Cage Tournament Opens Here Dec. 11

Sixteen teams—ten boys and six girls—have entered the annual Muleshoe invitation basketball tournament, which opens at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night, December 11, at the high school gymnasium. Sessions will be held Thursday night, Friday afternoon, Friday night, Saturday afternoon and Saturday night, when the finals of each division will be played. The first game Thursday night pits the Sudan Hornets against the Oklahoma Lane cagers. One hour later, the Sudan and Oklahoma Lane girls take the court, and the night's final game finds the Muleshoe Yellowjackets five squaring off against the Littlefield Wildcats in a resumption of an old rivalry. Friday afternoon at one o'clock, the Farwell and Bovina boys will play, and at 2 o'clock the Springle girls will play the winner of the Sudan-Oklahoma Lane set. The Springle boys and the victors of the Sudan-Oklahoma Lane boys' game will play at 3 o'clock.

Help Solicited For Buckner's Orphan's Home

Stop. Look and Act! That is what the Baptist ladies want you to do for Buckner's Orphan's Home. And contributions are not confined to Baptists. If the Methodists or Presbyterians or Church of Christ members, or those of any other denomination feel that they would like to help this worthy cause, it will be appreciated by the hundreds of boys and girls at Buckner's as well as by the local people. Packages should be brought to the home of Mrs. J. C. Smith not later than December 16 (Tuesday). Items wanted include candy, dressed hens, clothing—old or new—or any other items of food. Buckner's Orphan Home is one of the oldest institutions of its kind in the state. There are now some seven hundred boys and girls at the home, receiving an education which will prepare them to take their place in the world as honored and respected citizens. In helping these children you may be contributing toward the education of a great musician or doctor or scientist. You never know.

Lubbock Air Base To Be Ready By Jan. 6, 1942

Construction on the 208-building Advanced Flying School at Lubbock for the Army Air Corps is a little behind schedule due to bad weather but contractors have been granted a few days additional time under the bad weather clause, and barring unforeseen misfortune, the project will be "out on time" according to W. G. McMillan of the contracting organization of Lambie-Ross-McMillan of Lubbock. The $4,675,409 "Air Corps City" was scheduled for completion on December 26, but bad weather has brought extension of the general contract time to January 6, 1942.

The entire project, streets, lines, and all minor details, are to be ready for occupancy by February 14.

Officer personnel has been assigned to some of the troops number 2,500 to 3,000 made. First cadet flight is now scheduled on January 24.

SAILOR DICK DAY SPENDS HOLIDAY IN NEW YORK

In a recent letter to his parents, Dick Day, one of Uncle Sam's navy men, stated that he had the privilege of spending Thanksgiving weekend in New York City. It was one of his finest leaves, Dick said, as he got to see one of the better prize fights in Madison Square Garden. Dick has been on convoy duty for the past several weeks, escorting supplies across the pond. He is still aboard a cruiser and is experiencing many thrills. Kind of makes us wish we were service age again.

MULESHOE BOY ELECTED HEAD OF CHURCH COUNCIL

Horace Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Edwards of Muleshoe, was recently elected president of the Contact Council of the Methodist church at Stephenville, Mrs. Edwards was informed last week. This calls for good leadership as the position is similar to the chairmanship of a board of stewards.

Horace was also elected one of three representatives of the inter-church council on the campus of John Tarleton College. Horace entered the school last September as a freshman, and is making an excellent record.

A seven-league stride toward organization of a cooperative vegetable marketing association was taken Monday night at a meeting in the district courtroom when 11 farmers and business men contributed sufficient funds to purchase a site for the construction of necessary buildings.

The step is, by far, the most definite ever taken here toward the organization of a cooperative marketing association. Another meeting has been set for Monday night, December 15 at which time further steps will be taken toward early incorporation.

Neil Rockey, who presided at Monday night's meeting, appointed a committee of six to contact truck growers who did not attend the meeting. This committee, composed of C. A. Barnett, S. E. Goucher, Judge Jim Cook, Levi Churchill, R. L. Brown, and G. T. Maltby, will bring a report to the December 15 meeting.

Judge Cook was designated by Rockey to see about purchase of the site for which money was raised. The location agreed upon consists of two acres cut off by the new Friona road, north of town. This site is said to be an ideal one for construction of storage houses, packing sheds and other facilities.

F. E. Hobgood of Amarillo, purchasing and marketing specialist for the Farm Security Administration, attended the meeting and in a brief talk outlined the method through which the association, once it is organized, may obtain financial aid from the FSA or other governmental agencies.

"Before such an organization can succeed," Hobgood said, "there must first be a definite need for it, and it must be operated on a sound basis."

The FSA official explained also the usual procedure in the organization of such an association, pointing out that the election of a board of directors and officers, of course, was the first step.

J. W. McDermott, Bailey county rural rehabilitation supervisor for the FSA, spoke along the same lines as Hobgood, declaring that the FSA is eager to lend any possible assistance to a sound organization such as the proposed one.

S. E. Goucher, who has devoted much time the past few months contacting farmers in regard to organization of the cooperative, served as secretary of the meeting, and told of the response his efforts had met.

Sam T. Logan, Bailey county agricultural agent, said other attempts had been made here to form a co-op, and that he was confident a marketing association, once organized and operating efficiently, would save local growers thousands of dollars over a period of time.

E. L. Brown, mayor of Muleshoe, said a definite need existed for some form of cooperative marketing group. He described the difficulties, which confront truckers who come here to buy products. Such an association as the proposed one would remedy this situation, Brown believes.

Others who commented on the move to organize, all expressing confidence that such a system is needed, included E. R. Hart, J. E. Osborn, C. A. Barnett, G. T. Maltby, Levi Churchill, R. D. Precure, J. M. Holland and S. T. Tipton.

As pointed out at the meeting, the formation of a cooperative marketing association would entail the building of potato storage houses, packing sheds and other facilities. Construction of a sweet potato curing plant also was discussed, and another suggestion was that peanuts be included in the products marketed through the association.

The "Muleshoe Truck Growers Cooperative" was the name decided upon for the association. Every farmer and business man interested in the project is (Continued on page 2)

Yellowjacket Gridsters Make All-District Teams

The Muleshoe Yellowjackets, who narrowly missed the dusty confines of the District 5-A cellar, placed three linemen—Weldon Standerfer, Hubert Clark and Vannoy Tipton—on the all-zone team, with Standerfer being picked for a position at center on the all-district eleven—beating out 12 other crackerjack pivot men for the post.

The selections were made by the district's 14 football coaches. Standerfer was an easy choice for the center position on the mythical all-district team. His play was outstanding all year and he was the most versatile man on the Yellowjacket squad. Not only did he handle his regular duties at center in a capable manner, but he did the punting for the local eleven and much of its ball taling in the last few games.

Clark, who was all-district last year, was barely crowded out of a tackle berth on this season's combine after being an easy choice for the all-zone team. The man who finally nosed out Clark for a place on the "top team" was his cousin, Claude Patton of the Sudan Hornets.

The honor at least stayed in the family, said Chuck Herring in commenting on the selection. The 190-pound tackle was a tower of strength in the durable Yellowjacket line all season. His best games were the Slaton and Sudan frays.

Tipton held down a guard slot in a capable manner all season. Despite his team's 0-6 loss, he played one of his most outstanding games against Otton.

He shone on both offense and defense in every game, however, and helped make the big Muleshoe line the most feared forward wall in the district.

One other Yellowjacket—Tuffy Kennedy—was mentioned for the all-district team. Had he not suffered an ankle injury early in the season would probably have been top man for a wing position.

Many local fans were surprised that T. M. Cox, fighting fullback, did not win a berth on either the all-zone or all-district team. But triple-threat backs were numerous over the district this fall, and this fact probably accounts for Cox not making a better showing when the laurels were being passed around. An excellent defensive back and an A1 ball carrier, he possessed none of the passing nor punting qualities which go to make a triple-threat. However, he was one of the most valuable backs in the district, and was commended by many the armor of the Yellowjacket eleven.

None of the other Muleshoe players were mentioned for the all-district team, but this fact (Continued on page 2)

Bailey County Allotted 291 Acres Potatoes

Bailey county has been allotted only 291 acres of Irish potatoes for 1942 by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, according to a recent announcement. Twelve South Plains counties have a total acreage of 5,434 acres with 1,946 acres of this amount being allotted Deaf Smith county.

County AAA administrative officers have requested producers this year to estimate the acreage they desire to plant in 1942 and it was on these estimates that county allotments were based. Actual acreages are, for the most part, considerably below what most persons had expected to be in the crop.

Forty-five counties in the state have been allotted 20,330 acres for next year. Fourteen of these are in the northwestern section of the state, including Dallam and Potter counties in the Panhandle.

Several months ago a survey made by E. C. Kuykendall, general agent of the Fort Worth & Denver City railway and Cecil Kelsey, traveling agent, indicated 11,050 acres in crop, both early and late in nine counties. Based on an estimated yield of 100 to 200 sacks per acre a crop of 1,414,000 sacks was predicted. The figures were given by county farm agents and AAA administrators.

Meantime the state AAA office had received complaints from other states where potatoes are grown, as well as from the Washington office, about the alleged "unbridled" competition in Texas. An allotment system was sought in order to reduce the competition.

Sixteen of the counties in the state have more than 300 acres in allotments for 1942. Cameron has the largest, 8,386.3 acres. Deaf Smith is second with 1,946 acres. Other third with 1,490 acres. Other of the large counties are: Castro 797; Wharton 775; Harris 758; Haile 533; Floyd 521; Lamb 491; Bowie 458; Erath 424; Lubbock 412; Hidalgo 371; Swisher 339; Dallam 310; Colorado 310.

Strip Of Road On Highway 28 Being Repaired

For the past few weeks, local employees of the Texas State Highway Department have been busy repairing a strip of road about one-half mile long on Highway 28, two miles northeast of Muleshoe.

The road was damaged by heavy rains early this fall. Several trucks have been used in hauling dirt to build up the road bed, which is considerably higher now than before the work began.

Much work remains to be done before the highway is re-opened, and traffic is being detoured a few miles, around the old highway.

THIS BUSINESS OF Living

BY SUSAN THAYER

It was Thursday afternoon and Miss Milly, who cleans for almost everybody in town, was just finishing up in my kitchen. I hoped I'd find her there when I got home from the club meeting where we'd been talking about the coal strike. I always like to talk to Miss Milly. She comes from an old substantial family and, though she has had a hard life, there is a wealth of wisdom in her philosophy as well as pride in her work. Today I wanted especially to hear what she had to say on the disturbing problem we had discussed.

She had just finished mopping the floor and had stopped for a moment to admire her work when I opened the door.

"It looks nice, Miss Milly," I remarked.

"Don't it though. But then, this is mighty rewardin' linoleum. A little work, and it comes out as bright and fresh as when it was new."

"When you do the mopping," I reminded her.

"Course I always try to do good work. It wouldn't be much satisfaction to work like I do if I didn't know it was good. Money ain't everything, you know."

And then I brought up the subject of strikes.

"How would you like it, Miss Milly, if some day when you were ready to start out to work here, some one came along and told you no . . . you couldn't come . . . that you mustn't work any more for me until I promised to pay you more money or only to hire certain people for other jobs we have."

"Me that's worked for you ever since you was married and for your mother before you? I'd like to see some one tell me I couldn't work here if I wanted to!"

She shook her head firmly. "It ain't American to try to rule over people like that."

"But they've been telling the coal miners they couldn't work."

"I know . . . I know," said Miss Milly, "and it ain't freedom either. Didn't we fight a war once to free all the black folks who had to work the way somebody told them?"

"Yes. We did. But this is different, of course. These miners are free. Nobody makes them work."

"But if somebody makes them stay home when they want to work, ain't it pretty much the same thing?" She bent over to wring out the mop. "No, Susan," (she'd called me that since I was in my cradle) "it ain't freedom and it ain't American for somebody way up in the world to tell people like me when we can and when we can't work. We got rights the same as they have and if we could get rid of one kind of slavery a long time ago, looks to me as if we ought to be able to get rid of this kind now. Anyhow, I'm comin' to help you on Thursday as long as you want me and the sooner other workers feel the same way about their work the better, I'd say."

Seed Treatment Suggested For Weevil Control

The first and most important factor in successful control of weevils in stored seed is a bin, or fumigation chamber, built so tightly that the gas will not flow away. Suitable temperature and a sufficient quantity of fumigant complete the preparation for the job.

According to Cameron Siddall, entomologist of the A. and M. College Extension Service, double walls and floors with building paper between, one wall consisting of tightly fitting matched lumber, makes an ideal fumigating bin. Grain piled on the floor or ground may be fumigated with reasonable success by covering with a tarpaulin and throwing dirt on the edges. Barrels and boxes can be used for small amounts.

The temperature should be 75 degrees or higher. Carbon disulphide, otherwise known as high-life, is the best fumigant for farm use. But Siddall cautions that all lights and fires should be kept away from the liquid and its fumes as it is inflammable and explosive. Four to 20 lbs. of the liquid per thousand cubic feet of bin space should be used the quantity varying with the tightness of the container and temperature. For smaller containers these quantities can be used:

Half gallon jar, one quarter teaspoonful; gallon syrup bucket, one half teaspoonful; 25-pound lard can, five teaspoonfuls, and 50-gallon barrel, one ounce.

A mixture of three parts of ethylene dichloride with one part carbon tetrachloride is free from fire hazard under ordinary conditions. It can be used as a substitute for carbon disulphide under circumstances where the latter cannot be used.

The seed should be put in first and for larger containers several gunnysacks placed on top, the carbon disulphide poured over them and the lid fastened. For smaller containers the liquid can be poured directly over the top of the seed. It also may be placed in shallow pans atop the seed, as the gas being heavier than air it settles downward. Seeds for planting should be kept in the tightly closed container 24 hours; if for food, 48 hours. Then ventilated thoroughly. Weevils also may be killed by placing seeds in a bag in cold water and heating to 140 degrees, and then drying quickly, or heating dry three or four hours at 135 degrees. Germination will not be injured.

Texas School Lunch Program Is Expanding

Undernourishment of Texas school children is being ameliorated by expanding the community school lunch and increasing the participation of pupils in it, according to Mildred Horton, vice director and state home demonstration agent for the A. and M. College Extension Service, and chairman of the state nutrition committee.

Miss Horton quotes L. J. Capleman of Dallas, regional director of the Surplus Marketing Administration, that in September, 1940, 110,884 Texas school children were receiving school lunches. In September, 1941, the number had increased to 171,294, or an additional 60,510 pupils "receiving an attractive, well-balanced school lunch each day." Effort is being made this year to reach about six million of the nine million American school children who are undernourished.

"The people of Texas, recognizing the problem of malnutrition among school children, are working closely with the government to wipe out this evil," according to Capleman.

The Surplus Marketing Administration supplies to the state department of public welfare the supplementary foods to be distributed to community school lunch programs in the state. Local civic clubs, P.-T. A.'s and school organizations act as sponsors. In certain areas community sponsors can call upon such federal agencies as the Works Projects Administration and National Youth Administration for assistance in preparing and serving food and maintaining lunch-rooms.

The South leads the nation in school lunch programs. During September about one and one half million pupils were served, 75 percent of them living on farms in rural areas. More than three-fourths of the schools participating in the lunch program in Texas were in the rural areas.

LAMB COUNTY TO GET 210 MILES REA LINES

The Lamb County REA let a conditional contract to the Walco Engineering and Construction Co. of Tulsa, Okla., for the building of the new Section D of the co-op's lines. The bid of the company was $120,000.

Work on the 210 miles of additional line will begin about the first of next year, unless material shortages or other hindrances develop. The addition will serve about 400 homes which do not have electric lights and power. A part of the new construction will be near Otton, another part in the neighborhood of Whittharal and other short lines will be put in around Littlefield.

Most of this year's squad will return next year. Under the tutelage of Coach Prince Scott, the locals are expected to have their best team in history next season. All three men who made the all-zone team will be back in harness. The complete all-district squad is:

BANK FAILURES CUT TO LOWEST LEVEL

The defense boom is credited with cutting bank failures to about the lowest level in history, Chairman Leo Crowley of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation stated that only six small banks with $2,881,000 deposits among them has failed this year. Although the insurance system has held down bank failures ever since it was created Jan. 1, 1933, and bank failures still have been running close to sixty a year. Last year, the number fell to 22 and this year's total may not be more than six.

Bailey County School Free Lunch Rooms

The following is a report of the Bailey county school lunch room program and garden project, contributed for publication in The Journal:

There are three school lunch room programs in operation in Bailey county this year. The lunch rooms are located in Muleshoe school, Progress rural school and Fairview rural school. These programs are sponsored by the school board of each school with the local P.-T. A. as a co-sponsor.

The Muleshoe unit, opened September 22, and has served 5,476 lunches; the Fairview school unit opened November 13 and has served 385 lunches, and the Progress school unit opened September 29 and has served 1,686 lunches, which makes a total of 7,547 lunches served in 31 school days.

The purpose of this program is to provide an adequate, well-balanced hot lunch for school children at a minimum cost.

The lunches served usually consist of two or three vegetables, meat or a meat substitute two or three times a week, a salad, hot bread, dessert, and a glass of milk. The following menus are typical for one week:

MONDAY:

Greens with pork.
Buttered turnips.
Carrot and apple salad.
Cornmeal muffins.
Apple cobbler.
Milk.

TUESDAY:

Shepard's pie.
Green beans.
Graham muffins.
Peanut butter cookies.
Milk.

WEDNESDAY:

Blackeyed peas.
Carrot strips.
Cornmeal muffins.
Pumpkin pie.
Milk.

THURSDAY:

Tamale pie.
Mashed potatoes.
Buttered carrots.
Plain muffins.
Apples.
Grapefruit juice.

FRIDAY:

Irish stew.
Graham muffins with raisins.
Milk.
Oatmeal cookies.

The regular price for the school lunch is 10c. The Fairview unit, however, does not charge a set price for the school lunch, expenses of food, equipment, etc., are paid by donation. If a child is in need and cannot pay the 10c per lunch, he is given his lunch free. There is no discrimination or segregation between the paying and non-paying children; therefore, the children do not know when a child receives a free lunch.

The food for the project is furnished: (1) by the sponsor and paid for by the money taken in from lunches; (2) by the garden and garden produce; (3) and from the Surplus Marketing Administration.

The SMA distributes a variety of surplus commodities to the schools for use in the lunch program. This last month shipments of evaporated milk, cornmeal, corn grits, graham and wheat flour, pork lard, raisins, fresh apples, grapefruit juice, peanut butter, rolled oats, and salt pork were received. The commodities are requisitioned according to the number of needy children served.

The labor for this program is furnished by the Works Projects Administration and employs local people. The three lunch room units in Bailey county employ 12 women. These women are trained and supervised by an area project supervisor who is a Home Economics graduate.

A garden project during the spring and summer was financed by the county. A five-acre irrigated plot was worked by five men employed by the WPA. The equipment tools, irrigation, seed and cans for food preservation were furnished by the county. A variety of food was produced for use in the lunch rooms. A total of 7,051 No. 2 cans of food was canned. Several bushels of tomatoes, carrots, onions, turnips, and greens were used as fresh vegetables in the lunch rooms.

Each school unit uses canned food and fresh vegetables from the county garden.

Patrons and sponsors are invited to visit the lunch room units and see how they are operated.

DEFENSE WORK CREATES SHORTAGE OF TEACHERS

A shortage in Texas school teaching ranks has developed as a result of the national defense campaign, according to the University of Texas Teachers Appointment Bureau, which this year had twice as many calls for teachers as applications for positions.

Courses taught by men are running into greatest shortages, states the secretary of the Bureau, pointing to athletics, science mathematics, etc. The commercial shortages are particularly marked due to the government's requirement of additional statisticians and secretarial workers.

TEXAS EGG SHIPMENTS SHOW HUGE INCREASE

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 1—Believing that the rest of the nation needed a chance at some of their good eggs, Texans shipped six times as many carloads of eggs out of the state in October as they did in October, 1940, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Shipments increased from 120 carloads last October to 720 carloads in October, 1941. This includes, in both cases, shell, frozen and dried eggs, reduced to shell equivalents.

Red Cross Quotas Filled At Four Places

Four communities in Bailey county have reported full quotas in their Red Cross membership drive. Tye Young, county chairman of the membership committee, said Wednesday. Total membership for the county is approximately 400, with several communities not reporting as of this week.

Those with completed quotas are: Circleback, 30; YL, 15; West Camp, 20; Maple, 20. Muleshoe, with a quota of 300, still needed a few memberships to go over. All committees are urged to complete their drives as soon as possible, so that the county can make a final report.

You won't get Christmas cards from your English cousins this year. The government has ruled the paper ordinarily so used is "required for munitions and other essential purposes."

MARSHALL FORMBY TO SPEAK HERE FRIDAY

Rastus shuffled into the employment office down in Savannah one morning and said hopefully:

"Don't spose you don't know no-body to do nuthin', does yo?" "Incidentally," Logan said, "the minimum number of signers have already been received but the program is being held open for another week. Producers have signed up to test over 300 cows already."

ADOLPH VS. JOE

Propaganda has become such a line art that it is difficult for the average citizen to detect the Nazi and Communist poison. More than ever, the disciples of Hitler and Stalin are trying to win the "Battle of America."

Washington Snapshots by JAMES PRESTON

The priorities system is on its way out. It is being superseded by a new arrangement designed to correct the shortcomings of priorities and to allocate strategic materials more effectively.

It has been amusing to watch the change since the paper-hanger and the "Sunday school teacher" fell out over the school and started shouting each other up. Radio time has been purchased lavishly by both Communists and Nazis and each fervently damn the other, so effectively that one would think that Patrick Henry had come back from the Great Beyond to defend his beloved America.

For years we have heard unthinking Americans refer to Europeans as the smartest people on earth. To disprove this, we copy name, say, five inventions for the betterment of mankind which originated in America, for each one coming out of Europe.

lip Murray plan for industrial councils has received from some of the Administration men. It would certainly be in keeping with New Deal philosophy. In some quarters it is predicted that consumer rationing is the next step.

Much suspicion is directed at the change in status of the Army and Navy Munitions Board. Up to the present, this Board has been able to determine its own priorities and thus regulate the size and production speed of its program.

Questions as yet unanswered are whether allocations will be given to an industry as a whole or whether, as now appears to be the plan, they will be based on the requirements of individual units; whether a yardstick will be established at the outset.

Ways Of Cooking Wild Duck Told

This year during the duck season many county home demonstration agents and other home economists in Texas have been asked: "How do you cook a wild duck?" To help hunters and hunters' wives, Hazel Phipps, specialist in food preparation for the A. and M. College Extension Service, offers the idea that recipes for wild fowl are quite similar to recipes for preparing any poultry.

Whether or not you use highly seasoned stuffing depends on the way you like your duck—whether you want to feature the "gamey" flavor or disguise it. Instead of stuffing wild duck, many people cut down the wild taste by putting a sliced apple, an onion, and a piece or two of celery inside a duck when roasting it. All should be removed at serving time.

FARMERS TOLD TO PAY DEBTS, SAVE SURPLUS Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau, recently advised farm folk to "use the additional income they receive during these times to pay their debts and to buy savings bonds to hold against the next crop days that are bound to come."

Mr. O'Neal, in a speech prepared for delivery at the 23rd annual convention of the Indiana Farm Bureau, asserted that "all groups of the population should make up their minds to get along without some things for the duration of the emergency."

"If people, generally, will reduce their purchases of goods voluntarily and save money instead of spending it," he went on, "the savings thus accumulated will form a backlog of purchasing power necessary to keep our industrial plants going and our labor employed when peace comes to our nation again."

Bobby Benton, 15 year old Deatur. III, boy, was charged with reckless driving. "What," said the traffic officer, "would you do if you were a judge and this case was presented to you?" Bobby thought a second and said, "Suspend his driving license for 90 days." He was released on his earnest promise that he would apply the sentence to himself. Attorney Cecil H. Tate left the first of the week for Waco to attend the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge.

SMASHED

Red's blue eyes twinkled as he watched Finlay read. "Some skirt snatcher—this boy!" he chuckled. Then as the incredulous Garry sensed the manifest tension under which the letter had been written...

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—Six men traveled the Chouquaqua trail in the wilds of northern Canada. Six men died. They were buried in the rapids. "Smashed" was the name of the camp fire. Representing other things Garry Finlay, whose brother Bob was one of the six. Representing the death, a half-breed guide, in the region of the rapids, arrived to investigate the deaths. Finlay had received an anonymous letter warning that the men were murdered. Finlay, big fur man, has made an important find from shores of the Waswamp country and will stop at nothing Garry learns that Tete-Blanche is hunting him.

YOUR NAME?

By CHARLES DIDWAY

Powell is a common Welsh name formed by joining of elements in "Ap Howell," which in Welsh means "son of Howell." The names Price (Ap Rhys), Pritchard (Ap Richard) and Pugh (Ap Hugh) are other examples of shortening the form of this kind of name.

NEIL, NEAL This name, which appears in various forms, has an interesting history. The Gaelic (Irish) "neal" signifies "the dark complexioned one"—a swarthy person. The name is also interpreted as "champion" from the Gaelic "niail" meaning the same thing.

GUNTER This is an ancient English personal name altered from the Saxon "Gundher" (a warrior; soldier). It may also be an Anglicized form of the German name Gunther. Edmund Gunter was an English mathematician and astronomer.

CROWLEY An English local name meaning "field of crows" from the Old English "crow" and "lea" (a field or meadow). The name was given to families residing in or near fields in which crows were numerous. One of the nation's greatest football coaches, Jim Crowley of Fordham University, is a prominent bearer of the name.

SENTENCED HIMSELF Bobby Benton, 15 year old Deatur. III, boy, was charged with reckless driving. "What," said the traffic officer, "would you do if you were a judge and this case was presented to you?" Bobby thought a second and said, "Suspend his driving license for 90 days." He was released on his earnest promise that he would apply the sentence to himself.

Attorney Cecil H. Tate left the first of the week for Waco to attend the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge. Then things begin to move.

"Somehow I knew you'd come!" She gasped his hand. Warm with color from her long paddle, she was even lovelier than he had remembered her. "Could any man have refused to come after such a letter?" "Yes, knowing what you do, most men would have been afraid. They wouldn't have trusted me."

"But I'm a mind reader, as I told you, and I'm worried about you, Lise Demaris." "You're also a brave man." There was a look in her blue-black eyes that started his blood singing. "Let's sit down. It's a long story." She threw herself on the sand, offered him a cigarette from a silver case and lit one herself. For a time she smoked, clasping her knees while she gazed straight before her under brows like black brush strokes on her transparent skin.

"I don't know why I should have turned you in my trouble," she began, "unless it's because you're in great danger yourself. Don't you realize they won't let you finish this survey—won't let you leave this country?" "Forget the survey! I know Tete-Blanche is after us. I saw him at the head of the lake. We'll take care of him. I came here to learn why you've got to leave Isadore's place and when."

"I was frantic when I wrote you. It must have sounded delirious and strained but I was desperate. I'd just had a terrible scene with Jules. He was so angry." "I must have sounded delirious and strained but I was desperate. I'd just had a terrible scene with Jules. He was so angry." "I was frantic when I wrote you. It must have sounded delirious and strained but I was desperate. I'd just had a terrible scene with Jules. He was so angry."

"Cool ruffian, this Isadore!" he speculated. "If he's behind this, I'll have his head on a platter. He intends to do, to make it sound right. And he's sized me up as a half-wit who'll fall for this maiden in distress stuff. Well, he's right!" When he had been fed, Louis Mikis started back with Finlay's answer. It was "Yes!"

CHAPTER IX

Two days later a Peterboro hung offshore a few miles east of Isadore's fur-post. In the boat a man and a woman paddled by a woman. "If it's an ambush, Blaise, she won't show up," insisted Finlay, "for they'll expect me to land early at the beach to wait for her. They'll be there and will hop on me at once. I'll have her head on a platter and bringing her into it! She might get hit."

"Mebbe so!" grunted Blaise, his face gloomy with apprehension. "If she does show up, Garry, what are the orders?" demanded Red. "There's this! In a straight, I can't have her think that I haven't trusted her. You're to keep out of sight behind that first point until five o'clock, then move around and pick me up. She'll leave before that."

"Chief, you're crazy," exploded Malone. "That spruce point's a mile from the little sand beach. Suppose they catch you with her? We're out of the picture! We can't reach you!" "I tell you, Red, they'll never let her come if it's an ambush. There'd be no ambush," he became sure, "she'll see that I trust her—believe in her. Don't you realize how humiliating it would be to know that I think her capable of tricking me like that—that I suspect her and am bringing a guard?"

"Oh, I see what you mean, but I don't like it. I want to be handy in case of trouble." "Thank you, Red." Garry again raised the glasses. "There she is!" he announced, quietly. He was conscious of the sudden pick-up of his heart. "Whew!" he murmured, as a wave of elation beat through him, "I've got it as bad as that!"

The Peterboro reached the spruce point and stopped. "Hello, Blaise! See you soon and I'll have something to tell Bo-joe, Red!" But Malone and the eager Flane joined Finlay on the shore. "What's the idea?" asked Garry. "Going to kiss me good-by?" "Take this, Garry," Red pushed a black automatic into Finlay's hand. "It may be useful." "No, I've got my service .45. She's the sweetest girl I ever owned. I don't need this." "Take it for me, will you, Garry?" But Finlay shook his head. "So long, Red!" He stooped and patted the nervous aide-de-camp. "Bo-joe, Flane, old pal! If she does come, 'Stay with Red!'"

With a wave of his hand Finlay started on his long walk. Lise Demaris was there waiting, when he reached the white beach. He suddenly realized that she had guessed his thought since he had saw her grey face that night at Isadore's. And now, in her desperation she had turned to him. Lise stood beside her canoe.

"No, I think he wanted to search you—learn who you were. I was afraid something would happen. I wanted to warn you. Then I saw that hideous Tete-Blanche. After you left Jules struck Corinne for drinking that wine—drinking her in the face. He was like a madman." "Nice fellow! Of course he knows he can't last long at this game. Already six men who have entered this country have disappeared. The police will be here soon." "Six men?" she gasped. "I've heard of only two!"

"They ambushed you on the Not-taway! But you're all right? (h) they'll stop at nothing! Do you understand now why I've got to do away?" "What was Tete-Blanche doing there that night?" "I don't know." "Well, don't worry, we'll have you safe at Matagami by August."

She gave a deep sigh. For a space they smoked in silence while Finlay's thoughts were busy with the mysterious plans. She was glancing at him through curious eyes. "Charming gossip we're having on my bathing beach on this lovely July day," she said ruefully. "I don't know." "Well, don't worry, we'll have you safe at Matagami by August."

Her mood had suddenly changed. The compelling charm of his head all thoughts of Isadore, a beautiful girl sat beside him, desirable, baffling. And in her slow smile was veiled challenge. "You swim here often?" "Her eyes were busy with the trim moccasins toying with the sand. She stood beside her canoe grasping her paddle. Her words were: "Fishing for an invitation to join the beautiful mermaids? If you are, you're distinctly not invited. We usually swim in our scales, you know."

She flung herself around, facing him, and impulsively took his hand. "What children we are!" she cried. "This is the second time I've ever talked with you, Garry Finlay, and I'm babbling like a sub-deb at her first big dance." "I never met one but I'm sure I'd love sub-debs." He leaned toward her. "Do you know how lovely you are and—how dangerous?" he said.

A warm undertone of pink pushed up over her neck and cheeks. She seemed suddenly confused. "It's growing late! I've got to go!" "It was on her feet. "You'll talk me at Matagami when I write? How can I thank you for daring to come? It's like a reprieve from a death sentence! I want to dance and sing. She stood beside her canoe grasping her paddle. Her words were: "Au revoir! Very nice and dangerous!" Her eyes danced dangerously.

"When you send word, I'll come!" he said, thickly. He slid her canoe into the water, turned and with a quick movement had her in his arms. With a swift catch of the breath she flung back her dark head and smiled up at him. He kissed her hair and eyes and responsive mouth. Breaking away, leaped into the canoe and paddled off. Reaching the point, she blew a kiss with her hand and passed from sight.

His pulses drumming, Finlay stood at the edge of the water, groping for his mental balance. With her charm and changing moods Lise Demaris had played on his senses as a musician on a harp, run the gamut from laughter to tears. The hard-boiled Garry Finlay had been pliant in her breaking away, leaped into the canoe and paddled off. Reaching the point, she blew a kiss with her hand and passed from sight.

At the thought he glanced up and down the beach. The shore was deserted. Still under the spell of the girl who had paddled away, he started for the spruce point to meet the Peterboro. Again he felt her arms on his neck, her warm lips, locked into the dancing depths of her eyes. Acting? What's got into you, Garry Finlay? That girl is straight as a struce. Soak in it and be the path out. Emotional, of course! Doesn't care a damn for just counsel! Help being human. But she's gorgeous—enchanting!"

"He had reached a string of boulders piled with boulders and had cut back into the bush where the walking was easier when the brittle snap of tracks. His body stiffened while his right hand moved under his shirt to the stock of his .45. "What's that?" he muttered.

Again there was a movement the brush somewhere in front of Finlay slipped behind a spruce eye stabbing the surrounding dergworth. Then, from his came a sound in the scrub flattened under the low br wave of remorse chilled his bitter wind as lay bent overhanging boughs. Surround knew he must be—caution—her trap—his ears strain the elements of the men who gnaw while his thoughts hung this.

Snip That Snip! This may never make you a million dollars but it's interesting to know. The U. S. Bureau of Standards has declared the cigarette to be a greater forest menace than the cigar. Research has established that a discarded cigarette will burn for 8 1/2 to 12 minutes, while a discarded cigar will go out in from 2.3 to 5.17 minutes.

New Type Deer Fence A new type "deer proof" fence, composed of five electrified wires suspended three feet apart horizontally on cross bars three feet above the ground, is now being tried out.

Poison Fish In Philippine Island waters there are several species of fish whose flesh contains poisons. A number of mysterious deaths were finally solved when it was found that they were the direct result of eating poison flesh of fish. These strange fish do not bite you. Neither do they sting -yet their flesh contains poisons similar to the deadliest of mushroom poisons.

About Game Birds Contrary to the popular belief of many people, there is no breed of pheasant native to the United States. The first record of releasing pheasants in this country is a group of ringnecks released in Oregon in the latter part of the nineteenth century.

The baby Chukar partridge has black legs and a black beak. As he grows older, this color changes to a beautiful shade of red, which gives him the caption "redlegged hill partridge."

Game breeding is steadily increasing as a full-time enterprise in the United States. What with restocking of sportsmen's clubs, state purchases, and individual buying, the market for game birds of all kinds has steadily advanced. A great many game breeders think their feeding and care is most important during the spring when they are laying. You must feed your birds well thru-out the winter also in order to build up body strength and health for the spring season.

There's Something New All Right Sometimes you think there is nothing more new that can be sold about the funny things happening afield to sportsmen. But it seems there's always a new one. This takes our cake. A Virginia game warden came across a hunter with a squirrel in his pocket recently and quite naturally asked the man for a peek at his license.

"Oh, I don't need a license," replied the hunter as he stroked the bushy tail of his vanquished game. "The squirrel season isn't open in this county."

Fur Bearers Valuable Many of the common fur bearers play an important and highly useful role in preying upon injurious insects and rodent pests. The weasel, for example, is beneficial in destroying large numbers of mice and rabbits which damage gardens, orchards and property. The skunk is helpful in its destruction of white grubs, wireworms, grasshoppers and mice.

Frank Bieker of Hays, Kansas, had a goose which declined advantages offered by a small lake for swimming and drinking. She went to the chicken yard instead and drowned while taking a drink-caught her head in an underwater partition.

EFFECT OF INCREASING SPEEDS ON MILEAGE LIFE OF TIRES

Tread rubber wears out at a normal rate at 30-miles-an-hour average driving speeds. Higher speeds burn up the rubber faster, thus reducing mileage life of tires. To help motorists conserve rubber for national defense needs, tire development engineers of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company are releasing the above data to show that excessive wear at 40 miles per hour is equivalent to a waste of 22 per cent of the normal tread mileage. At 50 miles per hour, the waste rubber is almost double that sacrificed at the 40-mile-per-hour speed. Normal speeds mean normal wear and low mileage cost of tires.

Jan Valtin To Appear At Denton

DENTON, Tex., Dec. 1-Jan Valtin, whose novel, "Out of the Night," has made him one of the most talked of men of the day will make an appearance at the main auditorium of the North Texas State Teachers College Friday night, December 5, at 8 o'clock to tell his audience what they want to know about his life as a member of the Communist Party in Germany.

Called in by the federal authorities for questioning, Valtin has assisted in uncovering many secret police operations of foreign governments in the United States. A fugitive from both the Nazi Gestapo and the Communists OGPU, Valtin has repudiated Communism and for the past several years has been active in his condemnation of totalitarian governments and in his praise of democracy.

In previous interviews Valtin has stated that the United States can help Stalin now but that after the war he must not be trusted. He favors United States intervention now and believes that if Hitler wins the war in Europe there will be no such thing as "preserving" American Democracy. Hitlerism, Valtin says, is the greatest evil in the world today, and the second greatest evil is Communism.

DO THREE THINGS PAYMENTS IN 1942

chairman of the Bailey county AAA committee, this week. A farmer falling below the 20 percent minimum requirement will earn only a proportionate part of his cotton, wheat, peanut, and Irish potato payments. The soil-building allowance may be earned, as in previous years, by carrying out approved soil-building practices, the AAA official explained. Payments for planting within allocments include: cotton at 121 cents per pound; wheat, 10.5 cents per bushel; peanuts, 7.25 cents per hundred pounds. The rate on Irish potatoes, for which allotments were established for the first time under the 1942 program, is 2 cents per bushel. Crops meeting soil-conserving classification include biennial and perennial legumes and perennial grasses; Sudan, millet, and annual ryegrass for pasture; seeded cover crops of which a good growth is left on the land; summer-fallowed acreage protected from wind and water erosion; planting forest trees, and Austrian winter peas or vetch grown for seed. Land uses include approved terraces constructed on idle cropland, and sweet sorghums, oats, rye, sudan or millet cut green for hay, provided a strip one rod wide is left standing between each five-rod strip harvested, the AAA official explained.

SIGNS POINT TO TEXANS SPENDING MORE MONEY

Savings bond purchases during the past month were 20 1/2 percent below October, 1940, and 11 percent below September in 34 post offices reporting their bond sales to the Bureau.

Kansas City firemen thought they had answered every kind of fire alarm until an alarmed voice phoned "My lawnmower's on fire." It was too, a new fangled, power-driven kind. Why is it that Christmas always has to come so close to the insurance payment or installment on the car?

MATERIALS FOR DEFENSE

Chromium And Defense

Chromium lipstick cases and fancy compact, automobile trim, and stainless steel skillets—these and a lot of other common gadgets that America has become used to in the Luxury Age are going to be much harder to get. The reason is—chromium. We need it for guns and planes and battleships for the Arsenal of Democracy.

At present the United States chromium supply is enough to meet all military and essential civilian demand but what happens in the future depends on "freedom of the seas" because we get our chromium by way of ships and shipping lanes. The supply and demand picture right now goes something like this:

Imports 1940, 867,689; 1941, 800,000 (est.).
Domestic production, 1940, 2,662,141; 1941, 10,000 (est.).
Total, 1940, 860,351; 1941, 810,000.
Consumption, 1940, 502,000; 1941, 750,000 (est.).

As the 1942 demand probably will rise 100 to 150 thousand tons over 1941, it is plain that any curtailment of shipping facilities would mean a serious shortage of this important defense material.

Chromium is important for three reasons. It is the principal source of stainless steel and one of the principal alloys that make hard steel for armor plate; it is the most widely used refractory for making linings for steel furnaces; it is an important chemical.

The addition of about 2 percent chromium to steel results in a product of intense hardness and toughness. Its uses are many, the most important from a military standpoint being armor plate. It is also used in the manufacture of axles, springs, parts of gun carriages, automobiles, steel for safes, cutlery and armor piercing projectiles.

When 10 or 15 percent of chromium is added to steel the result is stainless steel with which we have become familiar in the last few years. It is used where corrosion must be avoided, in valves, airplane and marine engine parts, and for chemical manufacturing equipment, particularly oil refineries and chemical plants.

In the form of chromite this metal is widely used in the chemical industry. Its pigments of yellow, green and red are in great demand. It is also used for the tanning of leather and for many other chemical purposes.

Unfortunately there are no substitutes for chromium in several of its important uses. Manganese can be substituted in some instances, but as it also is an important metal in steel production this is gained by using it in place of chromium.

There is no lack of chromium ore in the world. South Africa in particular possesses immense reserves. The solution of America's problem all depends upon the ships that sail the seven seas.

The fact of the matter is that chromium and sea lanes and battleships and merchant vessels and civilian gadgets are all mixed up together. We have to conserve chromium for defense and at the same time if the sea lanes are not clear for American vessels we might be in a tough spot even for defense needs.

That is why chromium is getting so much attention now, and why things that happen thousands of miles away in distant lands and distant waters mean so much to every American.

Two New Plants Opening
Domestic production of chromium is increasing as a result of defense demands, but it cannot hope on the basis of present known deposits to supply all of United States consumption. Deposits are in the Western States and Alaska.

Pressure of defense demands will result in substantial increases in 1942 domestic production, chromium experts estimate, and the United States has built two new plants in Montana which will get into full production around the first of the year. Domestic production may reach 30 percent of demand by the middle of 1942 which will help at least in taking care of essential demands in case foreign supplies are cut off.

This leaves the country largely dependent upon imports, coming principally from Africa. These are the countries from which we imported chromium in 1941:

Africa	44%
Philippine Islands	27%
Turkey	16%
Cuba	8%
New Caledonia	5%

As is the case with a number of other metals, and materials used for military production, our dependence upon foreign sources has resulted in the establishment of a reserve supply in the United States. All chromium over essential military and civilian demands is added to the Nation's stockpile for emergency use. The size of the stockpile depends, of course, upon the number of ships available to bring the ore across the oceans.

Because of the necessity to build up our chromium reserves, the metal has been placed under mandatory priority control. A General Preference Order of July 7, 1941, places restrictions on its use and provides that defense orders must be filled first.

Agencies Join To Promote Child's Welfare

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 1.—The Texas State Department of Health has joined the President of the United States, and the United States Children's Bureau in cooperative measures designed to promote the welfare and safety of children, declared Dr. C. W. Cox, State Health Officer. This is a part of the Civilian Defense plan that is being set up throughout the nation.

Adequate provisions for safety and health of every child, need the list of objectives in the defense program for children. Emphasis is laid on the importance of advance planning to assure safety in case of grave emergency, and on the continuation and extension of the health service now available for mothers and children, including maternity care, continuous health supervision of all children, medical, surgical and dental care of children and young people beyond school age.

Measures that will keep children well and strong physically, with particular reference to their nutritional needs, come next on the list, with special reference to the education of parents and children in the selection and preparation of foods, extension of school lunch services, extension of the food stamp plan for low-income families, and utilization of advisory services of nutritionists in health and welfare agencies.

Security in home life comes next among the objectives, including provision for proper housing care of dependent children, aid to mothers and responsible care and supervision of children whose mothers are employed; social services through county or local agencies to help conserve home life and make good school and community relationships possible for children with special needs and handicaps.

Recognition of the need for maintaining and extending all possible safeguards against the employment of children in hazardous occupations in industry and agriculture is urged as a further objective, and particular emphasis is laid on the importance of character building and the training of children for citizenship through the continuation and extension of educational and other services to learn to accept responsibility, to understand the rich heritage and purposes of our civilization, to develop high standards of personal integrity and intelligent loyalty to democratic ideals and institutions.

SCALE MODEL SHOWS HOW SULPHUR IS PRODUCED

A scale model showing how sulphur is produced along the Texas Gulf Coast is being installed as another in a family of geologic dioramas in the Texas Memorial Museum on the University of Texas campus.

Mines being modeled for this exhibit are located at Freeport. When completed, the diorama will include scaled miniatures of sulphur wells, derricks, and crystallization troughs, reservoirs, railroads and all other phases of sulphur mining. These will be shown on an irregularly shaped horizontal plane approximately five feet in each dimension. Scale to be used is one inch to each 200 feet.

Beneath the "landscape" will be a scaled model of the geologic structures underlying the sulphur fields a graphic picture of how the wells are drilled through various strata before reaching sulphur beds.

SPRINGLAKE MAN DIES OF INJURIES FOLLOWING CRASH

Johnny McNamara, Springlake, died Sunday night, November 23, at his home of a heart ailment which developed after he was a victim of an automobile wreck north of Springlake last February.

Mr. McNamara had pulled his car to the side of the road where it was parked. Blinded by the sandstorm that was raging, the driver of another car failed to see the parked car in time to avoid hitting it.

Mr. McNamara had three ribs broken, one of which punctured his heart.

TEXAS Out-o'-Doors

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 1 - The quail season (December 1 thru January 16) is on, and the Game Department goes once again into the assistance of the housewife. How do you cook quail?

Well, broiled quail, according to game officials, is one of the tastiest of dishes, and here's how you do it:

Split the birds down the back and season well in the body cavity. Dot the bottom of a hot pan with butter and place quail in breast up. Cover pan tightly. After steaming ten minutes in moderate oven, turn breast down for ten minutes. Turn the birds once more, put a teaspoon of butter on each, and then in ten minutes the birds will be brown and tender if they are young. Older quail will require more cooking. When done add one-half cup of hot water to gravy and pour over the birds.

FOLKLORE OF THE CHASE

An old East Texas boy went out deer hunting opening day. He had a pretty good rifle. He took his dog along, for he lived in a county where you can legally chase wounded deer with one dog. He was hunting in his home county, so he didn't have to have a special license to kill a deer. He didn't have one, and his conscience was hurting him, whether he knew it or not.

Just as he got set, with his dog between his knees and his rifle held at ready, a game warden walked up. He meant no harm. "Hello, there," the warden said. "Had any luck?"

"The old East Texas boy was scared stiff." "Nope," he said. "I don't hunt. And anyway I ain't got no deer license."

The game warden patiently explained that it wasn't necessary to have a "deer license" to kill a deer, as many people in East Texas believe. He told the hunter to go on and kill a deer if he could. The East Texan's face lighted up with a broad grin.

Then the game warden walked on, chucking at the old boy's reply that "I don't hunt" while at the same time he was squatting down in good territory with a good dog near him, and a deer rifle in his hands.

ANOTHER CHANCE GONE

Paul Wendler of Boerne almost saw a sight in Nature that many a man would give many dollars to see.

He came across two deer that had been fighting, whose horns became locked, and that had died as a result of this fierce combat of the wild.

According to the Boerne Star, Wendler arrived on the scene just after the deer had died of exhaustion. If he had been just a little earlier arriving at the scene, he would have had a grandstand view of one of the most interesting sights of the out of doors.

VIOLATIONS DON'T PAY

Back in December, 1940, a Missouri business man and two friends came to Texas for a deer hunt. They didn't buy non-resident hunting licenses, which cost $25 each, but instead bought the regular $2 resident hunting licenses required of those who hunt outside the county of residence.

But the Missourians couldn't beat the game laws of Texas. It took a year to do it, but the business executive from Missouri the other day paid fines totaling $411 for himself and his friends, according to the Dallas Journal. The charges were pressed in justice court by the game supervisor for the Dallas area, who handled all details of the case. The non-resident licenses would have cost the party only $75. There's quite a little difference between $75 and $411.

McALLEN WOMAN HAS ACRE OF ORANGE TREES

McALLEN, Tex.—Mrs. H. F. Perry has an acre of orange trees, but townsfolk don't call it her orchard. They refer to it as her gold mine.

The one acre grove of 8-year-old trees this year produced 27 tons of oranges which brought $25 a ton, a 875 harvest. Production has not fallen below 20 tons since 1928 and in 1933 the yield was more than 40 tons.

First plastics came out as a substitute for wood and now they are treating wood with plastics. It's called "plasticized" wood, if you're interested, and if you don't like that one they'll offer you "compregnated."
