country because of concern by the royal family about the turmoil," Deak said.

"The Arabs don't want any more dollars because of dollar weakness and the U.S. inflation rate. Other currencies are vulnerable to any oil supply disruption. What's left is gold and other precious metals," Deak said

Silver, platinum and paladium also have soared to record prices. Silver rose to near $40 an ounce from around $5 at the beginning of the year. Platinum climbed from $239 to around $800 an

David Mizrahi, editor of the MidEast Report, a New York-based newsletter, said, "the Arabs feel the real reason for the Russian presence in Afghanistan is access to the oil fields.

Russia has stated that sometime between 1983 and 1985 it will be a major importer of oil. Mizrhi says "they have made a decision that now is the time to strike - while the U.S. is vulnerable.

Sinclair also thinks the Russian presence in the oil-rich Middle East is the fuel sparking the gold market. "Gold fell to under $570 an ounce early Friday morning, then soared to over $600 agin after reports the Russians were employing troops to the Pakistan border." he Deak said the "poor U.S. Showing in Afghanistan" has led other Middle Eastern countries to believe "there is nothing to stop the Russians.

Mizrahi says the Arabs believe the next Soviet move will be in Iran. "Why did the Soviets send 50,000 troops, sophisticated weapons, tanks and jets into Afghanistan?" Mizrahi asked. "They

Oil Officials Reject Offer Of Pay Hike

DENVER (AP) - Oil workers union officials said Saturday they had received no further wage-and-benefit offers, despite rejection of all previous proposals from 100 oil companies

Officials of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union said they would meet at union headquarters through the weekend in an effort to avoid a strike by 60,000 refinery workers on Tuesday.

On Thursday, the OCAW rejected an offer from Gulf Oil Corp. of a 9 percent hike in wages that now average $9.55 an hour. Gulf was the first company to make a second offer to the union. Earlier offers all were termed "unsatisfactory" by OCAW President Robert F. Goss.

The union's current two-year pact, in effect since last Jan. 8, allows for wage reopeners and authorizes a strike beginning Tuesday. Negotiations began in Each of the 411 contracts is negotiated locally, but must be approved here be fore it can be voted on by the workers.

Goss, saying he wanted to avoid "crisis bargaining." had asked that all further benefit offers be submitted by the end of the business day Friday

Union spokesman Jerry Archuleta said that the union's eight district directors and Goss would decide by 3 p.m. Monday whether to call a strike

Besides a 9 percent wage increase. Gulf offered to increase its contribution toward the curre. t hospitalization-medical insurance premium by $10 a month for family coverage and $2 a month for employees without dependents. Gulf at first offered $8 and $2 a month, respec-

Goss says the union wants a fully paid health-care plan, including dental and prescription drugs

Unless the impasse is broken on fully paid health care, there is a very good likelihood that we will call a strike, Goss said Friday

The union also' wants a "substantial" hourly wage increase, but the issue of full health-care benefits must be resolved first, Archuleta said.

The Department of Agriculture reports last year's total of $110.2 billion in cash receipts by U.S. farmers was more than double the 1970 figure of $50.5 bildidn't need that kind of force.

"Let's suppose the Russians do go into Iran," Geak said. "Even though the U.S. is upset at being pushed around there's not much le can do. Whatever we do, the supply of oil will be cit off."

Paul Sarnoff, director of research for Conti Commodity Service, commodity trading subsidiary of Continental Grain Co., has a minority opinion that gold's re-cord price "has nothing to do with Afghanistan, nothing to do with Iran or with anywhere else.

Sarnoff said "gold is tied to oil ... As long as the price of oil goes up the price on gold will be firm or go up.

The Arabs are buying gold and stashing it in a vault, but it's a big market.

"We have definitely seen some buying by central banks despite the high price,' Vigdor said. All major countries except the United States, he said, have increased their gold reserves in the last 10 Other industry sources said strong deen speculation.

Deak also said the U.S. Futures market is a very small factor in the present runup in gold But Sinclair said there is some "speculative manipulation. it isn't all the Arabs. Every person who is able to finance this kind of activity is in the market. These investors are extremely wealthy individuals who are buying physical gold. They have no need to sell; they can wait out the market.

When it really gets down to basics, gold is emerging as as the world's de facto money despite various attempts by governments to dampen it," Deak said. Sinclair said the only thing that could halt gold's rise is the unlikely scenario of "worldwide peace." If, also unlikely, Russia pull out of Afghanistan, if the U.S. hostages are released, gold would drop sharply, he said.

But Sinclair feels the trouble in the Middle East will spread. "We look for the next flareup in Turkey sometime around the end of January.

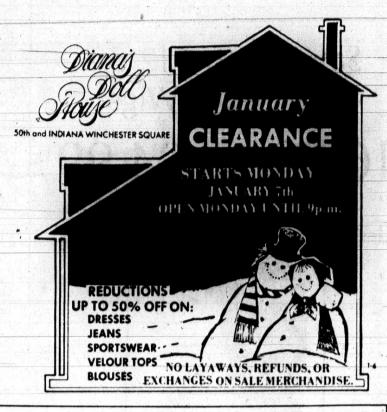

Can the United gstates dampen the gold market?

"IF the government comes in with a sale it would have to be a huge one," Vigdor said, and most analysts believe the zy," R. James Beam, manager of gold ales at First National Bank of Chicago, said lie last week. "Without a doubt it's been the most hectic" since the bank started its gold passbook account last April, he said

Citibank of New York is adding customers "at a tremendous rate every day," said Janet Mackin, manager of that bank's gold certifictes, also begun in

With both the Citibank and First Chicago programs, customers usually let the banks hold their gold and take only a receipt — a certificate or passbook showing the number of ounces they own in bank vaults. When gold prices chnage, so does the value of the holdings, which customers can resell to the banks at the current price.

"There' no guarantee people are going to make money because the gold markets are very volatile," Miss Mackin said. "But people believe the price of gold is going to rise and they want it."

Friday's rollback in bullion means people who bought at the Thursday peak prices of well over $600 suffered quick sses, at least for the moment

Gold bought through banks does not carry the usual federal insurance on bank accounts, so customers must rely on the bank's good name.

But individuals are proving they want access to gold markets and are taking advantage of the half-dozen or so bank gold programs. Many other banks sell gold and silver coins and business at metals dealers also is booming nounced precious metal certificates in gold, silver, platinum and paladium. The firm planned to begin certificate sales in a few months but jumped in early because of investor demand for metals.

Like Bank Programs, Deak will store metals so customers don't have to worry about taking possession. Beyond that the programs differ.

Deak has a $2,500 minimum purchase, while First of Chicago requires an initial minimum of five gold ounces, whatever the price. At Citibank customers must put up at least $1,000, which today would buy less than two ounces

Rhode Island Hospital Trust National Bank, which began offering gold certificates in 1975 when the U.S. ban on individual gold ownership was lifted, has no minimum and also has seen business pick because we thought it inappropriate for a more profitable" of the bank's businsses, bank to possibly seem to be touting gold," said John M. Fraser, senior vice president for the Providence Bank's precious metals operations.

'We didn't promote it intil recently

Now, he said, people don't have to be coaxed to buy. The bank's gold transactions number 30 to 40 a day, not an astronomical amount but up from three or four a year ago.

The banks do not retain gold for themselves - each buys or sells through gold dealers when getting a customer order - so the rise in prices doesn't affect them directly. The customer pays the going market price per ounce, with the banks making their money on commissions and storage fees.

Still, a rise in gold attracts new customers - and more commissions. Beam said First Chicago's gold certificate program is "profitable, maybe one of the although he and other bankers won't disclose figures.

Customer storage is a key attraction of the certificate programs but those wanting their gold close at hand also can take delivery. Citibank and First Chicago hve gold vaults in Delaware - which has no sales tax on gold deliveries- and will turn over bullion in London or Zurich as so Hospital Trust delivers at the bank

Those offering gold certificates, which include Republic National Bank of New York, say the bulk of their new customers are individuals from all over the country making fairly modest purchases.

'A great majority of our gold customers are not even regular customers of First Chicago," said Beam.

Violence Limit In Marriage Advocated

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - A Survey of violence in the American home indicates that the marriage license has become a "hitting license" to many couples, University of New Hampshire sociologist said Saturday. Outside the family, the cultural norm which makes hitting a woman more taboo than hitting men prevails," said Dr. Murray A. Straus. "But not so inside the family. Men who would not dream of hitting a woman, hit their

But he said in a report prepared for the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that just as a driving license has speed limits, the marriage license also has a limit on violence. "Generally speaking, the national speed limit on marital violence is that it must not be severe enough to cause an injury requiring medical treatment," Straus said.

Straus, a specialist on violence in the family, interviewed nationally representative sample of 2,143 couples. He and coworkers found that 325 of the couples -15 percent - Reported at least one violent incident between them during the survey year.

Most of the violence consisted of acts such as pushing, shoving, slapping and throwing things. More severe violence -Incliding kicking, biting, punching, hit-ting with an object and attacking a spouse with a weapon - was far less

Straus said the survey found that violence seems to be one of the few aspects of marriage which approach equality between spouses. The study showed that 12.1 percent of the husbands surveyed and 11.6 percent of the wives were violent at least once in the year. "There is an irony in this because, except for th rare instances when a desperate or enraged woman seizes a knife or gun and is effective in using it, the effects of the violence are far from equal.

'She may cast the first coffee pot, but he generally casts the last and most damtraus said

Of the 325 couples reporting a violent incident, 44 percent of the husbands used a higher level of violence than their wives, whereas only 23 percent of the wives were more violent than their husbands.

Straus said there is indirect evidence suggesting that much of the violnce by wives is self-defensive. "Perhaps half of all the marital violence by women is in response to attacks by the husband - either tit-for-tat violence, or self-defensive violence.

Straus suggested one reason why women engage in violence almost as much as their husbands is that victims tend to learn the role of aggressor. And he said cultural norms which make the marriage license a hitting licnse are accepted to about the same degree by women as by men.

Charges Of Murder Filed; Victim's Body Still Missing

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas County district attorney's office has accepted a murder charge against a man accused of slaying a Fort Worth resident who has never been reported missing and whose body has not been found.

Jimmy Russell Williams, 21, of Dallas, was charged Friday in the murder of John Alan McGraw, 26. The charge was the first under a 1974 law revision allowing murder charges even if a victim's body is not recovered.

Williams, who was in the Dallas jail on a traffic violation when the charge was filed, remained in jail under a $25,- 000 bond. "We think we have enough evidence for this thing to stand up in court," said First Assistant District Attorney Doug Mulder. "We have three witnesses who said they saw this guy shoot the other guy to death. But this statute has never been tested in court, so we don't know what will happen."

Mulder said three witnesses told authorities they had seen Williams shoot McGraw and watched Williams dump the body in a Dallas creek.

"Then they said that they all four went back the next night and moved the body. But no body has been found," Mulder said.

He said the witnesses would not be charged, because "there is no indication they did anything but just watch."

Midwest Farmers Blast Carter's Grain Embargo

wichita, Kan. (AP) — Grain farmbean crop still in storage. "It won't help my cash-flow situation, that's for sure." been recovering financially with new export markets and higher prices, say President Carter's grain sale cutoff to Russia may pull the rug out from under them.

And some said they fear a substantial drop in prices when U.S. grain markets open for business Monday.

Carter's decision to withhold 17 million tons of grain ordered by the Soviet Union "is almost certainly going to lower grain prices," said Dave Wilson, who farms 1,600 acres of eastern Kansas land.

"That means the grain I'm holding won't be worth as much Monday as it was on Friday," he said. "And at a time when our storage and interests costs are skyrocketing, lower prices will mean I'll have less income.

In a nationally televised address Friday night, Carter said he would raise the grain reserve so the wheat he is withholding from the Soviet Union will not be a glut on the domestic market. But farmers are skeptical.

"That doesn't mean any more inof last summer's corn, wheat and soy- tion."

farm officials were predicting higher grain prices for the early part of 1980. Record harvests, record exports and the highest prices in several years had lulled farmers into anticipating still higher prices for their grain.

"I hadn't sold any of my wheat crop from last summer," he said. "We thought that if a guy held his grain long enough, the market price would rise in February or March to a point where we could at least break even.

Movement Seeking More Loans

director of the American Agriculture Movement Saturday said President Carter's partial embargo of grain shipments to the Soviet Union could be devastating to American farmers unless more loan money is made available.

Carter announced only 8 million tons of grain - instead of the previously agreed upon 25 million tons - would be exported to the U.S.S.R. this year as punitive action for the Soviets' role in the coup in Afghanistan. However, AAM Leader Marvin Meek said the resultant domestic surplus could wreck the U.S. market.

Now that he's done it, he'd better get busy and try to raise the loan rates so that things won't grow stagnant," Meek

Meek said Carter now should allow farmers, through the 1977 Farm and Agriculture Bill, to use their grain surpluses as collateral for loans.

The administration's decision to curtail grain shipments to Moscow was in reprisal for the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan. But to farmers in Middle America, thousands of miles from the fighting, the sacrifice Carter is asking seems pretty steep.

"I don't think it's fair for us to have to bear this economic burden when we were just getting halfway on our feet," said Earle Hunt, a wheat farmer in Arkansas City, Kan. Harper said he would like "some of the rest of the economy to make some sacrifices.'

"We've made sacrifices for inflation and energy costs - we're about sacrificed out," he added.

Many farm organizations expressed support for the embargo, despite worry over the potential loss to farmers. Allan Grant, head of the American Farm Bureau, the nation's largest general farm organization, said he was 'pleased" with the steps against what he called Soviet agression.

But he added that Carter's proposals for offsetting the impact on farmers will not be sufficient because, unfortunately, there is no real long term farm income solution except expanded sales of U.S. farm products abroad." The Minnesota Farmers Union, in a telegram to Carter, said it supported the action, and outlined steps that could prowe can get the demand in line with our tect farmers. Donald Chafin, director of the agriculture department at Wilmington College in Ohio, said farmers could lose $14 billion unless government price supports are increased. But he added, "Food is a better weapon to fight with than nuclear

Some agriculture leaders expressed skepticism that the government could make up for the losses, but most held off direct criticism of Carter's action.

Partial Grain Embargo May Cause 'Pinch'

MOSCOW (AP) - President Carter's partial embargo on American grain shipments is expected to have a noticeable but not severe - impact on Kremlin efforts to sustain and boost Soviet meat

"It'll definitely cause a pinch for them," one Western specialist on Soviet agriculture commented Saturday after Carter's announcement of economic steps the United States was taking to retaliate for the Soviet intervention in Af-

The cutback in American grain is expected to have its most immediate and substantial impact on Soviet poultry output. But by this June, knowledgeable observers say, it will start affecting supplies of other meat - particularly pork - in Soviet stores.

Almost all the grain the Soviets wanted to buy from American farmers was to be used as feed for livestock, rather than directly for making bread and similar food products. The embargo's effect on poultry and pig production is expected to be greater than its effect on cattle because cattle generally are fed more of such roughage as straw and feed beets when grain supplies run short, Western specialists explained.

Carter announced he was embargoing the delivery to the Soviet Union of 17 million metric tons of grain, although Washington would still permit the ship-ment of 8 million tons of wheat and corn covered by a long-term U.S.-Soviet agree-

American officials in Washington said the package of get-tough moves also includes a halt to shipments of other agricultural products, including soybeans.

The Soviets over the past few months placed massive orders for U.S. grain to help make up for their own disappointing 1979 harvest of 179 million tons - 21 percent below the year's plan target and the worst since 1975.

Last year, the United States gave the Soviets permission to buy up to 25 million tons of grain, and it had been expectright up to the ceiling amount.

Soviet meat production has remained virtually stagnant in recent years despite repeated Kremlin efforts to expand output to meet growing consumer demands.

The importance of this was stressed once again when Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev told a Communist Party Central Committee meeting in November that boosting meat production was the "prime duty" of Soviet agricultural offi-

"For several years meat production has grown only very slowly," Brezhnev said, noting that it should be possible "to solve this problem, just as others, much more quickly than is being done at the

In 1978, the last year for which statistics are available. Soviet meat production amounted to 123 pounds per capita - or about half the amount of meat consumed per capita in the United States.

Policeman Regains Wages Lost After Rooster Shooting

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) - Policeman Al Sturtz will get back the $300 in wages he lost when he was suspended for four days for taking a shot at a rooster.

· The Commodity Credit Corp. will purchase the 4 million tons of wheat which would have gone to the Soviet Union and use the wheat to feed the world's hungry. Purchases would be made at the going market price, Bergland said.

 The reserve storage program for corn will be broadly expanded to include the 13 million tons of corn previously destined for Russia. And to prevent excessive production during the year, the government is prepared to pay farmers to divert acreage from corn and wheat production in 1980.

Under the corn storage program the government pays 25 cents a bushel for storage costs. Farmers also are allowed no-interest loans at the rate of $2 a bushel as compensation for not selling the corn. The loans must be repayed when the corn is sold.

But putting corn in storage may reduce considerably the amount of cash available to farmers. The market price of corn - presumably what farmers would have received had they sold the grain to the Soviets - has fluctuated around

Bergland said the Carter administration also will propose an increase in export credits by $3.8 billion during the next two years to promote U.S. agricultural exports to countries other than the Soviet Union. And he said it will seek expansion of production facilities for gasohol to divert more grain into that area.

The 17 million tons of grain held up by Carter's order are part of 25 million tons the Russians had expected to receive this year.

Under Carter's order, the Soviets will continue to receive 8 million tons of grain in 1980 under a separate five-year trade agreement.

The Agriculture Department officials said they were confident the grain embargo would put significant pressure on the Soviet Union, which has banked on the American shipments to make up for a dismal grain harvest.

Last year, department economists say, Soviet grain production was 48 million tons below planned levels. They said the Russians had planned to import 34 million tons of grain this year. With the embargo, Soviet grain stocks will be 16 percent below the amount the Soviets used in 1978.

Bergland said he expects as much as 3 million tons of grain to reach the Soviet Union through it allies, but that the major grain exporters have indicated a willingness not to hinder the U.S. action.

Bergland said Canada and Australia, the two largest grain exporters after the United States, have given "firm support" for the U.S. action and would not make up for the loss of American grain. He said representatives from grain exporting countries would meet in Washington late

Coast Guard Rescues Men Stranded On Barge

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - A day as winds rose to 40 mph, sending Coast Guard crew, battling 20-foot waves in a 44-foot motorboat, rescued two men stranded on an oil barge grounded at Little Egg Inlet on Saturday.

Coast Guard Petty Officer 2nd Class Matthew Greer said Duke Pontin, 26, of Key West, Fla., and Clyde Batts, about 34, of Norfolk, Va., had spent 14 hours on the barge before they were rescued. They were taken to the Coast Guard sta-

The two, employees of McAllister Towing, had boarded the barge shortly before midnight Friday. They found themselves in danger about dawn Saturwaves breaking over the barge.

The 300-foot barge, carrying 70,000 barrels of No. 6 fuel oil, ran aground after high waves forced the crew of a Coast Guard cutter to sever the cable being used to tow the barge to safety, the Coast

Dinos' Demise May Be Result Of Collision

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - A team of scientists is proposing tht dinosaurs were wiped out 65 million years ago by a spectacular collision on Earth with an asteroid that cast the globe into several years of dust-choked semi-darkness.

This new hypothesis would explain why 75 percent of all living species disappeared at the same time. The idea was advanced Friday at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The most common explanation for the global estastrophe has been that water retreating from the continental shelves caused climactic changes to which the dinosaurs could not adjust.

A recent theory suggests that the climactic changes were cused by a massive invasion into the oceans of fresh water from the Arctic Basin.

But Dale A. Russell, a Canadian paleontologist, told a symposium that no physical evidence exists to support the notion of sharp temperature declines.

The new hypothesis was explained by Luiz W. Alvarez, a Nobel laureate physicist at the University of California. His team has been pondering mysterious deposits of a rare element, iridium, at sites in Denmark, Italy and Spain.

The iridum was laid down in limestone at the exact time of the dinosaurs' demise, and the iridum concentration was 160 times what might have been ex-

Iridium is a thousand times more ancient society. earth's crust, a fact that suggests the deposits came from an extraterrestial

source. Alvarez proposed that Earth was struck by an asteroid six miles in diameter that blasted a crater 100 miles wide with the force of 100 million hydrogen bombs

Such an explosion would have thrown an enormous quantity of dust into the stratosphere where, according to the hypothesis, it remained for several years casting Earth into semidarkness.

Lack of sunlight would have killed plankton in the ocean and plants on land, thus depriving fish and animals of food. Russell concluded from evidence in fossils that 75 percent of all living species, including the dinosaurs, the most intelligent creatures of the time, became ex-

Cuba, Rhodesia and Israel have been the targets of economic boycotts by some countries in recent years, and all sur-

Officials anticipate that Iran's three chief trading partners — the United States, West Germany and Japan, accounting for 50 percent of Iran's imports will cut off non-agricultural exports to that country.

President Carter wants sanctions imposed against Iran, following the failure of the negotiating mission of U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, as one more turn of the screws in the step-bystep strategy he adopted to win the hos-tages' freedom without bloodshed.

A worldwide food embargo would squeeze Iran even more, but Carter has ruled out trying to starve the Iranians into releasing the hostages.

However, a de facto U.S. embargo on foodstuffs already exists because American longshoremen are refusing to load ships bound for Iranian ports.

Virtually no cargo for Iran has left this country since Nov. 6. Normal shipping time is 60 days, so Iranians should be feeling the pinch starting soon.

Iran's economy already is in trouble, analysts here say. One worker in three has no work, prices are rising 25 percent a year, and oil production is down from the old level of 5.7 million barrels a day

Officials anticipate that the refusal to sell oilfield equipment and spare parts to Iran ultimately will hurt. But this sort of pressure is slow-acting.

Frank Burroughs, executive director of the Iranian-American Chamber of Commerce, reports that shortages are developing in Iran. Burroughs returned to his home in Santa Rosa, Calif. a month ago but remains in telephone contact with events there.

Lines form outside food shops. The government warns against hoarding. Auto batteries are scarce and sell for the equivalent of $70, Burroughs notes.

An American trade expert says the Iranians have had to settle for short-grain rice from Thailand to replace the American long-grain rice they prefer. Iranians boil their rice for an hour, and the Thai rice turns pasty cooked that way.

'There is a shortage of pharmaceuticals," Burroughs says. "Food has become very expensive. Spare parts, machinery, raw materials - especially nylon are hard to come by."

But Burroughs doubts that trade sanctions will influence Iranian policies. And he worries that economic pressures could drive Iranians toward communism.

"I seriously doubt that economic sanctions by the U.N. would be effective," Burroughs says. "The iman (Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini) is not concerned about how many helicopters he has. As long as the people have food in their stomachs, he will have control of the masses."

"There may be a tendency out of necessity to go to the left," he says. "I'm not so certain anyway that this so-called Islamic movement is truly Islamic."

In Iran, a cloth merchant scoffed at the idea that a U.N. vote would alter his years," the merchant told a reporter. "If America thinks imposing these sanctions will disrupt the main flow of business, it is many centuries behind Iran in the ways of trade."

GOP Debaters Sidestep Iran Unity, Jab Reagan

AP Political Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) - Six Republican presidential candidates, jockeying in debate Saturday night, forsook unity on the crisis in Iran and then took verbal jabs at the man who wasn't there campaign frontrunner Ronald Reagan.

The Republicans criticized President Carter's foreign policy as creating the conditions that led to the taking of U.S. hostages in Tehran, but they differed on whether to pose specific alternatives to Carter's efforts to free the Americans.

One candidate, Bob Dole of Kansas, called the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran an "act of war," and urged tougher economic sanctions. But several other candidates declined to offer specific proposals, indicating they feared it would weaken Carter's hand.

The debate of GOP candidates for the 1980 presidential nomination came just over two weeks before the Iowa caucuses which will be the first step toward choosing delegates to the Republican National

Early in the debate, sponsored by the Des Moines Register and Tribune, the GOP hopefuls chided Reagan for not

'I wish Governor Reagan were here. Oh, do I wish he were here," said former Texas Gov. John Connally. "I really don't know how he stands on the issues. I must say to you I read, I watch, I listen, but I don't hear much. I don't see much. If he were here I'd be delighted to compare notes with him.

Rep. John Anderson of Illinois said the real reason Reagan was not in the debate was that he has nothing different to say in America than he did in 1964 and

Reagan, the former California governor who is the acknowledged GOP frontrunner, refused to participate in the Iowa debate, calling it "divisive" because it "pits Republican against Republican."

But Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois, who was the first candidate to speak, said, "I don't think it's appropriate for us to be speaking to specific solutions to the (hostage) problem. Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee called the hostage situation a "symptom" of a failed foreign policy and added, "I think the world has perceived that we are weak." Still, he said he would not now "second guess" Carter's handling of the situation.

The debate was televised by the Public Broadcasting System and broadcast nationally on radio. During the two-hour debate, candidates answered questions from a panel of four news reporters for 80 minutes and then from the audience.

One question dealt with the grain embargo ordered Friday night by Carter against the Soviet Union in protest of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Baker and former Ambassador George Bush said they did not support the embargo. Baker called Carter's move 'similar to the very things we criticize in Cambodia" - using starvation as a

Anderson supported Carter's grain embargo, saying America must send a signal the Russians would understand. Connally said Iowa farmers should not be forced to pay the price of Soviet aggression in Afghanistan.

Dole charged that Carter "devastated the American farmer, he made the American farmer the scapegoat for past failures of American foreign policy, he eels the United iny or mission, issue in 1980 is

e is still before

WASHINGTON (UPI) - On the openng weekend of the 1980 campaign, President Carter sat on the political sidelines basking in the new popularity he has achieved since the Iranian crisis began.

Saturday, six of the Republican presidential candidates gathered in Des Moines to debate, each hoping to get a fair share of national convention delegates chosen in that Iowa caucus process hat begins this month.

A Democratic debate also had been scheduled, but Carter said he could not participate because of the rapidly multiplying world problems he is facing. With that, Sen. Edward Kennedy dropped out

So Republicans had the debate stage all to themselves - but Carter had all the crises.

International adversity has done for arter politically what he could not do for himself - restore his standing in the polls. Before Iran, Carter's popularity slipped lower than Richard Nixon's during the height of Watergate. Now, polls show him easily beating all challengers.

Those polls were taken during the Iran crisis, now starting its third month, and do not reflect public opinion on the partial grain embargo and other steps Carter announced Friday to punish the Russians for invading Afghanistan.

For the moment, though, Carter is riding high politically and appears fully aware of advantages a president cn win simply by being in the White House, especially during times of turmoil.

He seems to be following the political advice of his predecessors in the White House - if it works, leave it alone.

In 1972, with the Vietnam War dragging on and Watergate threatening, President Richard Nixon ran a media empaign from the White House, leaving a frustrated Sen. George McGovern alone on the campaign trail. The liberal McGovern became his own worst opponent and Nixon won in the biggest landslide on presidential politics.

In 1976, President Gerald Ford conducted his campaign from the Rose Garden. By "appearing presidential," he improved his low standing in the polls and came close to beating Carter in the November election.

It is not clear, however, how long the crumbling international situation can boost Carter's political fortunes. Initial answers could come Jan. 1 in the Iowa caucuses and Feb. 26 in the New Hampshire primary.

Carter's decision to drop out of the Iowa debate and stay in Washington to monitor the international situation may have hurt him in the state.

He also is losing the "I don't want to second guess the president" attitude most other candidates expressed in the early days of the Iran crisis.

When Kennedy criticized Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi in early December, he was roundly criticized himself for not being part of the nation's unified front. Now, Republican candidates are taking swipe after swipe at the Carter policies without apparent damage to their campaigns.

Presidential Challengers Blast Embargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Sen. Edward Kennedy Saturday criticized the president's decision to embargo grain shipments to the Soviet Union, charging it will not force Russian troops to withdraw from Afghanistan but will hurt U.S. farmers.

Kennedy joined a number of candidates for President Carter's job who found fault with the administration decision to restrict trade with the Soviets.

"The grain embargo is unfair to American farmers and infair to American taxpayers," said the Massachusetts Democrat.

"All of us oppose the naked Soviet aggression in Afghanistan. All of us want strong action against the Soviet Union. But a grain embargo won't work," he

"The Soviet troops won't leave Afghanistan, and the American farmer will pay the price for an ineffective foreign California Gov. Edmind Brown Jr., also challenging Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination, said the president's foreign policy allowed the world situation to destabiliz

'The lowered prestige of America has not deterred Soviet aggression or the gross violations in Iran, and now that these crises have occurred the obvious steps that the president has chosen to take are ones that I would support," he

Sen. Robert Dole, the Kansas Republican seeking his party's presidential nomination, was highly critical of Carter.

"The president is rushing in to say something about Afghanistan to avoid facing up to the problem in Iran." he

He accused Carter of "eating his words" and breaking a "no embargoes" pledge that helped the president win strong rural backing in 1976. Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, another GOP hopeful, said, "I would not support (Carter's) efforts to put embarsupport (Carter's) errorts to put empar-goes on grain," and said a possible boy-cott of the Olympics next summer in Moscow mentioned by the president is not a "viable option when it comes to de-termining foreign policy."

Former Texas Gov. John Connally, a constant critic of Carter's foreign policy in his campaign, said the president "got past rhetoric, but not past reaction."

Rep. Philip gcrane, R-III., strongly opposed the use of grain as a political weapon unless the country gets in an all-out conflict with the Soviets.

A White House official, who declined to be identified, said Carter did not decide on the partial grain embargo until shortly before announcing the move.

We know, the Russians know, all of our allies know that the most serious actions we can take, other than going to war, is an action on agriculture exports," the official said.

He said the embargo was viewed as a serious action because it "makes life uncomfortable for the Soviets," and because "it costs us something." The official said the United States is willing to 'pay a price to make a point. 'Spread The Burden'

He said that through price supports and the withholding of the grain from the market, Carter was trying to minimize the impact on American farmers and spread the burden across the country.

The administration is confident that American "friends and allies" will not profit from the U.S. grain embargo by selling the Soviet Union more grain, the official-said. Meanwhile, other officials said they planned intense consultations with the Soviet Union's other sources of grain and high technology imports to buttress the partial embargo. The consultations will include a meeting of grain-exporting nations - Australia, Argentina, Canada, and the European Economic Community - in mid-January, officials said.

There will be a strong and coordinated allied response" to Carter's steps against the Soviets, the officials predict-

To Monitor Purchases

They said the administration would closely monitor purchases of grain by Soviet allies to make sure that none of them were able to act as "middlemen" in helping the Soviets circumvent the embargo.

The officials said they will also hold meetings with grain wholesalers to discuss the embargo. Some wholesalers apparently will have to break purchase contracts made with the Soviets. Officials said they would not know the details until the meetings with the wholesalers.

They predicted that the Soviets' previous purchases of American grain would last through March, and that the pinch would come between March and August, when the next Soviet crop is harvested.

On non-agricultural trade, the administration will work "aggressively" to insure that its allies do not circumvent the ban on high-technology exports to the So-

Exports To Soviets

American non-agricultural exports to the Soviet Union amounted to about $700 million in 1979. Officials said they estimated that 20 percent to 30 percent was in high technology items like computers and oil-drilling equipment.

State Department officials said they had received no official Soviet response to Carter's speech, and did not expect one for several days.

Transient Injured As Train Derails Near Hale Center

HALE CENTER (Special) - A transient riding in a Santa Fe Railway Co. boxcar was in fair condition Saturday at Hi-Plains Hospital with injuries sustained in a train derailment here shortly after 8:30 p.m. Friday. A spokesman for the Hale County sheriff's office said Mickey Thompson, 25, of Sacramento, Calif., was discovered in the train, along with another man, also of Sacramento, who was not injured. Officials said 20 boxcars of the 64-car train derailed 1/2 mile east of Hale Center near U.S. Highway 87. Equipment failure was cited by Sante Fe officials as the cause of the derailment. Susan Metcalf, spokesman for Santa Fe in Amarillo, said a cracked ball bearing in the wheel and axle of one of the cars caused the mishap

The train, which had originated in Denver and was bound for Houston, was carrying grocery items and commodities. Fourteen of the derailed cars contained canned goods and six were empty, Miss Metcalf said.

Damage to Santa Fe equipment and tracks was estimated at less than $140.-000. Workmen cleared the derailed cars from the railroad tracks about 9 a.m. Sat-

Since the coup, many Afghan soldiers have been disarmed and confined to barracks, while whole units have defected to the rebels. Asian and Western diplomatic sources here said.

But the primary witness, and the young man officials once feared had become frightened and fled to Mexico, is Arthur Herrera, Herrera, located in Tulsa, was the driver of the pickup truck the night shotgun blasts tore through the vehicle's right window and buckshot struck Miss Casas's head.

Stone, 50, and his wife, 49, say they didn't hear a shot at their house, where they were quietly bringing in the beginning of the Wicca year that Halloween

However, the couple had heard taunting youths earlier in the evening. About 7:30 p.m., Castro County Sheriff Granville Martin said, the couple called his courthouse office and reported carloads of kids were coming by their house and generally harassing them.' The sheriff recalled that a couple of weeks earlier the Stones had reported similar problems and Martin had arrived at the farmhouse on Easter Road about 7 1/2 miles north of Dimmitt to find several youths from nearby Hereford. Martin took several into custody and fined one teen-ager $100 for attempting to flee from a peace office.

After issuing a "pretty stiff lecture about coming into another county and harassing people," Martin sent the youths home.

The adolescents' fascination with the Stones apparently had been sparked by a mid-October appearance by Stone on a television show in Amarillo.

Stone had discussed an upcoming witchcraft seminar and his and his wife's interests, including witchcraft and their roles as self-described flamen and flamenca - keepers of the flame - of the Church of Arianhu, one of five chartered branches of the Church of Wicca.

The Stones' "coven" in the Church of Arianhu consists mainly of the two of them and before the television appearance few neighbors were aware of their

The basis of the Wicca religion, the Stones explain, is to try to be in harmony with nature. And while they do occasionally gather with other believers at an altar, often by moonlight, and use "props' such as a special knife, a sword, robes and candles to set a mental mood, the group members argue these are no more exotic than the "trappings" of traditional Christian worship services.

But to the Panhandle youths, the prospect of seeing a witches' ceremony or "devil worship" was tantalizing. And Halloween night seemed the perfect

When the Halloween night report of harassment came in from the Stones, Sheriff Martin was patrolling the eastern portion of the county and the call was given to a deputy.

However, recalling the earlier incident with the Hereford youths, the sheriff decided to take the call himself and turned around. As he approached the farmhouse, Martin encountered a carload of teen-agers, again from Hereford.

He stopped their car and told them, 'Don't come back down here," then let them go and continued on toward the house. Once there, he shined his car lights into the driveway, illuminating the door marked by a script "S," which the youths had joked stood for "spook" or "Satan," rather than the Stones' last

Seeing nothing unusual or suspicious. Martin backed out of the drive and continued his patrol.

Meanwhile, Herrera, then 18, was driving a new red Ford pickup truck along Easter Road on the way to the Stone residence. Squeezed into the cab Maria Trevino, both 15; Carlos Garza, 18, and Roxanne Casas, three months short of her 16th birthday

It is now said that Herrera had entered the driveway, passed a small concrete block well house and was turning around, spewing gravel, when the two shotgun blasts erupted. An hour later, at 8:45 p.m., Roxanne was pronounced dead on arrival at Plains Memorial Hospital in Dimmitt. Garza and Miss Trevino, also struck by the flying buckshot, were treated at the hospital for minor wounds.

When news of Miss Casas's death reached the public, tempers in the Mexican-American communities of Dimmitt and Hereford rose. There were demands for an arrest, and by the time of the teenager's funeral on Nov. 3, 1977, the situation was described as critical by officials.

Dimmitt schools closed for the noon Requiem Mass and more than 500 persons overflowed the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church to hear the pastor eulogize Roxanne as "a very sweet person" who "always had a smile.

Classmates of the Dimmitt High School sophomore sat on the front rows of the church and wept while six men wearing the uniform of the Mexican-American Brown Berets slipped quietly into a back pew. The men, believed to be from Lubbock, left just as silently before the service ended.

As the large crowd gathered at a south Dimmitt cemetery about 4:25 p.m. for the burial, Mrs. Stone stood before a justice of the peace to have her bond set on the charge of murdering the young woman. Ten minutes later, Stone took her place and, like his wife, had his bond set at $50,000.

The couple left the Castro County jail after posting the bonds at 5:30 p.m., 4 1/2 hours after they were arrested. Local Mexican-Americans were outraged that three days passed before the suspects were brought in.

In December 1977, the Stones were indicted on one count of murder and two counts of aggravated assault. Monday, attorneys will begin selecting the 12 persons who finally will hear those murder indictments read in a courtroom. And although Sheriff Martin has said tension still runs high in Dimmitt over the two-year-old incident, the situation is not as volatile as it once was. "I believe time has taken care of a little of that," Martin told a reporter last week. But time and the continuing investigation in preparation for the Stones' trial next week has not helped solve two mysteries: no one so far has explained why it took Herrera an hour to drive the nine miles to the hospital or why Sheriff Martin didn't intercept the truck on the lonely road.

"I was patrolling the area (near the Stones') when the call (about Miss Casas's death) came in," Martin said. "I called a highway patrolman for a backup and went to the house. There were no vehicles there besides the Stones' and there was no evidence of foul play.

"Funny I didn't meet that pickup going north," Martin added. "I can't figure out that time lag. "It's got me bothered."

Ken "Juice" Williams, who missed all nine of his shots from the field in the first 20 minutes of play, sank consecutive jumpers in the opening minutes of the second half to give Houston a 48-39 advantage, its biggest lead of the game. If "Juice" warmed up and the Raiders continued to play Keystone Cops-style basketball, well, it would all be over except for the final But here came Doc, who played a few minutes in the first half, and "Train," who hadn't seen much action all season. In a matter of seconds,

Doc dished out three blocked shots, two assists and four points and Smith completely shut down the simmering "Juice" as Tech outscored Houston 12-2 in a span of six minutes to take a 51-50 lead, a lead they never

Smith was on "Juice" like a bad case of ugliness in the final 15 minutes of the contest. Williams, who came into the contest averaging over 15 points a game, hit only a pair of free throws while Smith was pinned to his shirt

As for Robert Williams, Sanders was equally effective defending him.

But the Raiders found a way to seal up those holes in the second half and took a masterful come-from-behind win over the Houston Cougars 77-70 in a regionally televised game Saturday afternoon at the Municipal Coliseum. Tech is now 2-0 in Southwest Conference play and 8-4 on the year.

Cementing the Raider holes were reserves Thad Sanders, a senior, and sophomore Steve Smith. Those two came off the bench and keyed a Tech defensive stand that saw the Cougars, now 1-1 in SWC play and 6-6 overall, connect on only nine of 35 field goal attempts in the

U.S. Reactions Differ To Olympic Threat

Walter Byers, executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said Saturday he would be in favor of boycotting the Olympic Games in protest of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

"I personally would support a decision to boycott the Games as a national reto an unacceptable aggression by the host country," Byers told The Asso-"I think the interest of the United States and its leadership position in the world far surpasses the interests of amateur athletics, even the Olympic Games." Byers' comments were in sharp contrast to many other athletic leaders. President Carter's suggestion on national television Friday night that an Olympic boycott might be considered drew immediate criticism from the U.S. Olympic Committee and Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee.

"I do not agree with either Lord Killanin or Col. (F. Don) Miller (executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee). As to Lord Killanin's comment about politics being kept out of the Olympic Games, the fact is that politics are very much in the Olympic Games," said Byers.

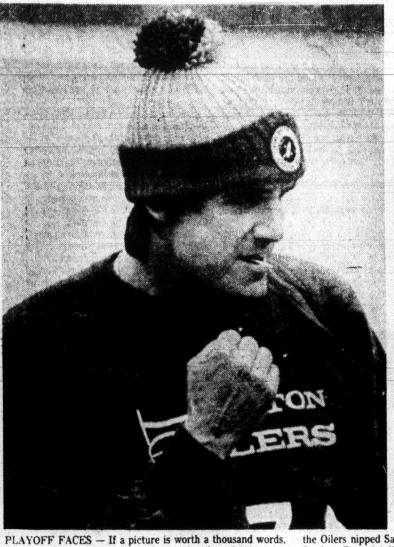

"I think a disruption of plans for the 1980 Games is a small inconvenience if it assists our nation in taking a leadership role in dealing with a crucial world issue.
"I don't see how you can say everything remains the same and nothing should change when one country is holding our citizens hostage and another is undertak-ing an invasion which is inimical to U.S. interests in the Middle East."

The NCAA has no power to prevent athletes from taking part in the Moscow Games. Byers, who was in New Orleans for the annual NCAA convention, said he was "speaking only as a citizen," and that the possibility of an Olympic boycott has not been formally discussed by convention delegates.

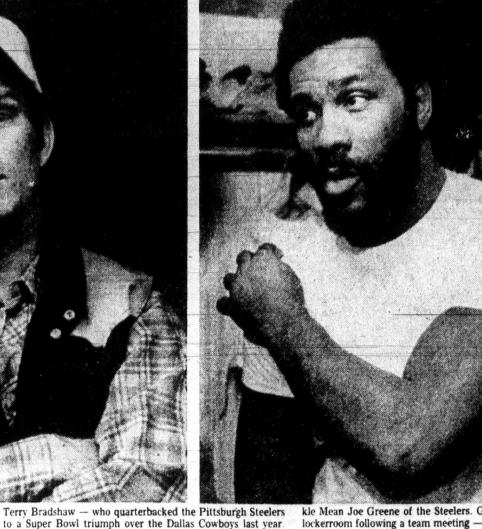

"A Boycott of the Games would be an economic penalty." Byers said. "But more than that, it sends a message to the world that we are not going to keep turning the other cheek to Russia's misbehavior. As long as we continue to do b as usual, it leaves the impression the United States does not care. In fact, the Unit-

Then came last January's meeting here for the AFC title. Pittsburgh won 34-5 in freezing rain, and Oiler pride was the most serious casualty. Phillips, who came here with a gift cowboy hat for Bradshaw, also had his own hat momentarily swiped by a fan.

The senior from Port Arthur canned a 10-footer, then came up with a blocked shot on the other end. Coming down court. Sanders spotted Ben Hill inside and fed him the ball for an easy layup.

It was the Raiders first lead since early in the first half. Again the Raiders found a man open inside and Brewster, who led both team in rebounds with 13, Raiders led 53-50.

Houston freshman Rob Williams, who led all scorers with 22 points, hit a free throw and it was 53-51 - but that was the last time the Coogs would come

Williams drove inside for a bucket, Brewster hit a bank shot and Hill got a pair of free throws and a lay in. The Raiders led by seven with 6:13 to go and Houston would come no closer than five points the rest of the game.

Smith nailed the coffin lid shut on Houston when he hit a 16-footer with 3:16 left. After that it was a free throw shooting contest — a contest that the Raiders won. The Raiders were eight of nine at the line in that final stretch. Not bad for a team that couldn't seem to buy

Williams went two for seven in that second period.

The Cougars ended the game shooting 38 percent from the floor after hitting right at 50 percent in the opening half. The Raiders, who entered the game with a phenomenal 54.6 field goal average, hit 26 of 47 shots in the game for 55.5 per-

"Ralph Brewster has lost his confidence lately." said Myers. "But I think that's been the coaches fault. I think he got some of it back today.

But (Houston's) Rob Williams is one tough customer," added Myers. "He can just snake right around you - he's going to be some kind of player."

The Raiders will now travel to College Station to face Texas A&M on Tues-

Bucs Go For NFC Title

TAMPA BAY, Fla. (AP) - The Cinderella Tampa Bay Buccaneers, sadsack osers for their first three National Football League seasons, bid for a berth in the Super Bowl today when they face the Los Angeles Rams in the National Football Conference championship game.

The Bucs, in the NFC Central, and Rams, in the NFC West, war their respective divisions and then advanced to the title game with upset victories in the opening round of the playoffs. Tampa Bay knocked off Philadelphia, the NFC wild-card team, and Los Angeles eliminated Dallas' NFC East champs.

For Los Angeles, today's contest will

"I don't think any team in football has a faster defense," said McKay. That defense will face an LA attack operated by Vince Ferragamo, the ex-Nebraska quarterback who McKay tried to recruit when he was coaching at Southern California. Ferragamo inherited the Ram starting job when Pat Haden, who played for McKay at USC, suffered a broken finger in midseason. There are other interesting links between McKay and LA. Three times, while he was coaching at USC, the coach rejected bids to take over the Rams. One of those times was when the franchise was about to be sold and he feared new ownership. The No. 1 bidder was Hugh Culverhouse, who eventually wound up as owner of the Bucs instead and recruited McKay as his coach.

LA's best running back this season was Wendell Tyler, who gained 1,109 vards and led the NFL with a 5.1 average. Tampa Bay's best was Ricky Bell. who rushed for 1,263. They've run against each other before - Tyler for UCLA and Bell across town for McKay at

The Rams, whose 9-7 regular season record was the poorest of any playoff team, dropped a 21-6 decision to Tampa Bay in September. That was one of five straight victories the Bucs pieced together at the start of the season en route to the NFC Central crown. The Rams struggled and were 5-6 before winning four of their final five games to clinch their divithe NFL's best defense, led by end Lee sion for a record seventh straight time.

Action gets under way with Estacado and Wilson battling in the boys' division at 3 p.m. Other first-round contests find Slaton meeting Atkins at 5:40 and Evans against Thompson at 8:20. Mackenzie and Matthews tangle in the final boys' first-round game at 4:20 Thursday.

The boys' tourney continues Thursday with second-round play and on into Friday's semifinals that lead to the championship game at 8:30 p.m. Saturday. Hutchinson draws a first-round bye, as do the Atkins girls.

The junior high girls open their portion of the tournament Wednesday at 4:20 when Estacado meets Mackenzie. Slaton then goes against Hutchinson at 7. In girls' first-round action Thursday, Evans plays Matthews at 3 and Thompson battles Wilson at 5:40. The girls' championship tilt is set for Saturday.

In the boys' division, Evans, Mackenzie, Atkins, Wilson and Estacado all have shown potential to win the title. Mackenzie has size while the other four schools are well-balanced. Evans defeated Mackenzie earlier this season, but was assisted by a Raider team that did not shoot well and fell far behind in the first quarter.

Wilson seems to be the most potentially challenging to Hutchinson's favorite role. The Texans of Coach Kirby Johnson suffer from lack of height, but play strong defense and have balance through out the lineup.

Estacado, which defeated Wilson in the season-opener, now meets the Texans in the tourney's kick-off. The winner of that game faces Hutchinson in the second round Thursday at 8:20.

Cage Sign-Ups... MOB Registration Begins

Registration sessions for the upcoming Monterey Optimist Basketball (MOB) season have been set for Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Boys in grades three through eight may sign up Tuesday night at Evans Junior High (7-9 p.m.), Thursday at Wilson Junior High (7-9 p.m.) or Saturday at South Plains Mall (10 a.m. to 6 p.m.), MOB officials announced. Players will compete in three divisions, third-fourth grade, fifth-sixth grade and seventh-eighth grade. Registration fee is $20, but a family with more than one son in the program pays only $15 for additional boys signed up. Players in the third-fourth grade division will be assigned to teams on a neighborhood school basis. The fifth-sixth and the seventh-eighth grade divisions will have try tryouts and be drafted onto their respective teams. Tryouts for the fifth-sixth grade will be held Jan. 26 at Wilson Junior High. The seventh-eighth tryouts will be Feb. 2 at Atkins Junior High. At each of this week's registration sessions, applications will be on hand for potential coaches and sponsors.

LGB To Accept Players

The Lubbock Girls' Basketball Association (LGB) will begin registration for the upcoming season this week at three different locations.

Registration begins Thursday at Evans Junior High from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. and Friday from 7 until 9 p.m. at Wilson Junior High. The final day for young girls to register will be Saturday from 10 a.m. through 6 p.m. at the

The LGB season begins Feb. 18. Tryouts for teams will be held Jan. 26 at a location to be named at a later date.

Girls in grades three through eight are eligible to participate in the LGB program. There will be three leagues - one for girls in third and fourth grade, one for fifth-and sixth-graders and one for junior high girls in seventh and eighth grades.

The fee to participate in the LGB program is $15. Officers this year for LGB are: Jim Bowman, president; Greg Logan, the president; Jim Walters, secretary-treasurer, and Connie Garner, execu-

Guard Bob Bender Glues Blue Devils

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) - Joe College is back, and his name is Bob Bender.

He is bright, clean-cut, good looking: the kind of guy you could take home to dinner with the folks. He looks more like a kid who plays pickup basketball games on the weekend than a starter on the No. 1 Duke team.

But watch him while he moves upcourt. He gives a little skip as he starts his dribble, looks right and left.

It's not razzle-dazzle here. But past the defender on him, and, whoosh, the ball is gone, passed inside to one of Duke's big men for an easy-looking two

'I go as the team goes."

At 22, Bender is easily one of the most poised young men on a team that has gotten used to a lot of pressure. The Blue Devils, 10-0, have been ranked No. 1 for five weeks. Two of the wins have come against Top 10 teams.

Scoring just over five points a game. Bender may not be the star, but he is the leader. He makes a point of knowing passing is almost flawless and his defense is a marvel.

"I guess in the truest sense of the word it's a matter of coordinating things. I've tried to understand what each guy's like." said the 6-2. 175-pound senior from River Forest, Ill.

You've got to be able to direct things: you've got to be able to utilize everybody or you're wasting something."

He is also the leader in another repect, in assists, averaging move than six game. He is second in the Atlantic Coast Conference in the category

Most of the attention may focus on center Mike Gminski's scoring and rebounding or the other starters' individual

But people go to Bender for an analysis of the game, for he can explain it better than the coaches. The son of a former high school coach, Bender has been around the game all his life.

Bender said he has no aspirations to be a coach "because I've been around it so long.

He does want to play in the NBA. A transfer from Indiana - he holds the distinction of being the only player in college basketball to play in the NCAA finals twice for two different teams - he was drafted last spring by the San Diego

Christian College turn from a junior college with a limited athletic reputation into a four-year school boasting a full complement of sports teams.

In 1970, after the school decied to leave the JC ranks for the four-year schools, a new Chaparral coach, crew-cut Larry Hays, convinced the college's founding president, F.W. Mattox, to start a baseball program. That move was really the beginning of the changes.

The administration and coaches led by Athletic Director Hugh Rhodes, who surrendered that title to Hays only last September after holding it since the college opened its doors in 1957, opted to compete in the NAIA.

In the area tournament in Phoenix the Chaps beat Southern (La.)University in the opener, but then lost to Grand Canyon College and Southern; finishing with a 35-14 record.

That team featured LCC's first all-America, center fielder Jesse Benavidez The Odessan threw out 34 runners during his career and once cracked a 500-foot homer on the road.

The Chaps repeated their Texoma Conference and District VIII championship in 1974 and finished as area runnerup to Sam Houston State, which went on to finish as runner-up in the World Series. Benavidez repeated as All-America for the Chaps, who finished 41-17 and John Harris, a freshman who led the nation with 19 homers and 76 RBIs, was named to the second team.

billed as a preview of the 1980 Summer Olympics - was held against a backdrop of tension between the United States and Russia, the pro-American crowd of nearly 1,500 applauded the Soviets and no boos were heard

The loudest applause of the night was for Austin high school senior Kim Linehan, who won the 400 free style in 4:07.84. Miss Linehan holds the American record of 4:07.12, but has not yet reached the world mark of 4:06.28, set by Tracey Wickham of Australia in 1978.

Miss Linehan said: "I proved I can get out there faster than she can - it's up to me to prove I can get back faster than she can.

East Germany's most impressive vent was the 100 freestyle, which Miss Krause won in 55.93. Teammate Caren Metschuck was second in 56.06.

Political Considerations Draw Various Responses

World record holder Linda Jezek - laughing as she recalled the incident - said Saturday some members of the United States national women's swimming team cried when they heard of a possible boycott of the 1980 Olympics at Moscow. "I'd be really upset - it's my last chance" at making the U.S. Olympic swimming team, Miss Jezek told reporters. We were crying and saying, 'It really won't happen.' If you start thinking about it, you'd be stupid because it would hurt our training and stuff," she added.

Miss Jezek, world record holder in the 200-meter backstroke, and 14 other members of the national team were in Austin for the third annual U.S.A. Women's International Swimming Competition. Full 15-member national teams also are entered from Russia. East Germany and Canada, as well as individual swimmers from six other countries and 30 U.S.

"We don't let anybody press us with anything - grain, Olympics or anything. said Russian Coach Sergei Vaitsehovsky.

George Haines of Philadelphia, coach of the United States' women's team in the 1980 Olympics, said, "I hope it (Olympic boycott) doesn't happen, but I don't want the United States to get kicked around either.

"I can't remember one time in the last 20 years that we (United States and Russian swimming coaches) have discussed politics, and I don't know why in the hell we're doing it right now," Haines told a news conference.

"I don't think anybody is thinking about politics," he added.

Olympic assistant Paul Bergen, who coaches the women's team at the University of Texas, said, "A decision like that" — to boycott the Olympics — "is really contrary to what the Olympics is supposed to be about.

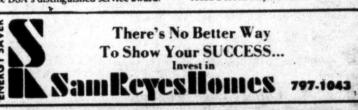

Staubach Wins DSA Award

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach and Alabama football coach Paul (Bear) Bryant are to be honored Feb. 21 at the annual Dallas All Sports Association banquet.

Staubach, the top-rated passer in the National Football League, is to receive the DSA's distinguished service award.

Bryant, whose undefeated team won the No. 1 ranking earlier last week, will receive the Field Scovell Award.

Bryant is the third college coach nominated for the honor. The other recipients were former Arkansas head coach Frank Broyles in 1965 and former Texas coach Darrell Royal in 1969.

Billy Sims Helps East To Hula Victory

HONOLULU (AP) - Army's David Charest intercepted a pass and returned it 58 yards before Oklahoma's Billy Sims and Penn State's Matt Suhey combined to punch it over for the East's winning touchdown in a 17-10 victory over the West in the 34th annual Hula Bowl Saturday

Charest took the ball to the West's 15-yard line and Sims carried twice down to the four before Suhey's three-and one-yard runs scored the winning touchdown.

Sims, the game's leading rusher with 57 yards on 15 carries. won the outstanding offensive player award.

Much of the buildup for the postseason classic evaporated just before the game when it was announced that this season's Heisman Trophy winner, Charles White of Southern California, had been weakened by the flu to the point where he could not

The attention for this year's game was on having a matchup between White and Sims, who won the Heisman as a junior last

Texas Tech fullback James Hadnot started for the West and rushed for 29 yards in nine carries. He also caught five passes for 22 vards.

The West scored first in the second quarter when Southern Cal's Paul McDonald hit Emmanuel Tolbert of Southern Methodist on a 13-yard pass play, climaxing a 59-yard drive.

The East answered less than five minutes later as Tennessee quarterback James Streater hit Sims with a 9-yard scoring pass. ending an 80-yard, 12-play march

The East scored the game's final touchdown after Charest intercepted Arizona State quarterback Mark Malone's pass. His return tied the Hula Bowl record set in 1972 by Northwestern's

A 32-yard field goal by Mike Hubach of Kansas early in the final quarter rounded out the West's scoring while Craig Jones of VMI added a 34-yard field goal for the East for the game's East Coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan said limited practice time this year prevented any spectacular drives.

'We couldn't do much offensively because of the short preparation time," he said. "Streater and Sims only practiced together two days. That makes it tough."

For the West, Coach Fred Akers of Texas noted difficulty in his passing game plan as McDonald and Malone completed fewer than half their attempts for a total of 152 yards.

We had some passes dropped and we gave them the ball in etty good field positions," he said.

And there was the absence of the West's star attraction. "Of course, we missed Charlie White," Akers said. Streater, who guided the East offense throughout the game, was happy with the victory

"I'm glad we won, being from the east and being the underdogs," said the 6-1, 165-pound quarterback, who said he hopes for a shot at the pros despite his size.

Aside from a few exceptional plays, the nationally televised game seldom aroused the crowd of 47,096. The lack of intensity in the play probably was best explained by Texas defensive tackle Steve McMichael, who was named the outstanding defen-

'We were somewhat disorganized in our pass defense," McClendon admitted.

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) - California's Joe Rose said it was an honor just to play in the East-West Shrine game. But he walked off with even more than just playing time - he was voted the top offensive player of the game.

The Bear tight end caught seven passes for 102 yards as he and Brigham Young All-American quarterback Marc Wilson ied the West to a 20-10 victory in the 55th annual all-star game Saturday.

"All week long the scouts were talking me down," Rose said. "I had something to prove. But winning the MVP award was an extra thrill. I never dreamed I'd be chosen Wilson said he had not anticipated throwing to Rose as much as he did. "Coach (Roger) Theder of Cal worked with us this week and the Cal offense and ours (BYU) are similar," Wilson said. "I didn't plan to throw to Rose that much, but he was open."

Stanford's Turk Schonert, who saw little action at quarterback, came on to throw a 7-yard touchdown pass to Earl Cooper of Rice on the final play of the game. No extra point was attempted

The outstanding defensive player award went to lineman Jacob Green of Texas A&M. He made 11 tackles.

Clampett Wins Monterey Event

Clampett hooked his first shot out of bounds and lost his tournament lead, but the 20-year-old amateur came back to finish with a 1-under-par 71 Saturday and won Monterey's $125,000 golf event.

The Brigham Young University All-American from nearby Carmel Valley became the first amateur since 1956, when Doug Sanders won the Canadian Open, to win a significant pro tournament This is the biggest of all the tournaments I've won," said Clampett, who settled for a trophy while runner-up Mike Reid, a former BYU golfer, received the first-place prize of $22,500.

The Monterey tournament, the Spalding Invitational, is a non-tour event played each year before the start of the PGA tour season.

Men's Ski Cup In Jeopardy

PRA LOUP, France (AP) - Poor conditions forced cancellation Saturday of the final practice runs for today's World Cup men's downhill race on a course top skiers complained was not worthy of the competition.

Ken Read of Canada echoed the feelings of most racers and coaches when he said the Pra Loup course was "the easiest in the world, and it's being run only one week before the toughest, the Hahnenkamm at Kitzbuhl in Austria."

U.S. men's downhill Coach Jim Barrows said the 3,218-meter track with an 800-meter drop was "definitely too easy. Basically the best skier will still win, but it's not much of a challenge."

Barrows was unhappy with the performance of his team in Friday's training. "It was not a very good day, not a solid team effort, a bit flat," he

Oriole Leaders To Be Honored

ST. LOUIS (AP) - The principal architects of the Baltimore Orioles' 1979 pennant in the American League, Earl Weaver and Hank Peters, will return Jan. 23 to their hometown for salutes from St. Louis baseball writers.

Weaver, the Orioles' manager for a dozen years, will receive the Dr. Robert F. Hyland Award for meritorious service to sports. Peters, the club's vice president and general manager will be saluted with the J. Roy Stockton Award for outstanding achievement in baseball.

Additional awards will go to the Pittsburgh Pirates' Bill Madlock and to knuckleball pitchers Joe Niekro of the Houston Astros and Phil Niekro of the Atlanta Braves. Former St. Louis first baseman Bill White will receive the Brian P. Burnes nostalgia award.

Reid said after accepting his check. "I haven't won anything (tournaments) in three years on the tour. I won something here - but I didn't.

Clampett broke par all four days, finishing with a 16-under total of 272 to beat Reid, who had a 70 Saturday, by one stroke and Mike Morley by two.

The 78 pros in the tournament included some of the tour's biggest winners. such as Lon Hinkle, Jack Renner and J.C. Snead. Three women pros also competed, with Jan Stephenson the leading finisher at 297.

The final round was played over the famed Pebble Beach course. Clampett took a bogey at the first hole, had a double bogey at No. 8 and used 38 strokes on the front nine. Morley, who went out in 33, had the lead at the halfway mark. But he took a 35 on the back nine while Clampett came home in 33. "The birdie putt at the 13th started things." said Clampett. It was 16 or 17 feet, but it broke about three feet.

UIL Athletic Director Bill Farney said the State Athletic Committee has ordered a study of a proposal that would add district runners-up to the state playoffs

If approved, the expanded playoff system could go into effect for the 1982 football season, Farney said Friday.

League would give a second chance to high school teams that come in second in

"There's a lot of interest on the coast and a lot of interest among football coaches. Anytime you say let's have five more games or let's have another chance. you'll have the coaches' interest. That's their livelihood," said Farney. The proposed system would double the number of teams in the volleyball, football, baseball and basketball playoffs.

The idea was brought to the UIL by El Campo football Coach Buzzy Keith. ac-

Additional playoff games would mean shortening the regular season by one game or starting it earlier in the year, he said.

Ed Badger Resigns At Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The staggering University of Cincinnati basketball program suffered another major blow Saturday with the surprise resignation of Coach Ed Badger for unspecified reasons.

Badger, the former NBA Coach in his second season at UC, cited "personal reasons beyond my control" in offering the resignation. His attorney, Ronald Grinker, said Badger would not be on the sidelines for UC's game Saturday night against The stunning resignation ended a frustrating stay for Badger, who came to UC with hopes of an NCAA championship for the school that once was a national basketball powerhouse. The Bearcats finished 12-13 last season, Badger's first, and were off to a surprisingly strong 6-4 start this year with a young and untested team.

However, Badger was often frustrated in his rebuilding efforts by a two-year probation imposed on the basketball program by the NCAA for a variety of recruiting and other violations by the university before he was hired. The probation prohibited UC from post-season tournaments and all NCAA-controlled television games through this season.

Most importantly, it crimped Badger's recruiting efforts. His team this season is young and inexperienced, although it played well in losing efforts to powerhouses North Carolina and Duke.

The Bearcats suffered another crushing blow Saturday when they learned starting center David Duarte was ineligible for the Dayton game for academic reasons. Badger was unavailable for comment. Grinker, addressing a news conference, said Badger was not resigning to take another job.

"As of right now, he has nothing pending," Grinker said. The attorney, long associated with UC athletics, also predicted the loss of Badger would be a crushing blow for the university's athletic program.

'I think the decision of Ed Badger (to resign) can have implications of the football program deteriorating to nonexistence and basketball dropping to Division

Badger left the NBA Chicago Bulls to take the UC job in 1977, calling it,"one of the best college jobs in America.

Florida's Lotz Departs As Coach

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) - Florida basketball coach John Lotz resigned Saturday at the request of the university following Florida's loss to Auburn in a Southeastern Conference game.

Athletics Director Bill Carr said the resignation was effective immediate-

Lotz, head coach at Florida since 1973, told the Gators after they lost 82-62 to Auburn, "I have submitted my resignation at the request of the university. The university will honor the terms of my contract in a manner which is mutually acceptable.

Carr appointed assistant coach Ed Visscher as acting coach.

Lotz compiled an 83-88 career record at Florida and was 4-7 overall this season and 1-3 in the SEC.

"I would express deep appreciation to John Lotz for his leadership of the program and the great personal respect I have for him as an individual," said Carr in making the announcement

I know everyone connected with the Gator program wishes both John and his family the best in the future."

Lotz released a statement after the announcement was made.

A federal grand jury probing the beleaguered athletic program recessed Friday, but plans to meet again Jan. 22 to hear more testimony

The grand jury probe began after a disclosure in November by the FBI that it was investigating possible mail fraud and bribery in connection with a New Mexico basketball player's transcript.

Former Lobo head basketball coach Norm Ellenberger and assistant Manny Goldstein were suspended after the FBI released a document, contained in a sworn affidavit filed in U.S. District Court, of a wiretapped telephone conversation between Ellenberger and Gold-

The document alleged that Goldstein had the junior college transcript of New Mexico basketball player Craig Gilbert

Officials Trying To Clean Up East Texas Chemical Dump Ground

Jim Wiseheart took his favorite fishing mercury chloride, copper chloride, lead hole for granted. The 5-acre lake beside Interstate 45 seldom attracted a crowd and he usually could fill his ice chest with crabs or fish before going home.

Wiseheart just had to be careful how he got to the lake. The adjacent property, an abandoned 11-acre tract, seemed full of murky pits of unknown depths and content, guarded by unsteady dikes and hidden by swampgrass.

Clustered on a bit of higher ground amid the pits, a row of storage tanks decayed in the salt breezes 2 miles north of Galveston Bay. Often, the odors around the fishing hole were unpleasant, but that could be explained by the winds blowing across the refineries and petrochemical plants stretching along the horizon in Texas City.

Or, the odors might have originated from the prairie clay, baking in the summer sun. Or even the murky pits. But. Wiseheart and everyone else knew the air in Southeast Texas had its own aro-

On May 22, 1978, Wiseheart, sales manager for the Bayou Vista-Omega Bay residential development across the interstate from the fishing hole, bought the tract beside the pits to await the boom that surely would come

The Environmental Protection Agency. in an exhaustive effort that would honor a homicide detective, traced the history of the foul-smelling 11 acres adjacent to Jim Wiseheart's investment.

Waste disposal began on the site in 1959 when a firm called Petro-Processors was established to recover and recycle materials from styrene tars generated by the Monsanto plant at Texas City. From the outset, the operator had trouble with runoff, the EPA found, and in 1961 the site was inundated by Hurricane Carla's flood tides, reportedly resulting in a complete loss of capacity to reclaim the tars.

From 1962-68, the site was used as a dumping ground for a variety of wastes produced by Galveston County indus- Chemicals now identified by the EPA a

In 1970 the site was sold to the Wye Corp. whose owners allegedly were unaware of the contents of the pits and when the magnitude of the problem was realized, leased the site to two men who planned to recover metals from the wastes and convert the tars to road base material. Difficulties led to cancellation of the operation.

In June 1974. Wye sold 50 percent of the site to the Motco Corp. of Minneapolis which soon acquired full ownership and planned to remove and market the styrene tars and reclaim the land for commercial development. However, attempts to recycle usable portions of the waste failed and Motco ceased operation. Discharges of wastes and constant seepages led the state on July 29, 1976, to order a major clean-up. A month and a day later. Motco filed for bankruptcy. A bankruptcy judge, nevertheless, ordered Motco into compliance. In December 1977. the Dominguez-Sapp Co. of Houston contracted with the bankruptcy receiver to remove and sell styrene tars. But they had trouble finding customers and it was not until last month that the EPA learned Dominguez-Sapp had commenced removing tars from the site. trucking them to a storage tank on Galveston Bay for blending with other wastes and shipment by barge to Louisiana for use as heating fuel.

The operation was terminated quickly because of probable violations of state and federal regulations associated with a spill at a storage tank near the bay.

MAN SENTENCED TO 99 YEARS

HOUSTON (AP) - Charles Gates was offered 15 years but got 99 years. Gates. 30. was sentenced to 99 years in prison Thursday after a jury found him guilty on a charge of trying to steal a stereo turntable from an apartment. Testifying out of the presence of the jury. Gates told state District Judge Frank Price prosecutors had offered him a 15-year sentence as part of a plea bargain but that he had refused. Prosecutors said Gates had been convicted in other burglary and robbery cases in 1972, 1973, and 1978 of his career, and he's glad of it. He watched the sky as a weather forecaster for more than 30 years, most of a tornado blasted through the downtown area in 1970, Walkowiak was off-duty and very much relieved.

'All weathermen like to be on their day off when bad weather starts," he said, laughing to himself. But Walkowiak joined the ranks of the armchair weather liary station and Walkowiak was on the observers upon his retirement last month, so bad weather is someone else's problem now.

Meteorology is an exact science, but Walkowiak started forecasting in the days when weather was subject only to observation. A tour of the weather service facility located east of the Lubbock airport today reveals roomfuls of sophisticated computer equipment.

His retirement from the National Weather Service marks the end of nearly 40 years of government service. Joining the Army in 1939, Walkowiak apparently had a penchant for being in the right place at unusual times.

On Dec. 7, 1941, the young sergeant awakened in Oahu, Hawaii to the sound of explosions from the direction of the island's main harbor. He didn't realize at first that the planes flying over Schofield Barracks were Japanese.

You could see the smoke coming up at Pearl Harbor," Walkowiak said. A member of the field artillery, he just watched helplessly as the planes flew to where they would destory some of the American Navy's most powerful vessals.

There were no anti-aircraft weapons available, Walkowiak said, for the men in the barracks to use against the planes. They weren't afraid that they would be bombed, but that the Hawaiian Islands would be invaded.

Later that year, he left Hawaii for officer's training school in Fort Sill, Okla. But when President Franklin D. Roosevelt died in Warm Springs, Ga., in 1945, he was stationed only a few miles away at Walkowiak was a member of the honor guard which escorted Roosevelt's body out of Warm Springs. He still saves a picture of himself that ran in a newspaper as he stands with many other soldiers lining the road out of town.

"That was a proud moment in my life," Walkowiak admitted.

Retired from the military with the rank of Lt. Colonel, Walkowiak joined what was then called the National Weather Bureau in Brinkley, Ark., in September 1946. It was just a small auxil-first shift.

He described his first weather job as 'mainly observation," adding that the small station only had a primitive communications system.

Later working in a station in Victoria. he was exposed to one of the first radar units used in weather forecasting. It was a cast-off piece of military equipment, and probably not very impressive by today's standards. But it marked a change in the way weather forecasting and observation would be handled from then Walkowiak moved to the Lubbock station in 1952, where he was to stay until his retirement. The weather service building was located east of the old airport terminal building, later moving to its location east of the new terminal.

The biggest problem with Lubbock forecasting, he claimed, is predicting snowfalls. Here, it usually rains or drops freezing rain and sleet before the snow appears. It's seldom that snow first falls in actual snow form, he said.

Of course. Lubbock does have a reputation for high winds and tornadoes, but Walkowiak missed the big one in 1970 because he was off-duty. The closest he ever came to a tornado was in early summer of 1967, when a twister blew out of Cotton Center and came down between some hangars at the Lubbock airport.

'We could hear that one." Walkowiak remembered. "It really did sound like a freight train.

When the pressure drops, you just get a weird feeling," he said, adding that the pressure always drops just before a tornado strikes. It rained about 5 inches on the night he described.

CARTER ENDORSED

WASHINGTON (AP) - Oklahoma House Speaker Dan Draper and William J. Whelan, president of a New York City Teamsters local, have endorsed President Carter for re-election, the Carter-Mondale Presidential Committee says. The committee noted that Draper, a Democrat from Stillwater, praised Carter's "stability, maturity and calmness."

With his retirement, Walkowiak leaves a station equiped with long range radar, computer communications systems, automatic equipment which measures everything from wind speeds to pressure and machinery which produces satellite photographs of the earth's surface every 30 minutes. It's a far cry from his early days as an observer.

Walkowiak and his wife, Dorothy, will be guests at a retirement dinner to be held Friday. Reservations may be made through the Lubbock forecast office through Tuesday.

SPAG Officials Slate Training Fee Discussion

By DEBBI STALTER

Avalanche-Journal Staff A proposed tuition fee for a locallyoperated law enforcement training program will be discussed Tuesday by South Plains Association of Governments

An executive committee meeting at 9:30 a.m. will precede the 10:30 a.m. board meeting, with both scheduled for the SPAG conference room at 1709 26th

A $50-per-officer training fee has been proposed for officers residing in memgovernments, and a $100 fee has been suggested for non-members.

For the past several years, the training course has been made available free of charge to member governments, but state law will require the length of the course to be expanded in 1981, which will increase the cost of its operation.

The 240 hours of required training for beginning officers will increase to 320 hours, or from six weeks to eight weeks, beginning next January.

SPAG Executive Director Jerry Casstevens said additional revenues for the course operation also are needed because state support of the project has decreased slightly in the past year and because the local governing association has had to contribute an extra $2,750 for new training materials.

The local panel's cash contribution to bership jurisdictions in the council of the academy was $5,150, but increased in 1979 to $7.900 because of the added equipment cost

Among other agenda items, the board will consider the date of the next semiannual general assembly meeting of the government council, scheduled for sometime this spring. The general assembly meeting includes elected officials from all member ship governments and is responsible for the overall direction of SPAG activities. Also on the agenda, board members will review Community Development block grant applications from 11 cities totaling $5,371,050.

The largest application for the De-partment of Housing and Urban Develop-ment grants is from the city of Brownfield, which is requesting $1,500,000 for a three-year neighborhood revitalization program. bock have been dead for the past several months, but the program now is ready to teopen its free health information service Monday morning in a new location.

Recently. Tel-Med's switchboard and library of medical information tapes were moved to the Health Sciences Center Hospital. The hospital's auxiliary has agreed to take on the program as a community service and will provide funding to pay the monthly phone bill and volunteers to run the switchboard.

Tel-Med first started its phone-in health education service here in October 1974. Its taped library now includes approximately 270 tapes covering a wide range of health topics, ranging from influenza to cancer to venereal disease to pneumonia

But. Tel-Med faced some hard times during the past six months. Finally, a shortage of both funds and volunteers forced the program to temporarily close down operations last fall, according to Tel-Med board chairman Dr. Norma

The local physician is a strong believ-

The Lubbock County Hospital District was a major contributor to Tel-Med since its conception, but in 1979, the district's board decided it could no longer afford to make its annual $3,000 donation. When the hospital district pulled out its funding. Dr. Porres turned to the HSCH Auxiliary for assistance.

After the auxiliary accepted the project. Dr. Porres worked with auxiliary members to re-establish the Tel-Med program, which will be open for business beginning at 9 a.m. Monday. Auxiliary member Patsy Whipple will serve as chairman for the service, acting as a liaison between the Tel-Med board and the auxiliary's board

The Tel-Med program also has received high praise from Dr. Mario Ramirez. president of the Texas Medical Association. "It's a very viable program." Ramirez commented. "Any program like this that can educate people about health care and the need to change their habits is much needed.

Changes To Constitution Facing Texans In 1980

By BILL KIDD A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Once again, in 1980. Texas voters will be asked - along with such matters as helping to pick a President to make known their sentiments on nine proposed changes to the state's much amended constitution

With approval of two of three proposals last November, the number of thanges since 1876 has moved to 235

Still that's not really a surprising number, considering that in 1979 legislators introduced 133 proposed amendments in the House, and 60 in the Senate. Only 12 of them, however, could muster the two-thirds vote needed to send them on to voters - who acted on three

One of the proposals coming up Nov 4 which may be important to taxpayers is HJR 98 by Rep Lloyd Criss, LaMarque, which would require single appraisal districts and boards of equalization for ad valorem taxes in countres

It also would prohibit elected county officials or the governing bodies of taxing units from serving on such boards

At present participation by counties in single appraisal districts is optional and can't be required by statute, only by constitutional amendment

The proposal that's likely to get the most attention, however, is SJR 18 by Sen A R "Babe" Schwartz, Galveston, an amendment to authorize bingo games for "charitable purposes" on a local op-

Interestingly while the amendment made it through legislative process, the enabling legislation did not help to guarantee that whatever voters decide, another fight over what some consider recreation and others think is gambling, will be back before lawmakers in 1981.

Two proposals deal directly with the ourt system, with one, HJR 97 by Rep Danny Hill, Amarillo, allowing the State the right of appeal in limited instances in criminal cases

Prosecutors have argued the State needs to be able to appeal in some instances in order to clear up ambiguities or conflicts in court rulings. The State now has no such right.

If approved, the change would allow the State or the defendant to appeal pretrial rulings on constitutional matters and some other rulings

SJR 36 by Sen. Ray Farabee. Wichita Falls, would rename the 14 Courts of Civ Appeal as "Courts of Appeals" and ex tend their jurisdiction over criminal as well as civil matters

The first Pulitzer Prize for editorial cartooning was awarded to Rolin Kirby of the New York World in 1922.

Analysis

Criminal cases now go from trial courts directly to the Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin. That court remains burdened with a substantial backlog, despite expansion to nine justices and authority for them to sit in panels of three on most non-capital cases.

HJR 121, by Rep. Susan McBee, Del Rio, would allow counties with 5,000 or less population to build or repair private roads, using county equipment and crews. for "reasonable" fees.

Supporters argued the change is needed because residents of sparsely populated areas often are unable to get work performed by commercial firms, or are unable to afford the higher costs resulting from moving equipment in from a

SJR 35 by Sen O H "Ike" Harris, Dallas, would allow banks to use unmanned teller machines in the county where they're domiciled, with enabling legislation passed in anticipation of approval of the amendment limiting use of the machines to deposits, withdrawls, loan payments, transfer of funds between a customer's accounts, and obtaining balance figures.

That approach, bankers say, is much more limited than an earlier amendment, rejected by voters, for use of electronic funds transfer systems.

HJR 54, by Danny Hill, would modify the community property law by allowing spouses to agree that income or property arising from separate property may be kept separate/after marriage

The two proposals which could have the most impact on the operation of State government are SJR 8 by Sen. Walter Mengden. Houston, and HJR 86, by

Rep Bob Simpson, Amarillo. The first would allow the governor to remove officials whom he appointed but not those of his predecessor with approval of two-thirds of the Senate, which could be called into a two-day, special ession for that purpose

The second would provided limited budget execution powers to the governor, with those powers to be defined by statute, and subject to approval by a seven-member committee, including the lieutenant governor, speaker of the House and four legislators

So far, no one has been too interested in promoting or opposing these nine proposals. But as election day nears, it's a sure bet at least some of them will come

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) - President Josip Broz Tito went to an Alpine mountain residence Saturday after being released from a hospital checkup in Slovenia.

The 87-year-old President"s eightmember council of doctors said that he would still need ""intensive treatment"" for unspecified problems with blood vessels in his legs.

The state news agency Tanjug, however, said Tito had gone by car from Ljubljana"s clinical center to a mountain residence some 20 miles away.

An earlier two-sentence Tanjug report Saturday that Tito had left the hospital was the first official comment on PRESIDENT BROZ the presidential checkup since a one-sentence announcement Thursday that the Yugoslav leader had gone into the

Employee Appeals To Soviets

THREE FORKS, Mont. (AP) — A former employee of the Milwaukee Road has appealed for help from the Soviet Union to keep the financially ailing railroad from abandoning its western system.

Jack Zuelke, chairman of the "Committee for Economic Relief," said Friday he sent a telegram to the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D.C., which said: "Comes again the working masses of the Three Forks area, having been rejected by the United States government and the capitalist system, do once again appeal to the people and government of the USSR for foreign aid to rehabilitate the Milwaukee Rail-

It was the second time Zuelke has sought Soviet aid. In 1972, when the Madison River flooded Three Forks, his telegram to the Soviet Embassy received a courteous reply from Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin and Soviet embassy counselor Victor Isakov.

Isakov contacted former Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., who told the Soviets that a breached dike would be repaired and flood control work would be done. No aid came from the Soviets

The city finally filled the 3-by-3-foot hole in the street beside Gilbert's property, but not before he had managed to collect a broken axle and 70 hubcaps.

He said only two or three persons had come back to redeem their hubcaps.

Brezhnev Doctrine Of Assuring Marxism Said Repeated

Associated Press Writer

The Soviet action in neighboring Afghanistan is the third time since World War II that Russia has followed what has become known as the Brezhnev Doctrine: any time a Marxist regime is threatened, the Soviets claim the right to assist it with force if necessary.

This doctrine, along with traditional Russian skittishness about the goings on in neighboring nations, help explain the current fighting in Afghanistan, and the Soviet invasions of Czechoslovakia in 1968 and Hungary in 1956.

In all three instances, the Soviets seemed willing to shoot first, and deal with an inevitable torrent of world opinion later - Including harsh criticism from friendly nations.

But the differences in the three actions and the way the United States and other nations reacted are at least as important as the similarities.

The political setting of the Afghan conflict bears little resemblance to Hungary or Czechoslavakia, and is closely related to the crisis in neighboring Iran. The Soviets apparent ly were concerned that the Islamic fever that had brought down the shah of Iran was threatening Marxist rule in Af-that Islamic nationalism could spread into Russia itself. where Moslems are expected to become the largest ethnic group within 25 years.

In 1956, the Communist party chief of Hungary, facing open revolt by citizens demanding liberalization of Sovietbacked rule, requested Russian military aid. Eventually, an estimated 200,000 Soviet troops and armored vehicles conducted a surprise siege of Budapest. In 13 days it was over. with a death toll estimated as high as 32,000.

Twelve years later in Czechoslovakia, the brief reign of Alexander Dubcek brought new freedoms and the hope of at least some national independence. In August 1968, 600,000 troops from Russia, East Germany, Poland, Hungary and Bulgaria rumbled into Czechoslovakia, claiming they hade been invited in by Czech leaders. By September, the troops began to leave Prague, taking with them the brief hopes for reform. Dubcek was out of power by 1969

The Soviets again have claimed they were invited in in their latest action in Afghanistan - and they harshly condemned President Carter last week for doubting it. An estimated 50,000 Soviet troops are now in Afghanistan - a fraction of the number used in Hungary or Czechoslovakia.

Moscow's involvement was brewing for months, and lacked some of the abruptness of the Czech and Hungarian invasions. Like the U.S. involvement in Vietnam in the early 1960s, the Soviets had an estimated 1,500 military advisers in Afghanistan prior to Dec. 25 and 26 when Soviet troops were airlifted into Afghanistan.

Details on the fighting so far are sketchy. No reliable casualty figures exist. But the latest indications were that the Soviet Union may be in for a much longer struggle than either Czechoslovakia or Hungary. Soviet troops were reported bogged down in Afghanistan's mountainous, snowy terrain, and may be facing stiff resistance from Moslem nation-In fact, Afghani students who seized Afghanistans embassy in New Delhi in protest last week carried banners reading: "Afghanistan is the Vietnam of the Soviet Union," stgnifying that the Brezhnev Doctrine may be leading Russia into a much more difficult quagmire than ever before. U.S. reaction to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan bears some similarity to past Soviet military actions in neighboring countries. The SALT II treaty to limit strategic arms is effectively dead for the present after Carter asked that the Senate suspend its debate of the treaty. In 1968, Soviet action in Czechoslovakia delayed negotiations for a year on the SALT I arms pact between Russia

ton last week. That step was not taken in either the Czechoslovakian or Hungarian invasion.

In his address Friday night, Carter announced several steps against the Soviets, including an embargo on American grain sales, a halt in the shipment of U.S. high technology, and the supplying of military equipment, food and other assitance to Afghanistan's neighbor, Pakistan.

After all three Soviet military actions, the United States has responded with renewed sentiment for an arms buildup. After Hungary, the Eisenhower administration proceeded with plans for an intercontinental bomber that was later scrapped in favor of missiles.

The invasion of Czechoslovakia led to an increase in jet aircraft and missiles in Western Europe. Now, with SALT II at least temporarily shelved, a possible new arms race could Concerted United Nations action was vetoed by the Soviet Union following its action in Czechoslovakia and Hungary, and the expectation is the same for Afghanistan. The United States and 42 other nations including Islamic and Third World countries called last Thursday for a U.N. Security Council debate on Afghanistan.

But any resolution relating to the current fighting will

Pakistan Aid Reversed Earlier Arms Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) - In responding to the invasion of Afghanistan, President Carter had to decide whether U.S. policy toward the Soviet Union was more important than discouraging the spread of nuclear weapons and encouraging human rights.

The Soviet policy won. By offering to accelerate $150 million in arms sales to Pakistan and inviting the Pakistanis to submit a shopping list for further arms purchases, the White House reversed an earlier policy barring any arms sales to Pakistan.

Under President Zia ul-Haq, Pakistan has reverted to harsh military rule, combined with an Islamic fundamentlism that is expected to be harshly criticized in a forthcoming State Department report to Congress on human rights.

Violations of human rights are supposed to be important considerations in whether the United States supplies another nation with arms or economic or military assistance.

Pakistan has not been willing to formally renounce plans to build an atomic bomb, and is known to be importing enriched uranimum, which could be used to produce a nuclear weapon. Under U.S. law, the administration cannot provide military or economic assistance unless Pakistan formally pledges it will not build a nuclear weapon. U.S. relations with Pakistan, which already were strained by the nuclear issue, came under further tension when a mob sacked and burned the U.S. Embassy in Islamabad in December, while the Pakistani military forces took almost six bassy and an apartment building. However, references to that incident disappeared from official America statements as Soviet armed forces invaded Afghanistan, which shares a mountainous border with Pakistan. Pakistan, believed to provide arms and sanctuary for Moslem rebels fighting the Soviet-backed regime in Kabul, had become the first line of defense against the Soviet Union. The United States earlier refused to sell advanced arms to Pakistan, because of its nuclear policy and because such sales might escalate an arms race with India in the subcontinent.

Straight military sales (as opposed to military assistance) are not banned by Pakistan, in particular, wanted the American-made A-7 ground attack plane to be used against possible tank attacks from India. The State Department refused because of the risk of stimulating the arms race and because the A-7 sguidance system would be exporting a new level of sophisticated technology into an area for the first time.

That consieration was set aside Friday when Pakistan was invited by White House to submit a "wish list" of weapons it would like to buy.

The A-7 planes are expected to be at the top of the Pakistani list. To allay India's alarm over the sale of weapons to Pakistan, U.S. officials said the United States probably will offer India weapons to match the Pakistni purchases.

Citizen, Community Support Create Successful Crime Line By FRANCES LOWE Family News Editor

For Mayor Dirk West, the success of Crime Line is both the fulfillment of a campaign promise and an example of how a community can work together to solve its problems.

"It began when I was elected mayor," West explained. "I had campaigned on the promise that I would fight the growing crime rate in Lubbock. One of the first things I did was to look at the programs of other cities. Most of them emphasized educating people to protect themselves from crime, a kind of passive approach to crime fighting.

"I had heard of a program in Albuquerque, called 'Crime Stoppers,' which was having a good success rate. It offered money for information leading to the solving of a crime. They were clearing one felony a week, and were tickled to death. I wanted to see if we could start a program like that here.

What I did was sit down to figure out who would have the interest, who would take the time, who would be dedicated enough to lead this kind of program in Lubbock," he said.

The man who came to the Mayor's mind was Charley Pope, a busy and involved community leader. Mayor West asked Pope to serve as director of the first Crime Line Board.

"Frankly," Pope says, "I was worried about my own kids, about had felt there was nothing we could do about it.

"Crime Line," he continued, "gives a person a chance to do something to help, a share in fighting crime in Lubbock. It is a direct action he can take.

Serving with Pope on the Crime Line board is a cross section of Lubbock citizens. It is entirely voluntary and independent of police, government, or other control.

Local law enforcement officials the rising crime rate in Lubbock. I endorsed the program from the beginning, but the board gives much of the credit for its immediate success to the support of the media. "We approached the A-J, and it was behind us from the beginning," Pope said. "In fact, our first contribution was from the A-J."

"But," Mayor West put in, "the entire community deserves credit for getting behind the program. This is, we think, the most effective program of this kind in the nation — we are averaging three felonies cleared a

The program is supported entirely by private donations, the Mayor pointed out. It costs the city nothing: there are no elected officials and no city employees involved.

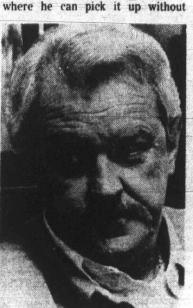

The need for donations is, of course, constant. "We could use $10,-000 right now." Pope said, smiling. "But we don't turn anyone away for lack of funds. If we are short of money we just get out and find it somewhere.

"One of the interesting things," Pope added, "is that half of the people have refused the reward money.

Donations range from $10 to thousands of dollars. A pledge from the West Texas Home Builders' Association illustrates the importance the program holds in the minds of local businesses, who are frequent victims

The system works so well at least partly because citizens can now take part in solving a crime without jeopardizing themselves. When a tip is called in, the messages is relayed to detective Doyle Nelson, whose devotion to the program is such that he has a telephone at home for Crime Line calls. The caller is assigned a number, and instructed to call back to see if the tip has been fruitful. If so, his reward money is left, under his number, at a local business, being identified. "Fear of reprisal is one of the things that prevents people from reporting a crime," West pointed out.

DIRK WEST

Reward amounts, which are fixed by the Crime Line board, range from $300 for a felony to $1000 for murder (two murders have been cleared since the start of the program).

According to Mayor West, the crime rate, and the need for such a service, is bound to increase, "The records show that whenever business gets slow, the crime rate goes up," he explained.

Benefit Planned

The Lubbock Area Square and Round Dance Federation will sponsor a square dance to benefit Crime Line Jan. 19 at the Lubbock Civic Center. Donations are $1; tickets may be obtained at various area loca-

The Crime Line board is interested in other means of crime prevention in Lubbock. Last summer it sponsored a rape seminar. (The cost of such an event is not taken from donations for reward money.) Rape, a crime of some concern locally, is one which Crime Line has been effective in fighting, the Mayor believes. The apparently high rape rate in Lubbock he attributes at least partially to an increase in reporting. Rape Crisis Center has been really effective," he said, "and our police are sympathetic to rape victims.

One of the things that makes CRIME LINE so effective, West believes, is that "it gets into the act. Although we do this after the fact, by solving a crime that has already been committed, it also gets criminals off the street — so in that sense it helps prevent crime, too.

"It comes down to the question of what would you pay to get one hundred criminals off the street? Usually that is a very expensive business. In this case, it is free."

Since Crime Line was begun last April, the crime rate in Lubbock went down by approximately seven percent, the first decrease during the 70's (previously the crime rate in Lubbock increased by over 70 percent, while the population increase was somewhere around 25 percent during the decade).

Crime Line has received over 325 calls, resulting in 65 informants with information used to clear over one hundred felony cases — aggravated rape, aggravated robbery, gambling, narcotics, burglary, felony theft, fugitives, attempted murder and capital murder - 112 arrests in all. A total of $12,000 has been paid to informants, and, it is estimated, about $210,000 in stolen property has been

ELEGANT — Gold is always popular and always appropriate as a gift. Gold chains are especially in style these days, as this necklace, from the Monet Collection, illustrates. Family News staff writer Jeanne Lively looks into the history of gold and offers suggestions on its care.

Enchantment Of Gold Lasts Through Time

BY JEANNE LIVELY Family News Staff

No one is sure how long before 2500 B.C. gold was worked by man. It is clear that by the time the Royal Cemetery at Ur was created, Sumerian goldsmiths had already mastered most technical processes used in goldworking, including casting in open molds and lost-wax casting.

The first appeal of gold was aesthetic and its first applications were of a magical nature. However, human vanity being what it is, men soon desired gold ornaments for themselves; and goldsmiths began to fashion decorative items which attested to the rank of the wearer in life and in death. In fact, much of what we know of pre-literate life comes from the way of death. Men and women were buried with comforting gold ornaments and artifacts to smooth the way into the other world.

In the evolution of barter economy into more sophisticated economic systems, gold proved to be the one substance which was universally accepted as payment for goods and services. It could be divided without damage, stored without deterioration, conveniently transported in small amounts which concentrated a great deal of value. It could be easily concealed or ostentatiously displayed as status-enhancing jewel-

The purity of gold used in jewelry is usually indicated by a mark placed on it by the manufacturer in conformity with government regu-

Another thing you should be aware of concerns a karat (or carat as they're known in Europe). A karat measures the degree of fineness, with 24-karat representing pure gold. Except for the making of gold leaf, in which the metal may be hammered into sheets as thin as one three-hundredths of an inch, pure gold is too soft for most jewelry. So, combinations of copper, silver and zinc are generally added for hard-

If you have received a valued piece of gold jewelry, how do you take the best possible care of it?

Carroll Anderson of Anderson's Jewelry says, "The question is a very appropriate one, in view of the fact that more people purchased gold jewelry this Christmas than ever before. Naturally, those who received fine jewelry as gifts will want to know how to take care of it.

The best possible advice I can give is to treat your gold jewelry like a fine garment - with some care. Gold is a soft metal and scratches easily; and the higher the karat the more easily it can be damaged. Also, since gold must be alloyed with other metals for jewelry use, it is the alloys which tarnish and not the gold.

"One of the reasons jewelry sometimes tarnishes so easily is that the owner keeps all her jewelry together in a jewelry case or box. Kept together, one piece will rub against another and before you know it both pieces of jewelry will be tarnished. So, keep each piece separate."

Anderson says that gold jewelry should never be allowed to get dirty or to stay that way. "A soft brush and some warm soapy water will work wonders," he explained. "But you must rinse completely; otherwise you'll undo all the work you've done. It isn't such a bad idea either to have a professional jeweler clean all your jewelry occasionally, to see . if stones are safely in their prongs and things like that.

Look First For Laundromat, Then For Theater

Texas Opera Theater is one big happy family. But traveling across the country in a bus with a family made up of 12 singers, 23 musicians and four stagehands - not to mention their instruments, luggage and board games - isn't easy. And when the touring company arrives in Lubbock in mid-January, the singers and musicians will look first for the laudromat, not the theater.

Everyone in the company agrees the hardest part of packing for the tour is deciding how much to take. The word from travel-wise members is, don't pack any more than you can carry - no one is going to help you haul your luggage into the hotel every night. The second most important thing is to label everything that's yours — or it won't be for

Preparing for the long weeks of bus rides requires more than just packing clothes. "Getting together books, blankets, vaporizers, pillows, backgammon games, cribbage boards, a lot of change for poker, clothes for summer weather in Phoenix and winter weather in Colorado," says one singer, "it looks like you're moving."

One of the biggest problems of traveling with so many people is that everone tends to accumulate things on the road, but no one ever throws anything away. A simple tourist trip after an Eagle Pass performance can mean new fiesta shirts decorating the cast and Mexican pottery rattling in the luggage compartment. But the biggest disaster is when the bus has to be washed and serviced. Then every single thing has to be taken out. It's amazing what people find under seats and overhead.

Of course, people aren't the only things taking up space on the bus. The musicians not only have to pack suitcases; they have to worry about their instruments. Most of the instruments are too fragile to go in the luggage compartment, so they ride on the bus. The 'cello and the bass, in fact, become a popular pair, always taking up two seats next to each other

When asked why they do it - living out of suitcases, eating junk food, doing isometrics on the bus because there isn't room to do any other kind of exercise - the answer is because it's exciting and rewarding to bring opera to people who otherwise wouldn't have a chance to hear real opera by a professional company. That's what keeps Texas Opera Theater one big happy family. TOT will be presenting their productions of "Madame Butterfly" and "The Barber of Seville" in Lubbock Jan. 19-20. Performance times are 8 p.m. Saturday evening for "Madame Butterfly" and 2:30 Sunday for "The Barber of Seville.

ON TOUR - Living out of a suitcase and spending hours on a bus isn't all fun and games, according to the Texas Opera Company members, describing the trials of life on the road. The company will perform

In one year's time, CONTACT Lubbock, Inc., a 24-hour-a-day crisis intervention telephone service, receives more than 18,000 calls - an average of about 46 per day - from persons who are lone-, depressed, sick or desperate.

The answers to these cries for help come from 130 volunteer telephone listeners and support workers presently assisting with the CONTACT program.

that a new series of training sessions for potential CONTACT volunteers will be-

The sessions will be held at Westminster Presbyterian Church, 3321 33rd St. Persons interested in enrolling in the training course may call the CONTACT

Wells, in describing this ministry which receives financial support from more than 20 Lubbock churches, said, 'CONTACT is the listening, caring ear of the church....an extension of the churches' pastoral care." He noted that while the service offered by the telephone ministry has distinctly Christian foundations, it is not sponored by any particular denomination and receives support from a wide variety of local churches CONTACT is more than a local organization, Wells points out. The Lubbock organization is one of 89 centers in the U.S. and one of 150 centers in ten countries. The Lubbock director recently has returned from an international meeting of staff of Lifeline. Inc., the international title of the organization, in Australia.

The CONTACT program has three purposes, according to Wells. One is crisis intervention and suicide prevention. Another is to serve as an information and referral service which connects people with particular needs with the proper provider services. The third function he describes as "befriending" or supportive

The series of training sessions which will begin shortly constitutes a standard 50-hour program, Wells said. While emphasizing that this training does not 'make experts," nevertheless, he said, the scope of the subjects covered makes the volunteers sensitive to situations of need which they may encounter. Wells said, "We can all benefit from becoming more self-aware and by becoming more sensitive to the needs of others." He feels that this personal enrichment is a plus for those taking the course and is one which the participant can carry into

Women-Owned Firms Sought By PASS

HOUSTON (Special) - The Small Business Administration procurement automatic source system, or PASS, has announced an all-out effort to register women-owned businesses

Registration with PASS, which is entirely voluntary, will provide the small business owner with notification when contracts are open for bids or proposals on government and prime contractor

In the Spring of 1979, President Carter signed a national women's business enterprise policy of affirmative action. This executive order, No. 12138, is aimed at aiding women-owned businesses. Of major importance is the inclusion of women-owned businesses in the small business administration PASS program.

Registeration with PASS is free and entirely voluntary. The small business owner should send the name and address of her business to P.A.S.S., 3212 Smith St., Suite 103, Houston, Texas, 77006, or contact the local small business administration office for more information.

In announcing the search to locate vomen-owned business, PASS made the following statements regarding women in business in this country:

•Women-owned businesses have been excluded from the mainstream of the American economic system when they could be most helpful in strengthening the economy.

•Women-owned business represents 4.6 percent of the nation's businesses and their receipts represent only .3 percent of the total receipts of all business firms in •Women's total annual share of prime contracts has been approximately .1 percent or less than $100 million out of a total annual Federal procurement figure of almost $100 billion.

•PASS procurement automated source system registration will permit, with one registration, access to over 300 major procurement offices of the Federal Government and prime contractors throughout the United States.

Older Parents Face Special Problems

By KURT HIRSCHHORN, M.D. (Seventh in a series)

NEW YORK (NEA) - More and more American women are choosing to bear children later in life. Such women should be aware of the special risks their pregnancies pose to themselves and to their offspring and of how these risks can be minimized.

Down's Syndrome (Mongolism) is the major health threat to the baby of an older woman. As a would-be-mother's age increases, so does her chance of bearing a child with this condition.

Among all live births, the incidence of Down's Syndrome is extremely small, about 0.15 percent. But for mothers between ages 35 and 39, the incidence is 1 percent to 2 percent. The risk reaches 2 percent to 3 percent at age 40 and 4 percent or higher above age 45.

A procedure called amniocentesis can predict if a baby will be born with Down's Syndrome or certain other genetic abnormalities. The process involves extracting fluid from the mother's uterus at 14-to-16 weeks into her pregnancy.

Amniocentesis is safe and accurate if done by an experienced doctor in a wellequipped medical center. Results are available early enough to allow for terminating the pregnancy or continuing it with appropriate planning for the defective child.

In addition to Down's Syndrome. children of older mothers also run an increased risk of other rarer chromosome

Some of these defects are so severe as to cause death in the first year of life. Others lead to a variety of abnormalities in sexual and mental development. All can be detected by amniocentesis.

But another factor must also be considered. Advancing age in the father slightly increases the chance of mutations in his sperm. That can result in genetic abnormalities in the child that cannot be detected by amniocentesis.

(It should be remembered that any child regardless of his or her parents' age runs a 2 percent to 3 percent risk of being born with major congenital abnormalities that cannot be detected by amni-

A child born with a congenital abnormality usually needs specialized medical assistance and great parental support.

That can pose major emotional and economical problems for any couple. But the prolonged care of a retareded or deformed child can be an even greater burden for the older couple.

For the older mother, caring for the child may disrupt the established career that she intended to resume after child-

Even more important, the child reaches the most difficult time in his or her development - late adolescence and adulthood - when the parents are in their 50s and 60s. They may then be less able physically and emotionally to cope with the constant and trying demands of a child with major problems.

Other risks to child and mother should be taken into account by the older couple before deciding to become par-

Aging of muscles and joints makes pregnancy more uncomfortable and delivery more difficult. And recent findings indicate that miscarriages — particularly in the first and second trimesters — increase in frequency with advancing maternal age.

The risks of miscarriage or birth defects are significantly increased if the mother has developed a chronic disease. such as late-onset diabetes or hyperten-

All of this is not to say that most pregnancies of older women will not be perfectly normal and result in healthy ba-

Additionally, the child of older parents probably benefits from their calmer, more mature dispositions. And the parents' increased attention and satisfaction often leads to a very full emotional experience for the child.

It should be kept in mind, however, that it is generally advisable to complete

Hospital Gets Birthing Chair

Community Hospital of Lubbock has announced the installation of a new 'birthing chair" at the obstetrics department.

With 55 babies delivered during the month of December, the chair was a welcome addition to the facilities. It was put to use in late November, and by Dec. 10, about fifteen babies had arrived in this

Dr. John McMillion, chief of obstetrics, said that there are many unique features available with the chair that aid both the physician and the mother. According to reports and studies, there are many advantages resulting forn the sitting position during birth. The most obvious advantage is that the mother can be positioned in the best possible position to allow the natural forces of gravity to assist her during the delivery.

According to one report, the expulsive pressure is increased considerably when the mother is in the sitting position. Other reported advantages of the sitting position are less stress on the mother, less pain, increased intensity of labor con-tractions, and non-interruption of circu-thing chair. DECK THE HAM Deck the holiday ham with canned pi-neapple slices. Dip each slice in whole cranberry sauce and arrange over ham the last half hour of baking.

Women who expect to deliver at the hospital may request the use of the bir-

NEW YORK (WNS) - A cozy fire in the fireplace may lift your spirits this winter and shrink your budget - unless you have access to free wood or save your old newspapers to make paper logs.

Rolled and soaked newsprint is probably the only inexpensive, universally available source of heat. For about $10, you can buy a device to help roll the newspapers, but you don't need one. An old broomstick or any wooden rod about an inch in diameter and a couple of feet long will do. For about a half-hour's work, you can provide three or four hours of comfortable fireplace heat.

According to a system developed by David Lofgren, a University of Utah professor teaching a course in urban survival, a daily paper should make two or three logs, the Sunday paper up to seven. Each log lasts about a half-hour.

Divide the paper into sections and fold them in half - about 12 inches by 15 inches and one half-inch thick or less. Soak them in a tub of water and deter-

CANCER ANSWER LINE

A woman notes: "I understand that it is important for me to examine myself for breast cancer. Why do I have to do it every month?

ANSWERline: The purpose of breast self-examination is to familiarize yourself with the normal feel and appearance of your breasts so that you will be alert to any changes. It is essential to recognize changes as soon as they become apparent, and to have them checked by trained medical personnel. By checking your breasts every month you are helping yourself learn how your breasts normally feel. You should schedule your monthly breast self-examination a week after your menstrual period when your breasts are least likely to be tender or swollen. After menopause, check them on the first day of each month. Breast self-examination should become a habit because these few moments of effort each month can do much to protect your health.

A high school teacher asks: "Now that many states have legalized the use of Laetrile, are there any safety standards governing its manufacture?'

ANSWERline: In general, the answer to your question is no. A brief review of proLaetrile legislation in 22 states done by the American Cancer Society in March, 1978, shows that in only four states where Laetrile has been legalized.

has anything been said about the establishment of manufacturing standards. Laetrile, an extract of apricot pits, can, therefore, be made without quality control. One of the problems of serious investigators has been to obtain Laetrile in uncontaminated form. In some states there are "black market" sources of Laetrile. A fashion designer explains. "I have ulcerative colitis. Does this mean I will get cancer?

ANSWERline: A history of ulcerative colitis means that you are at higher-thannormal risk of developing colorectal cancer, if you have had the condition for a period of years. It does not mean that you will ever actually develop cancer. Because of your condition, you should be under continuing medical care, including routine checkups and special tests for coforectal cancer

Experts Examine Newborn Babies

NEW YORK (Special) — Babies are 'legally blind" at birth although by the time they reach six months they see almost as well as adults, according to PAR-ENTS magazine. To a newborn, Dr. Philip Salapatek of the University of Minnesota stated in the magazine, the world looks "as if you defocused the image given by a slide projector, making it fuzzier and fuzzier, subtracting all the fine details.

"If a newborn could read," said Dr. David Teller of the University of Washington, "he would manage only the top line of an eye chart.

However, from birth, infants are able to discriminate among patterns, and when presented with a choice of objects to look at they "prefer faces to nonfaces," according to psychologists Jo-

This is true when faces are compared to patterns containing fewer elements, to a variety of patterns such as a bull's eye and a checkerboard, to random shapes, and to relatively complex, unfamiliar objects."

Dr. Marshall Haith of the University of Denver found that when babies see patterns containing black-and-white edges they tend to look toward the edges and keep scanning their eyes over them. Dr. Haith said in PARENTS this extends to the way a baby looks at a face. An infant "concentrates on the contrast between the forehead and edges provide strong contrasts and therefore stand out in a newborn's blurry world."

Famous Illustrator Puts Energies Into Children's Books, Dolls

NEW YORK (Special) - "I was never driven to have a career," says Eloise Wilkin, the artist whose touching illustrations for the children's "Golden Book" series have made her a familiar presence in homes throughout the world. "Family life was always my first interest."

Nevertheless, the small, vivacious woman has successfully combined a close family life and demanding career, lending her artistic imagination to projects as diverse as book illustration and doll design.

Eloise was born in Rochester, N.Y., the city where she has spent most of her adult life and raised a family of four children. Although she started drawing as a little girl, she says that "Ail my brothers and sisters drew, too, so nobody paid attention.

The family began to take her seriously though when at the age of 11 (they were living in New York City by then) Eloise's drawings won a prize in the Wanamaker Contest for children. "By that time," the artist laughingly recalls, "Mother kindly resigned herself to having the children

Acrylic Care Vital To Look

By BARBARA BRASS

NEW YORK (WNS) - Clear up any doubts you may have had about furnishing your home with acrylic accessories. The excellent transparency and beauty of these items will last forever with proper care and maintenance.

Joseph S. Layman, chairman of the board of Karmel Plastics and a member of The Plastics Pioneer Association of America, believes that "Acrylic furnishings can retain their attractive appearance for a very long time if they are cleaned and cared for properly.

"This care should include precautions against stratching or contact with objects of high temperature that might mar the

Following a course of art training at the Rochester Institute of Technology Eloise and a girlfriend set out to conquer New York, where they took a studio together and began to look for work.

"The second day out job hunting." she says, "I landed a job with a big publishing company and was really on my way. I was able to support myself for four years before my marriage." She resigned from full-time work, however, to marry Sidney Wilkin and began raising the family that would eventually include 11 grandchildren.

But in 1938, when her sister wrote a children's book, "Mrs. Peregrine and the Yak," and asked Eloise to do the illustrations for it, the artist couldn't say no The book took second prize in the Julia Ellsworth Ford foundation contest and The interest began as a hobby but soon plunged Eloise headlong back into a career as a children's book illustrator.

During this period, her work attracted the attention of editors Georges Duplaix and Lucille Ogle at Simon and Schuster, and in 1944 a contract was soon signed between the publishing house and artist. Eloise was on her way to becoming one of the most popular artists ever to illustrate the "Golden Book" series. Her work, always marked by a humorous understanding of the special world children inhabit, has appeared in hundreds of publications from Simon and Schuster, Random House, Rand McNally, Oxford, Macmillan, Little Brown and Western Publishing, the company that now publishes the "Golden Books."

turned into a serious pursuit. In 1961, her first doll, "Baby Dear," was introduced to America by the Vogue Doll Company. It became one of the best known and loved dolls of the decade, and also helped re-establish the popularity of soft-bodied baby dolls in this country.

Mrs. Wilkin's newest doll, "Welcome Home Baby," was introduced by Vogue, now a division of Lesney Products Corp., earlier last year. The doll is unique for its finely-detailed head, which captures the features of a newborn infant with lifelike

Today, Mrs. Wilkin seldom remains unoccupied. She designs doll houses and doll clothes for her grandchildren and continues to work as a book illustrator.

Currently she is finishing the illustrations for a book entitled "The Visit," to be published by Rand McNally in early 1980.

In large measure, Eloise Wilkin's success results from hard work and discipline. But perhaps more important is that she has always let her first love - children - guide her artistic efforts. And, she has a scrapbook fat with letters from adoring fans to prove it.

Author Believes Mind Controls Disease

By JEANNE LIVELY

Family News Staff Only a few times in its history has the "New England Journal of Medicine" published a major article by a layperson. One such article, "Anatomy of an Illness," did appear in the December, 1976, issue. The article has now been re-published in medical journals in 14 countries. Some two dozen medical schools currently use it for instructional purposes. More than 3,000 doctors have written the author, contributing accounts of similar experiences and encouraging him to pursue the central ideas in that article.

This book is a fuller version of that article and is the story of a recovery from a crippling and supposedly irreversible disease. And it is also the story of a partnership between a physician and patient in beating the odds.

Readers may or may not agree with the holistic health philosophy that the human mind and body are a single entity possessing the attributes of a natural apothecary, with the physician making maximum use of that resource in augmenting his treatment. In this sense, "Anatomy of an Illness" is a remarkable example of the holistic principle.

The author is senior lecturer at the University of California School of Medieine and consulting editor of Columbia University's "Man & Medicine."

For almost all of his professional life, Cousins has been affiliated with "Saturday Review." He became its edi-tor in 1940 and held that position for more than 30 years. Currently, Cousins is serving as editorial chairman of the prestigious magazine. He is also the author of 11 books.

In 1964. Cousins was suddenly struck down with a serious collagen illness - a disease of the connective tissue. (All arthritic and rheumatic diseases are in this category.) "Since collagen is the fibrous substance that binds the cells together, I was coming unstuck. I had considerable difficulty in moving limbs and even in turning over in bed. Nodules appeared on my body, gravel-like substances under the skin, indicating the systemic nature of the disease. At the low point of my illness, my jaws were almost locked,"

Cousins made a successful recovery and how he did it makes rich "food for thought" for those afflicted with any kind of disease

Spokesman Criticizes American Obstetric Practices To Senate

By PATRICIA McCORMACK UPI Health Editor

Doris B. Haire drummed the table with a hollow wooden thing shaped like a

From the looks of it you'd never guess

it's a wooden stethoscope. "Every hospital maternity department should stock these - for the unborn infant's sake," she said. Mrs. Haire, a critic of the American way of birth, is president of the American Foundation for Maternal and Child Health, immediate past president of the National Women's Health Network, and heads the Committee on Health Law and Regulation, International Childbirth Education Association.

She speaks out on maternal and infant medical safety before Senate subcommittees, the Food and Drug Administration. She reads all the journals on obstetrics and pediatrics and attends all the major medical meetings.

Mrs. Haire doesn't confine her criticism of matters maternity to America. On return from China recently, for example, she said:

From what I saw, the Chinese are 20 years behind in obstetrics.

About herself, she said: I am three years ahead of the average obstetrician," she said. And no obstetrician who has attempted to put her down would disagree. She debated experts in the exhibit area at this year's annual meeting of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology. The subject: is it best when the expectant mother is kept flat on her back or allowed to ambulate during labor. The experts appeared to have their ears pinned back.

"The whole country should know most places in the the world, except in America, doctors agree that bed's the last place a normal woman should be during labor," she said, tapping with the wooden stethoscope.

The American way of birth utilizes electronic fetal monitoring - but the jury's out on how safe this is for the baby.

A baby is three times more likely to die during the first day of life if it is born in the United States rather than in Japan or the Netherlands, health statisticians

Mrs. Haire said the wooden stethoscope causes no harm to the fetus. Doctor, nurse or midwife using it holds the flat end to the ear and positions the cupped end on the abdomen of the moth-

The trained ear picks up delicate beats of the tiny fetal heart. Their rhythm and strength signal either all's well or trouble

Electronic fetal monitoring - part of the American way of birth - pushes up the hospital bill and is done with equipment costing $6,000 and more. Increasingly ultrasound is used

Even the Food and Drug Administration gets a little jittery about ultrasound bearned at fetuses.

Dr. Marion Finkel, Director of the Food and Drug Administration's New Drug Evaluation Division, recently issued the official view in a statement.

- Increasing concern has arisen regarding the fetal safety of widely used diagnostic ultrasound in obstetrics.

The main points:

 Animal studies have been reported to reveal delayed neuromuscular development, altered emotional behavior, changed brainwaves, caused abnormalities and decreased survival.

- Genetic alterations have also been demonstrated

- The FDA has taken the position recommended by its Obstetrical and Device Classification Panel that ultrasound should be used when there are valid medical indications and then confined to the lowest dose consistent with good medical practice.

- It took 20 years before DES, given to pregnant women, showed that it harmed the fetus. And it took years, also, before the medical community recognized that x-ray harms the unborn baby.

Mrs. Haire and other authorities at the annual forum of the Foundation and the International gchildbirth Association challenged the safety of other obstetric practices in the United Sates.

"The question," Mrs. Haire said, "is this - 'Is medical technology endangering the lives and future intelligence of our babies?

New scientific research indicates that the answer is yes

Many experts testifying before the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Health some time back agree. Mrs. Haire, one of those testifying, is especially worried about electronic monitoring that involves screwing tiny electrodes into the scalp of infants as they make their way in the birth canal.

Mrs. Haire said the American Foundation for Maternal and Child Health was founded six years ago for interdisciplinary research in maternal and child

- One out of every 10 U.S. Children is learning disabled.

- One-third to one-half of all U.S. newborns admitted to intensive care nurseries come from mothers who were diagnosed as normal when labor began.

The rate of caesarean section has risen 156 percent in eight years.

A key problem, Mrs. Haire told the Senate Health Subcommittee, is there seems to be no federal agency in Washington which has the authority or interest in correcting poor obstetric practices,

6. Applying fundal pressure (external pressure strongly applied to the mother's belly in order to push the baby out of the uterus).

Mrs. Haire said in the trade this procedure is called "strong arm forceps."

A report to Congress from the U.S. General Accounting Office at the end of September said: HEW needs to better educate the public on the benefits and risks of various childbirth practices, and do more to help minimize incorrect use of obstetric

The report said the federal govern-ment, through HEW, has a number of responsibilities relating to U.S. obstetric practices, including

- Insuring the safety and effectiveness of drugs and medical devices;

- Funding medical research and professional standards review organizations. "HEW needs to better coordinate

"Our review was made because of the intense controversy over the benefits and risks of various obstetric practices, increasing congressional concern over the cost and quality of medical care, and the fact that obstetric practices affect more than 6 million women and infants annually," Elmer Staats, comptroller general of the U.S. said in the introduction to the GAO report.

The report to Congress included these

It should be unnecessary to make the point that the object of lamps and lighting is to reproduce daylight. However, the tendency to make lamps primarily a decorative eature has detracted in many cases from their value in illu begin with the lighting in which the source of light is the least conspicuous and progress to the most decorative form, the independent lamp.

Formerly these two were merged because there was no way of making light anthing but a point, as a candle or lamp. These were essentially single points of brillance which radiated more or less, and a room was lighted generally or spottily in proportion to the number of lights.

The chandelier as such must be considered first an object of beauty and only secondly a design for lighting.

The wall bracket is similarly the child of the metal or glass sconce designed to hold a candle, oil lamp or a gas jet on the wall. As a source of illumination it is less efficient than the central fixture

Water In Any Form Helps Support Life

By JEANNE LIVELY Family News Staff

"No one knows the worth of water 'til well goes dry." - Benjamin Frank-

There is life in water.

You probably take for granted the waer you drink. However, water is so esential to all forms of life that its importnce exceeds every other substance. In act, man can live but a few days without

Of course, you are no doubt aware hat you're supposed to drink at least ight glasses of water a day to stay nealthy. So, when you turn on your fauet, what do you expect? - a tasty and afe drink of water. And you want there o be a plentiful supply of it.

R.D. Sawyer, supervisor of the City of ubbock Water Treatment Plant, says it s his business to see that Lubbock residents (and also those of Slaton, Tahoka, D'Donnell, Lamesa, Levelland and Brownfield) have water that fulfills the above requirements. "I believe our water s tasty," Sawyer said, "though some persons coming from other areas tell me it takes time to get used to it. But other people - especially those coming from the Gulf Coast area - say our water is mile length of pipeline to bring the water from the dam at Lake Meredith to Lubbock - and residents should be thankful we have this supply, otherwise we couldn't use all the water we do.'

Sawyer explains that Lubbock's water supply originates from waters of the Canadian River which in turn pills into and fills Lake Meredith - the ake located northeast of Amarillo.

Sawyer also explains that the city's treatment plant can supply 48 million gallons of water a day to Lubbock from Lake Meredith. "But during peak times of summer usage," he said, "additional water is required from the Sandhill (near Muleshoe) water wells. The maximum total we've needed has been 78 million gallons a day, and this usage did occur during summer

Sawyer says Lubbockites can be assured their water supply is safe. "We conform to all standards necessary to insure proper water treatment to keep our water safe and pure. Water is tested daily, but checked on the hour for chlorine

'Naturally, everybody is interested in preventing tooth decay, but especially parents. So for those not already aware of it, proper amounts of fluoride are added to our water."

Regarding composition of Lubbock water, Sawyer states it would take too lengthy an explanation of all elements present in our water. However, he comments that the water coming from Lake Meredith contains twice as much mineral content than well water.

But there are other sources of water: If you live in the country, you probably get your water from a well.

If you live in some parts of the state (but not in Lubbock), you might collect and store rainwater in a cistern.

If you want completely demineralized water, buy water that has been distilled. If you want the finest and purest water available (according to a commercial processor), you can buy a kind marked 'drinking water." Again, according to the processor, this water is from "our own deep well water, purified by reverse osmosis and demineralized with mineral content restored (contents: water, sodium bicarbonate, magnesium chloride, sodium sulfate, sodium chloride and calcium chloride)."

But for the truly ultimate in drinking water, try a bottled brand like Perrier. Advertised as coming from a "sparkling spring in France," it doesn't come exactly cheap in comparison with plain, ordinary water. "Who's to say a glass of chilled Perrier water doesn't seem more special," says Dee Justice of the Well-Body Shop. "And Perrier mixed with fruit juices does make a delicious punch, a good non-alcoholic one at that!

On a sobering note, we could run out of water on the Plains. So conserve.

THE NEWEST TREND - Bottled water has become a very ties and clubs. The top-seller is Perrier, supposedly originating popular drink, often used in place of alcoholic beverages at par- from a mineral spring in France.

Short Haircuts Viewed 'Look' For 80's

NEW YORK (Special) - It's the start of a new decade, and the message in women's hair is the short cut.

"In hair, as in fashion, there's a new direction, a new finish, one of line and control," says Richard Lindstrom, creative director of the Pantene Company. 'Hair in the 80's will be neater, sleeker, more pulled together, with no hard-edge lines. A close-to-the-head look will prevail, yet with a certain amount of fullness and movement, always with a distinct feeling of softness and femininity

Lindstrom believes short, well-shaped hair is smart looking. It offers adaptability to different hair types and face shapes, and is the perfect contemporary complement to the upcoming fashion of more dressed-up, controlled clothes.

Many women neverthless loathe the thought of cutting their hair short, thinking it either less feminine than long tresses, or less adaptable to different styles: "Not so," says Lindstrom. "Short hair provides convenience as well as up-to-the minute chic. Maintenance time is reduced to almost nothing and, above all, it is versatile.

To prove his point, Lindstrom cites a recent case of a working woman dissatisfied with her long, straight hair. It did not contribute to the professional look she required during the day, nor to the look of sophistication she desired for evening. Despite her dissatisfaction, she feared short hair would allow for only one look.

Lindstrom chose a softly permed approach to an easy-care short, layered cut to suit her lifestyle and went on to demonstrate how it could provide versatility as well as freedom.

The resulting style may be dried naturally with finger-combing allowing the waves to appear. A more controlled, business look is achieved by blow-drying damp hair, taming the waves, so that only the ends have a soft turn. For cocktails and early evenings, hair can be swept up softly to free the neck, leaving bangs to frame and enlarge the eyes.

 You may be wrong, according to one psychologist, and it may be that laboratory animals have been leading you astray.

Dr. Jonathan Freedman, professor of psychology at Columbia University. New York, told the Health Insurance Institute that eight years of research has shown that these myths of crowding are false."

It is true that when laboratory animals are placed in crowded environments they behave agressively, "generally act crazy," often "become cannibalistic." But Friedman adds:

"People are not rats.

"We are enormously adaptable, and have the advantage of language, a marvelously flexible brain and complex social systems.

animals and have no instinctive negative reaction to crowding."

Professor Freedman told the Institute that his research showed people are "just as good, friendly and cooperative" in both crowded or uncrowded situations

For example, he says that if crowding were bad there would be significantly higher crime rates in crowded areas.

Yes he says this definitely not so

Yes, he says this definitely not so.

"Among low-income people who tend to commit most crimes," he says, "those who live in crowded areas commit fewer crimes than those in uncrowd-ed neighborhoods.

"Surprising, perhaps, but true."

He thinks New York City — Manhattan — proves his point.

Professor Freedman explains: "Understand that Manhattan, the more crowded in 1900 than it is today; and it was much more crowded in the 1920s and 1930s than now.

"Yet we think of those idyllic days, when the city was easy, lovely and safe. Now, when Manhattan is less crowded, it is, alas, less easy, less lovely, and less safe.

"Obviously, it is not crowding that is to blame."

And this situation is true, he says, of the country's cities in general.

Rather than hindering the cities, Freedman says the concentration of people has actually had positive effects.

"It produces a vitality, excitement, stimulation and dynamism that you cannot find in small towns or suburbs.

"Personally, I like cities. I think they are the life-blood and vitality of our country, always have been and probably

Homegrown Avocado Plants Easy

NEWPORT BEACH, Ca. (Special) — What is green, exotic and can reach a height of six to eight feet? What could demand a little of your patience and produce a stunning tropical look? The answer is in the golden-green fruit from California — the avocado.

Next time your menu includes this delicious fruit, save the seed to start some greenery of your own. Nurturing an avocado seed is rewarded by a very decorative houseplant with glossy, dark green, leaves — each reaching a length of about six inches.

With tender loving care and the following of these simple instructions, your seed can grow into a gorgeous avocado seed (broad end down) over a water-filled glass. Make sure water is covering the bottom ½" of the seed and place in a warm and cozy location — out of direct sunlight. This is where the birth of your plant takes place: the seed will crack as the roots and stem form. When it cracks (from 2-6 weeks), you'll be able to observe the sprouting process. At six to seven inches long, the sprout should be cut off at the midway point. This forces the growth of a stronger stalk and helps insure the bushiness of your plant.

The seedling is ready for potting when the roots are thick and the stem has leafed out. Place broken crockery around the drainage hole of a red clay terra cottapot with a top diameter of 10½". Fill it with about four inches of rich humustype soil suited for indoor houseplants.

seed (broad end down) over a water-filled glass. Make sure water is covering the bottom ½" of the seed and place in a warm and cozy location — out of direct sunlight. This is where the birth of your

Water the plant liberally and once it settles, move your "wonder" to its home — a table or shelf not too close to an air conditioner, heater or in too much direct sunlight. Remember that the plant needs a lot of water: that means checking every two to three days to make sure the soil is moist.

As soon as your plant reaches a height of about 15 inches, place a small dowel in the pot and tie the stalk loosely to it for support. Give it a little fertilizer once a month and don't be afraid to prune if it's growing too spindly for your taste. As your plant grows, turn it frequently so that growth toward the light is even.

Your avocado houseplant needs room to grow so, don't forget to repot when it looks too large for the terra cotta pot. And, there you have it — from seed to wonderful houseplant with a California avocado.

INEXPENSIVE HOUSEPLANT — A little patience can return big rewards when growing a avocado plant. A meal including avocado will provide the seed, and following simple instructions will produce a luscious houseplant that can grow to a height of six to eight feet. The plant has glossy, dark green leaves.

Bar Patrons Influenced By Saloon's Atmosphere

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Drink, Drink, Drink, Talk about it. Songs about it. Mevies about it. Jokes about it. How does this all influence America's drinking habits? One saloon study brings up some questions to be considered.)

By KARREN MILLS

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The downhome twang of Willie Nelson, Kenny Rogers and Waylon Jennings — singing of lost loves, lost lives and too much booze — may cause bar patrons to drink more.

Too much more, says Dr. James Schaefer, head of the drug and alcohol abuse program at the University of Min-

Schaefer studied saloons in western Montana in 1977 and 1978 while on the staff of the University of Montana in Missoula. But he says bar atmosphere everywhere affects drinking habits, and some fabric from these mills quality and greater assure you of uniform high atmospheres are more risky for those who might drink too much.

Country music, dim lights, macho decorations, a small dance floor, an unequal distribution of the sexes and a tolerance for drunken, disorderly behavior encourage bar patrons to overconsume, Schaefer says.

Saloons that don't encourage overdrinking are generally better lit, have other forms of entertainment, have large dance floors that will accommodate more dancers, have a balanced number of men and women and will not put up with rowdy behavior, Schaefer says.

Music with a fast beat and lyrics that are happy is generally safer than slow songs about people who feel they don't have control over their own lives, he

A bar's decorations also affect drinking patterns, Schaefer says.

"The macho bars with action pictures of calf-roping and champion cowboys seem to encourage men to act like hard-drinking cowboys," and create a higher risk for problem drinking than a bar with a richer, modern decor, Schaefer says.

The study does not go into why certain atmospheres cause people to drink too much. "That's something we need to look into in further studies," he says.

Schaefer's pilot study was published in the Journal of Studies on Alcohol.

Schaefer says he was "hooked on booze" when he was in college, and became interested in bar atmosphere after he kicked his own drinking habit.

"I tried to figure out what it was about a bar that made me want to stay and continue drinking way beyond my limit," Schaefer says.

That investigation eventually led to the study, which Schaefer says could result in changes that would save taxpayers money.

"Treatment costs money. Let's try reversing the trend. Instead of catching downstream tragedies, let's try to catch them upstream," he says.

"All of the people responsible for a bar—the owner, the bartender, the barmaids—are doing what they think the people want. There is a feedback, an accumulation of style," Schaefer says.

"It's conceivable to me that with a better knowledge of what types of environments lead to alcohol abuse, bar owners might want to change some things," he says

the COIN Box

By NORMAN DAVIS

"I WAS HELPING Uncle Sam to make dollars." said the man known as Jack McMurdo. "Maybe mine were not as good as his, but they looked as well and were cheaper to make."

Those lines from "The Valley of Fear" concern one of the few United States coins involved in a Sherlock Holmes case.

By the early 1870's most of the tiny Type 1 gold dollars had disappeared from circulation. Instead of their Liberty head and stars. Type 2 (1854-56) and Type 3 (1856-89)coins have an "Indian head" design. The change to Type 3 came when the portrait was enlarged.

the portrait was enlarged.

Actually the portrait still is Miss Liberty, but on later dollars she wears an Indian headdress. This feathered bonnet has "Liberty" on the band, "United States of America" is around the rim. The reverse has a large numeral 1 above "Dollar", with the date below, all in a

COINS FROM BRANCH mints— Charlotte, Dahlonega, New Orleans, and Sam Francisco— have mint marks at the botton of the reverse.

A dime is 17.9 millimeters in diameter. These $1 gold coins are only 15 mm. across. All gold dollars have a reeded edge.

So in 1875, when McMurdo confessed that he was "helping Uncle Sam," the gold dollars involved would be Type 2 or Type 3, and probably the latter.

These have the 'Indian obverse and value in wreath reverse. Since McMurdo later indentified the coins as counterfeits of Philadelphia dollars, there was no mint mark on them.

ONE REASON McMurdo's background as a counterfeiter was easily established is that counterfeiting of gold dollars was a problem. For instance, many such coins were passed in Kentucky in 1852, and a major counterfeiting plant was captured in San Francisco in 1879.

Plenty of counterfeit gold dollars still are around. So the only safe way to add a gold dollar to your collection is to get it from a reputable coin dealer, an auction house, you've dealt with before, or a collector who's both an expert and someone you know and trust.

For relatively common dates in Fine condition, current prices are around $200: 1980 "Red Book" prices already are out of date for these coins.

If your're building a collection of U.S. coins and don't yet own a gold dollar, I assure you it's worth saving up for.

Saving takes time, but the experience

Saving takes time, but the experience holding one of these golden bits of history is unique.

LONDON (UPI) — Behind the appealing little boy and girl who carry Kim Casali's thoughts on love to millions of readers around the world is an unexpected real life story.

It is certainly not the story fans of her daily cartoon, "Love is..." imagined when they read a couple of years ago that she had borne her husband a child 16 months after his death.

Once the surprise of the clinical details wore off. that sounded like a love surviving even death - a wife who would not let even the grave come between her and her husband.

One day recently this tall, grave New Zealander (who is spending a few months in a rented house near London) said she was not happy with her marriage. She pursuaded her dying husband to preserve his sperm - but not so that, after a decent interval.

she could be inseminated with his child as a living memento of their unquenchable romance.

The great love involved was mother love. "I wanted children desperately." she said. "He didn't. I had to beg for our first child. Stefano, and then Dario. Like some husbands, he wanted all the attention for himself but I wanted a big family because I Love children and I am able to take care of

She has come a long way since she was a secretary with a talent for doodling and a handy duplicating machine she used to compile a book of stapled pages that she sold to a few friends for small sums. Dear Abby.

DEAR ABBY: My mother recently passed away after a brief illness. In the obiturary published in our local newspaper, they gave her age as 89.

Abby, mother was only 80, so it was apparently a typograpical error.

Now this may not seem very important to some people, but mother was a very vain and prideful woman who would never tell her age.

Because of this typograhical error in her obituary, everyone will think she was nine years older than she actually was.

Should we ask the newspaper editor to publish a correction? I say we should. The rest of the family says to skip it.
OUTVOTED IN OHIO

Dear Outvoted: Sometimes it's better to leave bad enough alone. In support of my advice. I offer the following from the California Newspaper Publishers Association. It is an example of a typographical error in the classified section of a small town newspaper, and the subsequent disastrous attempts to correct it:

"(Monday) FOR SALE-R.D. Jones has one sewing machine for sale. Phone 948-0707 after 7 p.m. and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him cheap.

(Tuesday) NOTICE-We regret have erred in R.D. Jones' ad yesterday. It should have read: 'One sewing machine for sale. Cheap. Phone 948-0707 and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him after 7

"(Wednesday) NOTICE—R.D. Jones has informed us that he has received several annoying telephone calls because of the error we made in his classifed ad yesterday. His ad stands correct as follows: FOR SALE-R.D. Jones has one sewing machine for sale. Cheap. Phone 948-0707 p.m. and ask for Mrs. Kelly who loves

"(Thursday) NOTICE-I, R.D. Jones, have NO sewing machine for sale. I SMASHED IT. Don't call 948-0707, as the telephone has been out. I have NOT been carrying on with Mrs. Kelly. Until yesterday she was my housekeeper, but she

When he comes home from work, the firt thing he does is take off his shoes. I have to leave the room to keep from gagging. When I try to talk to him about it, he says, "I can't help it. Get off my

I've even refused to sleep in the same room with him, but that doesn't bother him. I wonder if something couldn't be wrong with his sense of smell? I don't know how HE can stand it. I know his socks can't be dirty because he changes them every day.

If it weren't for his smelly feet we would have a wonderful marriage because he is one terrific guy. I've even considered leaving him. Please help me. ALL SMELLED OUT IN R.I.

Real To Reel

By William D. Kerns

Facing the prospect of losing a valuable employee is a difficult task for any business. But that grim effect was multiplied many times over when Lubbock Cultural Affairs Council executive director James R. Toland recently announced his acceptance of a similar position with the city of Spokane. Washington - because despite the puffy title. Toland labored neither for the elite nor for just the Chamber Of Commerce. Sure, the latter signed paychecks, but anyone who knew Toland realized he was working for more than 200,000 bosses. He was working for all the area residents, and now we all must bear the loss.

Certainly, no one is coming right out and calling Toland irreplaceable - not on the record anyway - but the expressions of shock and astonishment and, ultimately, regret have been unmistakable. Those looks were to be expected, though, since Toland has spent the past 19 months building a fire under the concept of the arts being a reflection of the community. He has kept that blaze burning by communicating. pleading, explaining, guiding, pushing and working around the clock to not only make the public aware of the arts, but to involve them as well. His trademark phrase of "the arts are for everybody," once translated by the media as "hype is for publicists," has become powered by a communicable sincerity. He has won believers.

No one thought about Toland moving, despite the now obvious indications. Over too few racquetball matches at the YMCA and too many slices of the Continental Room's pecan pie. I had heard Toland air his desire to "work in the Northwest." He. vacationed there: he loves that part of the country. But no onetook the hint; all were shocked at his announcement.

Texas Tech University music department chairman Harold Luce openly expressed hope that Toland would stay in Lubbock. but added later, "Jim took over a difficult ob and brought a new level of professional expertise to it. I guess it was inevitable he'd be moving on; he could be heading for even biggercities (than Spokane) if he wants to. He's very nearly indispensible to the whole arts program in Lubbock, and he'll be very hard to replace. He brought such maturity. such unique qualifications. His experience in the military helped his administrative work. He's also a well-trained, professional musician and he understands the needs of the arts, especially the performing arts."

Toland served in the United States Army from 1967 throug 1975. He trained as a medical corpsman and clinical specialist and served in 1969 with a Vietnam cavalry (tank) unit as a combat medic. The following year saw him reassigned to a tank unit in Germany, his duties defined by Toland as "about the same thing, except now no one was shooting at us." Upon learning the Seventh Army Soldier's Chorus was in need of replacements. Toland left vapor trails in his hurry to join. Singing is one of his loves, as well as one of his undeniable talents, and he recalled, "The time I spent singing overseas was one of the best times I ever had in my life."

Upon being reassigned to Fort Huachuca in Arizona, he became a part time instructor at a nearby community college, involving himself with a paramedic program

Toland brought his wife, Bobby, and son, Chris, to Lubbock in 1975, moving to West Texas only because his father lived in the area. While resuming his music studies at Texas Tech University, he immediately began making a name, a reputation if you will; for himself within the campus community. His on-stage talents became obvious to the public through musical productions, and his organizing talents did not escape dministrators. Cheryl Shubert, coordinator of student activities at Tech, said, "He was extremely important in the initial phases of a bi-weekly Fine Arts Courtyard Concert Series. Without his efforts, I am not sure the project would have been

At this point. Toland's career goals were still centered in the teaching profession. But the administrative bug was nibbling away at him. As he recalled, "The more I worked at Texas Tech. the more interested I became in administration, in seeing how things work. . I liked organizing things, putting things together, causing things to happen." Indeed, he enjoyed teaching, but saw no conflict with arts administration since "that job is really educating the general public about the importance the arts

He earned good experience with a nine month stint as the Tech music department's coordinator for public presentations. His ability to work with people was tested every day, as he had to satisfy the artists he was publicizing and the media he was asking for publicity. He scheduled recitals and concerts, managed the campus' plush new Recital Hall and handled press relations. And when the position of executive director opened up with the Cultural Affairs Council, he stepped in determined to see the arts community grow and be embraced with even more fervor by the community

He solicited support from businesses large and small, from individuals and from the media. And unlike many publicists, he actually made friends in the process. He attracted the attention of state arts agencies, playing a major part in convincing more influential administrators to take a close look at the growing awareness in Lubbock. In the space of one year, he saw his programming budget increased from $5,000 to more than $100,000. His deft handling of the hotel/motel tax situation saw more arts organizations receiving funds.

But the grant situation was never one of playing God for Toland, of reviewing apdications and giving a simple yes or no. He felt is was also his duty to help the organitions draw up their grant applications, to offer advice, to help out. Judging from the comments of local arts organization members, Toland also did not differentiate be-Owen the established and the new, the big and the small, the influential and the weak. Indeed, few would deny that paranoia once ran rampant through the Lubbock arts community. Everyone seemed to be looking ove his shoulder, thinking this organization got more public support or this one got more newspaper or radio coverage or yet another attracted more donations.

That paranola is still present, but to a noticeably smaller extent, thanks at least in part to Toland's refusal to buckle to pressures and insistence on treating each organization in equitable fashion.

Byrnie Bass, former president of the Cultural Affairs Council, said recently, "When Jim Toland came to town, the Cultural Affairs Council was just getting off the ground. Now that he's been here for one and one-half years, it's flying high. He's just an incredibly hard worker. He's driven full steam into all aspects of the community. A lot of people contributed to the Arts Festival we had last spring, but I think everyone is aware that Jim Toand was the driving force behind it.

"His real strongpoint, though, outside of his working long and hard, is his ability to effectively articulate in terms everyone can understand the role of the arts in a community's culture."

Wayne Stevens, president of the Lubbock Civic Ballet board said, "He's been invahable to us, giving us steering and direction when we needed it. Just about everything we've needed he's helped us with. He's been a real friend to us, advising us on grants and proposals. If he leaves, it will sure be a big blow to all the arts in Lubbock The Lubbock Symphony Orchestra's Virginia Wheat added, "Jim has just been terrific. He was always so accomodating; you could always sit down with him and work out your problems. I think he's really brought the cultural affairs of the city out in the open. He's worked well with all groups, never showing any favoritism. If he goes to a better position. I'll be glad for him, but it will just crush me. This city is going to miss him. He worked well with people. He welded all the groups together where before, you know, there was animosity among several groups. I think he made even the Chamber Of Commerce aware of cultural factions maybe they even weren't aware of." The running thread throughout this prose fabric is Toland's ability to work with people and help vastly different organizations recognize a common cause. His solitary goal was not to bring big bucks into already fat wallets or to further emphasize an already artiquated elitist attitude toward the arts. It was, simply, to bring the arts — be they visual or performing — to all the people. To do that, he had to nurse a lot of egos. He had to play both referee and psychiatrist, soothing ruffled feelings and listening to

He had to play both reteree and psychiatris, some complaints.

He helped many arts organizations receive added funds, helped many more by attracting added audiences. But he was never condescending. He discouraged dress codes, and was often prepared to supply free tickets for the wary — soliciting promises that the tickets would "definitely be used" and confident that the joy of seeing one new production would inspire the ticket holder to want to see more.

His work in the city can really be likened to his several local stage appearances, his numbrous and skillful work in secondary roles at the Tech University Theater or Civic Emboock's musical presentations. Jim Toland is not a star; he's a character actor. As such, he's oftentimes overshadowed by stage personalities — yet his talent was too glaring to dismiss. Perusing old theater reviews, I find his name always referred to as an important factor. Off the stage in his role as CAC director he helped out the ballet and the symphony and the theaters. The performances and, it must be said, the sheer politics often saw other individuals in the spotlight. Toland willingly stepped back.

But again, his contributions were always noticed. He never stressed them. He never had to.

I spoke a final time with Toland and found discussing his fondness for Lubbock and optimistic hopes for an equal or greater challenge in Spokane. Asked if he was aware of the significant part he's played in helping Lubbock grow, as well as if he feels Lubbock will be hurt by his leaving, he answered, "It's impossible to put ego

'Manhattan' Setting Box-Office Records

NEW YORK (Special) - In first-run engagements in only eight foreign mar-kets. Woody Allen's "Manhattan" has spiraled to a stellar box-office gross of $210,688 in three theatres in Milan, Italy, a stunning figure which tops receipts of any other film ever released there (for a comparable period of play).

After a spectacular opening-week to-tal of $108,900, the film has maintained its torrid pace in the first six days of the second stanza with a hefty $101,790. In other key Italian markets, "Manhattan" has posted $38,016 in one Naples house after 11 days, which is 50 per cent higher than receipts for Allen's "Annie Hall" during its opening days of play in 1977. In Rome, the film logged a superb sixday, three-theatre tally of $116,287, a whopping 95 per cent better than Allen's 1977 Oscar-winner. Total receipts in Italy in only 10 sites in six cities (for playoffs of 4 to 13 days) are $438,772.

Elsewhere in Europe, "Manhattan" has scooped up a grand $2,145,000 in 80 playdates in West Germany since August 31. In five West End theatres in London, the film has garnered a colossal $847.968 in ten weeks, over 75 per cent above comparable-period receipts for "Annie Hall," which recently completed its 109th consecutive week of play in Lon-

In Spain, the film has taken a superlative seven-week gross of $531,217 on 18 screens. In Switzerland, "Manhattan" has built a solid box-office gross of $235,-838 in only three houses. The film has notched the all time house record at the 207-seat Apollo Studio in Zurich with $146,879. And, in Vienna, Austria, Manhattan" has grabbed an eight-week tally of $242,128.

In three Latin American markets (Chile, Colombia, and Puerto Rico), Allen's new film has recorded a handsome gross of $95,419 in only 11 total theatres.

A Jack Rollins-Charles H. Joffe production, "Manhattan" was directed by Allen from an original screenplay co-authored with Marshall Brickman. Starring in the film are Allen, Diane Keaton, Michael Murphy, Mariel Hemingway, Meryl Streep, and Anne Byrne. Music is by George Gershwin. Gordon Willis directed the chineamatographgy.

"Manhattan" is distributed throughout the world by United Artists.

Country Style

By Russ Parsons

As you might have noticed in the newspaper or on TV or the radio, the decade of the 1970s is over. And, as you probably also noticed from those same media, there is nothing like a decade change to bring about a surge of re-evaluation.

It seems like there is something about that magical shift from Dec. 31, 1979 to Jan. 1. 1980 (or, if memory serves, from those same dates in 1969 and 1970) that brings out the historian in most people

Everywhere you go you're bombarded with "The Greatest Hits of the '70s" or 'The Top 10 Men of the '70s" or "How Water has Changed in the '70s.'

Caught up in this infectious hysteria, I sat down to write this column on "How Country Music Has Changed in the '70s, Most Specifically in Lubbock." Now, that is fine title, but I couldn't get much beyond

See, I've only been in Lubbock a year and a half now and, to be perfectly honest, n 1970 I was a sophomore in high school.

Realizing that I was not the ideal source for this kind of story, I (being a reasonably ound journalist) decided to go to the guy who could tell me what I needed to know By all accounts, that is Don Caldwell, boss man at Caldwell Studios and the hub of country music in Lubbock.

Everybody who has had anything to do with country music in Lubbock over the last 10 years has recorded in Caldwell Studios. You can take that literally. Everybody from Joe Ely to Curly Lawler has recorded near the corner of University and Broadway.

What about those changes Don?

DON CALDWELL

Oh, there's just been a bunch of changes, a whole bunch. There's worlds and worlds of difference," said the normally understated producer.

Especially if you take the 10 years previous to the '70s. About the only thing there was around here musically was a clubs to play in. There just wasn't enough work to keep a band alive.

'Also, in the '60s there wasn't any recording going on around here. Since then, there's been numerous records made in Lubbock.

"There's another big difference between Lubbock now and Lubbock in the '60s," he said. "In the '60s there weren't many professional musicians around. There was nobody who lived in Lubbock and was what we'd say now is a professional musician.

Oh, there were probably a few I guess, there were maybe three or four guys. But now there are several people living in Lubbock who are making their livings as profes-

And you can bet the house that each and every one of them has done his share of time in the dlm, carpeted sound booth at Caldwell Studios. It's not for nothing that artist-songwriter Terry Allen has dubbed it "The Only Mountain in Lubbock." It didn't start out that way. It began as nothing more than a way to use some space in the back of a music store. But gradually Caldwell began the shift to a full recording

First he recorded demo tapes on a two-track machine, then there was the eighttrack borrowed from Shelter Records in Tulsa. Now it is a full 16-track facility. Starting the studio wasn't really much of what you'd call an educated guess.

Caldwell said. "I'd played in a lot of studios and I wanted to do it so I just tried it out. I didn't think it would be a great deal financially. I didn't even think about it in those terms. I knew there were a lot of people making demos around and I thought I could get in on some of that work But there is just so much talent around here. I didn't realize there was this much talent, but just about anywhere you look there's a musician." And where there's a musician there's an urge to record. That has enabled the stud-don't think you could classify anything that happened here as a big break." he said. "We've had some good fortune to be able to deal with people that are in the business seriously enough to keep recording. We've been able to build up a clientele that's been able to keep us in business, but as far as anything you'd classify as a big break, I don't think there's been one.

I think the deal with Joe Ely getting his record countract with MCA focused a lot of attention here and I think also the interest in the revival of Buddy Holly has put some focus on Lubbock, but those aren't what you'd call breaks either Essentially, what is good for Lubbock musically is good for Caldwell Studios. With the wave of talk that's going around about the new-found "Lubbock Sound," you'd expect Caldwell to be a very happy man.

But he's seen enough of the boom and bust business of music to remain skeptical. "I think what's happening here musically has been happening for years and years, but now the thought is in everybody's mind that something is happening. I think that once more and more things happen out here, people will start coming out to this part of the country to do their recording 'Another thing that's going to have to happen the way I see it, is the economics of the music industry are going to have to improve, or it's going to have to be tilted more toward putting out new artists Working with established artists is a lot better from one standpoint, with an established artist you have an idea what's going to when you put out a record. With a new artist, it's a gamble But I think what's going to happen is that small recording studios are going to approach the big companies with deals that are financially feasible for them and they're going to think about it 'Right now there's a big thing about it has to be a $90,000 budget or this or that.

It's big time. Well, big time is what's killed the record business. They're going to have to look for deals that aren't going to cost them an arm and a leg.

'But they're just not selling enough records now to justify the recording expenses. let alone the promotional considerations and all that goes with puttting a record out

Caldwell Studios and KLLL radio are presenting another in a long line of "West Texas Saturday Night Oprys" Saturday night at 8.

Bounty Hunter's Life Portrayed

NEW YORK (Special) - Ralph 'Papa' Thorson, a modern-day bounty hunter whose life is being dramatized in "The Hunter," a Rastar/Mort Engelberg action drama for Paramount Pictures release, will make his screen bow in a cameo role in the film.

The unusual casting finds the real Thorson in the role of a bartender serving a drink to his movie counterpart, played by Steve McQueen. "It's a scene that's happened countless times," laughs Thorson, "except that this time I'm the bartender and somebody else is me."

Thorson is the last of his breed, a full-fledged bounty hunter. Born in Anaconda. Montana, he became a bounty hunter while a student at the University of California at Berkeley. He has apprehended more than 5,000 fugitives in the past thirty years and still operates a bounty hunting service out of his North Hollywood home.

"The Hunter" is based on several of Thorson's real-life episodes. The screenplay was written by Richard Levinson, William Link and Peter Hyams, based on Christopher Keane's biography of the same title.

Eli Wallach, Kathryn Harrold and LeVar Burton also head the cast of "The Hunter," directed by Buzz Kulik and produced by Mort Engelberg. The film will be distributed in the U.S. and Canada by Paramount Pictures Corporation.

THORNTON WILDER HIS WORLD. By Linda Simon. Doubleday

'The art of biography is more difficult than is generally supposed." Thornton Wilder observed in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey." the novel for which he won his first of three Pulitzer prizes.

The observation, by a man who spent his life writing about, teaching and admiring his fellows, is confirmed by Linda Simon's latest book, "Thorton Wilder: His World

Simon organizes her narrative around the writer's travels. She follows him from his Madison, Wis. birthplace to Hong Kong, from Rome to Yucatan.

Unfortunately, she conducts her tour at such a pace that the faces and scenery along the way blur, leaving only the hazy boundaries of Wilder's world to emerge.

Wilder filled his world with people He sat at the feet of Gertrude Stein, stood by the sickbed of Sigmund Freud. hiked down the Rhine with prizefighter Gene Tunney and hobnobbed with a Chicago gunman named Golfbag.

I just relish human beings." Wilder once explained.

To his students at the University of Chicago and the Lawrenceville School in New Jersey, the author of "Our Town" and "The Skin of Our Teeth" was an exciting speaker who would flail his arms and talk at triphammer speed when discussing Goethe, portraying a character of Greek tragedy or whirling with them through the Chicago Loop in an evening on the town.

One interviewer described him as "a man accustomed to putting strangers at their ease." Another noted, "his manner is gentle, his words are kind and his thoughts plain and straight.

But instead of a portrait of the man and his work, Simon presents an itinerary of his travels.

The reader is told that Wilder, on one of his frequent lecture tours across the "stopped off to see some friends in Tennessee and inadvertently left behind an envelope containing his ecture schedule

No problem, according to Simon. The itinerary caught up with him in Washington, D.C., where he spent a weekend getting reacquainted with the city... While he was there, he attended a play in which George M. Cohan was performing and took a bus tour of Annapois to learn a bit of history

Simon spoke with Wilder in the course of researching her first book. The Biography of Alice B. Toklas. Yet, she draws primarily on secondary sources, providing an excellent bibliography for future researchers, but missing the immediacy and vitality necessary for a definitive portrait of this important American writer who died only four

PARTY OF THE YEAR. By John Crosby. Stein & Day. 239 Pages. $9.95.

John Crosby's past track record for writing thrillers has consisted largely of winners, but this time Crosby runs out of the money

Crosby tends to spread himself bit too much in "Party of the Year. There is too much talk, too much exploration of relationships and not enough action - which really is what thrillers

Slowing down what should be an onrushing plot in order to allow a character to hold forth on his religious feelings may be allowable in a conventional novel but it's death to a thriller. Slow the action down and the reader starts to think about what he has read and decides it really isn't very probable.

Which is what happens in "Party of the Year." It doesn't come off as being very probable

The book concerns a fortress-like apartment building in New York City called Windletop. It has a most impressive security system. In it live extremely wealthy people who are paying high prices to be protected against terrorists.

Among the residents is Principessa di Castiglione and her young daughter, Lucia. Summoned to protect and to teach Lucia is teacher and former CIA agent Horatio Cassidy, the book's protagonist and a most tedious character.

Once inside the Windletop, Cassidy finds all sorts of strange things - former Nazis in charge of security, Mafia dons posing as high society, etc. He also uncovers a plot by terrorists to invade supposedly impregnable building and kill all the rich folks.

But by this time the reader doesn't much care if Cassidy stops the assassins

Sixteen stories are included in this annual collection, and many of them are most entertaining reading Space prohibits discussing all of the bell-ringers but among the very best are:

Zena Collier's "Little Paradise." a strange, dreamlike tale of environmental protection carried to murderous extremes. It's chilling and haunting and disturbs the memory long after it has been finished.

- "The Man in the Lake" by Ernest Savage. This is a tough, taut story that brings to mind the work of Raymond Chandler. It deals with avarice that leads to violent death.

The Closed Door, by Thomas Walsh. This is a touching but hardly sentimental story about a police officer who loses his wife to the random violence that plagues contemporary society and of his struggle to come to terms with what has happened to his life.

Old movie buffs ought to find Filmflam," by Francis M. Nevins Jr. of especial interest. It tells of a con man CATS: A CELEBRATION. By Elizabeth Hamilton. Scribner's. 160 Pages.

Cats have been with us a long time. In ancient Egypt there was a temple in a city called Bubastis that was dedicated to Bast, the cat goddess. But then, as now, man had mixed emotions about the cat As Elizabeth Hamilton puts it, "As a rule people either like cats or dislike them. They are rarely indifferent." Her book "Cats," however, nicely bridges the gap between the cat likers and disli-

It is a well-written, chatty and informative discussion of cats and their relationship to man. Good-natured in tone, nicely laced with humor and spiced with interesting facts, the book should appeal

The 10 chapters in this collection contain material that covers just about every aspect of the cat. One chapter, for example, deals with cats the author has personally been acquainted with, another deals with the history of the cat, and another contains a miscellaneous batch of anecdotes dealing with cats.

While each chapter is interesting, the bst of thelot is the one dealing with the writer and his cat. Charles Dickens. Miss Hamilton observes, had a cat named William to which he was attached. But when William bore kittens, the author quickly changed its name to Williamina. Ernest Hemingway also liked cats. So much so, that in his home in Havana he had 30 of the animals.

"Cats" is a nice book, and reading it is almost as good as having a purring cat

THE GREAT TEXAS MURDER TRIALS. By David Atlee Phillips. Macmillan. $9.95

In August 1976 a man clad in black and wearing a women's wig broke into the mansion of Texas millionaire T. Cullen Davis and shot and badly wounded his estranged wife, Priscilla.

Her lover, basketball player Stan Farr, attempted to come to her aid, but was shot dead. Seconds later, her daughter by a previous marriage also lay dead in a pool of blood.

Davis was charged with the crimes, but following a lengthy trial in which he was defended by famed Texas trial lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, Davis was acquited.

But Davis' wrangling with the legal establishment did not end there.

Months later, Davis was charged by the FBI with hiring a gunman to do away with 15 people, including the judge in his divorce proceedings.

Rock-It

By Doug Pullen

Choosing an unknown to carry the burden is not a common practice among record label producers intent upon starting a new label or re-establishing an old one. But that's what Rocket Records has done with the debut of an English singer by the name of Judie Tzuke (pronounced zook).

The gifted singer-songwriter was picked by Rocket's executives in hopes of rescuing the label from the obscurity (and financial loss) it was incurring with acts of limited success. The label was started by superstar Elton John for MCA Records. But John dissociated himself from Rocket a few years back, and the label wound up under RCA's distribution. Rocket has returned to MCA's burgeoning fold.

The label's floundering image most certainly has been boosted, at least aesthetically. by the acquisition of Miss Tzuke. Her "Stay With Me Till Dawn" LP is a completely original work, brilliantly orchestrated and chillingly performed.

Miss Tzuke is possessed with a distinctive voice, one which emits a handful of emotions within just a few short, breathy vocals. Her style is at once hollow in its haunting preportions, yet warm and compassionate within the scope of a single verse.

Compositionally, Miss Tzuke portrays herself as a very human, vulnerable person. Yet her voice confuses that impression with its emotional edge melting away any cold, technical imprints. Miss Tzuke often sings of her loneliness and her dependence upon others, portraying a fragile, feminine figure.

What belies these impressions is her authoritative singing and confident vocal arrangements. Miss Tzuke works well around the music her guitarist, Mike Paxman, has written for her. Her phrasing and layered vocals contrast with Paxman's conventional, but well instrumented arrangements.

The results are absorbing, often alarming in their proportions. "Stay With Me Till Dawn" is the kind of album which creeps up on a person. It's too offbeat for the Carly Simon crowd, not quite strange enough for the Kate Bush fans. It's distinction lies in the personality Miss Tzuke has imprinted into the album. Credit must go to producer John Punter, whose experience with other unordinary acts such as Roxy Music has given him the perception and foresight to delve adequately into the character of the

"Stay With Me Till Dawn" makes such a revealing imprint upon one's mind because of the clarity of Miss Tzuke's songwriting and Punter's ability to keep that clarity intact. Songs like "Sukarita" and "For You" succeed primarily because of the conviction Miss Tzuke has injected into them, but empathetic arrangements, especially the vocal ones, add diversity and intelligence to these pieces.

Miss Tzukes often airy vocals comes across clearly, almost hauntingly throughout the album. Album opener "Welcome to the Cruise" signals a benevolent warning to the listener that he or she is in for something a little different. The vulnerable person made apparent through the contents of the album keeps the listener surprisingly off base because, when one just listens to the album without isolating the lyrics, Miss Tzuke radiates an almost demented tone, resulting perhaps from the fragility inherent

Whatever the impression Miss Tzuke leaves, the single most important footnote of her music is the quality core upon which it is built. Miss Tzuke obviously pays a great deal of attention to her product, desiring positive results more through a well-balanced work then through a commercially shimmering slice of junk.

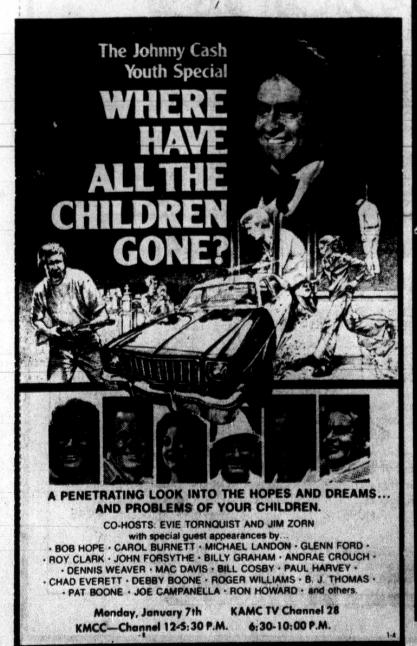

"Stay With Me Till Dawn" may or may not be the whopping success Rocket Records' executives are planning. That doesn't really matter here. What is significant is the fact that Rocket is responsible for introducing a talent the likes of Miss Tzuke to American audiences (she is from England). If Rocket wants to bank on further wise choices like that, perhaps the path to successful sales will not be far behind.

Activity has been steady at Rox, the city's main supplier of live rock 'n' roll. Singer Pat Benatar will perform there Jan. 20, hot on the heels of her Mike Chapman-produced hit single "Heartbreaker." Rumor has it that Miss Benatar's Chrysalis parent company is trying to fashion her success in the image of Blondie's.

Perennial teen hard rock idol Rick Derringer, perennial because he can't seem to expand his audience, will appear at Rox Jan. 29. That show promises to pack the place as Derringer is still popular with hard rock audiences despite his lack of a hit single in more than four years.

garded as out of date before she was 20. Miss Sweet's first album is "Fool Around," on Stiff-Columbia. The single from it is "I Go To Pieces."

But it isn't Miss Sweet's debut in show business. She had that, at 5, when her journalist grandfather urged her to enter the talent contest at the Akron Beacon Journal's annual picnic. She did and won. In the next couple of years, she went from amateur-talent TV shows to summer theater productions to making commercials.

'I'm the baby of the family and the show-off of the family," Miss Sweet says. "I used to entertain all the relatives, doing imitations. And I used to run around the house and mimic everybody who sold soap flakes on TV.

'My mother realized Id actually have to pursue it if I wanted to be successful as an entertainer, and I'd have to start at an early age.

"My mother had all the Elvis Presley records and he was my biggest early influence. I had an aunt 10 years younger than mother who introduced me to Janis Joplin records. Barbra Streisand right now is my favorite singer. I've seen 'Funny Girl' nine times. So far. And Bruce Springsteen is my idol right now."

Taking her memory back again to age Miss Sweet recalls:

"My parents brought me to the Big Apple and signed me with a child manager and four agents - who got different accounts - and I went on commercial calls for four years. They thought I could do commercials as well as the people who were doing them.

"I used to come to New York twice a month. I'd fly in with my Dad at 8 in the morning and then stick in as many commercial calls as were out for 7-year-old girls with brown hair and smart mouths. I'd miss two days of school a month and it didn't take too much out of me.'

That ended at 10, when Miss Sweet went from private school to a public junior high which thought she should be there every day. So she decided to be a recording star.

"I got interested in a field that would accept me. Country. Tanya Tucker was doing it. I didn't see any rock 'n' roll that were 12 or 13.

She went to Nashville and cut some demonstration records and tried to get

I did country fairs about three years with moderate success and I was locally known, but never on the level of Tanva. I thought, 'Is it never going to happen?

Miss Sweet decided she might as well aim toward becoming a lawyer, started studying hard in school and joined school clubs and activities.

Then, Liam Sternberg, whose father is a lawyer and friend of Rachel Sweet's father, asked her to sing on some demo records of songs he'd written and wanted to send to Stiff Records in England.

'Liam was intent on selling his 'Akron compilation.' He sold the idea to Stiff and he sold them the demo tapes. Stiff put out an album with a lot of Akron musical artists on it.

"The next thing I knew I was getting reviews for an album I didn't know I

Then Miss Sweet and her sister, a vear older, went to London last fall and she cut the album which Columbia Records later bought and has released. It has songs by Liam Sternberg and three from the 1960s, "I Go To Pieces," a Peter and Gordon song, "B-A-B-Y," a Car-la Thomas song, and "Stay Awhile," a Dusty Springfield song

'You get into a lot of trouble covering '60s songs," Miss Sweet says. "The press says that is all you do, cover old songs. Five years from now I'll only be 21. I can't cover old songs all my life. On the next album, there won't be any at

Most of the Stiff artists were punk rock. "I wasn't," Miss Sweet says. "I figured it is going to fade out in two years and I'll be 18 and have nothing else to do, so I didn't want the label of punk. Also, punk is not suited to a singer; it's more for a shouter. I was always a melody singer.

Miss Sweet's next album, she says, will be basic rock 'n' roll. "There'll be, a few songs of my own. I've already written the next album's ballad. It's more or less in the vein of 'Who Does Lisa Like?'. She likes the most popular boy at Firestone High not sure if it's him or not. The songs will be a bit younger oriented, toward a sort of young public, people I can identify with

She doesn't know whether Liam Sternberg, whose father is now her lawyer, will have time to produce this one, since he's working with Jane Ayre now. "I'd like to work with him again. We argue a lot but have a good time. I'm more of a personality person. If a producer can have fun, okay, but if he's just humorless and down to business, I'm not going to be at my best."

The day she was interviewed, Miss Sweet met with movie producer Robert Stigwood. "No matter how many records I sold, movies would be exciting," she says. "Rock 'n' roll is more earthy.

"That would be glamorous."

But I also know a tremendous number of other people were involved. But if I've been able to do anything. I hope it is to show what can be accomplished when everyone in the arts work together. Lubbock certainly will not go down the tubes when I leave; Lubbock will continue to grow. It's easy for people to give up, but they are too strong-willed here. They'll rise to meet the challenge, which is to continue working to see the com-

NO LIMITS FOR BURNETT

"It's a mistake to limit yourself to one medium," Carol Burnett recently told Kay Gardella of the Daily News. "I always thought those star holdouts who would never stoop to doing television were stupid. Playing second fiddle to a fish or special effect was better, I guess. But not for me. I used to work in television most of the year and use my layoff period to make films and do stage work. Now I spend most of my time in films and on the stage and will do television in my off time. It's the flip side of the coin." Carol's most recent films include two features for Robert Altman: "A Wedding" and the December release

The religious art field is probably the least exploited of any in the fine arts. If related subjects were romanticised as much as the American West has been every religion would have a profusion of good and bad art much the same as the field of cowboy and Indian themes. However, historically, painters of ecclesistical topics have received nominal compensation compared to western and por-

Recently I visited with a hobby painter whose purpose was to share a talent, educate listeners, and who expected no reward. The fervent amateur had projected portions of Christmas cards onto fabric, traced around the figures, then painted landscapes around them. The finished pieces formed a series of paintings that told the Christian story, and were presented with a narration suited for any age group.

Another painter had a gift of drawing mental pictures as he listened to weekly inspirations. After studying one taped message, he developed a group of black and white paintings that were eventually published as an illustratead spiritual story for adults. A new outlet was opened for the motivated painter who now has several publications to this credit.

Guitarist Signed For Film Score

NEW YORK (Special) — Ry Cooder, famed guitarist and musicologist, has been signed by producer Tim Zinnemann to create an original musical score for the Huka film production of "The Long Riders." now being directed by Walter Hill for release by United Artists:

Cooder, acclaimed as the best bottleneck guitar player alive today, has recorded eight record albums for Warner Bros. records. His current release, "Bop Till You Drop," was produced using a revolutionary digital recording process claimed by sound experts to be the biggest advancement in recording technology in the past 30 years. Cooder plans to utilize the same process for his film scoring.

In addition to his composing chores for "The Long Riders," Cooder will journey to the Georgia of the film to portray a bawdy-house guitarist in the high-action film about the James-Younger band of outlaws set in the post-Civil War era. "The Long Riders" features an unusual starring cast consisting of four sets of famous Hollywood actor brothers: David, Keith and Robert Carradine star as Cole, Jim and Bob, the Younger Brothers. James and Stacy Keach portray Jesse and Frank James, Randy and Dennis Quaid play Clell and Ed Miller and Nicholas and Christopher Guest portray Bob and Charlie Ford.

The screenplay is by James Keach. William Bryden and Steven Smith and is based on an original script by James Keach. Stacy and James Keach are executive producers.

Spielberg Signed For 'The Hunter'

NEW YORK (Special) - David Spielberg, a stage, television and film actor, has been signed for the key role of Sgt. Werblow, a Los Angeles police officer, in "The Hunter," the action drama starring Steve McQueen. The film is a Rastar/Mort Engelberg Production for Paramount Pictures release, produced by Engelberg and directed by Buzz Ku-

Distributors Get Big Jury Award

NEW YORK (Special) — A jury in Federal District Court in Norfolk, Va., has awarded nine motion picture distributors a total of $290,597 spread among seven corporations, owned by Earnest H. Price, which operate eight drive-in theatgres in the Norfolk area. The awards were based upon under-reporting of gross admission receipts to the distrib-

The jury found that the undef-reporting was "done fraudulently and wantonly, maliciously or with reckless disregard for the rights of the plaintiffs" and awarded the distributors $170,001 as punitive damages, the first time punitive damages have been awarded in litigation alleging under-reporting. The jury also awarded damages of $120,596 for breach of contract.

The nine distributors are American International Pictures, Avco Embassy, Buena Vista, Columbia Pictures, Paramount Pictures, Twentieth Century-Fox, United Artists, Universal and Warner

Judge J.C. Clarke, Jr. presided over the trial, which was held from Oct. 2-17. More than 50 witnesses for both sides, including current and former managers and cashiers of Price theatres, testified. THe distributors showed, through an analysis of "blind" and "open" checks of the drive-in theatres and other evidence, that the grosses reported were less than those actually received.

The Shirts signed a record contract in October 1977 and cut their first album, "The Shirts," the following March in London. Miss Golden rode the Concorde three times between continents, because 'Hair' was still filming.

The second album, "Street Light Shine," on Capitol, was cut in New York and came out in August this year. It was No. 166 on the best-selling album charts at the beginning of October.

"We're pop stars in Holland and no-body knows us here," Miss Golden says. Tell Me Your Plans,' off the first alburn, was in the top 10 in Holland and the album shot up to the top 20. "In Holland they like pleasant, happy music. At the height of the punk rock scene in Europe, here comes this ovely litle ballad about indecisions and making choices in your future. They really liked

"The record company told us to go there on a promotion trip and when Holland got to know the Shirts, they loved us even more. They heard the way we work is like a family and we'd been together seven years. That endeared us to them right away.
"It was nice because we were taking lot of hard knocks for not being where it was musically, from other people. A Dutch magazine voted us the most promising group of 1978.

'We're well known in England, too. We played everywhere, even though we weren't part of the scene that was happening there. We have a bit of a cult following in England. People looking for pleasant, melodic music during the negative movement hung on to us."

There is some prejudice against Brooklyn-born Italians in England, Miss Golden says, though she has no idea why. The other members of the Shirts are Ronald Ardito, John Criscione, Arthur LaMonica, John Piccolo and Robert Racioppo and all six were born in

The other five sound like Brooklyn natives but Miss Golden says she picks up the accent she is around. "I'd talk to the audience and they'd like the fact I'd picked up little inflections of Manchester or Liverpool or wherever we were."

She also discovered she picks up languages easily. Milos took me on a promotion tour of 'Hair' to Rome and I picked up Italian easily both the accent and understanding," she says. "In Cannes, I picked up French. He took us to Sweden, where my grandfather is from, and I seemed to pick that language up, too. I should sit down and concentrate on it.

"A Jewish immigration officer couldn't understand his Gaelic and gave him his own name, Golden, written on a slip of

'My grandmother's maiden name was Anna Lavin and I have her whole married name. She was called Annie, too. They came from County Mayo.'

Nobody knows what their name was in Ireland, Miss Golden says, "Nobody really bothered about it. They wanted to be accepted and be American so badly they didn't hold on to old ways."

The Shirts started in 1972, when La-Monica heard her singing along with a

In February, country music singer Porter Wagoner slapped a $3 million breach of contract suit on Dolly Parton, who sang love duets with him until their breakup in 1974. They agreed to an outof-court settlement in November by dividing the businesses they had jointly run Wagoner, meanwhile, abandoned his blond pompadour for a mini-Afro hairstyle. He said the curly top made him look younger and saved time. But rhinestones, his trademark, remained in place.

State Officials Given Discharge

AUSTIN (AP) - Deputy state health commissioner Al Joe Hunt and personnel director Frank Heijl have been discharged, Dr. Robert Bernstein, acting state commissioner, said.

Bernstein said Arthur Turner, former legislative aide to Rep. Wilhemina Delco. D-Austin, has been named director of the department's general services division.

Turner played a key role in the health department investigation that led to the demotion of Bill Stubblefield, former head of the general services division.

Stubblefield, accused of sexually-harassing a female employee, was transferred to another division with a $500-amonth cut in pay.

Bernstein had informed Hunt and Hejl by letter on Dec. 18 of charges against them. Hejl refused to comment on the letter, but Hunt said eight charges were made against him including allegations he improperly released personnel files to news reporters, secretly taped staff meetings and ordered employees to document improprieties of other employees during office hours.

Hunt said he would appeal his dis-

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special) - The high monthly payments American families face as they decide whether they can afford to buy a new house are largely due to higher house prices, not higher mortgage interest rates, according to Dr. James W Christian, chief economist for the National Savings

Writing in a recent issue of the National League Journal, Christian estimates that as of October. about 75 percent of the rise in monthly house payments could be attributed to higher house prices while about 25 percent of the increase resulted from

The significant increases in mortgage interest rates during 1979 have attracted wide attention and caused concern that large numbers of prospective homebuyers are being priced out of the market. said Christian

This concern is real, but the emphasis on mortgage rates is misplaced.

Christian explained that the median price of a new home has more than tripled since 1970-from $23,400 to $78,800 in October, 1979. On the other hand, he said, mortgage interest rates have risen by slightly over 50 percent since 1970-from 8.45 percent to about 13 percent currently.

The rapid rise in the price of a new home has far outstripped the modest increase in median family income, Christian said, making it even more difficult for families to afford a home

While the median home price has increased by more than $50,000 since 1970, median family income has increased by less than $10,000 (from $9.867 to approximately $19,000), he said.

Projecting the trends of the 1970s into the 1980s makes it clear that fundamental changes in the housing market will have to be made to satisfy a substantial portion of potential housing demand, said Christian

'At current trends, the median price of a new home would be almost $160,000 by 1985, but median family income would have reached only about $30.

Christian also predicted that during the first half of the 1980s, homebuyers should expect no major cost-reducing technology advances in the construction industry. In addition, land prices, building materials and labor costs are not expected to decline.

"Increasingly, new housing construction will have to feature higher density developments with less floor space and less finished space per unit, a resurgence of new condominium construction and a higher proportion of 'manufactured' units than has prevailed in recent years," he said.

As the housing market recovers in late 1980 or early 1981, he said, "market forces will compel both builders and buyers to move in the direction of lower-cost housing. There is really no other way to go.

CB Phone Service 'In Future'?

Picture this: You're stuck in traffic, 15 miles from home and too far to call your wife direct on the CB to let her know you'll be late for Johnny's PTA

So what do you do? You pick up your CB microphone and make a telephone call home.

That's a distinct possibility now being considered by the FCC as it agonizes over whether to create a new FM CB service at the 900-MHz UHF part of the radio spectrum.

Such telephone-to-radio interconnects, called autopatches, are routine on the amateur radio bands. If the 900-MHz service goes through for CB, they may also become common there.

Such a CB service, says the FCC, could use a small pushbutton keyboard attached to the CB microphone. CB base stations equipped with special decoders would translate the high-pitched tones that come from the keyboard into telephone digits

The FCC calls this potential CB service the Public Switched Telephone Network. The ability to contact anyone with a telephone would greatly expand the utility of the new service, concedes FCC Secretary William Tricarico.

No such operations are authorized on the present 40-channel band at 27 MHz because of the widespread channel congestion and limited range of CB base

President, U.S. Chamber Of Commerce WASHINGTON - The Wall Street Journal recently described a letter one of its reporters had received from a Michigan lawyer relating his experience with an existing federal energy program. It seems the individual wanted to know if his client could obtain a grant from a $10million fund operated by ERDA, the Energy Research and Development Admin-

Sorry, replied ERDA, only $1 million was left; the other $9 million had been used up for "administrative expenses." Of course that was only one tiny program. Just imagine how much more "administration" we can buy if Congress passes the Administration's proposals for more than $200 billion in new energy taxes.

American family will reach $18,467 in 1979, up 66 percent from 1972. That seemed like good news, until I heard the

During the same period, prices rose more rapidly - up 75 percent, but taxes really went through the roof. Federal income taxes rose 82 percent, Social Security taxes 142 percent, while state and local taxes climbed fastest of all. They are now four times as high as a decade ago.

Perhaps that explains why there are now 78.9 million persons working in the private economy, but 81.6 receiving government payments of one kind or another. If we want to be taxed less, we've got to stop asking for more.

Did you know the treasury Department makes double payments on more than 100,000 checks a year, and generally

neously paid out during the last three years alone

The typical case: An intended recipient notifies the Treasury his or her check never arrived, or was lost. If the department can verify the check has not been cashed, it sends out a second check. But then it does not stop payment on the original check which it claims it cannot legally do. The result is both checks get cashed, often by deliberate fraud. Wouldn't it be nice if you could write as many checks as you wanted. . . without ever having to worry about having enough money to back them up?

Take energy conservation. Since 1972, business and industry have voluntarily reduced their energy consumption by 16.8 percent. But the federal government, the nation's largest single energy consumer, has failed to curb its own energy use. And guess who has the worst record of all? A House Government Operations Committee report recently blasted the Energy Department for its 'abysmal record department ranks second in energy consumption, 12th in energy conservation.

That's what the Department of Health, Education and Welfare calls one of its favorite activities - spending your tax dollars so its paper pushers can dream-up terms like "dairy products deliverer" as a substitute for that old sexist bugaboo - milkman.

S.S. Field Representative

LEGISLATION HAS BEEN passed to set up a program of special energy allowance (SEA) payments for low income families for fiscal year 1980. (October . 1979 through September 30, 1980.) The purpose of these SEA payments is to help ease the burden of rising fuel costs for low income households. A single payment amount will be the same no matter where you live within a state, but will vary from state to state. People living in colder states with long winters will generally receive a larger payment. Payment amounts are based on available funds, the number of low income persons in a State, the number of degrees days that the average temperatures in a State fall below 65 degrees fahrenheit, and the increase in home heating cost between 1978 and 1979.

The first checks paid by the Social Security Administration (SSA) to people getting SSI checks is scheduled for January 7, 1980. Payment will be made to people who later establish eligibility for an SSI check for the month of December 1979, but no later than March 31, 1980. In no instance will any payment be

There is no application to file to establish eligibility for SEA payments. IN TEXAS THE ELIGIBILITY requirements for SEA payments administered by Social Security are that an individual:

gets an SSI check as an eligible or eligible spouse; and 2. receives an SSI check FOR THE MONTH OF DECEMBER 1979 no later than March 31, 1980; and 3. does not receive such payment for December 1979 because of being in a hospital or other medical institution where Medicaid pays more than one-half

Each person who meets these requirements should receive a separate SEA Payment whether the person is an eligible individual or an eligible spouse: all SSI recipients will be paid SEA payments as individuals.

Individuals who do not meet the above requirements or are in need of additional assistance due to fuel costs may be eligible for assistance under the 1980 Energy Crisis Assistance Program or other programs funded or administered by the Community Service Administration (CSA) or State Welfare agencies. Eligibility requirements can vary from State-to-State. Funds up to $400 are available under the 1980 Energy Crisis Assistance Program for the payment of utility/fuel costs including the following:

1. direct payment of utility companies or fuel vendors.

2. short term assistance in the form of emergency fuel supplies, warm clothing blankets, temporary shelter, nutrution, health and other supportive services, and emergency repairs to housing; and 3. direct cash assistance not to exceed $50 total per household

The SEA payment for those living in Texas will be $45. Those living in New Mexico will receive $76.

If you have any questions about these programs, you may contact social security or your local Community Action or Community Service Administration.

CB Static: Readers Air Gripes

Dear Mike: For the life of me, I just can't figure out why the FCC is twiddling its bureaucratic thumbs on the issue of CB channel expansion and UHF privileges. The FCC says it wants to serve the public interest. Yet it refuses to do anything about the overcrowded, ineffectual mess that passes for communications on the present 40 channels. The public needs and wants better.—M. T., Boston,

Dear Radio Static: I'm an SWL (short wave listener) who has been tuning into the amateur radio bands for many years now. My conclusion after all this listening is that a lot of hams are pretty little people who think that they are better than everyone else. They are arrogant to the point of almost being fascist. They forget that they are amateurs, not professionals. I realize these are harsh words, but I,ve heard too much over the years .-R. T., Seattle, Wash.

traffic to the detriment of regular two-way communications," Tricarico remarks, it would seem desirable to specify a time limit.

He suggests a three-minute limit and cautions that many controversial questions must be answered before telephone autopatches would be allowed.

Still, while the FCC must first create a UHF service, the likelihood is promising that telephone-radio contacts via CB may one day be reality.

Q. A group of us who have been active CBers for about a year now would like to take our hobby one step further and get involved in public health and welfare activities. How do we do this?-R. B. Oceanside, Calif.

A. I suggest you first determine the need. Is there already such a group of CBers active in your area? If so, would your group simply be duplicating those services? In such a case, it would clearly be best to join forces with the existing group. If not, I suggest you contact RE-ACT International, the independent, non-profit public service organization that provides emergency communications to local communities. There are hundreds of REACT teams around the country. Write REACT headquarters at 75 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Homeowners Ignore Name Brand Smoke Alarms

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although homeowners are purchasing smoke alarms in substantial numbers, they are paying small attention to brand names, according to a recent survey by an advertising company (Foote, Cone & Belding).

The survey showed that ownership of alarms has grown from 11 percent in May 1976 to approximately 40 percent. However, two in three consumers who were asked to name a preference in brands could not even recall the name of any brand. Only one in 11 could identify a brand which hs a built-in light.

City Voters Face Crucial Test

WITHIN TWO weeks, Lubbock residents will make one of the most important decisions affecting the future of their city they will have faced in several years.

The issue at hand is a double-edged vote on: 1. Approval or disapproval of collective bargaining for the Lubbock Firefighters Assn.: and 2. A mandatory pay raise for firemen of 15 percent, or 8 percent above the boost already granted all city workers by the

It is imperative that Lubbock citizens understand what is involved in the two proposals, the effects each will have if okayed, and what has happened in other cities where collective bargaining has been passed

IN THE FIRST place, it should be understood that the Lubbock Firefighters Assn. is a local chapter of the Professional Firefighters Association, International Association of Firefighters (AFL-CIO).

As such, it is a union. But, under Texas law, it does not have collective bargaining powers, unless so voted by the electorate in a local option election.

Given collective bargaining rights, the Lubbock Firefighters would immediately gain the status of an official union body acting in unison and with various federal and state regulations providing for negotiations on everything from wages to fringe benefits to working conditions.

A more complete analysis of just how this works and what it means may be found on the Spectrum Page opposite this page.

THE OTHER ISSUE to face voters on Saturday, Jan. 19, involves the firemen's request for an additional pay boost of 8 per cent, over and above that already granted to all city workers, including the firemen.

City officials have warned that should the pay boost be approved, the two most viable means of raising the money for the remainder of this fiscal year would be a $1 a month increase in the city's garbage fee, starting in April, or drastic shifting of funds within the overall budget.

Should the 8 percent pay raise be granted all city workers at the same time, then the tab for the City for this year alone would top the $1 million mark, and the problem of where to find the money would be compounded. Projected into next year's budget. such a pay boost would put extra pressure on City officials and might even entail raising city taxes, which were cut only a year ago.

As in the case of collective bargaining, a more detailed study of the pay raise issue may be found on the opposite page.

In earlier comments on the Lubbock Firefighters' request, we made the point that community.

overall Lubbock has one of the best Fire Departments in the Southwest.

Its record has been commendable. And our opposition to both the collective bargaining and pay raise proposals is not personal. Many of the local firefighters are Lubbock residents, although a sizeable number live outside the city limits.

WE QUESTION that all the firemen realize what they may be buying, especially on the collective bargaining issue. Local officers and spokesmen for the Lubbock Firefighters Assn. make a big point of the fact that "we would never go out on strike, and besides a strike by public workers is illegal in Texas.

The latter is true. But, as we have just witnessed, there are ways of getting around the term "strike" or "walkout.

In Kansas City, firemen there have just returned to work after a 10-day "sickout," during which the city was left, as far as the firemen were concerned, without fire protection, over a wage and work conditions dispute with City officials.

National Guardsmen and Kansas City police had to man the city's 31 fire stations. The Kansas City firemen belong to the same organization which would like to see collective bargaining voted in for Lubbock's firemen. And for those with short memories, Memphis, Tenn., the past summer went through weeks of turmoil and violence during a firemen's walkout

THE FACT IS that Lubbock, with one of the lowest jobless rates in the nation, and one of the best employment records, has too much going for it to risk getting involved in such divisive activities.

No one disputes but that inflation is taking ever increasing bites out of everyone's lunch basket. But that applies to the average homeowner who must raise the taxes to pay the firemen as well as it does the firemen. And unlike most of those citizens, Lubbock's firemen have unusually good working conditions which permit a large number of them to hold other good-paying jobs.

If there have been breakdowns in communications between City Hall and the firemen, we are more than satisfied they can be rectified more easily in an atmosphere of citizento-citizen discussion than through union negotiation, arbitration and the ever-present danger of problems which other cities such as Kansas City, Mo., and Memphis, Tenn.,

In the final analysis, a vote Against both the collective bargaining and pay raise proposals is in the best interest of the entire

The only way you can get any respect is to pay the same price for oil as the major industrial deal-

We shouldn't put a cut-rate price on our friendship. If we charged you less than we did a Swede, you would think we were patronizing you.

The fact that we make everyone pay the same shows we respect you as much as we do a West German imperialist.

You are very kind to think of us as equals. But that doesn't seem to solve the problem of how we can pay for your oil. Perhaps since we are of the same world you could give me credit until I can get on my feet.

Slaton Man Says Life Under Communism 'Is Living Lie'

Editor. Avalanche-Journal:

In response to Mr. David Henton's letter of Sunday. Dec. 23. I want to ask this man if he has ever lived, or served, under Communism? I have been there and back.

May I suggest he get a passport to any Communst country, live and work there for just one year. I'm afraid he would wish he never were born.

There is no such thing as freedom, freedom to speak or much less write as one would feel. Communists do not allow it. At best Democracy and Communism can barely get along as it is. Eventually all Communism must be destroyed or much more likely be destroyed from within. Communism is a living lie. It lies to itself and its total population. Every time we buy from a foreign Communist country, it furthers the cause of Communism even more.

In any Communist country a human being is a nobody, a non-person, merely a number among the masses. Self-ambition is frowned on. You are told how and when to do, you have no choice in the matter. You are not allowed to own your own harp or any musical instrument. But only the necessities of life

If Mr. Henton thinks he has it so bad, he should try their way of life. There are millions behind the iron-fisted curtain who would give anything to be in our shoes today. Why do so many defect or try to defect each year? That alone ought to tell us something is gravely wrong.

I fought for my country for nearly five years with great honor. I am very proud of our country and I remain 100 percent patriotic to it. And if I have to do so I'll do it again willingly.

I had noticed the article which I liked very much a couple of weeks ago about the children going out to cut their Christmas tree which she wrote.

Frances Lowe is different than most newspaper writers. She should be given more spread. I'm certain more people over the U.S would like her style. She's most interestingly descriptive not only in words but feeling and emotion.

Area Reader Says Courts Helping Destroy Freedom

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: In a recent issue of a very established magazine

there was an article on freedom. This article spoke on the "freedom" our judicial system gives criminals. This made me think about the fact that the "freedom" our judicial system gives criminals is totally destroying the lawful citizen's freedom. People are afraid to go out at night, and with good reason; suspected criminals and proven criminals are allowed out on the street. In a specific instance, which might hit close to

Slaton Reader In Defense Of Tech Women's Coach

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

I am writing this letter in protest to the firing of Texas Tech women's basketball coach. Gay Benson. It is an outrage that she was fired at the beginning of a promising season, but more of an insult that no real reason has been given for her dismissal.

There were reports the move was made for the good of the team. The team claims there is no unrest among them and they function well as a team. Coach Benson was well on the way to producing a winning team, and if anyone can do it, she can. It takes years to build a winning team. I feel she was not given ample time to produce results.

Coach Benson has built a fine reputation for herself in the 17 years she lived in Slaton and coached girls basketball. She also has the reputation of being a good, moral person.

Sure, she's a tough coach, but the girls who stuck with her love her dearly and would walk through fire for her. The girls learn to be unselfish; to put hard work first, to respect their coach as well as the men who referee their games; to be good sports and best of all, to have a good, personal image of themselves. Their hard work was rewarded by always having a winning team.

For a coach to demand discipline and dedication of a person is not a violation of the person's rights, but a necessary ingredient for a winning team.

I hope that our great Texas Tech University will take a look at this situation and reverse the action it has taken in firing Coach Benson, and will take a closer look at the Women's Athletic Program as a whole.

And sweetheart loans they are, too. Would you' in these days of 13 or 14 percent interest rates, be heve nine percent?

For a house that costs up to $75,000?

Here's how it works:

A city council sets itself up in the mortgage business by issuing tax-exempt revenue bonds. These bonds carry a lower interest rate than others because the people who buy them don't have to pay income tax on the interest.

HOME BUYERS get in on the deal by arranging for a mortgage through a local savings and loan association, or any other lending agency that agrees to participate in the municipal program. The new civic corporation then "purchases" the reached through collective bargaining. Opponents to collective bargaining stated elected officials responsible for setting the tax rate should also be responsible for setting all salary schedules, not an arbitration board which is unfamiliar with the operation of the city. In September, 1975, Corsicana voters repealed collective bargaining 894 to 604.

In Bryan, collective bargaining was approved in April, 1975. Voters favored its repeal in August, 1976, by a margin of 1,918 to 1,522. The repeal movement was led by an organized citizens group which pointed out that recent firemen's contract demands called on the city to provide color televisions, and recreation equipment at the fire stations; that in the last five years less than 10 men had resigned-from the department, indicating that fire fighters working conditions without collective bargaining seemed satisfactory, and that while most workers are on the job 20 days and off 10 days during the month, firemen are off 20 days and on duty 10 days during the month.

In Kingsville, collective bargaining was approved in June, 1975 and was repealed in August, 1976, by a vote of 1,011 to 916. The repeal movement was pushed by local businessmen who objected to outside professional negotiators that were brought in to represent firemen at the bargaining table. Opponents noted firemen's demands for a 25 per cent pay raise and what they considered "excessive" fringe benefits.

Provisions Of Law

If a majority of persons voting on Jan. 19 favor granting firemen the right of collective bargaining, Lubbock would be required to provide firemen with compensation and other conditions of employment that are substantially the same which prevail in comparable private sector employment.

Therefore, compensation and other conditions of employment shall be based on prevailing private sector wages and working conditions in the Lubbock labor market in other jobs which require the same or similar skills, ability and training and which may be performed under the same or similar conditions

Effective Date

If collective bargaining is approved by a majority of those voting on Jan. 19, the city is required to put the state law into effect within 30 days after the beginning of the following fiscal year. This means the effective date for the act would be October, 1980. The first collective bargaining would likely come during the summer of 1981, and any costs would affect the 1981-82 city budget.

Who Is Covered

State law permits policemen and firefighters only to petition for an election on collective bargaining. In Lubbock's case, only firefighters are involved. By definition in the state law, all firefighters of all ranks with the exception of the chief of police will be covered by any future collective bargaining contract provisions.

Obligation To Bargain

The way the petition and the ballot are worded, any pay raise approved by voters would not exceed 15 per cent during the 1979-80 fiscal year. Since firefighters received a 7 per cent raise effective Oct 6, 1979, approval by voters would grant firefighters an additional 8 per cent raise retroactive to the beginning of the

Cost Analysis

An additional 8 per cent pay raise for firefighters would cost $284,960 for the 1979-80 fiscal year. Because the approved 1979-80 budget did not include funding for more than a 7 per cent across the board pay raise, approval of the additional 8 per cent for firefighters would require a decision on a source of financing the added raise.

Because the tax rate has been set for the 1979-80 fiscal year, this source of increased revenue is ruled out for this year. The most readily identifiable source of new revenues at this point in our fiscal year would be to increase the garbage service charge enough to reduce the tax subsidy of sanitation service by at least

If the City Council were to approve an increase in the garbage service charge to pay for the firefighters' raises, the higher charge could be implemented in the April, 1980, utility bills.

It is estimated that in order to raise $284,960 during the last six months of the fiscal year, a $1 increase in the monthly garbage service charge would be ade-

If the City Council were to reject increasing revenues to finance the firefighters' pay raise, a reduction in budgeted spending could be accomplished to free up funds to cover the higher salaries in the fire department.

If this were the choice of the City Council, it would take the staff about two weeks to study departmental budgets and complete a recommendation on which expenditures and which departments would be affected. Every effort would be made to avoid a reduction in personnel in any department.

If Raise Extended

Questions have already been raised about extending the additional pay raise

An additional 8 per cent pay raise for all permanent, fulltime city employes effective at the same time as the raise for firefighters would cost $1,040,000 this

The city's ability to increase revenues by this amount is severely limited once the tax rate has been set.

The ability to reduce general fund spending by more than a million dollars also is limited, unless personnel were to be eliminated from the budget.

Salaries Over State

The issue of fair compensation for hazardous duty has been raised. Therefore, a review of how firefighters' salaries in Lubbock compare with firefighters salaries in other cities is required.

Current 1979-80 salaries of the 17 largest cities in Texas were studied. Following are some highlights:

-Lubbock's entry level salary for firefighters is exceeded only by Houston, Dallas and two suburbs which must compete with Dallas for applicants. -Rookies who have completed probation have salaries which are exceed only by Houston and Dallas. -The starting salary for recruits in ubbock is $12,981 a year. The average in the 17 largest Texas cities is $11,868.

—The average minimum salary for firefighters completing the probationary period is $12,900 in the top 17 cities in Texas. The comparable salary in Lubbock is $14,689.

—The average maximum salary for firefighters in the top 17 cities is $15,252. The comparable base salary in Lubbock

-In Lubbock, the rank of driver re-ceives base pay of $16,204 for drivers with less than two years experience and Salary History $17,000 for drivers with more than two years experience. The average minimum

The issue of keeping firefighters current with the cost of living has been raised. A study of firefighters' salaries over the years indicates the base pay has increased faster than the cost of living-for every rank in the department. Because double-digit inflation first became a reality in 1974, the 1973-74 fiscal year was used as base year for comparison with today's firefighters' sala-

The purpose of the comparison is to show past and present base salaries only. It is not a comparison of salaries received by individuals, because promotions to higher ranks, receipt of longevity pay and receipt of education incentive pay are not considered in this comparison.

A copy of the salary comparison is shown below. It shows that the Consumer Price Index from July, 1974, to July, 1979, increased 64.9 per cent. The smallest increase in firefighters base pay be-tween fiscal 1973-74 and fiscal 1979-80 came in the entry level rank of probationary firefighters. That salary increased during this period from $7,728 to $12,981, or 67.9 per cent. The increases graduate upward because of various salary adjustments and reach a maximum for a veteran district chief where the base pay rose from $10,812 to $22,765, or 110.5

Again, this indicates that a person who was district chief in 1973, and is still cent more money, not including increases in longevity pay or possible education

PAY RAISE ANALYSIS

The table below shows that Lubbock firefighters' base pay has outpaced inflation. An experienced firefighter, for example, was paid $8,208 in 1973-74, gets $15,446 today, an increase of 88.2 percent. The Consumer Price Index during the same period has risen by 64.9 percent.

If the CPI rises 12 points during fiscal 1979-80, it would reflect a 74% increase since July 1973, and all firefighters except probationary personnel still will have exceeded the increase.

The annual salaries above reflect only the base pay. In addition, longevity pay, stability pay and, in some cases, edu-

Missionary Travels 80,000 Miles In Brazilian 'Campaign'

SAO PAULO, BRAZIL (Special) - Southern Baptist missionary Glendon D. Grober logged more than 80,000 miles in 1978 as he started promoting an evangelistic campaign as big as all Brazil.

In 1979 he quit keeping any kind of mileage record - the total was just getting too ridiculous, he

But the payoff for the country's second national evangelistic effort in 14 years will come in 1980. This is the year that Brazil's 450,000 Baptists have set aside for "doing the work of evangelism."

Throughout this sprawling giant of a country, as large as the United States if you exclude Alaska, church members are signing scrolls pledging to share their testimony and a tract daily with someone who needs to know Jesus.

The goal is for one-fourth of Brazil's Baptists to share the gospel with one-fourth of Brazil's 120 million people in this one year.

Planners of this "Good News Brazil" effort believe it can generate a life style of evangelism that will continue - and hopefully boost Brazilian Baptists to their goal of having 1 million church members by 1982, their centennial year.

Brazilians are hearing about the campaign in many ways. Pastor-evangelist Nilson Fanini, whose television programs reach millions on 74 stations throughout the country (and who was a speaker at the Baptist General Convention of Texas meeting in Lubbock in October), is using six 30-second promotion spots prepared with the aid of Alan Compton, Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board mass media representative for Latin America.

One shows John Leite, a leading Brazilian soccer player. He talks about the sport and then turns quickly to a testimony about his relationship to the Lord. It ends with the campaign slogan.

Grober and other campaign planners would like to put these on national television at prime time but at $15,000 a spot, this hasn't been possible with the funds available.

Grober is excited by the kind of response the campaign is generating. In Porto Alegre, one of Brazil's southernmost cities, the state convention executive went into a hardware store three times in one day because of some plumbing he was doing at home. On the third visit, realizing he hadn't given out his witnessing tract for the day, he decided to talk to the owner

As he started to share his witness, the man said, "Wait a minute. This morning a 10-year-old boy came into my store. He gave me as tract and he talked to me about Jesus like nobody ever talked to me before in my life. You tell me something more about it now.

It is this kind of witnessing, which thousands are pledging to do daily in 1980, that campaign planners about 450,000 members in its 2,800 churches, has a goal of having one million members and 6,000 churches by Oct. 15, 1982, the centennial of the founding of its first church.

As part of the overall thrust, major city evangelism campaigns are being planned in nine of Brazil's major cities in the next three years. These targets include Brazil's new industrial and business giant, Sao Paulo, with a population growing so fast that even the estimate of 10 million now in the city seems conservative.

Others are Rio de Janeiro, which has about eight million people, and key cities in other regions - Belo Horizonte, Curitiba, Reclife, Belem, Fortaleza,

"We could easily see more than 100,000 baptisms coming from these major city efforts alone," predicts Joseph B. Underwood, Foreign Mission Board consultant for evangelism and church development.

Texas Baptists are deeply involved in the campaign. Between 200 and 300 Texans participated in various evangelistic projects in 1979, Underwood said, and hundreds more are expected to take part Grober, who's worn out the tires on three cars, has been a ball of energy promoting the campaign. Said another missionary of Grober's efforts: "Without a doubt, he's the man God has raised up

Positive Thinking

By Norman Vincent Peale

AGAIN AND AGAIN YOU hear the phrase "I wish. . . " It is usually poignantly, pathetically said — tacitly admitting that a wish is a will-o-the-wisp and an unrealizable attainment. "I wish. . . " But it is a fact that, as force is the basis of physics, so the realizable wish is the basis of psychology and an intrinsic part of faith. There ought to be, and there is, a procedure by which we can build solid foundations under our wishes so that when a man says, "I wish.

he may release the necessary power to make a wish come true. The Bible says, "Unto Him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us." That is to say, God will give you exceeding abundantly more than you ask, more than you have ever thought. That is extremely generous, isn't it?

But there is a catch. You can obtain your wish only to the degree that the power of God works in you. Life will give you wonderful things if you are in contact with God's power.

How do we realize wishes?

First, check and analyze your wishes, because it is a subtle truth that sometimes the thing you think you wish is not your wish at all. But instead, there is a basic wish deep in your mind, something you would rather do than anything in this world, something you would rather be than anything else. People sublimate their basic wishes and are constantly striving for that which they do not really want at all. You must discover by analysis, by thought and prayer what is your real wish, your true heart's desire. The fact is you will never attain your objective unless you are working for that which you really deeply want

THEN YOUR WISH MUST BE a proper one. An improper wish can never bring you any good, only harm. Test your wish according to ethical principles; equate it with the will of God and it can bring you magnificent results

Some years ago a young man, executive vice-president of his firm, came to see me about a business matter. He said it was his wish to build his business to be the greatest in its field. "But I've a man in the organization who stands in my way. He has known me since I was a child. My father put him in the firm. But this old gentleman doesn't treat me with proper respect. He tells everybody I'm just a kid, that I don't know anything, that I should be in the nursery. I've decided to fire him.'

'How long has he been with you?

"About 40 years. He's 62 years old." "Of course you're planning to give him a nice pension?"

"Why should I? He's always had a big salary. We have no pension plan that covers him. If he hasn't saved, it's his hard luck, not mine.

"How old are you?" I asked.

"Twenty-two. "If you are so determined to fire this man, why do you come to me?" "I thought you'd tell me it was all right. It would ease my conscious."

I DECIDED TO PUT THIS problem on a spiritual level, so suggested, "What do you say we pray about it, now? We'll ask the Lord if this is a proper decision. Then you go about your business and I will pray about it several times between now and tomorrow afternoon. Then come back and we'll check and see how we came out with our respective prayers." And I added, "Really work at this problem spiritually and you'll get the right answer

When we met he immediately said, "Well, you were right. It wouldn't be right to fire him. But I will firmly tell him I have to be head of the business, and since he is an old family friend, he and I will work it out together. He's a smart man and knows the business better than I. He might keep me from making bad mistakes. It is curious, but that's what came up in my prayers.

'That is what came in mine too," I answered I later learned from another source that this man's business has had an astonishing development under the combined management of the young man and the older man. His improper wish, if persisted in, might have destroyed him. But he contacted the creative power working in him and made a right decision.

And that enabled him to keep the flow of creative power open within him. Finally, there is another important factor: visualize your wish. By that I mean hold it as a picture in your mind. Practice seeing it as already accomplished. See it form and structure as already built.

So the formula for wish realizing is simply this: (1) Know your basic wish. Be sure of what you really want — don't decieve yourself. (2) Be sure it is a pro-

(3) Hold it in your mind and heart as accomplished. Visualize your wish. (4) Spiritually work at the solution of any problems

Area Leaders 'Look Into Future'

A-J Religion Writer

Several area religious leaders commenting on the future of churches in the new decade cited the influence of such factors as the energy crisis, inflation, and population growth in the Sunbelt as affecting their predictions.

In taking a look into the years ahead, the leaders were asked to comment on what they see upcoming for their church or denomination and then, also, to take a specific look at the shape of ministry in West Texas in the 1980's.

Responding to the A-J's questions were the following Lubbock and area religious leaders: The Rt. Rev. Willis R. Henton, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas; Monseignor L.T. Matthiessen, interim administrator of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Amarillo which includes Lubbock; the Rev. Dr. Paul D. Young, general presbyter of Palo Duro Union Presbytery, a judicatory of both the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. and of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.; the Rev. Doyle Holmes, director of missions for the Lubbock Baptist Association; the Rev. Herb Miller, area minister for the Hi Plains Area of the Disciples of Christ (Christian) Church; the Rev. Marvin James of the Council of Ministries of the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church; and the Rev. J.T. Farmer, district superintendent of the Assemblies of God for the West Texas area.

Question: What do you see as the greatest challenge to the churches in the 1980's and what are the major issues do you see facing the church in this-new decade?

HENTON: I see the energy crisis forcing us to return to 'the village idea' and congregational life more like that in the pre-industrial era. The church has the opportunity to become a real community. There will be great emphasis on family life. Also, the church is challenged to be better stewards of God's resources. At Lambeth (the meeting of Episcopal and Anglican leaders Henton attended in the summer of 1978 in London) I got a sense of the worldwide church and of greater brotherhood and an appreciation of the church in the Third World nations. The church in the Third World will rise in importance in the next two decades.

MATTHIESSEN: We need to recapture a viable value system. The 1980's will be a decade with emphasis on the family with an inclusion of the larger

Rev. Allen Denies Making Iran Trip To 'Negotiate'

DALLAS (Special) - The Rev. Jimmy R. Allen, pastor of First Baptist Church of San Antonio and recently elected president of the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission, said his visit to Iran was not as a "negotiator" nor was it paid for by offical Baptist funds. "We hope to open new communications with the religious leaders. . . to find a common ground for continuing communications to deal with the crisis of confrontation," the pastor told "Baptist Standard" editor, Presnall H. Wood in a telephone in

The "Baptist Standard" also said that Allen reported that the group which included five other ministers and religion scholars "went to Iran with no agenda" but they were pleased by their Christmas Day visit with the Avatollah Khomeini because "it had opened doors for other discussions.

Allen told the Dallas editor: "The people are eager to talk. . . They are open, engaging, challenging us in our positions. . . This is a religious revolution and they are eager to talk ideals.

The trip to Iran by the religious leaders grew out of prayer meeting held at the Statue of Liberty on Dec. 13. Allen said that after that meeting, chaplains at Princeton University received a "signal" from Iranian religious leaders that they would welcome such a fact-finding visit by American clergy.

Others in Allen's group included the Rev. William Kirby, Methodist-Presbyterian chaplain at Princeton; the Rev. John Walsh, Baptist chaplain at Princeton; the Rev. Charles Cesaretti, assistant to the head bishop of the Episcopal Church in the U.S.; United Methodist Bishop Clifford White of New Jersev: Charles Kimball, specialist in Islamic studies at Harvard University; and Thomas Ricks, a specialist in Iranian affairs at Georgetown University family and there will be a stress on ministering to hurting families. There will be a stress on preparation for committment to families with counseling and instruction in the church. Within our church there will be a renewed feeling of Christian community which in some cases will be sustained by the laity in the absence of a priest because I see the shortage of clergy continuing . This is a real challenge to the Christian community.

YOUNG: The 1980's will see the church facing the question of how to continue to be the church in an inflationary economy and an energy shortage. The question comes down to how to do what you need to do for effective mission and ministry with so much less in terms of the buying powers of dollars the

HOLMES: One implication of the energy shortage might be that people attend church nearer their homes. The church is called to minister to individual spiritual needs and to express a concern for searching out needs of people where they hurt. The church will place more importance on keeping the family together and on helping individuals in stress from these problems. The church will have a strong emphasis on evangelism and on Sunday School study which may be innovative but must also remain basic.

MILLER: The cities will continue to be a challenge to the churches. Maybe not cities the size of Lubbock so much as urban areas like Houston and Dallas, but the rootlessness and the highly mobile society affect all bigger areas. I think the church will focus in its preaching and teaching more on Christology, Because the age level of persons attending Bible classes will go up, a conservative trend will develop. The church also will continue to have to face the problems of world hunger. Each generation shifts emphaisis and in the trend toward deeper spirituality, the church will continue to struggle to keep a balance between social conerns and spirituality, but spiritual life will have increased at-

JAMES: Because of the gas shortage, I anticipate increased attendance at worship and other activities of the local congregation. Church and family camping at nearby places will grow in popularity. We are looking ahead to greater use of television in outreach by the church and especially by use of cable t.v. Our church may see the election of one or more women as bishops.

FARMER: The 1980's will be another decade of real growth which may even escalate from its present high rate in our churches. Many new churches are projected Question: What do you see as the particular challenges to the churches in this West Texas region?

HENTON: This region will enjoy more prosperity than any other section and so we must act responsibly and have a concern for our resources. We must be responsible, for example, about the ecology of our beaches. Texas churches must make an effort to make the Spanish-speaking people a real part of our church life because there will be a tremendous increase in the number of Spanish-speaking people coming into the region.

MATTHIESSEN: Our diocese recently took a census and it showed that 75 percent of Roman Catholics in this region are Mexican-American. Our church must give them a greater voice and educate them in the ways to be leaders in YOUNG: The migration of large numbers of Spanish-speaking people to this region will challenge the church to develop a diversification of its ministry. A question this raises is will migration of industry continue in this region. Refugees also have been attracted to the Sunbelt. Our General Assemblies have just begun to look at the issues this migration raises. HOLMES: The many new people coming to this region give the churches a challenge to reach out. Because of the increase in Spanish language groups, the church will need to find new ways of reaching these people and of developing MILLER: Interpersonal relations are so important. I think we will see an increase in people thinking they are not in control of what happens and they will feel they have lots to get mad at. The church has to think about how it will deal with these psychological situations

JAMES: The population growth of this region has already led us to starting more churches in the city centers. I see the church here facing the problems and the needs of families with working mothers and especially the need for more child care centers. We have a few inter-ethnic parishes which include the growing number of Spanish-speaking members, but most attend a church where their own language is spoken and are part of the Rio Grande Conference.

FARMER: The growth period and urbanization are the major challenges facing our churches.

With these challenges identified by these area religious leaders, churchmen will now be interesting to see the churhes go forward into the new decade and work out ways of dealing with these issues and problems and to rise to the challenge of new issues at present unforeseen.

Short-Term Agricultural Projects Rapped

Short-term agricultural projects supported by churches and other "do-gooder" organizations often do great harm, acording to a county extension agent who addressed the United Methodist Task Force on Farm Issues meeting here last

Jun Saiz of the Bernalilo County Extension Service told the Wømen's Division task force that agricultural problems related to marketing, credit, land titles by a single program. Church and do-gooder groups that pay ttention to an area for only a short time and then pull out leave minority people confused and disillusioned," said Saiz.

His suggestion to the nine-member task force was that projects should be submitted to experts such as the county extension agent and others affiliated with the land grant colleges. They could advise on their feasibility and give technical assistance, he said.

Meeting in the Southwest to hear the problems of Native American and Hispanic family farmers, the task force learned from Saiz that water is as valuable is minerals in this area. Poor farmers have been induced to sell their underground rights without realizing they are doing so, he noted.

Mildred Paulson, coordinator of the Minnesota United Methodist Women's Task Force, contrasted the high prices paid for food by consumers and the low prices paid to the producer. Her conclusion was that the high cost of processing and packaging is responsible for boosting

Atter hearing Mrs. Paulson, the task force voted to make consumer education its priority in 1980. A consultation on women as consumers, scheduled for Nov. 6-8, 1980, will have one-half rural women and one-half urban women as participants, with each annual conference MW entitled to send a representative from each category

In designing the consultation, the task force called for theological reflection as well as discussion of stewardship and consumption, the cost of food, inherit ance taxes, multinational corporations policies, credit, health, nutrition and orgame farming.

The task force voted to order 1,000 copies of a proposed 60-page handbook titled Saving the Family Farm: A Handbook for Reflection and Action" to be edited by Nancy Carter Goodley, a staff member of the denomination's Board of Global Ministries. It is due off the press by November 1980.

Our hope is to enable United Methodist women to participate in activities at state and national levels which will help save the family farm as a way of said Mrs. Gilbert. "It is threatened by large corporate structures, the inabiliof young farmers to enter the field, and the competitive cost of land. Prime tarm land is being used for housing developments, recreation, industrial parks and urban sprawl. Our task force members feel very keenly that other types of land could be used for such purposes.

The Task Force on Farm Issues was ppointed by the Women's Division in April 1977 and includes several women who are family farmers. It meets semi

Easing Of Tensions Between Refugees, Americans Sought

CORPUS CHRISTI (Special) - Representatives of volunteer refugee resettlement agencies from Louisiana and Texas heard calls for more communication to ease tensions between Indochinese refugees and Americans. A murder in a small Texas town last August showed the extent of the crisis.

The Community Relations Seminar held in Corpus Christi Dec. 7 was sponsored by the Migration and Refugee Services Department of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

Much of the discussion centered around prevention of the violence and animosity which has erupted between Vietnamese and American fishermen along coastal areas of the two states.

The most serious incident occurred Aug. 3 in Seadrift, Texas, where a local fisherman, Billy Joe Aplin, was shot and killed in a dispute over fishing in the area. Nguyen Van Sau was charged with the killing but was subsequently acquitted of all charges

Tom Hamett of the Community Relations Service of the Department of Jus-

Queen's Jewels May Have Been Imitation

NEW YORK (UPI) - Some of Queen Cleopatra's dazzling jewels probably were imitations, according to some jewelry experts.

The artisans of Alexandria in ancient Egypt were skillful workers in glass gems and their craft was carried over and further developed in the days of the first two centuries of the Roman empire, according to researchers at Trifari jewels. Thus, they say, it is probable that the dazzling trappings used by Cleopatra inmany cut glass and imitation tice told the group that dialogue and education are the keys to resolving tension. Hamett is organizing community councils in coastal towns and coordinating seminars to instruct refugees about Texas fishing laws and discuss alternatives to the most profitable fishing venture - tion among government agencies involved in refugee resettlement as well as sponsoring agencies. The Vietnamese have not been taught our laws, customs or language." Hamett said. "The frustrations come on the street because of a lack of communication.'

Hamett also called for more coopera-

Erfian Martinous, also with Community Relations Services, spoke about the appropriate response once a crisis devel-

In Seadrift, Martinous said, "we found an extreme gap between groups. There were no mechanisms for communication, and therefore no cooperation."

Once the responsible element of the community has a chance to speak out and lines of communication are drawn, Martinous added, the battle is won.

"In this sense, the process is the solution." he said.

It was also announced during the seminar that Gov. Bill Clements of Texas has ordered the state's Department of Human Resources to form a statewide task force to deal with all aspects of the refugee situation. The task force, which will include sponsoring agencies, will identify needs, make recommendations and coordinate problem-solving.

There are some 27,000 Indochinese refugees in Texas, the largest number outside of California. Many of the refugees have been resettled through the efforts of the U.S. Catholic Conference and local agencies such as diocesan Catholic charities organizations.

Church To Start Revival Services Wednesday

ROPESVILLE (Special) - The Rev. Terry W. Edwards will lead revival services at the Church of the Nazarene Wednesday through Jan. 13. Weekday services will be held at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday services will be held at 10:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday School begins at 9:45 a.m. and Bible study and youth meeting at 6 p.m.

Edwards is an evangelist who now lives in Colorado. He was graduated from Nazarene Bible College in Colorado

REV. TERRY EDWARDS

The sun is 400,000 times as bright as the full moon and gives the earth six million times as much light as do all the stars put together.

By Joyce Lain Kennedy

Dear Joyce: I manage a motel and could perhaps employ mildly retarded workers for cleaning jobs. Could you put me in touch with someone who has had experience with mentally retarded workers? - J.T., Denver, Colo.

Job Path is a program created by the Vera Institute of Justice for occupational placement of the mentally retarded. It's director, Arlene Silberman, says in a recent issue of Executive Housekeeper magazine that when properly trained and supervised, slow-learning workers can do a first-rate job in many housekeeping and laundry tasks. She says she'll advise potential employers. Write to: Job Path, 25 W. 39th St., New York, N.Y. 10018.

Dear Joyce: I'm 52 and successful but at the upper limit of salaries in my profession. I feel I should make a change soon. I have strength and training in interpersonal relationships and also selling. I'm thinking of the employment agency field, either as an owner or staff person. I can't seem to find out much about this field. Can you help?

- O.A.K., Cleveland Heights, Ohio.

The trade association of employment agencies should be able to advise you; it's the National Association of Personnel Consultants, 1012 14th St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005. As well as general information, ask for referral to members in your area who are willing to brief you on the business.

Dear Joyce: I have a Ph.D. in chemistry and would like to be considered for positions that require a master's degree. However, all the places I have dealt with will not consider me after they find out I have a doctorate. What now? - M.P., Buffalo, N.Y.

Although some people solve the overqualified problem by keeping quiet about their higher degrees, a better approach is to learn as much about job seeking as you know about chemistry. Your task is to convince a potential employer that you sincerely will not be bored by the work and that you won't leave the instant a Ph.D. job becomes available.

Dear Joyce: Can you tell me how to apply for a job at a government school overseas?

Requirements and application forms for the coming school year can be obtained from Anthony Cardinale, Director, Department of Defense Dependents Schools, 2461 Eisenhower Ave., Alexandria, Va. 22331.

READER SERVICE: "Getting Chosen: The Job Interview and Before" is an eight-page reprint from the U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Outlook Quarterly. It discusses effective verbal comminication, sticky issues and other job interview topics. To obtain a single free copy, enclose a gummed, selfaddressed mailing label with your request to Joyce Lain Kennedy at this newspaper. The offer ends March 1, 1980.

Black rolls 6-1. How should he play? ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

Black is in parlous straits. He is ahead in the race, but White has an impressive array of men waiting to smite the Black blot, and Black has another blot on his 6-point. About the only roll that White is going to have that will not hit a blot is 2-1

There is no problem about the 6 - Black must enter his man from the bar. At first glance it would seem that Black's best bet is to avoid getting a second man back, so he should use the 1 to bring the man on his 6-point to the safety of

But to play safe in this position is an illusion. White can easily win the game by hitting just one Black blot. Assume that White hits the blot on his own 6point. Now White is a favorite to close his board while Black is an underdog to enter. And even if Black should enter before White can close the board, the Black man will still have to run a gauntlet of White men just waiting for a pot

Black cannot afford a passive game - he must move on to the attack. Strangely enough, his best chance to avoid losing is to leave himself with anoth-

Black should use the 1 to hit one of the White blots in his home board. It doesn't much matter which one he decides to hit, although I slightly favor hitting on the 1-point. Now White will stay out if he rolls 5-4, 4-2, 5-2, 5-5, 4-4 or 2-2. Also, he will not hit any Black blot if he rolls 3-2 or 6-2 since he will have to use the larger number to enter his man from the bar and the 2 does not hit. (And 2-1 still doesn't hit).

Thus we have a strange paradox. By leaving himself with another blot, Black has actually reduced his chances of getting hit to where there is almost an evenmoney chance of surviving the next roll. Once that happens, the odds on Black winning change drastically, for now Black can start picking up White blots as he brings his runner around to safety.

ON JULY 11, 1977, JIM SYKES, (not his real name) bought a six-year certificate of deposit at what looked like a fantastic interest rate, 7.75 percent. Jim, a 42-year-old salesman, had worked hard to save money. So had his wife, a clerk in a Washington, D.C., store.

They had saved $10,000, feared investing in the stock market, didn't want to buy more property and sought a better interest rate than the 5 percent pass-

So they bought a 7.75 percent CD at a local savings and loan association They, of course, had no way of knowing that the U.S. economy's inflation rate would reach double-digit figures. Like other Americans who bought CDs in the mid-1970s, the Sykes family was locked into an interest rate too low to prevent erosion of their money's value Until last summer, when the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which regulates S & Ls, made it possible for them to get a better deal Before last summer, if you wanted to cash in your CD prior to its maturity date, you would lose three months of interest completely, and all the rest of your interest would revert to the regular passbook savings rate.

LAST SUMMER THE FHLBB changed the rules. Results: Sykes could cash in his CD by taking a penalty of only six months' interest if his S & L agreed. That's what he did in mid-December, 1979. He reinvested the sum he'd saved and within 21 months will make up all the loss and get a much higher interest rate thereafter. By cashing in his six-year CD, Sykes lost $393.96.

He reinvested his nest egg in a four-year "money-market" CD which pays 9.85 percent annually. In the next six months Sykes' nest-egg will earn $504.83, compared to less than $400 it would have earned at 7.75 percent. If Sykes had reinvested in a six-month treasury "bill," paying an annual interest rate of 11 767 percent, he could have earned even more in six months - $594.87. But he wouldn't have been protected on the "down side" after six months, so he preferred the 9.85 percent guaranteed over four years.

You may not think the Sykes family is typical. After all, how many Americans have $10,000 squirreled away in CDs?

"Millions,", says an FHLBB economist.

AS OF OCT. 31, HE SAYS the total amount in S&L Savings and time certificates amounted to $454.6 billion. The total breaks down this way - $119 billion in traditional passbook savings accounts.

- $143.6 billion in "jumbo" CDs, amounts of $100,000 or more whose interest rates are negotiated with the S&Ls

- $311 billion in all other types of CDs; $114 billion of this in six-month money market" CDs, the other $197 billin in longer-term CDs.

The new penalty rules favor people who've held onto their CDs for a while." says FHLBB official. But he cautions that anyone holding a CD, and considering the switch that Jim Sykes made, must find out: What penalty his S & L is going to impose for cashing in his CD before its maturity date. What categories of CDs his S&L applies the new penalty rules to.

For instance, some S&Ls have applied the new, lesser penalty across-theboard, while others apply it only to four, six or eight-year CDs. It's up to you to find out exactly what your S&Ls rules are, and to aks your S&L to figure out whether or not it's to your advantage to cash in your CD prematurely and reinvest the proceeds at a higher interest rate.

If you want help from the FHLBB directly, write or phone Kathleen E. Topelius, care of Federal Home Loan Bank Board, 1700 G. St. NW, Washington, D.C., 20552. Her phone number is 202-377-6444.

Oceanographer Devises Black Box For Use Against Sharks

MONTREAL (UPI) - Oceanographer Louis Lourmais believes the secret to taming the shark may lie in the supersensitive skin that makes it such a deadly Lourmais will test his theory in some of the world's most shark-infested waters between Miami and Havana. Next year he will enter the waters protected only by a 10-inch black metal box, weighing about two pounds, that radiates an electro-magnetic field.

"I've no death wish about any of this," he said. "I have spent 40 years diving in shark waters so I know how to handle myself but I am, if you like, the fool who has to try all this equipment.

keeping at bay man-eating sharks during a 50-hour experiment in the Gulf Stream

The object is not to kill sharks but to keep them at an even -about 10-meters radius around you," said Lourmais, a 59-year-old naturalized Canadian from Brittany

"When a shark circles you and starts eventually to move in nervously you have two options: one is to swim up to him and clout him on the nose and the other is to switch on your machine.

Lourmais said that when a shark comes to nudge you before returning for a bite, for instance, he not only checks if there's life in you but actually tastes you through his skin which is covered with hundreds of tiny sensors.

Corn Cobs Fuel Seed Dryers

DES MOINES (Special) - One company's search for an answer to short supplies and high costs of energy appears headed for success. But what seemed like a simple solution has taken five years and more than $750,000 in research and development costs

Farm News

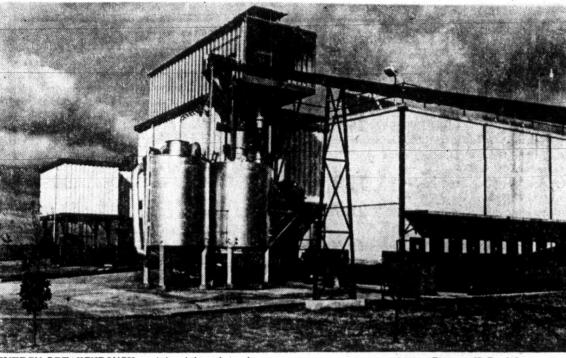

Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., the nation's largest hybrid seed corn producer, dried part of its 1979 seed crop using a gasifier which produces a mixture of combustible gases from corn cobs. Development was a joint project involving engineers from Pioneer and a Des Moines heating consultant.

The company has a Southwest Division headquarters on the Texas High Plains at Plainview

While gasification isn't new, using cobs for fuel required many modifications. A patent application is being considered to cover these features. No government funds were involved in the project, according to Pioneer officials.

Gasifiers were used in drying corn at three of the company's 22 seed handling plants this fall. Nearly $700,000 has been budgeted for additional installations in

Pioneer dries about 8 million bushels of seed corn each year. This requires removing an average of 3 gallons of excess water per bushel. In a typical year, some

ENERGY BREAKTHROUGH - A breakthrough in alternative energy is enabling a major seed corn producer to substitute corn cobs for propane or natural gas in the seed drying process. Cobs enter the cylindrical gasifier where they react with a limited supply of oxygen to produce a mixture of combustible gases. These are burned to heat air that is forced through corn bins to remove excess moisture. Pioneer Hi-Bred International. Inc., used gasifiers to dry seed at plants in Iowa, Indiana and North Carolina in 1979. The five-year development of the gasifier was financed entirely by Pioneer and required a research investment of more than $750,000.

Botanical Wonder Uncovers Hopes For Perennial Corn

MADISON, Wis. (Reuters) - A wild Mexican plant hailed as the botanical find of the century could ultimately revolutionize growing corn around the world.

Scientists predict that the plant, acclaimed by some as the ancestor of modern corn, will enable them to breed a disease-resistant, perennial corn that farmers can harvest every year without re-

Both developments are some way off, but their impact on traditional agriculture would be staggering, for corn is the most important food grain on earth after rice and wheat

Experts think an economically-viable perennial corn for food grain is at least 30 years away, perhaps as many as 100.

But they believe it will take just five to 10 years to develop a corn largely immune to common diseases.

They are heartened by initial tests which show the wild corn-like plant, a erennial form of Teosinte called Zea Diploperennis, is resistant to several major viruses which afflict corn crops in the United States. It also has proven immune to the worst virus in Africa.

The wonder plant was found in a remote Mountain region of Jalisco state in Central Mexico two years ago by Rafael Guzman, a botany student at the University of Guadalajara

The discovery was the botanical counterpart of falling over a live dodo (an extinct bird), wrote the Smithsonian magazine. The great significance was only realized when seeds were sent to the University of Wisconsin to botany professor Hugh Iltis, who had long encouraged the search for perennial Teosinte, believing it to be the key to the evolution of corn.

Laboratory analysis showed Zea Diploperennis had a genetic makeup of 20 chromosones, whereas other Teosinte had 40 It meant the perennial Teosinte could be crossbred with corn, which also has 20 chromosones.

And this. Dr Iltis explained, meant the perennial and disease-resistant qualities of Zea Diploperennis eventually could be transferred to the common domestic corn

This would go a long way to protecting corn harvests and averting the economic dislocation and hardships that result from crop failures around the globe.

In 1970 a corn blight destroyed 15 percent of the U.S. crop and drove up food

In countries like Kenva, where half the staple diet is corn such a crop loss could have caused serious starvation.

Some 300 seed samples of Zea Diploperennis already have been sent to scientists and plant breeders overseas - including the Soviet Union, China, India, West Germany, Israel and Colombia for tests and trials its disease resistance at the Ohio Agricutural Research and Development Center in Wooster, said, "It is easily the most significant botanical find of the century. The first results are very exciting, and so far we've only tested it for resistance against viruses Nault, a professor of entomology and plant pathology, says it has proved immune to two of the three most damaging virusus in the United States — the maise chlorotic dwarf virus and maise dwarf mosaic strain B.

It is also resistant to the new maise chlorotic mottle virus now spreading in Kansas and Nebraska

Separate tests at a quarantine center in Frederick, Md., showed Zea Diploperennis could resist the maize streak virus, which wrecks most havoc on corn corps in Africa.

In the next few months, Nault will be gin laboratory and field tests for resist ance to fungi, the principal cause of corn disease. He also will examine if Zea Diploperennis is immune to bacteria and insects which spread disease.

one of lowa's biggest seed companies. said, "The farmer is more interested in a higher yield than saving the cost of planting

But Dr. Mike Nee, a colleague of Iltis at the University of Wisconsin, says it should be possible eventually to breed higher yields into perennial corn

The experts have not yet determined if the roots of Zea Diploperennis could survive winter in the northern half of the U.S. Corn Belt. But, Iltis is encouraged by the fact that it was found at an elevation of 8,000 feet in the Mexican mountains. He says it should expand the corn belt south because it will definitely grow in warmer, wetter areas. When Iltis himself got together a mule train and trekked into Mexico's Sierra de Manantlan to see Zea Diploperennis in its natural habitat, he found it growing in a stream

Hog Raisers Consider Alternate Feed Source

By ROBERT L. HANEY Texas Agricultural Experiment Station

As worldwide demand increases for sovbean meal as human food, limited supplies and price may force the pork industry to use more alternative sources of high-protein feed, according to Dr. T. D. Tanksley of Texas A&M University

"Simple grain-soybean meal diets have long been the standard for the American pork industry because the soybean meal provides essential nutrients amino acids) that are lacking in corn, sorghum, wheat, and barley," says Tanksley, who is noted for his Experiment Station research.

Attempts to subsitiute other high-protein feed-stuffs (such as cottonseed, meat and bone, peanut or sunflower meals) for all or a part of the soybean meal in swine diets have met with variable success.

Some producers become irate if they Dr Lowell Nault, who is investigating find that a feed company has included some of these lower quality protein feedstuffs in their feeds - perhaps rightly so. Tanksley says, if substitutions have not ensured the same protein quality.

Some of these producers developed their negative attitudes because they experienced overall poorer pig performance when they attempted to use some of the lower-quality high-protein feedstuffs.

No one advocates using lower quality meals except when they can provide at a lower price an amino acid balance simiar to that provided by soybean meal," Tanksley says.

We are convinced that these meals can be used effectively to replace a part of the soybean meal and still obtain essentially the same growth rate and feed efficiencies if the substituions are made to provide the pig with the same level of avilable amino acids.

True, there are other considerations such as the high level of calcium and phosphorus in meat and bone meal, the presence of free gossypol in cottonseed meal, and the wide variation in processing methods used which affects the avilability, but rations can be formulated to overcome most of these limitations.

'Our research group in the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station has been conducting studies for the past two years with growing pigs fitted with a nylon canula (a tube device) at the terminal end of the small intestine. This enables us to draw samples of digesta and test it for the availability of amino acids and other nutrients.

The information we've obtained indicates a wide variation in amino acid digestibilities among high-protein feedstuffs and that this must be considered when substituting lower quality meals for soybean meal.

We believe that this information, when thoroughly tested in growing-finishing trials, can be used to balance diets on an available amino acid basis instead of total amino acid basis.

We have conducted one experiment with growing-finishing pigs in which we balanced the diets on an available lysine basis (using values we have developed).

"Substitution of direct-solvent cottonseed meal plus lysine was made for soy bean meal in 20 percent increments and we obtained essentially the same rates of gain and gain: feed rations, compared to a diet supplemented completely with soybean meal.

This is only one test but the results are very encouraging. We believe that we're on the right track and that this information will enable pork producers to substitute lower-cost sources of protein without sacrificing gains," Tanksley concluded 400 billion BTUs are required for the job, an essential one if farmers are to have high quality seed corn.

Using cobs as a heat source to dry seed corn offers a near-perfect solution to this particular energy problem. It disposes of cobs, a by-product of the seed production operation. It conserves natural gas or propane for other uses. And even though the gasifiers cost approximately $75,000 each and are used only about eight weeks a year, they should pay for themselves in less than 10 years, based on present gas and propane costs.

Natural gas provided most of the heat to dry seed corn at Pioineer seed plants, prior to 1974. Following the OPEC oil embargo, some of the company's gas suppliers hinted that it should be searching for alternative fuels. Also, as the company looked for additional locations for expanded seed corn production, it found that many did not have natural gas service. Rising costs of fuel gave further impetus to seeking an alternative.

Propane worked well, but a steady supply had to be assured or valuable seed could be lost, Also, propane doubled the costs of drying corn. The obvious solution was to burn the cobs that are left after seed corn is dried and shelled. "We knew there were enough BTUs in the cobs to dry the highmoisture corn coming from our seed growers' fields," says Walter Stohlgren, one of the company's engineers. "The trick was how to capture that latent energy and produce a steady, well regulated flow of warm air to dry seed corn without damaging it.

The first experiments involved burning cobs in an incinerator. However, this ? was rejected because of the formation of clinkers and release of corrosive agents and irritating ash in the heated air.

Gasification-in which cobs react with a controlled supply of oxygen-was tried next. Among other problems, this resulted in tar-like substances being deposited within the gas-handling equipment, leading to breakdowns.

After extensive experiments and maor modifications, the tar problem apparently has been overcome.

Gasification produces a mixture of carbon monoxide, hydrogen, methane, nitrogen and other gases. Burning this low-BTU fuel heats air that is forced through bins of ear corn to remove excess moisture. The modified gasifiers operated this year at Pioneer seed corn plants near Durant, Iowa; Rushville. Ind.; and Laurinburg. N. C.

"To our knowledge, this is the first large-scale drying of seed corn using gasified cobs as fuel," Stohlgren says: He believes other seed companies will no doubt be interested in the process.

Stohlgren says the bill for equipping all of Pioneer's drying buildings with gasifiers and necessary cob-handling equipment would be roughly $8 million at today's costs. To put this in perspective, the company expects to spend about $2 million for drying fuel this year. Prices of both natural gas and propane will no doubt continue to increase in the future. -Economics will dictate how fast Pioneer will switch to gasifiers. There's a side-benefits for farmers in Pioneer using cobs instead of gas to dry seed corn. The manufacture of anhydrous ammonia, the most common source of nitrogen fertilizer for corn, uses large amounts of natural gas. By drying seed corn using corn cobs instead of gas for fuel, Pioneer can contribute to the supply of fertilizer farmers need to grow corn, officials said

A COTTON MARKET ANALYST RECALLS that quotation from Macbeth in greeting the arrival of a new year with a certain trepidation, noting a seasonable temptation to make some forecasts for 1980.

"And only luck could make us right," he adds. When Banquo spoke to the three witches, he had more faith in the supernatural than this market analyst. In any case, Banquo didn't profit by their advice. In today's world, the witches have been replaced by computers and PhDs.

"And so eager are we to know what lies ahead that we sometimes put more store in their advice than we would in the Delphic Oracle," the analyst re-The futures market analyst points out that 1979 was a year in which posses-

he is proud is a suggestion nine months ago that the United States could have a crop of 141/2 million bales. TRANSLATING THAT INTO A SEASON-LONG advance for cotton prices does not square with logic. "Of course, the price action can easily be explained after the fact," the analyst points out. "But too many people spent too much of the year waiting for prices to fit their scheme, rather than paying attention to what the market was

While not indulging in the fantasy of peering too far into the 1980s, the analyst has looked back over the last 10 years to point out a few major features.

Cotton prices tend to trend longer than those of other agricultural commodities. And in the decade of the 1970s, they moved forward in four major waves. The first began in 1970 and lasted for 26 months, during which time prices advanced from 24 cents to 44 cents, basis the nearest futures contract. Cotton was concluding a six-year period in which offtake exceeded production and government stocks were liquidated. That gradual market advance was almost completely eliminated in a 41/2month break which brought prices back to 261/2 cents.

THE SECOND WAVE, LASTING ONLY 10 months, carried prices up to 99 cents, the highest level since the Civil War. Cotton shared in a speculative binge thich saw the price of gold double. Then the market, in 13 months, retraced seven-eighths of that advance before prices reached a level in the beginning of 1975 at which producers simply

Cotton then experienced the third major upswing. It lasted 16 months and carried some 58 cents, up to 94 cents. It was a season in which the market fed on the prospect for the smallest carryover since 1947.

The ensuing break lasted 15 months and gave back nearly three-fourths of the advance. The fourth and final wave of the 1970s began at the end of 1977 and still is considered to be intact. Prices had advanced 25 cents through the end of 1979. We can't call this recent move either the longest or the biggest advance of the 1970s," the analyst comments, "but we would not be surprised to see the momentum sustained at least through the beginning of the planting period.

SINCE THE FIRST PRICE EXPLOSION in 1973, the futures market has spent about an equal amount of time on either side of 63 cents.

If it is true that in a broad sense prices have been basically flat over this span of time, the analyst observes, the cost of production to the grower has climbed relentlessly. Over the decade, production costs about tripled, whereas prices advanced about 21/2 times.

"We don't know how to relate the price of cotton to the price of gold," the analyst says, "but it obviously is tied to the cost of production.

If prices don't keep pace with costs, there won't be enough cotton produced. In spite of the rather dramatic march of cotton production to the west, the analyst notes, yields have remained unchanged. For the 1970s, the national average yield was 474 pounds per acre, with crops in four of those years coming in above 500 pounds. For the 1960s, the average was 478 pounds, again with four crops above 500 pounds.

WITH THE 1979 CROP SETTING an all-time high per-acre yield and the output just prior to that having the worst yield since 1956, the analyst notes, anyone who dares to project this year's production based on averages had better cross his fingers. As the focus shifts toward planting time, this analyst is convinced that prices will move higher, unless there is a textile recession and until there's evidence that as much cotton will be produced as will be needed next season.

This bull market is certainly an aged one by historical standards, the analyst points out. Should it run its course if the weather permits a good crop to be planted in both the Delta and Lubbock territories remains to be seen "On the other hand, there's nothing certain about a good crop," he adds. "And American cotton has few real competitors in today's market place."

Prudhoe Field Limits Reached In Helping Production Trend

HOUSTON (AP) - Alaska's prolific Prudhoe Bay field is expected to account for about 18 percent of domestic crude oil production this year.

But Alton W. Whitehouse says Prudhoe Bay, on the short term, cannot be counted on for any further help in halting the continuing decline in U.S. produc-

Whitehouse is chairman of Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), which benefits from nearhalf the production from the field on Alaska's North Slope.

No further help in reversing the downward trend for domestic output can be expected from Prudhoe Bay, Whitehouse said, because "we have now reached the maximum efficient recovery rate of the field."

At that maximum rate, Whitehouse expects Prudhoe Bay to average about 1.-500,000 barrels a day this year, some 250,-000 above the 1979 level.

Prudhoe Bay was discovered in 1968 but the field was without a market outlet until the 1977 opening of the Trans-Alaska pipeline.

During that long delay, crude produc-tion in the lower 48 states rose from 9. 096,000 barrels a day in 1968 to an alltime high of 9,637,000 a day in 1970.

Six years of decline then set in, with output dropping to a low of 8.132.000 barrels a day in 1976. The reversal trend resulting from Prudhoe Bay output lasted only two years, with 1977 domestic production averaging 8,245,000 barrels a day and 1978 output averaging 8,701.000. Final 1979 figures are not available but the American Petroleum Institute estimated the January-November average cent below the year earlier level. Whitehouse, in a year-end statement, said 1980 domestic production will about at 8,502,000 barrels a day, some 2.4 per-equal 1979 output because of the higher Prudhoe Bay level.

Production from all other major U.S. oil fields is declining at the rate of about 3 percent per year," he said. "Even though prices of domestic crude oil are gradually being decontrolled, the expected imposition of a federal excise tax, popularly but incorrectly tagged the 'windfall profits tax', will do nothing to stimulate the discovery and development of new oil reserves the nation needs to offset future production declines in older oil fields." Whitehouse said crude production outside the United States is uncertain because of the Iranian situation and announced production cutbacks by other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"On the other hand, a step-up in production is expected from some non-OPEC sources such as the North Sea and Mexico." Whitehouse said.

"Because the United States cannot reon OPEC countries to make up any shortfall, it is imperative we increase conservation efforts and remove all unnecessary roadblocks to boosting domestic supply of all energy sources.

Also in a year-end statement, another executive. Fred L. Hartley, chairman and president of Union Oil Co. of California, termed 1979 "as the year of price and political chaos in the oil industry and the economies of the western world."

'Never have so few affected the lives of so many as they doubled and even tripled the price of oil fromm $13 to $26 per barrel on the contract market and to $39 per barrel or higher on the spot market,' Hartley said.

state-owned leases in Midland and Pecos Counties to the El Paso Natural Gas Co.. an interstate gas transmission firm. State law requires commission approval of such sales of gas for out-of-state consumption

The sales involve production from the one well on a 164-acre lease in the Spraberry Trend Area of Midland County and a single well on an 80-acre lease in the Pecos Valley, South (Ellenburger Gas SE) field of Pecos County.

The state General Land Office supported both sales.

Legal Examiner Roger Schultz recommended approval of the sales to Chairman John H. Poerner and Commissioners James E. Nugent and Mack Wallace during a conference on Oil and Gas Division matters.

A. R. Archer Jr. of Monahans operates the Pecos County well. a sour gas producer capable of yielding about 200,-000 cubic feet per day. MWJ Producing Co., Midland, is the operator of the Midland County well that has capacity to produce less than 40,000 cubic feet daily of non-sour high quality gas.

Schultz reported that gas reserves under the Pecos County well are estimated to be 50 million cubic feet of gas and those under the Midland County well approximate 13 million cubic feet. No intrastate purchaser or user has appeared or indicated interest in taking gas from either well, he related.

El Paso Natural Gas will pay $2.06 per million BTU of gas from the Archer's Big Brother No. 1 well and $2.49 per thousand cubic feet of gas from the MWJ well, Schultz said.

A public hearing on whether to adopt standards concerning termination of service by gas utilities has been set for Feb. 5, by the Railroad Commission.

The standards to be discussed provide that a utility give reasonable notice to a customer before termination of service and a reasonable opportunity to dispute the termination, and that a utility may not terminate service when it would be dangerous to health and the custo cannot pay or can pay only in install-

Right-Turn Seen As Nations Enter New Decade

By GERARD LOUGHRAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—A move to the political right, mirroring a similar trend in the United States, has become evident in numerous nations round the world. It appears the result of anger at unfulfilled expectations, growing impatience with government controls and fear of economic problems ahead.

From Canada through Europe to Australia, the trend has led to the election of conservtive administrations, a lessening of aggression among some labor movements and talk of a new philosophy based on values of the past.

Britain now has its most right-wing government since World War II and so has France; a relatively unknown conservative, Jim Clark, swept the charis-

THE SUPERMARKET SHOPPER

Re MARTIN SI DANE

 DEAR'SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — As far as I am concerned, cash-off coupons are a nuisance. I don't bother with them.

But I would like to know whether food prices would come down if companies stopped giving out coupons and refunds. I know you won't print this letter, but it is worth 15 cents postage to tell you how I feel. — Sara K. from Tulsa, Okla.

DEAR SARA — Food manufacturers and processors spend their advertising dollars on earefully planned programs designed to produce the greatest sales for every dollar spent. Coupon and refund offers are two of the most effective advertising methods

An advertisement with a coupon produces the greatest sales for every dollar spent. Coupon and refund offers are two of the most effective advertising methods.

An advertisement with a coupon produces significantly higher sales than a similar advertisement without a coupon. If food companies stopped using coupons and refunds, they would have to spend a lot more on advertising to achieve the same results.

Food prices wouldn't go down. On the contrary, they would probably go up!
We know that couponing and refunding pay off in big supermarket savings for every smart shopper. So, we don't hesitate to print and answer letters like yours.

Although it is impossible to respond to all letters individually, we do our best to answer as many as our readers' questions as possible in this column.

DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — I just started clipping coupons, and I was disappointed when the owner of the grocery store near me said he doesn't take coupons.

If a grocery store carries a product, doesn't it have to take the coupon's — Mary W. from Davenport, Iowa.

DEAR MARY — Stores are not required to accept manufacturers cash-off outpons.

But most food stores accept them voluntarily because they earn a 5-cent handling fee on every coupon. These fees can add up to a substantial source of income for the store.

I am always a bit suspicious when a food store owner is doing a little coupon lipping for himself and fraudulently redeeming them.

If I found a food store that wouldn't take my cash-off coupons. I would make an effort to shop elsewhere.

DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — I disagree with one of your recent columns where you said not to take all your cash-off coupons to the store with you.

Most grocery stores have bent, torn or otherwise damaged merchandise in special sections at greatly reduced prices. They will also accept cash-off coupons on these items.

Recently, a 25-pound bag of Puppy Chow, usually $8.39, was reduced to $5 because it was ripped on the side. I had a coupon for 75 cents, which reduced the cost of the bag to about half the regular price.

I carry two coupon wallets, one for food and the other for non-food items like cleaning and paper products.

My couponing and refunding savings this year are more than $600 and I love it! — Jeanne from Spicewood, Texas.

DEAR JEANNE — Your suggestion may work for new coupon clippers who are just building an inventory of cash-off coupons. But when you are clipping everything in sight and have hundreds of coupons, it may become impract-

It you feel like carrying two coupon wallets, it might be better to use one for the coupons you need for the items on your shopping list. The second wallet could be used for often-used products on which you may find unexpected bargains.

matic Liberal Pierre Trudeau from power in Canada; and even Scandinavia, long the banner-holder of liberalism, is showing reentment at the socialist brand of freedom.

There is an apparent yearning for firm rule and, in France at least, the discarding of hedonistic aims. There is evidence even of an increase in racism and neo-Nazism, though the latter appears more a reaction against leftist policis than an espousal of Fascism.

In the United States, Congress has completed a term without passing any significant liberal legislation and most candidates for the Republic nomination are taking up positions on the right of Ronald Reagan.

Accepting that in many instances the European "Center" is left of America's middle-road point, the move to conservtism abroad is clear, especially in those Europan countries that recently experienced markedly leftist government

In Portughal for example, 45 percent of the electorate voted for a centerright coalition in interim parliamentary elections Dec. 5. Two weeks later, the same alliance swept to victory in municipal elections, seizing even such pivotal Socialist power centers as Lisbon, the capital.

"We're suffering a hangover from the (1974) revolution." said a prominent Lisbon psychiatrist, who asked not to be named.

"People's expectations were thwarted and now there's a backlash. They were reaching back to a past that today seems to offer certainty and security."

Just three years after revolutionry euphoria swept Antonio Salazar from power, a nostalgic three-volume work praising the ex-dictator reached second place on the best-seller charts.

In Spain, the strongest political forces since the death in 1975 of dictator Francisco Franco have been the governing centrists and the left. But there are signs of growing distillusionment on the part of the middle class.

Elvir Lucena, a former dancer who in her youth posed for the bust of "La Republica"—symbol of the Spanish Republic — complained about burglary at her apartment and an increase in street crime and inflation.

"I'm certainly no Francoist," she said. "But I have to say that in many ways life was better before the democracy."

Manuel Fraga Iribarne, a former Franco information minister and ambassador to Britain who now is leader of the right-wing Popular Alliance, said he considers a swing to the right inevitable in Spain and other European countries.

"There has been too much emphasis on equality and not enough on freedom and fraternity." he said.

Two years ago France was reckoned certain to come under the control of a Comminists socialist alliance. Insteed the leftist grouping dissolved into squabbling and the country has moved further to the right than at any time since World War II.
