Letter From Hostage Describes Feeling Of Being 'Abandoned'

By The Associated Press AMERICAN hostages in Tehran, ap-parently as a Christmas gesture by their captors, have been allowed to write home expressing thanks for messages of support and appealing - in the words of one - for "prompt action to free us from this terrible situation.

Wrote hostage Robert C. Ode: "We feel that we have been abandoned by our government and the American people

One of Ode's letters was received and read by President Carter on Wednesday. White House spokesman Jody Powell said it was clear the hostages were unaware of the steps the United States had taken to try to obtain their release.

Pressure Speculated

Powell speculated the Ode letter might have been intended by his Iranian captors to fuel American impatience and pressure the United States into taking some action that would amount to yielding to blackmail or rewarding interna-tional terrorism." At a meeting Thursday, members of the Lubbock County Tax Appraisal District Board unanimously passed a resolu-tion requesting the city to provide the ap-praisal service for the 23 taxing units within the county.

However, city officials say they aren't sure that they want to take on the job.

Under the state law that created the appraisal district, the board can contract with an existing agency to perform appraisal services. The only other options open to the board would be to establish a separate appraisal office or to contract with a private appraisal firm.

City, Firefighters Argue Collective Bargaining Merits Brightwell said the sanitation workers

LUBBOCK'S limited experience with city employee labor disputes is confined to two sanitation worker strikes in 1968 and 1972 and city officials disagree with firefighters association representatives over what relevance the two work stop-

The month-long strike was in violation of a state law, still in effect, which

Her most vivid memory of the strike is the "police chief issuing us a gun," Mrs. Jordan said.

Garbage never overflowed into the streets, as in New York City sanitation strikes, because city employees and su-pervisors were pressed into service to collect garbage and attempts were made to replace the striking workers. On Sept. 26, 1972, sanitation workers agreed to return to work. They received no raise, only an assurance they would be hired back at their pre-strike salaries.

City officials also agreed to meet with the employees to discuss their problems after they returned to work.

The 1972 walkout was preceded by a week-long strike in 1968 when sanitation workers demanded a 12 percent raise, overtime pay and uniforms.

lexico Seen As Mediator In U.S.-Iran Crisis

By The Associated Press series of diplomatic talks by Mexico's ambassador to the United Nations prompted reports in New York on Thursthat America's southern neighbor is taking an active role in mediating the U.S.-Iranian crisis.

Mexico's U.N. mission, however, denied that it has any formal proposal or plan of action and said it was only offering to be helpful.

The Mexican ambassador's meetings coincided with reports that Mexico was initiating a move in the Security Council to set up an official U.N. inquiry commission to look into complaints by Iran against the deposed shah and his regime.

According to the reports, Mexico sought to work out an agreement with fran to release the 50 U.S. hostages held in Tehran at the same time the inquiry

Ambassador Porfirio Munoz Ledo met for 11/2 hours Wednesday evening with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, and earlier he conferred with U.S. Ambassador Donald F. McHenry. Munoz Ledo was listed to meet Thursday with the U.N. Security Council president,

The militants holding the hostages insist they will not release them until former Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi is returned to stand trial on charges of corruption and other alleged crimes.

Asked about the reports, Mexican mission counselor Francisco Correa-Villalobos said, "A Mexican proposal does not exist. Mexico is offering to be helpful in this difficult situation." Asked whether Mexico was endorsing plan for an inquiry simultaneous with release of the hostages, Correa replied, "This is one of the possibilities that the secretary-general has mentioned. We are definitely not making such a proposal."

A spokesman for Waldheim, Rudolf Staiduhar described the two men's meeting as involving "exploratory talks by the Mexicans" and said Munoz Ledo had 'outlined some of their ideas regarding the Iranian situation.'

U.S. spokeswoman Jill Schuker. asked about McHenry's talks with Munoz Ledo, said Mexico is one of a number of governments trying to help in the Iranian Thomas had been in Tehran for about 10 days, attending a conference of the World's Liberation Movement.

In Paris, the French daily Le Monde reported from Tehran Thursday that a political party leader had hinted Iran's presidential elections, scheduled for Jan. 25, might be postponed a week.

The paper's correspondent attributed the hint to a Dr. Ayat, member of the commission of experts of the Islamic Republican Party. The correspondent said Ayt, whose first name was not given, is a Revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah

The party's candidate withdrew from the running, the paper said, because it was discovered that he was of Afghan origin and only persons of pure Iranian stock are allowed to participate.

The correspondent said the party would probably not have trouble getting a delay to choose another candidate. There was no confirmation such a request had been made. The correspondent said calls for demonstrations in Tehran on Wednesday to celebrate the anniversary of the shah's departure were "a major setback for the Khomeini organizations. The capital never seemed so calm.'

Fitts, who campaigned for Clements in the 1978 election, says he will stay at the office and will not eat until he has an opportunity to personally apologize to John Hill, the man who lost to Clements in the 1978 race.

Fitts contends Clements broke a promise to support creation of a producers advisory board on agricultural matters, has not fulfilled another promise to find tunding for an experimental gasohol plant, and dismissed the only staff member who was assisting farmers - David Senter of the Office of State Federal Relations in Washington.

Clements said Thursday Senter was fired "on the basis of competency" and said he still is considering the producers advisory board, although he noted the state already has more than 200 boards on agricultural matters and he is not convinced of the need for another.

Asked if he had promised during the campaign to support creation of the board, Clements replied, "I absolutely did not; never. I said I would consider

He also defied he had told Fitts and other farmers he would find funding to replace the $220,000 appropriation for an experimental gasohol plant he vetoed.

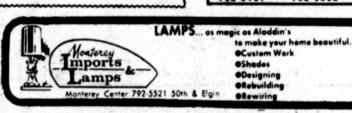

In a printed statement issued Thursday, the American Agriculture Movement said, "We share the same grievances that Mr. Fitts has with the governor of Texas. We are tired of politicians making promises to the people and then not fulfilling them.

The statement said AAM Members are concerned that Clements, a millionaire oil well drilling contractor, may have a conflict of interest that influences him against gasohol and other renewable fuel sources. The group challenged the governor to allow a special session of the Legislature to consider proposals making it easier for farmers and others to build gasohol plants in Texas, and to remove the state motor fuel tax from gasohol.

One More Word On Election

THE LUBBOCK Firefighters Assn., which has been unrealistic in much of its campaign for Collective Bargaining and a wage hike on top of the one it already has received, has added another chapter in that vein to the cam-

If one is to take a letter written by the Firefighters Assn. spokesmen at face value. the ultimate goal seems to be to organize the whole city, or at least that portion of it they consider "public" workers.

Such was the pitch in a letter mailed this week to other City and County employes. school teachers, administrators and workers as well as to others.

IRONICALLY. IN making their plea, the tiremen set themselves apart from their fel-

Almost identical, the letters have a common theme: help the firemen get collective bargaining, help them get another pay boost, and then in some way the firemen will help others organize and get more money. From whom and how?

Frankly, we don't believe even the majority of Lubbock's firemen believe this city, or even any major part of its workers should be organized into unions, although obviously

Such a pitch borders on being silly on the surface. The costs and hassle associated with such a situation would be intolerable and could paralyze what has been one of the best, most productive and progressive places to raise a family in the nation.

Whoever is responsible for such thinking. outside forces who stand to reap handsome dues, influence or whatever, knows such talk is divisive, unrealistic and can lead to the sort of problems such places as Memphis, Kansas City. Cleveland and other "union" cities have

Lubbock, Texas, Friday Morning, January 18, 1980

IN A WAY, the letters "say something" to other employes here.

After noting that a favorable vote would send a message to the school board and state representatives, the letter says that if the vote goes "against us...that when the people will not consider even their firefighters for a cost of living raise, they are not likely to want their other public employes to be given adequaté pay increases

This implies that the firemen are to be considered separate and apart as a preferential group and be treated accordingly.

THE LATEST flap in the campaign should not cloud the real issue, what Collective Bargaining means to a viable, progressive city and the fact that having received the same 7 percent raise all other city workers have, the firemen demand 8 percent more.

We have repeatedly said that we feel Lubbock's firemen are good citizens, hard workers and are to be commended on an excellent Fire Department. We do not feel that most firemen subscribe to misleading claims, attempts to set one group of citizens against another or raising false hopes.

Even they must know that one of the major reasons they chose Lubbock as a place to live and work was its good family environment and progressive, stable employment

To keep it that way, we strongly urge a vote Against both the Collective Bargaining and wage increase proposals Saturday.

Freedom Weighed In Balance

WE WILL have to wait out the year for the answer to the questions of how and where Afghanistan weighs in a balance that has Cambodia. Uganda and Nigeria on one side, and Pakistan, Iran and China on the other

We will have to wait since prediction does not figure in the annual report by Freedom House on the state of freedom around the world

But the current focus of international tension aside for the moment, an encouraging note is sounded by a survey released earlier this month on developments in 161 nations in the 12-month period ending Nov. 1.

Freedom is considered to have advanced in 21 countries while declining in nine.

NOTABLE BRIGHT spots include Nigeria and Ecuador, singled out as having made the most dramatic shifts to free government, and the removal of "four of the worst governments of our time (in Cambodia, Uganda, Central Africa and Equatorial Guinea).

Pakistan's deepening repression rates as the most striking decline in freedom. Also on the negative side is Iran, with its lapse into anarchic terror

China experimented with greater freedom of expression, but then backtracked to remain firmly in the "not free" category.

Freedom House, a New York-based nonpartisan organization, annually rates the world's nations according to criteria emphasizing political rights, civil liberties and freedom of expression.

BY THESE standards, it now finds some 1.6 billion people living in 51 free countries.

This is an estimated 37 percent of the world's population and the most yet recorded in the eight years of the survey The population of 55 "partly free" countries totals 921 million, while there are 1.8 billion people in 55 considered "not free. As for Afghanistan, unless the Soviet contagion spreads, it would appear likely to change the balance.

Even before the Soviet invasion and takeover. Afghanistan's repressive, puppet regime was rated by Freedom House survey takers as not free.

Carter Can't Keep His Secrets All To Himself

WASHINGTON- Is this Mr. Eldridge Winkler, hairman of the Flatbottom, Iowa, Democratic Party?

Just a minute. The President of the United States of America would like to speak to you."

Eldridge, this is Jimmy Carter. I am calling you from the White House, which I am unable to leave because of all the worldwide crises that are preventing me from campaigning during this elec-

Yes, sir, Mr. President. It's very kind of you to take time out from your busy schedule, which must be consuming every minute of your day. Can l ask what you're calling about?

I JUST finished a meeting with the National Security Council concerning Iran, and I'm going into another meeting with the secretary of state over Afghanistan, and I was wondering how things were going in Iowa.

You mean politically? Of course not politically. I don't believe the President should get involved in politics at a moment like this. It's beneath him. If you say so. Mr. President. But why did you call then?

"I was just thinking about you and all the loyal supporters in Iowa who did so much for me in 1976 when I first started running for the highest office in this land.

You mean with all the things you've got to worry about, you've had time to think about

Now that you mention it. Mr. President, the people in Flatbottom would like to ask you about all that grain and corn. Why on earth did you put an embargo on food to the Soviet Union at this

Can you keep a state secret, Eldridge? If this leaked out, our whole foreign policy could be in jeopardy.

Of course, Mr. President. The Russians can't be trusted.

When on earth did you find that out?"

ABOUT THREE weeks ago. They don't know what it is to keep their word. I'm glad I discovered it during my first term as President. It's given me a whole new insight into Soviet-American relations.

But what do you do with all the grain and corn you told us to raise for the last three years?

Eldridge. I'm going to say one word to you now, but I don't want you to tell anyone where you heard it.

I'm listening, Mr. President. Gasonol'

Gas-a-what?

Gasohol. I want all the farmers in Iowa to take all their grain and soybeans and corn and make alcohol out of it. Then I want you to take that alcohol and pour it into your fuel tanks.

Then I want everyone to get in their cars and drive around with their headlights on and show the Soviets we mean business when they invade Afghanistan.

ANYTHING YOU say, Mr. President. Would you like to know how the lowa caucuses are No, Eldridge, I didn't call to talk about caucuses. I know the people of Iowa will do the right thing next week, in spite of the fact I have been too busy to further my own political fortunes in your great state. Goodbye, Eldridge. I'll pray for

Connally Cools Fires

WASHINGTON-In another effort to end Jewish anger over his Middle East peace plan, John B. Connally spent two hours in an unannounced talk with Israeli Ambassador Ephraim Evron at the Palm Beach home of Max Fisher, a prominent Republican Jewish leader from Detroit, the day after Christmas. Connally's Mideast proposals were bold and comprehensive but they were considered unfriendly by Israel and some American Jewish leaders. They have kept him in hot water with the American Jewish community ever since his Oct. 11 speech At the time, aides of the Republican presidential candidate were furious at alleged "leaks" from the Israeli Embassy here, adding fuel to the anti-Connally fires. The meeting with Evron, arranged by Fisher, gave Connally a chance to explain pro-Israeli parts of his Mideast peace plan and counter his critics. Connally also told Evron that he would make an-who stands firm against any marriage of church and state. I was more than a touch befuddled by the position of counsel for a Chicago elementary school teacher who was fired for refusing to teach the Pledge of Allegiance and patriotic songs.

In their appeal to the Supreme Court of Joetheha Palmer's dismissal, her lawyers argued that "the state does not have the right to require a teacher to advocate that which he or she cannot do in good conscience."

Miss Palmer's defense was based on her membership in Jehovah's Witnesses, and as a member of that sect she was seeking a special privilege which would put the state in conflict with the ban on church-state matrimony.

MISS PALMER charged that school officials had violated her right to religious freedom.

Miss Palmer was hired by Chicago's Field Elementary School in 1976. Shortly thereafter, she informed the principal that her religious beliefs barred teaching "anything having to do with love of country, the Flag, and other patriotic matters." A year later, she was ordered to teach the Pledge of Allegiance, the words and music of "America," the words and music of other patriotic songs, and to direct activities of such holidays as Columbus Day and Thanksgiving.

Miss Palmer refused. She said those activities were forms of idolatry, the worship of man-made images, banned by the Bible held the firing. Last week, the Supreme Court left intact the lower court's rejection of Miss Palmer's appeal by refusing to review the case.

The highest bench, of course, had no choice. The appeals court had put the whole thing in perspective. It said Miss Palmer's refusal to teach required curriculum" was valid. It said her right to her own religious views and practices remains unfettered." Then came the big BUT.

A footnote: The sudden ouster of Sam Hoskinson. Connally's top issues operative, by the campaign's new superboss. Charles Keating, sent a shock wave through Connally's Arlington, Va., headquarters operation here.

Hoskinson, who left President Carter's National Security Council staff to join Connally's campaign last spring, was the 13th campaign aide to be fired FRONT-RUNNING Ronald Reagan and the team of top strategists planning his Republican presidential campaign reached solid agreement on one post-election policy during their three-day. closed-door strategy session in Los Angeles: to bring conservative and moderate Democrats into a Reagan Cabinet and government.

All this, of course, depends on Reagan holding his lead position, winning nomination and then election next November. The Reagan operatives will push hard for a conservative coalition not only to help Reagan staff his government but to give him a shot at a working coalition-majority on Capitol Hill. Congress has heavy Democratic majorities in both houses today, a situation that the Republicans might substantially improve in the Senate out probably not in the House

Particularly targeted for courtship by a Reagan administration would be leading lights in the Coalition for a Democratic Majority (CDM), the defense-oriented political lobby headed by Ben Wattenberg, a former White House aide to Lyndon B.

Honorary CDM chairmen are Sens. Henry M. Jackson and Daniel Patrick Moynihan.

PRESIDENT CARTER'S campaign operatives had a moment of fear-needlessly, it turned outthat Sen. John Culver of Iowa was going to deliver a last-minute endorsement of his Harvard buddy and close friend, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Culver has been studiously neutral in the Carter-Kennedy race. He worried the Carter camp when he bought statewide radio time the evening of Jan. 21-coinciding with Iowa's important Democratic caucuses that will choose between Carter and Kennedy.

What's more, Culver sent out letters urging each of the 2,510 caucuses to tune in the radio to hear him. Was he planning a dramatic 11th hour plea for old pal Teddy?

Not a chance. Culver, facing a tough battle for re-election to the Senate has no intention of antagonizing Carterites (though nobody doubts his personal preference for Kennedy).

Culver's Iowa staffers now have made clear that his radio message will urge support for his Senate campaign and certainly not choose sides for Presi-

BOGGED DOWN in a torrid election campaign. Canada's government has not yet given the U.S. the pledge Jimmy Carter has implied he already has: that Canada will not cash in on the U.S. grain embargo to the Soviet Union by upping its own sales to Moscow.

But despite lack of hard promise, the White House is convinced Canada will go along with Washington, as Australia-a third major grain exporter-quickly did.

Until Feb. 18, when the Canadian election will be held, Carter will be satisfied with informal indications of Canada's intent to restrict its grain exports to current levels.

A public pledge to go along with the U.S. could hurt the incumbent Progressive Conservative Party in the election.

THE USUALLY even-tempered Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa was outraged when Republican National Chairman William Brock supported President Carter's Soviet wheat embargo.

It was not merely Brock's decision that rankled but the fact that it was reached without consulting senior Republican politicians from the farm belt -such as Bob Ray, the man who has governed Iowa for 12 years. Ray felt Brock undercut Republican presidenti-

JAY HARRIS:

The Iowa Husking

THE BATTLE lines have been drawn. The antagonists have stocked up with ammunition. The first big test is just ahead ... The showdown in Iran? The invasion of Afghanistan? Another boost in the price of gold. No. none of those things. Although all have a role in the Big Event just around the corner-the first real test of the 1980 Presidential campaign. the lowa caucuses. is upon us. Although much more important clashes are in the offing, starting with New Hampshire, the eyes and ears of the nation will be on what happens in cities and hamlets across the corn country next

It all could mean a lot, or perhaps nothing...

THE SPOTLIGHT, no doubt, will be on the Democratic donnybrook between President Carter. Sen. Ted Kennedy and Calif. Gov. Edmund

But, the nation also will be watching to see how former Calif. Gov. Ronald Reagan, the GOP's "no show" front runner, fares against the challenge of half a dozen stalwarts who have become more than just names to the good folk of Iowa. On that side of the ledger, former Texas Gov. John Connally, former CIA Director George Bush, Sen. Howard Baker, Sen. Bob Dole, and Reps. Philip Crane and John Anderson are in a Mulli-gan's Stew. Stir well, shake and there's bound to be one or two dropouts when it's all over. The pundits are putting much emphasis on the lowa confrontation, which to a point is justified. But, unless there is a startling reversal of form among the two or three "favorites" in each party. then it has to go down as the first lap in a long.

AS THE WEEKEND approaches, the odds favor Sen. Kennedy to edge Mr. Carter, mostly because of resentment among grain growers over the Soviet embargo. The White House seems to have prepared Mr. Carter's backers for just such an eventuality by suggesting that Teddy has much the better organization and has spent much more money, although both can spend the same under the law. As for Gov. Brown, he likely would be better off taking another safari to Africa, with or without Linda. It's going to be a sad song...

Over in the Republican hayburner, Gov. Reagan has the definite edge, but could suffer from his failure to appear on the recent Des Moines debate. Best bets to bolster their stock, even if they run behind Reagan, are Bush and Baker. A good showing for the former would definitely give the Bush campaign a boost in the upcoming New Hampshire primary, where the media tend to place more emphasis on the outcome

BUT. IT IS the Kennedy-Carter clash which must take center stage. After jumping into the Presidential sweepstakes with an 18 percent edge over the man in the White House. Sen. Kennedy ran into all sorts of problems, many of his own making, past and present. First, the Iranian hostage crisis erupted, giving the President a chance to act like a President whether he did anything like one or not. It's been that way ever since. Mr. Carter even refusing to debate Teddy in Iowa or in Washington.

Then came Sen. Kennedy's own inept handling of himself under fire. His stumbling, bumbling response to hardball questions left both supporters and observers stunned. He compounded the felony by continuing to put his feet in his mouth, especially with a gratuitous remark about how the Shah ran one of the most violent regimes in the history of mankind."

THE POLITICAL pros compared him to his two brothers, President John F. and Sen. Robert.

Neither, they said, would have made the mis takes Teddy had. They forgot that in those days of wine and roses and Vietnam protests, it was a much more innocent world and a world not dissected and analyzed by the media for breakfast. lunch and dinner.

In all fairness to Camelot Revisited 1980, it's a much more sophisticated, calloused and critical media and electorate, for better or worse. Even a saint, which none of the candidates ain't, would be hard pressed to come through without singed

Sen. Kennedy's toughest obstacles are the ones he has faced all along—"Why are you running for President?" and "What really happened at Chappaquiddick?" The voters' verdict may come long before the answers do.

ALL OF WHICH brings us back to Mr. Carter and what the boys at the GOP corral are doing ...

No matter how the lowa caucuses come out, the real days of decision are still ahead, on a national level, for the President. The 50 American hostages are still in Tehran. The Russians are still in Afghanistan, and Cuba, and Ethiopia, and South Yemen, and the Cubans in Angola, and ...

And the American people are becoming more and more impatient with the growing Soviet threat. Thus far, the administration has gone through all the diplomatic motions, tossed in a controversial grain embargo, seized Iranian assets, quit buying Iranian oil and threatened to send certain Iranian students home.

The Avatollah Khomeini, the man who President Carter and his top aides played footsie with while greasing the skids for the Shah, has reacted by thumbing his nose at Washington and the American people in general. At some point in the not distant future, Mr. Carter must stand up and make the toughest decision of all. In the months ahead, the American people-and the candidates-should not forget that he, like Kennedy, brought much of it on himself and them. That is part of what Iowa is all about, as well as Decision 1980 in general, at home and abroad.

Republicans Plan Moves To Improve Television Coverage Of Convention

can Party has analyzed the way its national convention was covered by television in 1976 and found that the cameras - and consequently the voters at home hardly ever looked at the podium.

So when the party's committee on 1980 convention arrangements met Thursday, program director Ken Rietz was ready with some program change suggestions and a message:

We should keep in mind that this is a television presentation," he said. "We should, therefore, keep that television audience in mind. We have to have things we feel will have an impact on the audi-

Rietz's staff kept a minute-by-minute log of what anchorman Walter Cronkite and his CBS news team were doing during the Republicans' big show in Kansas City four years ago. They learned, for instance, that television networks invariably show the home audience films that are shown to the convention, and they show them in their en-'If you want to have impact," he said, "then do a 5-to-10-minute film." He also said the program on Tuesday night - the second night of the convention needs to be more interesting because home viewing of the convention drops

"Although the convention Tuesday night was three hours," he said, "CBS carried only seven minutes of what happened on the podium."

For instance, the log showed that in a 17-minute period when the rules committee was presenting its report, CBS carried party chairman Bob Dole trying to gavel the convention to order, correspondent Morton Dean talking with the New York delegation, commentary by Cronkite, correspondent Mike Wallace with the Mississippi delegation, commentary by Cronkite, more focus on to the New York delegation, four minutes of commercial and more commentary by Cronkite. Rietz suggested a 60-to 90-minute program opening night, Monday, to include short speeches by politicians, entertainers, and sports figures, music, comedy and a video tape about the great things about America. The purpose: "to give the home audience an inspirational message about the Republican Party. The keynote speeches - three or four of them - would be Tuesday night and would last no longer than seven minutes.

"Our analysis shows that speeches longer than 7-10 minutes are not covered in their entirety (on television) nor do they hold the attention of those in the hall," said a report that Rietz drew up

He also suggested that the convention business begin at 5 p.m. Tuesday so that dreary matters and embarrassing floor fights could take place while the fewest. people are watching.

The report said nearly 60 percent of the national television audience watched prime time television coverage of the 1976 convention and that "a good convention means a move up in the polls while a bad convention means a move down or a slower move up."

The typical American feels that the GOP "is a narrow and closed ideological organization that has mostly older people, few minorities and never has a good time," the report added.

DOUBLE BOMB BLAST HITS LONDON HOTEL - Debris litters the fifth floor of London's Royal Court Hotel Thursday, after two bombs exploded, killing one person and injuring several others. A man, thought to be preparing a terror

Palestine Liberation Group Claims Responsibility For London Bombs

LONDON (AP) - A bomb blast ripped through the fifth floor of a hotel near Marble Arch in central London Thursday, killing a young Arab and injuring three other persons.

The British Broadcast Corp. said a man who telephoned the Beirut office of a British news agency claimed responsibility in the name of Palestine liberation group called the May 15 Organization and said had been intended for use against Israeli intelligence agents in London.

A second bomb exploded in the rubble five hours later, reportedly injuring a police scientist.

The first blast — from a bomb estimated to weight several pounds - occurred at about 7:30 a.m. in a fifth-floor guest room at the 702-room, three-star Mount Royal Hotel. It blew down walls and ceilings in five adjoining rooms.

Police identified the dead man as Mohammed Soltani, 22, of the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Bahrain. He had registered at the hotel as a student, they said. Commander Peter Duffy, head of Scotland Yard's antiterrorist squad, said Soltani was very close to the bomb when it exploded, but it was too early to determine whether he had been assembling bombs and what their possible pur-

What this man was doing there we are not able to say as yet," said Duffy, who led detectives searching the hotel with dogs trained to sniff out explosive substances.

Duffy said the dead man had died of head injuries. He added, "As far as we are aware, this man is not known to police under this name, but checks are beikng made." Authorities said they did not know if the bomb actually went off in the room occupied by the dead man. Only one of the injured, West German hotel guest Gerhard Buhme, was hurt seriously enough to be admitted to a ospital for treatment. He suffered burns and cuts. Streets around the hotel, which overlooks London's Oxford Street shopping artery, were sealed off by police after About 400 guests, many of them Middle Easterners and many barefoot and in nightclothes, had been evacuated when the second bomb went off in the rubble. An unofficial report said one police specialist was injured in the second explosion, and several other officers within 20 feet of the bomb narrowly escaped injury. Duffy said it was too early to tell whether the blasts at. the Mount Royal signaled a resumption of Arab terrorism in London after a 11/2-year lull. The last attack occurred in August 1978, when gunmen attacked a bus carrying an Israeli El Al Airline plane crew. A stewardess and a gunman were killed.

Earlier that year, Said Hammami, a spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization, was murdered here by gunmen; two Syrian Embassy officials were blown up in their car, possibly by their own bomb, and the former premier of Iraq, Gen. Abdul al Naif, was assassinated in Park Lane, not far from the Mount Rooyal. Eleven Iraqi diplomats were expelled from Britain after that slaying.

Report Says Tito Not Allowing Physicians To Amputate Leg

BELGRADE (AP) - Doctors want to amputate the lower part of Josip Broz Tito's left leg, but the 87-year-old president will not permit it, Yugoslav sources re-ported Thursday. An operation last weekend to correct a circulation problem in the leg was unsuccessful.

The reports, unconfirmed by officials, came after days of speculation about an amputation as a means of avoiding the dangers of continued blocked circulation.

Officials, including Tito's team of eight doctors, said only that Tito's leg was "in gradual deterioration" after the weekend surgery.

The panel has provided brief daily bulletins since then, none hinting at what the next move might be. The operation followed an unsuccessful week-long effort to treat the condition with medica-

Doctors said Thursday that Tito's general condition was improving and that he spent a peaceful night at the Ljubljana hospital where he has been since last Saturday. "Temperature, blood pressure and his pulse were within normal limits," the three-sentence report said. "The state of the operated leg is in gradual deterioration.

Tito's actual level of activity in the hospital was not described and there have been no reports of official activities since the day before he entered it.

No photographs of Tito have been released since one Jan. 6 showing him with doctors at his Alpine residence.

Tito is said to have been suffering from a blood circulation problem for about two years. Yugoslav sources said his condition was aggravated late last year by a diabetes-like ailment.

Bomb Blast On Train Kills Three, Injures 14

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) -A bomb blast tore through one car of a commuter train as it rolled through the Belfast suburbs at the Thursday evening rush hour. Police said three persons were killed and at least 14 badly injured. Bombs were found on two other trains before they could explode. "We fear this could be a concentrated attack on the system by the IRA (Irish Republican Army)," a spokesman for Northern Irish Railways said. The explosion shattered the middle car of the three-car 5:40 p.m. train carrying mostly office workers from Lisburn. 10 miles south of Belfast, to their homes in the capital.

The blast, which occurred four miles from Belfast, started a fire and sent terrified passengers, some burned and blackened, jumping to the tracks and scrambling up embankments.

"There was no warning - these people had no chance," a British army spokesman said of the victims.

Local residents opened their homes as emergency treatment centers for the

A second bomb was spotted on another train and carried to the platform at Greenisland, north of Belfast, where it exploded. First reports said there were no injuries.

Police said a third bomb was found on a train halted in Belfast's York Road station and taken to the platform. It did not go off.

The three deaths raised the official toll to 2,007, including 13 this year, in the 101/2-year Northern Irish conflict, in which guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army have waged an underground war to end British rule and unite the predominantly Protestant province with the mainly Roman Catholic Irish republic.

Before Thursday's train attacks, British soldiers uncovered what the army called a "huge landmine" beside a road in south Armagh, close to the border partitioning Northern Ireland from the re-

The army said the mine was made of three gas cylinders, each packed with 50 pounds of explosives, with a detonation wire running to a farmhouse across the border. It was disarmed by army explosives experts.

Two bombs exploded in stores in Dungannon, County Tyrone, during the afternoon. Police reported considerable damage but no casualties.

Another bomb exploded at the Carlton Hotel in Nelleek, County Fermanagh. It was left in the lobby by armed men who ran out shouting a warning. The lobby was gutted, authorities said, but there were no injuries.

Tax Increases Push Past American's Income Hikes

been for rising taxes, Americans would have finished 1979 in a virtual draw with inflation, Commerce Department figures showed Thursday.

The Commerce Department said total personal income increased 12 percent during the year and was at an annual rate of $2,022.5 billion in December. The increase nearly matched the rate of infla-

At the same time, Americans' savings rate fell to a 30-year low.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department said housing starts fell 14 percent last year, although they surprisingly edged upward in December.

A total of 1,742,500 new housing units were started during the year, down from 2,020,300 in 1978. The decline was expected as a consequence of the government's actions to raise interest rates as part of its campaign to control inflation.

However, there was an 0.3 percent increase in December to 1,527,000, although building permits continued their downward slide, dropping 5 percent to 1.204,000 units. The figures were at seasonally adjusted annual rates.

While overall income increased last year, taxes rose at a faster rate, up 15.8 percent. The result was that after-tax income increased only 8.7 percent, which trailed the rate of inflation.

The figures, contained in the government's year-end report on personal income, illustrate how inflation slices into income in two ways, once through higher prices and again through higher taxes.

The tax increase occurs because Americans demand more income to keep pace with rising prices. But as incomes Americans are automatically pushed into higher tax brackets, so that a greater share of their income goes for Social Security taxes also increased significantly during 1979.

Relief from this jump into higher tax brackets could be provided in a tax reduction. However, President Carter has decided against recommending a tax cut in the 1981 budget he will send to Congress on Jan. 28.

Per capita income, after subtracting taxes, was at an annual rate of $7,653 in December, an increase of $614 from a year earlier. Per capita tax payments were $1,357, an increase of $175.

Americans obviously drew savings to maintain their living standards as the savings rate fell to a 30-year low of 4.5 percent of income. That was the lowest since 1949 when it was 3.6 percent. Savings were 4.9 percent of income in

The savings rate in November was 3.3 percent, the lowest for any month since the department began keeping monthly

Although the figures weren't complete, it seemed likely the savings rate fell even further in December since spending increased and savings were Personal income increased 1.1 percent in December, the same as in November, when income hit the $2 trillion mark for the first time. Personal income includes income from all sources, including wages, rents, dividends and government benefits.

Income from wages and salaries increased 1 percent in December to an annual rate of $1,282.5 billion. Income from those two factors was up 11.3 percent for the year.

Personal income expenditures rose at an annual rate of $32.6 billion in December, double the $16.3 billion increase in November. Personal savings were $44.9 billion in December, down from $60.9 billion in November.

The Commerce Department said prices increased 0.6 percent in November, the last month for which its figures were complete, compared to 0.8 percent in October. The Labor Department's Consumer Price Index had recorded price increases of 1 percent in each of the two months.

The Commerce index showed prices increased 9.8 percent for the 12-month period ended in November, while the CPI measured the increase for the same period at 12.6 percent.

The chief reason for the difference is

The Santa Barbra County sheriff stepped up patrols to try to compensate for the two-week-old strike by 140 officers in a wage dispue. But he would not say how many offices were on the job in the Southern California city of 75,000.

Residents said the deputies' presence was apparent and he patrols were very

"The City Concil felt, as did the chief of police, that in the previous 48 hours things had turned considerably

Meanwhile, Brry Cappello, attorney for the strikers, said the International Brotherhood of olice Officers will file an appeal next feek in state Supreme Court of Wedneday's restraining order against the strike Most police have yet to be served with the order.

Mayor David hiffman has urged residents to stay call and not to take the law into their own ands. "This is very sad-dening," he sait "Our country and our city are built of law, and that requires voluntary restrant from extreme preference for violence and emotion.

'Fuzzbusters' Challenging Police Radars

BURLINGTON, Ky. (AP) - The company that makes the Fuzzbuster brand radas detector is out to bust the fuzz in cour, in a challenge to the police radar systems used to nab highway

The contention is that the men behind the machines are at fault - that police aren't properly trained to use the units. Last year in Miami, a Florida judge ruled radar clockings could not be used as evidence agains 80 accused speeders because the reading were unreliable.

A former police officer who is now a consultant to Electrolert Inc., of Dayton, Ohio, makers of the Fuzzbuster, testified Thursday that some police use rada units as playthings and can set them up as alarms while they sleep on duty.

Former San Diego police officer Rod Dornsife testified at a hearing in Boone County Court on a motion to supress radar evidence in a speeding charge against Janice Lee, an Electrolert employee who claims she was wrongly ticketed by a Kentucky state trooper.

It was the opening day of the current round of pre-trial testimony in the case. Testimony continues Friday.

The makers of the Fuzzbuster contend a ruling in their favor to suppress the radar evidence would be a landmark and change law officers' use of radar throughout the United States.

Miss Lee, a Dayton resident, says she was driving about 55 mph on Interstate 71 last July when her radar detector signalled the approach of a radar-equipped patrol car.

"I looked at my speedometer, saw that I was right at the speed limit, and started trying to figure out which pair of headlights might be the police car," she

She was stopped and ticketed on a charge of going 72 mph Dornsife testified that many police radar systems have inherent deficiencies. Dornsife said many patrolmen are aware of the deficiencies - that the readings can be affected by radio signals. He said police sometimes issue tickets with charges they know to be inaccurate.

And he said patrolmen sometimes play games with their radar units. A favorite game is to clock an air-plane in flight and show the recorded speed on the radar unit to fellow officers as an example of "one that got away," And he said police cruisers equipped with radar can be used as an alarm clock for officers who want to sleep on duty, saying that when a cruiser is backed into a corner and the radar unit's threshold is set on zero, an alarm would wake up a snoozing officer if anyone approached his

Since the walkout Jan. 2, the city has been protected by only a few police supervisors working 12-to 15-hour shifts seven days a week. Police said they had the manpower only to respond to emer-

Private process servers were trying Thursday to serve Superior Court Judge Kelly Steele's injunction to striking police, as required by law for a back-to-work order to take effect, but were having trouble finding the officers.

"They must be hiding under rocks, said one police supervisor who asked not to be identified.

The Santa Barbara News-Press ran a front-page editorial Thursday, the first on page 1 in several years, urging a return to work.

"It is incumbent upon the employees to obey Judge Steele's injunction and return to duty," the editorial said, adding the walkout left residents "vulnerable to immediate danger.

The city wants to institute a pay system that officers contend would be tantamount to a quota system in which the number of tickets issued or arrests made would influence raises.

The officers seek an across-the board 12 percent raise. The average annual salary now is $19,188. Negotiations on a new contract broke off Dec. 28.

U.S. Sees Possible Use Of Chemical Warfare In Afghanistan

American specialists have no way of knowing what this means. The sources said, however, it suggests that chemical warfare may be used against rebels and to clean up affected areas so they can be occupied by Soviet military forces or Afghan government troops.

White House press secretary Jody Powell, asked about the report, said he was "not in a position to comment on that at this time."

Last fall, U.S. intelligence officials, who requested anonymity, expressed strong suspicion that the Soviet Union provided chemical weapons reportedly used in Southeast Asia against Laotian tribesmen resisting communist Pathet Lao and Vietnamese forces.

And in testimony on Capitol Hill last month, a Laotian refugee said his people were subjected to chemical warfare attacks in which villagers suffered "heavy bleeding from the nose, they could not stop their bodies from shaking, and died in several hours."

Tou Yi Vang, a member of the Hmong mountain tribe that supported the U.S. effort in the Vietnam war, told the House Asian Affairs subcommittee that eight villagers died in one attack in

Some U.S. military specialists say the Russians may have brought the chemical decontaminating equipment into Afghan-istan because this equipment is normally assigned to many Soviet army units.

Intelligence reports said a chemical decontamination truck called a TMS-65 was seen with a Soviet army unit in Kabul, the capital. The reports said various other Russian army support vehicles in Kabul were outfitted with chemical prot-

In discussing Soviet military doctrine, Jones has said, "The basic principle is to achieve surprise by using massive quantities of chemical agents against unprotected troops or against equipment or on terrain to deny its use."

Scientists To Join Forum With Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite U.S.-Soviet tensions, the Carter administration has approved participation by American scientists alongside Russians in a forum next month in West Germany.

The conference, to be held in Hamburg, is the first under the 1975 Helsinki agreement. The U.S. delegation is to be headed by Philip Handler of the National Academy of Sciences.

A U.S. official, who asked not to be identified, said Thursday the decision to participate does not represent a shift in the administration's hard line toward the Soviet Union as a result of Russian intervention in Afghanistan. However, the lawyer for Yuri Orlov, an imprisoned Soviet physicist, called recently for bringing such forums to a halt.

Dockworkers Urged To End Soviet Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter on Thursday urged the president of the nation's dockworkers union to end a nine-day boycott of Soviet ship cargo, which Carter said is snarling transportation in this country, sources said. White House sources said Thomas Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, did not promise Carter to end the boycott, but said he would reply promptly after consulting with his union. The ILA boycott has prevented the shipment of 3 million metric tons of grain previously committed to the Soviet Union, the sources said. Carter announced on Jan. 4 that he was halting shipment of 17 million me-tric tons of wheat and corn to the Soviet Union in retaliation for the Soviet Union sending troops into Afghanistan. However, Carter said he would allow the sale of million metric tons of grain to proceed.

The dockworkers' boycott has been

million tons,
One administration official said Carter, "speaking as president and com-mander-in-chief," said "that the abrupt stoppage of all grain shipments was con-trary to our national interests, that it was clogging the pipeline, interfering with normal commerce and was unfair to the farmer.

"He asked their cooperation in un-clogging the pipeline and Gleason said he would have to go back and talk to the ership," said the official, who asked not to be identified.

Among those attending the mid-day meeting was Thomas Donahue, the AFL-CIO's new secretary-treasurer. Neither Donahue nor Gleason indicated if the ILA would honor Carter's request.

The ILA's 80,000 dockworkers have been refusing to handle Soviet cargo since Jan. 9 at ports on the East and Gulf coasts and at key inland locations. West Coast dockworkers are represented by another union, which is not participating in the action against Soviet cargo.

Administration officials said the ILA boycott has brought congestion throughout the grain transportation system, clogging barges and railroads and leaving grain elevators choked full.

As a result, the officials said, the boycott is starting to hurt American farmers who are unable to ship their products to span has increased dramatically in the 20th century because of the spectacular success of disease control, but the next 20 years likely will bring little improvement, says an assistant director of the national Center for Disease Control.

Success Of Disease Control Aids Increasing Life Span

The reason is that today's top killers are not infectious diseases but accidents, violence and chronic illnesses.

Future changes in human life span are going to have to come about through changes of poor human habits - drinking, smoking, stress and just plain hard living, said Dr. Donald Millar of the "Preventing deaths due to these problems will require the simultaneous reduction of several health risks over long periods of time, clearly demanding a much greater commitment of both the individual and the community," said Millar in a recent interview.

The improvement in life span since the turn of the century has been stunning. Studies show that a child born in the United States in 1900 could expect to live 47 years. Today, the average is 73

"This dramatic increase of 25 years was achieved by reducing the risk of dying during infancy and childhood through environmental sanitation, immunization and improved nutrition,

In that same period, life expectancy for adults increased only slightly. In 1900, a 45-year-old white male could expect to live to age 69. In 1976, a 45-year-old white male could expect to live to 73, only 4.5 additional years.

The highly touted lengthening of life span for Americans is largely due to pre-vention, not cure." Millar said.

As an example, as late as 1960 epidemic poliomyelitis swept the United States every summer. By 1970, as a result of mass immunization campaigns, the incidence of poliomyelitis was so reduced that the total number of cases could literally be counted on the fingers of two Millar said the real pleasure in disease prevention is watching "nothing happen.

And right now, there are no epidemics of polio, no epidemics of smallpox, no epidemics of cholera, no epidemics of leprosy and no epidemics of malaria. Measles, which once affected almost everyone, is now close to extinction.

But other killers are on the loose. One study lists these leading causes of death in the United States in 1976: heart disease, cancer, stroke, influenza and pneumonia, accidents, car accidents, diabetes, cirrhosis of the liver, arteriosclerosis and suicide.

Most of those are brought about by social pressures and this is where any improvement in the American life span is likely to come in the near future, according to researchers.

Some of the social problems which Americans are going to have to reckon with are emphasized in the surgeon general's latest report on health promotion and disease prevention

"Currently, average consumption of alcohol for all persons older than 14 is 30 percent higher than 15 years ago - about 2.6 gallons of ethanol annually, representing a total of 28 gallons of beer, plus 2.5 gallons of distilled spirits and 2.25 gallons of wine," the report said.

Ten million adult Americans - 7 percent of those 18 years or older - are estimated to be alcoholics or problem

Cirrhosis of the liver, caused by excessive drinking, killed 31,407 persons in 1976, or 14.8 of every 100,000 persons.

Alcohol abuse and alcoholism are estimated by the Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration to have cost the nation nearly $43 billion in 1975, including health and medical costs, lost production, auto accidents, violent crimes, fire losses and social programs.

Through a system of measuring the number of life years lost because of pre-mature death, here are the total years lost to some of the chronic disease and social factors in 1976

Heart disease 4.3 million years, motor vehicle accidents 1.7 million years, all other accidents 1.4 million years, stroke 833.944 years, spicide 814.157 years, homicide 755,629 years, cirrhosis of liver 578, 473 years and diabetes 263,042 years.

Through improvement in these areas, all of which are traced to the choices that man made in today's society, the stud show that man can most certainly im-

Millar said, "No matter how one dissects the problem, over half of the U.S. mortality in 1976 was due to unhealthy behaviors or lifetype; 20 percent to envi-ronmental factors; 20 percent to human biological factors and only 10 percent to inadequacies in health care.

"Several risks must be reduced simultaneously and efforts must persist over long periods of time," he said. "These problems pose a severe challenge to pre-

Drug Book Author Called To Defend Elvis' Doctor

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Attorneys for Elvis Presley's doctor called the author of a book on drug addiction Thursday to support the argument that physicians should be allowed to use their own judgment in treatment of drug addicts.

Edward M. Brecher of West Cornwall, Conn., testified before the Tennessee Board of Medical Examiners. The board is hearing charges that Dr. George Nichopoulos illegally over-prescribed drugs for 16 patients, including Presley and entertainer Jerry Lee Lewis

Part of Nichopoulos' defense is based on the argument that Preslev and Lewis were better off obtaining drugs from a physician than they would have been if they obtained them from other sources.

Nichopoulos, who could lose his license to practice in Tennessee, is accused of prescribing more than 10,000 doses of sedatives, barbituates, amphetamines and narcotic drugs for Presley in the two years before his death in 1977.

Nichopoulos testified earlier that both entertainers had drug problems. He said Presley underwent detoxification for addiction to Demerol, a narcotic painkiller, twice in the last four years of his life.

The doctor also testified that he frequently gave placebos, or neutral substitutes, for the drugs prescribed for Pres-

400 Gather To Mourn Family Killed In Execution-Style Murder

EVANSVILLE. Ind. (AP) — More than 400 people gathered Thursday to mourn the death of a family of four, victums of an execution-style killing that shattered the tranquility of an affluent suburb

The Rev. Theodore Temple, his voice husky with emotion, told friends and relatives at St. Theresa Church that, the death of the Patrick Gilligan family "is not the end of their lives."

Their passage from this world to the love of God celebrates the fulfillment of a promise given in their baptism — the promise of eternal life," Temple said.

The bodies of Patrick Gilligan, his wife, Theresa, both 30, and their two children, Lisa, 5, and Gregory, 4, were found in the family room of their home, about two miles north of the city limits.

Police said the Gilligans apparently surprised a burglar when they returned home from an outing Monday night. The victims' wrists had been tied with extension cord, and all four were shot in the head, officers said.

An Evansville man, Donald Ray Wallace, 22, is being held without bond on four preliminary counts of murder in connection with the killings while police prepare formal charges against him.

Sheriff's department detective Gary O'Risky said Thursday that authorities are questioning friends of Wallace to determine whether additional arrests should be made. Temple's eulogy was delivered from an altar lined with flowers and studded with candles. Below lay four caskets two large, two small.

Holy Father, help us to be aware of your presence, Temple said. "We are sad that Patrick, Theresa, Lisa and Gregory were with us such a short time, and we are still stunned by their tragic deaths. Today is a very difficult day

"This is the international year of the family - and I cannot help but be struck by the contradiction of all this," Tem-

"We know the Gilligans were a beautiful family - and many times we all take family life for granted," he contin-"It isn't until a tragedy like this occurs that we see the joy of family living.

Mrs. Gilligan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Sahm, were helped into the church, their eyes red from crying.

Later, at St. Joseph Catholie Cemetery, Mrs. Sahm wept openly in the arms of her other daughter, Diana Harrington.

As they turned and walked from the cemetery, mourners shook their heads. The words they mumbled were all the same: "So senseless ... so sad."

Flight Crew May Be Blamed For Jet's Harrowing Plunge

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Transportation Safety Board leaned strongly Thursday toward blaming the flight crew of a jetliner for a harrowing six-mile plunge over Michigan, but put off a final decision until it can take more

The board spent most of the day considering its investigative staff's recommendation that the plane started out of control because the flight crew either deliberately or accidentally extended an eight-foot-long slat on the right wing while the Boeing 727 was cruising at 39. 000 feet.

The staff said the extended slat sent the plane into a right roll, which it said the captain, Harvey Gibson, could have recovered from. Instead, the staff found. he overcontrolled the plane to the left, sending it into a spiral dive at more than 540 miles an hour over Saginaw, Mich., last April 4.

At 6,000 feet, Gibson regained control of the aircraft, Trans World Airlines Flight 841 from New York to Minneapolis, and landed it safely at Detroit Metropolitan Airport. Eight of the 89 persons aboard were injured

Investigators said the plane probably came back under control because the slat ripped off, returning the wings to better balance.

"This is quite a remarkable situation that the plane survived at all." said Board Chairman James B. King. "If the slat had not ripped off. the chance of recovery would have been lessened considerably

Gibson said he lowered the landing gear in a last-gasp effort to pull the aircraft out of the dive. Authorities at the time credited averting a crash to that move, but the board said the detachment of the slat was the critical life-saver.

The full board appeared on the verge of adopting the staff's report when member Francis McAdams noted conflicts in testimony given by the captain, the flight engineer and Federal Aviation Administration inspectors concerning the whereabouts of the flight engineer, Gary N. Banks, in the period before the incident,

Gibson, in testimony given to two FAA inspectors shortly after the plane landed in Detroit, said that shortly before the incident. Banks had taken food trays from the flight deck back to the galley. But Banks, under oath, denied he had been out of the cockpit.

'Maybe the flight engineer did leave or did something on his return that could have had something to do with the incident." McAdams said. "Or did he see something out of place, or maybe he'll recall something else? It may not be important, but I think we ought to ask."

McAdams said he also was disturbed that the staff was basing its "probable cause" of the incident on physical evidence rather than on the statements of the crew. The captain erased the cockpit voice recorder after the plane landed in Detroit, denying that valuable data to included a number of reservists on 90-day

Gibson testified that pilots routinely erase the recorder after they land. FAA regulations require that these recordings be preserved after any incident or acci-

Earlier Thursday, the board adopted this sentence for the report: "Not having information from the cockpit voice recorder to put into balance, we believe that the value of the physical evidence outweighs that of the crew's statements."

As a result, the staff relied heavily on computer simulations in determining the cause of the incident. McAdams said the flight crew should have an opportunity to answer witnesses who presented the physical evidence.

The Pentagon sources said there are indications the Soviet command is in the process of bringing regular replacements from European Russia and elsewhere to relieve reservists in Afghanistan The Russian regulars, in turn, probably are being replaced in their former units by reservists, the sources said.

In Moscow, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda reported Afghan rebel ringleaders" met recently in Pakistan to organize a united front at the instigation of American and British "secret services." But, the newspaper said, "we that normalcy is returning there (in Afghanistan) and that tranquility prevails."

In London, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher declared her government's support for moving the Olympic Games from Moscow in retaliation for the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. Carter administration officials say they are considering trying to shift the Olympic site instead of boycotting the Games.

Mrs. Thatcher told the House of Commons her government "believes it would be right to try to move the venue away from Moscow. We cannot just stand back and see the Russians doing what they have done in Afghanistan, deplore it and

In New Delhi, Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, who on Wednesday said she wanted Soviet troops out of Afghanistan, on Thursday criticized U.S. plans to step up support of Pakistan in light of the Soviet military intervention.

"Danger Coming Closer"

"The danger is coming closer to our borders because the United States is giving arms aid to Pakistan," Mrs. Gandhi told a news conference. She commented after the British foreign secretary, Lord Carrington, conferred with Indian officials about the Afghanistan situation.

In Rawalpindi, Pakistan, the Pakistani president described a reported U.S. aid offer of $400 million over two years. as "peanuts." At a news conference, Zia said. "If this is true...this is terribly disappointing. Pakistan will not buy its security will $400 million. (That amount) will buy greater animosity from the Soviet Union which is now more influential in this region than the United States.'

Soviets Denounced In Tehran, Iran, Tehran Radio said the text of a resolution read at the end of a "mult-million-strong" demonstration denounced the "blasphemous colonialism in the east." Afghanistan is east of Iran. The resolution reportedly continued: "The Iranian nation denounces the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan and wishes success to the combatant Afghan brothers who are waging battle against iniquitous Soviet intervention and for the independence of their land."

U.S. Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christoper, finishing a tour of Western Europe, told reporters in Bonn, West Germany, it was "heartening for the United States to see the shared concern' over Afghanistan and Iran.

Most of the allies agreed on the need to punish the Soviets, but Christopher reportedly found little or no encouragement for a U.S. proposal to boycott the summer Olympics in Moscow. Sources say the European governments fear a boycott would anger the public and would be difficult to enforce. Might Boycott Games

Officials in Washington said the United States might boycott the Games without the support of its allies. One Carter administration source said. "We are the leader. We must take steps as a leader."

U.S. military analysts in Washington said earlier this week that the Soviet troops have not yet had to mount a major oftensive.

On Thursday, U.S. intelligence sources in Washington reported that the Soviet army has brought decontaminating equipment into Afghanistan, raising the possibility that the Soviets might be prepared to use chemical weapons against the rebels. He said the suit probably would be filed by a private citizen against the state to uphold the governor's veto power, and White would have to defend the Legislature's action.

White said the first opinion given to Clements Aug. 31, 1979, "concerning his authority to veto certain provisions of the General Appropriations Act was fully explained to him at that time. That opinion was based upon well-established case law which has been upheld as recently as 1975 by the Supreme Court of Texas.

'The governor should recognize that the opinion concerning the construction of a building by the Department of Human Resources does not address matters of policy but answers questions of law based upon a specific fact situation."

Clements also said he talked Thursday with State Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein and was convinced that progress was being made in cleaning up nuclear waste storage sites on Pelican Island near Galvestor

"I am satisfied to this point but discussions are continuing and there will be more negotiations." Clements said.

He said Todd Shipyards, operators of the dump, had agreed to take no more cooling water from California nuclear reactors and to reduce the quantity on hand now. "We realize that if we had a hurricane the strength of Carla that it would be a hazard," he said.

LONDON TIMES PRINTS RATINGS

Nicholas, Caroline Gain In Baby Name Derby

LONDON (UPI) - James and Elizabeth take note: you may be about to be edged out by Nicholas and Caroline. And Sarah is definitely on the upswing. The London Times Thursday published its annial reader ratings of the most popular names of 1979 - a tabulation based, in true Times fashion, on how often the names apeared in the Times birth columns last year For the last 11 years it has been compiled by Mrs. Margaret Brown, who works in the medieval studies department at York University. She reported in her annual letter to the editor that the fact the Times was closed for most of last year did not affect the trends for names, since the same 10 boys names headed the list in 1978.

For the 16th straight year, James finished at the top of the sweepstakes for boys, followed by Edward - also second in 1978 - and Thomas, which moved up to a strong third from fifth last year. But the real darkhorse was Nicholas, which jumped from 10th to fourth

On the female side, Elizabeth held strong at the top of the list for the fourth straight year. She was followed by Sarah, up from sixth, and Jane, holding steady in third pice for the second year.

Caroline joined Nicholas as the wave of the future, leaping from 14th place in 1978 to sixth last year, and Anna was hot on her heels - skipping from 22nd to 10th place in a year.

The most serious drop appeared to be Louise - down from second in 1978

Other top 10 finishers were, for boys: John, Alexander, William, Charles. David and Richard. And for girls it was: Victoria, Mary, Clare and Helen

City Attorney John Ross said state law does not prohibit city officials from talking to union representatives, but prevents them from negotiating a contract with a group of workers.

However, Brightwell said "other cities do it all the time," adding San Antonio city officials routinely negotiate a contract with municipal transit workers and "nobody files charges against them." Under the state's collective bargaining law, city officials must negotiate with representatives of a union selected by a group of employees. However, the law does not require the two sides to reach agreement. Strikes also are prohibited in the collective bargaining law. Unions which encourage public employees to strike can be assessed $20,000 for each day the workers are out of work.

Although the penalties against strikes are greater under the collective bargaining law. Brightwell admitted, "There's no way you can absolutely prevent a bunch of workers from not working.

'However, there are things you can do to offset it," he said.

Strike Reasons Claimed If we were going to strike, in years

Mrs. Gandhi Warns U.S. Against Aiding Pakistan

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India, saying Minister Indira Gandhi of India, saying "the danger is coming closer to our bor-ders because the United States is giving arms aid to Pakistan," warned Thursday such a move would only increase tension over the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Mrs. Gandhi told a news conference in Trivandrum, capital of the southern state of Kerala, that she had conveyed her views to Washington but she did not elaborate.

The United States recently announced plans to speed up delivery of arms or-dered previously by Pakistan after Paki-stan expressed fears about the Soviet moves in neighboring Afghanistan. Mrs. Gandhi said the Afghan Revolutionary Council had "invited" the Soviet troops which led to the installation of Babrak Karmal as president but she denied she was defending the Soviet action. Karmal came to power after the Soviets backed the Dec. 27 coup in Kabul in which President Hafizullah Amin was overthrown and was killed

"I am not justifying it. We do not ap-prove of it," Mrs. Gandhi said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter welcomed Mrs. Gandhi's statement that there was no justification for the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. He said her statement reflects a "more balanced view" than the official Indian position outlined last week during the United Nations Gen-

Israeli Prime Minister Criticizes Egyptian Proposals For Autonomy

Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel said Thursday that acceptance of Egyptian proposals for Palestinian self-rule would "distort" the Camp David agreements that form the basis for peace with Egypt.

In a speech to the B'nai B'rith organization in Jerusalem, Begin rejected Egypt's insistence that autonomy for Palestinian Arabs of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip include powers to legislate laws and establish courts.

Begin's remarks heightened the atmosphere of deadlock in the crucial talks. Earlier, Egypt rejected Israel's model for limited Palestinian autonomy.

Israel's chief negotiator on Palestinian self-rule, Interior Minister Yosef Burg, said Thursday the Egyptian rejection set the talks back six months.

Burg, in Tel Aviv, said he regards the Egyptian stand "as an undesirable slowdown in the pace of the talks," which Israel and Egypt have been conducting with little progress for eight months. The two are trying to resolve differences over the nature and extent of autonomy for the 1.2 million Palestinians in the Israelioccupied West Bank and Gaza. Egyptian officials at Thursday's Cairo meeting of groups from both countries and the United States, said the Israeli model did not present any new thinking and restricted the Palestinian council to an administrative role. Egypt favors expanded judicial and legislative authority for the Palestinians, while Israel favors a more limited administrative authority.

Burg told a hastily called news conference he was surprised at the tone of Egypt's rejection of the proposal, which was requested at the last plenary session of the negotiating teams. But the rejection itself was no surprise, he said. In Jerusalem, Israeli officials described as "far-fetched" U.S. assertions that rapid progress toward solving the Palestinian question would help resolve other Mideast problems.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, in a New York Times interview, and American sources in Israel in background briefings, linked autonomy progress with the crises over American hostages held in Iran and Soviet intervention in Afghanimade available popular paperback titles to persons in the six counties without a public library, was eliminated due to the most recent budget cut.

West Texas Library System May Get Cut In Budget

"Next we'll have to reduce one of the remaining programs," Stewart predicted. The library system underwrites additions to rural library collections, offers professional librarian consultation to staffs without a trained librarian and has a selection of 16mm films which last year reached some 300,000 viewers in the 27,500 square mile area.

Steward did not say which of the programs is likely to be cut back first.

Because populations in the urban areas, notably Houston and Dallas, are growing faster than those in West Texas, funding for the 10 major resource centers in the system is becoming increasingly unbalanced. Stewart explained

Recent state legislation specifies 1977 census bureau estimates, rather than the 1970 figures, must be used to determine fund allocation around the state.

According to the newer statistics, Lubbock's share of the state population has dropped more than half a point to under 5 percent, resulting in the estimated 4 percent cut to the $250,000 yearly budget.

Populations in the state's urban areas, on the other hand. have grown substantially in comparison to West Texas. Stewart said, and their funding has increased accordingly.

Houston and Dallas now have 47 percent of the state's population, compared to under 5 percent (in the Lubbockbased region). If this trend continues, there will be a few super systems and all the others will be left out," said Stewart.

He indicated the state library appropriation, which has been constant at $3.5 million over the past four years, is likely to remain so "during the next biennium.

If funds continue to run short, two or more of the major resource centers - probably Amarillo, Lubbock and Abilene - could be combined, Stewart said. However, he added, that alternative would offer few if any benefits.

We could group the three cities together so the combined district would have 10 percent of the population, and administrative costs might be reduced," Stewart said, "But in my opinion it would be less effective management because of the great distances involved.

Stewart stad he favors increasing state funding for the library system, and noted "the one bright, newly-organized light" on the problem is Texans for Libraries, which hopes to convince the state legislature to increase the system's al-

Board Approves Variances At Shopping Center

Avalanche-Journal Staff The Zoning Board of Adjustment approved variances in landscaping and setback requirements Thursday for a proposed shopping center to be constructed at West Fourth Street and Loop 289, but denied a variance in parking requirements. H. Lewis Swain, representing the Boyer Company, asked the board to approve the three variances for a 160,000square-foot center which will include an Albertson's and a Grand Central store. The board voted to approve the variance in landscaping requirements after Swain said extensive landscaping of a 15foot parkway along Fourth Street and the Loop 289 access road is planned. City regulations state the required 5 percent landscaping must be on the development lot, which would mean the center would have to have more than 28,-000 square feet of landscaping.

But if the parkway landscaping is considered. Swain said the center actually will exceed required landscaping by about 10,000 square feet spaces. However, he said there are plans to reduce the size of the Grand Central store by about 10,000 square feet, which would bring the center into compliance with parking regulations.

Swain had requested the required 940 spaces for the center be reduced to 850

With that information, the board denied the parking variance.

A variance in setback requirements for the Albertson's and two nearby buildings to be located along the Loop 289 access road was approved. However, the board denied a variance in the setback requirement for a third building in the complex on Fourth Street. That building must be set back 43 feet rather than the proposed 20 feet from the front property

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a pea-sized lump on right breast. I was referred to a surgeon, who wanted to do a biopsy. He said it was nothing to worry about, but that a biopsy was usual procedure.

I preferred a mammogram X-ray. The idea of cutting disturbed me. I got an appointment with another doctor. I told him I wanted a mammogram, and had one. It came back normal, I asked him about the value of the test and he said it would only detect high grade cancer.

Won't you please advise me? Was the test a waste of money, and do I still need a biopsy?-B.W.

Now I am totally confused.

Quit complaining. This is the only game short people can play. You want shoving? I'll show you what shoving is...

I told my husband, "Those kids take games too seriously. It's ridiculous. They re supposed to be having a good time, relaxing, but they're not. They're tense, pressured, irritable when they lose and the other day they played a game for four hours under a blanket so they could see the game board light up. Look at them. They look like they've just completed a death march."

"You know how kids are," said my husband. "They're immature. How about you and I playing a game of Sink the Sub?

I sat down and put the control in my hand. Within minutes, my husband had sunk three of my subs.

He laughed about it. I don't see anything humorous about three subs being sunk, but I suppose that's the traditional macho, male, mili-

I used your entire letter because your question is one that is raised by many other female readers.

Mammography, a special kind of breast x-ray, is only one of several ways to detect breast cancer.

You have a noticeable lump. The doctor doesn't need x-rays to tell him that. A mammogram can tell whether there are other breast masses that cannot be felt or seen. The mammogram also may show certain changes in the breast that can indicate a malignancy. So the mammogram can be a valuable tool.

Generally, however, breast lumps are biopsied for absolute proof of malignancy. This may not be necessary in each and every case. If the mammogram is normal and if all other signs point to a benign growth, a biopsy may not have to be done immediately. The lump can be watched.

You have to remember, though, that there are almost no 100 percent accurate tests in medicine. Decisions must be made after weighing all the evidence available. Is there cancer in your family, for example?

The doctor needs only a tiny sliver of tissue for study, so the prospect of the cutting should not cause cosmetic con-

Don't be misled by unsupported and UNTRUE CLAIMS ABOUT OUTSIDE INFLUENCE OR TAKEOVER

The claim that collective bargaining will bring outside labor bosses into Lubbock is totally ridiculous and unfounded. It is not supported by fact — In the nine Texas cities that have had collective bargaining (some for 5 years), firefighters have handled their own negotiations.

Our affiliation with the AFL-CIO is just that, an affiliation. The AFL-CIO has absolutely no authority in our local affairs. They cannot and would not interfere in our operations. Any claim to the contrary is an outright lie!

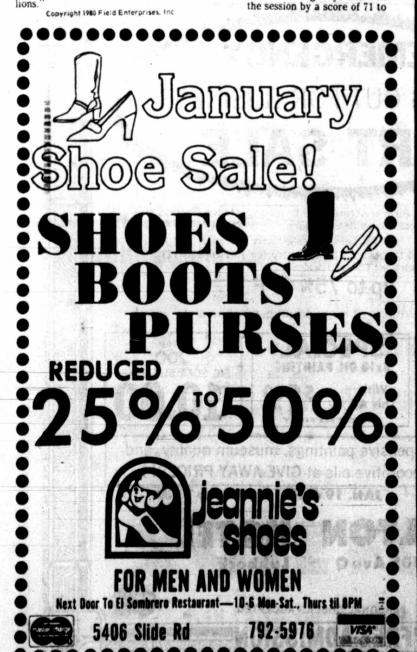

Our association consists strictly of firefighters. We have always and will continue to conduct all our affairs and business in an honorable, respectful manner

We would like to point out, however, that the City Administration belongs to a union, the Texas Municipal League. And, they use your tax dollars to pay their dues. Although you pay their dues, you, as a taxpaper, have no voice in their activities. CHECK IT OUT. There is nothing within the law we seek that can possibly limit the city's authority. This law merely requires the city to meet with us. This is also a fact!

Investment Required To Start Making Prints

Associated Press Writer

In my last column, I talked about how easy and inexpensive it is to process your own film. Now, let's go on to the next step, also relatively easy and inexpensive, making your own prints.

Again, you don't need a darkroom. A large closet or any room will do if you can seal off all extraneous light.

You've spent as little as $20 so far in order to process your film. Now, in order to make prints, you'll have to spend about $160 more.

It breaks down like this: enlarger $100, printing easel $12, safelight $7.50, trays for developer, fixer and water $6, print tongs $3, multigrade paper and fil-ter starter kit $16, blotter pad or book $10, paper developer and fixer $5.

Buy also a small, simply written booklet on black and white printing like Kodak's "Basic Developing, Printing and Enlarging" for $3. It will go into much more detail than I have room for here.

Chances are that you'll wind up spending even less than I've quoted. These are list prices. Many stores sell at discount prices or have starter packages where some items are added free. Check your local camera store or discounthouse catalog.

What I've listed here is a basic kit. water.

Later, if you like, you can expand to more and better things.

The most important item to consider is the enlarger and enlarger lens. The best ones sell for more than $1,200. Temper your purchase to what you can afford. The $100 enlarger is fine for a beginner. You can graduate to a better lens or even a better enlarger later. The rest of the items are standard.

Now, if you have a closet large enough for a table that will hold the enlarger and three 8-by 10-inch trays. you're in business. If not, it's not difficult to set up in any room so long as you can seal off the light by covering the windows with black plastic. You'll be working only by the yellow light of your safelight.

Making the prints comes next. Place the negative in the enlarger, adjust the size of the image by moving the enlarger head up and down. Focus onto the easel. turn off the enlarger light, load a piece of paper in the easel, turn on the enlarger and expose the paper for about eight sec-

Turn off the enlarger light, put the paper in the developer tray and agitate the print for a minute to a minute and a half, then transfer the print to the fixer tray for a few minutes and finally transfer the print to the last tray containing

Once the print has been fixed you can turn on the white light and look at it. If it's too light increase your exposure a few seconds. If it's too dark, decrease the exposure. Make small prints until you get to where you can judge your exposure.

For about $5 you can buy a Kodak projection print scale that will simplify the process of determining exposure time. For measuring time, I use the old "one chimpanzee, two chimpanzees" technique - a chimpanzee for each sec-

When you've made all the prints you want simply take the water tray full of prints into the kitchen or bathroom and wash them under running water for about 15 minutes. Then put the prints in your blotter book or roll to dry.

Printing papers are graded with numbers from one to five which represent degrees of contrast. The lowest number is the flattest and the high number most contrasty: Some papers have letters like S. H or UH meaning soft, hard and ultra hard which also designate the degree of contrast in the paper. There are also multi-grade papers that are exposed through numbered filters, usually numbered from one to 10. Again, the lower numbers give the flattest results and the high numbers the most contrast. Until you've learned to judge your negatives, start with a middle number and adjust after you see the results.

At some future date you may want to consider a few other accessories. A stabiand washing

Ancient Art Can Bring Beauty To Modern Home

Flower arranging is an ancient art that can certainly bring beauty to your modern home. By using pre-cut silk flower supplies available in craft shops, the arrangements can be changed to fit your mood and match your decor. The stepby-step instructions and diagrams cover everything from designating which flowers should become focal points — to the placement of filler materials.

This 15-page all-color instruction guide includes projects such as wedding bouquets, boutonnieres, and a wreath. The basic triangle, round and horizontal arrangements are all reviewed. Materials used are silk flowers, artifical fruit, styrofoam, floral clay, white glue, floral wire, and a knife.

TELLS OF PROBE - Houston attorney Bob Shults is seen as he testified before a House general investigating committee about North Texas State University in Austin

AUSTIN (AP) - A former white-collar crime investigator who looked into North Texas State University finances said Thursday laws are needed to break the "incestuous" relation between state universities and the schools' private fund-raising foundations.

Bob Shults's testimony came as the House General Investigating Committee continued its inquiry into alleged financial mishandling at the Denton university. Much of the testimony has involved transactions between the private NTSU Educational Foundation and the univers-

University officials also ran the private foundation.

There is a need to completely separate by law the operation of a foundation set up to support a government operation and that operation," testified Shults, who works for the committee.

The Houston lawyer spent months tracking the financial transactions between NTSU and the private foundation.

Shults said the school officials' "judgment becomes blurred as to where (certain donations) should go." He said the state needs "some preventative provision that requires this incestuous relation not

Nolen, who resigned in April as the committee inquiry began, drew $17,000 in salary supplements during his final year at NTSU, Shults said. Nolen has invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination when the committee questioned him about the transactions Shults said his research showed money raised to dedicate a room to a longtime NTSU music professor wound up in an account used to pay country club dues

Shults also testified about a $14,000 gift to the NTSU's Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine at Fort Worth. The estate that made the donation asked for repayment after it was discovered the money was deposited into an NTSU Educational Foundation account, rather than the intended account.

Nolen refused to answer questions about the Graham funds or the osteopathic donation.

Residents Near Golf Courses Want Club Community To Become Town

OLMITO, Texas (AP) - Texas will soon have a new town of Rancho Viejo consisting of a motel, country club and a convenience store - if Nick Ollinger has Ollinger and others living along the fairways of Rancho Viejo Resort's two golf courses aren't satisfied with their seemingly idyllic existence.

"It's sort of an American tradition to have a voice in your own destiny," says Ollinger, a 67-year-old retiree from Decatur, Ill., and president of the Rancho Viejo Property Owners Association.

The development appears to be the tropical paradise and golfer's dream for those tired of urban living.

Palm trees, citrus groves and other lush vegetation cover the 1,400 acres in the lower Rio Grande Valley. A resaca, similar to a bayou, winds by the houses, two restaurants, tennis courts and rental units on the property.

A 40,000-gallon water tower painted like a golf ball on a tee marks the resort just off the highway between Brownsville and Harlingen.

Since Rancho Viejo opened in 1974, it has suffered shaky financial periods. The first corporate owner went bankrupt and a Pittsburgh, Pa., bank controlled the area before selling in 1978 to a semi-retired contractor from Kansas City, Mo.

Three corporations handle the country club, the Best Western-affiliated motel and sales of lots and homes.

Mo. Q-119 — AMERICA'S FAVORITE AFGHANS. A beautiful selection. No. Q-120 — MAKE A GIFT. Many gifts for friends and family. Farmers, Ranchers Say Sheep

Not Protected From Coyotes AUSTIN (AP) - Texas farmers and ranchers complained Tuesday that the federal government sides with environmentalists in the long, controversial battle against sheep-killing coyotes. My job is to remove predators from any area where there are problems,' Secretary of Interior Cecil Andrus told a 'summit' conference of governmental officials, environmentalists and Texas livestock men sponsored by the Texas Agriculture Department. "But it is not my job to eradicate an entire species." I'd like to see the coyote on the endangered species list," said Bill Sims, executive director of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Assocition. "That would here would be so fe would not have to worry about them.'

State agriculture department officials explained the conference was not designed to furnish a solution to coyote control in Texas but "to get the leaders together and identify the problems so we can work out differences.

State statistics show a loss of $21 million to the Texas livestock industry from predators in 1979. In 1978, predators were responsible for 58 percent of sheep and lamb losses, compared with 25 percent in 1967. Goat and kid deaths from predators amounted to 72 percent compared with 45 percent in 1967. Coyotes were blamed for the largest single cause, killing 24 percent of all sheep and goats. Sims said that under Andrus's administration the coyote is treated as an endangered species "which it certainly is not. We don't want to kill all the coyotes. We just want to keep their numbers under control when necessary to prevent massive livestock damages.

Sirhs'said Andrus had appointed Cynthia Wilson, formerly a lobbyist for a leading environmental organization, as his special assistant to advise him of the predator control program. "This is like having the fox take care of the hen

Sims presented similar pleas from the Texas Farm Bureau and the Texas Animal Damage Control Association that farmers and ranchers be allowed to use lethal chemicals in the fight against coy-

He urged authorization of a "toxic collar" that would be worn by a lamb or kid and would kill a coyote if it attacked

Andrus said his department killed 66,-000 coyotes last year and 61,000 the year before, "so that shows we are working."

He said the long-range plan of his department was to phase out lethal preventive controls as non-lethal methods are developed. He repeated a November policy statement banning the use of Compound 1080, a highly toxic but effective control substance. He also outlawed killing coyote pups in the den home ownership and residents pay monthly service fees for streets, security and garbage pickup.

Why would anyone want to invite pos sible taxation and other problems of incorporation?

Ollinger says he and others are concerned about the area's stability in light of its three owners in four years. He says he has no quarrels with the present proprietor, Ted Trapp.

If the 230 fulltime residents approve ncorporation in an election Saturday, Ollinger says maybe something can be arranged with Trapp to contract for private street, security and garbage services.

He says he sees nothing strange with a country club community becoming a

Other residents say he's crazy but they doubt their strength to stop him and the 100 others who have signed petitions to incorporate.

"In looking at the application for incorporation, you'll find they're all retired. They're good folks but they don't have anything to keep them busy," says attorney Joel Ellis, Rancho Viejo resi-

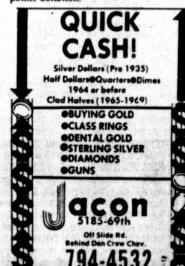

This is one way they want to control

Ted Trapp," said Ellis. "Tell me one thing we are going to get in Rancho Viejo that we don't already have."

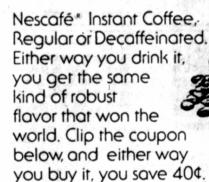

Ellis says Ollinger and others are trying to scare residents into believing the city of Brownsville wants to annex Rancho Viejo, which is in its extraterritorial jurisdiction. Brownsville officials have no objection to the incorporation petition.

Brownsville would have to assume a $4.4 million bonded indebtedness of the utility district and provide fire and police protection, all beyond the city's present ability, says Ellis.

Trapp has refused to discuss the mat-ter publicly. His friends say he feels incorporation would hurt the development's future. On the other hand, he no longer would be obligated to provide services and could still collect country club membership dues.

San Diego Zoo Visit Memorable

There are zoos — and there are Zoos! Most zoos are merely convenient places where people look at confined animals. However, a zoo should be a pleasant environment for resident animals as well as a memorable experience for human visitors. The San Diego Zoo meets both criteria while being one of the best zoological operations any-

"We have a hundred acres here," noted San Diego resident Reed Pierce as he guided this writer about the world famous facility. "The efficient use of the acreage combined with the southern California climate allow the animals to be exhibited in open habitats whenever possible."

A professional botanist associated with Ecology Impact Studies, Reed Pierce took the opportunity to add, "Besides the animals, the San Diego Zoo also has plants from many foreign lands. So, the zoo is also a botanical garden that enhances a visit any season of the year. And there are plants here that provide a part of some of the animals' diets. For instance, leaves from the eucalyptus trees are eaten by the koalas.

The reference to koalas was a matter-of-fact statement for a San Diego resident. Actually, the San Diego Zoo koalas have become world famous as the only members of their species outside Australia. They are viewed by more than 1 1/2 million zoo visitors each year. Incidentally, although the cuddly animal is the original "teddy bear" it is not a bear. The koala is a marsupial that carries its young in a pouch on its abdomen.

Altogether, the San Diego Zoo has approximately 3,500 animals representing more than 800 species. The species are grouped in appropriate habitat clusters. To make a zoo outing as comfortable as possible for visitors of all ages, there are two moving sidwalks, a sky-ride and a three-mile guided bus

Because the zoo's subtropical landscaping ranges from canyons to mesas, it's wise to get a map at the visitor center and perhaps take the Skyfari for an over-all view of areas containing most of the world's exotic wildlife.

Africa is represented by ponderous elephants, graceful gazelles, gawking ostriches, chest-beating gorillas and waddling hippos, plus many lesser known animals seldom seen at other zoos. Plant life from Africa includes the spiney spurge, Cape leadwort, bird of paradise and viper's bugloss.

From the vast continent of Eurasia are animals such as the Turkomen markhor; the large goat's spiraling horns have to be seen to be believed. Be sure to look for the snow leopards; they're seldom observed by man in the wild, and rarely seen in zoological parks. The Thailand Bay owl is a picturesque bird of prey; be sure to include its feathered legs if you take its picture.

Some of the world's most interesting animals are native to the Australian continent, such as New Zealand's kiwi, that dates back one million years. The hairy-nosed wombat and the Tasmanian devil (both are marsupials) are interesting zoo residents, as is the tree kangaroo.

The Oceanic Islands between the southwest Pacific and the Indian Ocean along the Equator are reperesented by the rock hopper penguin, the monkey-like Mindanao tarsier, the proboscis monkey that may remind you of Jimmy Durante, plus many other interesting species.

Native to Indonesian islands east of Java, the Komodo "dragon" monitor is the world's largest living lizard. Also in the heavyweight class are Galapagos tortoises, with an adult weight for males of 500 pounds. Once reduced to near extinction, the tortoises are thriving at the San Diego Zoo where dozens of young have been hatched.

The zoo's conservation programs have studied reproductive behavior for many endangered species and there is research in animal nutrition.

Birds from all areas of the world inhabit the vast park. Peacocks roam freely and their calls are so constant that a brief moment of silence is noticeable. Other feathered residents include northern Egyptian plovers, fig parrots, cockatoos, crowned cranes, Senegal hoopoes, white Bali mynahs and me Aru double-wattled cassowary. There are walk-through aviaries where colorful birds fly above and below you because of the multi-level landscaping. In one arriary, a patient visitor's outstretched finger can become a momentary perchalor a hummingbird.

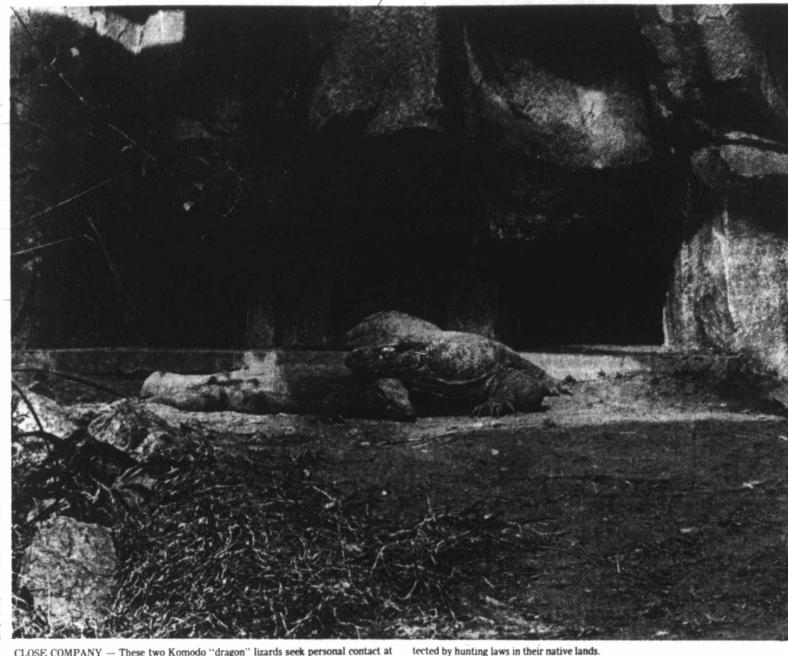

With entertaining animal shows, there's a lot to see and do at the San Diego Zoo, so it's best to allot a full day for a visit. A panaoramic restaurant, along with refreshment stands and picnic groves, make a day-long visit an enjoyable outing. And there are facilities for handicapped visitors.

Admission is $3 for adults; children under 15 years of age with an adult are admitted free of charge. There are nominal fees for the guided bus tour, Skyfari and the Children's Zoo. The zoo, open every day, is in Balboa Park, near several museums and art galleries.

General visitor information is available from the San Diego Zoological Society, P.O. Box 551, San Diego 92112. The non-profit society also operates the San Diego Wild Animal Park, about 30 miles northeast of San Diego in rural San Pasqual Valley. The 1,800-acre animal preserve has a monorail train so visitors can easily view animals roaming free, and there is also a safe hiking

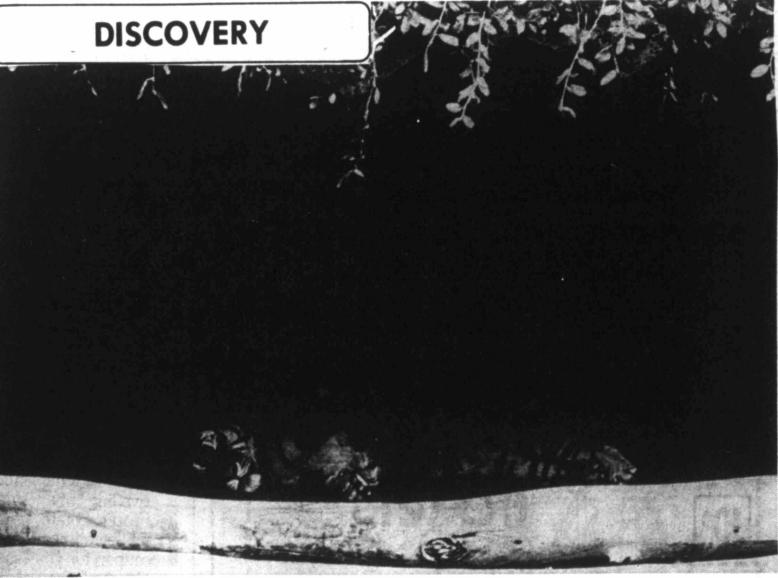

AERIAL TRANSPORTATION - A cable lift provides a bird's-eye view of the 100acre San Diego Zoo. Moving sidewalks and bus tours are also available to visitors.

Marijuana May Benefit Cancer Patients

BOSTON (AP) - The active ingredient in marijuana is a "safe and effective" way to prevent nausea in cancer patients, although one side effect is a drug high, a research team says.

The study is the first to compare THC, the chemical that gives pot its kick, with conventional anti-nausea medicine in patients who are made sick by chemotherapy for cancer.

The report found THC pills worked twice as well as the drugs usually pre-scribed for such nausea. Many patients' nausea disappeared and their appetites

Nausea and severe bouts of vomiting are often the most distressing side effect of chemotherapy. Doctors say some patients choose to die of cancer rather than submit to weeks or months of nausea.

The study was conducted at the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute in Boston and was published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The federal government provides THC - short for delta-9-tetrahydrocannabolinol - to some hospitals for testing, but it is considered experimental and is not widely available.

In 1978, New Mexico became the first state to permit cancer victims to use marijuana to relieve effects of treatment. Since then, several other state have passed similar laws

Carol Cronin, one of the Boston researchers, said, "I see absolutely no reason whatsoever why patients cannot take THC if it works for them. If it's going to help a patient, then they should have it."

She said that because THC is hard to obtain in pill form, some cancer patients have tried to control nausea by smoking marijuana. This usually works for them, she said, "depending on the grade of the marijuana they receive."

The cancer institute reported five years ago that THC controls nausea far

Of 79 who took THC, 36 patients, or 46 percent, said their nausea completely disappeared and 10 others said they felt somewhat better. By comparison, 78 took Compazine, one of the most common anti-nausea drugs, and 16 patients, or 21 percent, said their nausea stopped, while another 15 felt a bit better.

Of 25 people who took both THC and Compazine, 20 said they preferred THC.

"These data demonstrate that THC is a safe and effective antiemetic (nausea and vomiting suppressor) for patients receiving chemotherapy for cancer," the researchers wrote.

The researchers found almost everyone who was helped by THC also got high. One patient who had often used marijuana pulled out of the study because he found the THC high to be too in-

The doctors found that half of the pa-tients who became high also had better appetites — a side effect also known to marijuana users. This is important, because when patients are nauseous, they often refuse to eat and become weak and dehydrated.

Studies Show Marijuana May Influence Fertility

WASHINGTON (AP) - Smoking marijuana may cause temporary female infertility and could increase the danger of miscarriages, medical researchers told a congressional panel Wednesday.

Dr. Harris Rosenkrantz, director of the Mason Research Institute in Worcester, Mass., said women who smoke marijuana "play Russian roulette" with the lives of their unborn babies.

"I think there is a potential hazard, especially in the early days of gestation," said Rosenkrantz. "If you smoke marijuana you're not going to have a deformed baby - but you may lose the baby you actually want."

But the researchers testifying before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on criminal justice agreed for the most part that insufficient data has been gathered to determine the risk of physical or men-tal damage to infants born to women who smoke marijuana.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., chairman of the Senate panel, said the subcommittee should re-evaluate legislation drafted last year that would soften the federal penalties for possession of small amounts of marijuana.

Mathias said the measure must be reconsidered "in the light of current assessment of the dangers to public health." The bill is pending before the Rosenkrantz said he drew his conclusions on the effects of marijuana from laboratory experiments on mice, rats and rabbits. He said there was a higher incidence of fetal death when the mother was exposed to marijuana smoke.

Dr. Ethel N. Sassenrath of the University of California, said that in her research on monkeys, 40 percent of the pregnant animals inhaling marijuana had miscarriages, compared to 10 percent of those that were not exposed to the what effect the marijuana had on monkeys exposed before birth to marijuana

She said all physical appearances of the baby monkeys are normal, but there are "subtle" signs that they don't adjust as well in social and learning situations.

Dr. Joan Bauman, a research associate at the Masters and Johnson Institute, said a study of women in St. Louis showed those who smoke marijuana may have shorter menstrual cycles than those who do not. But she said the results were inconclusive.

However, because of the possible effects on the hormonal system, she advised female teen-agers to refrain from smoking marijuana at least until their menstrual cycles are well developed.

In other testimony, Dr. William Pollin, director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, said the use of marijuana among high school seniors is still rising, although "I think over the past year there is an increasing negative attitude among the seniors toward marijuana use.... There is a real pullback because of the widespread awareness of the health hazards."

MIDSHIPMEN EXPELLED

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Two more U.S. Naval Academy midshipmen have been expelled and a third has resigned, actions the academy says end its nine-month inquiry into student drug use. The academy announced the expulsions and resignations Thursday. They bring to 16 the number of midshipmen separated from the school as a result of drug violations in the spring of 1979. Rear Adm. William P. Lawrence, academy superintendent, reaffirmed the school's policy against drug use, saying, "...we do not contemplate changing our strict prohibition against drug abuse."

TOKYO (AP) - Narcotics agents estioned Paul McCartney on Thursday out the half-pound of marijuana he alegedly brought into the country, then officers led him past a crowd of shouting ananese fans to his second night in jail.

The 37-year-old former Beatle was ar-rested Wednesday shortly after he arrived at the new Tokyo International Airport at Narita for a concert tour that now has been canceled.

McCartney and members of his rock group "Wings" had been scheduled to give 11 concerts in Tokyo, Osaka and Nagoya from Jan. 21 to Feb. 2.

The Tokyo newspaper sponsoring the concerts, Yomiuri, canceled the tour. The paper said 100,000 tickets had been sold. McCartney's Japanese agent estimated that $1.8 million would be returned to ticketholders.

Officials of the narcotics office told Japanese reporters McCartney was cooperative in response to their questions. They gave no details, except that he said he obtained the marijuana from friends in the United States, that he had used marijuana for 11 years and had been fined in Scotland and Sweden in 1971 for possessing marijuana. Officials said they asked McCartney whether he slept well Wednesday night.

If the prosecutor's office decides to press charges a magistrate could approve bail. Once he was free on bail he would be free to leave Japan as there is no provision in Japanese law to detain him in the country in that status, officials said.

If he is formally charged he will face trial in Japan that could take months or even years. However, Japanese news reports said it was likely he would be expelled without facing formal charges.

Although Japan enforces its drug laws strictly, in recent years the courts have shown leniency in sentencing, with most first-time offenders being given fines and probation if they acknowledge their guilt.

Groups Suing Government Consumer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two consumer groups filed a suit against the government Thursday asking that it be forced to stop paying for 350 drugs prescribed for Medicaid and Medicare patients which haven't been proven effective. The suit was filed in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia by Public Citizen Health Research Group, a Ralph Nader affiliate, and the National Council of Senior Citizens.

The drugs which are being challenged by the groups generate sales of $100 million a year in connection with the two federal health programs and over $1 bil-

There was no immediate comment from HEW pending review of the law-

The Food and Drug Administration is in the process of reviewing all prescription drugs which went on the market between 1938 and 1962. Some of them already have been pulled back because the review found them to be ineffective.

The consumer groups' challenge is based on a study performed by the National Academy of Science on behalf of the FDA which showed that several hundred drugs lacked substantial evidence of their effectiveness but were still being sold. The study was conducted in

In the letter to Mrs. Harris, Wolfe cited an internal memorandum from the HEW general counsel which stated that the secretary has the legal authority to adopt regulations which would deny pay-

Conferees Agree On Windfall Tax Rate For Oil Production

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate and House conferees agreed Thursday that two-thirds of current U.S. oil production should face a "windfall" tax rate of 65 to

The tentative decision was one of three comparatively minor agreements reached by the panel. The big issues remain: how to split the tax between the major oil companies and independent producers, and how to spend the money the tax will bring in over the next dec-

•The "windfall" tax will take away 65 to 70 percent of future price increases for "old" oil - generally that discovered before 1973 - and "new" oil, which was

House had voted for a 60 percent tax and the Senate for 75 percent By voice vote, the conferees agreed The tax will apply to price increases for "new" oil above $12.80, which will be adjusted each year to offset inflation. The House had set a $12.75 base price while the Senate had voted for $13.

That decision was no surprise since the

 A House-passed provision reducing the tax on "new" oil in 1986 would be Together, "old" and "new" oil ac-count for about 5.8 million barrels of oil daily, or 67 percent of current U.S. oil production. That percentage will drop steadily over the next several years.

In making those decisions, the conferees delayed a confrontation over splitting the burden of the windfall tax between the major international oil companies and the independent producers.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House conferees, pressed for the panel to take a big step toward simplification of the complex tax by eliminating, for tax purposes, any distinction between "old"

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chief advocate of a lower rax burden on independents, refused to go along on grounds the major firms would benefit most from merging the two tax levels.

The conferees agreed before the Christmas holidays that the new tax on the oil industry should bring the federal government $227.3 billion in the 1980s a split half-way between the different versions passed by the House and Senate.

In reaching that figure, the panel probably will have to toughen the fax on oil yet to be discovered, reduce the Senate-passed exemption of 1,000 barrels per day produced by independents, or a combination of the two.

President Carter proposed the tax to take away some of the extra $1 trillion that will be taken from consumers by the oil industry over the next decade because of his decision to phase out federal price controls on U.S. crude oil.

AUSTIN (AP) - Chairman John Poerner of the Texas Railroad Commission urged representatives of the oil and gas industry Thursday to get their bosses to speak out at the commission's "state of the industry" meeting March 19.

Poerner told the statewide oil allowable hearing 1980 would be a "crucial year" for the petroleum industry. "I would like to ask all of you who represent companies to ask your chief executive officers to be present" at the March meeting in Austin, Poerner said. "We will not only look to the past . we will look to the future to see where we are going," said Poerner.

Oil Companies Plan Boost In Spending

NEW YORK (AP) - Exxon Corp. said Thursday it plans to boost spending for petroleum exploration and develop ment and other projects by about $1 billion over 1979's outlay to $7.5 billion.

The statement by the nation's largest oil company followed an announcement by 11th-ranked Phillips Petroleum Co. that it plans a $1.9 billion 1980 capital spending program, up from the $1.4 billion scheduled for 1979.

Several other major oil companies including Shell Oil Co., Atlantic Richfield Co., Conoco Inc., and Standard Oil Company (Ohio) - also have announced capital spending boosts in recent days.

Exxon Chairman Clifton C. Garvin Jr. said in a prepared statement that last year's capital spending program was "in excess of $6.5 billion," and the magnitude of the 1980 plan "is an indication of the challenges facing us in energy to-

Exxon plans to spend 88 percent of its capital budget on energy programs this year, and "the prospect is for steadily expanding outlays in the years ahead to find, develop and bring to market the new sources of energy on which we will be relying in the future," Garvin said.

Phillips' chairman, William F. Martin, said "our strong earnings performance is allowing us to expand substantially our expenditures to increase energy

Phillips also announced it plans acquire up to 2.25 million of its shares, primarily for its employee benefit plans.

MARIJUANA ISSUE WASHINGTON (AP) - The question of reducing the penalty for possession of marijuana would be a major 1980 presidential campaign issue, if the National Anti-Drug Coalition has its way. The group is asking presidential candidates to state on the record whether they favor reducing the penalty.

Poerner said the three-member commission, which regulates Texas's oil and gas industry, wants "input from people who have been producing." The commission routinely set the statewide oil allowable for February at 100 percent.

As usual, however, the large East Texas field was held to an 86 percent production factor to avoid possible waste.

The allowable has been 100 percent each month except three since April

Prior to announcing the February allowable, Poerner noted that crude and petroleum product imports into the United States totaled 8,123,000 barrels per day for 1979, a decrease of 6,000 barrels a day from 1978. Major buyers of Texas crude oil said they would like to acquire 2,652,720 barrels a day in February, a decrease of 18,-758 barrels daily from January.

Company spokesmen said, however, lower nominations for crude oil in February did not indicate the demand for oil had declined but merely reflected what the companies hoped to purchase. L.R. Williams of Union Oil Co. of California said Union's nomination was 1,-700 barrels a day lower in February but added, "This doesn't mean we want less crude - it's just closer to reality of what we are getting.

AVOR AND

.WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter gave the go-ahead Thursday to a 1 23 billion proposal to build a new all-American petroleum pipeline from Port Angeles, Wash., to the upper Middle West.

Carter gave the privately sponsored Northern Tier Pipeline Co. one year to arrange financing for the two-year project intended to bring crude oil from Alaska, Indonesia and the West to the American heartland.

If Northern Tier is unable to obtain the necessary private funds within 12 months, a White House announcement said, the president will favor a $574 million alternative proposed by Trans Mountain Oil Pipeline Corp.

Trans Mountain would build a line from Low Point, Wash.. to Edmonton, Alberta, where it would link up with existing pipelines to the U.S. Midwest. Carter's decision was based on recommendations by Interior Secretary Cecil Rejected were two rival pipeline plans: one for an overland route across Canada from Alaska and a second for a pipeline from a Canadian port to Ed-

The importance of the pipeline project to Midwestern states has been underscored by a Canadian decision to end crude oil exports to the United States

Carter was said to have concluded the Northern Tier route was best be-

•It would be situated entirely within the United States, providing Americans with more than 5,500 pipeline jobs and expanding local tax bases. •No Canadian permits would be needed, which would eliminate a potential use for delay, and pipeline operations would be wholly under U.S. control. •The Northern Tier plan would be more flexible, would have a larger capacity and could accept crude oil from a broader range of sources.

"Notwithstanding approval by the president," the announcement said, Northern Tier must comply with the state and local laws and procedures of the jurisdictions in which the pipeline is located.

The Northern Tier route would extend for 1.491 miles from Port Angeles to Clearbrook, Minn. Initial capacity would be 709,000 barrels a day, which could be expanded to 933,000 barrels.

The Trans Mountain line would involve 721 miles of new pipe carrying 500,-000 barrels a day, expandable to 630,000 barrels.

Technically, Carter declared the Northern Tier project to be in the national interest, making it eligible for accelerated regulatory handling

The president conditioned his decision on a requirement that the four major Puget Sound refineries would have access to the new pipeline. The aim would be virtually to eliminate tanker traffic in the sound east of Port Angeles.

Old Oil Fields Easing Foreign Oil Need

MIDLAND (UPI) — The Sand Hills oil field, an important chapter in Texas' oil-rich past, peaked in production in 1944 and didn't figure to play much of a role in Texas' energy future. But given the new energy economics, old Texas oil fields may never die. They may, instead, make their owners wealthy while supplying domestic crude to ease the nation's foreign addiction.

Exxon USA owns the 7,600-acre Sand

Hills field and is inviting attention to the result higher prices for domestic crude have had on recent production.

From the 1944 high of 2,360 barrels per day. Sand Hills slumped to a low of 540 barrels per day in 1958. The lower production remained constant until the early 1970s when Exxon tried to sell the field but found no one interested its diminished, $3-per-barrel output.
Then came the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, OPEC and fastclimbing foreign oil prices. Although the federal government retained price controls on oil, the embargo spurred regulators to boost the ceiling 'new" crude. Then in 1976, stripper well production entered the free market

Oil from Sand Hills stipper wells that sold for an average $3.68 per barrel in 1973, now sells at the free market price of $35. New oil has pushed up to a current (but still controlled) price of $13.74. All oil is going to become steadily more valuable by the end of next year, making Sand Hills a drilling hotspot.

"The rig drills a new well every nine days," said Exxon engineer Russ White. "Under the old prices, we couldn't afford to drill this field."

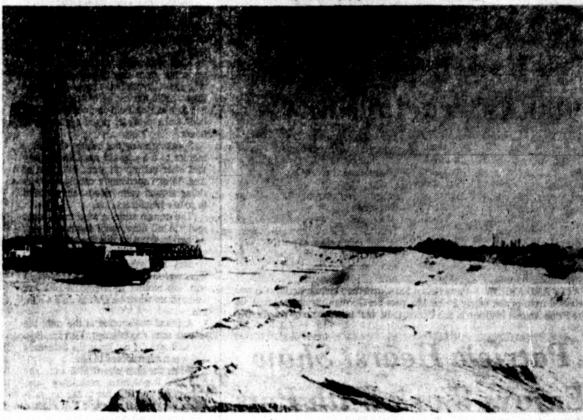

The 1980 production figures of 2,200 barrels per day rival the World War IIera high. Higher prices financed the $19 million investment in the stepped-up drilling program. Another $8 million. Exxon says, went toward expanding the Sand Hills gas plant. Natural gas production has increased 20 percent in the last five years, reaching 60 million cubic feet White said well spacing has been reduced from one well every 80 acres to one every 40 acres and because there practically is no natural pressure in the field, most wells are put on a pump as soon as they are completed.

Exxon said it may drill as many as 64 the new drilling program, Exxon said the field probably would have died out in the mid-1980s. Now, if another well were not drilled, production would continue until

U.S. Crude Oil Production Sees Decline

NEW YORK (AP) - U.S. crude oil production fell by 2.2 percent last year from 1978's total, the American Petroleum Institute said Wednesday.

In a year-end estimate, the industry organization also said oil companies' 1979 deliveries of gasoline from refineries, pipelines and major bulk storage terminals fell to 7 million barrels a day, off by 5.1 percent from 7.4 million in 1978. But with an increasing number of new cars requiring unleaded fuel in order not to foul air-pollution equipment, deliver-ies of unleaded gasoline jumped by 11.5 percent to 2.8 million barrels a day.

A barrel is equivalent to 42 gallons The organization said spiraling gasoline prices, up by about 60 percent during 1979, as well as federally-mandated newcar fuel economy regulations, helped cut back U.S. gasoline use.

U.S. crude oil production totaled an estimated 8.5 million 42-gallon barrels of oil a day last year, the API said, down from 8.7 million in 1978 and 8.2 million in Domestic crude oil output peaked at 9.6 million barrels a day in 1970 and had dropped steadily through 1976 to 8.1 million barrels daily.

Imports of crude oil and petroleum products fell by 0.4 percent last year to 17 million barrels a day from 8.2 million in 1978. Daily crude oil imports alone were up by 2.3 percent, however, at 6.3 million barrels.

According to the API, deliveries of distillates — used for home heating and diesel fuels — fell by 2.6 percent to 3.3 million barrels last year. But industry stockpiles of distillates amounted to 227.3 million barrels on Dec. 31. up 5 percent from a year before. Industry spokesmen have said conservation efforts caused by rising prices, along with mild winter weather, combined to trim U.S. heating oil demand.

Imports of residual fuel oil — used as an industrial fuel and for heating large apartment buildings, were off by 19.5 percent at 1.09 million barrels a day, the U.S. refineries ran at 84.8 percent of capacity last year, against 87.9 percent in 1978, the organization said.

Patricia Hearst Shaw Enjoys Work With Pets

SAN CARLOS, Calif. (AP) - It's been nearly a year since Patricia Hearst Shaw, a one-time kidnap victim, was released from prison. Of late, she's been doing volunteer work at an animal training center in suburban San Francisco. Earlier this week, the newspaper heiress sent out invitations to attend a Prion Animal Institute seminar this weekend on the care and training of pets at

Canada College in Woodside. A friend of Mrs. Shaw's, Robert Outman, is coordinating the program. He is also president of the Prion Animal Institute, where Mrs. Shaw trained her German shepherd, Arrow. It was the second time in less than a year that Mrs. Shaw, who has chosen to lead the quiet life of a suburban housewife in nearby Redwood City, has emerged to help out with a Prion program.

A few months ago, she participated in a program which trained beagles to sniff out termites.

Otherwise, Mrs. Shaw has generally avoided public exposure. Instead, friends say, she has worked on becoming a good cook. She is also said to enjoy family gatherings.

Her husband and former bodyguard, policeman Bernard Shaw, is still with the San Francisco police force. The couple was married April 1, 1979, two months after she was released from prison on a presidential pardon of her conviction of joining her Symbionese Liberation Army captors in a San Francisco bank robbery

She was abducted from her Berkeley apartment in February 1974 and was arrested in San Francisco in September 1975. A jury found her guilty of the bank robbery charges. She served less than two years of a seven-year sentence.

Family Of Dead Marine Asks To Sue Uncle Sam

a dead Marine recruit has asked the Supreme Court to allow it to pursue a multimillion dollar damage suit against the U.S. government on the grounds he was recruited illegally.

Lynn McClure of Lufkin was knocked case. out Dec. 6, 1975, during a succession of pugil stick bouts at a San Diego training

The 20-year-old recruit had been motivation platoon twice going on unauthorized leave.

McClure died at a Houston veterans hospital three months after he was knocked unconscious. His family, contending he was mentally retarded and should never have been recruited, filed a federal court suit in California seeking $14 million in damages for wrongful death and personal in-Defendants named were the U.S. government and top government officials. U.S. District Judge William Enright dismissed the suit in 1977, referring to a previous U.S. Supreme Court ruling that servicemen cannot sue the government for injuries suffered during active duty. The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in September upheld Enright's decision.

The problem is we can never get to try the case because it's always dismissed for McClure's family, said in a telephone interview from his California office. "It's a very, very tough case."

Cohn filed a petition in December asking the Supreme Court to review the

"Our argument is, of course, that he (McClure) was incompetent to enter into the contract." Cohn said.

According to Cohn's argument, McClure's agreement with the Marine therefore was void from the beginning and a damage suit can be filed. The federal judge who first dismissed the case found that neither incompetence nor alleged recruiting violations would have created an exception allowing McClure's family to sue the government. Cohn quoted from a letter written by Betty Calhoun, McClure's mother, that "You can't know how deep it hurts me that nothing can be done. ... He just shouldn't have been in the Marines; there is no way he could have passed the test himself.

Reports on the circumstances surrounding McClure's death won a Pulitzer Prize for his hometown newspaper, the Lufkin News.

An investigation followed the death and five officers were suspended from duty involving recruit training stopped his patrol car behind accused rapist William Keith Carruth and his alleged victim Aug. 16, 1979, told told a jury Thursday the defendant volunteered two stories as to why he was with the woman that morning.

Police Officer Testifies In Rape Trial

Patrolman Gaylon Lewis was one of seven witnesses called to the 140th District Court stand Thursday as the 22-yearold Carruth's trial for aggravated rape

Most of Thursday's testimony, however, came from the 20-year-old woman who says Carruth is the man who forced his way into her car early Aug. 16, drove her to a cotton field in Southwest Lubbock and repeatedly raped her for three

Speaking softly but calmly, the young mother of a 3-year-old son told the jury that after getting off work the night of Aug. 15 and spending a couple of hours riding around with friends, she decided to go to a 19th Street club.

The woman said she went to the night spot "to kill time" until she had to pick up her husband at the bus station. She said her husband of four years had been visiting relatives in Houston about a week and she had left her child overnight with her mother so she could pick her husband up when he arrived on a 4 a.m.

A friend she spotted at the club, the woman said, was talking to Carruth. But, she said, she did not know the defendant and was not introduced to him.

When the club closed at 2 a.m., she told the five-woman, seven-man jury, Carruth walked with her to her car, talk ing to her. She said she told him she had to leave, but when she got into her car, Carruth pulled a knife, placed it at her throat and forced himself into the driver's seat.

He drove out of the club's parking lot. she said, striking a fire hydrant on the passenger side. The collision, she said, dented and jammed the passenger door of her Chevrolet Camaro, making it impossible for her to escape through the

As sunrise approached, she said, she was able to get him to leave the field by telling him the landowner probably would come to the field to do some work. She told prosecutor Mark McBride that after leaving the alleged rape scene. Carruth drove through the city and told her he planned to continue raping her. She said she finally was able to attract the attention of a police officer who followed the car about a block and also halted when Carruth stopped at a stop sign at 65th Street and Canton Avenue, about 11 houses from his 2822 65th St. residence. When Carruth stopped the car, she said, she was able to throw the vehicle's gear shift into park, pull the keys from the ignition and climb out of the passen-Lewis said he saw the woman mouth something to him as the car in which she was riding passed him headed south on Elgin Avenue. Lewis said when the Camaro stopped at the intersection, he turned on his patrol car's red lights.

At that same time, he said, he saw the female passenger lean over to the driver's side of the car and then climb out the vehicle's window.

Lewis added that the Camaro had a three-to-four foot "gash" along the passenger side and when he later tried to open the vehicle's right door, it would

Lewis said Carruth also got out of the car and both he and the woman were coming toward his police cruiser when the woman said Carruth had held her prisoner all night and repeatedly raped her. But, the police officer said Carruth told him, "That's a lie. I found her sitting at 57th and Boston. Her husband took the kids and left her

Lewis said he asked Carruth to wait in the Camaro while he talked with the woman in his police car. After questioning the alleged victim, Lewis said, he got out of his car and headed toward the Camaro to hear Carruth's version of the in-

As he was headed toward the other car, Lewis said, a man in a pickup truck drove up behind the police vehicle. LewCamaro, then said, "I was with this guy all morning," pointing at the driver of the truck.

The officer said he questioned the driver of the truck, who reportedly said he did not know Carruth.

Lewis added that Carruth's statements that morning were unsolicited and made before Carruth had been placed

On cross-examination, defense attorney Bob Jones emphasized the officer's failure to include the statements in his report and his failure to obtain the name of the driver of the pickup truck.

Avalanche-Journal Staff A Lubbock County Sheriff's Deputy nspecting a damaged sheriff's car was in the right place at the right time to thwart an escape attempt by a 19-year-old Lubbock County Jail inmate Thursday morn-Willie David Jordan of Shallowater was captured after a foot chase through an alley and parking lot and charged with escape Thursday afternoon. The criminal district attorney's office recommended bond at $50,000.

The escape attempt occurred about 11:25 a.m., and Jordan, who was clad in white overalls, was apprehended about 15 minutes later by Deputy David Gutierrez in an area about two blocks north of Reports show that Jordan was in the first floor booking area with several other inmates for sick call. Deputy Ron Jenkins, who was in an adjacent room, electronically opened the door to allow a delivery man out of the booking area and saw Jordan partially knock the man down and run out the front door. Jenkins and another deputy pursued Jordan, who ran north up an alley between Main Street and 10th Street.

Gutierrez, who was in a parking lot off the alley surveying a damaged sher-

Workshop On Labor Slated For Saturday

A workshop on "Unions and American Democracy" is scheduled beginning at 8 a.m. Saturday in the Carpenters Hall

The workshop is part of a series of programs being conducted across the state under the coordination of the Texas AFL-CIO and the Labor Council for Latin American Advancement. Lubbock's Central Labor Council is sponsoring the Speakers at the day-long workshop will be T.J. McConnell, president of the local council; Walter Allison, vice president of the Texas AFL-CIO; State Rep. Froy Salinas, who will discuss legislative issues; and Stephen Rubenfeld, professor of business at Texas Tech University.

Other speakers will include Manuel Ysaguirre, Texas AFL-CIO human rela-iff's vehicle, saw the running inmate and ran after him. Gutierrez reportedly twice ordered the inmate to stop, but the man continued running, crossing 10th Street and going up Avenue G.

Reports show the inmate then ran into a parked car, knocking himself to the ground. But Jordan reportedly got up, looked at Gutierrez and began running again. The deputy then drew his service revolver, yelled at the prisoner to "halt or I'll shoot," and Jordan stopped. Gutierrez, along with help from several other deputies, returned the man to jail.

Jordan, who was assessed 40 years in prison in November for his role in the July 12 burglary of a Lubbock County residence, was in the county jail awaiting formal sentencing before he is transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville.

Jordan was arrested about an hour after the July 12 break-in when a police dog tracked him to a building more than half a mile from the burglary.

Jordan was discovered on top of a building at Quirt Avenue and 114th Street, a .22-caliber pistol in his posses-

Jordan pleaded innocent to the charge but waived his right to a jury trial, electing to have State District Judge John R. McFall hear evidence presented by the criminal district attorney's office. McFall sentenced Jordan to 40 years in prison.

LET'S SOLVE THE MYSTERY DUKNING GLOVES

The burning gloves which the firefighters have used as their symbol in this collective bargaining pay raise campaign imply an epidemic of 1979 hand injuries.

The truth on record is that during 1979 there were 3,126 calls to the fire department (1,697 of these were fire calls).

Members of the Lubbock Fire Department only received 11 hand and wrists injuries at the scene of those fires:

1 radiation 2 abrasions

1 puncture

2 finger sprains

1 pinched finger

1 sprained wrist

1 burned finger 1 burned wrist

But during leisure time at the fire station, there were 11 hand injuries, too:

5 cuts during food preparation 2 cuts from falls during leisure time

1 cut during whittling 3 hand injuries during equipment maintenance

WHAT ABOUT THOSE BURNING GLOVES?

The truth on record is that not one hand injury was the result of the use of cotton gloves. As a matter of fact, the gloves as well as the rest of their equipment are chosen by

Boat Faces Liquor Dilemma

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) - Ever heard of a river boat making a dry run? That's what might be required for the Alabama Star, a 93-foot paddle wheel excursion boat, as it cruises through north Alabama counties prohibiting the sale of liquor. Colbert County Sheriff Buddy Aldridge says he will consider seizing liquor brought into his county on the boat, and other sheriff's departments say they will enforce the law if complaints are filed. The $600,000 Alabama Star is being built in Chattanooga.

Tenn., and is due here in April. One of its developers, Clete Quick, said liquor would be sold on the boat while it's in the mainstream of the Tennessee River, but not at dockside in dry counties. He said liquor sales in the mainstream are covered by Coast Guard regula-

But a spokesman at the Coast Guard's marine inspection zone in Nashville, Tenn. said sale of liquor aboard vessels in the river is a problem for the state or the county. Which leaves the problem at sea.

Tax Forms Display Faces

HELENA, Mont. (AP) - Montana residents filling out 1979 state income tax forms are confronted with two faces one smiling, one frowning

The smiling face is in the area reserved for noting the amount due a taxpayer if a tax refund is in order.

The unhappy mug is in the space reserved for declaring the amount of taxes owed.

"It's just an effort to humanize things — make it a little more personal, I suppose," said John Clark, deputy director of the state Department of Revenue.

He said the faces were the suggestion of department director Mary Craig, who borrowed the idea from the Alaska state return.

I hope people don't think we're trying to make light of the tax situation," Clark said. "Taxes are pretty personal, you know; they hit pretty close to home."

The robbery, which also netted $1.5 million in checks. bonds and securities, remained unsolved until six years later when the FBI announced the arrests. They were assisted by one of the gang members, Joseph "Specs" O'Keefe, who turned informer because he said others cheated him out of

Flynt Wants New Ruling

ATLANTA (AP) - Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt will ask the state Supreme Court to overturn his 1979 obscenity conviction, his attorney says.

The state Court of Appeals this week upheld Flynt's conviction on 11 counts of obscenity in a September 1977 incident in which he rented a shop to sell his magazine. "It's obvious to me that they went way, way out of their way to uphold" the conviction, attorney Paul Cambria said Wednesday in a telephone interview from his Buffalo, N.Y. office. Flynt's attorney asked that the Fui-

Thieves Steal Trash Dump

HOPKINTON, R.I. (AP) — State police are calling it The Case Of The Missing Dump.

It seems a variety of scrap material, as well as several old cars and trucks, are missing from a site owned by Dr. Andrew A. Manickas. A take of 20 to 30 tons.

"To steal a junkyard is kind of difficult, but they did it," Manickas said Wednesday. "It's all gone. They picked it clean. I never saw a cleaner place."

Manickas said he visited his 10-acre property - site of a urned out factory - in January and noticed a few items were missing. He reported the loss to police, he said, returning recently to find all the scrap gone.

Manickas said the thieves may have been attacted by the old vehicles. But he said the rest of the trash had little value.

Iranian students in the United States were irked by news coverage of events in their homeland but, for the most part, they are even more displeased with Iran's decision to throw American re-

Small American Town In Afghanistan Dying

KABUL, Afghanistan (UPI) - The once-thriving American community in Afghanistan has dwindled to a mere 73 souls living an almost underground existence and even they may be leaving soon.

"This used to be a nice place," said one American, best described as a reformed hippie. "But no more. There are some beautiful, fascinating places in the provinces but of course you can't go there any more. I also used to have a big house, but no more."

The U.S. Embassy said the 73 Americans include 22 embassy personnel, about 20 missionaries working in hospitals, and a lesser number of teachers, development specialists, engineers, businessmen and simple hangers-on. The Americans, who numbered more than 1,000 three years ago, almost all decline to talk with correspondents and, if they do, insist on anonymity.

They make a point of living as incon-picuously as possible and a handful even float from one hotel to another to escape

In the volatile atmosphere following the Soviet-backed coup that installed Babrak Karmal as president Dec. 27, the United States has become a target of bit-

Jacksonville Odors Cause City To Hire Nine 'Noses'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) - Succinctly put, Jacksonville often stinks.

On some days, the air in this coastal city in north Florida reeks with odors from chemical plants, paper mills, coffee manufacturers, perfume makers and sewage treatment

Citizens often complain. One woman who lives near a chemical company that manufactures scents for soaps and perfumes said she has to wear a surgical mask when she goes outside.

But one of the problems is people don't always agree on what smells bad. And there are no machines to measure

So in the first such project environmental officials remember, Jacksonville has selected nine noses from the city's pollution control board to sniff the various smells and decide which ones are objectionable.

"This is a real complex problem, and it's one that we have not unraveled," said Walter Honour, chief of the city's Bioenvironmental Services.

A $44,000, 15-month study by a Gainesville environmental consulting firm presented to the city's pollution control board listed 13 industrial sources of odors. The report said the air is safe, even though it added that 50 residents complained that the air smelled so bad some days that it made them sick.

The report, however, didn't recommend a solution. Honour believes community standards on smells should be set. He wants the nine-member pollution board to do it.

We have nine people. We got a couple of engineers, a couple of doctors, a couple of lawyers and other mature, discreet citizens on the board," he said.

What we intend to do is, in perhaps groups of three or five, expose them in a pristine, confined, odorless chamber to the odorous emissions, then say, 'You tell us at what level you can't stand it, that it becomes objectionable Then, for that compound, we'd establish a concentration level.

Officials at the Environmental Protection Agency in Atlanta said they knew of no other city trying for such smell

The Gainesville consultants said the smells contain some chemicals that may be harmful but they didn't find concentrations known to cause health problems.

But 50 of 246 residents responding to a survey claimed they felt some discomfort or illness because of the pungent Mattie Browning, who said she must wear a surgial mask on some days before going outside, says "You don't know how miserable it gets sometimes. 'Saturday night," declared the 60-year-old woman who lives with her retired husband, Alvin, "I told Alvin that this mess is just about to stifle me, to take my breath away." The Brownings live near Union Camp, a chemical company that makes scents for colognes, perfumes, soaps, deterodors that arise from the plant.

Another Union Camp neighbor, Jan Hill, said the air sometimes smells "like on open septic tank... It eases into your house and it gets caught in your furniture and upholstery and it stays there forever and ever.

Everyone agrees that the air is better than it used to be. Some recall the Great Stocking Rot of 1949, when the air was so filthy that women's hosiery rotted on their legs.

Honour anticipates several problems before standards could be enforced

"An odor is something like noise in that the louder or the stronger prevails. If you were to eliminate the stronger emission, you then uncover something underneath that may be just as bad, just as objectionable to some people," he

The weather is important too. Some days, and at night, conditions keep polluted air close to the ground. At other times, the foul smells are swept away

"It's a stinky job," Honour said, referring to the complexity of the smelly issue

Discovery Of Vast Galactical Hot Gas 'Superbubble' Bared By Astronomer

WASHINGTON (UPI) - An astronomer has announced the discovery of an immense "superbubble" of hot gas in the galaxy that stores more energy than anything else known in the Milky Way.

Dr. Webster Cash of the University of Colorado said the glowing sphere is 1,200 light years in diameter and an estimated 6,000 light years from earth. A light year is about 5.9 trillion miles, the distance light travels in a year.

Cash and Dr. Philip Charles of the University of California at Berkeley discovered the bubble while examining Xray readings made by a space agency satellite observatory launched in 1977. The phenomenon is centered in the bright summer constellation Cygnus.

"It is clear that we have discovered a magnificent example of the violent interstellar medium at work." Cash said in reporting the discovery at a meeting of the American Astronomical Society in San Francisco.

He said in a telephone interview that, among other things, the finding will help astronomers better understand starforming processes.

It's going to change our picture of how the interstellar medium dynamics happen," he said.

Cash said the reason the huge cosmic bubble, or halo, had never been spotted before is because it packs so much energy that it cools by emitting X-rays instead of radiation that can be seen with optical telescopes.

The NASA satellite, the High Energy Astronomy Observatory 1, scanned the universe in more detail than ever before for sources of X-rays Cash said parts of the bubble had been seen before in brief Xray glimpses. but no one knew what it was. One part, for example, was thought to be a remnant from a massive exploding star, a supernova. He said the cooler outer edge of the bubble emits visible light and such "filaments" have been seen with optical telescopes for years, but not understood.

Other bubbles are known to exist in the galaxy, but Cash said the one just discovered is by far the largest ever seen.

And he said it is still growing at a rate of about 18 miles a second

He said the sphere contains enough gas - primarily hydrogen - heated to 3.5 million degrees Fahrenheit to create 10,000 new stars like the sun. Its energy output is estimated to equal 10 times that emitted by the sun since its formation 5 billion years ago.

Cash said there are no other astrophysical processes in the galaxy known to be capable of supplying this much ener-

What puzzles scientists is finding an answer to how this huge amount of energy got locked up in this gigantic halo in the first place," the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

Cash suggested the superbubble may have been created by a series of star explosions during the past 3 million years.

Historic Status Mulled For Residence Eyed By Methodist Hospital

Avalanche-Journal Staff
The fate of a home adjacent to Methodist Hospital on property the hospital wants for parking will be discussed in a Feb. 21 public meeting, members of the Urban Design-and-Historic Preservation Commission decided Thursday night.

The Jones/Hull house, 3501 19th St., was once the home of Texas Tech's third president, Clifford B. Jones, and may have enough architectural and historic merit to be considered for Design-Historic landmark designation, commission members said.

If such a designation is made, the house could not be destroyed or moved without approval of the commission, said City Planning Director Jim Bertram.

. Methodist Hospital has agreed to pur-chase the land the house stands on from its present owner, Dr. O. Brandon Hull, if the property is zoned by the city coun-cil for apartment-medical use. Hospital officials have indicated they intend to use the property for additional parking.

Ideally, Methodist Hospital would decide to use it (the house) as off-premise offices and it would remain in the present location, essentially unchanged. stated Hull in a letter submitted to the commission and supported by Bertram.

There has been some indication this may occur," the letter continued.

Without the landmark designation and if the area is zoned apartment-medical, the house may be moved or demolished without commission approval. Beverly Stribling, chairman of the commission, told the group she had dis-cussed the future of the home with both Dr. Hull and George Brewer, Methodist Hospital administrator. Mrs. Stribling said that when she asked Brewer what hospital officials intended to do with the home, he told her, "Dr. Hull is the owner of the house. You'll have to ask him." But, Mrs. Stribling said, when she

medical and surrounded by Methodist Hospital property, said Bertram, who added that the area is expected eventually to become a complete apartment-medical district. Although the home is ranked only medium in architectural value for its Georgian Revival style, the structure is considered historically significant because it is identifiable with Dr. Jones, who "probably was and still may be the person associated with Texas Tech for the longest period of time Both factors are among 13 criteria for considering the worthiness of a structure for Design-Historic designation. Jones, for whom the Clifford B. Jones and Audrey Jones Stadium was named,

Success Tag Placed On New Satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) -The third in a series of large communications satellites for quick relay of military tactical information and commands was launched Thursday night from Cape Canaveral.

The 4,100-pound Fleet Satellite Com-munications (FLTSATCOM) satellite rode into space on its $65 million mission aboard an Atlas Centaur rocket at 8:26 p.m. The satellite separated from the rocket 29 minutes later and continued on into a temporary orbit, said Dick Young. a Kennedy Space Center spokesman. "It looks like a good mission at this time," Young said.

The satellite system is shared by the Navy and the Department of Defense and can also be used by the president for quick transmission of military commands or top-secret information.

Officials say the satellites, which use ultra-high frequency ranges, are quicker and more reliable for communication than any others that have been devel-Capt. John Newell, Navy project officer for FLTSATCOM, said "over 400 ships and submarines are outfitted to use the satellite system and others are equipped to receive messages."

Newell said ships in the Mediterranean Sea receive communications via a FLTSATCOM in orbit over that region, but he declined to reveal how the satellite is being used in relation to the tense situations in Iran and Afghanistan.

"These satellites are the most power-ful U.S. military communications satel-lites in orbit today and the success of the first two clearly demonstrates that the joint service operation is satisfying the requirements of the military forces," said Air Force Col. George Breton, mission director of the system for the Department of Defense.

Breton said 89 aircraft are equipped with terminals to use the system and that terminals are being installed in ballistic missile control centers.

The structure is recognized for its massive columns, symmetrical front and specific ornate decorations and shutters.

Also Thursday night, the commission unanimously elected Mrs. Stribling to a second term as head of the commission. Ron Beard was elected vice chairman, succeeding Dr. William J. Mayer-Oakes.

Shah Blames Oil Firms For Downfall

NEW YORK (AP) - The deposed Shah of Iran said Thursday in an ABC television interview that he blames some of the American oil companies for his

He said on ABC's "20-20" newsmagazine program that oil companies were involved in a conspiracy "in order to have a shortage of oil, in order to make the prices go up."

Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi said that according to what he heard from his "sources, two years before the change in my country ... one country should have been chosen for the sacrifice. ... the chosen country to drop oil production would have been mine.'

In the one-hour interview conducted by David Frost in Panama, where the shah is now in exile, the shah alleged that there was a conspiracy involving "two different companies" which he identified only as "American oil companies."

In the interview, part of a 10-hour conversation with Frost, the shah was asked whether he could accept responsibility for alleged torture in Iran during

"How could I accept responsibility?" the shah said, adding that he was not told about specific details on torture and that he first heard about it from abroad. He said "torture stopped in 1976" and that it was "much less than has been publi-

The shah said it is not he who should be tried as a criminal by the current Iranian regime, but the regime itself.

"Who are they to try me?" he de-clared. "They should be tried first."

ABC News said the shah was not paid for the interview and that ABC retained full editorial control over the show.

The interview was recorded over a four-day period last week with the shah, who was ousted last year in a revolution. Militants at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran are holding about 50 Americans hostage to press their demands for the shah's return to face trial.

Frost asked the shah about public charges by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime that the deposed monarch the deaths of at least 100,000 Iranians.

"A hundred thousand people?" the shah responded. "Do they know what 100,000 people means? ... Preposterous! Ridiculous! I wouldn't even use the word disgusting.' A lie. So ridiculous. "I just say they don't know how to

Frost asked what the United States could have done to help the shah when he was facing the overthrow of his mon-

"Well, nothing," was the initial response. Then he added: "I think that instead of the U.S. and the U.K. coming out so strongly with words, by saying like 'we are 100 percent behind the shah', we support him' and this and that. If they had just kept quiet from the beginning, and not mixed into our affairs, that would probably have been best."

Marvin Minoff, Frost's partner in the project, said the interview is part of a 10hour videotape conversation Frost had with the shah. Minoff said the rights to the interview were purchased by ABC for an undisclosed sum. Minoff and ABC have not revealed what use, if any, would be made of the remaining nine hours of

Cracks In Plant No Hazard

LACEY TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Two hairline cracks found in a cooling system pipe at the idle Oyster Creek nuclear power plant do "not pose a major safety hazard," says Ocean County ra-diological officer Joseph N. Maschuci. "There is no problem to the public."

he said. "It is an internal problem inside the reactor." Maschuci said it would be two or

mine how severe the cracks are.

Oyster Creek, the nation's oldest commercial nuclear reactor, began generating electricity over 10 years ago.

The cracks were discovered Wednesday during an inspection of the reactor, which was closed down for maintenance lan 5.

The maintenance and annual inspection was expected to take about 10 weeks, officials said.

The faulty pipe is part of one of four core sprayers that operate like a ceiling fire sprinkler, said John R. Canonico, a spokesman for Jersey Central Power & Light Co., operators of the plant.

He said they are designed to spray up to 3,700 gallons of water per minute on the uranium fuel rods inside the reactor should the level of coolant water fall to seven feet above the rods. seven feet above the rods.

A Family Affair

TEXAS TECH AND BAYLOR HAVE been going at each other on the hardwood since 1937, but when the two teams meet Saturday night in the Municipal Coliseum it's going to touch off a rivalry not quite as storied as that one - but every bit as intense Except these games weren't always played on the hardwood - asphalt would usually do just fine. There wasn't much of a crowd around either - and no one in stripes to legalize the hitting.

They've grown up now, but they're still going after it. And on Saturday night David (he's the younger one) will be wearing the uniform of Texas Tech.

Mike is the older, but shorter, brother and he'll be wearing the green of Baylor. It's nothing special, just a Little 'ol family feud, 6-6 David Little will be starting at his usual forward spot for the Raiders and 6-3 Mike Little will be the Bears' starting point guard.

"I don't think it'll cause me any problems," says Tech's Gerald Myers. "The one who's gonna have problems is their daddy - he's not going to know who to

'The boys might look at it a little differently," added Myers, "but we're playing Baylor - not Little versus Little.

Actually, the boys aren't sure how to look at the situation. And David admitted that it was a little strange in practice Thursday when the Raiders went over the Baylor attack

"THAT WAS KINDA WEIRD TODAY," said David, to hear the coaches talking abut 'Little.' It reminded me of when I was a sophomore in high school and in practice the coach would say, 'Okay, Little, you cover Little.'

But Mike says that it's gonna be "Little on Little" when the Raiders are on of-

"I found out today (Thursday) at practice that I'm going to have to cover him (David)," said Mike on the phone from Waco. "Yeah, it's a tough situation. I want him to do good, but if I can I want to make sure he doesn't hurt us too bad." "Who's better?" David repeated the question thoughtfully. "I'd have to say

Mike is - and I think anyone in our family would agree. He's a better ball-handler than I am, he's got a better outside shot and he has two years experience on me." 'I wouldn't say that," countered Mike. "we play different positions so it's hard to say. I think he's just being nice. He led his high school team to the state playoffs and my team couldn't even get out of district. When I was 12 and he was 10 that was before he was bigger than me. I could whip him pretty easy. But he's taller than me now and heavier." he added. "He could probably take me inside and kill me. BUT DAVID STILL REMEMBERS those early games.

"Dad owned a motel in Abilene and we had a court out there." he said. "It would get so rough that we'd get in fights and everything else. I guess I've played him more one-on-one than anybody.

"But you know," adds David, "he always looked out for me. When he was in the fifth grade and I was in the third and he made sure I got on a team." Richard Little, David and Mike's older brother who once played for Texas

Tech, will be here for the game Saturday, and so will mom and dad and just about everybody the family knows in Abilene, the Panhandle and eastern New Mexico and the seaboard states

"I need to get about 40 tickets," says David with a laugh. "Everybody is coming

Although the brothers are two years apart, there's only a single year of eligibility separating the two. Mike played one year for Howard Junior College before going to Baylor. But he quit the Bears midway through his sophomore year.

So when it came time for David to select a college, both he and Mike assumed that Mike's basketball career was over with. And both are quick to point out that they'd rather be playing together than against each other. But Mike asked to come back to Baylor and he has started five games this year, including Baylor's last two.

"I DON'T THINK THIS HAS happened in the last few years in the Southwest Conference," says Ray Little - the boys' father. "A lot of people have been asking me who I'm going to cheer for.

Well, who are you going to cheer for Mr. Little? "I'm just going to enjoy the game," he answered. "And one thing is for sure." he added, "I'll come away a winner. The boys have always been competitors - but they've always been real close And the senior Little gracefully declined to make a comparison between the

"They play two different positions," he said. "It would be like comparing ap-But if you think David will have plenty on his mind - consider his older brother Mike. Not only will he be guarding his younger brother before just about every-body he knows in the world, but his wife Carla will be at home listening to the game on the radio

It's not that Carla doesn't like him or anything like that. She's expecting a baby and the little nipper is due Saturday night. So how should the story end?

"Maybe they can both score about 20 points," says the senior Little, "and then Mike can get back to Waco in time to be with his wife.

Scott Little, Ray's youngest son, is probably taking the most sane solution to the family dilemma

"He's going to wear a Tech tee-shirt," says the senior Little, "and a Baylor war-

Area Gridders Rank All-State

DALLAS (Special) - State champion Wheeler dominated the Class B all-state team released Thursday, placing six players on the starting unit.

It was a good year for area players also, as four were named to the first defensive team. Heading that list were juniors James Martin from Klondike and Ray Williams from Valley. Martin is an interior lineman and Williams a linebacker.

Another linebacker, Wilson's Quintin Talkmitt also made the starting team and Lazbuddie's Apolonio Sanchez, a 5-8, 145pound defensive back, was also picked.

On the second team, two South Plains running backs were featured. Record-setting Ronald Johnson from Amherst, a 2.-000-yard rusher this year, joined Valley junior James McNary in the backfield.

Also named to the offensive team were Lazbuddie's Keith Smith at guard and Dennis Steinbock as a placekicker.

MS Speculation Continues

Detroit and East Lansing, site of the Michigan State campus, confirmed Thursday that Tamburo was mentioned more often than anyone else as a possible successor to Joe Kearney, who resigned the MSU athletic director's post Tuesday to accept a similar position at Arizona State University

Also Thursday, Texas Tech head football coach Rex Dockery stated that he had no intentions of leaving Tech. It was reported Wednesday that Michigan State was interested in Dockery as a possible successor to Darryl Rogers, who followed Kearney to Arizona State.

I am very happy at Tech and have no plans whatsoever of leaving," Dockery acknowledged Thursday. "My family is extremely happy in Lubbock. I feel that we have the football program headed in the right direction and there is no place I want to coach other than Texas Tech.

Raiders Keep Tickets Handy

The Texas Tech Athletic Department, in an effort to combat a common misconception that it is impossible to get tickets for home basketball games, is prepared to give away tickets to prove otherwise.

As many as 300 tickets for a Southwest Conference game during the remainder of the season will be given away to anyone who is unable to purchase a ticket for the Baylor game at the door Saturday night

As has been documented in the past, the Coliseum has long been sold out in advance (mostly season tickets), but seats go on sale 30 minutes before every game and only once in the last five years has anyone who wanted tickets been turned away.

We are so sure that people will be able to buy tickets at the East side booths," explained Texas Tech sports information director Keith Samples, "that we will guarantee the first 100 people in each line (there are three) that if they can't buy a ticket to the Baylor game, we will give them a ticket to another game

The tickets cost $4.50 and, for anyone turned away, they will be given a ticket to another game right on the spot.

The Raiders will take a 4-1 SWC mark into the game with Baylor. The Bears are had not yet been contacted by anyone from MSU concerning the athletic direc-

'I have not been contacted by anyone at Michigan State concerning the athletic director's job," Tamburo stated. "I would like to make it clear that I am not looking for any job. Myself and my family like it here (Lubbock and Tech) very

But Tamburo did acknowledge that he would be interested in talking with MSU officials about the AD opening if they indeed were interested in acquiring his services

"I think it's an honor to have your alma mater offer you any type of position," Tamburo added. "Like I said, I habeen contacted by Dr. Mackey (Michigan State President Cecil) or anyone from Michigan State. But if the position were offered, yes, I would be interested in talking to MSU officials."

Tamburo also told Joe Falls of the Detroit News and Charles Vincent of the Detroit Free Press that he would be interested in discussing the athletic director's post with Michigan State officials if he were offered the job.

Tamburo, 49, was an All-America linebacker at Michigan State and helped the Spartans capture the national championship in 1952. Before coming to Tech. l'amburo was athletic director at the University of Illinois

The top candidates for the Michigan State AD opening include Tamburo: Vanderbilt Athletic Director Roy Kra-

Monterey Worries Wells, Westerners

By JIM FERGUSON Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

As Joe Michalka was telling everyone within earshot the continuing woes of the Monterey Plainsmen (which run from congenital ringworm to nothing short of leprosy), Craig Wells just sat listening and shaking his head. Wells couldn't believe what he was hearing.

"Listen to that," laughed Wells. "I can't believe him (Michalka) sometimes." The Lubbock High coach then reached down and rolled up his britches

According to Michalka, the Plainsmen, now 17-5 for the year, should not be considered the clear-cut favorite to win District 4-AAAA as the four other conference coaches, including Wells, believe. Instead, contends Michalka, Monterey is "probably just a darkhorse. After all, we're the only team in the district that doesn't have three starters coming back.

'Plus," added Michalka, "we're struggling right now. We need a little more time before we get rolling.

But time is something neither Michalka nor Wells have much of. Tonight starting at 7:30 p.m., the Westerners and Plainsmen open District 4-AAAA in the Lubbock High gym. Prior to the boys' titlt, the Monterey and Lubbock girls' will meet in a conference affair, set for 6 p.m.

The city's other Class AAAA school, Coronado, will take the evening off.

Michalka did not speak with forked tongue when he said that the Plainsmen were "struggling." In their last outing, the Plainsmen were knocked off by a young Dunbar team 58-57 in overtime. It was a game Michalka felt Monterey needed to win before heading into conference action.

We didn't play with any intensity at all," pointed out Michalka. "We didn't look good at all. Against Lubbock, we've got to come out and play hard. If we Losing district games is something Monterey hasn't done much of lately. Winners of the loop for the past two years, Monterey has now chalked up 17 straight conference victories. MHS last lost a district game in 1977.

"I guess the last time they lost a (district) game I was in the third grade, noted Wells

While Michalka was spreading doom and pestilence. Wells was busy playing the part of the eternal optimist. We're playing pretty good basketball," commented the man who has guided LHS to a respectable 8-11 won-loss record this season. "A break here and a break there and I think we can be right in the middle of it (the district race). I believe that, too. I believe we can win district. All we have to do is become consistent. We can't have a lot of mistakes. Leading the Westerners are Raul Romero (10.4 average), Oscar Lopez (12.8) Kirk Cole (11.6) and Jeff Manley (9.2).

Trav Clardy, MHS' 6-6 center, is the leading scorer among the area's Class AAAA players with a 22.0 average. He is also the top rebounder, averaging 10

He will be joined in the MHS lineup by Ian Hsylop (10.0). Greg Thomason (10.0), Steve Wooten 7.0) and Dee Walker (6.5).

Dunbar capped a four-game winning streak with a victory over Monterey Tuesday night. It upped the Panthers to 10-9, their first time over .500 this season.

But you can bet your bottom dollar DHS coach Joe McWilliams would trade each and every one of those Ws for a couple of key victories in the next five District 1-AAA play tonight against Canyon, and the Eagles are 15-7 on the year. The matchup, in the Dunbar gym at 8 p.m., should be one of the keys to how well both teams will do in conference

McWilliams, who could probably find something gloomy about being named in a new Howard Hughes will, deadpanned his club.

"We're picked fifth in the district and McWilliams and his Panthers start that's probably about right," he said. Sun Devils Tab

Darryl Rogers

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) - Darryl Rogers, Michigan State football coach, huddled several hours with Arizona State officials Thursday, then emerged from those meetings early in the evening as ASU's new football coach.

Joe Kearney. Michigan State's athletic director who was named ASU athletic director on Tuesday, ended days of speculation with the announcement that Rogers, 45, would head up the Sun Devils' scandal-plagued football program. Kearney had said earlier that Rogers was his top choice for the post.

Rogers was not available for comment. ASU officials said Rogers planned to meet with Kearney Thursday night and did not want to meet with reporters until a news conference scheduled for 10 a.m. MST Friday at Sun Devil Stadium.

Rogers and his wife arrived in neighboring Phoenix at mid-day Thursday, and then went immediately to Arizona State University.

Rogers had been coaching at San Jose State when he was hired by Michigan State in early 1976. At the time, Kearney had just taken over as Michigan State's athletic director. The Spartans also had just been slapped with a three-year probation by the NCAA following a recruiting scandal.

During Rogers' four-years at Michigan State, the Spartans compiled a 24-18-2 In 1978, the Spartans posted an 8-3 overall mark and 7-1 Big Ten record, good for a share of the conference title with Michigan. Last season, the Spartans won only five of their 11 games, although their top preseason quarterbacks were both sidelined with injuries. During his 15-year coaching career, Rogers' teams have compiled an overall mark of 92-66-6

Kearney replaced Fred Miller, who was fired two weeks ago. Miller had come under fire for suspending veteran football coach Frank Kush last October.

Kush was accused of trying to cover up the alleged punching of former punter Kevin Rutledge following a 1978 game. A $2.2 million damage suit filed by Rutledge, now attending Nevada-Las Vegas, is still pending against Kush and others. After his suspension. Kush filed a $10 million damage suit. But in December, Kush reached a $200,000 out-of-court settlement. The ASU football program also was dealt a stiff blow when eight players were declared academically ineligible in November and the Sun Devils were forced to forfeit five victories. The action came after it was discovered that the eight had received unearned credits from a summer extension course. The Rutledge lawsuit, coupled with the extension course scandal, resulted in an en's Basketball Tournament in the history of the school - but for head coach Gay Benson, it will also be her last as the coach of the host team.

Mrs. Benson, who is to be relieved of her coaching duties at the end of the year, will be in charge of the tourney favorites. The Raiders are 12-5 on the year with five straight wins under their belt.

Joing the host Raiders in the fourteam field will be Texas Women's University, Oklahoma University of Arts and Sciences and Central State of Oklahoma.

In first round action today, TWU will meet OUSA at 6 p.m. in the Coliseum and the Raiders will face Central at 8 p.m. The losers will meet at 1:30 Saturday and the championship contest is slated for 4 p.m.

CHS GRAPPLERS WIN

The Coronado wrestling team defeated Lubbock High 41-16 Thursday at LHS, CHS' Robert Asbill, Robert Tucker. Richard Gilliland and Greg Seals. Robert Giminez and Rod Silva had pins for LHS.

Miller, who is averaging 17 points and eight rebounds a game.

The Raiders, on the other hand, have yet to lose a home game in the Coliseum

But the TWU-OSAU matchup should be a considerably closer contest. TWU is 10-6 on the year but has already lost to the running Raiders once this year. Tech crushed the Pioneers 81-59 in Denton. Leading the Pioneers attack is 5-9 Debbie Adams, who's averaging 15.6 points a game. The TWU squad has added two transfers from Baylor to the squad since their earlier meeting with the Raiders.

USA will bring a 5-8 record into the tourney. The Droverettes are led by 6-3 Janet Pitts, who is averaging 16.8 and 10.1 rebounds a game.

"Borger's picked first, they're 20-2. Levelland was second but they may have been mispicked. Estacado should really be No. 1 or 2

'Canyon, well, they played well at the start of the year but it looked like they were struggling at the Caprock tournament. I'm sure they'll be ready for us though Dunbar didn't do real well at the Caprock either. The Panthers were blown out in the first game by Monterey, 74-52, then lost to San Angelo Central 50-46 and were eliminated.

But that SAC game was the last contest Dunbar has lost.

We made some adjustments early in the year and it involved some close friends of some of the people on the team," McWilliams said. "I think some kids are realizing now that the people we have now are the people they're going to and accepting the other players.'

In another District 1-AAA game, Dumas (11-6) comes to the Estacado gym. The Matadors are 13-8 and riding a hot streak of their own. They've won seven of their last eight encounters.

Included in that list are wins over tough Wichita Falls, Canyon and Monterey in the Caprock and Lamesa on the road. The only loss was a 72-71 count to Lamesa at home

What's provided the spark? In a word: football.

"Right now our athletes from football are just beginning to become part of our system," said Mat coach J.J. Wood. That's been a big turnaround for us.

"I think the Caprock tournament helped glue us together. Winning that was a big boost as far as having a good attitude as we go into district play.

Wood says "Borger is the main one to beat. Dumas has a good team, they're probably the most improved team from "But after Borger it's really a tossup.

Dunbar is coming on, they always play well. Canyon has a real good team, they look real strong "I'd say it's kind of a tossup, who's going to be playing Borger for the championship Those Borger Bulldogs you've been hearing so much about will play at Levelland (5-8) tonight in the remaining District 1-AAA contest.

In other area Class AAA races, An-hosts Monahans (8-10 and 1-0). Ector (11-8 and 1-0) plays Pecos (1-18 and 0-2) in Odessa In District 3-AAA, Snyder (16-4) postdrews (20-2 and 2-0 in District 2-AAA

pones the start of the district wars a night to play Lubbock Christian High in Lubbock. Elsewhere, Lamesa (13-5) hosts Lake View (10-5) and Sweetwater (6-13) hosts Brownfield (10-8).

Girls' games will follow the same schedule as the boys in all but District 2-AAA, where the women play on Monday and Thursday instead of Tuesday and

Girls' contests are slated to start at 6 p.m. while the boys begin at 7:45

Sullivan's Hot Streak Resumes At Phoenix

PHOENIX (AP) - Mike Sullivan, who won the biggest check of his career last Monday, fired a 6-under-par 65 Thursday and took the first round lead in the $300,-000 Phoenix Open golf tournament.

Sullivan, in the next-to-last group on the golf course, finished off his solid, nobogey effort in the gathering gloom of late afternoon and held a one-stroke lead over a starry threesome of J.C. Snead, Jerry Pate and Andy Bean, tied at 66. The group at 67 included Bruce Lietzke, Hubert Green and Dan Pohl

Masters' titleholder Fuzzy Zoeller shot a 73 in his first competitive round of the season and must improve Friday if he is to qualify for the final two rounds:

Sullivan, 25 and starting his fourth year on the PGA Tour, tied for second in the rain-delayed Bob Hope Desert Classic that kicked off the 1980 season. He won $24. 200, the best he's had — and it's all his. A three-year agreement with my sponsors ended at the start of the year and I came out on my own." said Sullivan, who has yet to take a tour title. "I was a little apprehensive, but it hasn't been a struggle so far Sullivan didn't even come close to making a bogey in the mild, partly cloudy

Associated Press Writer The movement for the United States to boycott the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow gained momentum Thursday with the Carter Administration considering trying to set up a rival set of games and some world class American athletes announcing they would not compete against the Russians.

Political pressure mounted for the Americans to stay away from the Games, set for July 19-August 3, to punish the Soviets for their military intervention in Afghanistan.

There were continued suggestions that the Olympics be moved out of Moscow or be cancelled. But Lord Killanin of Ireland, president of the International Olympic Committee which stages the games, said, "The Olympics cannot be moved and they cannot be cancelled."

Killanin explained that the Olympics are just as much property of the East as of the West.

Margaret Thatcher, Britain's prime minister, said Thursday she favors asking the IOC to move the games from Moscow, but said the athletes who have been training for years to reach a peak for the games must be considered. "That is why the government believes it would be right to move the venue away from Moscow," she said.

Her remarks were not interpreted to mean that she favors a boycott. In addition, French sports minister Jean-Pierre Soisson said, "There is no reason for the French government to decide to boycott the 1980 Olympic Games. The Olympic Games are not organized by the governments but by the International Olympic Committee, which chooses a city, and not a country," he said. Soisson added that he believed that if the crisis over the Games worsened, "It would mean the death of the Olympic Games.

White House sources who asked not to be identified said the Carter administration is considering trying to set up rival games in a third world country, but the sources said it's not clear "who would show up.

The two top officials of the U.S. Olympic Committee, president Robert Kane and executive director Donald F. Miller, were tentatively scheduled to meet with administration officials at the White House Friday, sources told The Associated Press.

They were not available for comment Thursday but have opposed a boycott and State Department officials said most U.S. allies have been cool toward participating in such a move.

White House Counsel Lloyd Cutler has told the President the administration has no legal authority to order the U.S. team not to participate in the Games. The team plays under the national banner but it is organized by the private U.S. Olympic Committee and is not under government control.

Sources doubted that the White House would go to such extremes as cancelling athletes' passports and was relying on pressure to force the boycott.

The 32 members of the Muhammad Ali Amateur Sports Club, including track and field stars Houston McTear and Greg Foster and boxers Davey Armstrong and Tony Tubbs, announced Thursday they have voted unanimously not to participate in the Games or in any event in which Russian athletes are involved. They met in Santa Monica, Calif., Wednesday night with Ali, the former world heavyweight boxing champion.

Ali told The Associated Press by telephone Thursday, "I feel that the American people should do everything that we can to show dislike for what they are doing (in Afghanistan) and to let them know that we're ready to go to war if we

Other prominent members of the club are runners John Smith and Rosalyn Bryant and boxers Jeff Stoudemier and Jeff McCracken.

Sports don't mean nothing," added Ali. "If it means sacrificing the Olympics to wake these people up and make them think, then it's all worthwhile. My contribution will be to sacrifice my boys and girls and pull them out of the whole thing.

The AFL-CIO, the most important U.S. labor organization, intensified its call for a boycott Thursday to deprive the Soviet Union of what it called a "propaganda coup.

The executive council of the 14 million-member AFL-CIO called for a boycott as long ago as August 1978. A spokesman said Thursday that federation president Lane Kirkland plans a new statement in light of the Afghanistan situation which prompted President Carter to threaten an Olympic boycott last week.

Spokesman Allen Zack said claims by The International Olympic Committee and commercial interests that politics don't belong in the Olympics are self-

NBC-TV, which is scheduled to televise the Games to the U.S. and also to provide the international video feed, has said it will not cover the Games if this country does not send a team.

The network already has paid the Soviets $60 million for rights to the Games and owes three more $5 million installments. But it has an insurance policy with Lloyd's of London that would pay off 85 per cent of the money.

Broadcasting Magazine quoted an NBC source Jan. 14 as saying "If the U.S. team participates, we'll cover the games. If not, we won't.'

Sources in the television industry have said the network counted on the Games to promote its fall program schedule and jump the network from third to first in the ratings race.

We would have an entirely adequate opportunity to promote our fall 1980 schedule," a network statement read.

Officials of the International Olympic Committee, which is headquartered in Lausanne, Switzerland, discounted speculation that the games would or could be moved to another city. They pointed out that it takes at least four years to prepare to stage the games and that even cities like Montreal, Munich, and Mexico City, which have sports facilities from the 1976, 1972, and 1968 Games. do not have housing for the thousands of athletes, newsmen and officials who attend.

The "rival Olympics" idea surfaced along those lines. One source said it has not been decided whether the United States would want a rival Olympics to be held at the same time as those in Moscow or at another date to permit athletes to participate in both.

'Most people say they don't see how, at this time, we can go," said presidential aide Anne Wexler, who has been sounding out domestic opinion on the issoe. Other officials said the only vocal opposition has come from the athletes.

"Sure, I'm mad," said Janet Baier, 25. of St.Louis, who had just finished a workout with the U.S. Olympic women's volleyball team Thursday in Colorado Springs, Colo. "Politics should never enter into the Olympics. We have worked so long and so hard. I don't think he (President Carter) realizes that."

Weightlifter Pete Cline, 29, of Lake Tahoe, Nev., said, "I think it's totally unfair of the President to use the Olympic athletes as a weapon for whatever the government wants the Russians to do. I've dedicated 10 years to my life in a sport that doesn't offer any reward other than the Olympics.

Most athletes interviewed at the Colorado Springs training center said that if the Games weren't held, they would not be bitter. 'I don't think they are going to be crushed by it," said cyclist Brent Emery, 22, of Milwaukee. "We're more sad that we may not be able to go."

But not all athletes disagreed with Thursday, but not much was known Carter's ideas. Miler Craig Masback said about the Carter Administration's ideas on the CBS-TV "Thursday Morning"

"I was in Moscow last summer for the Spartacade Games, the Russian pre-Olympics, and I saw then the tremendous buildup that they're making, pointing toward this being a real show of the modern socialist state. And their athletes will triumph, their society will triumph, because the world will come to Moscow And I think by withdrawing, we certainly will strike a blow at this whole plan, which has been in force for many years." The Soviets reportedly have spent $375 million preparing Moscow for the 1980 Summer Games. Jimmy Carnes, the U.S. Olympic track coach, said in Gainesville, Fla. that the Games should be moved from Moscow, but doubted if enough other countries would go along with the idea. "I must say they're (the athletes) taking it with a tremendous amount of mixed emotions." Carnes said. Rep. Robert E. Bauman, a Maryland Republican who had been a leading congressional conservative, introduced a resolution in the House Thursday calling for the Olympics to be moved or boycotted and calling for a "free world Olympics. He said such a move would be "the severest blow short of military action we can take today" against the Soviet incur-sion into Afghanistan.

KUHN DENIES STRIKE

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) - Talk that professional baseball possibly could be hit with a players' strike was downplayed Thursday by Bowie Kuhn, commissioner of baseball. Such talk, said Kuhn, has been attributed to the players' association. "Frankly, I think it's the kind of routine boiler plate remark that you get in the course of collective bargaining," he said.

of the fatal flight.

In an interview, Ed Gray, public affairs officer for Cessna Aircraft Co. of Wichita, Kan., told the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate that an inspection of the system was made last Thursday in response to a "routine service letter" from Garrett AiResearch Aviation, Inc., manufacturers of the engine.

'It was a routine service item," Gray said Wednesday. "These service letters go out from time to time. As far as it being related to the accident, it's virtually no possibility."

The plane crashed in the Atlantic Ocean off the Virginia coast early Friday after wandering 1,400 miles off course on a routine flight from Shreveport to Baton A federal agency is probing the mysterious crash but investigators have little to go on since there was little contact with the plane after it left Shreveport and neither the bodies nor the wreckage has been found. Gray said he didn't agree with the theory that a slow starvation of oxygen, known as hypoxia, that would have resulted from a leak in the outflow valve of the air pressure system, could have caused the pilot to pass out.

He said the Cessna 441 Conquest was equipped with gauges to indicate whether the pressurization system was funcitioning properly and had a warning light and a backup outflow valve in event of Gray said he didn't feel the crash was a result of a problem with the aircraft.

"We feel more likely it was a medical problem," he said. "But anything we say

Bradshaw Rejects Spotlight

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Almost everybody concedes that Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw holds the key to Sunday's Super Bowl XIV, but the balding good 'ol boy from Louisiana is a reluctant hero.

'I'm not comfortable in all this folderol, although I admit it's very important, good for football and good for the Super Bowl," the 31-year-old All-Pro quarterback said Thursday in the final formalized meeting

I'm better in the shadows than in the open. I'd rather others get out in the open and I be left alone.

As a 10-year veteran going against the Los Angeles Rams' 25-year-old backup signal-caller. Vince Ferragamo, Bradshaw realizes he faces a heavy responsibility. The Steelers have been installed as an 11-point favorite to rack up their fourth Super Bowl crown in six

"Sure, I understand what's expected of me," he said. "The guys on our team don't let me forget it. If I do well, our team will do well. If I don't do well, we're in trouble.

The 6-foot-3, 215-pound team leader out of Louisiana Tech refuses, however, to be shaken by the pressure of the big game, to be watched by 106,000 in the Rose Bowl and an estimated 90 million on television.

"I have learned to look on it as just another game," he said. "If I didn't I'd be a basket case. It's my feeling that once one has reached the top of the hill and is going down the other side he should not be

"He should have fun playing the game. I have

Bradshaw's hints that he may have passed his peak were quickly countermanded by Steeler coach Chuck Noll, who said, "I don't think Bradshaw has nearly reached his potential. His eyes, his arm and his insticts are better than ever. He is improving every

"What I meant," Bradshaw said, clarifying his remarks, "is that I am a 10-year veteran. I agree I am

ceptions. I throw better. I handle coverages better. "I am not bored. I still feel challenged. This year our team record was 12-4. I like to think next year it may be 14-2 or 15-1. Bradshaw, one of the true sports superstars of the age, has a freshness and a down-home friendliness that is disarming in a world of spoiled and arrogant athletic capitalists

"I never feel I have arrived," he said in reply to a estion. "Once you've arrived there's only one thing left to do - leave.

"I never say to myself, 'Brad, you son of a gun, you have arrived - you have done it all.' Man, if I felt that way. I wouldn't be worth shooting."

In the interview, the Steeler quarterback found himself fielding questions of a vastly different nature - his early frustrations at Pittsburgh and his deep recent interview in Playboy Magazine.

"No," he replied. "I was honest about issues. I was nervous over possibly saying anything that might hurt the Steelers or my family, but it came out okay. How did Jo Jo like it?" another asked, referring to his wife. Olympic figure skating star Jo Jo Star-

Not much." he said, "especially when they told her the interviewer was a playmate of the year."

Bradshaw was reminded of his early years with the Steelers when he was roundly booed by the fans, criticized by the press as being a thick-head and generally raked over the coals.

Some people are more sensitive than others, and I am more sensitive than most," he replied. "They said I couldn't throw the ball, I couldn't block and

"I probably would have got discouraged if it hadn't been for Joe Greene, Andy Russell and Ray Mansfield. They believed in me. They were like my

"But the turning point in my life came with strengthening my faith as a Christian. I read the Bible daily. My wife and I held devotionals. Everything finally fell into place.

The Steeler field general said he never reads a sports page during the season.

"If the stories are critical, I don't want to know about them," he said. "If they praise me, they just blow up my ego. Either way it's damaging.

"My faith gives me confidence. I feel I can handle the valleys as well as the peaks.

The two men in the middle in Sunday's Super Bowl continue the tradition. Make no mistake about it, Pittsburgh's Jack Lambert and Jack Reynolds of Los Angeles are not to be trifled with.

One of Lambert's pet observations of his profession is that quarterbacks ought to wear dresses. Reynolds' nickname is Hacksaw because he once used one to divide an automobile in half. Hmmm.

"Sure this is a violent game," said Lambert. "That's why I like it. That's why 80 million people will watch the Sustopped him on the goal line on fourth and a half-inch. So he fumbles into the end zone, they recover and it's a touch-

LSU's Brown Samples Losing Side Of Game

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - The problem with getting near the top is that one sometimes forgets how he got there, said Louisiana State University baskethall coach Dale Brown.

LSU hit a 1-3 streak to open the new year, tumbling from fourth to 14th in the national poll. A 93-82 victory over Auburn Wednesday night snapped a twogame losing streak.

The fall was a bitter experience for a veteran team that won the Southeastern Conference championship last year.

Rockets Trade For Paultz

HOUSTON (UPI) - The Houston Rockets Thursday acquired 6-11 center Billy Paultz from the San Antonio Spurs in exchange for forward John Shumate, a third-round draft choice and cash.

'Sheriff Lobo's' Bumbling Detective Trained In Shakespeare

By JERRY BUCK LOS ANGELES (AP) - Mills Watson looks like a man born to the pratfall, but it wasn't always so.

Watson, the bumbling Deputy Perkins on NBC's "The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo," was trained in Shakespeare and the classics at London's Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts. Then he played a succession of mad dog killers.

"I think if you can cut Shakespeare, you can cut just about anything," said Watson. "Also, Shakespeare's loaded with vila ve omics and drunks and lots and lots of bad guys."

Watson,, a baldish, roly poly man of 39, said his classical training has not been wasted on the farce of "Sheriff Lobo."

"You have sword fights," he said. "They're not that much different than choreographing a fist fight. When you play, say, the gatekeeper in 'Macbeth.' The drunk. That has to be very convincing physically.

We did a lot of restoration comedy, too, and there's a lot of farce in that. And very stylized, so you get used to adopting physical attitudes. That's one of the nice things about being an actor. Everything that happens to you applies, sooner or later, if you're lucky enough to work

"The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo," a spinoff of "BJ and the Bear," is NBC's biggest new hit. It has earned no critical acclaim, however. It's the story of a larcenous Southern sheriff, played by Claude Akins, a numbskull deputy (Perkins) and a straight-arrow deputy played by Brian Kerwin. Storywise, it's not much more than a live-action 'Roadrunner" cartoon.

Critical opprobrium aside, Akins and Watson said he is not bothered by accusations that the show is mindless. Well, I guess, a roller-coaster's mindless. It really doesn't matter. Laughter's a human response, so it can't be without content if it makes someone laugh.

"It's a tasteful show. There's nothing in it I would take exception to my sons watching. That's another advantage I have on this show, my son can watch.

Watson said when his son was younger, the boy was never allowed to watch his father because of the violence.

"I got a lot of flak from my kid when I was doing 'Gunsmoke,' " he said. "His friends at school started seeing them and he started feeling left out. So one day I sat him down, put a tape on the video machine and said this was what I was

Watson said he went through a long explanation that it was all make-believe, that no one was actually hurt and at the end of the day the actors washed off the fake blood and went home.

"He said, 'I know that. What'd you think I am, stupid?' I said then what in the word is bothering you? He looked me dead in the eye and said, 'Where have you been keeping that horse?"

In the beginning of "BJ and the Bear," Lobo and Perkins were mean. It was only in subsequent appearances, through the lobbying of the two actors, that they became funny. 'We went to Stockton for a one-hour show and we couldn't shoot for days be-cause of the fog," Watson said. "So they made it 90 minutes to get their money back because we stayed so long.

The 52-year-old actor, whose series "The Rockford Files," was recently scrapped by NBC because the network said he was unable to perform due to illness, was reported in good condition at Cedars Sinai Hospital. He suffered abrasions, cuts and bruises in the attack, and will remain in the hospital for several days for observation.

The incident occurred Wednesday as Garner was driving in the Hollywood Hills, and his car collided with a vehicle that was trying to pass on the right, pol-

Through his spokesman Wally Beene, Garner said he had pulled over to assess the damage, when the other driver ran up to his car, grabbed the actor through the window, and began to beat him. "If he'd had any punch at all, he'd have knocked me out halfway through the first round," Garner said. "He had me by the neck and had nothing but clean shots at me."

Garner said he finally fell out the car door onto the ground, where his assailant kicked him repeatedly.

"I was quite familiar with the corn handling operation here and already knew a lot of the folks. I knew Frito-Lay's way of doing business and I knew this end of things too, and it wasn't long before I was named the group manager,"

In his first harvest season at the helm of the local F-L facilities Walsh saw 350 million pounds of contracted corn grown in an area ranging from Dumas to as far south as Hale Center and Muleshoe.

The past production season proved one of the best in several years for area food corn growers.

"Some of the oldtimers say 1979 may have been the best year yet for food corn production here, and the quality of the crop will certainly make 1979 one of the better years. There was some tough going in 1977 and 1978 because problems with earworms really hurt the quality. I wish we could have more year like 1979 from a quality standpoint." said Walsh.

According to the local F-L representative, quality corn with low starch cracks is one of the greatest criteria of the firm, and the proper setting of harvesting equipment and insect control are major country. Local corn goes mainly into the production of Fritos, Doritos, and a new product we are marketing called Tostitos," Walsh explained.

Walsh expressed great satisfaction with the corn producers of the area.

We have some very fine people to work with and we've developed a good rapport with the growers. I think most growers feel now that they can come in and talk with us if they have a problem. Our feeling is we don't want people contracting with us if they're unhappy. We want to build a group of growers who are happy with us and will be with us year in and year out," he commented.

'I'm elated with the quality and quantity of production of some of the first-time growers we had in 1979. There was a little shakiness among some of the new growers as they tried a new program but once they got the hang of it we had smooth sailing as the corn came under specifications," he continued.

About the biggest single gripe I heard when I came here was about having to wait in line a long time to unload. During the past season we changed some things here in Hereford and we had very few lines. We're looking to correct some problems in some of our other storage areas as well. It will cost some money, but I feel like by harvest time 1980 we'll have things underway to deal with a waiting line problem at the Springlake facility. We don't want frustrated people sitting in line. It's a hassle, it's costly, and none of us need those problems, said Walsh.

According to the F-L group manager, the Dallas firm is close to a decision on contract offers for 1980 food corn production, and word on the offers should be forthcoming within "the next couple of

cent of our total corn needs for the whole

According to Walsh, America's love main a growth industry.

Commenting on the changeover in operation of the local corn handling facilities and relationships between the firm and area growers during the initial year of a new program, Walsh said, "We started fresh with a clean slate in 1979. After had an opportuninity to learn a little better just what our requirements at Frito-Lay are and that we need a No. 1 grade product. By the same token, we've also had an opportunity to learn what our growers need and we're learning their system. The learning process is ongoing on both sides, and it's a trust sort of thing. We need the corn and hopefully we can provide the area's growers with a good market.'

One problem area which Walsh indi-

According to Walsh, first chance on the 1980 food corn contracts will go to the 1979 growers.

"We know the 1979 growers, they took a chance with us, and they deserve to have the first crack at contracts in 1980, he said Walsh indicated Frito-Lay will probably contract for more corn in 1980.

"I hope our needs are up. Our new Tostitos product is a question in demand right now, but we have high hopes for it.

If it sells well there will be more demand for corn," he continued While price is an important consideration in any corn contract offered in the region, the F-L official reported that the overall program will be given greter consideration in the future as well. We're looking at the whole program, not just the price. We like to be innovative, and although we had to go with a little better price and the same old program in 1979, that's not very innovative. We've kept our ear to the ground and now we're exploring ways to make corn production contracts a purely better program. A big question is what can we do to make it attractive? The easy way out is to juggle the price and keep things the same, but we're listening to people, kicking things around, and the ideas with merit hopefully will be acted on. Hopefully, we can implement some new things every year," said Walsh.

Walsh also offered optimistic comments on the future of food corn produc-

"I think we can come up with a 'bells and whistles' program that will be better than anything we've ever had. In the past, all there's been for the grower is the threat of getting his corn turned down if it didn't meet the grade. That's negative incentive. We hope to work toward some positive incentives in the future that will give growers a reason to want to grow for us year after year," he concluded

AN AGRICULTURAL AGREEMENT SIGNED between the United States and Mexico will result in sales of between 800,000 and 1 million metric tons of U. S. coarse grains above what American officials previously thought Mexico This was reported Thursday by Howard Hjort, the top economist of the U.S.

Department of Agriculture. He said Mexico was known to need the additional coarse grains because of poor crops, which under present conditions probably Before the U.S. suspension in shipments to the U.S.S.R., Hjort said, offiwhere if there had been no suspension in sales to the Soviet Union. Mexican imports of U. S. agricultural products this year will be about double the 1979 level of 3.7 million metric tons.

UNDER THE AGREEMENT, THERE ARE THREE ways in which the commodities can be obtained, Hjort said. These are:

- The United States will assist Mexico by putting the Mexican officials in contact with reputable suppliers.

- Some of the corn originally sold to the U.S.S.R. for which the USDA has pledged to assume the contracts could go to Mexico if the market price is above - The government's Commodity Credit Corp. could act as a purchasing agent for Mexico for some of the grain. However, Hjort said he expects most of the trade to be handled through normal commercial channels. He said the Mexican government initiated the discussions about the grains agreement and added that future contacts concerning agreements will be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Hjort was asked, in view of previous statements by Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland that the United States preferred not to enter specific supply agreements with different countries, if this was a change in policy. He said Mexico had expressed a great interest in an agreement for some time and this seemed a good time to accommodate the request.

OTHER COUNTRIES, INCLUDING POLAND and Japan, have expressed an interest in supply agreements with the United States, Hjort said, but he reiterated that future requests would be on a case-by-case basis.

Hjort was asked if the criteria for deciding whether to negotiate agreements might have shifted toward the idea of approving agreements instead of against

Sales of 5,900 bales for the 1980-81 marketing year were mainly to Taiwan. The 1979-80 export commitment totaled 7,894,700 running bales and the 1980-81 commitment stood at 93,400. Exports for the week were large on shipments of 187,600 bales, with 30 percent to Europe and 68 percent to Asia. The shipments included 50,100 bales to China. Exports for the season totaled 2,940,300 running bales, up 825,500 from a year earlier. The national average spot market price on the base reached a new high for the season Thursday of 72.56 cents.

Spot quotations at Lubbock were mixed. Early in the day, quotes for grades 11 through 51 and grades 12 through 42 in staples 31 and 32 were raised 75 points, while quotes on grades 52 and lower in all staples were lowered 100 points. The mike discount for 3.0-3.2 was widened 50 points. In the afternoon, the base was raised 75 points. All this had the net effect of leaving the quotations 150 points higher to 25 points lower.

TELCOT TRADING SET A NEW RECORD daily volume on a turnover of 53,918 bales, topping the previous high of 43,764 established only Monday. Earlier records were set Jan. 10 at 41,423 bales and Dec. 3 at 40,300.

Developed by the Plains Cotton Cooperative Association in 1975, the electronic trading medium provides marketing and information services to producers in Texas and Oklahoma, most of whose local cotton gins have video display terminals in their offices.

Cotton is offered through the PCCA's Lubbock-based computer to more than 50 merchandisers whose offices are located throughout the buying centers and also are equipped with Telcot terminals. Bert Kyle, PCCA sales manager, said the Telcot staff is highly pleased with the performance of the electronic service. "It has been under intensive trading for the past six weeks and has performed well," he said. Telcot handled more than 235,000 bales in the first two weeks of the new year, following a heavy volume of 447,000 bales in December.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) - Prices for grain from Tues. and soybean futures were propelled sharply higher Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade after gold hit $800 an ounce and rumors circulated that the Soviet Union had invaded Iran. Soybean futures, a market-in which speculators like to trade, scored price gains of up to 26 cents per bushel, bringing to almost zero the price losses over a two-week period from the grain embargo against the Soviet Union.

Traders said prices started to soar when gold broke the $800-an-ounce mark on the board of trade. The Iranian rumors increased the buying frenzy, triggering what traders call stop-loss buying Brokerage houses use computers to determine price points at which they buy or sell a commodity to minimize losses. Some computers called for buying when soybeans hit about $6.63 a bushel, traders said, because if prices go that high commission houses reason they will go higher. Commission and local traders bought to cover previous contract commitments.

At the close, soybeans were 21 to 261/2 cents higher, January $6.61%; wheat was 13 to 181/2 cents higher, March $4.533/4; coin was 41/2 to 7 cents higher, March $2.76; and oats were 21/2 to 31/2 cents higher, March $1.48.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Q. Over the past two years, I have purchased a number of municipal bonds tage commission I am paying, I get no straight answer. Can you tell me what percentage commission the salesman gets on each $10,000 purchase?

A. No, because there are no rules on this. The commissions can vary from one brokerage house to another and, sometimes, from one broker to another in the same brokerage house. A "big producer" who sells lots of bonds and other securities might command a bigger commission cut than the guy sitting at the next desk who doesn't sell much.

You should understand that "municipals" — bonds issued by states and political subdivisions of states, such as counties, cities, school districts and state and local agencies - are handled in the 'dealer market.

Teohnically, no "commission" is charged. Instead, a "mark-up" is charged. As far as you, the customer, are concerned, there's no real difference. The correct use of terms is necessary, however, to explain the situation.

Let's say that Anytown, U.S.A., needs $10 million to build a new police and fire station and decides to raise that money

Anytown then advertises the bond sale. Several groups of brokerage firms and banks - commonly called "syndicates" - submit competitive bids. The syndicate making the bid with the lowest cost to Anytown - a combination of price and interest rate - wins the competition.

The winning syndicate pays Anytown $10 million - assuming its bid was for face value of the bonds - and then attempts to sell the bonds to the investing

If the brokerage house with which you do business was a member of the syndicate and paid $10,000 for every $10,-000 bond, it naturally has to resell them at a higher price to make any money on the deal.

Your brokerage house, along with other members of the syndicate, will mark-up the bonds for resale to the public - say to about $10,200 for each $10,000 face amount of bonds. That would be a 2 percent mark-up. If you buy bonds of that particular issue, in effect, you would pay a 2 percent commission.

The mark-up, however, can be higher or lower — depending upon the terms set by the underwriting syndicate. And the percentage of the mark-up that goes to the individual sales person depends upon the policy of his or her brokerage house.

Q. My husband provided well for our retirement, which is now in the tenth year. Among the securities he owns are two U.S. Treasury bonds, which are called "flower bonds." We paid $7,500 for each of these $10,000 bonds.

When we bought them we were told that, at death, they would be paid off at their full face values - rather than at their lower market values. Recently, I have been told this is not true anymore. Can you clarify this "flower bond" situation? A. Flower bonds - so nicknamed because they come in handy when floral wreaths surround caskets - will still do the job you bought them for. Flower bonds - the last of which was issued in 1971 - can be used to pay federal estate taxes at full face value. When your husband passes on, you can turn in those bonds and apply the full face value of those bonds against the federal estate tax due on his estate.

If the estate tax bite is $20,000, you can satisfy that tax with those two bonds That's the big lure of owning such bonds Other than using them to settle federal estate taxes, they're no bargain.

If your husband dies and no federal estate tax is due on his estate, you cannot redeem those flower bonds for $10,000 apiece. If you wanted cash for them, you would have to sell them in the open mar-

WASHINGTON (AP) - Community colleges, newspapers, radio and television networks are banding together in a $770,000 government-sponsored program to get Americans talking about energy.

Upwards of 80,000 persons are expected to attend forums at 456 community colleges over the next three months to discuss how energy or its absence -aftects the quality of their lives.

In addition, Diane Eisenberg of the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges said Thursday, the effort will encompass:

•A 15-part series on energy starting Sunday in more than 400 newspapers as part of the "Courses by Newspaper" program.

•Three two-hour television specials broadcast to 1,600 cable T.V. systems by Ted Turner's "super station" in Atlanta, WTBS. The dates are this Sunday, March 2, and April 6. There will also be an energy telethon on April 26 for people to talk to experts about energy problems.

•Seven 30-minute National Public Radio documentaries starting in late January over its member stations A letter of support from President Carter was read at a news conference unveiling the program. The government's National Endowment for the Humanities has put up $520,000 for the effort, the Department of Energy gave $100,000 and the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation and other private contributors gave $150,000. "Our bottom line is an icreased understanding and an informed citizenry, said Miss Eisenberg.

The association has distributed 110,000 copies of a "calendar of issues" to colleges, libraries and community groups to guide the forums over the next

The conference was called by Carter nearly two year ago. The president and many other administration officials made appearances at the sessions, but none of the other presidential candidates

"We wanted to keep the conference from becoming a political forum." said Levitt, president of the American Stock

The forum did bring together for the first time an historically diverse and divisive small business sector that includes multimillion-dollar companies with 500 employees to owners of corner groceries. Emerging from the session, beyond any specific recommendation, appeared to be a new and potentially powerful interest group that will rival big business and big labor.

"In the past, we thought we were too busy to get involved in government. said one delegate from Dallas.

'Now, we're learning that we can't afford not to get involved," said the delegate, who owns a fashion store.

Corporation To Number Cadillac Parts

DETROIT (AP) - Cadillacs built at Linden, N.J. will have vehicle identification numbers stamped on major body parts in an experiment to see if auto thefts can be reduced, the General Motors Corp. division said Thursday.

The number will go on both front fenders, the hood, the right front door. the rear body structure and the trunk lid. said David E. Martin, automotive safety engineering director on GM's environmental activities staff.
