

Part Of Cooper Hijack Money Found

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Twelve weathered stacks of $20 bills — part of the $200,000 given to legendary airline hijacker "D.B. Cooper" before he parachuted from an airliner more than eight years ago — were unveiled Tuesday by the FBI.

But agents said they still have no trace of Cooper.

This clue is the first we've had since the night of the occurrence," said Bill Baker, assistant special agent in charge of the Portland FBI office.

He said wads of the money, bound by rubber bands, were found Sunday while Harold D. Ingram, his wife, Patricia, and their 8-year-old son, Brian, were preparing to build a picnic fire along the Columbia River, five miles northwest of the Interstate 5 bridge linking Portland and Vancouver, Wash., where the Ingrams live.

Ingram said at a news conference here that the money was found about 20 yards from the river's edge under a thin layer of sand.

My son ran up and said, 'Wait a minute, Daddy,' Ingram said. He raked a place out in the sand and there it was. There were three bundles of money.

Baker said officials estimated there were several thousand dollars in the wads, but it was impossible to make an accurate estimate because of the deteriorated condition of the bills, which were weatherbeaten and crumbling along the edges.

Ralph Himmelsbach, agent in charge of the Cooper case since it happened, has speculated that Cooper died after he parachuted from the Northwest Airlines airplane over a densely wooded area along the river.

"I think we can only presume at this time that because the money was found clumped together tightly in what we believe was the manner in which it was originally packed lends credence to the theory that at least the money did not make it out of the area where Cooper was believed to have dropped.

And from there, I would really leave it to conjecture," he added.

The announcement of the discovery was made simultaneously in Portland, Seattle and Washington, D.C.

Serial numbers of the money were recorded before being given to the hijacker on Thanksgiving Day eve 1971.

The commandeering of the Boeing 727 jetliner has been carried by officials as the only known unsolved hijacking.

The hijacker boarded the jet in Portland, then displayed what a flight attendant said looked like dynamite. He demanded four parachutes and $200,000 in $20 bills.

He ordered the pilot to fly to Seattle where the plane circled for 2½ hours while authorities gathered the parachutes and money.

At Seattle, the passengers and two of the three stewardesses were allowed to leave the plane. The money and parachutes were loaded and the plane took off for Reno, Nev. The pilot was ordered to fly as slowly as possible.

Somewhere over southwest Washington, the hijacker, the money and one of the parachutes disappeared out of the plane's rear exit. The door was opened in flight.

In 1977, just to make sure the hijacker didn't escape prosecution via the statute of limitations, he was indicted on federal charges in

Tech Coach Gay Benson Keeps Job

By CANDY SAGON
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

GAY BENSON, who was told in December that she'd be out of a job as Tech's head women's basketball coach by the end of this school year, was told Tuesday her contract will be renewed.

The decision to retain Mrs. Benson, whose team has won 19 games and lost 9 this season, was announced by Robert Ewalt, vice president for student affairs and the university administrator responsible for women's athletics.

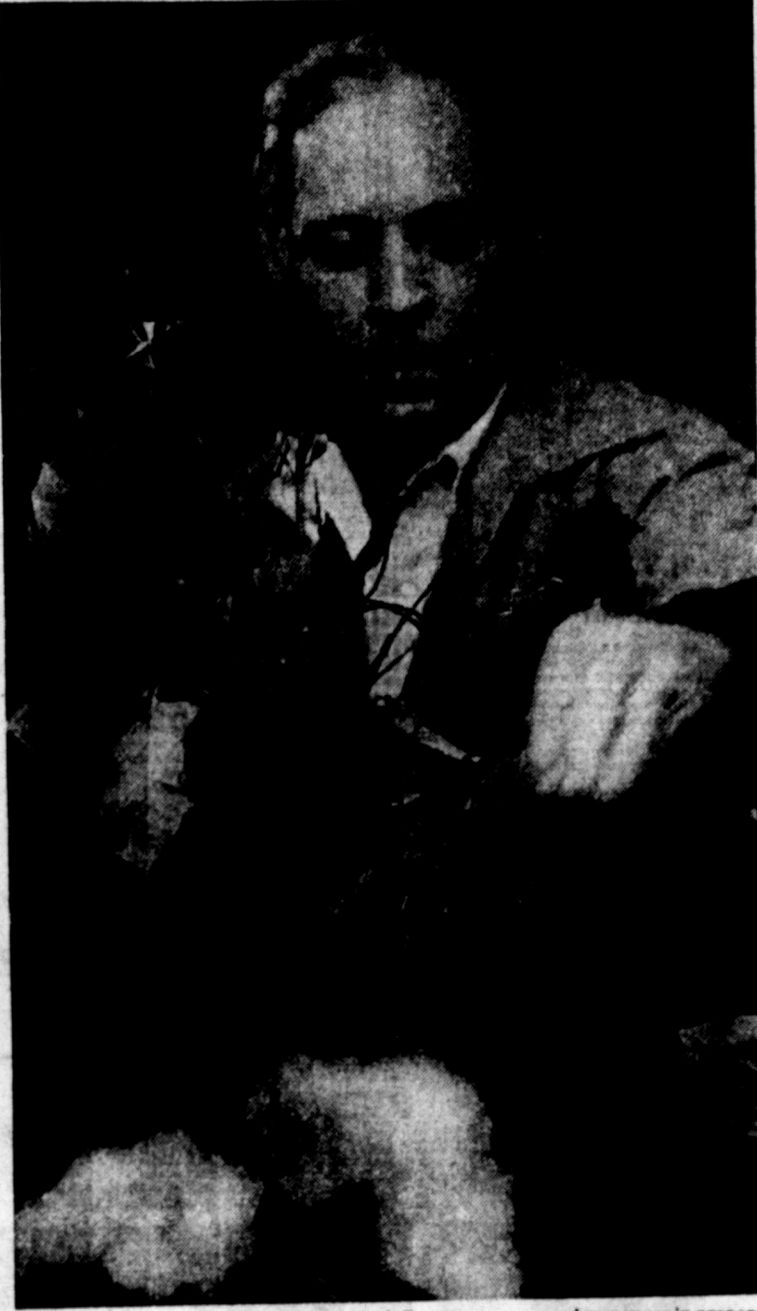

Although Dr. Ewalt declined to comment on any aspect of the decision to retain the 39-year-old coach, Mrs. Benson confirmed that she had been re-offered her job and had accepted.

Pleased With Outcome

When asked if she was pleased at the outcome, she answered, "Of course, but I'm just sorry it had to happen this way. Other people have been hurt; I've been hurt."

It was revealed in December that Tech's Women's Athletic Director Jeanne McHaney had decided to fire Mrs. Benson, reportedly because of a disagreement over some of the basketball coach's tactics in handling players and other "physical and emotional problems."

Following the announcement of the decision, several players on the women's basketball team said they would not return to play next year if Mrs. Benson was not rehired.

COMING UP ROSES — Local florist Mack Bowers arranges a dozen roses in preparation for Valentine's Day Thursday. Even though growers have hiked their prices in preparation for the holiday, many Lubbock florists say they are absorbing the increases in an effort to keep romance within the finances of most of us. While those in some of the nation's larger cities are shelling out as much as $75 for a dozen roses, the precious petals in Lubbock range from about $25 to $40. (Staff photo by Gary Davis)

Valentine Rose Supply Skimpy

By KIMBERLY PALMER
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

LOVERS in Lubbock are in luck. With Valentine's Day roses selling for as much as $75 a dozen in New York, local florists say they are doing their best to keep romance affordable by absorbing much of price hikes instituted by growers in preparation for the holiday.

But even with 12 of the long-stemmed beauties selling in Lubbock for $24.50 to $40, florists say the demand for roses is blossoming and short supplies of the flowers have Valentine Valentinos vying for the flowers on a first-come-first-served basis.

At $24.50 a dozen, Bill Lynch, owner of the House of Flowers, had sold his Valentine's Day allocation of roses by Tuesday afternoon and was desperately trying to get more before the big day.

Ordered More, Got Same

"Although this year we ordered four times as many roses as we used last year, we only received what we ordered last year," Lynch said.

Tim Tippitt, who sells a dozen roses for $38.50 at Flowers Today, said he ordered more roses for Valentine's Day 1980 than he used last year, and he expects to sell them all.

"Those who are rose buyers will continue to buy roses no matter what," Tippitt said. "The price of flowers has gone up just like everything else."

The demand for roses this year exceeds the supply produced by growers in California, Utah, Florida and Colorado.

The reasons for the lack of the flowers are as numerous as the varieties of roses, ranging from a lack of sunshine in California to the million of petals used to cover floats in the Rose Bowl parade.

Price Hikes Deplored

Those florists interviewed by The Avalanche-Journal agreed that the growers' custom to raise rose prices before Valentine's Day was taking advantage of the situation and several said they believed the action hurt the floral business.

Lynch seemed to echo the sentiments of those florists interviewed when he said, "We keep our prices reasonable in order to build a long-term business and not to see how much profit we can make."

For those who are allergic to roses or who turn pale at the mention of the pretty petals' price, florists say carnations, chrysanthemums, mixed arrangements, tulips, potted and hanging plants adorned with chubby cupid and red hearts — ranging in price from $1.50 for a single carnation to $20 for an arrangement of spring flowers — are equally sure to please that certain sweetheart come Thursday.

Clayton Expresses Desire To Testify

$5,000 Turned Over To Lawyers

A-J News Services

AUSTIN — Speaker Bill Clayton turned $5,000 cash over to his lawyers Tuesday and said he may reluctantly refuse to testify today before a federal grand jury investigating allegations he took a $10,000 bribe.

"I want to testify," the three-term speaker told reporters, who asked if his lawyer has ordered him to invoke his constitutional privilege to refuse to answer incriminating questions. "I think he's going to try to keep me from it. I want to talk."

Watches Silently

Clayton, 51, watched silently as five lawyers carefully counted and noted serial numbers of the cash removed from a side desk drawer in the Capitol office of his executive assistant, Rusty Kelley.

"Isn't this all a pile of crap?" Clayton asked one of the three reporters asked to watch.

Clayton said, "It sure looks like it," when asked if the five packets of $100 bills taken from a locked cabinet were the money given him as a "political donation."

His attorneys warned him not to say more.

Bill Fitzgerald, one of the speaker's attorneys, said the money had been in the cabinet, next to the desk of Kelley, since Clayton told Kelley on Nov. 8 to put it away in a "safe place," that he was not going to accept it.

Given Stack Of Bills

Clayton told a news conference Saturday that he was given a stack of $100 bills by L.G. Moore, a former Clayton supporter, as a political contribution after he talked with Moore and another man about health insurance contracts for state employees. Clayton said he never intended to accept the money, but never saw Moore again to return it.

Clayton and Kelley, among others, are subpoenaed to appear before a federal grand jury today in Houston.

Fitzgerald was asked about the discrepancy between the $5,000 shown reporters and the $10,000 some published reports said Clayton received.

"This is just another place where they messed up their case," he said.

The attorneys have claimed that Clayton was "entrapped" by FBI undercover agents. They have not decided whether Clayton will testify before the grand jury or invoke his 5th Amendment right to remain silent.

"The speaker wants to testify," Fitzgerald said, "but it is a difficult decision for his attorneys to make, to let him go before a closed grand jury hearing without his legal counsel. We haven't made up our minds yet. We will make the decision, not him."

Clayton and Kelley, accompanied by five attorneys, led several reporters into Kelley's office at the Capitol. Kelley unlocked a drawer in the cabinet next to his desk. He took out a plain white envelope.

Fitzgerald and Tom Schieffer, attorney for Kelley, opened the envelope and took out five packets containing 10 $100 bills each. Many of the bills looked worn.

Lake Meredith Decline Poses Water Woes

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

DECLINING water levels in Lake Meredith could spell trouble for Lubbock and other area cities served by the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority.

And if current drought conditions continue, the CRMWA board could be forced to ration the water its member cities get from the lake.

Located on the Canadian River in the northern part of the Panhandle, Lake Meredith serves as Lubbock's major supplier of water. In 1979, the city received nearly 11 billion gallons of water from the lake.

But the amount of water allocated to Lubbock and other cities in the CRMWA could be cut if the lake does not receive substantial runoff within the next two years.

CRMWA director John Williams said that he could not second guess what the water authority's board might do, but rationing of water is a possibility. Cities that would be affected are Borger, Pampa, Levelland, Brownfield, Slaton, Lamesa, O'Donnell, Tahoka, Plainview, Amarillo and Lubbock.

"There is no immediate problem,"

Fitzgerald and Schieffer counted the money, taking down the serial numbers. Later they were copied in a duplicating machine.

"I think there will be a number of identifying marks on these," Fitzgerald said.

Jack Gullahorn, an attorney for both Clayton and Kelley and formerly Clayton's top aide, said attempts were made to turn the money over to a U.S. marshal but attorneys could not find a federal

Speaker's Neighbors Reject Bribe Talk

By JOHNNY HOLMES
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

SPRINGLAKE — Despite the splashy statewide headlines announcing Billy Clayton's implication in a major bribery scandal, the home folks aren't even talking about it over coffee.

It's not that the 209 residents in the three-time Texas House Speaker's hometown don't know good gossip when they hear it. They just think it's too ridiculous to even talk about. If anything, all the talk about "Billy Wayne" being implicated in anything even resembling a scandal makes them angry.

"I think he was out and out framed," declared James Busby, one of Clayton's neighbors and longtime supporters. "He hasn't been indicted and I don't think he will be."

"I was out at the gin for two hours this morning and it never did come up," said area farmer Phil Neimast Monday afternoon. "Nobody around here thinks too much about it."

Scheduled To Testify

Clayton was implicated Friday in a wide-ranging Justice Department investigation that alleges he accepted a stack of $100 bills from an FBI agent posing as a representative of an insurance company in the presence of a Houston union leader. Clayton is scheduled to testify before a special Houston federal grand jury today.

"This just looks like politics to me," Busby said, while sipping coffee at the Frito-Lay building which occupies one of the four corners that make up Springlake's downtown. "The timing's just too good. It's election time."

"It sounds pretty crazy to me," said Dale Mitchell, manager of the Frito operation Clayton helped bring to Springlake. "He's always been fair in his dealings with me."

"I'm sure he had good intentions," added James "Sandy" Sanderson, another of Clayton's neighbors. Sanderson, who says he's "run around with Billy as much as anyone," told the coffee crowd, "Billy wouldn't get into anything like this on purpose."

Bribe Theory Unacceptable

"The people who know Billy know very well he wouldn't take a bribe. What is it, $10,000? That's not enough to help him at all," Busby said.

In front of three reporters Tuesday, Clayton removed the envelope from his Austin office safe and opened it, to find it contained only $5,000.

Grievances Aired At Hereford Meet

HEREFORD (Special) — An overflow crowd Tuesday night heard a Justice Department mediator say that the solution to the city's recurring problems between Mexican-Americans and law enforcement officials would come only through mutual cooperation.

"It's going to have to be the people here doing something for themselves," said Robert Greenwald, mediating a gathering between local Mexican-Americans and representatives of the Hereford Police Department, the U.S. Border Patrol, the Texas Department of Public Safety and the Deaf Smith County sheriff's office.

"No one here is on trial," he told the crowd in the Hereford Community Center. The meeting dealt only with specific inquiries into police practices and beliefs concerning Mexican-Americans and illegal aliens, and no discussion from the crowd was allowed.

One young Mexican-American man stalked out of the meeting about halfway through when he was refused an opportunity to voice his opinion on "police harassment," but that incident was the only break in the otherwise calm gathering.

Border patrolman Robert Beasley of Amarillo explained the practices of his agency, but said he could not discuss the responsibilities of the border patrol in conjunction with either the sheriff's department or the highway patrol because of a lawsuit filed by the Texas Rural Legal Aid office dealing with the question.

Beasley indicated that "experience is the best teacher" in situations dealing with Mexican-Americans, and stressed that all border patrolmen are required to be fluent in Spanish and spend at least two years working the border before coming to the Panhandle.

District attorney Roland Saul asked Texas Rural Legal Aid attorney Inez Flores, "Assuming a person is detained for probable cause, what would you suggest an officer do about gaining proper identification?"

Miss Flores replied, "I hope the officer would respect the rights of the person and read him his rights in a language the person would understand."

Reynaldo Garcia, president of the Hereford GI Forum chapter, said Mexican-Americans are being stopped by law enforcement officers because "they are Mexican-Americans."

ERA Plan Defeated In Virginia Senate

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A state senator used a conflict of interest rule to abstain from voting Tuesday and ratification of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment was defeated in the Virginia Senate.

The vote was 20 for, 19 against, but constitutional amendments must pass by a majority of the 40 elected senators.

Sen. John Chichester, R-Fredericksburg, admitted he was using the conflict rule to keep the resolution from being passed but said he did so as a matter of personal conscience.

His position was challenged from the floor, but Lt. Gov. Charles S. Robb said he could not "look behind the motives" of a senator abstaining from voting under the conflict of interest rule.

Chichester's motive was clearly to avoid a 20-20 tie on the amendment which would have given Robb, an ardent ERA supporter, an opportunity to assume the role of a tiebreaker.

Oil Industry May Have Overcharged $1 Billion For Heating Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The oil industry may have overcharged American consumers by as much as $1 billion in home heating oil costs over the last six months, a senior Energy Department official said Tuesday.

Hazel Rollins, chief of the department's Economic Regulatory Administration, said it appears that three cents of every gallon of heating oil paid by consumers during that time period is unexplained by inflation, operating costs, normal profit margins or higher cost of imported crude oil.

While Miss Rollins conceded that the potential existed for $1 billion in overcharges, consumer groups said the excess payments are much higher.

Miss Rollins denied that the Energy Department had been lax about monitoring recent sharp increases in heating oil costs. She said over the entire 40 months since heating oil prices were deregulated, unexplained price increases average out to only one cent a gallon.

Miss Rollins appeared before a House energy subcommittee which was presented a General Accounting Office report that charged the Energy Department's inattention to rising heating oil prices bordered on "indifference and incompetence."

Miss Rollins insisted that the increases have not been sharp enough, nor has enough time passed for her to recommend to Energy Secretary Charles W. Duncan that price controls be reimposed.

She told Rep. Toby Moffett, chairman of the subcommittee, that they were "quarreling here before the television cameras over one cent a gallon."

But Moffett, D-Conn., said the penny-a-gallon average had no meaning because the most dramatic increases occurred over the last several months and the situation was bound to get worse.

F. Kevin Boland, a GAO official, testified to the committee that the Energy Department has refused to investigate why prices keep skyrocketing in the midst of an oversupply.

Heating oil prices have nearly doubled in the last year, largely as the result of dramatic increases in imported oil prices. In some parts of the New England, the price has hit $1 a gallon.

Miss Rollins, however, said the department has repeatedly "jawboned" oil industry officials in an effort to limit increases.

"There has been no falling away of any duties or responsibilities to watch heating oil prices," she said.

Moffett, often a critic of Carter administration energy policies, said he believes the oil industry has been overcharging heating oil customers because it is the only major remaining unregulated part of the market.

He said President Carter decided that to insure an adequate supply of heating oil, the administration would permit unlimited increases in price.

He quoted Carter as telling him last fall that people in New England "are a lot happier to have the oil than to be concerned what they are paying for it."

The GAO examination of oil industry profits, Boland said, showed that refiner profits from 1976 — when the price was deregulated — to 1978, went up about 2 cents per gallon. In the first seven months of 1979, he said, the figures rose to 8.6 cents per gallon.

From January 1979 to December 1979, Boland said, natural gas prices nationally rose by 18 percent, electricity rose by 13 percent, while heating oil costs to the consumer rose by 59 percent.

James L. Feldesman, of the Consumer Energy Council of America, said studies by his organization show the overcharges may reach as high as $5 billion by the end of this winter.

Last summer, Carter set a goal for a reserve of 240 million barrels of heating oil to make sure there would be an ample supply for New England and other regions which rely almost exclusively on oil to provide residential heating.

While the 240 million barrel goal was met, a relatively mild winter and conservation by home owners has left a surplus. Despite that, prices keep going up.

Wounded Auto Burglary Suspect Found Guilty

A 237th District Court jury took only 20 minutes Tuesday afternoon to find a 25-year-old Lubbock man guilty in a Nov. 19 car burglary during which he was shot in the face by a security guard.

Since recovered from the .22-caliber bullet wound to his left cheek, Larry Wayne Cook of 426 Guava Ave. then went

Man's Bond Revoked After New Charges

A 22-year-old Lubbock man charged with aggravated rape and aggravated robbery in October and released on bond was ordered held without bond Tuesday on two hot check charges.

Judge Deniz Bevers of 72nd District Court denied bond to John Otis Vineyard of 2103-D 49th St. after the check charges were presented Tuesday afternoon.

Vineyard was released on $15,000 bond after being charged with aggravated rape and aggravated robbery in the Oct. 15 robbery of an 82nd Street and Indiana Avenue convenience store and the abduction and rape of the 22-year-old store attendant.

Judge Thomas L. Clinton granted a bond reduction request from Vineyard through his attorney, Tom Cannon, after Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy set bond at $200,000 on the two first-degree felony charges.

Vineyard was charged recently with writing two fraudulent checks totaling $270 on Jan. 27 and 28.

Assistant Criminal District Attorney Travis Ware asked for the bond denial Tuesday.

New Fort Worth School Superintendent Arrives

FORT WORTH (AP) — Fort Worth school board members are to meet today with a University of Kansas professor who has been selected as the new superintendent of schools.

Board secretary Pat Shannon said the board will meet with Dr. I. Carl Candoli Wednesday to discuss terms of his contract. If Candoli and the board agree on the terms, the board will formally approve the appointment tonight, Mrs. Shannon said.

Candoli will replace Gerald Ward, who is retiring at the end of the current school year.

to Judge John R. McFall for punishment and was given an eight-year penitentiary sentence.

Cook was hospitalized for several days after surgery to remove a bullet lodged in the back of his neck, and he testified in his own defense Tuesday that the husband of his estranged lover shot him from a passing car on the night of the burglary.

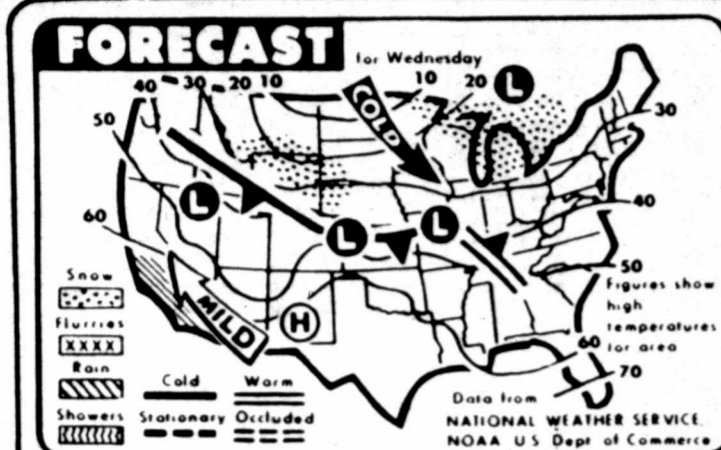

Ray Sparks, a night watchman at the 3800 Southeast Drive cotton compress where the burglary occurred, identified Cook as the man he apprehended breaking into a parked car and then struggled with before firing several shots.

Sparks said the man struck him in the head with a flashlight and then, after the shots were fired, shouted, "You shot me in the face!"

The case was prosecuted by Assistant Criminal District Attorneys Mark McBride and Rick Howell, who asked that the sentence be enhanced on the basis of a 1974 burglary conviction of the defendant.

Cook was represented by attorney Frank King.

Warm Weather Expected Over Area

A-J News Service Sunny skies and warmer temperatures will cover the South Plains today, but colder weather is expected to return to the area by Friday.

The mercury will climb to the mid-60s for today's high, and readings will drop to the mid-30s tonight. Winds will be at 15 to 20 mph today.

South Plains residents may expect another pleasant day Thursday with the high in the low 60s, but with the arrival of the cold front, the afternoon highs will be in the low 40s by Friday. Forecasters said there is a chance of snow Friday night.

Light rain fell from high clouds over South Texas Tuesday morning while the rest of the state was covered with low clouds and thick fog.

McAllen received the heaviest dousing of rain — 64 inches while Corpus Christi, Alice and Brownsville got less than half an inch.

Forecasters called for considerable cloudiness with light rain and mild temperatures today in South Texas and partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures across the rest of the state.

There was snow in the North Central states Tuesday and rain in the Southwest, but most areas had clear skies.

Snow slipped into the upper Missouri Valley and scattered snow showers over the lower Great Lakes and upper Ohio Valley provided an inch of snow at the Olympic Games site at Lake Placid.

Rain showers were scattered along the western and central Gulf Coast.

Skies were sunny over much of the nation and temperatures were cooler than usual for mid-February.

Temperatures at 1 p.m. CST ranged from 9 at Fargo, N.D., to 70 at Miami, Fla.

The forecast for today called for snow from the upper Ohio Valley and the Great Lakes to the northern Rockies, with rain over the northern Pacific Coast and from the southern California coast across Arizona, changing to snow at higher elevations of Arizona.

Colder temperatures were predicted for the northern Rockies and the upper Missouri Valley with highs near 10 from northern North Dakota across northeastern Montana, near 30 from central New England through the Great Lakes and from northern Iowa through northern Wyoming and western Montana, and near 70 over southern Florida, southern Texas and the inland Southwest.

Here is Tuesday afternoon weather in selected cities, as supplied by the National Weather Service:

Militants Say Khomeini Holds Key To Hostages

By The Associated Press
Freedom will come for the American hostages in Iran only if their release is ordered by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the embassy militants was quoted as saying Tuesday by a Persian Gulf newspaper. He said Iran's president should stay out of the hostage issue.

The militants came under attack from Iran's ambassador to the United Nations, who said in Geneva that they were beginning to "lose credibility with the Iranian people" and had gone "beyond their task."

In an interview with The Associated Press, U.N. Ambassador Mansour Farhang said the embassy seizure Nov. 4 was "never condoned" by the Revolutionary Council. Iran, he added, "is not interested in the shah in terms of flesh and blood. We are interested in concepts, not revenge."

Khomeini, confined to a Tehran hospital for treatment of a heart condition, urged Iranians to unite behind the decisions of the governing Revolutionary Council. In a message broadcast by Tehran Radio, the 79-year-old leader said, "I am so grateful in these last days of my life that you showed your maturity in participating in the election for presidency and now I expect you to do the same in electing members for parliament." His reference was to the recent presidential election of Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and the March parliamentary elections.

Khomeini's choice of words — "in these last days of my life" — provoked hundreds of calls to the state-run radio and television network in Tehran from his followers. As a result, regular programming was interrupted late Tuesday night and a second message read by Khomeini assured the nation his health was satisfactory.

In an interview published Tuesday in the Beirut newspaper Al-Safir, Bani-Sadr said that by adopting a hostile stand toward the Iranian Islamic revolution, the Arab regimes have demonstrated that they understand its significance to them. He called on all Arabs to follow the example of the Iranian revolution.

He said, "In my opinion, all Arab radio stations should be blown up because of all the lies they have told and are still telling the people."

According to the Abu Dhabi newspaper Al-Itihad, the militants' leader, who was not identified by name, said his group rejected Bani-Sadr's proposed compromise solution for releasing the Americans, in their 101st day of captivity Tuesday at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. He said the militants would help Bani-Sadr in his role as president "but he should not interfere in issues that are not dealt with in the constitution, such as the hostages issue."

Iranian Envoy Says Distrust Of U.S. To Continue

GENEVA (AP) — Iran's ambassador to the United Nations said Tuesday the eventual release of the American hostages in Tehran will not necessarily signal closer links between Washington and the Islamic government.

In an interview with The Associated Press — one of his first since assuming the New York post in mid-December — Mansour Farhang also said Iran was not interested in the deposed shah "in terms of flesh and blood," said the embassy militants were losing credibility and blasted the American news media.

Farhang said Iranian leaders were unimpressed by American "attempts to influence the fate of the hostages" through anti-Soviet propaganda.

"We regard the Soviet interference in Afghanistan as blatant invasion. But we will never move closer to the United States because of what someone else is doing," he said.

Asked which side he would support if the U.S.-Soviet confrontation widened, Farhang said: "If such a confrontation ever occurs, Iran would support neither side because its choice would be irrelevant. It would be like asking me which cemetery I would prefer to be buried in."

Farhang said Iran would continue to "distrust" Washington long after the release of the approximately 50 hostages, held at the U.S. Embassy by Moslem militants since Nov. 4. "We cannot presume it has given up the temptation to return to its past intervention in Iranian affairs," he said.

"Only when we are sure of our own capacity to confront imperialism politically and defensively, and only when the United States government recognizes us as the legitimate representative of the Iranian people, only then can an equitable relationship be established."

Stressing Iran's political opposition to both superpowers, Farhang said it would provide "great resistance" to any further "intentions of expansionism" by the Soviet Union. Iran has charged Soviet troops are concentrated along its northeastern border with Afghanistan.

Farhang, a 43-year old former student who fled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's regime in 1960 and lived in the United States, listed three requirements before Iran and America can begin to resolve their differences.

"The first thing we want is a genuine apology by the United States for its deceptive and exploitative policies in Iran over the last 25 years."

Secondly, Farhang said, Iran would welcome the appointment of the international commission proposed by U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to investigate Iranian grievances against the shah, who was ousted a year ago and now lives in Panama.

"We are not interested in the shah in terms of flesh and blood. We are interesting in concepts, not revenge," Farhang said.

Thirdly, Iran would accept a U.N. resolution proclaiming the shah a common criminal. A simple majority decision would satisfy Iranian demands, regardless of whether the United States was part of that majority.

Farhang's remarks added weight to reports that Iran no longer is demanding the shah's extradition as a prerequisite to freeing the hostages.

He said the hostages' release undoubtedly would temporarily relax tension between Tehran and Washington.

"But the genuine relationship between the two countries must be based on U.S. respect for the revolution," he said.

He conceded, however, that the embassy militants had gone "beyond their task." They are beginning to "lose credibility with the Iranian people," but added that the situation had to be solved carefully.

their position. If the president has a different opinion then let him take it up with the imam."

Bani-Sadr has said he and the Revolutionary Council he heads have sent to Khomeini their proposal on releasing the estimated 50 hostages and that he is waiting for a response, possibly in the next few days.

"The students' action itself was never condoned by the (ruling) Revolutionary Council. But when it received mass support from the Iranian people and other Third World countries, it had to be solved in a way that would not damage our image."

Farhang, here for the U.N. Human Rights Commission meeting, also accused the U.S. news media of being "ethnocentric, racist, over-selective and ignorant about Iranian culture" during its coverage of Iran's revolution.

With few exceptions, he said, U.S. reporters were interested only in sensationalism without any analysis of the situation.

"Wire services and major newspapers in the United States are racist to the core," Farhang said. "American media representatives were not expelled because we were afraid of being criticized. We just wanted to be criticized by people who understand the situation."

Washington's Speech Gets Cold Shoulder

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time in 50 years, the House will not hold a special session on George Washington's birthday to read the former president's farewell address.

"Nobody ever showed up," said an aide to the Democratic leadership in explaining why Democratic and Republican leaders decided it was useless to continue to read the lengthy address to a mostly empty chamber.

"It's too bad, but its time for this to be consigned to the dust bin," agreed a GOP aide.

Neither aide wanted to be identified, pointing out that traditions sometimes die hard and they didn't want to be caught in any crossfire.

The Senate will carry on the tradition with a special session Monday, during which the address will be read by Sen. Donald Stewart, D-Ala.

In past years, it was almost holy writ that the address must be read. Through war and storm for half a century, a member of each chamber has been chosen to read the address.

In 1979, when the Washington area was hit by one of the worst snowstorms of the century, the address was read, at least symbolically.

Rep. William Boner, D-Tenn., had not even planned to attend the session, but walked from his Capitol Hill home to his office in a jogging suit. He was promptly given a suit coat and tie to place over his green jogging suit and he read the first and last sentences of the address.

In the Senate, some consideration was given to canceling the address, but Sen. John Warner, R-Va., walked from his Georgetown home several miles through the snow to the Capitol to be certain the tradition was carried on.

Warner rode the last few hundred yards up Capitol Hill on a tractor driven by one of the army of farmers who were in town holding a protest.

The reading of the address began in 1919, but was staged off and on for the next decade. In 1929, the tradition began of reading the address every year.

Timing the reading was always a favorite pastime. The shortest time in the House for reading the full address was 34 minutes in 1948 and the longest was 57 minutes in 1970.

Clayton--Facts Are Needed

HOUSE SPEAKER Bill Clayton of Springlake has been one of the most respected men in Texas government for nearly two decades and it would be wrong to judge him otherwise on the basis of what now is known about the allegations against him.

Clayton's own explanation of how a stack of $100 bills came into his possession nonetheless leaves him a big problem in keeping the public's confidence.

The Speaker, subpoenaed to appear before a federal grand jury in Houston, denies that he received a $10,000 bribe, saying the money was given him as a political contribution and that he never had any intention of keeping it.

CLAYTON'S REPUTATION for integrity serves him well in his explanation that he did not reject the money on the spot in order not to embarrass the contributor, L.G. Moore, a labor union leader from Houston, in front of a man Moore had just introduced to the Speaker.

That man, who represented himself to be a consultant for Prudential insurance, reportedly had told Clayton at the Nov. 8 conference that he could save the state $1 million in employe hospitalization insurance premiums.

The "consultant," one Joseph Hauser, since has been identified as a man who turned informant for the Federal Bureau of Investigation after being convicted of masterminding insurance fraud and bribery schemes in California.

Clayton says he promised Hauser nothing except that he "would inquire as to what it would take to get on the list to receive bid specifications and when the bid date would come up" for renewal of state insurance coverage.

It was at the end of the meeting, according to the Speaker, that Moore left a "political contribution" which Clayton said he instructed an aide to return to Moore "the first time he came back to the office."

AS THIS IS written, no charges have been filed against Clayton and his explanation would support a presumption of innocence even if they were.

Yet, the legal implications notwithstanding, the Speaker knows he faces a big task in getting the public and "my colleagues in the House (to) withhold judgment until all the facts are in."

Already, challenges to Clayton's election to an unprecedented fourth term as Speaker loom larger and his plans to run for governor in 1982 have been put into a holding pattern.

A LARGE CASH contribution, incidentally, is not illegal although its acceptance certainly would be cause for question.

Even though Clayton says he intended to return it, however, he has not explained to the satisfaction of many why he had not already done so.

An open mind, pro and con, as the Speaker himself requests, is in order until more facts are known and the incident is fully assessed.

Clayton's unblemished record of outstanding service to the state and the public's right to expect public servants to be above suspicion both deserve full consideration.

AN EDITORIAL:

The 'Price' Of A 'Friend'

AT WHAT point does the U.S., and whatever allies it can muster, draw hard and fast lines against further Soviet aggression?

The question became more important the past few days as top U.S. officials made a round of nations from Pakistan to Saudi Arabia, seeking to line up support for some sort of Arc of Defense in the Mideast to counter Russia's threat to the Persian Gulf.

Almost left unspoken in each instance is the price, in military hardware, in prestige, in economic promises, in national prestige...

TOO, IN THE rush to line up "friends and allies" in the Mideast, the U.S. now finds itself getting in bed with some regimes which in comparison to those it has ignored—the Shah of Iran, for instance—come off as international scoundrels.

A case in point can be made for President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski's visit to Pakistan.

Accompanied by Deputy Sec. of State Warren Christopher, Brzezinski made a hurried journey to Pakistan to assure President Mohammed Zia that the U.S. indeed would honor a 1959 defense pact and support Pakistan against Soviet aggression. The details were left somewhat murky, but pledge of a $400 million U.S. aid package was not.

IT SHOULD be noted here that this took place in the same nation which only a few weeks ago wasn't in any hurry to help the U.S. Embassy when it was sacked.

And President Zia once labeled the $400 million aid as "peanuts."

Later, in Saudi Arabia, the U.S. officials got much the same "treatment." The price there for the U.S. helping defend Saudi Arabia's oil fields was more recognition for the Palestinians.

While all of this is understandable, it should be noted that at some point the "price" may become too high. The Mideast oil and military dictators must be made to realize their own future also is at stake as well as ours.

We find it most ironic and galling that after having washed our hands of the "despotic" Shah to help create the problem, we now get in bed with even more despotic rulers to solve it.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Republicans In A Stew About Who'll Be No. 2

WASHINGTON—Most discussions of the political scene in 1980 are focused on the presidential candidates—Carter, Kennedy, Reagan, Bush.

On the Republican side, however, there is an undercurrent of conversation concerning the second spot on the ticket, not all of which is strictly concerned with the vice presidency.

The GOP, in fact, has two nascent and entirely separate movements under way to promote a major party figure for the vice presidential nomination. Both bear some looking into.

The first of these involves Sen. Jesse Helms, the conservative GOPer from North Carolina. Helms in recent years has emerged as a major spokesman for conservative positions in the Senate, and within the Republican Party.

HE HAS been particularly effective on foreign policy issues such as detente, the SALT accords, Panama, Rhodesia, and the like.

In '76, Helms was a staunch supporter of Ronald Reagan, and it was the Helms organization that pulled Reagan's chestnuts from the fire with a crucial victory in North Carolina.

Helms is still reportedly sympathetic to Reagan, but neither he nor his cagy campaign chief Tom Ellis are smitten with Reagan manager John P. Sears. They thought Sears blew the Reagan candidacy last time around, and fear he could do the same in '80.

All of which gives special meaning to the blossoming of the Helms for Vice President Committee in Raleigh, N.C.

While there are many GOPers who would dearly love to see Helms on the ticket, and while Helms and Ellis wouldn't turn an offer down, it appears the principal object of this campaign is to give conservatives some leverage in Detroit, at a convention which might otherwise be dominated by the pragmatic Sears and the "moderate" hosts of Connally, Bush, and Baker.

ALSO INTRIGUING is a vice-presidential boomlet that is building on behalf of Rep. Jack Kemp of New York.

Kemp himself is an official in the Reagan campaign, and has nothing to do with the vice-presidential effort, but a number of youthful turks in and around the Republican Party are interested in promoting him for the number-two spot. Like the Helms people, however, they may have even larger objectives in mind.

The arguments advanced in favor of Kemp are persuasive. He is an articulate, attractive candidate, who has fastened on to the issue of tax reduction and almost singlehandedly turned it into a major Republican talking point.

Few who have listened to him on the subject can doubt his expertise, he is also good on other topics, such as energy and national defense.

MOST OF all, it is argued, Kemp has shown it is possible to take such themes and sell them effectively to the public.

He has put together overwhelming majorities in a blue-collar working class district, has good rapport with labor, and can bridge the gap between conservative and moderate factions in his party.

And, coming from New York, he could supply an element of geographical balance to a ticket headed, say, by Ronald Reagan.

The vice-presidential spot, of course, is traditionally within the gift of the presidential nominee, and whether Kemp or Helms would receive such an offer, and from whom, is anybody's guess.

BUT, LIKE the Helms promoters, the Kemp aficionados may have something else in mind—like building their youthful candidate up for 1984. It was a vice-presidential boom for John F. Kennedy, after all, that positioned him for the Presidency in 1960.

As has been amply shown in this election year, the best laid plans in U.S. politics can go awry—and what will eventuate from the Helms and Kemp initiatives cannot at this point be predicted.

Suffice it to say that both are major factors in the GOP equation, and could have significant impact on this summer's proceedings in Detroit.

"WE MIGHT NOT BE ABLE TO CONTROL OUR OWN PEOPLE, BUT WE CAN HANDLE GUYS LIKE THIS"

GEORGE WILL:

Year Of Indecision

EASTON, Maryland—Republicans are traditionalists, so Tidewater III, the third annual policy conference for Republican officeholders, settled into past patterns.

Participants gathered around tables named for Republican heroes (as a spectator, I gravitated to the John Foster Dulles table—I can't think why) and came to order, sort of.

Mr. Chairman, the Charles McNary table rises for a point of information. Who was Charles McNary? (He was Republican leader of the Sen-

ANDREW TULLY:

Avoiding A Draft

WASHINGTON—If Jimmy Carter sells a new military draft to Congress, his next step should be to call a doctor.

Those college students, mostly white, who were found physically unqualified to wear a uniform during the last call-up suggests that this time around the average campus cutup may not have enough strength to make it to the nearest rock concert.

Selective Service figures show that more than 41 percent of the draftees were rejected for bodily or mental disabilities during the height of the Vietnam fighting.

Being drafted apparently saps a body's well-being, causing doctors to advise potential warriors to go and lie down somewhere. If kids are really sick, we don't want them to collapse while mounting a picket line against the mandatory teaching of reading and writing.

HOWEVER, THERE are those who entertain dark suspicions about the outlook. The reason is that in the late 60's and early 70's a majority of the physical and mental wrecks came from among college men and the generally "more educated."

The percentage of whites who failed physicals was considerably higher than the percentage of blacks in every state.

Massachusetts and New York came up with failure percentages of 45.7 and 42.3, while the "black" states of South Carolina and Georgia showed failure percentages of 17.9 and 27, respectively.

The man at Selective Service said this record of medical deferments is "a cause for concern because it's one of the real inequities in the draft system."

I REFUSE to believe that all blacks are healthier than all whites. Indeed, their relative environmental backgrounds would suggest the opposite. White kids are pumped full of vitamins and more-or-less balanced meals from the time they are born.

Many black children—living in poverty-stricken homes—rarely are that lucky. I do not buy the proposition that Georgians by definition are healthier than New Yorkers, or that educated males are healthier than high school dropouts.

It is now common knowledge that many college men faked disabilities with the aid of sympathetic doctors during the Vietnam conflict.

So-called "draft counselors" furnished names of physicians who would be cooperative for a price, as several of them admitted to Army investigators. The fees ranged from $250 to $1,500, but that beat a tour of jungle fighting.

"I WON'T MENTION the college," said the Selective Service man, "but here's an example. Just over 60 percent of seniors at this New England college who took Army physicals were deferred. One day, 34 of 43 students failed their physical."

What bothered me most in the Vietnam years was the hypocrisy of those found guilty of draft dodging.

Most of them posed ad nauseum as champions of the blacks, but they were quite willing to let a poor black boy take their place in the Army and maybe in a foreign grave. In the context of the times, this was called pacifism.

ate and Wendell Wilkie's running mate in 1940. So what? So he was from Oregon, as is Sen. Bob Packwood, founder and Boss Tweed of Tidewater conferences.

Last year, Tidewater II declared that "the Carter administration has been consistently insensitive to the aggressiveness of the Soviet Union and its clients, and inaccurate in forecasting Soviet behavior."

Tidewater II urged that consideration of SALT II be linked to Soviet behavior. Today, SALT II is twisting slowly in the wind, hung by linkage.

During the Feb. 2-3 weekend, while Republicans here were feeling vindicated, the Carter administration was turning an old boxer into yet another foreign policy embarrassment.

Muhammad Ali was in Africa as the most novel presidential emissary since Ramsey Clark. Ali was an inspired choice as successor to Andrew Young as carrier of Carterism to the Third World.

Flown to Africa for the purpose of soliciting support for a boycott of the Olympics, Ali was flogged when some African journalists told him that the Russians are friends of African "liberation" movements.

SAID THE Greatest: "They didn't tell me in America that Russia supports these countries. Maybe I'm being used to do something that's very wrong." He added: "I'm not here to promote no role for America."

Those last words suggest that Ali does not understand the drift of Carter's U.S. foreign policy.

Meanwhile, back in Washington, the President's Secretary of State was saying that another of the President's live-wire emissaries, Clark Clifford, had got the President's "doctrine" bollaussed when Clifford said in India that a Soviet move against the Persian Gulf would mean war.

THE SECRETARY of State thus made it clear that Clifford was too clear, or that the Carter Doctrine is unclear.

But Tidewaterites could not keep their minds on all the entertaining negotiations the administration was conducting with itself and with its various emissaries.

A new congressional scandal seems to be fermenting. Tidewaterites kept stiff upper lips because most of the names mentioned were of Democrats.

Tidewater III noted, with the merry sorrow of a party out of power, that under Carter inflation has soared 300 percent, unemployment is rising, productivity is declining, take-home pay is at the lowest level since 1964, and family savings have never been lower.

IN 1976 CARTER said: "The Republicans have become six percenters on inflation. They ask us to accept that rate, to think of 6 percent as normal, to be glad it isn't worse."

Actually, Carter a 13 percenter, was wrong: The Republican rate in 1976 was just 4.8 percent. But on one point he was more right than he knew: We certainly shouldn't think of 6 percent as normal.

In 1976 Carter criticized Republicans for deficits averaging $24 billion a year. His average will be at least $33 billion.

In 1976 Carter charged Republicans with "the highest interest rates since the Civil War," and was especially angry about home mortgage rates being 9 percent.

Last month the average new-home rate was 11.65 percent. The prime interest rate has more than doubled under Carter to 15-1/4.

IN 1976 CARTER said that Republican policies were "disastrous" because industrial workers had suffered a decline in real purchasing power. Under Carter, the decline has been twice as fast.

Republican hopes rest even more on the Democrats' economic performance than on their foreign policy performance.

Those who will be the youngest voters this November were about a year old when John Kennedy was assassinated.

Forty percent of the electorate will be under 35. They will be (or at least will wish they could afford to be) at the home-buying, family-forming stage.

Economic anxieties could turn the postwar "baby boom" into a Republican rebirth.

The Pols' Parties...

WITH THE Presidential campaign roaring into high gear, interest in Election '80 is suddenly picking up.

With Iowa and Maine, not to mention Arkansas, now "in the bag," as it were, it's on to New Hampshire, then South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and a host of other states, southern-ried and otherwise.

Although the early results have followed form for the Democrats, there has been a surprise or two for the GOP. More may be in the offing for both parties.

Surveys and polls, spot checks and guesstimates, it's the name of the game from coast to coast. The voters obviously see a difference in the candidates. But, what about the parties? Sometimes, the voters can be excused for being confused.

NOT LONG ago, Tom Mills, the architect, made a trip to the Southland and while there picked up The Chattanooga Times.

Therein was an item penned by one Barney Morgan, which answered the question of which came first, the GOP or the Demos. And there is, it seems, a difference.

Anyway, for what it is worth, with a bit of editing here and there, here is La Difference...

THE FIRST law of politics is Get Elected. A corollary to the law is, It's never too early to start campaigning.

And although the politicians have polished their brass knuckles and sharpened their forked tongues, many voters still aren't paying attention.

One reason may be because all candidates sometimes seem so much alike. Former Alabama Gov. George Wallace once noted that "There's not a dime's worth of difference between the two major parties."

That's only partly true. Wallace, as many voters, made the mistake of trying to spot the differences in public talks and party platforms. One has to dig beneath the surface for the real difference.

THE FOLLOWING guidelines are provided for those voters who are concerned about such things...

Democrats buy most of the books that have been banned somewhere. Republicans form censorship committees and read them as a group.

Republicans clean their paint brushes. Democrats brush their pants clean.

Republicans consume three-fourths of the rutabaga produced in this country. The other fourth is thrown out.

Republicans wear hats. Democrats wear caps. Republicans form committees to support the opera. Democrats form wrinkles trying to support their families.

DEMOCRATS GIVE their worn out clothes to those less fortunate. Republicans wear theirs.

Republicans employ exterminators. Democrats step on the bugs.

Republicans supervise the stock market. Democrats wonder how it works.

Republicans supervise their children's activities. Democrats keep an eye on the kids.

Republicans try to find ways to avoid paying taxes. Democrats try to find ways to get their tax money back.

Republicans occupy top floors of office buildings and make company policies. Democrats work on lower floors and make company profits.

REPUBLICANS water their lawns. Democrats hope for rain.

Democrats name their children after famous athletes, politicians and entertainers.

Republican children are named after their parents or grandparents, depending on where the money is.

Republicans keep their draperies closed, although there is seldom any reason why they should. Democrats ought to, but don't.

Democrats go to Florida to get a tan. Republicans go to Florida to buy a condominium.

Republicans purchase scotch by the case. Democrats buy a six-pack and feel happy about it.

DEMOCRATS EAT the fish they catch. Republicans hang them on the wall.

Republican boys date Democratic girls. They plan to marry Republican girls, but want to have a little fun first.

Republicans study the financial pages of the newspaper. Democrats put them in the bird cage.

Republicans raise dachshunds, Dalmatians and eye-brows. Democrats raise kids, taxes and hell.

Democrats strew their litter along the highways. Republicans save theirs.

Democrats make careful plans, then do something else. Republicans follow the plans their grandfathers made.

Republicans sleep in twin beds, some even in separate rooms. And that's why there are more Democrats...

AND THEN there was the story about the West Virginia office holder who never stopped running...

He electioneered 24 hours a day, 365 days a year and 366 in Leap Years. He attended reunions. He turned up at weddings and graduations.

If two people stopped to talk on the street, he'd be there handing out cards.

He'd read the obituaries in the papers and go to the funerals to shake hands with the mourners.

Once he was at a mortuary and was grabbing every warm hand in sight and he was saying, "Oh yes, he was a great man...A wonderful father and husband...A Patriot...A Civic leader...We're really going to miss him."

And then finally looking into the coffin, he gasped: "Good God, I know this man!"

L.M. BOYD:

Pass It On:

ONLY 54 YEARS ago, the White House cookbook, written by a former steward of the presidential mansion, contained some intriguing medical suggestions. It stated: Bleeding wounds can be stopped by a compress of cobwebs and brown sugar. Tobacco smoke will cure earache. And codliver oil is delicious when taken with rust-laden water.

Noted Henry Ford: "You can't build a reputation on what you're going to do."

How long would it take you, if you're typical, to recover from a broken engagement? Researchers have looked into that, too. Five months, whether male or female, they say. Our Love and War man finds no fault with their contention. Longer recuperations suggest too much self-sympathy, says he. And a much shorter recovery indicates there may have been too little depth to the thing in the first place.

Woman Not Satisfied With Heist, Returns To Scene For Headphones

Lubbock police Tuesday were seeking a woman who apparently stole a car stereo Monday afternoon and returned to the same store Tuesday to take a set of stereo headphones.

John D. Walker, a salesman at Hi-Fidelity, 2217 34th St., told police the woman came to the store about 3 p.m. Monday and apparently made off with the car stereo when none of the salespeople were looking. He said the woman was carrying a large purse.

The woman returned to the store about 10 a.m. Tuesday, Walker said, and placed a set of Koss headphones in her purse. The woman left the store and got into a light green 1977 Toyota pickup, police said.

Walker gave police a complete description and the license number of the vehicle, which was driven by a man. The woman was described as white, 26 to 35 years old, 5 feet 7 to 5 feet 9, thin, with light brown hair. The value of the Panasonic stereo and the headphones was estimated at $709, police said.

In other activity, tools valued at $1,358 were stolen last month from Mac Austin Inc., 1701 Texas Ave., by a man who forged invoices on the charge account of another city business. The theft was reported to police Monday.

Manager Jack Hudson told police the man had forged three invoices on the account of Rip Griffin's Truck Service Center, 4609 Ave. A, between Jan. 9 and Jan. 22.

In each instance, Hudson said, the man called first to find out if the tools he wanted were in stock. The man signed "Ron" on each of the invoices.

Rip Griffin's manager, Carl Smith, reported he had no employees named Ron, police said.

The man was described as white, 26 to 35 years old, tall, with black hair. He reportedly was driving a 1974 light blue Volkswagen two-door.

Myrtle Sharp, 78, of 4904 24th St. told police a vandal drove a vehicle in circles on her yard, causing an estimated $1,000 in damage. The incident occurred late Monday or early Tuesday.

Sandra Nationa, 35, of 2324 5th St. told police a burglar took a mattress, two bar stools and an end table from her former residence at 408 Ave. W. The burglary was reported Tuesday. The stolen items are valued at $460, police said.

Police arrested a 20-year-old Lubbock woman Monday night in connection with the stabbing of a 20-year-old man outside a Lubbock nightclub in the 600-block of Idalou Road.

The victim, apparently not seriously injured, was treated and released at Methodist Hospital.

Reports indicate the stabbing resulted from a fight involving two women and the victim and his girl friend.

One of the suspects told police the victim assaulted her, knocked her to the ground and began hitting her about the face and head. The other suspect, who was later arrested, also told police the victim had assaulted her.

After a brief lull in the fracas, reports indicate, a second argument erupted and one of the suspects stabbed the victim in the back while the other thrashed him with a tree branch.

Police could not find the weapon reportedly used in the incident, but placed one of the women under arrest and transported her to county jail.

In other activity Monday, a 24-year-old Los Angeles man was apprehended by a jewelry store clerk after a $6,000 diamond ring reportedly was taken from Zales Jewelers in the 1800-block of Broadway.

Reports indicate the man entered the store about 4:30 p.m. Monday and told clerk Richard C. Wilber he wanted to look at some diamond rings. When Wilber showed the man one of the rings, he reportedly grabbed the $6,000 diamond solitaire ring forcibly from Wilber's finger and ran out the front of the store.

Reports show Wilber pursued the suspect on foot west on Broadway and grabbed the suspect as he tried to get into a vehicle which was apparently waiting for him at the corner of Broadway and Avenue K. The driver sped off, but Wilber and another Zales employee were able to subdue the suspect until police arrived.

Although police did not find the ring on the suspect, it was returned to the store shortly after the suspect was taken into custody by the other employee who had been searching the area.

Wilber sustained a minor injury to his right knee while subduing the suspect and a bruised finger when the ring was taken from him.

A 22-year-old woman told police she was assaulted by her former lover Monday after she refused to let him in her residence in the 1400-block of Avenue O.

The woman told police the man she had formerly lived with knocked on her door about midnight Monday. When she refused to let him in, he reportedly broke out the door glass, unlocked the door and entered as she was calling police.

Reports show the man went into the kitchen area, took out a brown-handled paring knife from a drawer, struck the woman with the handle and threatened her life if she didn't get her clothes and go with him. She told police she used to live with the suspect but left him when he beat her up.

Reports show the suspect fled on foot east toward an alley behind the residence when he heard police sirens.

Although the victim was not injured, she told police she would press charges against the man for putting her in fear of receiving serious bodily harm.

A 20-year-old Lubbock man was arrested late Monday afternoon after he reportedly assaulted and threatened a police officer.

Reports indicate police were called to the 1300-block of 53rd Street about 5 p.m. Monday to stand by while a woman moved her belongings out of the residence in which she had been living with her common-law husband.

Police said the couple was having violent arguments and that they twice had to physically separate the two when arguments erupted over ownership of property.

Police said the woman was extremely violent, breaking glass objects, throwing the man's clothing on the ground and yelling obscenities at him.

Exposure Incidents Stir Concern

Officials of public and private schools in Lubbock are warning students against talking or riding with strangers, following a series of indecent exposure incidents near elementary and junior high schools in West Lubbock.

In the most recent incident Monday, a 14-year-old student at Mackenzie Junior High School told police a man exposed himself as she was walking near 15th Street and Bangor Avenue about 8 a.m.

The girl said the man opened his coat and exposed himself while standing in an alley in the 5400-block of 15th St. The suspect reportedly ran west after the incident.

He was described as white, 18 to 25 years old, tall, of medium build, with brown hair and a mustache.

Last week, a 28-year-old city man was arrested after he allegedly exposed himself to a 12-year-old girl near 50th Street

Soviet Tanks Roll Against Guerrillas

By United Press International
Soviet tanks rolled through Kabul Tuesday and took up positions in the Afghan capital to quell a rash of shooting incidents and guerrilla strikes that reportedly wounded a high-level government official among other casualties, diplomatic sources said.

The reports of more Moslem guerrilla attacks in the Afghan capital coincided with a flurry of related diplomatic activity in Washington, New Delhi and the Persian Gulf area.

In Washington, an Omani official announced his tiny Gulf state had agreed to give the United States access to military facilities in the Arabian Sea.

In New Delhi, Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told visiting Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko that Russian troops must get out of Afghanistan.

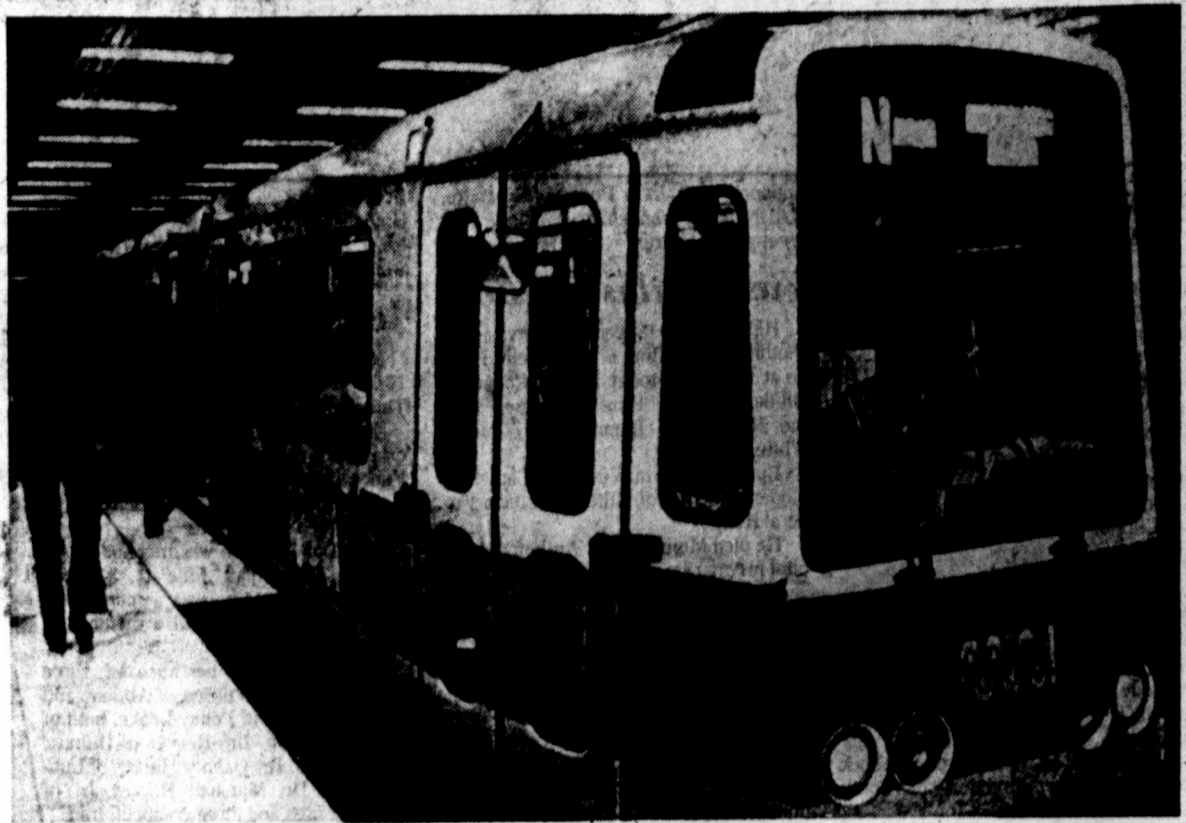

In the Persian Gulf region, U.N. Ambassador Donald McHenry flew from Kuwait to Saudi Arabia on the second leg of a seven-nation tour to explain the "defensive measures" the United States is taking to keep its "vital interests" in the region from being threatened by the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Diplomatic sources said Soviet tanks rolled through Kabul and took up positions in the southern sector of the city to quell a series of guerrilla attacks, the most recent of which occurred either late Monday or early Tuesday.

The sources said they had no details of the latest attack and did not know if there were any casualties. But they said a government official, Afghanistan's vice deputy planning minister, was apparently wounded in a shooting incident last week and flown to Moscow for medical treatment.

Pakistani press reports also spoke of clashes and Soviet troop buildups in the remote central and southern provinces, where Moslem guerrillas are waging a hit-and-run offensive against the 90,000-man Russian occupation force in Afghanistan.

SOMETHING SPECIAL — Although it wouldn't turn a head in Manhattan, in San Francisco—a city of streetcars, trolleys and buses—the sight of the first intra-city subway Monday was something special. Edison's Lab Closed To Check Chemicals

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (UPI) — The National Park Service has closed Thomas Alva Edison's laboratory to the public because chemicals the inventor left behind may have become unstable and dangerous over the years.

The laboratory, part of the Edison National Historic Site, will remain closed until experts finish examining the 5,000 bottles and other containers left there since the inventor's death in 1931.

Officials said the laboratory could remain closed for several months. The rest of the site is open.

Park officials said they took the action because they fear that many of the chemicals may have interacted with impurities in the glass of the containers or the air over the years and could be potentially dangerous.

While there are records indicating what bottles contain what, park officials said they are not sure of the accuracy. One official said bottles labeled hydrochloric acid or nitric acid are actually filled with water.

Officials said they are not worried about a spontaneous explosion from the rows of test tubes, jars and bottles. But they fear that a blast might occur if any of the containers are handled roughly or knocked about.

The situation within the inventor's old workshop was discovered by a safety officer inspecting the site's buildings for asbestos hazards.

West Texas Cities Face Water Woes

Williams told The Avalanche-Journal Tuesday. "But if the low stream flow continues for another two years, we will have a problem."

Williams noted that Lake Meredith has been steadily losing water since 1973. In April 1973, the lake reached a depth of 101.9 feet, the most water it has ever held. Water in the lake is currently 75.8 feet deep, he said.

"We have in effect been rationing water for several years," Williams said.

For several years, the allocation was set at 70 percent of a city's contracted supply. About two years ago, the allocation was increased to 90 percent of the maximum because of the needs of some cities, the CRMWA official explained.

He noted that Lubbock used 99 percent of the maximum amount made available to the city in 1979.

The growing problems faced by Lake Meredith have come as no surprise to Lubbock City Manager Larry Cunningham. "We have known the lake is going down," he said.

However, Cunningham said he could not fully predict what effect in the city's water allocation from Lake Meredith would have. "If they are talking about a 50 percent allocation, it could create some problems," he added.

Cunningham said problems also could develop if the reduction in the city's water allocation came during the summer months, the peak usage period. He said a big reduction in the city's Lake Meredith allocation during the peak summertime period could result in some curtailment of water usage here.

According to Cunningham, Lubbock has the ability to get additional water from wells in the Sand Hills, located in Bailey County. He said that Lubbock has used very little water from the Sand Hills wells, which have chiefly served as a backup water supply.

Developing a third major water source for Lubbock has been a major concern for city officials during the past decade. In 1970, the city council commissioned a master plan to project the city's water needs over the next 50 years.

The plan was completed in 1971 and updated in 1975 and indicated that construction of a pair of reservoirs southeast of Lubbock would be the best means to meet the city's future water needs.

Cunningham said the current plans call for construction of one reservoir on a small lake near Post, with a second reservoir to be located on a larger lake near Justiceburg. The city manager estimated that the two projects would provide Lubbock approximately 29 million gallons of water a day.

Developing additional water sources for Lubbock will be costly. The combined cost for the two proposed reservoirs has been estimated at about $109 million. And Cunningham noted that another $16 million will be needed to develop more wells in the Sand Hills and to provide improvements in the water system here.

Not only will the projects carry a tremendous price tag, but they also will take some time to develop, Cunningham said.

One of the first steps will be negotiations with the White River Water District, which owns the water rights to the Post reservoir. Cunningham said the Post site is to be developed first and needs to be operational by 1986.

The city also must obtain a water permit on the Justiceburg site from the Water Rights Commission, Cunningham said. City staff has been working on the water permit application, he said, but it will take from six to 10 months to get it processed by the state commission.

Plans call for the Justiceburg site to be operational by 1990, the city manager said.

Another major problem that must soon be tackled is determining how the city will finance the $109 million water projects. Last spring, the council appointed a Water Resources Board, and Cunningham said this board probably will be asked sometime this year to study various alternatives for the financing.

Ironically, the 1971 estimates on the costs of the Justiceburg water project was $53 million. Nearly 10 years later, the price has doubled, and the city needs the additional water source more than ever.

Carter Offers N-Waste Storage Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter proposed on Tuesday the nation's first coordinated effort to store nuclear garbage, planning to spend $700 million to examine salt domes and other sites in the South and West as potential radioactive dumps.

"This is a solid policy that can stand the test of time," the president said.

Sending his proposal to Congress, the president said the government would study about 11 sites where the poisonous by-products of nuclear power, weapons tests and medical research could be hidden at no risk to the environment.

The proposal contains funding of $739 million for fiscal 1981. Funding for nuclear storage in the previous two fiscal years averaged $550 million a year.

Questions remain as to whether the wastes, especially spent fuel from commercial reactors and government weapons programs, can be stored safely. The highly radioactive materials could have a life of from 1,000 to 300,000 years.

"A technical consensus exists among experts that no insurmountable barriers are known" to prevent the safe storage, said Carter's domestic policy adviser, Stuart Eizenstat, briefing reporters on the program. His statement was supported by Frank Press, the president's science adviser.

But one of the papers the White House distributed in support of the program said that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission "is determining whether or not it has confidence that radioactive wastes can be disposed of safely."

The choice of sites carries political risk, and Carter created a state planning council, with Gov. Richard Riley of South Carolina as chairman, to work with the administration and Congress on radioactive waste management issues.

The need for such a program has been demonstrated by controversies surrounding several of the sites holding radioactive materials. The White House estimated that the nation turns out almost 100,000 cubic feet of high-and-low-level radioactive waste.

The first sites might then be in operation by the early 1990s, several government officials said at the White House briefing.

Among the sites to be studied are seven salt domes in Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas. They are: Ruchtan and Cypress Creek domes, Perry County, Miss.; Lampton Dome, Marion County, Miss.; Vacherie Dome, Webster Parish, La.; Rayburns (eq) Dome, Bienville Parish, La.; Oakwood Dome, Freestone-Leon Counties, Texas; and Keechi Dome, Anderson County, Texas.

The government is also likely to study sites in the Canyon area of the Texas panhandle, the Paradox Basin in eastern Utah; the storage facility in operation in Hanford, Wash.; the Nuclear Test Site in northern Nevada; and an experimental site near Carlsbad, N.M.

representative, said immigration agents and border patrolmen go into fields searching for "undocumented people" and ask proof of citizenship of all farm workers present. Beasley scoffed at that, saying "Not necessarily. I've walked by a dozen to get to one alien."

Hereford police chief Don Brush explained that Hereford police frequently visit schools to "become friends instead of enemies" of the students. Tours of the police station by elementary school students also are conducted.

Greenwald said the Justice Department "takes no direction in these matters" and that he had met with Mexican-Americans and law enforcement personnel in Hereford in separate sessions about three weeks ago.

"It was their judgment that the meeting might be useful," he said. "Sometimes it takes a third party to bring people together."

throughout most of the 1960s — told a story about a helicopter he and Clayton once built, and tied the tale to the current situation.

"It was back in the late 50s, I guess, and we had this helicopter kit we worked on all one winter," Sanderson said, his face lighting up with the obviously humorous memories. "We decided to test fly it one real windy day. Billy Wayne went first and got the thing a few feet off the ground and set it back down, so I decided to take it up."

"All of a sudden this gust, it must have been 50 or 60 miles an hour, came up and started tipping me over. As I fell back to the ground, the blade hit the ground and broke off. I looked up and saw Billy Wayne running about 100 yards away," he continued. "Billy knew even then to stay away from things that can hurt you. And you know, we never messed with that thing again."

Soldiers Captured
A report in the Pakistani Daily Jung said guerrillas of the Hizbe Islami Front captured 20 Afghan government soldiers and destroyed government headquarters in Sin Karez Kabir, a district town in the eastern province of Nangarhar.

Diplomats in the Pakistani capital of Islamabad said the Soviets were still flying military equipment into Kabul daily in preparation for what they predicted would be a spring offensive against the guerrillas.

In New Delhi, Mrs. Gandhi met Gromyko for three hours and a foreign ministry official said she told the Soviet foreign minister India wants Afghanistan free of Russian troops.

Tension End Seen
"We conveyed our views in clear terms. The tension in the region should be ended early," the spokesman said.

But sources said Gromyko refused to give a date for the withdrawal of the Soviet troops who invaded Afghanistan last December to support the coup that installed Babrak Karmal as president of a Kremlin-controlled regime.

In Washington, however, Defense Secretary Harold Brown predicted a Soviet "peace offensive" in which some Russian troops would be withdrawn before television cameras, then moved back into Afghanistan under cover of darkness.

The U.S. effort to counter the threat to Western interests posed by the presence of Soviet troops now only 300 miles from the strategic Persian Gulf bore some fruit Tuesday when Oman announced it will let the United States use military facilities on the Omani island of Masira.

Use Of Facilities
"We agreed to provide refueling and storage facilities," said Ridha Abdul-Latif, first secretary at the Omani Embassy in Washington. "We're not giving the United States a base. We're just letting them use facilities at our base," he said.

U.S. officials refused to give details of the Omani offer, but they insisted the United States and the Arabian Peninsula sultanate had neither signed nor initialed an agreement.

The New York Times reported that Kenya and Somalia also had agreed to grant United States access to military facilities. But a U.S. official said the negotiations with Kenya and Somalia were "significantly less advanced" than the Omani talks. "We're farther from an agreement with them," he said.

extent," said one lobbyist.

The three lobbyists who were interviewed requested anonymity to avoid problems for the interest groups they represent.

Clayton said Moore, an official of a union local in Houston, set up an appointment for Joseph Hauser, introduced as an agent for Prudential Insurance Co. Hauser, it turned out, was an FBI plant. Hauser asked Clayton to help Prudential win the group insurance contract for state employees. Clayton said Moore offered a "political contribution" and handed him a stack of $100 bills. Clayton said he took the money to avoid humiliating Moore in front of Hauser but planned to return it.

"I can understand how that would happen. Clayton is the kind of fellow that if you go in with a client — somebody you represent — he has enough respect for the people he knows not to embarrass them," a lobbyist said.

"I don't find it unbelievable that he didn't want to make something out of it (create a scene) at that particular point," the lobbyist said.

Another lobbyist speculated that Moore was valuable to Clayton as a contact in labor — a group to which the conservative Clayton is not close.

"He would want to keep that contact. You don't just jump up and say, 'You come in here and ask me to violate the law!'" he said.

The lobbyists said taking a bribe would be totally out of character for Clayton.

"I've been around 45 years, and people know who is on the take in the Legislature and who is not. ... Members of the Legislature think Bill Clayton is an honorable man. I do too. ... It doesn't fit. It just don't fit," one said.

There also was disbelief that someone would try to influence Clayton as Clayton said Moore and Hauser did.

"It would have been the grossest kind of completely impolitic thing for somebody to do something like that. ... It's such an unbelievably crude, shocking sort of deal. That just doesn't happen over there. ... It sounds like something out of a 25-cent novel," one lobbyist said.

Each asked the same question: Why didn't Clayton follow through with his stated intent and give back the money?

"I just wish to hell he'd put the money in an envelope and sent Rusty (Kelley) to Houston the very next day," one said.

Construction Of Housing Up Slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — A total of 1,868,200 new private housing units were completed in 1979, up slightly from the 1978 total, the government reported Tuesday.

Some 1,867,500 units were built in 1978, figures showed.

Housing experts expect housing construction to decline sharply this year in the wake of Federal Reserve action last October to fight inflation by tightening credit.

Mortgage rates have soared, loan money has been scarce and building permit applications have declined, government statistics show.

The report from the Census Bureau and Department of Housing and Urban Development also indicated that the pace of construction completions slowed in December.

Completions on a seasonally adjusted annual basis totaled 1.87 million in December, down 2.2 percent from the previous month and down 0.9 percent from December, 1978. Completions had increased 0.4 percent in November.

Most of the decline in December occurred in construction of buildings with five units or more, where completions fell 27 percent from 493,000 in November to 361,000 in December, the report showed.

At the same time, the completion of single-family units rose 12 percent from 1.2 million in November to 1.35 million in December.

The slowdown in housing activity following the Federal Reserve's Oct. 6 credit-tightening action could be seen in the government figures for housing under construction.

Homes in this category fell from a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,217,000 units in October to 1,194,000 units in November and 1,178,000 units in December, the report showed.

Meanwhile, an annual report from the National Association of Realtors showed that sales of existing homes totaled 3,747,000 units in last year, down 4 percent from 1978.

Gromyko Warns Pakistan

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko of the Soviet Union accused the United States on Tuesday of subverting detente and warned Pakistan it risks its independence by backing America and China in the Afghanistan crisis.

Pakistan will "undermine its position as an independent state" if it allows the United States and its allies to convert it into "a springboard for further escalation of aggression" against pro-Moscow Afghanistan, Gromyko said in a speech delivered at a banquet given in his honor by India's Foreign Minister, P.V.N. Rao.

Gromyko's strong words came after a first round of talks with Indian leaders on the Afghan situation during an official two-day visit here. Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, a long-time friend of Moscow, is making low-key efforts to defuse the Afghanistan crisis and get the estimated 90,000 Soviet troops withdrawn from the neighboring country.

If the Soviet foreign minister was persuaded by the cautious and friendly statements of Mrs. Gandhi and Rao during their three hours of meetings, he gave no indication.

Gromyko defended the Soviet intervention, attacked the United States and China and delivered the warning to Pakistan, which is slated to receive about $400 million in U.S. arms aid.

He said the United States was using Pakistan in an "increase of international tension for subversion of world detente and escalation of the arms race, which has been pursued by her for quite a long time."

"The same road is followed by the Peking leadership, which pursues the course of the great-power hegemonistic policy," Gromyko said.

He said it was "absurd and dishonorable" to blame Soviet action in Afghanistan for increased regional and world tensions. "The responsibility for this entirely rests with the forces of imperialism, first of all certain circles of the USA which are possessed with the idea of military superiority, which would like to change in their favor the balance of forces in the world and revive the time of cold war," he declared.

Reporters were not admitted to the banquet. The Soviet Embassy provided Indian media an English translation of Gromyko's remarks.

The veteran Soviet leader's speech followed one by Rao urging "utmost restraint, both by countries of the region and outside powers, in the best interests of regional peace."

Rao described as "useful" Gromyko's talks with Indian leaders on relations between the two countries and on the Afghanistan crisis.

An Indian government spokesman indicated Mrs. Gandhi had urged Gromyko during their talks to pull Soviet troops out of Afghanistan. She also voiced opposition to American plans for a military buildup in neighboring Pakistan.

India is the third country Gromyko has visited recently in an apparent attempt to reduce foreign opposition to the Soviet military action in Afghanistan.

ing the background music interrupted its program for a short newscast concerning the wide-ranging scandal. The conversation slowed a bit, but none of the coffee-drinkers even blinked at the broadcast.

"I can see why Billy didn't want to embarrass the union man by refusing that money, especially with that other guy in there," Busby said. "If he runs for governor, he's going to need union support. But that money's still there. He wouldn't take it under any circumstances."

"I don't think some people want a West Texas boy to have the kind of power he's gotten as speaker," said T.H. Lewis, a farmer from nearby Earth. "It looks like it could be political."

"This just isn't how we do things in America. It sounds like something the Gestapo would do," Busby grunted. "And it makes me mad when the Republican governor has more good things to say about Billy than Bill Hobby. He's supposed to be a Democrat."

absentia.

Cooper has become somewhat of a folk hero. T-shirts have been printed bearing the question: "D.B. Cooper, Where Are You?," at least one song has been written about him, and residents of Ariel, Wash., near where Cooper was thought to have leaped from the plane, have commemorated the hijacking with an annual "D.B. Cooper Day."

sations are about the same. Not for even a minute do they believe Billy Wayne Clayton is guilty of accepting a bribe, and they're not worried about his appearance before the grand jury.

They are concerned, though, that even if Clayton is completely cleared, the connection will damage his chances for a fourth term as Speaker of the House, and maybe even a future bid for governor.

"You can count the careers of West Texas men ruined because of the talk," said one Springlake man. "And look at John Connally now. He was even acquitted, but everybody still thinks he's a milk baron."

Even as the headlines and newscasts amplify the tales of the Briab scandal, the home folks remain firmly behind Clayton. "I don't think you'll be able to find anyone out here to say anything bad about Billy," Sanderson predicted.

"Bill's a fine man," Busby said. "If somebody wants to hear something bad about Billy, they're just going to have to look someplace else."

Day Approaching When Penny May Equal More Than One Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The day is fast approaching when "a penny for your thoughts" may be worth more than one cent.

The recent rapid rise in the world market price of copper has boosted the value of the metal in the nation's lowest-denominated coin.

Once the market price of copper exceeds $1.50 per pound, the value of the penny will exceed a cent, said Alan J. Goldman, a deputy director of the U.S. Mint.

The penny is 95 percent copper and 5 percent zinc, which currently is selling at about 40 cents per pound.

The price of copper began rising on world markets last fall, partly because of spillover from speculation in gold and silver, according to analysts at the Commodity Exchange Inc. in New York City.

Prices in New York closed Tuesday at $1.413 per pound for February deliveries of the base metal. Copper had been selling for less than a dollar a pound last fall, and officials say it could hit the $1.50 mark any day now.

Government officials say they are concerned that Americans may begin hoarding the coin, leading to a repeat of the shortage of pennies during the copper-price rally of 1974-75.

"We're keeping an eye on the situation," said Goldman. "There were some signs of hoarding late in December. I'm glad to say it hasn't gotten very widespread."

In the mid-1970s, as copper prices climbed toward the then-record $1.41 per pound, the penny began to disappear from circulation. Merchants found themselves rounding charges to the nearest nickel or issuing script instead of change.

The Treasury Department put a temporary ban on the exportation and melting of the penny, and the Mint initiated a campaign to collect pennies from school children.

This time, the government is considering whether to lower the copper content of the coin or change to a lower-cost metal alloy of aluminum, zinc or plated steel.

A change from copper would require action by Congress, but Goldman said, "I'm not ready to make a legislative recommendation."

His reasoning is that the situation may be short-lived.

"Back in 1974, the price of copper went up to $1.41 per pound," he pointed out. "Six months later it was selling at less than half that. That was a speculative market, which I think this one is as well."

Goldman was quick to warn that penny-pinching won't bring Americans quick, new wealth. "Copper isn't like gold and silver, which is priced per ounce. We're talking about pennies per pound — and there has to be some allowance for handling and melting."

And he said the government has its own inventory of copper for which "we have never paid more than 97 cents per pound."

Even at that price, however, the government's cost for producing pennies approaches their worth. In addition to copper and zinc, the government must cover manufacturing and shipping costs of about .002 cents per coin.

The future of the penny was cloudy even before the recent spiral in the price of copper.

Although the Mint produces 10 billion pennies a year, there are only 30 billion in circulation. "About one-third disappear in the first year," Goldman said. "People empty them into their drawers each night. I guess because they don't want to carry them around."

And inflation, Treasury experts admit, has made the lowly penny less valuable in trade.

In recent years, Treasury Department studies have recommended phasing out the coin or lowering or eliminating the copper.

Less Money To Be Available For Highway Repairs

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be less tax money to build and repair federal-aid highways this year because motorists are using less gasoline, the Transportation Department reported Monday.

Officials said highway user taxes deposited in the Federal Highway Trust Fund will fall below $7 billion in 1980, the first time they have been below that figure in three years and the first time they have dropped in any given year since 1965.

Money from the trust fund is paid to the states as the federal share of work done on federal-aid highway projects.

A penniless society has been rejected for a variety of reasons, not the least of which is tradition.

The first cent coins were minted in 1793, and the coin now in use dates in content, size and weight to 1864. The Lincoln-head penny has been around since 1909.

Its elimination also has been rejected on two other counts: it could inhibit the collection of state sales taxes and could aggravate inflation if merchants rounded prices up to the next nickel.

Goldman does not believe lowering the copper content will work. "That would be a color change, and it could induce hoarding," he said. More likely, he said, is conversion to another metal.

A committee last fall recommended that the Treasury Department consider shifting from copper to an aluminum alloy to "reduce the manufacturing cost by more than 50 percent."

The report continued: "There is an additional possibility that there would be less hoarding of lighter weight, cheaper aluminum coins. As a result, cent demand might level off, resulting in additional savings."

The report recommended that the change be considered "when the price of copper exceeds $1.15 per pound."

At today's market prices of $1.413 per pound for copper and 40 cents per pound for zinc, the value of the metals in a penny that is 95 percent copper and 5 percent zinc is .0093287 of a cent.

Should copper go to $1.52 per pound and zinc remain unchanged at 40 cents, the value of the materials in a penny would be 1.00273 cents.

Reporters May Be Subpoenaed In Leak Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti appointed to head the search for the source of news leaks about FBI undercover investigations said Tuesday he might subpoena reporters and their notes if necessary to find the culprits.

Richard Blumenthal, 33, the U.S. attorney for Connecticut and a former reporter for The Washington Post, told a news conference the news leaks were "inexcusable and tragic" because they endanger a sensitive investigation and might damage reputations needlessly.

Civiletti has said that in his time at the Justice Department "nothing has angered or frustrated me more" than the leaks.

The attorney general's concern was reflected in his choice of a federal prosecutor with subpoena powers to conduct the inquiry and in the Justice Department's reported readiness to take the rare step of administering lie detector tests to as many as 200 of its employees.

Civiletti's get-tough position also seemed to be a response to widespread questions in Congress and elsewhere about premature and unauthorized disclosures of still-pending FBI bribery investigations in which criminal charges have yet to be filed.

Eight members of Congress and other state and local public officials have been implicated in the bureau's 16-month-old bribery investigation, in which FBI undercover agents posing as representatives of wealthy Arabs offered bribes in exchange for promises of political influence.

Blumenthal said the investigation he was getting under way would concentrate on interviews with government employees. He said he would move reluctantly against reporters and then only if there was a substantial need for the information, if it was available from no other source and if all efforts at voluntary cooperation had failed.

"It is not our present intention to subpoena reporters or notes, but we are not forgoing any method of investigation, including that one," he said.

Meanwhile, The Associated Press learned that about 15 employees of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in New York are under investigation and several others are the subject of sealed indictments in a scheme of kickbacks in return for work permits, travel visas and "green cards" certifying legal immigration.

The allegations were understood to be based on 52 hours of secretly recorded FBI conversations with a convicted briber last year during an investigation that has spread to INS offices in Newark, N.J., Miami and 12 countries.

A lawyer for Joseph Silvestri, a New Jersey real estate developer, said Silvestri had been "victimized and defrauded by the FBI who thereafter attempted to coerce him to become a government witness."

The lawyer said Silvestri will not cooperate as a government witness.

In Los Angeles, federal Judge Terry J. Hatter Jr., 33, took over a complex racketeering and extortion trial after the FBI's Brilab investigation uncovered a purported attempt to bribe the previous judge, Harry Pregerson, who withdrew from the case from the case.

Company Denied Special Treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution denied Tuesday any collusion on its part in the proposed award of a $2 million contract to a construction company that has helped the FBI conduct undercover criminal investigations.

The Justice Department said it also had no evidence that the company, Olympic Construction Corp. of suburban Arlington, Va., was given special treatment.

Philip S. Hughes, undersecretary of the Smithsonian, testified before a House Public Works subcommittee that the institution "had no relationship" with Olympic before the company's successful bid to renovate the reptile house of the National Zoo, which is run by the institution.

Hughes and Fred G. Barwick, contracting officer for the Smithsonian, said they found nothing unusual in the fact that Olympic's $2 million bid was about $400,000 lower than the next highest bid.

When asked if he was surprised at the low bid, Barwick replied, "Not too much. It happens quite often. The Olympic bid was very close to the professional estimate" for the project that the Smithsonian received before it asked for bids.

Barwick said he could think of no information that Olympic might have received secretly that was not publicly available to all prospective bidders.

Assistant Attorney General Alan A. Parker said "The Department of Justice has no information to indicate that the Olympic Construction Corp. has engaged in any improper activity in connection with the bidding process, nor is the Department of Justice in possession of any information to indicate (it) was given favorable consideration by the Smithsonian Institution."

Rep. Elliott H. Levitas, D-Ga., chairman of the subcommittee, said he was satisfied there was nothing improper in the Smithsonian's conduct. But he said he still wanted to question Olympic's president, Richard M. Muffoletto, who did not appear at the hearing Tuesday.

Olympic vice president Richard Block read a statement denying any improprieties.

Muffoletto previously had said he helped the FBI in its so-called Abscam investigation in which undercover agents posed as representatives of wealthy Arabs and offered bribes to public officials.

Muffoletto acknowledged writing a letter of reference for the FBI agent who rented a Washington house used in the investigation.

Inmate 'Welcoming' Execution Date; Penalty Opponents Not

ATLANTA (AP) — Jack Howard Potts is scheduled to die Friday in Georgia's electric chair — a fate he says he welcomes. But efforts by foes of the death penalty may thwart Potts' wish at least temporarily.

Potts, 35, was convicted of kidnapping and murder in connection with a crime spree in north Georgia in 1975. In November 1979, he began efforts to end all appeals, firing his attorneys and asking that his execution be carried out immediately.

"I wish the people who are fighting the death penalty would understand this," Potts said in an interview published Tuesday in The Atlanta Journal. "I'm at peace now. It's the first time in my life I've ever been like this."

Standing between Potts and his wish to become the first person to die in Georgia's electric chair since 1964 is a request from the state Board of Pardons and Paroles to Gov. George Busbee for a 90-day stay. The board was asked to seek the stay by the state-funded Georgia Indigent Defense Council.

Busbee was expected to receive the request today. The governor has said in the past that he would routinely grant the temporary 90-day stays. The board would then hold a public hearing on the case.

Potts is housed on death row at Georgia's maximum security prison at Reidsville.

Police Arrest Two Men In Robbery, Shooting

FORT WORTH (AP) — Two men were held Tuesday and a third was sought in the robbery slaying late Sunday of a Lebanese grocery clerk.

Officer said Tayser Ekchain, 21, in the U.S. on a visa from Beirut, was shot to death during a robbery Sunday night.

Officers said the two men were arrested near the store not long after the robbery. A third man escaped, officers said.

Concealed Radar, Unmarked Autos To Control Speeding

AUSTIN (AP) — The Department of Public Safety — apparently feeling heat from Texans who observe the 55 mph speed limit — said Tuesday patrolmen will use concealed radar and hidden, unmarked cars to nab speeders.
 Col. Jim Adams, department director, said driving too fast and driving while intoxicated were the leading factors in Texas highway deaths last year.
 He said a preliminary count shows more than 4,200 persons died in Texas traffic accidents last year, which would be a record. Final figures will be available April 30.
 Adams said the "more aggressive enforcement action" is aimed at "certain deliberate and determined" law violators who use the latest technology, such as radar detectors, police scanners and citizens band radios, to avoid arrest.
 "The apparent ease with which they avoid detection results in frequent complaints from law-abiding citizens that we appear to be ignoring these flagrant violators who endanger the public safety and this public perception contributes to the lack of observance of the speed limit," Adams said.
 Texas has been criticized for lax enforcement of the 55 mph speed limit, and legislators were told in 1979 that unless speeding was brought under control the state could lose millions of dollars in federal funds.
 Adams said field commanders would have "greater flexibility" in determining the best techniques to catch speeders.
 He added, in a statement: "By concentrating our efforts and utilizing our resources in the most effective and efficient manner, we can reverse the undesirable upward trend in traffic fatalities."

Prosecution Rests In Ford Pinto Trial; Defense Arguments Next

WINAMAC, Ind. (AP) — The prosecution rested its case Tuesday in Ford Motor Co.'s reckless homicide trial after a final, unsuccessful attempt to introduce what it considered key evidence on auto crash tests.

Ford attorney James F. Neal asked for a directed verdict of acquittal, saying the state had failed to prove its case — the first criminal prosecution of a manufacturer in an auto defects case.

If Pulaski Circuit Judge Harold R. Staffeldt refuses to dismiss the case, Neal will begin presenting Ford's defense today.

Ford is charged with three counts of reckless homicide in the August 1978 burning deaths of three teen-agers in a 1973 Pinto sedan that exploded when struck from behind on a northern Indiana highway.

The state contends the automaker knew Pinto fuel tanks were subject to explosion in rear-end collisions but did nothing about it. The defense says the Pinto was no more dangerous, and possibly a little safer, than other subcompacts.

Before resting his case, chief prosecutor Michael A. Cosentino again tried to enter as evidence results of crash tests on vehicles other than the 1973 Pinto and on Pintos made before and after 1973. He argued that the tests would reveal a pattern showing Ford knew of defects in the Pinto from the time it first was produced in 1970 but refused to make modifications to eliminate fire hazards and failed to warn the public.

As he has done repeatedly during the six-week trial, Staffeldt ruled those crash tests were irrelevant to the Indiana case.

Staffeldt took under advisement a defense motion to strike testimony by Mattie Ulrich, the mother of two of the victims in the Indiana Pinto, that a recall notice on the car came six months after the crash. Mrs. Ulrich said she would not have allowed her daughters and their cousin to take the car had she known about the recall before the accident.

Ford announced in June 1978 it was recalling 1.5 million Pintos and Mercury Bobcats made between 1971 and 1976 because of government tests showing the fuel tanks leaked large amounts of fuel in moderate-speed rear-end collisions. However, modifications to reduce the fire hazard were delayed until repair kits began arriving at dealers in September 1978 — a month after the Indiana accident.

The prosecution's final witness, former Ford executive Harley Copp, completed six days of testimony Tuesday by saying style came before safety in design of the Pinto.

Copp, who was Ford's vice president for European operations and later supervised crash tests in the United States, said the fuel tank on the 1973 Pinto subcompact had an odd shape — similar to a step — because it was designed to fit the pre-determined styling of the car's exterior.

"The engineers were left with a minimum of space for the spare tire, fuel tank and luggage compartment," he said. "If you don't believe me, just look at the weird shape of that fuel tank."

In earlier testimony, Copp said the shape of the tank, and the way in which it was constructed, made it more likely to explode in rear-end collisions. The step-shape gave the tank a lower breaking point than other subcompact tanks that were flat and uniform, he said.

Man Says Payments To Social Security Missing

JUNCTION CITY, Ore. (AP) — Mervin Rossow says he watched for 36 years as deductions flowed out of his paycheck and into Social Security account No. 394-26-2586.

Now, nearing 62 and thinking about retirement, Rossow has learned there is nothing in his account.

"This is kind of a problem," said Rossow, who worked as a roofer, plywood mill worker and farmer before becoming a janitor at Territorial Elementary School near Junction City.

"I'm not sure just when I might retire, but I've got to have my Social Security to do it," he said.

No record of his contributions, made since 1943, could be found under his Social Security number.

Supervisor Diane Wilson of the Eugene, Ore., Social Security office, said agency regulations prohibited her from discussing specifics of Rossow's account.

But she said a case where there is no record of any contribution is extremely unusual.

Rossow said Social Security personnel were trying to help him, and he was not angry.

"They ran it through the computer and the computer kicked it right out," he said. "Then they told me I didn't have any Social Security coming. But I paid in it for 36 years."

"They asked me to bring my card in and they looked at it and were really puzzled. They asked me if I had ever gotten a new number at some time, but I never had."

Rossow was issued a new card. Under Social Security laws, he can't collect any benefits under the new number until he has paid into the system for seven years. With the new card, Rossow could retire at age 69 and get $122 per month.

If he chose to quit work before then, he might qualify for Supplementary Security Income, separate from Social Security, of $208 a month.

Rossow said he notified his employer, insurance company and numerous other agencies of his new number.

"Then I went into the Social Security office, again and they had a big conference in the back room," Rossow said. "They came out and said, 'Don't use the new card.' That meant I had to call all those people again."

Rossow may be fortunate in one respect.

His wife, Ardyth, has saved copies of his W-2 earnings forms for 20 years, and the forms show Social Security contributions for each of those years.

Iowa Senate To Spread Cadavers Around State

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Acting on complaints that the University of Iowa has "more than its share of dead bodies," the Iowa state senate voted Tuesday to spread the cadavers around.

The Senate voted 46-0 on a bill which would require unclaimed dead bodies, fit for scientific use, to be distributed in equal numbers to the University of Iowa medical school, the School of Osteopathic Medicine in Des Moines, and the Palmer School of Chiropractic in Davenport.

Sen. Charles Miller of Burlington, a 1952 Palmer graduate and practicing chiropractor, said students of his profession have been getting short shrift in the corpse count.

"We haven't had any bodies for 10 years," Miller said. "They always say we're next in line."

On the other hand, the chiropractor said, the medical school is overloaded with donated bodies.

"They tell me they're stacked up six deep over there," Miller said.

Since people usually don't donate their bodies to chiropractic schools, Miller said, this has resulted in a cadaver shortage.

Miller conceded the bill won't provide an abundance of bodies.

"I'd say only two or three a year aren't claimed and are fit for scientific use," he said.

Sen. Art Small, an Iowa City Democrat whose district includes the University of Iowa, said he didn't know why student chiropractors needed cadavers anyway.

"The humorous thing to me was the specter of all these chiropractic students trying to make adjustments on dead bodies," Small said.

Miller explained that they use them to study internal organs and muscle structure, he said.

Man Found Frozen To Death Mistakenly Identified

BASTROP, La. (AP) — "That ain't my boy!" exclaimed Agnes Jenkins when the casket was opened.

The body — that of a man who froze to death at a mental institution in New York — had been identified as George L. Jenkins, 39.

Authorities said he was carrying Jenkins' identification papers in his pocket, although hospital records identified him as Frank Townes.

They said that since nobody knew of any relatives for Townes, the body was shipped to Jenkins' next of kin in Bastrop, a town on the Arkansas border.

But Mrs. Jenkins said it wasn't her son. She said she has no reason to believe he is anything but alive and well, although she hasn't heard from him in more than a year.

Morehouse sheriff's deputy Bob Carter took fingerprints and shipped them back to New York, trying to get an identity.

He said the medical examiner in New York City had ruled the man had frozen to death on the grounds of the Manhattan State Hospital after he wandered outside.

Carter was also checking on Jenkins, who once served in the Air Force. The deputy asked for military records of Jenkins' fingerprints.

Meanwhile, New York officials told Carter they want the body back. They acknowledge the Jenkins identity was wrong.

But Fred Montgomery, a Bastrop city official who owns the funeral home where the body was shipped, still has the body. He said he will keep it until somebody pays him for services already rendered.

Houston Councilmen Say Grand Jury 'Fishing' On Kickbacks

HOUSTON (AP) — Two Houston city councilmen made brief appearances Tuesday before a federal grand jury probing an alleged insurance kickback scheme and one of them said later, "They don't have a case. They are fishing."

Homer Ford, now in his ninth term on the council, also told newsmen:

"They asked me if I had ever taken any money from anyone and I told them absolutely not. I testified about 10 or 15 minutes."

The grand jury, following up on an undercover FBI investigation with the code name of "Operation Brilab," also heard Councilman James Westmoreland

The Houston lawyer, serving his fourth two-year term on the council, said he couldn't "mention anything right now. Let us wait and see what comes out."

"I don't want to mention any names and have someone put on trial by the news media," he said.

The councilmen said they had been excused by the federal panel.

Robert Johnson, executive director of the Texas Legislative Council, appeared before the grand jury during the afternoon session and said he was asked if he had accepted money from any person concerning insurance and "I answered no."

Johnson also was asked if he knew L.G. Moore, regional director of the Operating Engineers International Union, a central figure in the FBI investigation.

"I told the grand jury I had met Mr. Moore in 1974 during the constitutional convention and saw him again in 1979 when he introduced me to a man I believe was named Hauser. I said hello and that was all," he said.

Johnson said he brought along "some records" concerning state insurance but did not say if the grand jury had checked them.

Frank Mann, a Houston city councilman for 18 years before his defeat for reelection last November, said he was before the grand jury about "seven minutes. They asked me if I had talked about the city insurance plan with anyone, and I told them only during an open council meeting. They wanted to know if I knew any Prudential Insurance Co. agents and I said I didn't. They wanted to know if I had been offered any money by anyone and I said no.

"I don't know what they are after and I don't know what it is all about. As far as I am concerned this is a waste of time. We simply approved the best insurance policy available for the city employees. That's all there is to it." The grand jury also heard testimony from Charlene Womach, Westmoreland's secretary; Nelia Diaz, a secretary who works in an office next to Westmoreland; and Mary Ann Crow, secretary to Moore.

Moore also has been subpoenaed and is expected to appear today.

Randy Schaffer, attorney for Mrs. Crow, said his client spent only a short time under questioning. "She is a secretary, she doesn't know anything," he said.

"Operation Brilab," where FBI agents posed as representatives of Prudential Insurance Co., has reached into the Texas Legislature, the Houston council, three labor organizations and the Houston Port Authority.

Still to answer subpoenas are Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton; his executive assistant Russell Kelley; Sherman Fricks, business manager for the 7,000-member Pipefitters Union, Local 211;

John Garrett, a Houston Port Authority commissioner; Jackie St. Clair, executive secretary-treasurer of the Texas Building and Construction Trades Council; and Moore.

Handling the case before the grand jury were U.S. Attorneys A.J. "Tony" Canales of Houston and Jamie Boyd of San Antonio.

Clayton, serving an unprecedented third term and seeking a fourth as head of the 150-member Texas House, said he was the victim of an "apparent political assassination."

In Austin Tuesday, Clayton's lawyers showed reporters a package of 50 $100 bills that they said was given the speaker by Moore during a meeting Nov. 8.

Published reports said Clayton was given $10,000 by the labor leader and in the presence of a man identified as Joseph Hauser.

Lubbock Business Leaders Elated By City's Low Jobless Rate

By JOE GULICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock business and civic leaders credit a strong and growing economy and a high quality work force as major factors in the city's achieving the lowest rate of joblessness in the nation, 2.4 percent as of Dec. 31.

And although such glowing figures have brought problems to some boom areas in the past, they paint only a rosy picture for the future.

The minuscule unemployment figure and the city's ranking came to light in a report issued Monday by the Labor Department. The figure contrasted with that of Anderson, Ind., which had the highest unemployment rate, 15.2 percent, and experienced the sharpest increase during the year, jumping 8.7 percentage points from a 6.5 percent rate in December 1978.

Lubbock was one of 33 metropolitan areas that experienced a drop in the jobless rate of at least one percentage point over the year, declining 1.5 points from 3.9 percent in December 1978.

Texas Employment Commission manager Bert Darden said, "For the last two or three years, this area... has had an unemployment rate considerably lower than the national rate and consistently lower than the state rate."

Darden said other parts of the country are experiencing high unemployment because of extensive layoffs in the automotive and related industries. "In November Lubbock had only about 13,000 people in the county in manufacturing. There have been very few layoffs," he said.

John Logan, executive director of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, said he thought Lubbock's low unemployment rate reflected a strong economy that has prevailed in Lubbock the last few years.

"Growth has been good and steady with a lot of jobs available," Logan said.

He added that Texas has had good, steady growth statewide during the last decade, with industries growing and moving to the state.

Grey Lewis, assistant chamber manager, wasn't surprised at the unemployment figure, but was surprised Lubbock was the lowest in the nation.

"This reflects the diversification of Lubbock's economy," Lewis said. "All segments are in a strong position right now. The strength of the southwest sun belt is also very strong right now."

Lewis said the recession national economists have been predicting for some time may be weaker than originally thought and believes there is some question it will develop at all.

George Miller, chairman of the chamber's industrial committee, said Lubbock's industrial complex has grown faster than the supply of labor.

"We have had interesting growth in the industrial complex the last 10 years," Miller said.

Miller predicted the industrial growth of Lubbock would continue for several reasons, among them a quality work force.

Darden predicted Lubbock's low unemployment would continue. "I see no reason for lessening of the economic conditions," he said. "The outlook is very good."

Kenosha, Wis., had the strongest drop in unemployment in the nation, from 8.1 percent to 4.5 percent, owing to gains in transportation equipment manufacturing.

The Labor Department said 10 states, among them New Mexico, suffered increases in unemployment rates of at least one percentage point during 1979.

Termination Of CETA Contract Angers Area Government Panel

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The termination of SPAG's contract with the state as area-wide coordinator for the Comprehensive Employment Training Act drew sharp criticism Tuesday from the agency's board members.

The board, notified of the action by letter, unanimously approved a motion to "advise the Honorable Mr. Clements (Governor Bill Clements) we believe this is a dissolution of local power." SPAG Executive Director Jerry Casstevens called the action by the Manpower Services Division of Texas Department of Community Affairs "regrettable," adding "little can be done about it."

"I'm not willing to stop with this letter," countered Lubbock representative Carolyn Jordan.

The SPAG contract to administer CETA programs in rural areas outside Hale and Garza Counties and the city of Lubbock ended Sept. 30, 1979, and was not renewed pending review, Casstevens said.

The contract between SPAG and the state Manpower Services Division was officially terminated in January. L. C. Harris of Manpower Services Division cited "a need to streamline the process of meeting Department of Labor requirements with fewer people and resources" as the reason for excluding local management of the federal job training program.

"In effect CETA control was removed from the local level and centralized in Austin," said Casstevens.

SPAG will "register a complaint with the governor" over the action, said Casstevens, and the agency plans to "join forces" with other rural CETA planning bodies which may have been affected by the cut.

The TDCA action did not change SPAG's administration of CETA programs within the Hale and Garza county-city of Lubbock consortium, however. Directors voted to continue that arrangement for another year.

In other business, Casstevens reported Yoakum County, which two years ago dropped out of SPAG has agreed to re-new membership.

SPAG members also gave approval to three applications for drug abuse prevention programs to be funded through the state and federal Criminal Justice Division budget.

Directors waived comment on a fourth project, which will be sponsored by SPAG.

Some $80,000 in criminal justice funds has been made available to SPAG's 15-county region for juvenile drug and alcohol abuse prevention programs.

A Garza County funding request for a $3,625 drug and alcohol abuse prevention for middle and high school students received favorable comment from the board.

In past years the program, which has been self-funded, has established Al-A-Non and Al-A-Teen organizations. With the new funding, program administrators plan a driving-while-intoxicated prevention program.

A like project in Hale County which received favorable comment from the board will use $27,844 to provide a referral service for the 64th and 242nd District Courts and the Hale County Juvenile Probation Department, through work with the Central Plains Mental Health-Retardation Center.

The project, which director Jack Driscoll said would be "like closing the gate before the cows get out," will provide

Highway Department Schedules Area Project Bids March 11-12

AUSTIN — The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation will take bids March 11-12 on four Lubbock area highway projects totaling more than $21.7 million, including a $19.87 million project in Hale County.

The highway department will take bids March 11 on proposed improvements to Interstate Highway 27 in Hale County.

The work on the Hale project covers 5.11 miles of IH 27 from Hale Center to Loop 445 south of Plainview and from drug abuse education to 85 school teachers, plus allow law enforcement and probation professionals to counsel 47 families. Emergency medical care also will be provided for five juvenile offenders, and 65 juvenile offenders will receive outpatient counseling.

The board also passed favorable comment on a "lame duck" application submitted by the City of Lubbock for $53,000 to employ 25 high school-aged individuals to build a black history mural in one of the Canyon Lakes projects.

Program director Oscar Jones told the board the project already has been refused funding by the state Criminal Justice Division because it is not directly related to law enforcement.

At least eight of the individuals employed by the project would be high school drop-outs, said Jones. He will go to Austin to appeal the decision, he said.

SPAG directors also passed favorable comment on an application by the Lynn County Pioneer Club Inc. for $24,000 in federal funds for expansion and renovation of the Tahoka Senior Center.

Lynn County officials, who say that county has the greatest number of senior citizens in West Texas, plan to expand the Tahoka center, located in a donated church building. Total expenditure for the project will be $26,000, including local matching funds.

north of Hale Center to south of Loop 445. It will include work on grading, structures, base, flexible base, asphalt stabilized base, asphalt concrete pavement, safety lighting, signs, pavement marking, lining and guard fence.

The highway department also will take bids March 11 on proposed improvements to FM 3385 in Crosby County.

The highway department plans to work on grading, drainage structures, flexible base and two-course surface treatment on 3.54 miles of FM 3385 from FM 2794 south to FM 261.

Police Here Hope Federal Funds Grant To Be Beneficial In Curtailing Crime

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock police say they hope they can involve more Lubbockites in thwarting criminal acts with the aid of a federal grant and a newly formed crime prevention unit.

Police Information Officer Bill Morgan said the unit, announced Tuesday, has been on the drawing board several years, but a recently acquired $58,432 federal grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration made the program possible.

Sgt. Benny Ussery, unit coordinator, said he hopes to move into businesses, homes and schools to make residents more aware of what can be done to prevent rapes, robberies, thefts and burglaries in the city. The unit then will target more sophisticated organized crimes, he said.

Cpl. Kenneth Brendle and secretary Joyce Mooney are the only other city employees assigned full time to the program, but Ussery said he hopes to involve the entire force. "We want to sell this to our men as well as the public," Ussery said.

Brendle and Ussery said they still have not mapped out details of how the program will be run, but in the "next couple of weeks" they hope to have the unit in full operation.

For now, the unit is headquartered in the former fire marshal's office at 502 Ave. J, but the three-member operation will later move into the basement of the police department, Morgan said.

Still without a telephone as of Tuesday, the crime prevention unit can be reached through Morgan's office at 762-6411, Ext. 2753. When a phone is installed, city residents interested in learning what they can do to prevent being victimized by a crime can reach Brendle or Ussery at extensions 2969 or 2970.

Many of the unit's goals are similar to that of the Lubbock County Crime Prevention Council, which was launched last year.

Ussery said some of the program's objectives are to set up "neighborhood block watches" and to persuade residents to mark valuable. "We have (recovered) stolen merchandise with no identifying marks," he said.

The program also will involve police going into businesses and homes and advising what can be changed to better prevent break-ins and thefts, as well as counseling recent victims of crimes against property.

Ussery said he hopes to better educate Lubbockites and their children on how to detect a possible burglary in progress at a neighbor's house. Don't confront the suspected burglar, "just take a license number down and call police," he said.

Ussery and Brendle will speak to groups and at schools about crime prevention, and they hope students will persuade their families to participate in the program.

Ussery and his staff, working with the rest of the police department and citizens, say they hope to accomplish a 3 percent reduction in the number of reported crimes by 1982, make 75 percent of the city's population aware of basic crime prevention methods, continue training for law enforcement officers in crime prevention and get 55 percent of the city's residents involved in "operation identification" and at least one other project.

Bond Set For Shallowater Man Charged With Murder Attempt

Willie David Jordan, 19, of Shallowater, charged with attempted capital murder in the thwarted escape attempt Sunday from county jail in which two sheriff's deputies were injured, was arraigned today before Justice of the Peace Charles E. Smith.

Bond for Jordan was set at $100,000.

Jordan reportedly injured deputies Lonnie Bright and Mike Guerra after the escape attempt when he refused to go from his fourth floor cell to an isolation cell on the third floor.

Officers said Jordan splashed scalding water on Bright's back and hit Guerra in the mouth and face. Both deputies were released about noon Monday from West Texas Hospital.

Jordan, attempting his second escape in less than a month, has been sentenced to 40 years for burglary of a habitation and was in the county jail awaiting formal sentencing before he is transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections.

The other inmates involved in the escape attempt were Floyd Lee Ellis, 27, Maurice Dancy, 19, who two weeks ago was convicted of the murder of Texas Tech graduate student Claude Ventry Bridges, and Valton Donnell Lewis, 22.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column — with tongue in cheek — you told a reader: "If you believe that story, I have a nice swamp in Louisiana I'd like to sell you." After receiving a raft of offers from people who wanted to buy your swamp, you wrote: "I was trying to be funny. I have no swamp to sell. From now on I won't be so cute with my answers."

Since you welcome information that sets the records straight, I'd like to inform you that the oil-rich swamps of Louisiana are extremely valuable and very hard to come by. The checks I receive from a major oil company for wells on my property aren't funny, but they sure are cute — Louisiana Swamp Rat

Dear Rat: Sorry about the goof. And now, do YOU have any swamp land in Louisiana I can buy?

Dear Ann Landers: I need compassion, not scolding. I hope I have come to the right place.

I am addicted to cigarettes. Yes, it's a stinking habit, I know how much it costs. I know how many sweaters and blouses I've burned holes in. I know I am polluting other people's air. I also know that more than 300,000 people a year die because of diseases that are traceable to cigarettes. I want to quit. I've tried hypnosis, tapering off, cold turkey, and nausea. Two years ago when I managed to stay off cigarettes for three weeks, I gained 10 pounds. I went back to the darned things.

My husband and kids nag me constantly. They won't get off my case. Why don't non-smokers realize that for some people smoking is as much an addiction as alcohol? Nagging only makes it worse. Please tell them — A Weakening In Montana

Dear Montana: You are right. Nicotine addiction can be as hard to conquer as alcohol or other drugs. Your family must accept the fact that they are powerless over your addiction. The only person who can do anything about it is YOU. Others have overcome addictions, and you can, too. Certain techniques work for some people and not others. Contact your physician and enlist his help. Don't give up. It can be a matter of life and death.

Dear Ann Landers: This is the first letter I've written to you in 20 years of reading your column. I had a lonely childhood. I liked you better than my mother. Thanks for printing the letter from "Big Mama From Bellingham." I, too, was a large child. Although I was above average in intelligence and maturity, I knew no matter how well I did, more was expected of me because of my size.

All the heroines in literature seemed to be petite. I was sure I could never attract a man. I lived in fear of growing up to be as tall as my father. (He was 6-8.) My size was constantly working against me. I was looked on as a girl who could take care of herself. Men don't exactly flock to that type.

Luckily, I found a great husband. We now have two daughters who are going to be very tall. I am trying to reinforce their self-esteem and make them proud of their height. I hope other mothers of tall girls will do the same. It's a real challenge but essential to a female's well-being. Sorry, I don't have the courage to sign my name. Just call me — Kansas

Dear Kansas: You sound like a lady. I can look up to "Thanks for writing."

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Two months ago, I ran out of replacement bags for my vacuum cleaner, so I decided to re-use the one I had.

I used a single-edged razor blade to slit the bottom, emptied the contents, then folded the cut edges together.

I sealed it with tape and stapled it for good measure.

So far, I have cut the bag twice. It's still going strong, and I'm saving money to boot. — Jerry Mociolo

While this can serve in a pinch, Jerry, I wouldn't advise making it a habit as this could cut down on the efficiency of your vacuum.

Vacuum bags have a filter lining. Once a bag is slit, it is difficult to totally re-seal. A leak in the bag could cause minute particles of dust to get into the motor of tank type vacuums or be blown back into the room by upright models.

Reusing vacuum bags isn't a good idea. Nor is it smart to use your cleaner when the bag is too full because it can't pull in dirt!

Not only that, but you are filling the house with dirty air and an unpleasant odor when you vacuum with an over-stuffed bag.

Vacuum cleaner bags are not very expensive, so change them about once a week if you possibly can, even though they aren't full.

If you have the type of vacuum cleaner that requires emptying the bag itself, do this thoroughly after every vacuuming.

You'll eliminate that awful odor next time you do the floors and you may just save the motor of your machine too. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When making peanut butter cookies, add a few chocolate chips to the batter. My family loves the added flavor. — Bobbi Bell

DEAR HELOISE:

My dishwasher chose to conk out with six out-of-town guests here for a two weeks' visit.

Our solution to the problem: we just took turns washing the dishes.

When they were washed, we stacked them in the trays of the dishwasher, closed the door and let them dry. They were off the sink, out of sight and no mess! The next morning, we took them out and put them away.

It was really a blessing, as it gave us ladies the old-fashioned enjoyment we used to have standing and talking while doing the dishes. — Shirley S.

DEAR HELOISE:

I have satin pillowcases on my pillows to protect my hairdo, but they slip off the pillows.

At the fabric shop, I purchased some "zipper" tape (it comes in two parts that adhere to each other). I sewed them to opposite sides of the inside of the case along the opening.

Works like a dream! — Sandra Cooke

Stumped, baffled, confused by a housekeeping chore? Let Heloise help you. Send your problem to her, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017. She can't answer your letter personally but will try to track down a solution and print it in her column.

To Your Good Health

PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 45 and have endometriosis. I have been told that removal of my uterus and ovaries would probably make me feel better. I worry about after the surgery and the hormone supplements I might need to ease any menopause symptoms. Won't the hormones cause the endometriosis to grow worse? I also have bowel trouble and stomach cramps. — Mrs. W.H.

The lining of the uterus is called the endometrium. Endometriosis means that some of this uterine-like tissue is being formed outside the uterus where, of course, it doesn't belong. Often, bits of the tissue, when sloughed off from the uterus, travel to other points. There it behaves like regular uterine tissue in response to the body's hormones. More on this later.

A common place for the tissue to form is on the ovaries, but it may form elsewhere in the pelvic cavity, or even on the intestines. If it forms on the intestines it might cause rectal bleeding at certain times of the month or the kind of abdominal distress you report.

For a woman approaching menopause (as you are) removal of the ovaries and uterus (the source of the endometriosis) ends the problem, no matter where the extra tissue is located. With the source of the endometriosis gone, hormones no longer can aggravate matters. And, for some reason, once the uterus and ovaries have been removed, hormones do not usually affect the transplanted tissue.

Some women with endometriosis do not need surgery at all. In younger women, an actual pregnancy has been known to alleviate the problem. Another way to accomplish the same result is to mimic a pregnancy through use of various hormone supplements.

el outpouchings), ulceration, or even cancer. One of the cancer danger signals, in fact, can be alternating diarrhea and constipation. It is to make sure that none of these illnesses are present that an examination is important. This is why I feel so strongly about it to make that kind of a statement. The mucus that is swallowed from the sinuses or your lungs is almost always digested in the stomach and upper intestines, so would not show up in the stool. It's my first encounter with your interesting phrase, "juicy lungs."

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 36 years old, a female. About six months ago after shaving my legs I noticed on the front bone of my left leg a scaly patch, reddish in color. It fades a little sometimes. At other times it is quite bright, especially after exposure to sunlight, when it seems to be larger. It is very irregular in shape. I've tried to show you in the enclosed drawing. It is now the size of a half dollar. My doctor tells me not to worry about it. Can it be something serious? — J.E.

Even with your excellent drawing it would be hazardous to try to diagnose by mail. If you are taking any medication, including birth control pills or laxatives, you may have what is called a "fixed drug reaction." In these cases the reaction disappears after discontinuing the drug.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am having problem with a gland located just under the jaw between the ear and the chin. The doctor said it was a saliva gland and not to worry about it. I thought saliva glands were located directly under the tongue. I drank a glass of cranberry juice and the gland swelled up twice its size. Why should it swell? It takes all day for it to recede. — L.D.F.

The smallest salivary gland (the sublingual) is located under the tongue. The largest (the parotid) is located on the side of the face slightly below the ear. The third (the submaxillary) is just below the jaw.

Glands swell for a number of reasons. Mumps, for example, produces marked swelling of the parotids. The tartness of the cranberry juice stimulates these glands to produce saliva, so an obstruction of the duct outlet from a salivary gland leads to swelling after such stimulation.

Saliva is being produced without the ability to empty into the mouth.

A common cause of obstruction is a minute stone in the duct.

For a better understanding of colitis and other intestinal ailments, their causes and treatment, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I can't remember when housework became home management efficiency, but I could swear there's no difference.

All my life, I've been searching for a way to achieve Phyllis Diller's lifelong dream: a stove that flushes.

In my catch-all drawer, I've got a collection of household hints, beauty and time savers so weird they're guaranteed to get you committed to the ha-ha home of your choice.

In fact, I have just gone through all of them and would like to initiate my annual Bombeck Clean-off. Mrs. America Beauty and Efficiency Pageant and Self-Righteous Spit-Up Bowl. Here are the favored entries wearing their "original" quotes.

ILLINOIS: "For formal affairs, weddings or just ordinary dress-up occasions, here's a hint. If you're wearing a long dress on a rainy or sloshy day, cut two holes in an extra large garbage bag and step inside. Pull it up to your waist and you'll have no problem with splash marks."

NEW JERSEY: "Home repair jobs are made easy. Did you know that you can substitute pancake mix for plaster to fill nail holes in a wall before it's painted and revive old Christmas decorations by coating them with clear nail polish?"

GEORGIA: "Smart hostesses are going 'all out' these days by wearing an outfit to match the walls of their homes. You'll be a real show stopper and receive prolonged 'bravos' for your originality and creativity. (Don't forget to smile so people can find you.)"

OREGON: "Children with busy social lives prefer a little privacy when on the telephone. A family in Portland installed a phone in a walk-in closet. Now talkers aren't heard by the rest of the family and the unsightly telephone message board is easy to hide."

OHIO: "You've certainly heard of the wondrous things a compost does for your soil, but suppose you live in an apartment and have no place for one. Ah, but you do. You can make your own compost in a window box handy to the sink where you dump in your coffee grounds, vegetable peelings and egg shells. The odor is like a lush jungle rain forest."

ARKANSAS: "Once a week, we plan an international meal for the whole family. We plan the entire menu to reflect foreign countries. We then make a map of the area, research its interesting facts and appear at dinner in the costume of the country. It's fun, educational and rewarding."

Nominations close April 1. The winner will be given a scholarship to a baking soda factory and will be crowned in Atlantic City. Bert Parks willing.

MEDICAL RESEARCHER — Dr. John Olney of St. Louis was a recent lecturer at the Tarbox Parkinson's Institute of the Medical School of Texas Tech University. Olney has done extensive research in the field of medical implications of the use of food additives and spoke to the press and medical students concerning current research. Researcher Addresses Students

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

Until such time as the Food and Drug Administration processes and acts upon the findings of research concerning certain food additives, a family's best defense against overuse of these substances is careful reading of product labels, said Dr. John W. Olney of St. Louis.

Olney, professor of psychiatry and neuropathology at the Washington University School of Medicine, is one of those whose research in the field of food additives leads him to advise caution in their use. Olney was on the campus of Texas Tech University School of Medicine recently to participate in a lecture series sponsored by the school's Tarbox Parkinson's Disease Institute.

A special research project in which Olney was engaged had to do with the use of monosodium glutamate (MSG). His findings were responsible for the banning of MSG in prepared baby foods because of the potential danger of the substance to babies.

While studies show that this substance has a high potential for danger to neurological tissues, there has been a reluctance to ban the use of it, he said. The use of MSG, which basically gives flavor to foods, is widespread, he said. It is used throughout the food industry which will fight for its continued use, he said, along with the makers of the chemical product.

Before coming to Lubbock, Olney took part in an open hearing on the use of aspartate, a sugar substitute, he told a news conference. This product is not currently on the market and its potential for health damage is still under scrutiny, he said. As in the case of the 1974 ban against saccharin, the doctor advocates that it be made available in table use form for those whose diets require it, but that "it not be distributed diffusely" as an ingredient in such products as soft drinks, chewing gum, and in sweetened cereals. He feels that unlimited use in such foods make it too accessible for young children to whom it might do the most harm.

these possibly harmful additives in their diets, he was asked. The answer he gave indicated that "from scratch" recipes for soup and dishes prepared from fresh meat and vegetables and avoidance of processed sweetened foods might be the beginning of a solution.

Conference On Families Seeks Citizen Input

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

Plans for the Lubbock phase of the White House Conference on Families were announced by Douglas C. Chatfield of the governor's advisory committee at a press conference Tuesday.

Sen. E. L. Short and Rep. Froy Salinas, who are among those to serve as hearing officers for the local forum, scheduled for March 8 at the Memorial Civic Center, were also present at the news conference.

Chatfield and the local planning committee are urging individuals representing various segments of the community to register to speak at the local forum.

The forum...represents a significant opportunity for individual families to speak directly to their legislators and representatives of the Governor," Chatfield said.

Persons wishing to register should send their name, address and phone number to:

5517 74th Street
Lubbock, Texas 79424.

They do not need to give a topic or description of themselves, but should simply indicate that they want to be scheduled and the time preferred, Chatfield said. The forum will run from 8:30 a.m.-9 p.m.

The committee will draw up the schedule Feb. 20 and inform participants of the time they are to appear. Later registrants will be scheduled on a first-come, first-served basis, up to and including the day of the forum. It is expected that anyone who wishes to speak will be given a chance to do so, Chatfield said.

"We want to make it easy for individual family members to testify," Chatfield said. "We would like to encourage everyone in this region regardless of race, age, ideology, philosophy, education, or anything else to speak out."

The forum will be informal and non-threatening, Chatfield said. There will be no cross-examination or questioning of individuals.

Salinas and Short remarked that government would be responsive to the needs expressed by participants in the conference. "I, for one, will be very interested in learning all I can," Short said.

"The speakers will be ordinary family members speaking out on the problems facing the American family as well as its strengths," Chatfield said. Participants will come from a wide area of West Texas.

Persons unable to attend the forum may mail their comments to: White House Conference on Families, Office of the Governor, State Capital.

They may also call their comments to the Governor's toll-free hotline, 1-800-252-9600. Hotlines will operate weekdays 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Feb. 22-March 7. Written comments should be received in Austin by March 7.

At the forum, it will be possible to pick up "self-nomination" forms with which people can nominate themselves as delegates to the national conference in Los Angeles July 11-13. Delegates will be selected from these nominations by drawing. Governor Clements will appoint another 53 delegates for Texas' allotted 78 slots.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Aces are meant to capture opposing kings. Second hand should play low.

Today's declarer was no slavish follower of simple rules. He realized that every hand has its own character and that general rules no matter how sound in principle, don't always apply.

Forethought and reasoning are vital at trick one. Many hands are lost at this early juncture by careless play or lack of thought.

The bidding was simple. North scraped up a two-spade response and South ostensibly made a game try of three diamonds. North rejected this invitation and South, who had visions of slam, carried on to game.

The opening lead was the jack of clubs. Declarer paused before playing to the first trick. It was tempting to win the king of clubs in the closed hand and hope to later discard a heart loser on the ace. But there was no immediate entry to dummy. If South wins the club king, draws trump and leads a small diamond to dummy, either defender would then come to one diamond trick and three heart tricks before the club ace could be utilized.

Therefore, South won the opening club lead with the ace, cannibalizing his king, in order to make use of dummy's entry to take a diamond finesse. It was successful and South made his game.

Japanese Automakers Urged To Curb Exports To U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — President Douglas A. Fraser of the United Auto Workers urged Japanese automakers Tuesday to curb exports to the United States. But one carmaker told the union chief that Japanese imports were not responsible for layoffs in the American auto industry.

Fraser said in separate meetings with Nissan Motor Co., makers of Datsun, and Mitsubishi Motors Corp. that there are now 220,000 auto industry workers laid off in the United States. He said Americans inevitably look to the sharp increase in Japanese small car imports as one cause of workers losing their jobs.

"Americans tend to become emotional in an election year," a Nissan spokesman quoted Fraser as saying, "and there are those who say that imports should be restricted."

Fraser, who arrived here Monday for four days of talks with auto industry and government leaders, is expected to repeat that theme in a meeting with Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira today.

The leader of the 1.5-million member UAW is expected to tell Ohira that Japan's auto makers should curb exports to the United States and seriously consider setting up American manufacturing plants.

In Tuesday's meeting, Nissan President Takashi Ishihara said Japan should not be blamed for the current auto industry layoffs in the United States. But he promised that Nissan, Japan's second biggest automaker after Toyota Motor Co., will be prudent in exporting to the United States.

Red Brigades Take Credit For Slaying

ROME (AP) — A young woman and a bearded male companion shot and killed one of Italy's leading Roman Catholic lay activists Tuesday as he walked out of his law class into a hallway at the University of Rome, police reported. Callers to two newspapers several hours after the attack claimed it was the work of the Red Brigades, Italy's most feared terrorist gang.

Vittorio Bachelet, 54, a top Italian judge, was the 11th person killed by terrorists in Italy this year and the seventh magistrate slain since 1976. He presumably was chosen for assassination because of high ranking in the governing body of Italy's judicial system. The Red Brigades have vowed to strike at governmental agencies.

TOWN HIRE LAWYER
LEWISTON, N.Y. (AP) — The town board in Lewiston has agreed to hire environmental lawyer Barbara Morrison to help fight a state-approved plan that would permit the discharge of processed chemical waste into the Niagara River.

Bachelet had served as a consultant to the Vatican and was a long-time acquaintance of Pope John Paul II, who condemned the attack as the latest in a series of "abominable crimes to stain the beloved city of Rome with blood."

One of the anonymous callers to newspapers said, "Listen to me carefully, we are the Red Brigades, we have executed Bachelet. A communique will follow."

Bachelet had just finished teaching a law class in the Aldo Moro Auditorium, named after the former premier kidnapped and killed by the Red Brigades in 1978. Moro also had taught at the university.

As Bachelet headed toward a staircase, a young woman put her hand on his left shoulder, witnesses said. When he turned, she fired three or four bullets into him. Bachelet fell to the floor. Both terrorists then stood over him and kept firing, including once into the back of his head.

To cover their getaway, the terrorists screamed "There's a bomb, there's a bomb," emptying the law class of students. They reached a campus gate and fled in a car driven by an accomplice.

Bachelet was a former president of Italian Catholic Action, a worldwide lay organization. In 1967, he first met the pope, then archbishop of Krakow, Poland, and they served together on the pontifical commission for the laity.

He was a vice president of the Superior Council of Magistrates, the governing body of the Italian judicial system.

The assassination came on the same day four other judges were killed in the head-on collision of two cars near Agrigento, Sicily. Police ruled out any foul play.

Soviets Reported Supplying Tanks, Armored Equipment To PLO

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Soviet Union has supplied about 60 tanks and other armored equipment to the Palestine Liberation Organization in a direct move to strengthen guerrilla forces in southern Lebanon, Israeli military sources said Tuesday. The PLO denied the report.

Moslems exchanged artillery fire with Israeli-backed Christian militias in the third consecutive day of shelling in southern Lebanon. The Lebanese government decided to send Prime Minister Salim el Hoss and a top-level delegation to Damascus on Wednesday in a fresh effort to persuade Syrian President Hafez Assad to call off a planned withdrawal of

5,000 peacekeeping troops from Beirut. The Israeli sources said the Soviets supplied T-34 tanks equipped with 85mm guns and noted it was unusual for Moscow to transfer the weapons directly to the PLO. The leader of the Christian militias in southern Lebanon charged earlier that Syria supplied the tanks. The PLO also received several BTR armored personnel carriers and mobile artillery pieces with a range of four to six miles, the sources said. PLO spokesman Mahmoud Labadi denied the reports but said, "I wish the Soviets would give us sophisticated anti-aircraft missiles to shoot down Israeli warplanes that keep threatening the civilians in Lebanon."

Tension has been high in Lebanon since Syria announced on Feb. 4 that it planned to withdraw some of the troops who have policed Lebanon's 38-month-old civil war armistice. A total of 18 persons have been killed in the past week in clashes around the country.

The shelling Tuesday heavily damaged homes in five villages near the Palestinian-held southern market town of Nabatiyeh, and a Palestinian guerrilla was wounded by shells that crashed into the Beaufort Castle, a 12th century castle occupied by the guerrillas, provincial officials said. Schools and shops were closed and residents huddled in their basements for shelter from the barrage, which ended about noon. During brief lulls, hundreds of families packed belongings in cars and trucks and fled to safer areas northward.

A spokesman for the governor's office in Sidon, provincial capital of the south, said mosques and churches were filling with refugees.

Military sources in Tel Aviv said the Palestinians and their allies fired a shell an hour into Marjayoun until mid-morning. No casualties were reported. The town is headquarters for rebel Lebanese Army Maj. Saad Haddad, who controls a 59-mile-long strip on the Israel-Lebanon border with military and economic aid from the Jewish state.

Israeli planes flew over Beirut and guerrilla-held towns in southern Lebanon, drawing anti-aircraft fire from the guerrillas. No hits were reported.

Federal and state spending in cooperative efforts to eradicate brucellosis, a disease of cattle, amounted to $105 million in 1978.

Defense Secretary Warns Of Soviet Tricks In Afghanistan

NEW YORK (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown says he thinks the Soviet Union might start a "peace offensive" in Afghanistan, withdrawing one division in front of television cameras and then slipping two back in under cover of darkness.

But he says it would take a "prompt and complete withdrawal" of Soviet troops from Afghanistan to facilitate an easing of relations between the United States and Soviet Union.

"I think it important to keep some dialogue with the Soviets going," he added. "I believe we are faced with the indefinite future with the combination of cooperation and competition."

He commented Monday night on an ABC television special program — "The Iran Crisis, America Held Hostage — Day

100." He said he thought the next phase of the Soviet operation there "is very likely to be a peace offensive, statements of intention to withdraw from Afghanistan at some appropriate time, perhaps even withdrawal of a division before television cameras, accompanied or not, followed or not, by the movement of two divisions back in by night with the television cameras not watching."

He commented that "the Soviets can't really restore the situation to what it was before the invasion of Afghanistan in terms of the effect that it's had on everybody's understanding of the way the Soviets behave."

Businessman Enters Council Race, Cites Need For Water Supply

JACK BROWN
City Council Candidate

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Citing a need for increased efficiency and productivity in city government, businessman E. Jack Brown Tuesday became the second candidate to enter the race for the Place 2 slot on the city council.

At a morning news conference, Brown told reporters that Lubbock has had responsible city management in the past, but he believes there is room for improvement. According to Brown, the city will continue to face a fight with inflation and "a hard-nosed effort is needed" to increase efficiency and productivity in local government.

One of the areas Brown said he is most concerned about is the development of a third water supply for Lubbock. "We may have waited too long already," he said.

Brown, selected last spring to serve on the city's Water Development Board, said that to his knowledge the board has not met since July. "I don't really know what the city administration is doing about it," he said.

However, Brown said he believes that Lubbock citizens must be told more about the city's water situation and what it will take to develop another water supply. Financing such a project will be "the biggest dollar item" Lubbock has ever had to face, Brown said. He stressed that residents must be fully informed about the necessity of securing another water source so they will be willing to foot the bill for it.

The city has been studying a proposed water plan that would involve development of a supply source in the Justiceburg area. City officials have estimated the cost of that project at approximately $108 million.

Despite the cost, Brown said he believes the Justiceburg project "is the way for the City of Lubbock to go."

Brown also stressed the need for the council to "maintain a continuity of pride in the city." In the past few years, he said, public facilities and parks have not been maintained in a way of which the city can be proud. Brown said he would push to improve that situation.

On another topic, Brown cited a need for improved cooperation among local governmental entities. He said that creating a cooperative spirit is not always easy, but he believes the city should make a greater effort in working with officials from the county and Texas Tech.

The candidate praised the efforts of the anti-crime campaign initiated by the city administration. This effort must be continued, and innovative ways should be found to improve, he said.

Brown said the city must make Lubbock "a hard place to live" for the criminal element. And he believes the anti-crime campaign is one way to do that.

A 32-year resident of Lubbock, Brown serves as president of Brown-McKeel, an engineering and construction firm specializing in industrial construction. He holds a B.S. degree in mechanical engineering from Texas Tech.

"I'm not a politician and I don't have any ambitions to be one," Brown said. He said his main reason for entering the council race is to be of service to the city which has afforded him many opportunities.

Brown has served as a member of the Texas State Board of Health and is a member of the board for Milam's Children's Training Center. He and his wife, Frances, have three children.

The Place 2 seat on the council is being vacated by Carolyn Jordan, who has announced as a candidate for state representative. Attorney Tomas Garza also has announced plans to seek the post.

Delay In Replacing Hydraulic Fluid Said Fatal

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — General Motors Corp. began using fire-resistant hydraulic fluid in a conveyor-welder at its Flint Buck plant one day after a welder was fatally burned in an accident, a plant inspector contends.

The welder, John M. Holstine, was burned June 19 in the burst of a hydraulic line, which sprayed fluid and ignited, according to a Michigan Department of Labor report. He died July 10.

The day after the accident, the Buck plant began using fire-resistant hydraulic fluid in conveyor-welders, said William

C. McKellar, a third shift inspector at the plant's Factory 12.

McKellar said workers complained to management about the fluid after he escaped injury in another large fire about three months before the fatal accident.

"They kept saying 'Don't worry about it, the fluid has a real high flash point, the stuff won't burn,'" McKellar said.

"They never did anything to correct the problem until Holstine died. Then, all of a sudden, they corrected it... It always seems like someone has to get seriously hurt or killed before they do anything."

The Labor Department's Bureau of Safety and Regulation fined Buick $240

in the accident, saying Buick had "failed to furnish each employee employment and a place of employment which is free from recognized hazards... likely to cause death or serious physical harm."

Buick did not contest the bureau's findings. However, company spokesman Thomas L. Pond noted that the plant has an ongoing safety program to prevent such accidents.

The Health and Safety Committee of UAW Local 509 at the plant conducted its own investigation of the fire and found Buick not negligent.

"We're convinced the accident was the result of a freakish set of circumstances," committee member John Neilson said in an interview.

South Plains College Creates New Post, Announces Appointees

B.P. Robinson, former dean of South Plains College at Lubbock, has been appointed to a newly created post — business and industrial specialist for SPC's Levelland, Lubbock and Plainview campuses; and Luther "Bud" Joyner, previously dean of instruction for the Lubbock facility, has been named to succeed Robinson.

"The new position has been growing out of a need that we've been considering for a long time," said Frank Hunt, dean of SPC's Technical-Vocational-Occupational Division.

"Robinson, whose office will be at the Lubbock campus, will work directly with business and industry in the area to discern their needs for supplemental or in-house training, to upgrade employee skills or perhaps to assist in start-up of a new industry," he said.

In the past, SPC's TVO and Continuing Education Division have set up programs for electronic assemblers at Texas Instruments and Litton Industries and started the entire training program for the American Cotton Growers denim plant at Littlefield.

Joyner, as dean of the Lubbock facility, will supervise all aspects of campus operations, faculty, business, curriculum, said Hunt.

The announcements came during a meeting of SPC's advisory board for the Lubbock campus, composed of business and industrial leaders.

Two new board members were introduced during the meeting — Dr. Lowell Snyder, Lubbock internist, and Jamie Garcia, Lubbock business consultant and part-owner of a Lubbock Spanish-speaking radio station.

A graduate of Texas A&M University with a master's degree in agronomy, Robinson has been a consultant for a variety of projects — research on grasses for the University System of Georgia and development of recreation areas for eight southeastern states, and he's spent 10 years in industry.

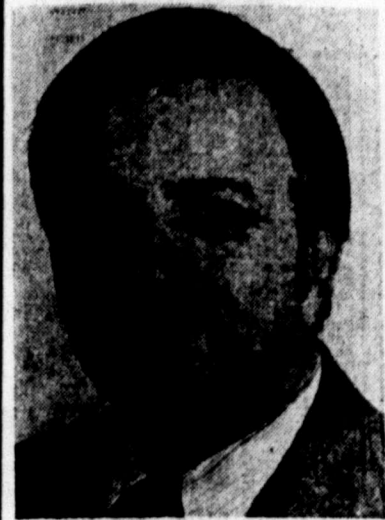

During his 12-year tenure at SPC, Robinson has served as agriculture instructor and later departmental chairman for the applied science and mechanics department, supervising 10 programs.

He was named dean of the Lubbock branch in the mid-1970s.

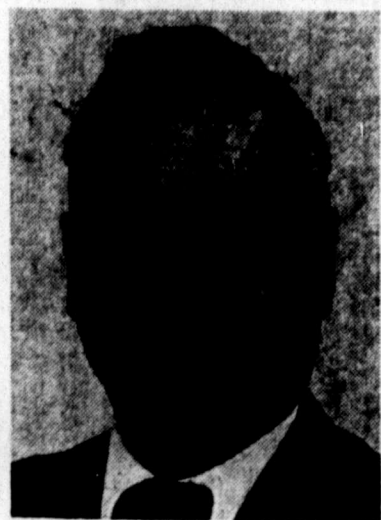

Joyner has been a graduate assistant and associate registrar at West Texas State University, where he completed master's degree work in English in 1970. Later he was dean of student services and registrar at Vernon Regional Junior College for a six-year term, coming to SPC as dean of instruction in 1978.

Robinson will seek out the needs of business and industry throughout the South Plains area, and in turn he will work with the appropriate college administrator, who will develop the training program to fruition, explained Don Yarbrough, dean of continuing education at SPC.

"This will leave Robinson free to continually meet and contact business. Instead of simply reacting and responding to the needs of business, as we've done in the past, I feel we've taken the process a step farther. We're now also to contact business directly through Mr. Robinson, and say, 'Is there something we can do for you?'"

Paraffin-Laden Diesel Fuel Purchased In Mexico Wrecks Auto, Bus Havoc

HARLINGEN (AP) — Buying diesel fuel at bargain prices backfired into expensive repairs Tuesday for car and truck owners who filled their tanks in Mexico.

Car dealers in the Lower Rio Grande Valley report a rash of Mercedes, Cadillacs and Oldsmobiles being towed in with fuel systems plugged up by an apparent bad batch of diesel from stations operated by Pemex, the Mexican national oil company.

"They (Pemex) didn't put in an additive. It just jelled," said Volkswagen dealer Don Johnson of Brownsville. He was referring to paraffin, a wax found in crude oil that is either removed or neutralized in the refining process.

Pemex prices of about 20 cents per gallon for diesel compare to more than a dollar a gallon at American stations across the Rio Grande.

Pemex officials in Nuevo Laredo and Matamoros declined comment except to acknowledge receiving complaints about the shipment.

Mexican drivers also suffered from the bad supply and in Nuevo Laredo city buses were reported stranded all over town Tuesday.

Mexican Highway 85, a main road into Mexico at Laredo, was littered with tractor-trailer rigs left stalled in their tracks.

A check of car dealers along the Texas side of the border showed most problem vehicles filled up in Matamoros, across the river from Brownsville. The cars died in an hour or less, they said.

Some were towed to the International Bridge by Matamoros wreckers and others came into Brownsville from as far away as South Padre Island, 25 miles northeast.

Temperatures have dipped into the 40s this week in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, contributing to the problem, Johnson said.

At Bill Mowbray Motors in Brownsville, 31 disabled diesel-powered cars and trucks have come through since Saturday.

"We remove the fuel tank, clean it out, blow out the lines and the whole system and then replace the original filter," said service dispatcher Jerry Agoraras. The repairs cost $90 to $150, depending on the severity of the clogging, he said.

A San Benito Mercedes-Benz dealer reported 23 cars with gummed-up fuel systems have been in the shop since Monday.

"It takes about an hour to flush out, depending on whether the car has an auxiliary tank. I've pulled out a couple of filters that were completely covered with it," said Tony Garcia of Magic Valley Motors.

Franchises Lure Business-Minded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Franchising has become one of the most rapidly growing forms of business in America, offering individuals a means of going into business with limited capital and experience.

Whether it's tacos, hamburgers, motels, real estate, figure salons or flowers, more and more Americans are turning to franchises.

For persons attracted to this field, the government has a book to consult first.

The "Franchise Opportunities Handbook" includes general information on franchising, suggestions and checklists to assist and protect the investor, a listing of other sources of information and an identification of both government and private organizations that can assist minority group persons.

The handbook sells for $6.50 and can be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington 20402. Order stock number 003-009-00320-2.

CAREER IN REAL ESTATE

You can have a choice in Real Estate sales — large/established office or small/new office! We're looking for salespeople dedicated to service for their clients, interested in continuing education programs and personal counseling, wanting affiliation with "Names you can Trust" locally and nationally, and desirous of earnings proportionate to effort. Why dermaculture? Because DermaCulture is first and foremost a skin care company, not a cosmetic company. Our specialty is clean beautiful skin, regardless of age. A beautiful complexion is usually an achievement attained through care, not a gift.

Not only is a lovely skin important to you personally, but your complexion is the first thing other people notice. By the same token, an unlovely skin is the despair of everyone so afflicted.

Make-up preparations are undoubtedly glamour assets, but unless the pores are free of old creams, powder bases and daily accumulation of wastes, your skin cannot function normally.

A MUST for a clean and glowing complexion is a skin free from blackheads, whiteheads, and dead tissues which cling to the pores. How does the DermaCulture Method Correct these skin problems?

1. By moisturizing vapor to open pores under an infra-red mask.
2. Gentle and thorough vacuuming of the face and neck.
3. A firming technique performed by trained operators using highly perfected equipment covered by U.S. patents.

Did have oily acne skin
Now uses DermaCulture

DermaCulture has been creating beautiful complexions for over 40 years. You will be impressed with the results of your first treatment. However damage done by years of neglect cannot be undone in only one day, but your new complexion can be acquired by a mere hour or two each week, plus a few minutes of facial cleansing daily. Your first treatment is only $22.50. This includes soap or cleansing lotion, granular cleanser and mild astringent to take home with you. Each visit thereafter is $15.00. For your appointment, phone 792-8535.

Three Countries Pledge Access To Area Military Facilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American military mission returned Tuesday from a week-long trip to East Africa and the Middle East with commitments from three countries to allow increased U.S. access to military facilities, U.S. officials say.

The reported agreements reached with Kenya, Somalia and Oman also would grant the United States rights to store military equipment and fuel. In return for their cooperation, the three countries would receive increased U.S. military aid although the amounts have not yet been specified, said the officials, who asked not to be named.

Since the ouster of the pro-Western monarchy in Iran a year ago, the United States has been seeking ways to expand its military capability in the Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean regions to cope with spreading political turmoil.

Part of this effort has included a search for "host country support" for U.S. air and naval forces. Late last year, the administration decided this role might be filled by Oman, Kenya and Somalia.

As an additional measure, the administration is planning to create a 110,000-man rapid deployment force for use in military emergencies.

Discussions also are under way on improving intelligence-gathering methods to keep abreast of political currents in the region.

Last month, President Carter declared the Persian Gulf area was a "vital interest" of the United States and that he would not hesitate to use force to protect it against outside efforts to gain control of the oil fields.

The officials said that of the three countries that have agreed to an expanded U.S. military role, Oman is by far the most important because of its location on the Arabian Peninsula at the gateway to the Persian Gulf.

Somalia had close links with the Soviet Union until 1978 when the Russians were expelled for supporting Somalia's archrival and neighbor, Ethiopia. The Soviets left behind extensive military facilities at the port city of Berbera, including a 15,000-foot airport runway.

The Kenyan deep water port of Mombasa has extensive repair and oil storage facilities.

In seeking to expand its military presence in the area, the Carter administration has abandoned its 1977 goal of converting the Indian Ocean into a demilitarized zone. The United States and the Soviet Union both have increased their military activities in the area in recent months.

The United States is reported to have 25 ships in the general area, and the Russians 24. Both navies are said to be in a "watch and wait" posture without making threatening moves.

ships deployed in the region are three aircraft carriers and their escorting destroyers.

The U.S. mission to East Africa and the Middle East was led by Reginald Bartholomew, head of the State Department's political-military affairs office.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown had no comment on the mission, except to say he was optimistic about the possibility of closer ties with each of the three countries.

Air Bases Located Near Persian Gulf

By The Associated Press

Oman, Somalia and Kenya, the three small countries which tentatively have agreed to allow American air and naval forces greater access to their military facilities, lie along the approach to the strategic, oil-rich Persian Gulf.

The key to the Gulf is the Strait of Hormuz, the bottleneck through which passes more than 40 percent of the West's oil, and observers generally agree that one of the best places from which to defend the strait is Oman.

The sultanate at the southeastern edge of the Arabian Peninsula controls one shore of the strait, and the tanker routes into and out of the Gulf pass through its territorial waters.

Oman's absolute ruler, Sultan Qaboos Bin Said, is pro-West and for months has been urging other Gulf states to band together to defend it against outside threats.

Its army is British trained, gained combat experience fighting Marxist insurgents for 10 years, and still includes 715 British officers on contract or on assignment from London.

For much of last year, U.S. planes on anti-submarine patrols refueled in Oman and their pilots rested there. American transport jets also have used Omani airfields periodically as staging posts on their way to and from the Far East.

Forces using Omani facilities can cover a wide area of the Arabian Peninsula, the Horn of Africa and the Indian Ocean.

Oman is about the size of Kansas, with a population estimated at 800,000 to 1 million, all Moslems. The main cities are the capital of Muscat and the port of Salala, some 500 miles to the southwest.

Muscat is at the edge of a fertile plain in the north, while Salala is ringed by green mountains that are touched by the monsoon. The rest of the country is desolate rock or sand.

Oman produced an average of 295,100 barrels of oil a day last year, according to estimates. But it is not a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and is not a major U.S. supplier.

Somalia is the Horn of Africa. It is slightly smaller than Texas. Almost all of its estimated 3.3 million residents are Moslem, and most are nomads. The country exports bananas and camels.

The strategic importance of Somalia is its location along the Indian Ocean, close by the Bab el Mandeb straits, the opening from the Red Sea to the Indian Ocean. Pro-Moscow Ethiopia is to the west and north, while communist South Yemen is located on the other side of the straits.

Politically, Somalia is a non-aligned, socialist-Marxist state headed by Gen. Mohammed Siad Barre, an army general who came to power in a coup in 1969. He led the country into the Soviet camp originally, and now is moving toward the West. Somalia recently held parliamentary elections.

The Soviets formerly had a naval base at Berbera and a naval air facility at Kismayo before an angry Somalia expelled them in 1977 over Soviet support of rival Ethiopia.

Somalia's problems include a hostile Ethiopia on one border, no mineral resources, little farming, an ill-equipped military machine, and energy. It, too, must import all of its oil.

The East African nation of Kenya has a population slightly over 15 million. Most of them are Christians, with some Moslems living primarily along the coast and in northern areas near the border with Somalia.

Strategically, it is located along Indian Ocean and has good port facilities at Mombasa. Its terrain varies from high plateaus to some farmland to plains and mountains.

The country is pro-Western, and is surrounded by socialist and sometimes hostile neighbors. Kenya has the smallest armies in region.

The biggest problem facing Kenya is energy — all of its oil is imported from the Middle East.

One known for its Mau-Mau terror against the British colonialists, Kenya today is politically the most stable country in East Africa under President Daniel Arap Moi, with a relatively high degree of democracy and a capitalist economy. Its terrain is varied, with high plateaus, little farmland, plains and mountain areas.

Anti-Terrorist Police Free Hostages In Battle With Salvadorean Leftists

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — Anti-terrorist police assaulted the Christian Democrat party headquarters Tuesday, freeing 10 hostages during a gunfight that left one policeman dead and three left-wing militants wounded, witnesses reported. About 100 leftists seized the building and hostages two weeks ago.

The attack came several hours after four leftist demonstrators were shot to death and more than a dozen were wounded as they and others staged a "victory" march that ended their week-long occupation of the Education Ministry.

Left-wing extremists still hold six hostages, including Ambassador Victor Sanchez Mesa, in the Spanish Embassy, and the police raid raised new fears in Madrid that force might be used in an effort to free them.

Security forces in neighboring Guatemala attacked the Spanish Embassy in Guatemala City Jan. 31 when it was taken over by protesting peasants and 37 persons perished in a fire that broke out during the skirmish. Spain severed relations with Guatemala, and El Salvador's ruling junta has assured Spanish officials force would not be used to free the embassy captives here.

Christian Democrat leaders said none of the hostages in the party headquarters was injured as the anti-terrorist squad members charged into the building, which was taken over Jan. 29 by militants of the Feb. 28 Popular Leagues.

A gunfight broke out and shooting continued for several minutes. The leftists surrendered as three armored cars pulled into the driveway of the two-story building, their machine guns leveled on the doors and windows.

Police said later they staged the assault because a gunman inside the building shot at police driving by in a truck. A police cordon kept reporters two blocks from the party headquarters.

Members of the Feb. 28 Popular Leagues, known as LP-28, seized the Spanish Feb. 5.

Red Cross officials said four persons were killed and more and a dozen were wounded in the street battle that came after about 100 left-wing students freed their 10 hostages and ended their occupation of the Education Ministry that also began Feb. 5.

A spokesman for the students said they had marched about 10 blocks from the ministry when policemen left the nearby headquarters of the National Conciliation Party and started firing. Police officials claimed the leftists opened fire first, shooting at a truckload of officers being taken to relieve guards at the Venezuelan Embassy. No police casualties were reported.

There was sporadic shooting in downtown San Salvador after the street fight and police patrolled the zone looking for snipers.

The National Conciliation Party is the party of El Salvador's recent military governments, including the regime of President Carlos Humberto Romero that was ousted in a coup Oct. 15 and replaced by a civilian-military junta.

More than 100 members of the Secondary Students Revolutionary Movement, reportedly ranging in age from 13 to 18, had seized the Education Ministry with up to 1,000 officials and visitors. But many of the "hostages" walked out, others were released and only 10 were still being held when the youths ended the occupation claiming victory.

They said they had reached an agreement with the government on their demands for a 40 percent cut in tuition at private colleges, expanded enrollment in the free public university and the firing of some ministry officials. Neither the students nor government gave any details of the purported agreement.

The left-wing students' movement is a member of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc, one of the largest and most active of a dozen militant organizations in El Salvador seeking a Marxist government.

LP-28 members who seized the Spanish Embassy are demanding the release of 16 members it claims are political prisoners. The government has said it freed 11 and knows nothing about the other five.

Bundy Draws Another Death Sentence

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A circuit judge Tuesday sentenced Theodore Robert Bundy to death in the electric chair for the murder of a 12-year-old girl. It was the third death sentence imposed on Bundy since July.

Judge Wallace Jopling rejected a defense request that sentencing be delayed to conduct a psychiatric evaluation of the defendant, who was convicted by a 12-member jury Saturday of the first-degree murder of Kimberly Diane Leach, a Lake City seventh-grade student.

Defense attorney Victor Africano argued that Bundy does not admit guilt, but said he was presenting two psychiatric reports to counter the prosecution's presentation of aggravating factors that resulted in the death penalty.

Bundy himself argued before sentencing that pretrial publicity "tainted and contaminated this case."

Bundy criticized the judge harshly for going ahead with the trial in Orlando after having moved it here from two different sites in north Florida. Bundy said that because of his prior death sentences in Florida he could not have received a fair trial anywhere in the state.

When the pretty, brown-haired youngster disappeared outside her junior high school Feb. 9, 1978, she was planning to go shopping with her mother for a dress to wear to a school Valentine's Day dance. Her decomposing body was found beneath an abandoned hog shed two months later near the neighboring town of Live Oak.

Bundy, 33, received the death penalty last summer after a Miami jury found him guilty of murdering two Florida State University students in January 1978. Lisa Levy and Margaret Bowman had been bludgeoned and strangled in their beds at the Chi Omega sorority house in Tallahassee.

Bundy, a former law student, helped argue his defense in both trials. State Attorney Jerry Blair of Live Oak said this week the articulate defendant signed a statement admitting to all three murders during an unsuccessful plea-bargaining attempt last May.

Bundy, a former Tacoma, Wash., resident, had escaped from a Colorado jail a few weeks before the Chi Omega killings and was living in a Tallahassee rooming house. At the time of the escape, he was awaiting trial on charges he murdered a vacationing Michigan nurse in Aspen, Colo. Before that, he had been convicted in Utah of kidnapping a young woman.

Prosecutors said Bundy stole a white van from a campus parking lot in early February 1978; drove to Jacksonville, where he bought a hunting knife and tried to pick up a teen-age girl; then drove to Lake City, spotted Kimberly, pulled her into the van and later raped her and slit her throat.

Bandit Back In Town

ATLANTA (AP) — The Bandit was back in town and they blew up a roller coaster for his birthday. Actually, it was for "Smokey and the Bandit II," a sequel to the Georgia-made hit movie starring Burt Reynolds, Sally Field and Jackie Gleason. The 64-year-old roller coaster at the Lakewood Fairgrounds, condemned by city inspectors, was destroyed Monday for a scene in the movie. The filming at the fairgrounds marked Reynolds' 44th birthday and the Georgia-born actor and other cast members, crew and press celebrated with a 200-pound birthday cake. A second, smaller cake, emblazoned "Happy Birthday, Burt. We Love Ya," ended up smeared on director Hal Needham's face moments after Reynolds promised he wouldn't throw it.

Bess Truman Turns 95

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) — Bess Truman turns 95 today. A spokesman for the widow of the Harry S. Truman, the 33rd president of the United States, said she would observe the birthday as she has in the past — quietly visiting with a few close friends at her 17-room, Victorian-style white frame home. Mrs. Truman, who is confined to a wheelchair whenever outside the house, rarely makes outside visits, although friends say her health is good. She does visit a hairdresser once a week and occasionally goes out to dine. She is always accompanied and assisted by Secret Service agents who maintain offices in a house near the Truman home.

Conductor Knighted

LONDON (AP) — Conductor Colin Davis, music director of the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, was knighted by Queen Elizabeth II at Buckingham Palace on Tuesday. Davis said later the queen commented, "I am just as busy as you are." Sir Colin leaves shortly for a month's engagement in Boston where he is principal guest conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. "They've told me they're going to give me a tea party," he quipped.

Elephant Eviction Planned

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "How do you evict an elephant?" That was the question from Al Brown of the Mid-South Fairgrounds staff as officials Tuesday tried to figure out what to do with 17 lions and tigers, 5 elephants, 4 llamas, some Arabian horses and a couple of camels stranded in a mixup of circus dates. The Hubert Castle International Circus was supposed to be out of the Shelby County Building by midnight Sunday, but a cancellation of a performance in Fort Wayne, Ind., left the animals with nowhere to go until their next show in New Mexico next week. Brown said he'd like to be good natured about the problem, but he's got a flea market coming in Friday. "If it was just a matter of getting the place cleaned up, that would be a different story," Brown said. "But it'll take several days to air out. Have you ever smelled a camel?"

Dinosaur May Be Noted

BOSTON (AP) — A Massachusetts legislator who got rhododendron the official state gem and cod the state fish now wants to make a set of dinosaur footprints the official state fossil. The people who want this legislation are not a bunch of whackos, space shots, flakes or dummies," said Rep. Frank J. Matrango of North Adams. Another legislator, Sen. John P. Burke of Holyoke, is the actual sponsor of the measure, but he admits it is not a priority issue. The bill was filed for a North Adams constituent, who claims the largest dinosaur track in the world was discovered in Granby in 1969. Large and clear dinosaur prints have been found in Granby, and two town residents have opened dinosaur museums and businesses selling molds of the giant footprints. A companion bill asks that the whale become the official state marine mammal.

Officer Attacked With Snow

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Arrested for attacking a police officer with snowballs, a Denver man said he just trying to improve his aim. Officer Stephen Smith stopped his patrol car Monday after it was hit by a snowball, then arrested the hurler when he threw a second snowball, striking Smith on the shoulder. When asked why he threw the snowball, the unidentified 45-year-old man from Denver said he was working to improve his aim. When asked by Smith if he knew his target was a policeman, the man said, "Yes. I have been throwing snowballs at everyone else and I didn't want to discriminate against you." He was booked into the Salt Lake City-County Jail for investigation of assault and criminal mischief.

Reunion Still Far Off

LONDON (AP) — Canada's former First Lady Margaret Trudeau says that "for the moment, I just want to stay right out of the public eye." In an interview published Tuesday in the Daily Mail, she did not deny continuing reports of a reconciliation with her estranged husband, former Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau. But she indicated that a reunion was still far off. "Of course there is always talk," she told Daily Mail correspondent Paul Dacre in Ottawa. "For the children's sake, it would be wonderful." Now 31, Mrs. Trudeau is back in Canada and caring for her three sons, Justin, 7, Sacha, 5, and Michel, 4. She told the Mail that her past antics — many of them written up in her biography, "Beyond Reason" — are "all behind me now." "For the moment I just want to stay right out of the public eye. That part of me is over," she said. "From now on, my life is going to be very private."

Oil Found In Basements

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Oil has been discovered in this Berkshire County city — in the basement tanks of homeowners who have switched to natural gas. With the help of the Lipton Oil Co. and a couple of drivers who donated a Sunday's services, Sherwood Guernsey is collecting the oil and having it delivered to the poor who need it. "In three days we managed to get offers of 3,000 gallons," said Guernsey, who placed ads last week asking homeowners who had switched to gas to donate their leftover oil. Guernsey says not only can donors get a tax deduction, they don't have to pay someone to remove the oil from their basement tanks.

Baseball Park Lures Movie

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — Thanks to a baseball park that was built in the 1920's, Hattiesburg will be the filming location for an ABC-TV movie on the life of baseball great Satchel Paige. George C. Scott will direct the movie, called "Don't Look Back." Walterine Odom, film coordinator for the Mississippi Department of Economic Development, said the producers of the film searched around the country for a baseball stadium that had been built in the 1920's before settling on the Greater Hattiesburg Ballpark. "The period of the film is the late 20s," Mrs. Odom said. Actor Lou Gossett has been signed to portray Paige and Paige himself is expected to be in Hattiesburg for the filming. Mrs. Odom said the film's budget will be "in the millions." The filming is expected to take about four weeks, will begin May 19.

House Approves Medal For Canadian

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, acting at an uncharacteristic level of solidarity, voted Tuesday to strike a gold medal honoring the Canadian ambassador who helped six Americans escape from Iran. Only one vote was cast against the resolution. And the lone opponent had only kind words to say about the ambassador. The 362-1 vote sends the measure to the Senate. There was no indication when that body might act. The Senate is holding only pro forma sessions this week. Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., who voted against the proposal, said she felt Congress already had acted appropriately by passing resolutions commending the ambassador, Kenneth Taylor. "I don't think every single warm-hearted and kindly emotion has to be expressed in something expensive," she said. "Ambassador Taylor did a wonderful, brave thing. But the appropriate measure would have been a resolution by Congress, not a medal." A spokesman for the House banking subcommittee on consumer affairs, the panel that handled the legislation, said the medals are almost solid gold and normally weigh between 14 and 15 ounces, depending on the detail of the design. At current prices, that would mean the gold in the ambassador's medal could be worth about $10,000. Although the bill authorizes $20,000 for designing and constructing the medal, it also provides that bronze replicas will be struck and sold to collectors. Sponsors said they expected the price of the bronze replicas would be set high enough to recoup the cost of Taylor's gold medal as well as the cost of the replicas. The House originally had planned to vote on the bill Monday but that plan stalled when Rep. Bill Frenzel, irritated at Democratic leaders for keeping the House in session this week, demanded a roll call. Today is Lincoln's birthday and Republicans traditionally use the day for speeches to their constituents. But many of those plans had to be cancelled when Democratic leaders decided last week to keep the House in session.

Kentucky Schoolboy Seeks Mark

PHELPS, Ky. (AP) — Ervin Stepp, the Phelps High School senior guard, has all but assured himself of setting a national single-season high school basketball scoring record. Through 20 games, Stepp has scored 1,075 points for a 54.7 points per game average. In two recent games, he scored 75 and 60 points. Stepp, who already holds the single season record for highest scoring average by a junior, is well ahead of the current overall record of 50.8 points per game. That average was compiled during the 1970-71 record by Bennie Fuller of the Arkansas School for the deaf in Little Rock. The 6-foot-3 Stepp's average is almost four points per game higher than the existing record. "Ervin is the best high school shooter in the country," said Phelps Coach Joe Allen Stepp, who is Ervin's brother. "There's not a college team in the country he couldn't start for right now." Last season, Stepp averaged 47.2 points per game for Phelps, a small high school located in the eastern Kentucky coal fields.

Wells, Moore Head List

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

The slot machine cylinder has been spinning rapidly since the end of November. Southwest Conference football recruiters have been waiting impatiently for the cylinder to stop — to see if their gambits have paid off.

Will it be three cherries — jackpot! — or will it be two lemons and an orange — try again next year? Today, the winners and losers are revealed. Today, the cylinder comes to a halt. Today, the frantic race for recruits among SWC football teams ends.

When Texas Tech began its recruiting campaign some three months ago, Red Raider head coach Rex Dockery stated his priorities. First and foremost, the Raiders needed skill athletes — players who could catch the football and run with it once they laid their mitts on it.

Second, Tech needed help at the line-backing positions, especially inside. The Raiders needed tall, strong players who could move as well laterally as they could frontwards and backwards.

Third, Dockery wanted to land some offensive and defensive linemen for the future. Again, big players who could move well.

The Southwest Conference signing date is here at last and it appears Dockery and his staff have stuck to the battle plan and captured some excellent athletes in all three high-priority areas.

Lewisville's Freddie Wells, a Class AAAA all-state selection and the offensive player of the year in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, and Splendora Class AA all-stater Donald Moore, who's been timed in 4.4 seconds in the 40-yard dash, head a long list of quality players who told The Avalanche-Journal Tuesday they would sign with Texas Tech today.

Wells rushed for over 1,000 yards the past two years and helped the Farmers advance to the Class AAAA state semifinals in 1979. Wells is 5-10 and 205 pounds and possesses 4.6 speed.

"I'm very happy to be on my way to Tech," declared Moore, a 5-11, 190-pound high school all-America. "I like Lubbock a lot. I hope everything works out for the best."

Moore rushed for over 2,000 yards last year and netted over 7,000 rushing yards during his high school career. He also intercepted 54 passes during his four years of varsity play.

The list of talented running backs and receivers doesn't end with Wells and Moore. Childress all-state quarterback Perry Morren, who passed for 1,800 yards and 29 touchdowns last season and ranks third among all-time Texas schoolboy passing leaders, decided on Tech last week.

"There were a lot of things about Tech and Lubbock I really liked," declared Morren. "I know I have a lot of people pulling for me."

Donnie Green, from Caldwell, rated as one of the top three linebackers in the state by several recruiting experts, said he hoped to give running back a try.

"I'd like to try running back," declared the 6-2, 225-pounder with 4.6 speed. "One thing that really helped me choose Tech was that I feel I'm going to get a chance to play right away. I hope I fit into the program."

El Paso Burges wide receiver William Wagoner knew from the start that he was destined to be a Red Raider.

"Ever since I can remember I've always wanted to go to Tech," stated the 6-2, 175-pounder who hauled in 27 passes for 537 yards and three touchdowns last year. "It's like a dream come true for me."

Jesse Kimbrough, a 6-3, 205-pound option quarterback from Mineral Wells, also stated he would sign a letter-of-intent with Tech this morning. Kimbrough is another burner, having been clocked at 4.5 in the 40.

Tiny but dangerous Jamie Harris, a 5-9, 165-pound from Class AAA state champion McKinney, indicated he would sign with Tech today. Tech had waged a furious fight with Houston for the speedy kick returner-wide receiver.

Plainview's Ken Story (6-2, 175) is another wide receiver who indicated he would ink with the Raiders today.

Tech was also in the running for Gatesville running back Stanley Simms (6-0, 180) and South Garland wide receiver Darrell Walls (6-0, 175), but neither player had even verbally committed to Tech.

Tech's linebacking roster is also filled with quantity and quality.

Besides Green, who has all the tools to be a great linebacker, the Raiders are expected to sign Houston Lee's Keith Porter (6-1, 215). Porter was an all-Greater Houston selection in 1979.

Breckinridge's Mike Funderberg said he will ink with Tech around noon today. Funderberg was a Class AA all-state choice at linebacker and ranked high on most of the top recruiting lists.

"I hope I can help Tech out," said Funderberg. "I'm really looking forward to the opportunity to play for the Red Raiders."

Brian Lambert, a 6-2, 215-pound Odessa Permian product and brother of Tech running back Gregg Lambert, said he would hardly wait to get to Lubbock.

"I can't tell you what a good feeling I have," offered Lambert, who will sign with the Red Raiders this morning with teammate Tim Hendrix, a 6-2, 220-pound offensive lineman. "I've known all along that Tech was for me."

DeWayne Giles, 6-4, 220 pounds, is another linebacker who has agreed to sign with Tech this morning. Giles, from Linden-Kildare, was an all-district performer his junior and senior seasons and was named to the all-Greater Houston first team this past season.

Several of the state's top offensive and defensive linemen stated Tuesday they were ready to put their names on the dotted line.

"I'm real excited about becoming a Red Raider," said Pampa all-stater Danny Buzzard.

Buzzard, a 6-4, 250-pounder, was heavily recruited by Oklahoma State and Baylor. The Tech coaching staff is looking at him as an offensive guard.

Lubbock Monterey product Kelly Grammar verbally committed to Tech two weeks ago and will sign with the Raiders tonight at his home. Grammar, 6-3 and 230 pounds, is also being projected as an offensive guard.

Class AAA all-state first-team center Joe Dumas of Borger made up his mind to sign with Tech weeks ago, according to his father.

"Joe could have gone other places," said Ben Dumas of his 6-3, 220-pound son. "He made this decision on his own. He liked Tech and we've already grown close to the school and the community."

Defensive linemen who said Tuesday they would hop aboard the Raiders' ship include Baytown Lee star Ronald Byers, 6-3, 225; and Pearland's Harlan Maisel, 6-3, 220.

El Paso Cathedral's Rene Reys (6-3, 230) did not commit to Tech, but was leaning toward the Red Raiders.

Defensive backs who declared they would sign with the Red Raiders today include high school all-America Norman Hill, 6-1, 190 from Nashville, Tenn.; and Clay Rentroe, a 6-1, 180-pound all-district performer at Houston Cyprus Creek.

MHS Beats Mustangs In Thriller

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Given the option of picking a seven-year hitch in the hoosegow at Santa Fe or playing Monterey one more time this season, Barry Arnwine would probably choose the former and not the latter.

Neither one would be good for the Coronado head coach's health.

Tuesday night, Monterey and Coronado squared off for the second time this season. The result was the same as in the first encounter — a narrow Plainsman victory. Oh, this one didn't go into two overtimes like the earlier meeting, but it was an edge-of-your-seat affair, nonetheless. The Plainsmen, using some crucial free throw shooting by Steve Wooten and some tighter-than-ever defense, scored a 54-50 victory over their 34th Street rivals. A win Friday night over Plainview would now clinch the District 4-AAAA title for the Plainsmen.

"They're tough," commented a dejected Arnwine, who has now watched CHS lose to MHS by a 54-48 double-OT count and the four-point margin Tuesday evening. "You've really got to give them credit. They never let up on you, never give you a chance."

Coronado, now 13-14 for the year, saw the contest slip out of its hands in the third quarter. The Mustangs had led 31-29 at the halftime break but in the third stanza only a 14-footer by Sam Law kept the Mustangs from going scoreless. From the 5:49 mark to the 6:57 mark in the fourth quarter, Coronado failed to score. During that span, MHS racked up a nine-point, 42-33 lead.

The third quarter has bothered CHS all season. Last week against Plainview, the Mustangs blew a 17-point margin and went on to lose 71-70.

"If I could explain it," said Arnwine,

"I'd correct it. The Mustangs did come back and tie the game at 46-46 and 48-48 late in the final stanza. But with 1:03 left in the game, Wooten, who went 15-16 from the line for the night, hit a pair of freebies and Monterey never trailed again. He later bucketed another pair — after being fouled by John Lord — with 24 seconds left that put Monterey up 52-48. Before Wooten's free throws, Coronado could have tied the game at 50-50, but Jimmy Johnson missed and Gary Hodges pulled down a rebound.

Matt Muehlbrad put on the finishing touches when he canned a pair of free throws with six seconds left.

"I really thought we played well," said Michalka. "I really do. But we had to. We played good sound defense and really got after them. We always had a hand in their face."

Monterey, coming off a 54-43 loss to Hereford, hit 15-33 shots from the floor, while CHS canned only 18 of 54 attempts.

But the key to the game, both coaches agreed, was the poor play of CHS's guards, Williams and Law, who normally average over 25 points a game combined, was limited to only 7 and 5 points, respectively. And Williams didn't score until the fourth period.

"That really hurt," noted Arnwine. "We need a lot more (points) from them to be successful."

Monterey was led by Wooten's 20 points and Ian Hyslop's 14 points. Cody Love bucketed 11 points and Dwan Neff countered with 19 for the Ponies.

Fired-Up Dunbar Dumps Dumas

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Maybe there was a full moon or maybe the stars were in just the right positions, but there were some mighty strange things going on in the Dunbar gym Tuesday night.

Everything was reversed, the world was turned upside down. Dunbar, winless in district this year and a 104-60 victim of Dumas earlier in the season, dumped the Demons 66-58.

But that wasn't all. Dunbar's bench, unreliable at best all year, came through with some clutch play. The notoriously poor free throw shooting Panthers hit 24-32 charity shots. And, Dunbar got the senior leadership it had been lacking all season.

"We didn't do it, it must have been someone else," joked Dunbar coach Joe McWilliams afterwards. McWilliams, who had never before had a losing season with the Panthers and who at one time had coached three straight district champs, had been tiring visibly of late as Dunbar lost loop game after loop game.

"I just couldn't believe some of the efforts these kids came through with," he said. "Charles Mitchell had 16 rebounds. Barry Pillow got inside well. He got eight rebounds from a guard position."

"Our free throws helped us instead of hurt us and those people who came of the bench to play helped us. I guess the guys just got hungry."

The Panthers had numerous opportunities to fold, and refused them all.

With 5:06 remaining in the first half, Dunbar trailed by six, 24-18, and had ace post man Stanley Whitfield on the bench with three fouls. The Panthers broke loose, going into the locker room tied at 26.

Fresh from the break, Dumas scored 10 straight points before Whitfield rejuvenated the crowd and the Panthers with a rousing slam dunk with 4:43 remaining in the third. Dunbar had pulled ahead by one by the end of the period.

Then, instead of sitting on the lead, the Panthers built. They led by five with 6:01 left in the game and by 10, 58-48, with 3:52 left.

Sophomore Pillow led all Panther scorers with 15 points, Charles Mitchell added 13, Whitfield had 12 more, sophomore Turon Patterson had 11 and Leroy Rivers got 10.

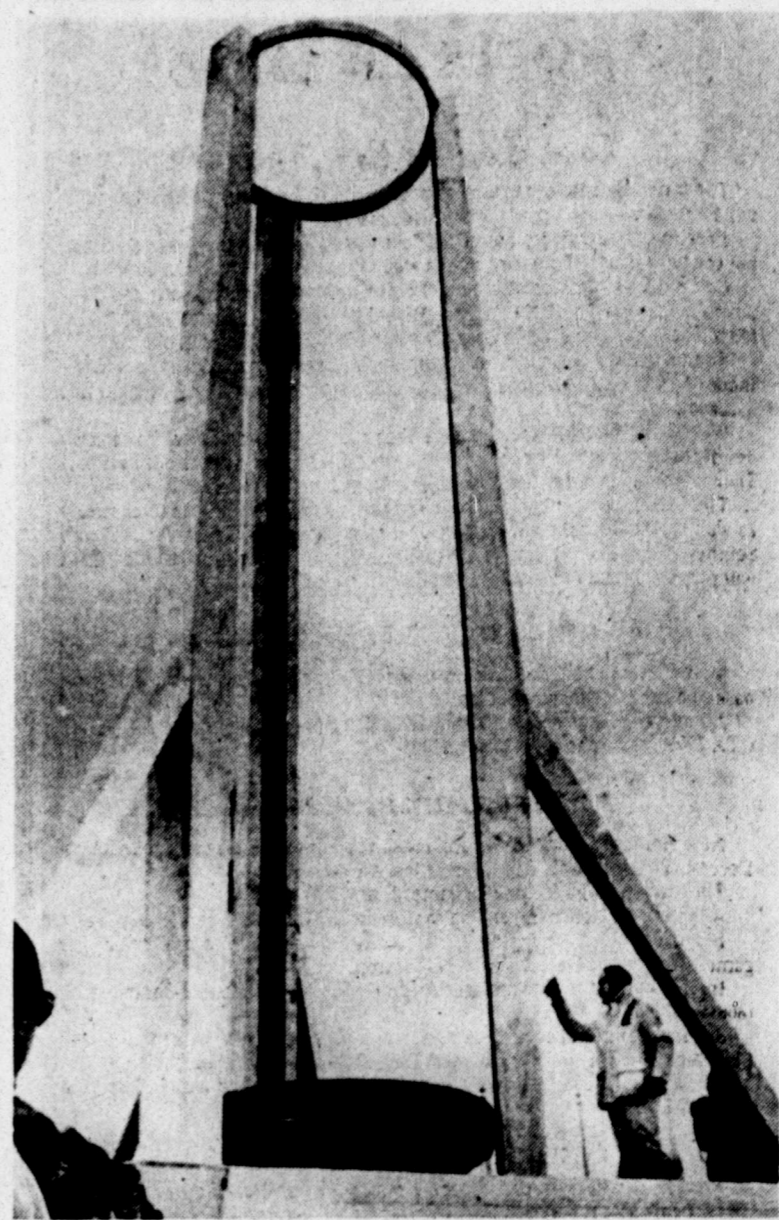

For Dumas, Randy Davis had 19 before fouling out and Scotty Herron chipped in another 14.

Dumas hit only 14 of 29 free throw attempts and got only six of 14 in the final period. Dunbar, on the other hand, notched nine of 11 down the stretch.

AREA CAGE ROUNDUP

Dimmitt, Muleshoe Girls Tie For 3-AA

DIMMITT (Special) — Lori Dyer pumped in 21 points to lead the Dimmitt Bobbies to a 73-34 win over Friona and set up a showdown with Muleshoe for the District 3-AA crown.

The Dimmitt girls finished 4-1 in the second half. The Muleshoe girls, who won the first-half crown, defeated Littlefield 62-45 in other 3-AA action Tuesday night to set up the title showdown with the Dimmitt. Kathleen Patterson paced the MHS attack with 21 points. Muleshoe finished the year 24-3 and 9-1 in league play.

Pam Fisher had 18 for the losing Littlefield girls and Jiselle Beaulieu led the Friona effort against Dimmitt.

In the boys' games, Gary Naylor scored 15 points to lead Dimmitt to a 78-45 win over Friona and give the Bobcats a 3-0 league mark. Randy Kerr had 14 for the Indians.

And the Muleshoe boys recorded a tough 53-51 decision over Littlefield as Mike Northcutt tallied 21 points. Tommy Williams had 24 for the losers.

O'DONNELL PLAINS SPLIT
Senior Sandy Guerrero ended her career on a high note Tuesday night by scoring 18 points and leading the O'Donnell girls to a 70-56 triumph over Plains. O'Donnell, aided by Tracy Clark's 19 points, finished the year 18-11 while Plains got 13 markers from Mary Norman.

Plains came back to take the boys' half of the District 5-A meeting with an 88-54 win over the 2-23 O'Donnell squad. Walter Davis had 22 for Plains and Mike Read tallied 25 for the losers.

WHITHARRAL WINS TWO
Brian Kay and Stanley Kristinek each scored 22 points to lead the Whitharral boys to a District 7-B win over Bledsoe 84-57. Javier Zapata led the 1-20 Bledsoe club with 14 points. WHS finishes the year with a 10-13 mark.

Roxanne Poik tallied 20 points to lead the Whitharral girls to a 64-41 win in the girls game. WHS winds up with a 16-8 record while Bledsoe finishes 4-16. Patty Hall paced the losers with 15 points.

SNYDER WINS
Kyle Short scored 20 points as Snyder won its first game of the second half of District 2-AAA action 54-48 over Lake View. Charles Clemens scored 17 for the San Angelo team. Snyder is now 23-4 after winning the first half of 2-AAA play. Lake View falls to 10-12 and 0-3 in the second half.

ABERNATHY CLINCHES
Joey Garcia's 16 points pushed Abernathy to a 55-52 win over Tulia, clinching the District 4-AA district title. The Antelopes finished the loop season 8-0 and are 20-6 overall. Tulia, now 19-6 and 6-2, got 17 points from Steven Lackey.

Abernathy's girls also won, getting 14 points from Daria McGuire to beat Tulia 61-46. They will play off with Lockney this week for the district title after finishing the loop season 7-1. Tori Thompson scored 12 for the Hornets.

DAWSON ROUTS LOOP
Joel Bennett scored 16 points to lead Dawson to a 62-26 rout of Loop in District 8-B action Tuesday night. Dawson's record is now 15-10 this season and 3-2 in this half of district play. Loop's record is 5-8 and 0-5 in 8-B competition. Robert Ortega led Loop with eight points.

CANYON RIPS LEVELLAND
Bill Gruhkey scored a game-high 20 points to lead Canyon to a 77-66 victory over Levelland Tuesday night. The win gives Canyon a 2-1 district record, while Levelland drops to 1-2. Jerry Brasong was the high scorer for Levelland.

In the girls' game, Teresa Stone scored 16 points to lead Canyon to a 76-40 rout of Levelland. Karen Kinnison of winless Levelland was the game's high scorer with 18 points. Canyon is unbeaten in district play with a 5-0 record and is 19-12 this season.

LUBBOCK CHRISTIAN BURIES SPADE
Shawn Williams scored 18 points to lead Lubbock Christian to a 69-49 rout of District 6-B champion Spade in a non-league game Tuesday night.

Bill Reed led Spade, whose record is 27-4, with 25 points.

TAHOKA TANKS SLATON
Kenny Scott scored a game-high 24 points to lead Tahoka to a 62-46 victory over Slaton Tuesday night. The win keeps Tahoka in a tie for the District 5-AA leadership with Frenship and Denver City. Slaton's Charles Phenix scored 15 and Tahoka's Charles Bryson added 14 points for the winners. Tahoka is now 20-6 this season and 5-1 in district. Slaton is 3-4 in 5-AA competition.

In the girls' game, Slaton kept its perfect district record alive with a 87-31 rout of Tahoka. Ruth Maxwell led Slaton with 19 points, while Lyma Payne led Tahoka with 12. Slaton now has a 25-2 season record and is 12-0 in district play. Tahoka is winless in 5-AA competition and is 3-23 this season.

MOTLEY COUNTY SWEEPS GUTHRIE
Harvey Lee scored 16 points to lead Motley County to a 96-39 rout of Guthrie in District 12-B action Tuesday night. Motley County is still unbeaten in district play and has a 19-1 season record, while Guthrie is 1-7. John Hinojoso led Guthrie with 16 points.

In the girls' game, Pamela Pitts scored 18 points to lead Motley County to a 74-53 win over Guthrie to keep its perfect district mark alive. Motley County is now 21-1 this season and 8-0 in district play. The victory clinches the district title for Motley County Guthrie, which now has a 23-5 season and 6-2 district record, was led by Melanie Keith's 31 points.

SUDAN RIPS AMHERST
Lisa Wood scored a game-high 28 points to lead Sudan to a 81-50 rout of Amherst Tuesday night. The Sudan girls are now 26-2 this season and 7-1 in district, while Amherst drops to 6-16 and 2-2 in this half of district action. Sandra Ruddle led Amherst with 12 points.

In the boys' game, Ronald Johnson scored 23 points to lead Amherst to a 62-57 win over Sudan. Odell Johnson led Sudan with 16 points. Amherst is now 13-9 this season and 2-2 in district, while Sudan falls to 0-4 in district competition. Kevin Williams also scored 16 points for the losers.

THREE WAY GIRLS WIN DISTRICT
Renee Cooley scored 21 points and the Sundown girls wrapped up the District 6-B title with a 40-34 win over Sundown Tuesday night. The Three Way girls finish loop play with a 5-1 slate. Robbie Carpenter paced the 3-3 SHS squad with 12 tallies.

The Sundown boys came back behind Kevin Spray's 18-point performance to defeat Three Way 84-51 and go 6-0 in district play. Keith Layton tallied 15 for the 2-4 losers.

RALLS WINS TUNEUP
The Ralls and Meadow girls' teams, both headed for playoff action, met Tuesday night in Ralls for a non-district tuneup contest and the Lady Jackrabbits came out on top 56-44. Carla McQueen and Tracy Wyle paced Ralls with 15 points each while Meadow's Trish Terry led all scorers with 17. Meadow is now 19-10 on the year. Ralls is 20-9.

SANDS WINS 9-B TITLE
Sands wrapped up its District 9-B championship season with an 80-60 romp over Wellman Tuesday night. Sands is now 24-2 on the year. David Long and B. Wigginton each tallied 12 points to lead Sands. Wellman was paced by Bill Tankersly with 27 points and finished the year with a 13-10 slate.

LUBBOCK CHRISTIAN BURIES SPADE
Shawn Williams scored 18 points to lead Lubbock Christian to a 69-49 rout of District 6-B champion Spade in a non-league game Tuesday night.

FRENSHIP STAYS ON TOP
Lance Phillips led Frenship to a 55-48 defeat of Cooper Tuesday night by scoring 18 points. The win kept Frenship in a three-way tie for the District 5-AA lead with Denver City and Tahoka as each has lost only one game in the second half of district play. Frenship is now 17-9 this season and 6-1 this half of district play. Andy Sparkman of Cooper led all scorers with 21 points.

STANTON CLAIMS TITLE
The Stanton boys rolled to an awesome 108-49 victory over Anton Tuesday night and claimed the second-half title in District 5-A with a 7-0 record. David McReynolds led Stanton with 27 points and Lonnie Dutton recorded 20 for the 0-7 Anton squad.

In the girls' game, Marcie Young scored 26 points to lead Stanton to a 65-53 win. Kay Taylor scored 24 for the Anton girls, who wound up with a 2-5 league mark. Stanton finished 4-3 in district and 8-18 on the year.

COOPER SLIPS BY FRENSHIP
Shara Frenenburg scored a game-high 20 points to lead Cooper to a narrow 49-45 victory over Frenship Tuesday night. The game was the season finale for both teams. Cooper's record is 20-9 and 10-4 in District 5-AA competition, while Frenship falls to 6-23 and 2-12 in league play.

FORSAN GIRLS WIN
Kristy Adams fired in 20 points to lead the Forsan girls to a 60-39 win over Whiteface in a District 5-A season finale Tuesday night. Forsan wound up the second half of district with a 6-1 slate while WFHS finished 5-2 — 21-7 on the year.

In the boys' tilt, Randy Richardson pumped in 20 points to lead the Whiteface men to a 58-34 win and a 5-2 second half District 5-A slate (18-9 on the year). Weldon Nichols paced Forsan with 10 points.

LOCKNEY STAYS ON TOP
Rebecca Evans scored a game-high 19 points to lead the Lockney girls to a 58-39 victory over Idalou in District 4-AA action Tuesday night. The win gives Lockney the second half championship and means it will have to play Abernathy, the first half winner, for the overall championship. Lockney has a 4-0 record this half, while Idalou's season record falls to 10-17. Idalou was led by Cindy Beeton's nine points.

In the boys' game, Dennis Green scored 34 points to give Idalou a 74-65 win over Lockney. David Evans led Lockney with 19 points. Idalou's record is now 11-13 for the year and even at 2-2 in district. Lockney is now 8-17 this season and 1-3 in this half of district play.

BORGER KNOCKS ESTACADO OUT OF DISTRICT RACE
BORGER (Special) — Brett Smith scored 33 points as Borger defeated Estacado 84-74 Tuesday night, all but eliminating the Matadors from the District 1-AAA basketball race.

Borger, which has not lost a loop game in the second half, climbs to a 26-3 season mark. Estacado, now 1-2 in district, falls to 18-11.

Since the Bulldogs tied with the Matadors for the first-half title, should they win the loop in the second half, they would advance to the playoffs automatically.

The game was won at the free throw line. Estacado made 12 charity shots while Borger hit 32. The Matadors, on the other hand, made five more field goals than the Bulldogs, but were whistled for 14 more fouls.

TAHOKA TANKS SLATON
Kenny Scott scored a game-high 24 points to lead Tahoka to a 62-46 victory over Slaton Tuesday night. The win keeps Tahoka in a tie for the District 5-AA leadership with Frenship and Denver City. Slaton's Charles Phenix scored 15 and Tahoka's Charles Bryson added 14 points for the winners. Tahoka is now 20-6 this season and 5-1 in district. Slaton is 3-4 in 5-AA competition.

In the girls' game, Slaton kept its perfect district record alive with a 87-31 rout of Tahoka. Ruth Maxwell led Slaton with 19 points, while Lyma Payne led Tahoka with 12. Slaton now has a 25-2 season record and is 12-0 in district play. Tahoka is winless in 5-AA competition and is 3-23 this season.

MOTLEY COUNTY SWEEPS GUTHRIE
Harvey Lee scored 16 points to lead Motley County to a 96-39 rout of Guthrie in District 12-B action Tuesday night. Motley County is still unbeaten in district play and has a 19-1 season record, while Guthrie is 1-7. John Hinojoso led Guthrie with 16 points.

In the girls' game, Pamela Pitts scored 18 points to lead Motley County to a 74-53 win over Guthrie to keep its perfect district mark alive. Motley County is now 21-1 this season and 8-0 in district play. The victory clinches the district title for Motley County Guthrie, which now has a 23-5 season and 6-2 district record, was led by Melanie Keith's 31 points.

STANTON CLAIMS TITLE
The Stanton boys rolled to an awesome 108-49 victory over Anton Tuesday night and claimed the second-half title in District 5-A with a 7-0 record. David McReynolds led Stanton with 27 points and Lonnie Dutton recorded 20 for the 0-7 Anton squad.

In the girls' game, Marcie Young scored 26 points to lead Stanton to a 65-53 win. Kay Taylor scored 24 for the Anton girls, who wound up with a 2-5 league mark. Stanton finished 4-3 in district and 8-18 on the year.

LAMESA, CUBS SPLIT
The Lamesa Golden Tors recorded victory No. 19 Tuesday night with a 57-43 romp over Brownfield. Phil Lucio led the winners with 18, while Tommy Fisher had 12 for the Cubs. BHS finished 12-14 on the year and 3-4 in district, while Lamesa is 6-1 in loop play.

In the girls' tilt, the Cubbies took a 44-7 decision from Lamesa behind the 14-point performance of Angela Russell. LaDonna Douglas paced the losers with 10.

ROPES GIRLS WIN DISTRICT
Regina Mellon fired in 26 points as the Ropes girls won the second half District 5-A title with a 70-47 win over Seagraves. The Ropes girls wind up 7-0 in district. Seagraves is 2-4. Teresa Middleton led the losers with 14.

Scotty Middleton led the Seagraves boys to a 36-32 win as he bucketed 14 points. SHS is 5-1 in second-half play. Marc Moore tallied 18 for Ropes.

Sports In Brief

Tech Tennis Rescheduled

The men's Red Raider tennis team hopes its 1980 season opener Wednesday will be more successful than the one attempted last week.

Freezing temperatures postponed last week's match against Angelo State, but the two teams will try once again today at 2 p.m. on the Tech courts.

Coach Mark Hamilton said he will probably play Zahid Maniya in the No. 1 position. Chow Wah at No. 2; Jose Rivera at No. 3; Jeff Bramlett at No. 4; Mark Thompson at No. 5 and Gregg Davis in the No. 5 singles positions.

The match will be an excellent warmup for this weekend's West Texas State Indoor Invitational tournament in Canyon. The tourney will be held Friday and Saturday.

West Texas State is expected to be Tech's toughest competition. The Buffaloes defeated the Red Raiders in the New Mexico Military Institute Invitational Tournament and dominated action in the Texas Tech Invitational last fall.

The tournament will be played in the round-robin format, with total matches won determining the tournament's winning team. The Red Raiders will play Southern Oklahoma at 1 p.m. and New Mexico at 6 p.m. Friday. Saturday, Tech will play Oklahoma City at 8 a.m. and take on West Texas State at 6 p.m.

Miami High Seeks Coaches

Miami High School needs two persons to fill the positions of boys' and girls' basketball coaches for next season.

All interested persons should contact Bill Daugherty at P.O. Box 368, Miami, TX 79069, or by phone at (806) 868-3981.

Future Games Needed

New Home's boys and girls basketball teams need to play in a tournament December 11, 12 and 13. They prefer Class AA, A or B.

The teams are also looking for games Jan. 6 or 8, 1981.

All interested opponents should contact coach Mike Banks at (806) 924-7543. Floydada's boys' and girls' varsity basketball teams also are looking for games to be played Dec. 12 and 16 next season.

Interested coaches and athletic directors should contact Mike Cocanough at (806) 983-2340.

Sundown High School is looking for two boys' and girls' basketball teams, Class A or B, to play in its tournament Dec. 18, 19 and 20 next season.

All interested coaches should contact Mike Motheral or Ada Thfeaster at (806) 229-5151.

Texas Death Match Set

Tonight's main event of Lubbock Wrestling in Fair Park Coliseum will be a Texas Death Match between Dory Funk Jr. and Killer Brooks.

The rules for the match are as follows: falls do not count; the match will not be stopped for any reason; no time limit; no disqualification; no count outside the ring and the winner is the man who can answer the last bell.

The match will begin at 8 p.m. and will be followed by a Western States Tag Team Championship bout.

Siva Ali and Ricky Romero will challenge champions Gary Young and Gino Caruso.

The tag team championship match will be followed by single matches between Larry Lane against James Dillen and Karry von Erich against Bob Morgan.

Go-Kart Meeting, Races Planned

The Lubbock Karting Association, Inc. will hold its monthly meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Southwestern Public Service Reddy Room in Monterey Center on 50th Street.

The association is planning to build an asphalt road-type track in Lubbock. All interested persons should attend the meeting Thursday and be prepared to help.

The association also will sponsor go-kart racing this Sunday at Lubbock Speedway. Time trials will begin at 1 p.m. and races begin at 2 p.m.

A technical inspection will be made on all karts during the time trials. Number panels must be readable and be placed on the left and front of the kart. Admission will be $2.00 for adults and 50 cents for children. Kart entry fee will be $5.00.

The Lubbock Speedway is located three miles south of Lubbock on the FM 1585 exit off U.S. highway 87.

Sanders Shines Despite Losses

What do you say about a team that's just lost two games by a total of 33 points to a couple of lower division squads?

Not much, right. Well, how do you go about picking a player of the week for the Texas Tech Red Raiders, who managed to accomplish the above-mentioned feat?

During Tech's two-game road trip to Houston and Waco, the Raiders connected on only 46 of 101 field goal efforts, hit 25 of 34 free throws and were out-rebounded by Rice and Baylor nearly two-to-one. The opposition also outscored Tech 50-25 at the free throw line during the two losses, so that explains part of the Raiders scoring deficiency.

The rest isn't real easy to understand. But there were a few bright spots for the Raiders. Senior Thad Sanders came off the bench and in 40 minutes of playing time hit eight of 12 field goal efforts, grabbed three rebounds, had three steals and handed out an assist.

Sanders lead the Raiders in field goal shooting with a 59.4 accuracy rate (57 of 96). And in conference play he's hit a sizzling 62.2 percent of his shots (28 of 45).

For his work, Sanders has been named The Avalanche-Journal player of the week. It is the second time this year that Sanders, a non-starter, has been named the Raiders outstanding player.

Tech coach Gerald Myers agreed that Sanders probably played better than anyone during the road trip.

"Thad has been playing well enough to deserve some playing time," Myers said in his Monday press conference. "I don't know about making any changes just yet though. But Thad will get in there a lot."

Center Ralph Brewster enjoyed a good game against the Rice Owls when he scored 19 points and pulled down 10 rebounds but Brewster saw only limited action against Baylor.

And guard Jeff Taylor, after a poor outing against the Owls, did not miss a shot against the Bears and appeared on the way to a big night before fouling out. Taylor hit six of six field goal efforts and added a free throw for 13 points in Waco but fouled out in only 17 minutes.

University Dodge Sales Announces:A New Dealer ...A New Chrysler Corp. Doing business like Detroit never did it before!

A NEW DAY FOR US! A NEW DAY FOR DODGE!

There's a lot that's new around here! Not only do we have a new dealer, we also feel we have the newest cars and trucks around. So come on over, say hello and let us open your eyes to a whole new world of Dodge Cars and Trucks. It's the policy of our courteous salespeople to really deal on the 1980 Total Performance Dodge Cars and Ram Tough Trucks. See us soon and help us start our New Day right. It could open your eyes to just how much "new" we have to offer!

Joel R. Chambers, President, University Dodge

The New Chrysler Guarantees.

What's new about The New Chrysler Corporation is a new way of doing business. A way of doing business that commits The New Chrysler Corporation to the American car buyer long after the new car smell is gone. A way of doing business that says we will back our cars better. A way of doing business that says we will service them better. A way of doing business that will even take care of you if you run into trouble on the road. A way of doing business that doesn't insist you buy on faith, but encourages you to compare. A way of doing business — that will change the business.

The Chrysler Guarantees.
Starting January 31, The New Chrysler Corporation gives the American car buyer guarantees no other car company has ever given.
A 30-day/1000 mile money-back guarantee. Guaranteed no-cost scheduled maintenance. Guaranteed no-cost motor club benefits with emergency road service. And a $50 test drive offer just to prove our confidence.
These commitments from The New Chrysler Corporation cover most new 1980 vehicles. But for your personal use only. No doubt you will have many questions. We urge you to see your participating Dodge or Chrysler-Phymouth dealer.
1. The first 30-day/1000 mile money-back guarantee.
Only The New Chrysler Corporation has the confidence to back its cars with a money-back guarantee.
Buy one of our new 1980 passenger cars. Drive it up to 30 days or 1000 miles, whichever comes first.

If you're not completely satisfied, you'll get your money back. But not the finance and insurance charges you have accrued. All you do is bring your car back to your dealer in good condition. When he receives clear title, he returns your money. Nobody else does that. Not Ford. Not GM. Not the Imports. Only The New Chrysler Corporation.
2. The first guarantee of no-cost scheduled maintenance.
You want better service. You want your investment protected. You'll get it from The New Chrysler Corporation. When you buy or lease a new 1980 car or truck. You'll receive oil changes, oil filters and other scheduled maintenance specified for each vehicle. For 2 years or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first. For 1 year or 12,000 miles on our imports. No charge. Nobody else does that. Not Ford. Not GM. Not the Imports. Only The New Chrysler Corporation.
3. The first guarantee of no-cost motor club benefits with emergency road service.
We all drive. We all worry about emergencies on the road. The New Chrysler Corporation provides a two year membership in the Amoco Motor Club when you buy or lease a new 1980 car or truck. Benefits include emergency road service, emergency towing, car theft reward. And a lot more. At no cost to you — subject to the conditions of membership.
Nobody else does that. Not Ford. Not GM. Not the Imports. Only The New Chrysler Corporation.

And a $50 test drive offer to prove our confidence in Chrysler engineering.
The New Chrysler Corporation has improved the quality of its products by 32 percent in just the last year. That's what gives us the confidence to pay you to compare.
Test drive any of our new 1980 cars or trucks. Buy one of ours. Or buy any qualifying new car or truck from one of our competitors within thirty days. Then return the test-drive certificate with proof of purchase. And the fifty dollars is yours. Nobody else does that. Not Ford. Not GM. Not the Imports. Only The New Chrysler Corporation.
The New Chrysler Corporation must make it in the marketplace.
The New Chrysler Corporation is in business to stay.
The New Chrysler Corporation has made a 13.5 billion dollar commitment to build more and more fuel efficient cars for an energy-short America.
The New Chrysler Corporation has made a commitment to build better cars. To back them better. To service them better.
The New Chrysler Corporation is doing business like Detroit never did it before.
And the automobile business will never be the same.

Oregon Football Coach Cleared, Official Says

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — University of Oregon President William Boyd said Monday night that a three-month investigation has turned up no evidence that head football coach Rich Brooks was involved in a bogus credits scandal at the school.
"We have conducted as thorough an investigation as I know how," Boyd said.

"Basically, all the facts are in now, and I think it's significant here that at the end of all that time, I still find Rich Brooks an honorable coach."
The university president's remarks came after he had confirmed that a second former Oregon football player had been registered at Los Angeles Valley College in the summer of 1977.

MHS Girls Beat Coronado

Kelli Crow and Janet Mears each fired in 20 points as the Monterey girls coasted to a 102-62 whipping over Coronado in the final game of the District 4-AAAA girls cage season.
The Monterey girls wind up the season 27-2 and 8-0 in district play and are now headed for a bi-district contest.

Patty McFarin paced Coronado with 23 points. Monterey led 50-31 at the intermission and erased any doubts in the third quarter when they allowed the Coronado gals only seven points — pulling ahead 74-38.

Hereford Girls Annihilate LHS

Lori Albrocht scored 17 points to lead a Hereford attack that featured three double-figure scorers in a 63-23 rout of the Lubbock High girls Tuesday night.
Shelly Knight led Lubbock High with six points.
The Lady Plainsmen took a commanding 18-2 lead in the first quarter, and continually increased the lead in each succeeding period.
The win gives Hereford a 16-11 season record and evens its District 4-AAAA record at 4-4.

FCA MEETS THURSDAY
The adult chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes will hold its monthly breakfast meeting Thursday at 7 a.m. at Furr's Town and Country. The program will consist of chapter members sharing their experiences of last month's FCA state convention in Dallas.

Killanin Rebuffs Carter's Call To Move Games

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The International Olympic Committee announced Tuesday the Olympic Games will go on in Moscow as planned, thus rejecting President Carter's call that they be moved or cancelled because of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

The committee also urged that members of the Olympic organizing committee in Moscow inform the "highest authorities of their government of the circumstances which have created these difficulties for so many (National Olympic Committees).

Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, said that all 73 members attending the IOC general session before the Winter Olympics had voted to keep the Summer Games in Moscow. According to the U.S. State Department, more than 30 governments — as opposed to Olympic committees — have called for movement, postponement or cancellation of the Games.

Killanin said the IOC recognized the difficulties the United States Olympic Committee faced but urged it to "continue its efforts to make possible the participation of its athletes in the Games."

The U.S. committee had presented the IOC with Carter's demands.

The IOC had been deliberating for three days, although there was little doubt that the members would abide by their agreement with the Moscow Organizing Committee.

The IOC is fully aware of, and sensitive to, the world conditions which have created the most serious challenge to confront the Olympic Games," Killanin said in a news conference Tuesday night. He concluded:

"The IOC cannot solve the political problems of the world, but calls upon the governments of all countries, and in particular those of the major powers, to come together to resolve their differences, and I, as president of the IOC, and all members, will do everything in our power to assist in this so that the Games of the XXII Olympiad can take place in the right atmosphere."

Killanin noted that all 142 recognized national Olympic committees are bound by Olympic rules and they alone, and not their governments, can accept or refuse invitations to the Olympic Games.

Carter has said he will ask the USOC not to send a team to Moscow if the Russians do not pull their troops out of Afghanistan by next Wednesday.

Neither a presentation by Robert Kane, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, nor a forceful political speech by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance at the opening of the session last Saturday night appeared to have much effect on IOC members.

But while resenting government interference in the Olympic Games many members were worried about events in Afghanistan and the possible effect on the Games which are due to start in Moscow next July 19.

The IOC appeared unanimous in its resolve to go on with the Games, but spent a lot of time preparing the wording of the announcement.

Killanin set up a three-man commission to draft a declaration. The commission included Willi Daume, veteran IOC member in West Germany, James Worrall of Canada, Reginald Alexander of Kenya.

The West German government has leaned towards supporting Carter in his call for a boycott of the Games if Soviet troops are not withdrawn. Diplomatic observers see West Germany as the key to European policy as other governments waver on the boycott issue.

Daume, chairman of the organizing committee of the Olympic Games in Munich in 1972, is a highly respected figure in Germany. Before coming to Lake Placid he had several talks with the Soviet ambassador in Bonn.

The Canadian government has backed Carter but faces a general election next Monday. Worrall, a Toronto lawyer, is an old Olympic athlete and carried the Canadian flag at the 1936 Games in Berlin.

The commission submitted a draft to Killanin Tuesday morning and he worked on refining it before putting it before the full IOC later in the day.

IOC sources said the two Russian members, Vitaly Smirnov and Constantin Andrianov, said nothing during the debate. Smirnov, a vice president, received news that his 44-year-old brother had been killed in an accident and prepared to return to Moscow Wednesday.

Confusing statements reached the IOC on how long the USOC will have to decide whether to send athletes to Moscow or stay away.

Kane told a news conference the Feb. 20 deadline set by Carter for the withdrawal of troops was intended for the Soviet government, not the USOC. He said the USOC will not need to make a final decision until May 24, the date when entries for the Games have to be sent to Moscow.

U.S. Battles Sweden To 2-2 Tie In Hockey

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Defenseman Bill Baker netted a 55-foot slap shot with just 27 seconds remaining Tuesday to give the United States a 2-2 comeback tie with Sweden in the Olympic opener for each team.

Thomas Eriksson's goal at 4:45 of the third period had given Sweden a 2-1 lead. But with the clock winding down, goalie Jim Craig out of the U.S. net and the crowd screaming wildly, Baker took a pass from Buzz Schneider and powered his blast past goalie Pelle Lindbergh to salvage the tie.

The tally sent the crowd into a frenzy and the U.S. bench emptied to tackle the last-minute hero.

Sture Andersson had given Sweden a 1-0 lead at 11:04 of the first period, and Dave Silk answered for the U.S. with 28 seconds left in the second period before a small but emotional crowd that waved American flags and half-filled the rink at the Olympic Center.

The Americans threw shot after shot at Lindbergh, but the 20-year-old net-minder held them at bay. Then, at 4:45 of the third period, Eriksson — alone in front of the net — nudged a Harald Luckner pass between Craig's legs.

The Americans played virtually the entire game with just four defensemen — Baker, Ken Morrow, Mike Ramsey and David Christian — giving only spot duty to Bob Suter, who was filling in for the injured Jack O'Callahan. The tactic backfired, however, when Suter, just 20 seconds into his first shift, failed to tie up Andersson in front of the net.

The American squad, known for its comebacks, rallied in the second period — being thwarted on a number of excellent scoring opportunities by Lindbergh before Silk scored.

Lindbergh, a second-round draft choice by the National Hockey League Philadelphia Flyers last August, was dazzling in the period, especially in stopping Buzz Schneider's breakthrough rebound and a followup with 8:13 left in the period.

The goalie, who wears Flyers crests on his practice masks and Bernie Parent-model sticks named after the great Philadelphia net-minder, faced 29 shots.

He stopped them all until finally, center Mark Johnson and Silk broke in alone. Silk, after nearly colliding with Johnson, picked up the puck and lifted a 19-foot shot over the net-minder's left shoulder.

Meanwhile on this, the first day of competition at the 1980 Winter Games, Romania stunned West Germany 6-4 and Czechoslovakia blanked Norway 11-0 in other Blue Division matches while Canada blasted Holland 10-1 in a Red Division clash.

Olympic Transportation Stalls

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — With the intricate transportation system an admitted flop, organizers of the XIII Winter Olympics scrambled Tuesday to get desperately needed buses into town and running.

On the first day of Olympic competition, hundreds of spectators and others faced waits of 1½ hours or more for buses that are supposed to be running every 15 minutes.

On Monday, there were similar long delays for the buses on which thousands of people are dependent for their transportation to and from this cramped village. But the delays then mainly affected the thousands of reporters in the area to cover the Games and some residents.

"It was a flop," declared Ed Lewi, spokesman for the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee, about the transportation system's performance on Tuesday.

Olympic organizers claimed they had 243 of the 300 buses they needed in town on Tuesday. But judging from the frequency of buses winding their way around town, there seemed to be far fewer actually running.

And organizers admitted privately they were still working out such vital details as the actual assignment of bus drivers to buses and the dispatching of buses.

Local volunteers were to be assigned to buses to help drivers find their way around.

The breakdowns in the transportation system stem from a labor dispute over the use of Canadian drivers on buses supplied by Canadian firms. The dispute was reportedly finally ironed out early Tuesday. About 40 Canadian drivers are being given work permits to drive the buses, Lewi said.

An elaborate bus system was set up because this little village, with only one traffic light and narrow streets, could never have coped with tens of thousands of cars jamming its streets.

In tandem with the bus system, extremely tight restrictions were imposed on the use of cars. Only a small proportion — about 1,800 — of the 21,000 journalists, Olympics officials and support personnel in town have special permits allowing them to drive a car around.

Spectators who drive to the Games have to leave their cars in parking lots 16 miles or more from the Olympic sites, and then hop a bus into town.

As a result of all these restrictions, the logistics of the Winter Games is extremely dependent on the smooth functioning of the bus system.

After the system broke down on Monday, virtually stranding hundreds of foreign and domestic journalists who are housed outside Lake Placid, the LPOOC and the International Olympic Committee were flooded with complaints.

In the face of those complaints, Lewi promised to travel some of the bus routes early Tuesday to assess the situation.

At a motel about 10 miles from here, Lewi and a group of Yugoslavian journalists ended up waiting nearly 2½ hours for a bus that never came. Finally, Lewi's wife Maureen drove some of the reporters into town. And taxis were dispatched to pick up the rest.

New York High Court Hears Taiwan Appeal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — As the XIII Winter Games began in Lake Placid Tuesday, New York's highest court took up a case which could determine whether a team from China would participate in its first Olympics.

Under dispute at the Court of Appeals was an International Olympic Committee rule requiring that the team from Taiwan not compete under the flag and anthem of the Republic of China.

The Taiwan athletes have said they will walk out rather than participate under some other flag. The mainland Chinese, in turn, have missed every Olympics since the 1949 Communist revolution because they have refused to compete with some other team claiming to represent China.

A middle-level appeals court on Monday had overturned a lower-court ruling in favor of Taiwan and against the IOC rule.

While the issue made its way past the judges, athletes from China and Taiwan were waiting at Lake Placid — the Chinese training at the official Olympic village and the official Olympic sites, the Taiwanese staying in a motel and exercising in the parking lot.

The first events for both teams were not scheduled until Wednesday, also the day of the official opening ceremonies in which each side hoped to carry its flag.

The case is the latest twist in the 31-year dispute between the governments on the Chinese mainland and on Taiwan, over which one represents the true China. Both have used the Olympics as one more forum for that fight, and since 1949 only teams from Taiwan have represented China in the Games.

But the Taiwan delegation was denied admission to Canada for the 1976 Summer Olympics at Montreal, and this fall the IOC adopted new rules dropping its longstanding willingness to allow Taiwan to compete as the Republic of China.

Razorbacks Nip Aggies, Tie A&M For SWC Lead

By The Associated Press
U.S. Reed hit a free throw with four seconds remaining to tie the game, then nailed another after time had expired to give Arkansas a 45-44 victory over Texas A&M on Tuesday.

The Razorbacks gained a share of the Southwest Conference lead with the victory. The Razorbacks and Aggies are locked in a first-place tie with 11-2 league records. Arkansas is 18-5 overall, while the Aggies fell to 19-7.

The Aggies led 44-43 with 19 seconds to go, and Arkansas fouled. Rynn Wright had a chance to increase the margin to three, but he missed and Arkansas went to Reed.

Reed handled the ball on the perimeter and whittled the clock to four seconds before he penetrated the lane and took what was to be the final shot. Rudy Woods fouled Reed as he went up, sending the Razorback junior to the foul line.

With four seconds left, Reed missed his first shot, but tied the score with his second. Then, Reed got a chance for a game-saving free throw when he was fouled by Dave Goff.

Reed led Arkansas with 14 points. Wright scored 14 for A&M.

Texas 99, Baylor 61

Ron Baxter and LaSalle Thompson combined for 49 points and George Turner put on a spectacular display of basketball in the closing minutes Tuesday night as Texas held on to third place in the Southwest Conference with a 99-61 thrashing of Baylor.

It was an amazing turnaround for Texas, which lost by 14 points to Baylor on the Bears' home court.

Baxter, a 6-4 senior, threw in 30 points and Thompson, a 6-10 freshman, had 19 — all in the first half before sitting down with four fouls with 11:38 left in the game. Thompson also had 10 first-half rebounds.

Terry Teagle, the 6-5 Baylor sophomore who leads all SWC scorers with a season average of 22.4 points, was held scoreless for almost 13 minutes in one stretch of the first half as Texas took a comfortable 46-27 lead at intermission.

Teagle, often surrounded by three and four Texas players, moved inside in the second half and finished with a team-high of 17 points.

Texas was so anxious to avenge its earlier loss at Waco that the Longhorns fouled with six seconds remaining in an attempt to reach 100 points.

Turner, a 6-1 freshman who was also recruited by Baylor, replaced another freshman, Fred Carson, and had the predominantly pro-Texas crowd on its feet roaring in the final minutes.

In a short span, Turner hit a slam dunk, scored on a reverse dunk on a rebound, fed Baxter for a driving layup and hit a 25-foot swisher. The noise got louder with each move by Turner.

Henry Johnson, who missed the first Baylor game, pitched in 14 for Texas and Turner had 12.

The victory raised Texas' record in the SWC to 8-5, and the Longhorns will meet co-leader Texas A&M in College Station Saturday. The loss dropped Baylor to 1-10.

lor to 5-9 in conference play.

SMU 82, Rice 81

Freshman guard Dave Piehler converted a three-point play with nine seconds left in overtime Tuesday night and Southern Methodist kept its home-court advantage alive in the Southwest Conference playoffs with an 82-81 victory over the fast-improving Rice Owls.

Piehler, of Newton, Kan., drove by Rice's Robert Shaw for a layup and was fouled as the Mustangs conserved the clock with the game tied 79-79. Piehler then made the free throw, which offset Shaw's layup with two seconds to play.

The Mustangs, now 6-8 in SWC play and 14-10 for the season, blew a 43-38 halftime lead thanks to the heroics of Rice sophomore Ricky Pierce.

Pierce, who had a game-high 30 points, scored on a 25-foot jump shot with 10 seconds to play to send the game into overtime at 74-74.

The loss for the Owls was their ninth against three conference victories and their 16th for the year against six victories.

SMU jumped to a 78-74 lead in overtime, but Rice tied the game with 21 seconds to play on two free throws by reserve guard Anthony DeCello.

The Mustangs were led by Piehler, who had 21 points, and Brad Branson, who added 18. The victory moved SMU into a solid sixth place in the SWC standings ahead of Baylor, which lost to Texas.

The sixth position is vital because it gives the school a home court advantage in the first round of the SWC playoffs Feb. 25.

Houston 87, TCU 59

Cousins Kenneth "Juice" Williams and Rob Williams combined for 39 points as the Houston Cougars defeated Texas Christian 87-59 Tuesday night and moved into a fourth-place tie in the Southwest Conference basketball race.

Juice, a four-year starter, hit 20 points and Rob, a freshman, added 19 as Houston raised its league record to 7-6, even with Texas Tech, which was idle. TCU fell to 2-12.

Larry Rogers added 10 for Houston. Deckery Johnson paced the Horned Frogs with 13. He was TCU's only player in double figures.

The Cougars jumped out to a 39-25 halftime lead on their outside shooting and cruised in for the victory. They outshot TCU 39-21 from the field.

Houston and Tech are a game behind Texas in the fight for third place, which gets a bye into the post-season SWC tour-namment. Teams finishing fourth, fifth and sixth will host first-round playoff games against the teams finishing ninth, eighth and seventh respectively.

Westerners Fall To Hereford

Joe Walker pumped in 19 points to lead Hereford to a 56-47 win over Lubbock High Tuesday night in the LHS gym.

The win upped Hereford's District 4-AAAAA mark to 2-1, while Lubbock fell to 0-3.

"It was a five point game for most of the night," said LHS head man Craig Wells. "But they (Hereford) played better than we did at the end and that was the difference."

The Westerners were led by Raul Romero and Oscar Lopez whom popped in 13 and 12 points respectively. They were the only Westerners in double figures.

Dunbar Girls Lose To Dumas

The Dumas girls, ranked fourth in the state, beat up on Dunbar 72-33 Tuesday night to finish second in the District 1-AAA second-half race.

Dumas, which lost to Canyon in the second round, will play the Eagles (which beat Levelland) in a playoff for the district championship.

Leading the Demon girls was Trisha Fortenberry, who scored 20 points. Sherri Hagler put in another 16 and Michelle Clements added another 13 as Dumas increased its overall record to 25-2.

Leading Dunbar, now 12-15 and 2-3, was Dorcas Perkins with 12. Cynthia Hardaway scored 10 and was the only other Panther to break double figures.

Dunbar raced to a 12-10 lead at the end of the first period but saw it disappear in a hurry as the Demons led 29-19 at halftime and 54-26 at the end of three.

OGLESBY TO OFFICIATE AT MEET

LAREDO (AP) — Gerald "Corky" Oglesby, track and field coach at Texas Tech, has been named referee of the 48th Border Olympics scheduled for Feb. 29-March 1 in Laredo. The meet is the first major outdoor meet of the year in the United States. Competition is scheduled in high school, junior college, college and university divisions.

LHS Girls Take Soccer Title

The Lubbock High girls soccer team clinched the city championship Tuesday with a 5-0 tie of Monterey.

The season-ending tie gives the Lubbock team a 5-1-2 record. City rivals Coronado and Monterey play each other Thursday, but their records do not compare to that of the Westerners. Coronado is 2-2-3 and Monterey is 0-4-3.

Melissa Marshall booted four goals into the Monterey net and teammate Dorothy Ellis had one to account for the Westerners' scoring. Monterey's Karen Flewharty and Michelle Anderson scored two goals apiece and Shannon Schuetzberg scored one for the Plainsmen.

In the boys' game, Lubbock's Stewart Lemm and Michael Johns each scored a goal in the Westerners' 2-1 win over Monterey.

The victory gives Lubbock a final season record of 3-3-2.

Jerry West made 7,160 of his 8,001 free throws during his career with the Los Angeles Lakers.

'Temporary' Answer To Nuclear Wastes Defies Modern Solutions

SEATTLE (AP) — As scientists raced to enter the Atomic Age in the 1940s, they dumped 50 million gallons of boiling radioactive waste into tanks at the Hanford nuclear reservation.

Their "temporary" answer to the waste problem has defied permanent solution to this day, and there are charges and countercharges over leaks from the aging underground tanks.

Through the years, more than a half-million gallons have leaked. A number of reports insist the leaks posed no danger to health and stabilized well above the water table along the Columbia River, which runs through the reservation in the southeast part of Washington State.

"It's a holding operation," said Patricia Durbin of Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory in Berkeley, Calif. "The facilities are old and budgeting has not been adequate. The whole thing has been put on indefinite hold, and they muck about as best they can."

On Tuesday, President Carter offered Congress the nation's first proposal to control disposal of its nuclear garbage. His plan called for spending $700 million to examine salt domes on the South and West as potential radioactive dumps.

Miss Durbin participated in a National Academy of Sciences review of waste management at Hanford. The report, released in 1978, concluded that monitoring of the wastes was "adequate in scope and execution."

The Department of Energy, however, is expected to release a report this month that may call for increased monitoring.

Last month, the DOE Inspector General's office issued a report critical of Rockwell Hanford, the contractor overseeing the wastes. The report questioned the way Rockwell classified tanks suspected of leaking.

Rockwell is the fifth contractor to handle the waste at Hanford since reactors started producing plutonium for atomic weapons during World War II. The reactors have been deactivated.

"The changes on the management (of the wastes) was a concern," said Konrad P. Krauskopf, a professor of geochemistry at Stanford University who chaired the Academy review committee.

Rockwell, like past contractors, reduces liquid waste to a still-radioactive "salt cake," making the waste easier to handle and less likely to leak from the tanks.

About 35 million gallons have been evaporated, but still trapped in the cake is millions of gallons of liquid.

"We're having great difficulty in developing a technique to measure the liquid in the salt cake," said Don Cockram, a Rockwell vice president. "In (reducing the liquid to cake), you lose the ability to detect wall deterioration."

Seven new, double-shelled tanks have replaced some of the original single-shell tanks. But even the new tanks may have to be replaced because the wastes are so corrosive, the Academy report said.

Of the old tanks, many were said to be of "questionable integrity" or confirmed leakers. These tanks hold about 7 million gallons of salt cake and 3.5 million gallons of sludge. Besides the liquid trapped in the sludge and salt cake, they contain an additional 107,000 gallons of liquid.

Rockwell and the DOE maintain surveillance of the tanks is adequate. But dry wells around the tanks, which used to be checked every week, now are examined every other week. The recent DOE Inspector General's report was touched off by accusations from a former Rockwell employee that reducing the frequency of checks was a mistake.

"We looked at all the data over the years and determined the changes that took place (in the wells, indicating leaks) didn't occur very rapidly," Cockram said. "Checking even every other week, we still could have detected the worst leak."

Tom Bauman, a DOE spokesman in Richland, Wash., said the primary goal is to have all remaining liquid in double-shell tanks by 1981 and continue the process of reducing it to salt cake.

DOE officials say a final repository could be completed at Hanford by 1991, at a cost of $1 billion.

"The wastes could probably sit for another 20 years without anyone doing anything," said Miss Durbin. "But someone, sometime is going to have to decide what should be done."

HEARTLINE: I will soon be age 62 and could retire if I want to. Would you suggest that I retire early and take reduced Social Security benefits or should I wait until I am 65 to receive my full benefits? I have a good paying job now and can continue to work, as I am in good health. — D.P.

ANSWER: This is a question that individuals must answer themselves. However, Heartline feels you should consider the following factors in regard to your Social Security benefits:

1. If you start drawing Social Security at 62, you are receiving three additional years of income from Social Security, but this income would be 20 percent less yearly than if you waited until 65 to begin drawing.

2. If you wait until 65 to draw Social Security, you would receive full benefits but the money you lose during the three years you did not draw Social Security will take 12 years of drawing to regain. This is based strictly on income from Social Security.

3. You must decide if a reduced Social Security rate will be sufficient to meet your present and future monetary needs or if the full benefit will be necessary.

We also feel there are many factors not related to Social Security you must consider:

1. The amount of money you would lose by leaving your present job.
2. Your present health condition.
3. Your desire to continue working.
4. The effect early retirement will have on your private pension plan, if you have one.

These are just some of the questions a person must consider before retiring. Since everyone's situation is different, there will probably be additional questions involved for you, and you are the

New York's Pan Am Building For Sale

NEW YORK (AP) — The Pan Am Building, one of New York's landmark skyscrapers, is up for sale, the owner of the 58-story, glass-enclosed tower said Tuesday.

Pan American World Airways said it is exploring the possibility of selling the building, which it owns through a subsidiary.

Company officials were quick to assure New York officials that that Pan Am would remain in the building, located at 45th Street, as renters.

"The criterion in considering the sale is whether it is of greater benefit to our company to put the sale proceeds into other business endeavors rather than only one who can answer them. You must weigh the answers to these questions carefully in your own mind, and then only you can make the decision as when to retire.

This and other information pertinent and necessary for any person retiring on Social Security can be found in our 1980 Heartline's Guide to Social Security. To order, send $2.00 to Heartline's Guide to Social Security, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.

HEARTLINE: Right before Christmas I received an extra VA check. I spent it for Christmas and now I am worried that maybe I should not have gotten the check. Can you tell me whether or not I was supposed to have this check. My daughter told me not to worry, but I am! — A.C.

ANSWER: Stop worrying. About 2.6 million veterans and survivors who receive compensation payments for service-connected disabilities from the Veterans Administration did receive an extra check right before Christmas.

The special payment went out because a 9.9 percent compensation increase was passed by Congress and signed by President Carter in November. The raise was retroactive to October 1, October and November pay was made at the old rates and the extra checks were to make up the added amount due. The regular December payment came at the end of the month.

The legislation raised compensation for a 10 percent disabled veteran from $44 monthly to $48 monthly. The rate for a 50 percent disability went from $232 monthly to $255 and from $889 to $969 for those veterans with 100 percent disability.

Surviving spouses and certain children of persons who died in service or of service connected causes also got increases under the new pay schedule and therefore received that extra make-up check also.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

IF THE NINE-MARKET AVERAGE U. S. spot cotton price for February is 78.45 cents or higher, trigger price provisions allowing the import of as much as 500,000 bales into the United States could take effect.

When the trigger takes effect, eight-month grower extensions to the government loan program are discontinued.

Interest in the trigger provisions of the 1977 farm act has been revived by the recent surge in U. S. spot prices, which averaged 81.50 cents on the base quality for the first six working days of February.

Under current law, the amount of the import quota is to equal a 21-day domestic mill supply and will be opened up for any month in which the average price of strict low middling 1 1/16 (grade 41 staple 34) cotton exceeds 130 percent of such spot market average for the previous 36-month period.

If an import quota is established during the previous 12-month period, the amount of the next quota will be limited to the smaller of 21 days of domestic mill consumption or the amount of cotton required to increase the cotton supply to 130 percent of demand.

PRICE SUPPORT LOANS MATURE 10 MONTHS from the first day of the month when the loan is made but a loan extension of an additional eight months may be requested by a producer during the 10th month of the loan period.

Requests to extend the loan will not be approved, however, in a month when the average spot market price for SLM 1 1/16 in the previous month exceeds 130 percent of the average price for the preceding 36-month period.

The January average price for the base quality was 72.40 cents, which was 120 percent of the preceding 36-month average of 60.34 cents.

Some confusion earlier over interpretation of the trigger price provisions had made it difficult to set the level at which the February spot price would have to advance for the import quota to be instituted.

Different interpretations had placed the level at a low of 78.45 cents and a high of 79 cents.

There had been confusion as to whether the February average spot price was to be included in calculations for the average of "the previous 36 months."

Confusion also had arisen as to how far over 130 percent the average spot price had to be to exceed the trigger level. One interpretation held that any fraction over 130 percent would be sufficient, but another held that a number that could be rounded off to 131 percent was needed.

LAWYERS ASKED TO INTERPRET THE WORDING of the bill now have said "the previous 36 months" means January and the preceding 35 months, according to Charles Cunningham, chief of program analysis for the production adjustment division of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Under that interpretation, the trigger price for February is 78.44 cents. If February prices had to be included in the computations, the trigger level would have been 78.69 cents.

Cunningham said the lawyers also interpreted "exceeding 130 percent" to include even the slightest fraction and not to require rounding to 131 percent. However, they asked Cunningham to see how the wording of other government programs was interpreted before they make a final decision.

It now appears, Cunningham said, that "exceeding 130 percent" would be interpreted as by even the slightest fraction.

Under that interpretation, and including January and the preceding 35 months in the price computations, trigger price provisions would take effect when the average spot price for February reached 78.45 cents, thus exceeding the trigger level of 78.44 cents.

If the average spot price in February does exceed the trigger price, Cunningham said, the USDA would begin paperwork on the imports and loan extensions on March 1.

THE MATTER COULD BE ACADEMIC from the standpoint of actual, physical cotton imports, many trade sources agree.

Although imports would be allowed, trade sources pointed out, U. S. cotton still probably would be the lowest priced in the world. And there would be the practical question of availability: where would imports come from in significant volume?

One reason foreign buyers have focused so much attention on U. S. cotton, some sources say, has been that the available supply of outside growths has been unable to satisfy demand abroad.

But, psychologically, the triggering of import quotas could have market impact, some sources say. And, they add, there has been enormous speculative activity in cotton futures, possibly expanding the potential psychological influence of import considerations.

The nine-market average spot price on the base quality Tuesday was 80.91 cents, down from 82.87 the previous day and 83.38 a week ago.

HECTIC, LATE-SESSION SELLING closed spot March cotton futures down the 200-point limit Tuesday, with other 1980 contracts off 70 to 151 points.

Estimated volume was 16,050 lots. Floor brokers said limit losses in March were reached on massive commission house stop-loss selling. May at one point also was down the limit.

Open interest going into the session was at a new all-time high of 59,634 contracts, up 4,025 from a week ago.

A new commitments report revealed that speculative longs at the end of last week totaled 76.5 percent, up 1.2 percent from the previous week and probably the heaviest in the history of the cotton market.

Speculative shorts, apparently showing some tenaciousness, were at 41.5 percent, up 1.6 percent. This left speculators with a net long position of 35.0 percent, a mildly surprising 0.4 percent decline.

That net long position, however, still is within a few points of an all-time high. A casual — not thorough — look at the records indicates the all-time high may have been 37.1 percent on June 4, 1976.

On the hedging side, trade longs were at 16.5 percent, up 0.2 percent, and trade shorts were at 51.6 percent, down 0.2 percent.

A USDA SUPPLY-DEMAND REPORT RELEASED after the close projects U. S. cotton exports this season at 8.0 million bales, up 500,000 bales from last month's official forecast. This simply brought the USDA estimate in line with private forecasts.

Total export commitments — shipments plus outstanding sales — may reach 9.5 million bales by the end of the season on July 31, USDA said. But about 15 percent of that total may not be delivered until next season, the report added.

The USDA said the large export volume, coupled with stable domestic use (pegged at 6.4 million bales, unchanged from both last month's estimate and last season's consumption), point to total disappearance in the 1979-80 marketing year of 14.4 million bales.

That would be only slightly below the USDA's crop estimate of 14.9 million bales. As a result, USDA said, ending stocks may total about 4.5 million bales, up 500,000 from the level of last Aug. 1 but 500,000 below the estimate of last month.

Trading on Telcel slowed appreciably on a volume of 6,246 bales and an average price of 57.09 cents, an average of 1,569 points over the loan. Price quotes were down 25 points.

Some 1980-crop contracting was done at 1,500 points over 1979-crop loan rates.

Fetal Sex Changes In Sheep Applauded

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Animal science researchers at Texas A&M University have successfully changed female sheep fetuses into males, resulting in an animal born with the outward physical characteristics of a male but with the chromosomes of a female. The development could have enormous benefits for the meat industry.

If the same technique of sex control at birth could be used in the beef cattle industry, for example, the effect would be streamlined production, the reduction of production costs and substantial savings in beef consumers.

Dr. Nat Kieffer, a geneticist with the Texas A&M department of animal science, and a team of scientists have achieved a 91 percent success rate in their sex reversal studies using a new surgical technique and injecting the male hormone testosterone directly into unborn lambs early in the pregnancy of ewes.

"It would give the producers the option of having all females in any given year or a female from any given female in the herd or flock."

"For example, a rancher could rapidly build cattle herds in times of national need," explained Kieffer.

But Kieffer stressed even the day of "female only" lamb production is still years away. For the present, the scientists can show that of 55 lambs which underwent the surgical procedure and were tested, 53 came out looking like males externally. In all the sheep births, 21 normal males were produced, three normal females and 31 genetic females which look externally like males.

"What basically happened was that about 100 percent of the females came out looking like males," said Kieffer. "The hormone caused the female lambs to develop all the male external physical features but internally they were a mixture of both male and female parts."

The next big genetic step will be to produce genetic females that will function as fertile males.

The genetic experiments, which have been underway for the past four years, began with the hand-mating of animals to determine exact breeding time. Then between 20 and 30 days post breeding, testosterone, the male hormone — present in all male animals including humans — was injected directly into the fetus following a small surgical incision which exposed the uterus of the pregnant ewe.

"We are the first to use direct injection in large animals," said Kieffer. After the single injection the sheep pregnancy

"Our results clearly indicated that it is not possible to completely convert genetic females to functional males with testosterone alone," said the geneticist. "However, a fascinating experiment for the future will be to inject a special H-Y antigen along with testosterone into young female embryos to test the effectiveness of these biochemicals on complete sex reversal."

Cotton Growers Director Election Set

PETERSBURG (Special) — Hale County cotton producers and agribusinessmen will elect a producer director to Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., at 7:30 a.m. here Thursday, Feb. 21, in the Community Center.

Announcement of the election came from A. L. "Skinny" Higgins of Plainview, Hale County businessman director to the 25-county cotton organization, and Henry Kveton of Petersburg, current producer director.

Each of the counties in PCG territory has two directors, one a businessman and the other a cotton producer. They are elected on alternate years for two-year terms. Each is eligible for re-election every second year.

All producers and businessmen are invited to the meeting. However, under PCG by-laws, only current dues-paying members will be eligible to be elected a director or to vote.

A staff member will conduct the election and review PCG activities and current events.

CBS Makes Its Move Over ABC In Nielsen Television Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — The lead in the networks' weekly ratings competition switched hands again, with CBS grabbing first place from ABC for both the seven-day period ending Feb. 10 and the season so far.

CBS listed half of the week's 10 highest-rated programs, including "Dallas" in first place, to three for ABC and two for NBC, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

CBS just two weeks ago took the No. 1 position for the season away from ABC for the first time in nearly four years. ABC pulled even last week.

CBS' rating for the most recent week was 20.4 to 19.8 for ABC and 18.6 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 20.4 per cent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to CBS.

CBS' rating for the season to date is 19.6 to 19.5 for ABC and 18.6 for NBC.

ABC, which began the season a week ahead of the competition, continues to claim first place by a tenth of a point.

CBS now has finished first in the weekly competition 10 times in the last 13 weeks, after starting the season a clear No. 2. Robert Daly, the president of CBS Entertainment, has said he expects ABC to regain the top spot this month with broadcast of the Winter Olympics.

CBS has, nonetheless, scored heavily with continuing series, rather than movies and specials. In addition to "Dallas," CBS placed "Dukes of Hazzard," "60 Minutes," "Archie Bunker's Place" and "Alice" in the Top 10.

The rating for "Dallas" was 31.1. Nielsen says that means of all the TV-equipped homes in the country, 31.1 per cent saw at least part of the show.

NBC spotted "Little House on the Prairie" as high as No. 3 for the week, and "CHiPs" was sixth. But the third-place network fell flat after that.

NBC, in addition, had three of the week's five lowest-rated programs, including No. 64 "Prime Time Saturday," a special, "Elvis Remembered," 65th, and "Best of Saturday Night Live" 67th. An ABC movie, "Swan Song," was No. 66, and ABC's "Stone" 68th.

"Dallas," with a rating of 31.1 representing 23.7 million homes, and "Dukes of Hazzard," 30.4 or 23.2 million, both CBS. "Little House on the Prairie," 28.9 or 22.1 million. NBC: "Three's Company," 27.7 or 21.1 million. ABC: "60 Minutes," 27.4 or 20.9 million. CBS: "CHiPs," 25.6 or 19.5 million. NBC: "Archie Bunker's Place," CBS, and "Ten-speed and Brown Shoe," ABC, both 25.4 or 19.4 million. "Alice," 25 or 19.1 million. CBS, and Movie: "The Deep," Part I, 24.6 or 18.8 million. ABC.

The next 10 shows: "M-A-S-H," CBS; "Eight is Enough" and "Taxi," both ABC; "The Jeffersons" and "One Day at a Time," both CBS, and "Hart to Hart," "Barney Miller," "Fantasy Island," "Happy Days" and "Love Boat," all ABC.

JONES IN OLYMPIC MOVIE
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — James Earl Jones will co-star in NBC's four-hour Olympics movie "The Golden Moment." Jones will play a track coach in the movie, which also stars Stephanie Zimbalist and David Keith as American and Russian athletes who fall in love. The movie is set against the background of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow, which NBC is scheduled to cover. However, American participation and NBC's coverage is now in doubt since the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

'Grapes Of Wrath' No Longer Required

KANAWHA, Iowa (AP) — Because some parents objected to the language, John Steinbeck's classic novel "Grapes of Wrath" is no longer required reading for sophomores at the Kanawha high school.

But the Nobel Prize-winning author's story about dust bowl tenant farmers in Oklahoma during the 1930s will remain on the shelves of the school library.

The school board approved the action in a 5-0 vote Monday night.

Insider Tells Behind Scenes Story Of Entertainment Business

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Iris Rainer felt an exhilaration with publication of her first novel that she had never felt in 10 years as a television writer.

She sighed, and said, "A friend told me I would come down to earth when they finally take the book out of the window at Brentano's."

Her book is "The Boys in the Mail Room," a fast-paced tale of television and the motion picture industry that has the touch of an insider. It tells of the rise of four men from mail clerks at a major movie studio to studio president, top agent, music promoter and TV star.

"I was a television writer for 10 years," Miss Rainer said. "Before that I was an actress with a kind of failed career. I spent a lot of years doing voice-overs for radio commercials and I was married to a man in the music business."

"And I wanted to tell the story of these four men who started out in the mail room at the bottom. I know I struggled for many years and I'm always fascinated by other people's struggles."

Like one trained in television's swift pace, Miss Rainer has packed every page with the push-and-shove of getting to the top. "The Boys in the Mail Room" will not win a literary award, but it is entertaining.

It also will keep a lot of people interested, guessing who's who. Miss Rainer is mum about their identities, and would say only, "They're composites of people that I know and people I made up."

She said there is some interest in turning the book into a TV miniseries or a conventional series like "Dallas." Television, however, has shown little enthusiasm for shows about Hollywood. Two such programs, "Bracken's World" and "W.E.B.," flopped.

Miss Rainer already has written one miniseries, a four-hour adaptation of Sidney Sheldon's "Stranger in the Mirror." It has not yet gone into production.

She wrote for "Chico and the Man," "That Girl," "Love American Style" and "The John Davidson Show," and spent four years writing for Sonny and Cher, then just Cher. She wrote the "Laverne" sketches for Cher and in one, she played Laverne's sister.

"Writing the book wasn't as much fun as television," she said. "It was lonely sitting in a room by myself. Writing for TV, I sat in a room with 12 guys and giggled all day and got paid for it."

Miss Rainer, 34, a native of Pittsburgh, studied classical acting at Carnegie Tech. She said that she started out as a tall blonde but the struggle wore her down to her present 5 feet.

"After my classical training, my first professional role was on 'The Fugitive,'" she said. "The name of my character was 'another coed.' I was in 'The Mod Squad' and 'Love American Style.'"

"I played a lot of hippies. I was a hippie in jail in 'Hawaii Five-O,' a hippie in 'Run For Your Life' and on 'He and She.' They thought I looked like a hippie because I have long hair. I never thought I would be laughing about this. It was so painful then."

Miss Rainer was married to slain music promoter Steve Wolf. They had one son, Gregory. After their divorce, Wolf was shot to death during a burglary at his home — a fate that befalls one of the characters in the book.

In September 1978, she sold the book on the basis of an 11-page outline. She lived on her savings and finished the book the next June.

"I got an advance but it was about what I would get for a television episode," she said. "I told that to my agent, Elaine Markson, and said I might as well write an episode. She said, 'Yes, and when you finish all you'll have is an episode of television.' So I did it."

"I lived on my past earnings as a television writer. I wouldn't have been able to afford the luxury of this book without television."

She is preparing to start work on her second novel, which she would only say is about the entertainment business.

Ideal Candidate Hits Campaign Trail

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Spirits were high Tuesday as Nobody — the presidential candidate who always keeps his promises — hit the campaign trail.

In a gala sendoff featuring a two-piece band, Wavy Gravy, who considers himself Nobody's fool, and campaign manager Curtis Spangler carried the candidate onto an airliner bound for New Hampshire, site of the first major presidential primary.

"Nobody is still perfect," said Gravy, who like Spangler was dressed in a clown suit.

"Who will lower your taxes? Nobody!" shouted Gravy.

"Who will help the poor? Nobody!" "Who knows the truth about Chappaquiddick? Nobody!"

Bemused, confused and suspicious fellow passengers stood waiting for Nobody, then cheered lustily as a set of plastic chattering teeth was paraded around the departure lounge on a velvet cushion.

With the band playing "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen," Nobody made two additional appearances but was listless the third time out after being wound up to start with.

Both Gravy, a longtime Bay area counterculture figure, and Spangler, an artist, have been with Nobody since his introduction to the world of politics in the 1976 presidential campaign.

"We saw what Nobody was doing for the world," so we decided to run Nobody for president," said Spangler.

Candidate Jimmy Carter gave Nobody a boost on one trip to San Francisco during the '76 campaign when he told a crowd that "Nobody has all the answers."

That first campaign ended at the Democratic National Convention, where Gravy had Nobody in his pocket.

"A Secret Service man came up to him and asked him what the bulge was, and when Wavy told him, the man said, 'You're too weird to bust,'" said Spangler.

Nobody's campaign chest is not overflowing, said Spangler — in fact Nobody is about $500 in the hole. Financing comes mainly from the sale of bumper stickers which read "U.S. Out of North America — Nobody for President."

The national tour will include major stops in Ann Arbor, Mich., Madison, Wis., and New York. During the last month before the November election, the candidate will pull out all the stops with a whirlwind cross-country tour in a 1948 Greyhound Bus nicknamed "Nobody 1."

Asked about Nobody's chances this time, Gravy waxed philosophical.

"If Nobody wins, Nobody loses," he said.

Someone from the crowd added, "And Nobody cares."

'Bone Fone' System Like Wearing Concert Hall Around Neck

CHICAGO (AP) — If you get annoyed by people carrying loud-playing tape decks and radios in public, you can always recommend the "Bone Fone," a sound system that's more like a scarf than a radio.

"It's like wearing a concert hall around your neck," says Bill Hass, the 32-year-old inventor who was inspired by a skier wearing headphones.

With the Bone Fone, only the listener shakes, rattles and rolls; other folks hear hardly a murmur. The wearer's bones provide the amplification.

The compact, 15-ounce miniaturized AM-FM stereo radio is available only through the mail at present, but Hass, president of Bone Fone Corp., said Tuesday he expects it to be on store shelves by April.

"Three factors make it better than anyone expected," Hass explained. "The first is close placement of the speaker to the ear, so that a low level of volume creates high sound pressure.

"The second factor — where the name comes from — is that the unit actually pulsates because of the way the speaker is mounted and the vibrations are transmitted through your body."

Because bone acts as an amplifier, he said, "the sound resonates to the inner ear."

Thirdly, the unit delivers quality stereo separation because of the proximity of the right ear to the right channel and conversely, left to left. Further, the proximity of the unit to both ears takes advantage of an acoustic effect called cross-feed — the right channel being picked up by the left ear and vice versa — creating a spatial effect similar to how the music was originally recorded.

"You can understand the idea by relating it to headphones, which seem to center the music inside your head," Hass said. "With the Bone Fone, music tends to surround you."

Hass, an avid skier, designed the unit with the musically inclined sportsman in mind.

The genesis for the "Bone Fone" came to Hass about five years ago while he watched another skier make his way down the slopes wearing headphones.

"I tried it myself, with a $15 dollar tape player on my back and headphones," he said. "It sounded really neat, if you can imagine a Strauss waltz playing while you sail down the mountain. But it looked funny and the headphones kept falling off. I figured there must be an easier way."

Then a director of planning with the accounting firm of Peat, Martwick, Mitchell & Co., Hass developed some prototypes, patented the unit and developed a strategy to market it. But he found several large companies unwilling to promote a product not developed from within their ranks.

"I was faced with the decision every inventor faces trying to realize his idea," Hass said. "Eventually, I decided to leave my job and form my own company. I have it made and market it."

"I asked people carrying those 10-pound units which they'd prefer, and about 50 percent went with the Bone Fone," Hass said. "Some people will keep the boxes because they want status. But if we get 50 percent, think what a great thing it would be for society."

'Rollover' Plan May Preclude Taxes

(13th In A Series)
By RAY DECRANE

At retirement time, many employees have an option of receiving a lump-sum distribution from their pension plan instead of a monthly pension check for life.

This type of lump-sum can also be received when a pension or profit-sharing plan is terminated by the employer. The one-time payment can be very sizable — amounts well in excess of $100,000 are not uncommon for high-salaried employees with long service.

If the employee who receives such a check starts to use the money — for investments or the purchase of a retirement home, for example — there would be a substantial income tax due.

But if the recipient of the lump-sum distribution has other sources of income and does not have to use any part of the distribution for several years, a golden opportunity for financial security in retirement of an Individual Retirement Account. Then the full amount of the distribution is contributed to the account in what is known as a "rollover" contribution.

Only employer contributions, plus earnings, may be included in the rollover. Any contributions to the pension fund made by the employee must be deducted from the rollover.

Once the IRA contribution is made there is no immediate tax consequence. The full amount of the distribution is sheltered from any tax payment. And until withdrawals are started from the fund none of its earnings are reported on annual income tax returns.

Here are two examples showing the workings of rollovers from lump-sum distributions:

An employee in his 50s resigns from a job he has held for 25 years. Instead of electing to receive a monthly pension check when he is 65, the employee picks up a single payment of $150,000.

With the entire proceeds of the distribution placed into an IRA, there is no income tax paid on the lump sum. Assuming the funds are invested for a long term at today's high interest rate, that original $150,000 could be increased four-fold by the time the employee is 65.

Another employee received a distribution of $125,000 from his company's profit-sharing plan on his 65th birthday. Instead of collecting a pension the employee plans to continue to work until he is 70.

The $125,000 was rolled-over into an IRA. This sheltered it from tax. By the time he is 70, his fund will be grown to about $200,000.

Under IRA rules, in the year in which an account holder reaches ages 70 1/2, withdrawals must begin. The rate of withdrawal must be over the individual's life expectancy or the combined life expectancy of the individual and his spouse.

At age 70 a male has a life expectancy of 12 years. At that rate, one-twelfth of the total in his IRA account must be withdrawn in that first year. Whatever amount is withdrawn is taxable that year.

The balance in the account continues to earn interest. In the second year one-eleventh of the remaining fund must be withdrawn.

CAREERS

By JOYCE LAIN KENNEDY

Dear Joyce: I intend to apply to law schools and am interested in public interest law. How does this field look?

— G.S., Seattle, Wash.

The work of rallying for the underrepresented — tenants, minorities and so forth — juxtaposes a proud history of advocacy and immense personal satisfaction with rocky finances and a changing political climate.

Not only has the idealistic ardor of the past two decades cooled, but the Ford Foundation, the largest backer of public interest law, has decided to encourage self-sufficiency and pull out. Congress, too, has dealt a blow to public interest law by killing a bill that would have required all federal agencies to pay attorneys' fees to public interest firms that sued and won.

Still, public interest law has always balanced the paucity of funds with a largeness of spirit. Despite the likelihood of long hours — and starting pay as low as $10,000 — plenty of law school graduates are clamoring for the few available jobs.

The cases tackled by public interest lawyers are varied. Consumers Union is fighting to improve school lunches in New York City; the American Civil Liberties Union continues its prison project; the Women's Legal Defense Fund is taking steps to erase sexual harassment of women on the job.

To move toward this career, choose your law school carefully — only a few have relevant programs. Also, take summer jobs with public interest groups, legal services offices or government agencies. Students who have shown a commitment to the work, have gleaned experience and have contacts in the field are more likely to be hired.

Nan Aron, director of the Council for Public Interest Law, has a broad definition of the field which, she says, opens up scores of possibilities. She encourages people to consider working for govern-

DRINKING AGE RAISED

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The legislature approved a bill Tuesday raising the legal drinking age in Nebraska from 19 to 21 and sent the measure to Gov. Charles Thone for his expected signature. The lawmakers voted 31-13 to approve the bill, altered three times during its often-stormy passage through the legislature. Randy Moody, an aide to Thone, said the governor would sign the measure if it were passed with the 20-year-old limitation in place. It would become law 90 days after the end of the session.

"I still find bargains. One of them is electricity."

"I know it's higher than it used to be but so is everything else I buy. The folks who generate our electricity are paying a lot more for everything too, including the fuel used to produce power. But when I consider all the things I do with electricity from my electric cooperative, and when I compare the cost, I get a lot for my money. And, in my book, that's a bargain."

ment agencies at all levels that are active in public interest work. Young lawyers can start their own centers, and private practice lawyers can volunteer to take "pro bono" cases. A list of public interest law centers is available for $2.50 from the Council for Public Interest Law, 600 New Jersey Ave. N.W., Washington 20036.

Some benefits of this work were expressed by Elliot Broadman, a lawyer with Consumers Union, to my associate, Randy Ring. "There is a tremendous personal satisfaction in caring about your work, in waking up in the morning feeling good about what you're doing. Also, it's more of a thrill when you win, knowing that the decision benefits a lot of people rather than just a single client."

READER SERVICE: "Law as a Career" is a new American Bar Association 14-page booklet of general career facts. For a copy, enclose a gummed, self-addressed mailing label with your request to Joyce Lain Kennedy at this newspaper. After you receive the booklet, the ABA would be pleased to receive a 40 cents contribution — but do not send money with your request. The offer ends May 1, 1980.

Triumph for Tar Watchers!

Triumph rocks yesterday's "low tars" — offers great taste at 3 mg.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Yesterday's "low tars" are sadly out-of-date. Not just by a little. A lot.

Today's low tar, Triumph[®] offers remarkable taste at only 3mg tar.

And no matter how you figure it, that's a lot less tar than Merit at 8—Salem Lights at 12—or Marlboro Lights at 12.

And it's a lot more taste than Carlton at 1 (which doesn't even claim to have taste).

Taste a Triumph. Your taste doesn't lie. And the numbers don't, either.

Try Triumph—today's low tar.

Triumph for taste! Only 3mg tar.

Of All Brands Sold. Lowest tar: 0.5 mg. "tar," 0.05 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette. Triumph: 3 mg. "tar," 0.4 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.
