Oil slick expected to arrive on Texas coast Tuesday

By KEN HERMAN

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Government scientists preparing for a long and costly battle against a Mexican oil slick are now predicting the runaway crude will spill into U.S. waters Sunday.

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration official John Robinson also predicted Thursday that the first traces of the oil may hit the South Texas coast Tuesday.

"We expect to be here a long time," Robinson, who is in charge of the scientific team here, said.

It took about two months for the oil from the blown-out Bay of Campeche well to make the trek to near U.S. waters. The latest flights over the spill area showed the oil to be about 40 to 50 miles south of Brownsville. It has already spewed globs of tarry oil onto several Mexican beaches.

The leading edge of the slick is expected to drift within 10 to 15 miles east of the South Texas coast this weekend. About 150 scientists, engineers and Coast Guardsmen are now heading U.S. efforts against the spill.

None of the officials at a Thursday press conference would estimate how much the effort is costing.

Robinson said the oil nearest the United States probably came out of the well shortly after the June 3 blowout. The scientist said oil may keep flowing north two months after the well is capped. Capt. Jose Orozco of the Mexican Navy said Thursday that the well may be capped by Sept. 16.

The Coast Guard is sending men and equipment, at the request of the Mexican government, to the well site to help contain and collect the spewing crude, said a Coast Guard official in Washington.

Orozco said the flow of oil from the well is now down to 20,000 barrels a day — reduced from an original flow of 50,000 barrels.

Coast Guard Capt. Roger Madson, head of the combined U.S. effort, said he will soon decide when to activate massive oil containment gear mobilized to battle the world's largest oil spill. The boom and skimmer equipment is now ready for use here and in Brownsville. The "floating fences" will be the first line of defense against the potentially damaging oil.

"We will not attempt to recover all the oil floating in the Gulf of Mexico," Madson said. "That would be a physical impossibility."

The captain said the top priority is to protect the Laguna Madre. The bay separates South Padre Island from the mainland and is environmentally vulnerable.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service teams are standing by to perform bird cleaning operations if needed.

Madson said Coast Guard planes would today continue their tracking efforts. He indicated the barriers may be set up east of Brownsville Saturday.

Construction delay caused lay-off

Hospital official points to reduced patient load

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

The lay-off of 22 Midland Memorial Hospital employees this week was an "internal adjustment needed to strike a balance" in the number of employees to the number of patients in the hospital, according to Tevis Herd, president of the hospital's board of trustees.

The action was taken after the contractor for a $10 million renovation and expansion program under way at the hospital told members of the board's building committee construction would be delayed some three to four months beyond the scheduled completion date.

Both Herd and Ed Magruder, president of the board of directors of the Midland County Hospital District, the hospital's taxing agency, were at the meeting, Herd said.

The delay will result in a net loss of about 30 available beds during traditionally high-occupancy months of February and March, hospital administrator Wayne Ulrich said Thursday.

In addition to the 22 let go this week, another 80 to 90 employees will be lost through attrition over the next few months, Ulrich noted.

No professional nursing staff members were laid off, Herd stressed, although future vacancies in the nursing staff will be reviewed carefully before they are filled.

The over-staffing problem, Herd said today, primarily was caused by the construction and renovation program under way at the hospital.

"We've been expanding the hospital and trying to make sure we're not understaffed," Herd said, but fewer patients than expected have come to the hospital during the construction.

Hospital officials expected about 120 to 125 patients in June, Herd noted, while actual patient load was only about 106.

"It's not something you can put your finger on, but a certain number have not come here" because of the on-going construction program, Herd said.

"We expect, once the hospital is finished, it will attract more patients, so we will be looking at adding staff within six to nine months," he said.

No public announcement of the staffing change was made, Herd said, because "it was just an adjustment needed to be taken internally to strike the right balance," he noted.

Most of the staff cuts were made in dietary, housekeeping, medical records and purchasing departments.

Carter admits plan may hurt environment

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is acknowledging that his proposals to cure the country's energy ills may threaten the environment.

"I do not pretend that all new replacement sources of energy will be environmentally innocuous," Carter said in a message on the environment sent to Congress Thursday. "Some of the new technologies we will need to develop pose environmental risks, not all of which are yet fully understood."

But the president declared: "When trade-offs must be made, they will be made fairly, equitably and in the light of informed public scrutiny."

The message spelled out few details of the criteria that will be used to balance energy needs against environmental concerns.

However, he specifically promised to examine "the longer term implications of increasing carbon dioxide concentration in the atmosphere." Such carbon dioxide buildups have been cited as a possible danger in a large synthetic fuels program.

The president also:

—Promised to announce soon a national nuclear waste management policy "that will be designed to deal effectively with nuclear wastes from all sources."

—Vowed to reshape urban transportation programs "to meet environmental, energy and urban revitalization goals."

—Declared 1980 the "Year of the Coast" and proposed what he termed a new coastal protection policy.

—Asked Congress to declare four new wild and scenic river systems in Oregon, Idaho and Colorado.

—Ordered the U.S. Forest Service to establish 145 new hiking trails by 1980.

—Told the Department of Interior to develop long-range plans for use of the 417 million acres of federal land it manages.

—Said he was establishing a 10-year program to study the threat of rain-borne chemicals to the environment.

New feature coming

Midland is a city of newcomers and one of them is especially delighted with the Tall City, its people and all the things that make Midland an unusual place to live.

Midlanders since April, Marilyn Dyer and her husband have a good basis for comparison. They have lived near Chicago and in St. Louis, Mo.; Burlington, Iowa; St. Paul, Minn.; Jacksonville, Fla., and Columbus, Ohio, and they have traveled in Mexico, Canada and Europe.

She'll be writing about Midland from the vantage point of a newcomer in a new weekly column to begin in The Reporter-Telegram this Sunday.

Big Spring investigation continues into theft of $96,000 in checks

BIG SPRING — Investigation into the theft of a suitcase containing about $96,000 in payroll checks was continuing here today, but with few results.

The complicated series of incidents began late last month.

On July 25, a suitcase containing payroll checks en route to Midland from the F.W.A. Drilling Co. in Wichita Falls apparently was taken from a bus depot here.

When company personnel arrived at the depot to claim the suitcase, it was discovered to be missing, said Big Spring Police Department officials today.

According to reports, a Midlander then contacted the Midland Police Department and Texas Rangers to report that the informant's friend, a Big Spring resident, had been told by a third man that he had stolen some checks from a bus depot and was going to pass them.

The man with the suitcase wanted to sell the suitcase and its contents for a couple of dollars — until he discovered its contents, reports indicated.

The payroll checks reportedly total $96,876.69, a police spokesman said today.

To date, two checks have been cashed in Big Spring, police indicated.

One check valued at $254.90 was cashed at a Safeway store and another one of unknown value turned up in the till of a Furr's Supermarket, officers said.

Police said they think both checks were cashed on July 25, day of the discovered robbery.

Big Spring police have arrested one man in connection with the incident, officials reported.

Roy Roger Lusk of Big Spring allegedly tried to establish credit at a convenience store here by showing three of the missing checks, said officers.

Police arrested Lusk Wednesday, and he reportedly told officers he had since returned the three checks to the man he obtained them from.

Police said Lusk has identified the man from police photographs.

Lusk, charged with theft, subsequently was released from jail on a $5,000 personal recognizance bond.

Texas Rangers and the Big Spring Police Task Force — formed to pursue alleged major offenses — still were probing the matter today.

He advertises for president

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Lionel Kunst concedes a $600 return on $4,683 isn't the best of investments, but when you're advertising to find a new president folks tend to be a little skeptical.

Kunst, who paid for a full-page ad in Tuesday's Kansas City Times asking for contributions to finance a talent hunt for the next president, received 55 letters Thursday containing $500. Another $100 came in Wednesday.

"I've had experience in politics," he said. "I know there is always just a small minority of doers and givers. You can't tell me, that out of 220 million people, we can't find someone better."

The "someone" includes all of the candidates, announced or otherwise, who are pointing toward the 1980 White House.

New hours, phone number

To improve our weekend service to readers, The Midland Reporter-Telegram has established a separate telephone number for classified advertisers and has set hours during which weekend circulation calls will be received.

The classified want ad department is open from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. Saturdays. Want ads may be corrected and cancelled only during those hours by calling 682-6222.

Circulation department hours for service complaints and other calls on weekends are from 6 to 11 a.m. Saturdays and from 7 to 11 a.m. Sundays. Subscribers should call 682-5311 for that service.

Andrews men released after theft indictments

ANDREWS — Andrews Mayor Pro-tem J.C. Donaldson and two Andrews contractors were free on bond today after being indicted earlier this week on theft charges in connection with alleged thefts from Phillips Petroleum Co.

Indicted along with Donaldson, 50, were Ben Brewer, 42, and Loyd M. Pipkin, 53.

The indictments were returned Monday by an Andrews County grand jury.

According to Chief Deputy Roger Andrews of the Andrews County Sheriff's Department, all three men surrendered themselves to sheriff's department officials after the indictments were returned.

Donaldson and Brewer posted bonds totalling $6,000 each and Pipkin posted a $3,000 bond.

Two indictments were returned against Donaldson, District Clerk Vernis Burns said today, each alleging theft of service of the value of $200 or more, but less than $10,000. Each offense constitutes a third-degree felony, Mrs. Burns said.

The indictments allege that on May 9, 1979, Donaldson, then supervisor for Phillips Petroleum in Andrews, converted to his own use contract labor employed by Phillips Petroleum.

The indictments allege he used contract roustabout labor for work in connection with the development of a mobile home park owned by him and for the construction of a concrete tile fence around his private residence.

Two indictments also were returned against Brewer, a contractor working for Phillips.

Those indictments allege that on May 9 and May 10 he converted two checks from Phillips Petroleum made out to Ben's Welding Service to his own use.

According to the two theft indictments, the checks were each valued at more than $200, but less than $10,000. The alleged offenses constitute third-degree felonies.

Pipkin, another contractor, was indicted on a charge of theft of property of a value of at least $200, but less than $10,000.

That indictment relates to an incident in which he allegedly converted a check, made out to Short's Welding Service, to his own use. The indictment concerns a third-degree felony, Ms. Burns said.

Columbus schools to open under desegregation plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — School officials say they will open Columbus schools with delay this fall under the systemwide desegregation plan ordered by federal Judge Robert M. Duncan.

Duncan on Thursday rejected the school board's request that busing be implemented in a two-step process, with elementary school students bused at the start of this school year and older students a year later.

Midland woman hurt in accident

A 19-year-old Midland woman, injured in a motorcycle accident late Thursday night, was treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital.

According to police reports, Sandra L. Parker was injured about 11:59 p.m. Thursday when the motorcycle she was a passenger on was involved in an accident at the intersection of Cedar Spring Drive and McDonald Drive.

Police said the motorcycle was being driven by 22-year-old Darryl Ray Masoner, 3214 Hill Ave. Reports indicated the motorcycle slid on loose gravel on the roadway and went out of control. Masoner reportedly was not injured. Ms. Parker's address was listed as P.O. Box 3653.

Operator error element in nuclear accident at Three Mile Island plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators probing the nuclear accident at Three Mile Island say there's plenty of blame to go around. Yet a key question remains: Was human or mechanical error the chief villain in the nation's most frightening atomic drama?

Nuclear Regulatory Commission investigators concluded Thursday that operators at the Pennsylvania plant could have prevented a serious accident if they had followed written procedures and not interfered with automatic safety devices.

Yet the NRC also attributed some of the operator actions to false training and noted that if equipment had been designed differently, "that too could have prevented or reduced the consequences" of the accident.

"The result of the investigation makes it difficult to fault only the actions of the operating staff," wrote Victor Stello, director of the NRC's Office of Inspection and Enforcement.

Yet Stello said the NRC's investigation showed that the plant's emergency procedures, design and equipment were adequate "to have prevented the serious consequences of the accident, if they had been permitted to function or be carried out as planned."

The chairman of the presidential panel investigating the March 28 accident agreed with the NRC's general conclusions, but argued that operator error probably was only one of perhaps 10 or 20 factors that contributed to the accident.

"I think by now everyone concedes there was operator error," declared commission chairman John G. Kemeny. "That's very different from saying that operator error was the cause of the accident."

The degree of blame attributed to operator error contrasted to design or mechanical deficiencies could have significant implications in future lawsuits arising from the accident, including possible legal action by owners of the reactor against manufacturers who designed it, some investigators say privately.

Furthermore, say these sources close to the presidential commission's probe, segments of the nuclear industry have emphasized human error and inadequate training as opposed to questionable design and machinery because it will be easier and cheaper to change training procedures than re-design reactors.

In testimony before the Kemeny Commission, Three Mile Island technicians and NRC officials said repeatedly in recent months that the accident demonstrated the need for better instrumentation to determine the water level in the reactor core; the need for better monitors of radiation inside the plant; and venting valves that do not stick open when they should be closed.

Perhaps no part of the sequence of events at Three Mile Island better demonstrates the complexity of human as opposed to mechanical error than the dispute over the "misunderstood pressurizer level."

Plant operators shortly after the March 28 accident began used the reactor's pressurizer level as a signal that there was enough water in the reactor core. As the level rose, the operators began to fear the reactor cooling system would overflow — that is, "go solid."

As a result, at a critical time a plant operator turned off the high pressure injection system that was forcing emergency cooling water into the core when in fact the reactor core was uncovered.

The NRC investigation concluded Thursday: "Had the operators allowed the emergency core cooling system to perform its intended function, damage to the core could most likely have been prevented."

The report continued, "There is considerable evidence of a 'mind set' not only at TMI ... but by operators at other plants as well, that overfilling the reactor coolant system was to be avoided at almost any cost ... (leading) them to ignore other procedural instructions and indications that the core was not being properly cooled."

Operators have conceded their mistake but say they were following their training and the NRC investigators said its own training section concluded that the operators acted as they "would be expected to do based on their training and experience."

Furthermore, the NRC has said since the accident that instrumentation to determine the status of the reactor core was inadequate and directed that separate instruments be installed to specifically measure the amount of water in the core.

Manual's instruction to slow plane caused DC-10 crash

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) — A DC-10 manual instructing pilots to slow down if they lose an engine contributed to the May 25 Chicago crash that killed 273 people, says a spokesman for the Airline Pilots Association.

Testifying at a National Transportation Safety Board hearing, Dale Leppard said Thursday that slowing down the American Airlines plane left it without enough velocity to stay in the air.

The hearings on the crash at O'Hare International Airport entered their fifth day today.

Leppard said when the engine fell off during takeoff, pilot Walter Lux followed instructions and immediately reduced speed, which prevented the plane from pulling out of a stall. A stall results when an aircraft has insufficient lift to stay aloft.

Art Kressley, an aerodynamics specialist for McDonnell Douglas Corp., maker of the DC-10, said slowing down hurt Lux's attempts to right the plane.

Kressley said the minimum airspeed "may not be the best speed to correct for the problems resulting from a lost engine."

The DC-10 manual is issued by

McDonnell Douglas and approved by the federal government.

Capt. Walter W. Estridge, DC-10 pilot training director for America, said the instruction about engine loss should not be changed because of the crash.

"I don't believe procedures could be written that could handle that situation in that time frame," he said. "It would take some time to evaluate what course of action to take in that situation" of multiple system failures.

Since the crash at O'Hare, the worst crash in the nation's history, airlines have increased the minimum speed for their DC-10s, which is determined individually for each flight by a computer that calculates the plane's weight, wind conditions, runway length and other factors.

A program manager for the Federal Aviation Administration, James Smith, testified that he was able, in flight simulator tests, to bring a DC-10 out of the same condition that confronted Lux.

Mexican-American to be put up for federal judgeship

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Only one Mexican-American will be among those U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen will recommend to fill four federal judgeships in the heavily-Hispanic Western District of Texas, the San Antonio Express said today.

The newspaper quoted federal sources as saying Bentsen would recommend State District Court Judges H.F. "Hippo" Garcia and Fred Shannon of San Antonio, Odessa attorney Lucius Bunton and U.S. Magistrate Harry Lee Hudspeth of El Paso.

Bentsen spokesman Jack Devore declined comment, but said the senator would make his recommendations soon.

Garcia, Shannon and Bunton, contacted by the Express, declined to confirm or deny the report. Hudspeth was not available for comment.

If confirmed, Garcia would become the first Mexican-American named to a judgeship in the sprawling district, which stretches from Waco 600 miles westward to El Paso. Garcia would be the third Hispanic federal judge in Texas.

Mexican-American leaders, displaying Southwest Voter Registration Education Project figures that show 33 percent of the district's residents are Hispanic, had demanded that Bentsen recommend at least two Mexican-Americans.

One of the vacancies was created by Congress and another by the assassination May 29 of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. The other two were created when Chief U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears and Judge D.W. Suttle took senior status.

Spears and Suttle plan to remain active. Garcia, 52, was elected to the 14th District Court in 1974, while Shannon, 36, was appointed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to the 131st District Court position

Three Odessans, Reisel man sentenced in cavern takeover

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Three Odessans and a man from Reisel, Texas, accused in connection with a July 10 takeover of Carlsbad Caverns were sentenced Thursday to one year imprisonment each on their pleas of guilty to a misdemeanor charge of damaging government property.

U.S. Attorney R.E. Thompson said Dennis Mark, 39, of Reisel and David Kuczynski, 28, Eugene Meroney, 31, and William Lovejoy, 28, all of Odessa, entered their pleas at an arraignment hearing before U.S. Magistrate Robert McCoy, who imposed sentence. Mark also reportedly is from Odessa.

Odessa man jailed in robbery

ODESSA — A 20-year-old Odessa man, Victor Olivas, charged in connection with the alleged knife-point robbery of a 7-Eleven Store clerk here about 5:30 a.m. Thursday, remained in Odessa City Jail early today in lieu of posting a $20,000 bond.

He was charged with aggravated robbery before Peace Justice Virgil Lumpee, police said.

A man entered the store, ordered doughnuts and then reportedly pulled a knife on the clerk and demanded money, according to police reports. An undisclosed amount of money was taken in the alleged robbery.

Police arrested Olivas early Thursday afternoon.

Forecast calls for possibility of rain later

There's a chance of rain for Midland tonight and Saturday, but the weatherman said it isn't much of a chance.

According to the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport, the forecast calls for partly cloudy skies through Saturday with a chance of mainly late afternoon and nighttime thunderstorms.

But that chance for rain is slight — only 20 percent tonight and 30 percent on Saturday.

The low temperature tonight should drop to near 70 with the high on Saturday climbing into the middle 90s.

Winds should blow out of the south at 10 to 15 mph tonight. Skies were cloudy over Lamesa this morning. That Permian Basin city received .4 inch of rain Thursday, but no moisture was falling early today.

The high temperature in Midland reached 94 degrees Thursday, but failed to approach the record 106-degree reading set Aug. 2, 1944.

Low this morning was 70 degrees, much warmer than the record low 60-degree reading set in 1971.

West Texas: Partly cloudy to clear through Saturday with widely scattered late afternoon and nighttime thunderstorms mainly south. Continued warm afternoons. Highs 96 to 98. Lows 62 to 72 except upper 50s mountains. Highs Saturday 92 to 102.

North Texas: Partly cloudy warm and scattered thunderstorms through Saturday. Highs 90 to 96. Lows in 70s.

South Texas: Partly cloudy through Saturday with widely scattered showers and thunderstorms. Highs 90 to 96 north and 85 to 100 south. Lows 70 to 80. Highs higher in isolated thunderstorms.

Fort Worth to Brownsville: South to southeast winds 15 to occasionally 20 knots through Saturday and southeast around 15 knots tonight. Seas 3 to 6 feet. Winds and seas higher in isolated thunderstorms.

Extended forecast

West Texas: Chance of thunderstorms mainly panhandle and mountains first of the week. Otherwise sunny days fair nights. Highs in the 90s except near 102 Big Bend lowlands. Lows in the 60s and 70s.

North Texas: Clear to partly cloudy and continued warm. Chance of thunderstorms east Sunday. High temperatures 90 to 100. Low temperatures 70 to 79.

South Texas: Chance of showers or thunderstorms mainly southeast Sunday and Monday. Isolated showers and thunderstorms Tuesday. Little change in temperature. Highs mostly in the 90s. Lows in the 70s.

DEATHS

K. Flenniken FREDERICKSBURG — Services for Katherine Flenniken, 83, of Big Spring and formerly of Fredericksburg, will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Schaetter Funeral Home Chapel in Fredericksburg. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery in Fredericksburg.

Mrs. Flenniken died Thursday in a Big Spring hospital following an illness.

She was born Katherine McKennon March 25, 1896, in Lynnville, Tenn. She was married to Robert Flenniken. He died Dec. 9, 1977.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. William (Dorothy) Fryer of Abilene and Mrs. Joe (Ruth) Packard of Miami, Fla.

John Bailey Post

OSONA — Services for John Bailey Post, 83, of Ozona were to be at 10:30 a.m. today in Ozona United Methodist Church. Burial was to be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Post died Wednesday in an Ozona hospital.

He was born July 24, 1896, in Haskell. He was married to Myrtle Marr Nov. 16, 1917, in Ralls. He was a member of Ozona United Methodist Church.

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Wynona Bryan of Houston; two brothers, Marvin H. Post of Kerrville and Dr. Gaines Post of Haskell, two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Woodrow Arnold

FORT WORTH — Woodrow W. Arnold, 66, formerly of Midland, died Thursday in a hospital here after a long illness.

Services will be at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in the Greenwood Funeral Home Chapel here with the Rev. Ronald Beans, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Brookbrook, officiating. Burial will be in Hemphill Cemetery in Hemphill.

The Hemphill native had lived in Fort Worth the past four years. He was a veteran of World War II.

Survivors include his wife, Vondal; two sons, Tom Arnold of Amarillo and Dr. Charles D. Arnold of New Orleans, La.; two daughters, Cheryl Whigham of Odessa and Ginger Arnold of Fort Worth; three brothers, Dr. Hugh F. Arnold, Dr. Hiram P. Arnold and Dr. William Arnold Jr., all of Houston, a sister, Doris Spears of San Antonio, and two grandchildren.

Dr. F. Farquhar

EL PASO — Services for Dr. Floyd E. Farquhar, 84, of El Paso, father of Winston J. Farquhar of Midland, were Thursday in Harding-Orr & McDaniel Chapel here with Dr. Robert M. Young and Dr. Paul Newton Poling officiating. Burial was in Restlawn Memorial Park here.

He died Tuesday in an El Paso hospital. The Indiana native had degrees from Miami University in Ohio, the University of Chicago and The University of Texas at Austin. He was on the faculty of the University of Mississippi for 21 years, serving as dean of the School of Education. He was on the faculty of The University of Texas at El Paso for 21 years as chairman of the Department of Education until his retirement in 1963.

Farquhar was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon, Kappa Delta Pi and Pi Gamma Mu. He was listed in Who's Who in America, Who's Who in American Education and America's Young Men. He was an elder of the First Presbyterian Church.

Jean Powers

Jean Powers, 49, 2928 W. Louisiana Ave., died Thursday in a Houston hospital after a lengthy illness.

Services are pending with Sheppard Funeral Home in Big Spring.

She was born May 15, 1930, in Erath County. She had lived in Big Spring for several years before moving to Midland.

Mrs. Powers had worked for several years at Driscoll's Gifts Inc. in Midland.

Survivors include three daughters, Janelle Neill of Abilene, Donna Phillips near Houston and Margie Gamble of Big Spring; her mother, Minnie Lawson of Midland, two sisters, Vergie Woods of Stephenville and Willie Lee Mason of Midland, and six grandchildren. (More Obituaries, Page 6A)

Most gas stations won't charge for 'other services'

By The Associated Press

If you pull into a gas station and say, "Fill 'er up, check the oil and wipe the windows," chances are you will have to pay only for the gasoline, even though the government now allows service stations to charge for the other services.

Dealers say they won't take advantage of the new rule for fear of alienating customers, but many aren't wasting any time in taking advantage of another rule that sets a new ceiling on mark-ups over wholesale prices. Those dealers with prices above the ceiling, however, aren't hurrying to lower prices.

The rules went into effect Wednesday, along with one allowing surcharges for the use of credit cards. But that regulation was vetoed Thursday by the Federal Trade Commission, which said it violated the federal Truth in Lending Act.

Although they have complained in recent months that they aren't making enough money, dealers interviewed Thursday said charging for traditionally free services was not the way to increase profits.

"You must be joking," said Louis Kremen, a Sunoco dealer in New York

City. "How long do you think my customers would stay with me?"

"We just don't believe in charging for checking oil or washing windows," said Randie McClung, manager of Emery Hills Texaco in Chamblee, Ga. "As long as a man's standing there anyway pumping gas, he might as well be helping the customer."

"That's ridiculous," said Harold Crowell of Parkway Mobil in Somerville, Mass. "Most people who have been in the business for a long time frown on it. If you're a neighborhood service station, all you'd create is a lot of bad will."

"Nobody's gonna do that because the first time you do that you're going to have a shooting," said Bill McClung, a Shell dealer in Louisville, Ky.

The dealers also were unhappy with the new rule on mark-ups, under which they can charge no more than 15.4 cents per gallon more than the wholesale price of gasoline, before taxes are added. The dealers had been restricted to the profit margin they had six years ago, plus a few cents for inflation.

"If we have a 15.4-cent margin, 10 percent of our stations would go out of business very shortly and 25 percent would in the long run," said Paul Hay, director of the Santa Clara County (Calif.) Service Station Dealers Association. "Remember, that margin must cover all sorts of our expenses."

About 700 dealers protested the rules Wednesday in Washington.

Many dealers who were charging more than the new rule allowed didn't seem in any hurry to reduce prices.

Jihong Yoo, operator of an Exxon station in Washington, D.C., said his price was still 1.8 cents above the limit because no one had bothered to explain the new regulations to him.

Preregistration for fall begins Monday at MC

Monday is the opening day for prospective students to preregister for the fall semester at Midland College.

The advance registration procedure and early counseling were inaugurated to make the actual registration process easier, college officials said.

After completing preregistration, students receive time permits that allocate them a specific time to report for registration.

Persons wishing to preregister should visit the office of student services in the Administration Building between 7 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. or room 130 of the Science-Faculty Building between 5:30 and 8:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Midland College is operating on a four-day week until Thursday, beginning Aug. 13 the office of student services will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Room 130 in the Science-Faculty Building will be open from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. through Aug. 16.

Official registration days are set for Aug. 29 and 30.

Last fall, more than 2,300 students registered, and the final count this fall is expected to be about the same.

"Although we offer virtually duplicate courses in the daytime and again in the evening, students are advised to preregister early," according to registrar Dee Windsor. "Time permits are issued in the order in which students finish their preregistration, so they have a better chance of getting the schedule they want for their classes than those who register later."

Additional information about courses being offered may be obtained by visiting the office of student services or by calling 684-7851, extension 166.

Midland College sets sign language course

A new short course in "Basic Sign Language" will be offered at Midland College soon, according to James Bramlett, director of the Community Services Department of the college.

"The course will not begin until Sept. 11, but we are limited to accepting only 20 students, and registration will close Aug. 21," Bramlett said.

Taught by Helen Miller, the courses covers the basics of finger spelling required for manual communication with those who are without hearing.

Upon completion of the 10-week instruction period, students should have a vocabulary of about 500 words and be able to carry on a simple conversation.

Classes meet from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays, and the course fee is $20.

Pre-registration is in progress now in room 140 of the Occupational-Technical Building from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, then from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday through Aug. 21.

More information may be obtained by calling 684-7851, extension 147 or 216.

$1 a gallon for premium not unusual

WASHINGTON (AP) — In case your wallet hasn't told you — $1 a gallon for premium gasoline is not so unusual anymore.

The American Automobile Association said Thursday a survey of 6,485 service stations across the country found the national average price for premium gas hit $1 a gallon this week at full-service stations for the first time this year.

The average full-service price for unleaded gas was 98.6 cents a gallon and 94.8 cents for regular, according to the survey. Self-service prices were a little lower, averaging 97.7 cents for premium, 96 cents for unleaded and 91.9 cents for regular.

Illinois led the continental United States in terms of price.

Soul City bites dust

Remember President Lyndon Johnson's Great Society of the 1960s?

Well, regardless of whether you do or don't you still are paying for the program. Bills for undelivered goods of the great experiment keep coming in with a marked degree of regularity.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development now admits it is taking a $29 million loss on another of the subsidized new communities inspired by a visionary act of Congress in 1968.

This is the amount the federal government provided in grants and loan guarantees to start Soul City, N.C., a would-be community 50 miles north of Raleigh. After 10 years it has attracted a grand total of 33 families, and HUD has decided there is no hope it will advance any further.

It also has been revealed that eight of the 13 "new towns" started by HUD under the 1968 act have failed to make it, and the program now has been quietly abandoned.

Mr. Johnson saw the planned, subsidized towns as "communities of tomorrow...self-contained with light industry, shops, schools, hospitals, homes, apartments and open spaces."

This describes many American communities, and we most certainly need more of them. But it is people on the local scene who make them happen, not distant planners with a pipeline into the U.S. Treasury. This always has been the case, but it seems Washington never learns.

And, as a result, it has cost the federal taxpayer $150 million in losses so far to find out the costly way that the New Community program was not going to work.

William White, the HUD official who has been wrestling unsuccessfully with the problem, puts it this way, the experience was "sad, painful and expensive." Yes, it most certainly was.

CHARLEY REESE Reds and associates have no redeeming social value

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Joan Baez, the folk singer, did the nation a good turn by separating the humans from the rats.

It was easy. All she did was condemn the obvious atrocities and human rights abominations of the communist regime in Vietnam. Baez said exactly the same things she has always said, only this time the target was a communist government and the humans and rats separated like oil and water, the humans lining up with her and the rats with the communists.

Maybe out of the process, Baez and some of the humans who weren't particular about the company they kept in the 1960s will learn something about communists and their toadies which is that they, unlike some forms of pronography, have no redeeming social value.

Jane Fonda, William Kunstler and other Hanoi lovers immediately turned on their former ally of the 1960s and made all sorts of vicious and ridiculous statements.

Perhaps now people will see the decade of the 1960s as a media event largely mis-reported and misunderstood. Upper middle class kids who flat didn't want to get drafted suddenly discovered not only graduate studies but also that some wars were moral and some wars were immoral. By definition, if they had to fight them, they were immoral.

This perfectly natural cowardice combined with a perfectly natural communist propaganda campaign was reported as a great new awakening of American youth. At the same time, on the domestic front, aging socialists finally gave way to a new generation of socialists who recognized that you can't win converts among kids born in the affluent age by preaching the slogans of the Great Depression. They switched to environmental slogans and we entered the Age of Mother Earth.

The greening of America was actually the same old ideological scum that had always covered the stagnant waters of dull minds. The offerings were the same, just disguised with new jargon. American communists had said during the years when Hitler and Stalin were partners in crime that the U.S. must stay out of wars for empire. In the 1960s, they said we must stay out of other people's civil wars. In the 1930s, they said we had to nationalize everything to save the economy; in the 1960s, they said it was necessary to save the environment.

Communists and their socialist buddies are like hemorrhoids; the only time they ever change is when they get too powerful and grow malignant.

The more we probe the 1960s, the more clear that decade will become. I read an obituary notice recently about a professor from Kent State University where one of the anti-war demonstrations resulted in four people being killed by Ohio National Guardsmen.

The obituary said that Dr. Sidney L. Jackson, senior professor of library sciences, had been the first faculty adviser of the Kent Committee to End the War in Vietnam. The obituary appeared in the Daily World and also said Dr. Jackson had been a member of the Communist Party since 1936.

Back then, if anyone had suggested communists had anything to do with the anti-war movement on the Kent State campus, he could have been shouted down as a witch-hunter and Bircher. Jim West, Ohio chairman of the Communist Party, said, "We in the Communist Party are proud of his membership and life's work."

I bet they are. I hope the man who hired him is, too. I hope the people who gave him tenure are, too. I hope the parents of the dead children are, too.

Communists operate as a fifth column in any country where they live and they are as predictable as a television plot. They were heavily involved in the anti-war movement and all you have to do to spot them is to look at the people who were weeping with compassion for the Vietnamese people when American bombs were falling and who are now mute as stones while the communists commit genocide against two entire generations.

You'd think American liberals would face this obvious fact but they rarely do. I suppose Joan Baez is a unique individual, a genuine humanitarian. May God protect her from former friends.

Things started to deteriorate with Carter when he was in Korea jogging with the troops one morning before dawn. As the sun came up, he looked back and saw he was leading a column of North Koreans.

Coming back home, he sent Rosalynn Carter and Walter Mondale to the governors' conference. He wanted the governors to see the 1980 Democratic ticket.

Mondale said the new energy policy would be just as ambitious as the space program. Which means gas lines on the moon by 1990.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

South American 'exterminations'

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Are the horrors of Nazi Germany being relived in South America through an unholy alliance between right-wing totalitarian regimes and war criminals from Adolf Hitler's Third Reich? A top-secret Senate report raises this disquieting possibility.

Over the years, we have reported eyewitness accounts of the unspeakable methods of torture used by the military dictators of Latin America against political opponents and their suspected allies. Women are raped repeatedly while their husbands are forced to watch; babies are tortured in front of their parents. Uncooperative suspects are asphyxiated in piles of excrement, or roasted to death over barbecue pits.

Apparently, it is no coincidence that some of these dictatorships are havens for Nazi war criminals who managed to escape the collapse of Hitler's Germany in 1945. Competent sources have told our associate Dale Van Atta that Nazi refugees have offered their inhuman expertise to the secret police of their adopted countries and may even be directing some of the Hitler-style torture and extermination of political dissidents.

And it may be no coincidence that five of the countries named in the torture charges — Chile, Paraguay, Uruguay, Brazil and Argentina — are also members of an international assassination consortium known as "Operation Condor." As we reported earlier, Condor's "Phase Three" section first identifies common enemies in foreign countries (including the United States) then tracks them down and finally eliminates them. The dynamite execution of Chilean exile leader Orlando Letelier in Washington three years ago was listed by the FBI as a possible Condor operation.

DINA, the infamous secret police of Chilean dictator Augusto Pinochet, was responsible for the Letelier murder, according to the confessed hit man. And a top-secret Senate report raises the possibility that DINA, carrying on under a new name after Pinochet "reformed" it, is perpetrating SS-type brutalities at a Nazi enclave called "The Colony" at Parral, Linares Province, Chile.

"An informed source indicated that DINA has maintained a detention center inside The Colony, and there are allegations that torture has taken place there," the secret report states. "Allegations also have been made that German personnel, who are described as ex-Gestapo and ex-SS officers, have given instruction in torture techniques and have actually taken part in the application of these techniques."

The Colony, a commune officially named "La Dignidad" ("Noble Bearing"), was established on a 3,000-acre tract by refugee German Luftwaffe officers at the end of World War II. CIA sources have identified the leader as Franz Pfeiffer Richter, referred to as "The Commander." He runs The Colony in military fashion; the men wear uniforms and maintain close ties with Chilean military officials, particularly with Chilean Air Force officers.

"The Colony maintains complete autonomy over its territory," the report states. "Investigations into its activities have always come to an abrupt halt."

The Colony's main source of livelihood for its 250 men, women and children is a large dairy farm. But it has "modern, sophisticated, German-made communications equipment which allows it to maintain contact with other pro-Nazi elements throughout South America and Europe," the report notes, adding: "The Colony has received large amounts of money over the years, probably from German Nazis."

And DINA, the Chilean military's tinhorn Gestapo, used The Colony's international contacts to further its murderous dirty work in foreign countries, the report concludes.

Adolf Hitler's "1,000-Year Reich" may not have perished in the rubble of Berlin after all.

PARAQUAT FLAP: The Great Parquat Flap may turn out to have been a tempest in a teapot.

For three years, marijuana smokers have been huffing and puffing over the U.S.-supported spraying of the herbicide paraquat on Mexican marijuana fields. Pro-pot lobbyists have charged that the State Department endangered the health of millions of marijuana users who have inhaled the weed-killer's residue in the hallucinogenic smoke of their favorite weed.

But the results of scientific tests by the respected Mount Sinai School of Medicine show that, even at incredibly high levels of ingestion, "there is no difference in (the) effects of...paraquat and marijuana alone."

While warning that marijuana smoke is toxic, the researchers found that "the residual paraquat coming over as smoke does not increase this effect..."

Mount Sinai's report to the National Institute on Drug Abuse, made available to House Narcotics Chairman Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., says that "the tentative conclusion is that paraquat at 1,000 and 5,000 parts per million does not increase the toxicity of marijuana smoke."

To reach a paraquat level of only 500 parts per million, a marijuana user would have to smoke more than 100 "joints" per day, congressional researchers calculated.

Even at an almost impossible level of 10,000 parts per million, paraquat may cause increased white-cell accumulation, "but this is no greater than with tobacco cigarette smoke exposure," the report states.

Zig-zag in Korea

Prudent advice has prevailed upon President Carter to halt his planned withdrawal of U.S. combat troops from South Korea.

Just as the Truman administration erred a generation ago by failing to include South Korea in a description of the U.S. defense perimeter in Asia, so the Carter pullout of troops was giving America's foes the wrong message. The Truman-era gaffe was misread by North Korea and the Soviet Union as an invitation. The North Koreans invaded the South, and the United States responded with troops and the painful and costly Korean War ensued.

Mr. Carter froze his withdrawal plans after new assessments of North Korean military strength revealed a greater superiority over the South than previously had been believed. With 600,000 men under arms, 2,000 tanks and a powerful air force, Communist North Korea is a militarized society, aggressively committed to unifying the two Koreas by force.

The North Korean threat, combined with the general unrest in Southeast Asia, had led both South Korea and Japan to urge caution on Mr. Carter. His response was most appropriate.

North Korea's strongly negative reaction to his decision was predictable. Its offer to negotiate a bilateral peace treaty with the United States, ignoring South Korea, is further evidence, if any is needed, of a continuing hostile intention toward its neighbor.

History has shown that the United States serves the cause of peace by giving unmistakable evidence of its determination to resist aggression against its allies.

The withdrawal of U.S. combat soldiers in Korea was giving all the wrong signals and casting doubt upon this resolve. Reversal of the plan was very much in order.

INSIDE REPORT:

Jordan's forms are booed, but president only smiles

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — After President Carter lectured worried sub-cabinet officers on the necessity for absolute loyalty during his July 24 meeting with them, one official rose to declare that — loyalty or no loyalty — Hamilton Jordan's job evaluation forms were ridiculous.

The lone critic was Secretary of the Army Clifford Alexander, a Washington lawyer who once ran for mayor of the District of Columbia and before that served on Lyndon B. Johnson's White House staff. He complained that the forms for evaluating administration officials appointed by the president, Jordan's first move as White House chief of staff, were "unprofessional" and "sophomoric."

Alexander was expressing the thoughts of scores of his colleagues who were too worried about their jobs to say so to the president's face. "Cliff showed a lot of guts," one assistant confided to us, "but maybe I would, too, if I were handsome, brilliant and black."

Carter reacted to Alexander's complaint with a smile but did not back down. He contended that "I could do better" and so could everybody else in the administration. Jordan's "fitness forms" (as the president called them) were merely an instrument toward that end. Earlier, he had vigorously defended Jordan as chief of staff, detailing the long and intimate political relationship between the president and his top aide.

A footnote: Besides his demand for absolute loyalty, the president's principal message to the sub-Cabinet officials was that he and his administration had been transformed by the Camp David meetings. Before then, Carter said, he had been talking but nobody had been listening.

Evans

CALIFANO'S SIN

Without naming him, President Carter took a hard swing at Joseph Califano as secretary of health, education and welfare, at the famous July 17 Cabinet meeting that set the stage for mass firings. Beginning his recital of alleged shortcomings and failures by his Cabinet, Carter looked directly at Califano and said, in effect: How do you think I felt when a governor told me up at Camp David that a member of my Cabinet had come into his state and made two major announcements of government grants — without once mentioning Jimmy Carter?

Neither governor nor state was named. But there was no question

Califano was the Cabinet member Carter had in mind, and loyalty was the unspoken charge.

Califano was shaken. But not nearly so much as a few days later, after he was fired, when he was called a liar.

A footnote: Insiders are convinced that Carter's rough handling of Califano will drive him publicly into Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's corner for the presidential nomination. Califano, they say, is bent on revenge.

BAKER'S SALT PITCH

Although Sen. Howard Baker declares his opposition to the SALT II treaty is in no way political, a private new fund-raising appeal for his presidential campaign has an overriding flavor.

The senator's letter, signed "Howard," warned that he must now "drastically curtail" travel in behalf of the Republican presidential nomination. "I'm going to stay in Washington to lead the fight in the Senate against the dangerous SALT II arms treaty negotiated by the Carter administration," he told previous campaign contributors. "That means the flow of critically needed campaign funds will slow dramatically."

Therefore, he urged these past givers to reach deep for as much as possible up to the overall $1,000 limit, in hopes of raising an extra $81,500 by Aug. 17 — and hurry. "Everyday that goes by during the SALT debates without hearing from you puts my campaign that much further behind schedule financially," Baker admonished his friends.

SENATORIAL TV BLACKOUT

Although President Carter's senior aides considered his prime-time televised news conference of July 25 one of his most important public appearances, many Democratic senators did not bother to watch.

Their ready-made excuse was Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd's annual party for his Democratic Senate colleagues. "I guess we could have gotten a TV set and watched, but nobody bothered," one senator told us. The "nobody" included the president of the Senate: Vice President Walter Mondale.

Carter strategists hoped the press conference would wipe away the aftertaste of the Cabinet shuffle. But it may have been just as well that the senators were not watching. Carter's blunt put-down of Sen. Henry M. Jackson would have offended many.

Begin returns home after minor stroke

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin returned home today after a minor stroke and 15 days in Hadassah Hospital. "I feel well," the government leader told reporters. "I suppose I will need more rest, but I feel I will be able to return to my daily work in about a week."

Begin will be 66 on Aug. 13. His doctors said a clot blocked a small artery in Begin's brain, causing dizziness and partial loss of vision. They said his peripheral vision may be permanently impaired.

Begin spoke in a slightly weak and raspy voice, but he walked unaided, smiled often and appeared in good spirits. He appeared to have lost weight.

"The doctors told me I should consider myself a lucky man that the artery was small," he said. "Were it a larger one, perhaps it would have been a serious situation."

Dr. Sylvan Lavie, who headed the prime minister's medical team, said the blood clot did not affect his mind, and he was expected to carry on his duties without impairment.

Vietnam leader defects to China

HONG KONG (AP) — Hoang Van Hoan, deputy chairman of the Vietnamese National Assembly, has defected to China, The Far Eastern Economic Review reported.

A Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman in Peking told Japan's Kyodo news agency, "We cannot say anything now. Please wait (for an official announcement) for a while."

The Vietnamese Embassy in Peking said, "So far we are not informed. We know nothing about him."

Israeli troops kill seven guerrillas

EL AVI, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops killed at least seven Arab guerrillas in raids during the night on two Palestinian bases in southern Lebanon, the Israeli military command said today.

There was no immediate comment from the Palestinian command in Beirut.

A spokesman in Tel Aviv said their were no Israeli casualties in the attacks in the Kaoukaba region, in the rolling hills of southern Lebanon about nine miles northeast of the Israeli border town of Metulla. He claimed the bases were used as launchpads for guerrillas attack inside Israel and said Israeli border settlements had been shelled from the area.

Iranians vote for representatives

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iranians began voting today for representatives to an assembly of experts who will formulate and ratify a new constitution for this Persian Gulf nation but many leading political groups were boycotting the balloting, casting serious doubts on how representative it will be.

The weather was clear with long lines seen at some of Tehran's voting centers. About 17,000 voting centers have been set up around the country to accommodate the 20 million persons expected to vote.

The minimum voting age was 16. Voters had to produce their birth certificates in order to receive ballots.

Successor to PLO leader named

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A former Syrian air force general has been named to succeed slain Palestinian guerrilla leader Zuhair Mohsen as the chief tactician of the Palestine Liberation Organization, a PLO group announced today.

A statement issued by the Syrian-controlled Saïqa guerrilla army, one of the eight armed groups in the PLO alliance, said Maj. Gen. Mohammed Azzam, the former deputy commander of the Syrian air force, would take over Mohsen's PLO post. Mohsen's other posts in the command of the Saïqa — Thunderbolt — guerrilla army were divided among three men, including his brother Majed, the statement said.

Jackson sees end to apartheid

NEW YORK (AP) — Describing South Africa as both a "treasure and tragedy," the Rev. Jesse Jackson predicts that the "anti-human phenomenon of apartheid" would end in his lifetime.

The black activist cites growing internal and external forces within the country as reasons for his confident statement.

Jackson spoke at a news conference Thursday night after returning from a two-week trip to South Africa, where he met and spoke with government officials, black ministers, students, and American and African business leaders.

Internally, he said a growing number of white South Africans were beginning to see the "futility" of apartheid.

Nicaraguan prisoners are 'well-treated'

EDITOR'S NOTE — On Wednesday, Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., a longtime friend and supporter of exiled Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza, charged that the Sandinista rebels who ousted Somoza last month were executing thousands of his national guard troops and their families. On Thursday, Associated Press reporter Gordon Mott was given a guided tour of a prison near Managua where about 3,200 national guardsmen are held. Here is his report:

TIPITAPA, Nicaragua (AP) — National guardsmen and civilians held at the Modelo Prison here say they are being well treated by their Sandinista jailers, but they complain of overcrowding, inadequate food and failing sanitation.

Reporters were given a guided tour of the jail on Thursday, one day after Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., a longtime friend of exiled Nicaraguan strongman Anastasio Somoza, charged at a Washington news conference that the Sandinistas were executing thousands of guardsmen and their families here.

None of the prisoners interviewed by reporters said he knew of the alleged executions.

Built to hold 800 inmates, Modelo is now crammed with about 3,200 men. Most are guardsmen who surrendered to the Sandinistas after Somoza fled into exile July 18.

Many prisoners claim they are civilians but the Sandinistas say all the prisoners were in some way connected with the Somoza government.

"We are like dogs here," said one captive guardsman. "They are not torturing us physically, but they are torturing us spiritually and morally by keeping us hungry. They are killing our spirit."

But most prisoners had few complaints about their jailers.

"We are being well-treated," said one man. "Some of the guards threaten us verbally, but for the most part they are good people."

Ulrich Bedert, chief of the International Red Cross relief effort in Nicaragua, acknowledged that conditions were very bad at this jail and the others around the country where a total of 4,500 national guardsmen are held.

"It is a matter of the Sandinistas being disorganized and not a case of bad intentions," he said. "We understand the situation and are trying to help even though it really isn't our function to feed prisoners in this kind of situation."

The Red Cross is supplying all the food to the prison. Inmates get one meal a day of rice, beans, one egg, sugar and milk. They complain of constant hunger, claim the portions are too small and say they sometimes have to wait up to 30 hours between meals.

Some prisoners also complained that the Sandinistas were not bringing them food that their families were leaving at the prison gates, or that the parcels had been pilfered. But on Thursday, reporters were shown a room full of family parcels and saw young boys distributing them to the various cells.

The prison commander, a former guerrilla officer who identified himself only as Roland, rejected the prisoners' complaints about the food and said his men were eating the same quantities, in the same quantities, as the inmates.

Sandinistas officials at the prison said they were trying to get things better organized so conditions will improve. They allowed relatives to visit prisoners for the first time on Thursday and hundreds of women lined up outside the prison to spend 15 minutes with their men.

The Sandinistas say they will review the case of each guardsman. If they are cleared of crimes under the Somoza regime they will be freed, one official said. If not they will remain behind bars, he added. Officials say the review process has begun, but they admit it may be several months before all the cases can be checked.

"I'm not afraid," said a former combat veteran. "I was just a soldier following orders. I joined the guard out of necessity to earn a salary and feed my family. The real culprits have fled the country."

Several prisoners said it was useless to keep them in jail. They said they should be freed to help with the reconstruction of their war-torn land. But others said they wanted only to leave Nicaragua, because they would be no guarantees for the safety if they were freed.

Dr. Luis Caldera Gigio, a Sandinista doctor treating prison inmates, said he sees more than 200 men a day.

Haskell V. Jobe

Haskell V. Jobe

Haskell V. Jobe, 62, Star Route B, box 4C, Valley View Mobile Home Park, died today in a Midland hospital after a long illness.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Sunday in the First Assembly of God Church with the Rev. Raymond Schaeffer, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Jobe was born Jan. 11, 1917, in Utica, Okla. He moved with his family as an infant to the Seminole area and attended schools in Andrews until 1936.

He served in Europe in World War II, and returned to Midland after his discharge in 1945. He was married to Inez Pittman in Midland in 1942.

Jobe worked for a number of years with Caffey Appliance and White's Auto Store, then worked for the American National Life Insurance Co. For the past seven years, he had been with the TRW Reda Pump. He was a member of the First Assembly of God Church.

Survivors include his wife; three sons, Loyd P. Jobe, Ronald Jobe and Donald Jobe, all of Houston; two daughters, Dorothy Nelson of Midland and Betty Jobe of Houston; three brothers, Loyd R. Jobe, Quanah P. Jobe and Roy Jobe, all of Midland; six sisters, Mary Ridens of Seminole, Otha Hamm of Brownfield, Ofie Cude of Fort Orchard, Wash., Lorine Morgan of Baldwin Park, Calif., Tinnie Mae Goza of Wellman and Almeda Dickey of Lubbock, and six grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be directed to the Midland Diagnostic Cancer Clinic.

Services for Jim H. "Frostie" Truelove, 92, 303 E. Washington Ave., were to be at 2 p.m. today in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with Elder Alec Sabo of Jehovah's Witnesses officiating. Burial was to be in Fairview Cemetery.

Truelove died Thursday in a Midland hospital.

He was born Sept. 6, 1886, in Hope, Ark.

Truelove moved to Midland in 1907 and was a cowboy on the Scharbauer Ranch. He later was a farmer and a printer. He served in the Army during World War I.

He was a member of Jehovah's Witnesses.

Survivors include three sons, Leonard Truelove of Odessa and Jim Truelove and Joe Truelove, both of Midland; three daughters, Mrs. J.A. McKandless of Odessa and Mrs. J.D. Wilson and Mrs. Rusk Saverance, both of Midland; 18 grandchildren, 19 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were to be Mike McCarthy, Ensel Cockrell, Roy Rice, Neal Baker, John David and Frank Davis.

Claude Griffin

BIG SPRING — Claude G. Griffin, 86, of Big Spring died Thursday in a Big Spring hospital.

Services will be at 4 p.m. Saturday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial Park.

Griffin was born Oct. 15, 1892, in Hartsell, Ala., and had lived in Big Spring since 1923. He was a member of the First Baptist Church. He was married to Lillie Simmons in 1918 in Fort Worth.

Griffin worked for the Texas & Pacific Railroad as a wrecker engineer and car inspector for 40 years before retiring in 1958.

Survivors include his wife; a son, C.G. Griffin Jr. of Big Spring; a daughter, Mrs. John (Ruth) Bennett of Big Spring; two sisters, Silvia McMillan of Abilene and Bessie Reeves of Santa Anna, five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

V. Dieringer Sr.

Victor Herbert Dieringer Sr., 58, 3610 Boyd Ave., died Wednesday at his home following a brief illness.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Thomas Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Glenneth Harrington of Monahans officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Dieringer was born July 5, 1921, in High Hill and was married Aug. 1, 1944. He was a World War II veteran of the U.S. Navy.

He had lived in Midland 29 years. Dieringer worked in the petroleum industry.

Survivors include the wife, Margaret; two sons, Victor Herbert

Dieringer Jr. of Houston and Wayne Gene Dieringer of Austin; three daughters, Marsha Sue Dieringer of Houston, and Denise Ann Dieringer and Pamela Kay Dieringer, both of Midland; two brothers, Wilbert Dieringer of San Angelo and Werner Dieringer of Schulenburg, and a sister, Mrs. James Tobola of Swiss Alp.

Leader of Peru dead at 84

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Victor Haya de la Torre, the elder statesman of Latin American democracy who never achieved the goal he most wanted — the presidency of Peru — is dead at the age of 84.

He died Thursday night after a long bout with lung cancer complicated by heart and neurological problems. He received medical treatment in Houston, Texas, in March and was confined to his home outside Lima the last few months.

His death was announced early today by the party he founded, the Popular American Revolutionary Alliance, or APRA.

The alliance was launched in Mexico City in 1924 as a Latin American movement against capitalism. It embraced Marxism but not Soviet-style communism, which it deemed inappropriate for Latin Americans.

Since then Haya de la Torre's writings on political theory, economics and history has had great influence throughout the continent.

Present-day political parties that were based on APRA ideas include Venezuela's Democratic Action, National Liberation in Costa Rica and Uruguay's Febrista Movement.

John Cooper 'roasted' by Rotarians

John E. Cooper, a long-time member and past president of the Downtown Rotary Club, who is moving to Orange, was "roasted" by his fellow Rotarians at the club's Thursday noon meeting in the Midland Hilton.

He also received the club's exclusive "Magnet of Harris" award, the fourth ever to be presented, as two of the three previous awardees, L. Roy Prescott and Jim Zimmerman, looked on.

The program was arranged by Parker Humes, who spoke briefly before introducing the participants. Those taking part in the roasting were George Farris, C.C. Dakil, Richard Mendenhall, Jim Crowder, Ted Kerr and Zimmerman. The honoree responded briefly.

Cooper, a 32-year resident of Midland, has been a member of the club for 24 years, during which time he has maintained a perfect attendance record. He served as general chairman of the Rotary district conference held here in 1977.

Cooper has resigned his position as vice president of The Midland National Bank to accept an executive position with a bank at Orange.

Pessimism could worsen recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer pessimism about the economy is rapidly turning into outright alarm, a change that will worsen the recession, says a Gallup economist.

The public has been very pessimistic since November, said Jay Schmiedeskamp, director of the Gallup Economic Service. "Now, though, they're saying, 'Oh, My God, the recession is finally here.'"

People who believe that a decline in consumer spending will be soon are "dead wrong," said Schmiedeskamp, whose service prepares economic analyses for corporate customers. Unlike many other researchers, Schmiedeskamp bases studies heavily on surveys.

The Carter administration's acknowledgment Thursday that inflation and recession would be worse than originally forecast will "reinforce" that consumer alarm, Schmiedeskamp said in a telephone interview from Princeton, N.J.

An administration internal memo said joblessness will exceed 8 percent by the end of 1980 rather than the 6.9 percent forecast earlier, output in 1979 will decline 1.4 percent instead of 0.5 percent, and inflation will average 11 percent through 1979.

Schmiedeskamp said the recession will be "worse than mild" because businessmen weren't properly prepared for the downturn and consumers are too far into debt to resume heavy retail purchases for some time.

As early as last November, Gallup surveys showed consumers were losing confidence in the economy. About 40 percent polled in October expected bad times during the next 12 months. In November, that figure rose to 58 percent. In June, it reached 66 percent, Schmiedeskamp said.

"This occurred at the same time people had very little confidence the government could do much about the economy," he said. Only 6 percent of Americans believed the government will do a good job in economic policy, a June Gallup survey showed. Forty percent termed the government's performance poor.

Gallup's findings are echoed by the private Conference Board, which said this week consumer confidence was at its lowest point since the spring of 1975.

"The measure of consumer confidence, which began sending distress signals last fall, has now declined by more than one-third since October," said Fabian Linder, a Conference Board official. Americans' plans to buy cars and major appliances tumbled in July, the research group's survey of 5,000 households showed.

Sen. Kennedy offers bill outlawing cheap pistols

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy today introduced gun-control legislation that would outlaw the cheap handguns most often used in crimes and tighten restrictions on the sale of other weapons.

The Massachusetts Democrat, whose brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was assassinated with a pistol in 1968, is sponsoring the bill at the request of gun-control forces who accused President Carter of renegeing on a campaign promise to champion their cause.

The proposal immediately drew praise from gun-control advocates but the wrath of the gun lobby. The Gun Owner of America called it an "outrageous effort to disarm the American people."

The new bill would: —Ban the manufacture, importing and all trading in "Saturday night specials," cheap, easily concealed handguns. A 1968 law passed after the slayings of Robert Kennedy and civil rights leader

Martin Luther King Jr., bans importation of these guns but allows assembly in this country of foreign-produced parts.

—Establish a definition of "Saturday night specials" based on how easily such weapons can be concealed and on their potential for crime rather than sporting use.

—Require police departments to verify the eligibility of handgun purchasers. Federal law already prohibits purchases by criminals, the insane and certain other people and requires buyers to fill out identification forms, but does not require that the information be verified.

—Require that all handgun transfers, whether the original purchase or later sales, take place through licensed dealers. While someone owning a handgun would be free to keep it, its disposal would be regulated.

Gasohol sales brisk

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Gasoline distributors from around the country are clamoring for the 200-proof alcohol needed to make gasohol, and the Georgia-Pacific plant here is straining to keep up with demand.

The plant already is supplying customers in Nebraska, California, Oregon and Washington with alcohol manufactured from waste materials.

"The demand is more than we are able to supply," says Jan Draut, the plant's production manager.

Georgia-Pacific produces about 5.5 million gallons of alcohol a year, about 2 million gallons of which is gasohol grade, he said.

But that's not enough to meet demand. In the Northwest alone, the federal Department of Energy estimates a potential demand of 4 million gallons per month for gasohol-grade alcohol by 1982.

The 200-proof alcohol sells for $1.49 a gallon. Mixing it with gasoline, which before taxes sells for about 50 cents a gallon, seems at first glance like extending hamburger with steak.

There are bonuses, however, that make it attractive to drivers, distributors and manufacturers.

Gasohol can be burned in most cars without engine modifications and it boosts octane ratings by two or three points.

The Department of Energy is allocating more gasoline to gasohol dealers. Gasohol is 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent alcohol.

Federal excise taxes on gasohol have been reduced by 4 cents a gallon. Some state have also reduced excise taxes on gasohol.

PSYCHIC PROBE

William Conrad is a doctor who is convinced that the secret to patient Susan Saint James' problems lies buried in her terrifying nightmares in "Night Cries," a suspense thriller which has an encore showing on "The ABC Friday Night Movie," Aug. 3.

After losing her baby in childbirth, a young mother insists she can hear the child crying. Despite the discouragement of her husband and doctor, she persists in following her psychic hunch.

Bullet traced to Jesse James

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Jesse James expert says a bullet unearthed during an excavation at the James farm last year is the slug that wounded the outlaw after an aborted bank holdup in Minnesota 103 years ago.

"Jesse was carrying this bullet in his leg the day he was murdered — five years after the holdup," said Milton Perry, superintendent of historic sites for Clay County in Missouri.

The slug was uncovered by archaeologists digging into Jesse's original grave nearly a year ago and has been a point of controversy since. Some said it could be the bullet that killed Jesse in 1881; others said it could not.

Perry spent nine months studying the slug and historical documents before releasing his conclusions in an interview this week.

The nine-member James Gang ventured out of its usual territory in 1876 to rob a bank in Northfield, Minn. But the citizens there organized quickly when the strangers arrived in town.

A hail of gunfire greeted gang members when they stepped out of the bank. Three were shot to death in the street and five others surrendered or were captured a short time later. Only Jesse and his brother Frank escaped.

Perry says historical accounts indicate the James brothers tried to steal a horse from a Minnesota farmer a short time after the holdup. But the farmer fired at the brothers. The bullet passed through Frank's leg and struck Jesse's leg.

"It remained in his body, but that's not unusual," Perry said. "The evidence indicates Jesse was walking with a limp five years later, shortly before he was killed."

Language slows deaf-mute's trial

DALLAS (AP) — A deaf-mute, who is taking a crash course in sign language so he can understand the murder charges against him, will go before a Dallas grand jury Aug. 21.

Although a tentative trial date of Sept. 7 has been set for Jerome Fisher if he is indicted, prosecution and defense attorneys have said the trial could be delayed up to a year because of the difficulties in communication.

Judge James Zimmerman, who Wednesday reduced Fisher's bond from $25,000 to $5,000, also set an examining trial for early August.

Fisher's older sister, Lillian Mills, made the bond and Fisher was released.

"When I wanted him to wash the dishes, I would take him over and show him," she said. "He would do it."

Fisher's plight is an eerie parallel to that of Donald Lang of Chicago, whose story was made into a recent television movie.

Lang's conviction for a 1972 killing was overturned because he was found unfit for trial and unable to aid in his own defense. The Illinois Supreme Court ruled that the state Department of Mental Health had to teach Lang how to communicate so he could be retried. The department is appealing the order to the U.S. Supreme Court, contending it has no responsibility because Lang is not mentally ill. Before that conviction, Lang spent six years in a mental hospital after being found unfit for trial in a 1965 prostitute killing. He eventually was released because the witnesses died.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Biofeedback can be useful therapy

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine has suffered from a bad back for about 10 years. After going from one doctor to another without any improvement, he is now thinking of trying biofeedback. What is your opinion of this kind of therapy? — Mr. G.S.

Dear Mr. S: In certain conditions biofeedback can be an effective form of treatment when practiced by a competent therapist and supervised within a medical framework. A number of stress-related ailments are amenable to treatment without medication. These include such disorders as chronic tension headaches, low back pain, and insomnia. In the absence of an organic basis for these conditions, any therapy that helps a patient relax — whether biofeedback, meditation, or relaxation techniques — may prove effective.

Dr. Kenneth Greenspan, director of the Laboratory for Stress-Related Disorders at the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, says that the goal of nondrug procedures is to help the patient unwind. Meditative breathing, for example, is simply a slow, relaxed pattern of breathing, where the diaphragm moves instead of the chest.

Relaxation methods focus on the body's muscle groups, which are alternately tensed and relaxed. Other relaxation exercises involve an awareness of which muscles are tense, and an effort to relax them. The biofeedback approach employs machines that are attached to some part of the body, which alert the patient through sounds or graphs to alterations in muscle tension, body temperature, and other natural functions.

These techniques require competent therapists. Before submitting to any such measures, the patient should have a complete medical and psychological evaluation. A treatment center willing to accept someone for treatment without such a workup is probably a good place to stay away from since serious medical problems can result from improper use of these techniques.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Why would a child who has never lacked anything engage in shoplifting? — Mrs. M.S.

Dear Mrs. S: There is no simple answer as to why a child steals. But Drs. Murray Kappelman and Paul Ackerman, in their book "Signals," explain that some children steal because they feel it is the only way they can gain the attention they so desperately crave. In this instance, then, the shoplifting is a "signal," while the item stolen is of little significance.

In an example cited by the authors, a 14-year-old boy with three overachieving brothers resorted to shoplifting to force his parents to pay attention to him. Fortunately, the parents interpreted their son's signal correctly, responded constructively, and took steps to eliminate the need for him to repeat his antisocial act.

Carter's synthetic fuel plan may be 'wasteful boondoggle': Engineers

DETROIT (AP) — Although auto engineers appear to welcome President Carter's synthetic fuels program, some fear it may turn into a wasteful boondoggle.

"I don't know what took so long," said Joseph B. Bidwell, executive director of the General Motors Corp. research laboratories, whose company has been urging a start on a synthetic fuel industry for 14 months.

But Bidwell added, "All of a sudden, everybody wants to do something in that area. If we do too much, too soon, we might spoil the whole thing."

The president's program, calling for commitment of $88 billion to produce 2.5 million barrels a day in 1990, is "a potential lifesaver for the United States over the long run, sustaining employment and our mobility," said Jacques Maroni, director of environmental research and engineering planning for Ford Motor Co.

Of the 8.5 million barrels a day of imported oil, transportation uses about half, with that half about equally divided between cars and all other forms — trucks, trains, buses and airplanes.

The consensus emerging from interviews with top technical executives in the Big Three companies is that mining oil shale, found mostly in Colorado, Wyoming and Utah, is the best place to start, because the technology is well-developed, the price of shale-produced petroleum would be closest to that of natural petroleum, existing refineries could be used, and synthetic fuels from that source would take less energy to produce than synthetic fuels from coal.

Bidwell said that shale is so close to economic feasibility that subsidies should be needed only to absorb the startup risk. "A declining subsidy scheme makes sense," he said.

He added that a 2.5 million barrels-per-day goal "may be more grandiose than it need be."

"We can build a viable shale industry of 500,000 barrels a day — 10 plants. We can learn a heck of a lot from that — we have to solve environmental problems, supply problems, people problems," he said.

The environmental problems of shale "are not insurmountable," said Bidwell. "You can restore the land," he said. "We've been learning how in the strip mining industry."

Maroni said the president's program left out one essential — decontrol of gasoline prices. "Industry, dealers and the public at large would be better served if prices at the pump were allowed to float up and down. If there's hardship, handle it another way — fuel stamps, perhaps, like food stamps."

Making clear that he was speaking for himself and not his company, Maroni said he would advise Congress "to let the private companies do it. A government program in peacetime cannot do it without wartime cohesion. I fear a pork barrel, and we'll risk $88 billion."

"Rather, we should require the oil companies by 1985 to include a small percentage of 'local content' (synthetics) in their fuel. That could be increased. That would avoid the necessity of the terribly difficult process of picking a liquid and would get the best out of the companies."

Maroni added that in the long term, pure alcohol fuel — methanol — made from coal "is more environmentally benign." He said work on coal should be pursued along with that on shale.

That long term would give the industry time to modify engines to use methanol, as GM already is doing in Brazil.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE
The Impossible Hope

By Alfred Sheinwold

You can't play bridge on the assumption that nothing good will ever happen. But don't hope for what you know is impossible.

Declarer played dummy's ten of hearts and won with the ace over East's jack. South discarded a heart on a high club, drew trumps and led a heart toward dummy's queen.

When this forlorn hope failed, South had to try a diamond finesse. This lost, and South was down one.

South really knew that the hearts were sour. He should not stake his slam on the diamond finesse.

DIAMOND BREAK

South should take two trumps and then both high diamonds. If the queen falls, he is home. When nothing good happens, South takes the clubs to discard a diamond, ruffs a diamond high and leads a trump to dummy's ten to draw the missing trump. He then discards hearts on the good diamonds.

The odds are better than two to one that the diamonds will break 3-2, far better than the even chance that East has the queen of diamonds.

ANSWER: Bid one heart. If partner doesn't like hearts you probably have a home in clubs. If partner opened with one diamond or one spade you would pass.

Bulldozers, bombers and fighters mobilize to battle forest fire

By The Associated Press

Helicopters, bulldozers, B-17 bombers and hundreds of firefighters have been mobilized to fight a blaze raging across thousands of acres of the Kootenai National Forest in Montana — one of a rash of fires burning in the Northwest.

In Oregon, two fires burned out of control on 3,000 acres of forest and range land in and near the Warm Springs Indian Reservation in the north-central part of the state. And in Washington state, as fire crews mopped up one blaze Thursday, two others flared up.

Kootenai Forest officials said they hoped to contain the fire today, relying on an expected change in the weather to relieve an estimated 600 weary firefighters working round-the-clock.

The blaze, already the largest of the state's fire season, may have been touched off by exhaust from a chain saw, fire investigator Bob Brown said.

Crews from the four other national forests were called in, and an 80-man crew from the St. Regis Paper Co. joined the effort, in an area where the company had contracted for timber harvesting.

Indian firefighters from the Blackfeet, Crow and Northern Cheyenne reservations also joined the fire lines in extreme northwest Montana, near the Idaho Panhandle.

On Thursday, one residence in heavy timber area south of Libby was destroyed, five families in the path of the fire were evacuated, and another 25 families moved out until the fire danger passed.

Officials said three other fires — all apparently set — were reported north of Libby in the Pipe Creek area. None was considered too bothersome and one was extinguished quickly, officials said.

In Oregon, two blazes were threatening homes in an isolated region south of The Dalles.

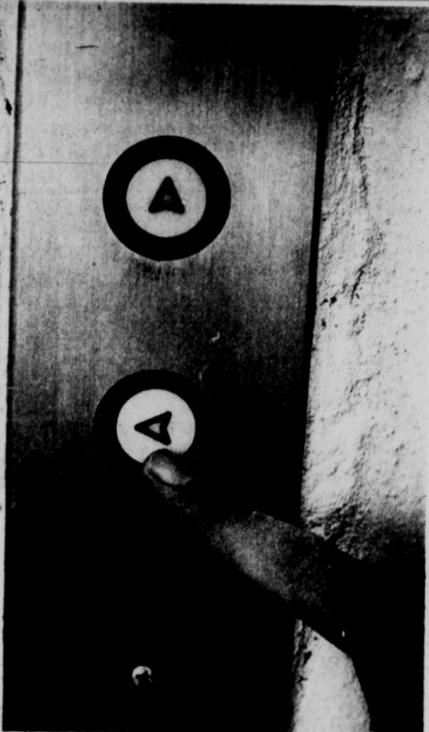

The larger fire burned about 2,000 acres on the Warm Springs reservation, about 20 miles north of the town of Warm Springs. Tribal officials say the fire was set, but the exact cause was not known.

A few miles north, another fire burned out of control on some 1,000 acres of private timberland near Pine Grove. That blaze began when a gasoline truck caught fire four miles west of Pine Grove.

In Washington, fire bosses reported that a forest fire broke out near Concrete and that the Salmon Creek fire near Okanogan flared briefly again

Thursday — just as the Slide Ridge fire northwest of Chelan was contained.

Charles Kirry, spokesman for the state Department of Natural Resources, said the Concrete fire burned 200 to 300 acres as it headed for standing timber. The cause was being investigated.

That sometimes misdirection of the federal government seems to have taken a new turn. Marked buttons for an elevator stop on the second floor of the George Mahon Federal Building, 100 E. Wall St., may cause a Midlander or two to believe they can't get down from that floor by elevator — only up or sideways. (Staff Photo)

Gambler says he put life on line for Chagra's drugs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An El Paso man says he flew to Colombia for Las Vegas gambler Jimmy Chagra, connected for 13.2 pounds of high quality cocaine and put his life on the line as collateral so Chagra could receive the dope on credit.

Henry Wallace testified Wednesday under an immunity from prosecution. Cross-examination by Chagra's attorneys was expected today.

Chagra, 34, is charged with being the kingpin of a conspiracy to smuggle marijuana and cocaine into the United States from Colombia.

He could receive 10 years to life imprisonment if convicted of a "continuing criminal enterprise" count, plus a $100,000 fine and confiscation of any profits he made from the illicit drug trade.

Wallace said he not only helped Chagra smuggle cocaine but also arranged to have 30,000 tons of marijuana — later seized off the Florida coast by federal authorities — shipped from Colombia on Chagra's behalf.

He said he met Chagra in the summer of 1977 in connection with a shipment of marijuana flown from Mexico.

"My first words to Mr. Chagra were, 'Are you the boss? Are you Mr. Chagra?'" Wallace said.

"What did he reply?" asked Assistant U.S. Attorney Carl Pierce of San Antonio.

"Yes," Wallace said. Some weeks later, he said, Chagra came to Wallace's home in Berino, N.M., and "asked my help with a plan he had ... to import six kilos of cocaine from Colombia." A kilo is 2.2 pounds.

He said Chagra told him he needed the money to pay income taxes. He said Chagra was having trouble with the Internal Revenue Service and was "afraid of being indicted."

Wallace said he rounded up "capital" and an airplane for the venture, then found that Chagra wanted him to go to Colombia to make the connection for the drug. He said he flew to Colombia in October 1977.

"Did you actually obtain the cocaine?" Pierce asked.

"Yes, ... from Raul Royce, with Leonel Gomez Cardenas acting as intermediary," Wallace replied. Royce, he testified, told him Chagra had been "his American connection for several years."

Bulldozer attack stems from debt

PICO RIVERA, Calif. (AP) — A 43-year-old Pico Rivera man has been arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon — for allegedly trying to knock down a house with a bulldozer in a dispute over a $400 debt.

Los Angeles County Sheriff's deputies said 43-year-old John R. Albitre also faces a charge of felonious malicious mischief in the incident.

Officers said Albitre and 32-year-old Fred Garcia had been arguing late Wednesday about $400 that Albitre claimed Garcia owed him. Garcia claimed he owed nothing.

Stamps may cost $700,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New Yorker's interest in selling stamps issued by the remote and tiny Cook Islands is costing him more than $700,000.

Finbar Kenny pleaded guilty Thursday on behalf of his company to violating the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act. He had been charged with paying $337,000 to a Cook Islands political party.

He's agreed to pay an equal sum to the Cook Islands government and a U.S. judge tossed in a $50,000 fine.

The charges stemmed from Kenny's business, which held an exclusive contract with the Cook Islands government to promote and distribute the nation's stamps.

U.S. government papers alleged that an agent for the premier of the Cook Islands Party, Sir Albert Henry, asked Kenny and his company to "subsidize the air transportation costs of the Cook Islands Party Supporters" — in other words, to fly them in from New Zealand to vote for Sir Albert.

Sir Albert won, but was "removed from office" when the votes of the 450 New Zealand voters were tossed out. The U.S. Justice Department, learning of the scandal, investigated and filed charges against Kenny.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel Webber to celebrate golden anniversary here

Mr. and Mrs. Noel Webber of Kerrville, formerly of Odessa, celebrate their 50th anniversary today.

An Open House is scheduled for 7 p.m. tonight at 2310 Seaboard St. Hosts will be one of the Webber's daughters, Mrs. Ed Moses, and family.

The former Lois Staton and Webber were married July 14, 1929, in Fairfield, Ill. They have two children, including Mrs. Moses and Mrs. M. H. McConnell of London, England. The couple also has six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

They lived in Oklahoma and Kansas from 1929 through 1940, moving to Odessa and residing there from 1940-1961. The couple lived in Wheat Ridge, Colo., from 1961 to April, 1979, and are currently residing in Kerrville.

Webber has been active in the retail department store business from which he retired in March, 1978. He is also a member of the Lion's Club.

They are affiliated with the Methodist church.

DEAR ABBY

He's alienated by foreigners

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I believe in helping foreigners by sending them aid in disasters such as earthquakes, floods and famine, but when I seem them overrunning our country by the hundreds of thousands, crowding us and taking jobs that should go to Americans, I object!

We feed, clothe and educate them when many of our own go without. Those bleeding heart liberals are going to ruin this country if they don't get tough and shut down immigration until we can take care of our own. Charity begins at home! I welcome your response.—AMERICA FIRST!

DEAR AMERICA FIRST: Unless you are a direct descendant of the American Indian, you would not be here if your forebears hadn't sought refuge from another country.

It would take more space than I am allowed in this column to explain why we must accept these homeless victims of war and oppression.

An America poet and essayist, Emma Lazarus (1849-1887), said it eloquently in her poem, "The New Colossus." It appears on the Statue of Liberty and reads, in part:

"Give me your tired, your poor
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore,
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door!"

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office with both men and women. When a co-worker says, "I heard a cute joke last night, but it's a little dirty. Do you want to hear it?" I say, "Sure," because I don't want to be known as a goody two-shoes.

Well, the joke is always dirtier than I thought it would be, and I'm embarrassed.

The women as well as the men in this office tell some pretty raunchy jokes, but I can't suddenly tell them I hate that kind of language. So how do I get my point across without sounding holier than thou?—OFFENDED IN CASA GRANDE, ARIZ.

DEAR OFFENDED: When you're asked if you want to hear a cute joke, be honest and say, "Not if it's X-rated."

DEAR ABBY: I'm going with a terrific guy. He has a driver's license, but doesn't own a car.

I have to pick him up at his place whenever we go anywhere. It didn't bother me at first, but it does since he told me the reason he doesn't have a car isn't because he can't afford one; he just doesn't want the headache of owning one.

He lives within walking distance of his job, so he walks to work and back, but when he wants to go somewhere, guess who takes him?

The problem is that I'm kind of old-fashioned. I think a guy should pick up the girl—most of the time anyway.

Should I forget my values and keep providing transportation? Or should I tell him how I feel? Sign me...RELUCTANT DRIVER.

DEAR RELUCTANT: Tell him how you feel before your resentment goes into overdrive.

DEAR ABBY: I have just started going steady with a guy I've been dating for a year.

What I want to know is, just how far is a girl expected to go when she is going steady?

I mean, how much do guys in general expect from this kind of relationship?—CONFIDENTIAL, PLEASE.

DEAR CON: What "guys in general" expect is not relevant. What YOUR guy expects is. Ask him.

Wedding bells in your future? Whether your lifestyle is bridal gown or blue jeans, Abby lays it all out for you in her booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Fashion show opens in theatrical atmosphere

By SUZY PATTERSON
AP Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP) — It was a trip to the Commedia dell'Arte, the Seville bull ring, a piroquette at the Ballet Russe as harlequins, toreros, and ballerinas came prancing down the runway at Yves Saint Laurent's couture show recently.

It was a huge and dramatic show, loaded with richness and color, the theatricality of Saint Laurent at his best. Saint Laurent said the Spanish and ballerina models were tributes to Diaghalev and Picasso. And Paloma Picasso was there to applaud with an enraptured audience.

It was not all Picasso, however, with lots of seven-eighths belted coats, some superb swirling princess coats in velvet, a lush use of furs like astrakhan, fox, lynx in trim on coats or capes.

There were plicated jacquard silk dresses in luminous fall colors, and plenty of lean skirts and suits in black velvet.

But the smash-hit suit was in large contrasting panels, both fitted short jackets and skirts. With a huge bow at the neck, or a shawl collar it looked great in royal blue and black or ribbed in white, with black velvet. It had a narrow but easy skirt, black pumps and stockings. It was called a "Picasso" suit, but it looked more like Mondrian.

This panelled look also showed up in evening wear in soft crepe dinner dresses.

It was all oboe! For the little torero outfits, dead-ringers for suits that El Cordobes might well drool over. Not exactly what you would wear to a barbecue, but they were sumptuous in black velvet, with their tight, bowed knickers or in all kinds of paillette-encrusted satin, or pastel lamé with a lacy jabot at the neck of the tight bolero. Some were topped by stiffened, flounced gazar capes, a winner in electric pink.

The harlequin theme — inspired presumably by Picasso's harlequin period — came out day to evening, first in a diamond-patterned and multi-colored suede coat, then in satin jacket toppers, finally in sensation-al soft long lame gowns.

Little clown touches included pierrat ruffles at neck and on sleeves, feathers in the hair. Another costumeey look liked by Saint Laurent was the "zouave" in all colors, combining velvet and silks, with huge ballooning pants, very pretty blouses with puffy long sleeves.

Along with all these stagey looks, Saint Laurent threw in rafts of rather sedate, well-cut lean cocktail dresses, mostly as velvet sheaths, with plenty of sparkly detail to keep them from looking like widows' weeds. Sweetheart or low squared or strapless necklines were paired with skirts that just grazed the knee, Saint-

Laurent's favorite length.

If you feel like pirouetting a la Plissetskaya, choose one of the Saint Laurent ballerina dresses, with net or taffeta stiffened, puffy, knee-length skirts, sometimes with a ruffled underskirt, always with very fitted "bustier" tops, with long sleeves, puffed at shoulder, narrowed at wrist, or strapless.

In combinations of lame and satin, net and silk, or spangled regally, they'll make you feel like the star of Swan Lake. The one with the orange contrasting shades, bowed at hip and off one shoulder. And Saint-Laurent used yards of ruffles again, and as usual could not resist the big ballgowns, with lame pastels, in sky blue or hot pink satin, and always elaborately accessorized with bracelets, bangles, silk tassels, neck ruffs and feathers.

Not many pants were shown, but everyone seemed to like the dressy, silk-piped black velvet suit whose jacket had long square tails. There were draped crepe dresses in solid

Recall set for infant feeding formula

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced Thursday that the manufacturer of two infant feeding formulas has agreed to recall the products, which have been blamed for a recent rash of illnesses.

The FDA said the recall involved formulas made by the Syntex Corp. under the brand names Neo-Mull-Soy and Cho-Free. The soybean-based formulas are given primarily to infants allergic to milk protein.

FDA officials said that the products did not contain sufficient amount of salt and this apparently resulted in a salt-deficiency sickness known as "metabolic alkalosis."

The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., reported that 31 infants from around the country, who were on the formula, had been hospitalized in recent weeks suffering from the illness.

Symptoms include failure to gain weight, loss of appetite, lethargy and constipation. The victims, all under nine months old, immediately got better after being taken off the formulas. No deaths were reported.

Nancy Glick, an FDA spokeswoman, said the recall covers three types of formula: Neo-Mull-Soy's ready-to-use and concentrated liquid formulas and Cho-Free formula.

Frank Koch, public affairs director for Syntex, based in Palo Alto, Calif., said the sick infants were treated with appropriate fluid and salt-replacement therapy. He said the problem was aggravated in children who don't get enough salt from other foods or who lose salt because of diarrhea, vomiting or heavy perspiration.

The FDA advised parents to immediately discontinue use of the products and return all unopened supplies to the store where they were purchased for a refund.

If the formula was prescribed by a doctor, the agency said to call the physician for another formula. The FDA said several safe alternatives were available.

Neapolitan Peppers for modern times

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

We were lucky enough to acquire an authentic Neapolitan recipe from Mrs. Lucy Capone to pass along to you. It's right in tune with the times. Those long and rather narrow light-green Italian frying peppers are given a bread stuffing made piquant with stuffed green olives and anchovies; then they're fried in a skillet. No meat needed for the stuffing. You don't have to turn on the oven.

MRS. LUCY CAPONE'S
NEAPOLITAN PEPPERS

7 to 8-ounce loaf (about 14 inches long) Italian bread (with sesame seeds on top and bottom)
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 cloves garlic (1 halved and 1 minced)
16-ounce can whole peeled tomatoes, undrained and partly crushed
1/4 teaspoon dried crushed basil
1/2 teaspoon dried crushed oregano
Ground black pepper to taste
1/2 cup pimiento-stuffed green olives, chopped medium-fine
2 tablespoons capers
6 flat anchovy fillets, cut up small (from a 2-ounce can)
10 light-green Italian frying peppers, each about 5 inches long (about 11/2 pounds)
1/2 cups salad oil

Cut bread in half lengthwise. Cut out or pull out all the soft part (leaving the 2 long crusts intact) and crumb soft bread coarsely — there should be 4 scant cups, loosely packed. Spread crumbs and let dry at room temperature. (Or dry in a preheated 250-degree oven — takes about 15 minutes.) From the crusts cut out 10 rounds wide enough to fit the top openings of the peppers. (You can use a small round cookie cutter to mark the crusts, then with a small sharp knife cut around the markings.) Tightly wrap bread rounds in saran and refrigerate so they won't dry out. (Use leftover crust in some other dish.)

In a 10-inch skillet gently heat olive oil with the halved garlic clove for about 5 minutes; discard garlic. Add minced garlic to the skillet and over low heat brown lightly.

Add tomatoes, basil, oregano and ground pepper; simmer, uncovered, for 30 minutes. Add olives, capers and anchovies; simmer, uncovered, for 30 minutes longer. Add crumbs and mix well with your fingers.

Cut a thin slice from the stem end of each pepper; seed, wash and dry with paper towels. (Use cutaway slices in some other dish.) Fill the top half (or more) of each pepper with 1/4 cup of the bread mixture; the end parts of the peppers will be empty. Fit the bread rounds, sesame seed sides out, into the pepper openings to hold in the stuffing, but do not press in the bread rounds too far or they won't crisp during the frying.

In a 10-inch skillet heat the salad oil until medium-hot. Add 5 of the peppers and fry slowly, turning often until browned on all sides and the bread rounds are brown and crisp — 10 to 12 minutes. Drain on paper towels. Add remaining peppers to oil in skillet and fry the same way. Some of the bread rounds may start to pop out during the frying; if they do, just push them back in place with a long-handled fork. Best served shortly after frying when the bread rounds are deliciously crisp.

Makes 10 appetizer or side-dish servings.
Note: Some eaters (I'm one of them) like to slip off the thin brown skin from the fried stuffed peppers before they savour them. — C.B.

Phi Mu alumnae of the Permian Basin recently met in the home of Mrs. John Brooks Campbell, national vice president, for a salad dinner.

The event honored collegiate members.

Persons attending from Phi Mu's chapter at Texas Tech University were Kim Garrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Harvey of Midland, and Lisa Woodward of Odessa. Kathy Terrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Terrell of Midland, was also present.

Out-of-city members in Phi Mu fraternity also attending were Mrs. Wina McClain of Beaumont and Mrs. Daniel DeG. Strong Jr. of Lufkin, both former residents of Midland.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER
(Sat. Aug. 4)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day in which you are anxious to put into motion a number of changes that could give you increased prosperity in the future. Secrets come to light later in the day.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have to exercise care in expansion matters to gain your aims today. Try to be less critical of family members.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Sidestep one who could be detrimental to your progress.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Go over contracts you have made with others and see if revisions are necessary at this time. Take needed health treatments.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Attend to routine chores instead of going off on any pleasure tangents. Make necessary repairs to property.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) It might be wise to relegate recreational plans to a better time and day. Ease the situation at home by being more thoughtful of others.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Work slowly at making improvements to your property and do them right. Keep out of trouble as much as you can today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan your time and activities well so that you can accomplish more. Be sure not to lose your temper with anyone today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find more modern ways of making money so that you can have greater security in the future. Obtain advice from a successful person.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You understand better now how to gain a personal aim and you should do so without further delay. Be logical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study new plans you have been working on before putting them in operation. The evening is fine for romance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contact as many good friends as you can and talk over mutual goals. Engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A good day to obtain important data that will be helpful to you in the days ahead. Let others know of your special talents.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one concerned with the welfare of others, so be sure to give as fine an education as you can and direct it toward politics for best result. Be sure to give good ethical, spiritual and religious training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Wall niches simple in drywell construction home

By AL CARRELL

In some homes, a niche in a wall will provide a nice place for a piece of statuary, the bowling trophy or some other prize. If you have the typical drywall construction, you can easily make niches in a wall. Just cut out a space between studs, and place a horizontal 2x4 at the top and bottom. Then apply texturing compound, paint or wallpaper to the sheetrock at the back and over the wooden frame that's exposed. It's really simple, but there are some things to keep in mind. Don't make a niche on an outside wall because there should be insulation there. Don't make a niche in a room or next to a room where noise will be a factor because you'll be doing away with a dead air space that could cut down the passage of sound from one room to another. Also, be sure you don't cut into a space that has either pipes or wires.

QUICK ANSWERS FOR HARRIED HANDYPERSONS: Q. During the winter, I tried to make it up an icy driveway, and after wearing through the ice, my tires ended up leaving rubber on the concrete. How can this be removed? A. If available at the paint store, I'd get some TSP (trisodium phosphate) and give the spot a good scrubbing with a solution of this using a wire brush. That ought to do it.

Dear Super Handyman: Those self-tapping metal screws don't have very much surface to thread into when going into thin sheet metal. However, if you punch a smaller hole at the point where the screw is to go, the lip formed by the punch gives more area for the thread to bite on. — K.R.

Dear Al: The small kitchen in our apartment has no windows. However, my roommate came up with an idea that gives the illusion of a window and also makes the room seem brighter and larger. There was a cabinet above the kitchen sink. We found some stained glass panels at a wrecking yard and mounted them into new cabinet doors the same size as those on the cabinet. We removed the old cabinet doors and stored them, replacing them with our new stained glass jobs. By putting a fluorescent light inside the cabinet, we have the illusion that there's a window behind there. When we move, we'll take our stained glass doors with us and put back the old ones. Our light fixture also will come out easily. — Ms. D.E.

A SUPER HINT: If you're about to cut a pane of glass, you probably think it would be silly to clean the glass because you'll be handling it and just get it dirty again. Not so. The slightest spot of almost any kind of film could possibly cause the glass cutter wheel to skip, and this can mean a bad break. If you'll keep a small spray bottle of ammonia with your glass cutter, you'll remember to clean the intended line to be scored and probably be able to snap the glass at the exact right spot.

Dear Al: I have found that the chalkboard paint that you talked about some time ago will adhere nicely to old window shades. So I rigged up a chalkboard for our children's room. The shade is just mounted in shade brackets against a wall. When they want to draw pictures, they pull the shade down. When we want the room to look neater, we raise the

'Windfall profits' doesn't set well

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's proposed "windfall profits" tax on the oil industry still is not sitting well with the Senate Finance Committee.

The committee will resume work on the measure on Sept. 6 following the August recess. In a related development, outgoing Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger predicted Congress would pass a windfall tax by winter.

Wildcat projects staked; Winkler gas well finals

Wildcat operations have been announced in Andrews, Howard, Crane, Schleicher and Fisher counties, and a big gas well has been completed in the Little Joe (Ellenburger) field of Winkler County.

(Spraberry) area of Midland County, 15 miles southwest of Midland. The No. 1 Scharbauer-Brown is scheduled to drill to 9,700 feet and its 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 21, block 40, T-3-S, T&P survey.

ANDREWS WILDCAT WA&G Oil & Gas Co. of Midland No. 1 University is to be drilled as an 8,200-foot wildcat 1/2 mile west of the Shafter Lake (Yates) pool of Andrews County, 12 miles west of Andrews. It is 660 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of section 26, block 13, University Lands survey.

The No. 2 Scharbauer-Brown, another 9,700-foot operation, is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 21, block 40, T-3-S, T&P survey.

HOWARD TESTER Amoco Production Co. of Odessa No. 98-A Texas Land & Mortgage Co. has been spotted as a deeper zone wildcat in the Itan-East Howard pool of Howard County, three miles east of Coahoma.

ECTOR PROJECTS Amoco Production Co. will re-enter two projects in the Fasken multiphase pool of Ector County for tests in the Wolfcamp.

The prospector, scheduled for a 9,650-foot bottom, is 467 feet from north and east lines of section 5, block 30, T-1-S, T&P survey. It is surrounded by shallow production.

One of the re-entries, No. 2-BE David Fasken, is a former Pennsylvania producer. It would be the second Wolfcamp, North well in the field. It is 1/2 mile northeast of the pools only Wolfcamp, North well. It will be plugged back to 8,550 feet.

CRANE RE-ENTRY A. G. Kasper of Midland announced plans to re-enter a 7,424-foot failure in Crane County and deepen it to 7,700 feet as a wildcat.

The second project is the No. 3-AJ Midland Farms, one mile northeast of Wolfcamp, North production.

The prospector is No. 1 Pabst, 20 miles northwest of Crane and 660 feet from north and 2,050 feet from east lines of section 20, block B-20, psl survey. It is one mile west of production in the Crawar (Waddell) field.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 37, block 42, T-1-N, G&MMB&A survey. It is a former Grayburg well. It will be deepened to 8,800 feet for tests of the Wolfcamp, North pay.

The project originally was drilled by Delta & Worth as the No. 1 Pabst in 1963 and abandoned as a failure.

GARZA FIELD AREA Rocker A. Well Service, Inc., of Post spotted a trio of projects in the four-well (Glorieta oil) pool of Garza County, 14 miles northwest of Post.

WINKLER WELL Getty Oil Co., operating from Midland, has completed its No. 1-31-21 University as the third well in the Little Joe (Ellenburger) gas pool of Winkler County, seven miles southwest of Wink.

Each of the projects will be drilled to 3,800 feet in the west and southwest side of the pool.

The operator reported a calculated absolute open flow potential of 18 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 19,840 to 20,196 feet. The pay was acidized with 15,000 gallons.

The No. 1 H. V. Wheeler is 320 feet from north and 1,787 feet from west lines of section 1, K. Aycock survey, abstract 498.

Hole is bottomed at 20,500 feet, 5.5-inch pipe is set on bottom, and hole is plugged back to 20,427 feet.

The No. 2 H. V. Wheeler is 1,050 feet from south and 1,334 feet from west lines of section 1, K. Aycock survey, abstract 498.

Well site is one-half mile north of another Ellenburger well and 1,320 feet from south and east lines of section 31, block 21, University Lands survey.

ANDREWS WELL Rankin Oil Co. No. 1-A Fuhrman and others, wildcat operation in Andrews County, was drilled to 7,000 feet where it failed to produce and was plugged back to 4,748 feet and completed in the regular Fuhrman-Mascho field pay.

SCHLEICHER PROJECT Tucker Drilling Co., Inc., of San Angelo No. 1 Steen has been staked as a 7,100-foot wildcat 13 miles north of Eldorado in Schleicher County.

The operator reported a 24-hour pumping potential of 124.8 barrels of 32-gravity oil and 14 barrels of water, through perforations from 4,335 to 4,561 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 200-1.

Drill site is 938 feet from north and 3,496 feet from east lines of section 1211, TCR survey, abstract 618.

The plugged back depth is 4,748 feet, and 5.5-inch casing is set at 7,000 feet.

It is 1.5 miles northwest of the Neva West (Canyon and Strawn oil) pool and 5/8 mile east of a 7,050-foot dry hole. It also is 3/4 mile northeast of a 6,950-foot failure.

Location is 2,053 feet from north and 853 feet from east lines of section 15, block A-42, psl survey and 16 miles west of Andrews.

Card rule reversed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Energy reversed itself Thursday and said that service stations cannot charge motorists extra if they pay by credit card for gasoline and other services.

On Tuesday, the department issued final regulations allowing service station operators to charge a fee for honoring credit cards. But in a joint announcement Thursday, the agency and the Federal Trade Commission warned dealers that the practice was illegal under the federal Truth in Lending Act.

Energy Department officials had been besieged with criticism over its original ruling, leading to a restudy of the regulation.

"It is unfair to put the service station operator in the middle on this issue," Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., chairman of the House consumer affairs subcommittee, said Wednesday.

"On one hand, the Department of Energy leads the operator to believe that there is nothing wrong with surcharging a credit card, when such an action could land the service station operator in jail," he said.

Under federal law, Annunzio said, anyone adding a surcharge to a credit card purchase can be sentenced to up to a year in jail or fined $5,000, or both.

Even before the congressman's warning, independent dealers were lambasting Energy Department rules that let them charge extra for such services as washing windshields, checking oil and filling tires, as well as honoring credit cards. Charging extra will only alienate customers, station owners claimed.

President will have to wait for gas rationing authority

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate negotiators are trying to fashion a compromise standby gasoline-rationing plan, but President Carter will have to wait until after Labor Day to get it.

The president and Democratic congressional leaders had hoped to have the bill on the president's desk by Thursday night — before the start of the congressional August recess.

But that was not to be. "We had to weigh symbolism against practicality," said Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., one of the Senate conferees of the bill.

He said he hoped a final version acceptable to the House, the Senate and Carter could be enacted "by early September."

Both Senate leaders and the White House denounced the standby rationing bill passed by the House late Wednesday. The Senate rejected the House version by voice vote Thursday.

While giving Carter basic authority to ration gasoline during a grave emergency, the measure was also saddled with numerous weakening amendments and restrictions on the president.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd called the House-passed bill "ludicrous."

And presidential spokesman Jody Powell said the bill was unacceptable to Carter as written. He expressed hope the objectionable parts — which he described as "ill-advised, unenforceable amendments" — could be smoothed out in the conference committee.

Among the House-added provisions the White House would like to see scrapped are:

—A Republican-backed amendment weakening the president's 78-degree thermostat program.

—Restrictions that prohibit rationing from being imposed unless there is a 20 percent or larger fuel shortage for a 30-day period.

—Amendments establishing a national 1 percent set-aside of diesel fuel for farmers and home-heating oil for cold-weather areas of the country.

None of these provisions is contained in the Senate-passed legislation.

The bill sent to the Senate by the House "has been riddled with loopholes," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee.

"It has all the appearance of a rationing plan but it's really not a rationing plan that makes any rational sense," Jackson said.

But House Democratic Whip John Brademas said senators shouldn't be so quick to find fault with the House bill. He noted that the House had completely rejected the president's original rationing plan last May 10 by a wide margin.

"It wasn't easy to turn it around," he said. "I'm going home to say to my constituents that the House, after making a mistake (in May), redeemed itself and passed a bill. It was a victory."

Byrd, in a Senate speech, dismissed the symbolic importance of sending the bill to the president before the recess.

"Symbolism is not the issue," he said. "There is no gain in passing a plan for the purpose of symbolism if the plan isn't going to work."

He also indicated the White House shouldn't be critical of Congress for not getting the measure out before its August recess — noting that when the House rejected Carter's original plan in May, the president refused to propose a new one.

"The president could have sent another plan up to the Hill rather than simply washing his hands and saying, 'I challenge you to come up with something,'" Byrd said.

The House passed its amendment-laden version of the rationing bill by a 263-159 vote late Wednesday.

And although the Senate planned to continue working today before beginning its recess, the House adjourned at 6 p.m. Thursday until after Labor Day.

Thus Congress failed to pass before its August recess any pieces of the new energy plan the president unveiled July 15.

Committee action on his "windfall profits tax" and proposals for an Energy Mobilization Board and Energy Security Corporation will not come until after the recess.

Committee recommends Texas tax on uranium

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An energy advisory committee has recommended that the Legislature levy a uranium production tax, which the committee estimates could bring in at last $200 million during the 1980s.

The committee also offered recommendations on the emotional issue of the storage of nuclear waste, some of which remains potentially dangerous for thousands of years.

The Advisory Committee on nuclear Energy of the Texas Energy Advisory Council said Thursday the Office of Nuclear Waste Isolation in Columbus, Ohio, has narrowed from 263 to eight the salt domes it is considering for underground nuclear storage in the interior Gulf Coast.

The eight include the Keechi, Palestine and Oakwood domes in East Texas. The committee said salt formations in the Permian Basin near Amarillo also are under study.

The committee recommended that Texas encourage the implementation of one or more demonstration disposal sites in the state, but said Texas should seek authority to hold up federal site selection until it is satisfied with the location.

The ultimate authority, however, would belong to Congress.

If a tax equal to 5 percent of the sales price of uranium were levied, the committee said, the state could expect $12 million in revenue in 1980 and at least $200 million during the 1980s.

Mexico gas deal snagged

By JOHN M. BERRY The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Negotiations between the United States and Mexico over natural gas are apparently snagged because the Mexicans have raised their asking price, but the Carter administration Thursday denied reports that the talks had collapsed.

"The negotiations...have been encouraging," said outgoing Energy Secretary James Schlesinger. "They continue. We are hopeful, though have no certainty, that they will ultimately result in a contract price that is agreeable to both nations."

If an agreement on price is not reached soon, it could mean postponement of an official visit to the United States by Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo planned for late this month or next. Signing of the agreement to sell the United States about 250 million cubic feet of gas a year is supposed to be the high point of the planned meeting with President Carter.

In a news conference, Schlesinger reiterated earlier assurances that there will be ample home heating oil supplies this winter. He also predicted that gasoline prices could decline slightly later in the year, but that some spot shortages could develop next year.

U.S. officials had been optimistically predicting that agreement would be reached at a meeting in Mexico last Friday. That did not happen, however, and there were unconfirmed reports that the Mexicans had upped their demanded price unexpectedly to more than $4 per thousand cubic feet of gas (mcf).

Currently, U.S. buyers pay about $2.80 per mcf for gas exported by Canada. Two-hundred and fifty billion cubic feet of gas a year is less than 2 percent of U.S. consumption.

Schlesinger said that "the original contract that was signed by six American firms (in 1977) called for a price equal to the Btu equivalent of No. 2 fuel oil in New York Harbor. If that original contract were now in effect, the price would thus be something on the order of $4.40 per thousand cubic feet, about twice as much as we are paying for new gas from our own domestic producers."

Schlesinger was widely criticized for blocking implementation of that contract. He has stressed repeatedly that he believes there will be no market for the gas unless it is priced to compete with residual fuel oil — a heavy oil used by industry and electric utilities.

The comparability of different fuels is often measured in terms of heat content expressed in British thermal units, or Btus. Currently, the price of natural gas corresponding to the price of residual fuel oil is about $3.75 per mcf, but that does not include the cost of delivery. The price U.S. negotiators were believe to be urging was about $3.50 per mcf.

Schlesinger sarcastically noted that reports that the talks had collapsed originated in California. "Some of the sources seem to be located in the capital city of that state, Sacramento," he said.

Detectives investigating shooting

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Detectives are investigating the shooting of a 25-year-old man who was killed by police after he pointed a gun at a television news crew.

One of the station's reporters said the crew had been interviewing residents Thursday in the Knickerbocker Hotel about redevelopment when Samuel Brown, who resided at the hotel, followed them outside.

Once outside, Brown produced a handgun and pointed it at the news crew.

Police said two officers approached him and ordered him at least three times to drop the weapon. A police spokesman said Brown then "made a threatening move" and officer Don Hansen fired five shots from his service revolver, hitting Brown four times. Police then handcuffed the fallen man and called paramedics. Brown died two hours later while undergoing emergency surgery at Centre City Hospital.

The KCST-Channel 39 cameramen filmed the incident. A reporter with the TV news crew said Brown "never said a word" during the confrontation with police. In the station's videotape of the incident, Brown appeared calm seconds before police shot him.

Outraged by murder, volunteers seek clues

BURLINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Outraged by the abduction-slaying of a 12-year-old bicyclist, more than 1,000 residents of this small town, including children and grandmothers, are braving sweltering heat to search for the missing bicycle and other clues.

Volunteers, whose ranks have been swelling since the search began Wednesday, are trudging over rough, hilly terrain searching for clues in the slaying of Katherine Ebersold. Her partly burned body was found Saturday in a wooded area less than a mile from her home.

Police said she had been bound and stabbed repeatedly in the chest, neck and abdomen before a flammable liquid was poured over the body and ignited.

"It doesn't matter whose child it is, it's a child," said Gertrude Zurley, a gray-haired grandmother of five.

"We're all a family." She walked, stick in hand, along the shoulder of Vineyard Road looking for some trace of the Ebersold girl's killer.

Temperatures were in the upper 90s in this western Connecticut community of 5,500 as volunteers from tiny children clutching a parent's hand to the elderly fanned out across a 30-square-mile area.

Joseph F. Crowley, public information officer for the state police, said the search would continue today and Saturday. "Maybe more people will be out there. They'll still be looking."

"It's our community, we want to keep it safe," said Hugh Martin. He was holding his 3-year-old daughter, Olivia, in his knee as he rested near the state police command post at dusk Thursday.

The slender, blond-haired Miss Ebersold was last seen riding her yellow 10-speed bicycle away from the Burlington recreation center the night before her body was discovered.

A knife police suspect is the murder weapon was found earlier in the week. Laboratory tests that would confirm it as the murder weapon are not complete.

Authorities, stumped in their search for clues, asked townspeople to assist them. The local volunteer fire department, housed in a 19-century brick building on the edge of the green in the center of town, organized the search.

"The entire town is completely, 100 percent involved in assisting the police," said John McLeod, state trooper. "I've never seen anything like it and most of the investigators haven't."

Fire Chief Richard Kellert said the number of volunteer searchers had been increasing for the past two days.

"I don't know how many I got out there. They're pouring in right now," said the cigar-smoking fire chief who was supervising the search.

McLeod said the wooded, swampy terrain was "difficult at best."

"Everybody with children, especially mothers with daughters are concerned," said Ariene Roy, sitting in a pickup truck in Burlington's tiny commercial center.

Mrs. Roy said her own daughter, who was in the same class as the slain girl, had trouble sleeping at night.

"A couple of nights I've stayed awake myself," she added.

'Brontosaurus' lovers gather to salute their extinct Edsels

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — One woman says a friend calls it "a pet brontosaurus," but hundreds of Edsel lovers gathering here for a weekend convention love it.

The Edsel, a pucker-mouthed automotive joke for 20 years, is big and old and extinct — except at an Edsel owners' convention. Then it somehow turns into a thing of beauty; a joy forever; a dinosaur built for six.

Edsel lovers and dozens of their cars are coming together for the 11th annual meeting of those who own the most infamous mistake in auto history.

"Actually I started out looking for a Studebaker," conceded Don Vatte of Rochester, Wash. "But I saw an Edsel for sale and I bought it. I've never regretted not getting that Studebaker."

The Edsel, of course, was the cute car with the horse-collar grille meant to revolutionize driving — and the Ford Motor Co. — in the late 1950s.

It was as long as a yacht and twice as comfortable. It was a gadget-lover's dream. It was the way to go for young executive families on the way up.

It was also a gigantic flop. About 110,000 of them rolled off the assembly line in three model years before Ford cut its $250 million in losses and quit making them in November of 1959.

"It was the wrong car for the wrong market at the wrong time," concedes Dave Sinclair, the national president of the Edsel Owners Club. "And I love it!"

"There was nothing wrong with the car — it was just introduced in the middle of a recession. I've had lots of orphan cars — Kaisers, Packards, Nashes ... but I always wanted an Edsel and I've had 15 since I bought my first one."

Sinclair still owns three of the boat-size beauties, which may put him a little below the club average. Most everyone here seems to need two hands to count their cars. One man, Hugh Lesley of Oxford, Pa., has 106 of them at his farm, called Lemon Grove.

The idea of an Edsel club was the brainchild of one Edsel Henry Ford — no relation to the company or the car. Ford bought his first Edsel in 1959.

The club came seven years later. From modest beginnings with a membership of seven, meeting at Ford's house, it has gone international with nearly 1,400 members from Sweden to San Leandro, Calif.

And every summer, the faithful head to the annual meeting to show off their babies, trade spare parts and beam like crazy over a car whose very name brings howls of laughter from the outside world.

"It's a dumb hobby," Sinclair admits. "A group of people owning a car that didn't sell, driving it across the country, digging out the bugs for two days to win a trophy and then driving it back home."

Congress stops month's cut-off of food stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has prevented a one-month cut-off of food stamps to some 6 million low-income families by allowing $620 million more to be spent on the program this fiscal year.

The House voted 330-72 Thursday to send President Carter the higher spending authority and new anti-fraud tools he sought.

Tagged on are new benefits for the elderly, blind and disabled poor, halfheartedly opposed by the administration for budgetary reasons.

Without a higher ceiling on what the Agriculture Department can spend this fiscal year, Carter said, the program would have run out of funds sometime around Labor Day.

"That would have forced suspension of all benefits until a new fiscal year's funds are available Oct. 1. Benefits average about $30 per person per month in grocery-buying coupons.

The Senate approved last Friday the compromise reached the day before by House and Senate conferees on separate bills passed in July.

Police officers charged with assault

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three policemen will remain on the force after being charged with aggravated assault in connection with the arrest of a member of a revolutionary back-to-nature group last year, Police Commissioner Joseph O'Neill says.

The policemen were charged by a grand jury Thursday with using "grossly excessive and totally unnecessary force" while arresting MOVE member Delbert Orr Africa after a shootout a year ago ended with a policeman dead.

The officers — Joseph Zagame, Charles Geist and Terrence Mulvihill — were expected to surrender today.

The confrontation between MOVE and police developed after residents of the house refused to admit health inspectors to investigate odors.

O'Neill said in a statement the arrests were "absolutely uncalled for."

Bolivia's new congress bickering

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — One faction walked out, supporters of a candidate struck, opponents engaged in a shouting match and an also-ran charged a coup was brewing as Bolivia's new congress progressed at a snail's pace toward a runoff presidential election.

The 22 members of former dictator Hugo Banzer's Nationalist Democratic Action coalition quit the legislative palace Thursday night. They said they would not return until other political groups agreed to a "government of national concord," including the Banzer coalition and the military Marcelo Quiroga Santa Cruz, a Socialist and outspoken critic of the military who ran behind Banzer and two other candidates in the July 1 election, charged the walkout was "one more step by those preparing the coup. They are complying to the letter with the plans of the military high command for interrupting democracy and implanting dictatorship again."

Oza Whitten, left, and Tish Deffenbaugh are among cast members of "Rodgers and Hart, A Musical Celebration," opening tonight at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave. The evening of song and dance, which pays tribute to Broadway musical collaborators Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart, is scheduled for 11 performances through Aug. 25 in Theatre 2, the smaller, more intimate performing area within Theatre Midland. Seat reservations may be made through the Midland Community Theatre box office, 682-4111. Tonight's performance will have an 8:30 curtain. (Staff Photo) so our prices are way down!

Our stock is way up,

COME IN NOW AND MAKE A DEAL ON A JEEP CHEROKEE CHIEF!

We admit it! We're overstocked, and we have to make way for 1980. But our misfortune is your good fortune. Now's your chance to pick up a Cherokee Chief for a ridiculously low price. But you have to hurry, this sale will end when our supply runs out. Remember, the Chief has better ground clearance than the Blazer and Bronco. And gives you an integrated steel roof standard, which you can't even get on the competition. So don't let this opportunity to get this rugged, great looking vehicle at unprecedented savings. Come in today!

Oilers, Hawks capture wins in exhibitions

By The Associated Press
It'll be just like old times tonight in Miami for Larry Csonka. At least he hopes so.

"I'm looking forward to it," says Csonka, who is reappearing at his old stomping grounds as the Miami Dolphins host the New Orleans Saints in a National Football League exhibition game. "This is an important time for me. I think I'm getting more and more effective every day."

A Dolphins spokesman said that some 45,000 fans are expected at the Orange Bowl, and that Csonka's presence has meant an additional 5,000 or 10,000 spectators.

"We didn't bring him in just to be a third-and-one runner," said Dolphins Coach Don Shula, who signed his one-time star fullback as a free agent this past spring after Csonka was released by the New York Giants at age 32.

Csonka's rushing figure of 311 yards in 1978 paled by comparison with his prime at Miami, where he had three straight 1,000-yard seasons that carried the Dolphins to three consecutive Super Bowls beginning in 1971.

Csonka left the Dolphins to sign a hefty contract in the World Football League, but was soon back in the NFL, playing for the Giants, when the NFL folded.

Realistically, the Dolphins don't expect Csonka to return to his old-time form, but he is expected to add balance to an offense built around Bob Griese's passing and Delvin Williams' breakout running. It will be remembered that Griese was in the same backfield with Csonka on those championship Dolphin teams of the early 1970s.

In the only other NFL exhibition game tonight, the Philadelphia Eagles will visit the Baltimore Colts.

In two games played Thursday night, the Houston Oilers defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 9-7 and the Seattle Seahawks whipped the Minnesota Vikings 12-9 in overtime.

Mark Barber scored on a 33-yard pass play and Toni Fritsch kicked a 29-yard field goal with 10:32 left in the game to rally the Oilers past the Cardinals in the preseason opener for both teams.

Efren Herrera booted a 21-yard field goal with 4:29 gone in overtime to give the Seahawks their victory over Minnesota. Jim Zorn, the Seahawks' exciting fourth-year quarterback, who directed Seattle to a 9-0 lead in its first two possessions, came off the bench to ignite his team's overtime field goal drive.

and a loving family man. Baseball sends its heartfelt sympathy to his wife and children."

Cloyd Boyer, pitching coach of the Atlanta Braves and former Yankees pitching coach who managed Munson at Binghamton, N.Y., in Munson's first year in pro ball in 1968, called Munson "about the greatest competitor I ever saw, and he was like a son to me."

Elcor takes two tournament wins

TYLER — The Midland Elcor Chems played superbly Thursday enroute to a pair of losers' bracket victories in the Texas Teen-Age Senior State Baseball Tournament here.

Kelly Lilly twirled a six-hitter in the Chems' first victory, a 7-4 verdict over Waco.

Elcor's John White provided the only extra-base hit of the game, a double.

In the nightcap, Doug Schmidt's two-hit pitching prevailed as Elcor trimmed Tyler, 3-0, advancing the Chems into tonight's (6:30) championship game against Victoria.

The Chems, however, must defeat Victoria twice to gain the title.

White provided the big defensive play in the win over Tyler. With bases loaded in the top of the seventh and one out, the batter fled to White in center. The runner on third broke for the plate but was out after White's fine throw to catcher Tommy Morrison.

Yankees' Munson killed in crash

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — It was a rare day off for Thurman Munson, one of those special, private times he could spend with his family in the midst of a long and exhausting baseball season.

So the New York Yankee star came back to Ohio to see his wife and three children and to spend a relaxing afternoon Thursday flying his private jet.

Then it happened, the plane plunging into the ground, flames lighting up the airfield — and Munson dead.

"I saw an aircraft totally involved in flames," said Jeff Kashburn, a sheriff's deputy who rushed to the grim scene at the Canton-Akron airport.

"I tried, but couldn't come closer than 30 feet because of the intensity of the flames. The body was burned beyond recognition."

Officials said the 32-year-old Yankee captain and team leader was killed at 4:02 p.m. EDT while practicing take-offs and landings in his Cessna Citation, a twin-engine jet.

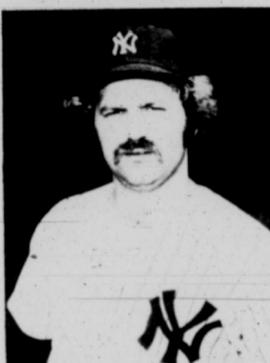

Two other men aboard the plane, David Hall, 32, and Jerry D. Anderson, 31, were injured, but neither was seriously hurt.

A spokesman at Children's Hospital in Akron said Hall, Munson's flight instructor from Canton, was in fair condition with burns on his hands.

Anderson, of Canton, a close friend of the 31-year-old Yankee catcher, was in fair condition at Canton Timken Mercy Hospital with burns on his face, neck and forearms.

"He was flying home on an off-day, which he does," said Yankee publicist Mickey Morabito of Munson. "Thurman is a very good family man, he loves to be with his family. It's one of the reasons he got the plane, to get home and spend some more time with them. Unfortunately, that's what he was doing, going home to be with the family, and it's a tragedy."

An employee for the Federal Aeronautics Administration at the Akron-Canton airport said of the tragedy: "There is an embankment at the end of the runway, and he (Munson) was at least 40 feet low there."

According to an FAA spokesman in the Chicago office, which covers the Canton-Akron area, Munson's jet had "been engaged in some touch-and-go practice, takeoffs and landings" when the crash occurred.

The spokesman, Neal Callahan, said the cause of the crash was not immediately known, and would be investigated by the National Transportation Safety Board, but added: "weather does not appear to be a factor." The plane — with the number 15NY (Munson's Yankee number) on it — was coming in for a landing and crashed about 1,000 feet short of Runway 19, officials said.

Green Township Fire Chief Mike Calderone elaborated further: "The plane peeled three trees, hit a stump and spun around. It touched down approximately 300 feet north of where it (finally) came to rest." He said Munson's body was found in the left seat, slumped over to the right.

Cubs open home stand with Dodgers tonight

The San Antonio Dodgers and the Midland Cubs begin a short five-game stand at Cubs Stadium today at 7:30 p.m., but it could be a very crucial set.

San Antonio, the first half champion in the Texas League West, comes into the Tall City looking to overtake the lead owned by El Paso in the second half race, and the Cubs would like to put some distance between them and the Dodgers as the race is down to the last month of play.

THE SERIES RUNS through Tuesday before the Cubs move on to another long road trip. This series marks the final appearance of the first half champions here in 1979. The Cubs own a 13-9 edge in the season series and are 6-5 against the Dodgers in Cubs Stadium.

The Cubs continue to lead the Texas League in several offensive categories despite the loss of shortstop Jesus Alfaro to a broken leg and the promotion of first baseman Jim Tracy to Wichita, the Cubs' AAA farm. Centerfielder Carlos Lezcano is back in the lineup, but has been slowed with a broken toe.

As a club, the Cubs lead the Texas League in hits (944), runs (582), triples (27), RBI (501), bases on balls (413), stolen bases (134) and average (.317).

The Dodgers too own some impressive statistics from several individuals as is expected from the first half champions. Outfielder Tack Wilson carries a .340 batting average with 37 stolen bases while All-Star shortstop Gary Weiss is hitting at a .331 clip. All-Star outfielder Ron Roenicke, brother of Baltimore's Gary Roenicke, is carrying a .309 average. Catcher Ed Santos is also hitting at a lofty .323 clip.

THE SAN ANTONIO pitching staff features Mark Nipp, 8-5; Rusty McDonald, 6-2 and top reliever Mickey Lashley, who has eight saves.

The series also features some big promotion nights. Tonight's game is Two-Bit Beer Night while Saturday's contest is Campbell Soup Night. Kids, ages 14 and under, may get into the game free Saturday with five red and white Campbell Soup labels. The Campbell Soup Company, in conjunction with the National Association, is conducting a nation-wide promotion in every minor league ballpark in the country.

Tuesday's game is Reporter-Telegram Family Night. The entire family will be admitted to the game for $3 with a coupon from the newspaper. All of the games have a 7:30 p.m. starting time, with the exception of Sunday's 6:30 p.m. start.

Watson captures lead in PGA play

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Tom Watson says a golfer's swing is a fleeting thing.

The golfer gets in the groove one day, he says, and slips out of it the next.

"You can't repeat the swing forever, and it does change," said Watson, who says he's found a new swing for the 61st PGA Championship, the last major golf tournament of the year. "Sometimes it can change when you take some time off. You've got to grab it, and hold on to it as long as you can."

Watson, who said he changed his swing Tuesday, shot a 33-33-66 over the 7,014-yard, par 70 Oakhill Hills Country Club course Thursday to take a 1-stroke lead into today's second round.

"When you're playing well, it's exciting," he said. "When you're playing badly and fighting it, it's drudgery. It's exciting now."

Watson, winner of four tournaments and $387,386 thus far this year, leads by a stroke over Rex Caldwell, who disqualified himself for a faulty scorecard in last year's championship. He is 2 strokes in front of Ron Streck, who had not seen the course before playing it Wednesday, and Jay Haas, whose only tour victory in three years was in San Diego last year.

Fifteen players broke par 70 over the demanding course, which has not succumbed in a four-day major tournament that includes four U.S. Opens and the 1972 PGA Championship.

Among those with a 69 are Lou Graham, Gibby Gilbert, Jim Masserio, Hubie Green, Don January, Jerry Pate, Graham Marsh, Bruce Lietzke, David Graham, Ben Crenshaw and Arnie Nickele.

Frank Conner, who had an ace on the 225-yard, par 3 No. 9, was among the 11 players who had par 70 over the majestic course that played long because of rain in recent days, although a warming sun began to dry out the

Shamrocks gain tourney finals

FREEMONT — Alan Koonce struck out 10 Thursday night in pitching the Midland J. I. O'Neill Shamrocks past Waco, 4-2, in the Texas Teen-Age State Hi-Junior Baseball Tournament.

The victory assures the Shamrocks, the only remaining undefeated team in the tourney, a spot in tonight's championship game, set for 6 against the winner of the Waco-Victoria game.

The Shamrocks' seven-hit attack was paced by Frankie Garomone who homered, Clay Bateman who tripled, Koonce who doubled and Russell Hays who went two for three.

In the first, Midland scored when Hays singled and came in on Bateman's triple. Then Bateman tallied on Jerry Zachery's sacrifice fly.

Paul respected Thurman Munson

By The Associated Press

Thurman Munson was eulogized today as baseball player with a leather-tough cover that had a different man inside.

"He was one of those guys who worked hard at refusing to let people think he was a nice fellow," said Gabe Paul, the president of the Cleveland Indians who was a longtime associate of Munson's with the New York Yankees.

"But, under all that toughness, he was a very nice guy. If you were his friend, he'd go to the limit for you. If someone knocked a friend of his in any way, Munson would stand up ready to fight."

Paul was among the many who paid tribute to the Yankees catcher, who died Thursday in a fiery plane crash in Ohio.

"Munson was as tough as they come," said Paul, underscoring the generally accepted image of the Yankee captain. "He was fearless. He played hurt. Oh, my, how he played hurt! People don't know how much he suffered from injuries. But he refused to get out of the lineup. He was absolutely unafraid of anything. In a way, that's what killed him. Those private planes should be left to the professionals."

Added Paul: "He didn't get the press his ability and leadership deserved. The papers didn't like him much because he was outspoken. But he was always honest. He leveled with the writers he fell over on the level. The others he didn't care about."

To the day of his death, Paul said,

Munson expressed a longtime desire to play for the Cleveland Indians, so he could be near his family in Canton, Ohio. Paul said that he talked to Yankees owner George Steinbrenner recently and the two would "think about a deal and see what we could put together."

Upon learning of the death of one of the key players of his 1977 and 1978 world championship teams, Steinbrenner himself noted:

"There is very little that I can say to adequately express my feelings at this moment. I've lost a dear friend, a pal and one of the greatest competitors I've ever known. We spent many hours together talking baseball and business. He loved his family, he was our leader."

"The great sport which made him so famous seems so very small and unimportant now. And therein lies a great lesson for all of us."

Yankee Manager Billy Martin, the equal-in-toughness-of-the-longtime Yankee catcher, called Munson "a close friend."

"I really loved him," the Yankee manager said, adding:

"For the people who never knew him, and didn't like him, I feel sorry for them. He was a great man. For his family, friends, all the people who knew and loved him, I extend my deepest sympathy. We not only lost a great competitor but a leader and a husband and a devoted family man."

Carlton Fisk, Munson's longtime rival for the distinction as the American League's best catcher, noted: "There was no such thing as hatred or animosity between us. I had the utmost respect for him as a person."

Fisk went on:

"It was made out that there was a confrontation between us, but that wasn't justified in his eyes or mine. That was pure selfishness on the part of the owners and the press to try to put more people in the ballpark."

"I think this shows you the vulnerabilities and frailties of this life we lead as ballplayers. This puts a dent in the fantasy that a major league player is important because some people think he leads a glamorous life. Baseball players are just human beings, as vulnerable to the fates and twists of life as anyone."

"I hope and pray the Lord looks down on his family and takes care of them."

"Baseball will be poorer for his loss," said pitcher Dock Ellis of the New York Mets, who had been a teammate of Munson's. "He took control of me and made me a sinkerball pitcher when I came into the American League. He was gruff, sometimes moody, but he was a great catcher and the Yankees are going to miss him."

"He might have been one of the best hitting catchers in baseball. He didn't have time for the writers and believed in keeping his personal life to himself. He didn't let too many guys get close to him, but he would speak up for the guys when it was needed."

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn called Munson's death "an almost indescribable loss. He was a wonderful, enormously likable guy and a truly great ballplayer. As tough a competitor as he was on the field, he was a warm friend of baseball people

Eight Slow Pitch city champions crowned

Champions were crowned Thursday in the eight City Slow Pitch Softball Leagues as the City Tournament came to a close on the five Hogan Park diamonds. More than 1,500 men participated in the summer program which includes 80 teams in the Tall City. West Engineering won the Midland League with a perfect 27-0 record with Grace Lutheran runnerup with a 20-7 reading. Next came Drlico (17-10) and Parker Drilling (15-12). In the National League, D.L. Dorland won the championship with a 26-2 mark followed by Colonial Cabinet (20-8), Alcar Armadillos (19-9) and Chemical Weed Control (14-13). First National Bank (22-6) walked off with top honors in the American League followed by Stardust-Graham and Assoc. (21-9), Stadium Sports (20-10) and Chemex with a 19-11 mark. The Pioneer League champions are Ceballos Painting with a 23-4 mark. Runnerup was Martin Tire Service with a 19-8 reading followed by Dowco (18-9) and Midwest Glass (18-10). First Christian Men won the Continental League with a 23-4 record. Next came Poly Bearing (21-8), Midwest Electrical (20-9) and Blakely Construction with a 19-10 mark. Henley Building won the Texas League with a 25-2 record while the runnerup was Dan Fender Tire with 19-9. Next came HBF Corporation (18-10) and Dalton Construction (16-10). In the biggest league with 14 teams, Underwood Plumbing (24-3) won the Longhorn League crown followed by Southwestern Bell (23-4), First Christian Youth (20-6) and Crestview Baptist Men with an 18-8 mark. Pena Backhoe won the Ranger League with a 23-4 record. In second place was Levi Strauss (22-5), Weaver Wiring (20-7) and Marathon Oil with a 16-11 finish. Trophies were given to the top four teams in each league by the Midland Softball Association during award ceremonies Thursday night.

Kessinger resigns post

CHICAGO (AP) — Less than 24 hours after he said he didn't know how to stop his team's slide, Don Kessinger resigned in his first season as player-manager of the Chicago White Sox. The job held until Thursday by the former All-Star shortstop was turned over to Tony LaRussa, a fringe major-league infielder who appeared in just 132 games with four teams over six seasons. LaRussa had been managing the White Sox' top farm club, the Iowa Oaks of the American Association, and was to be at the helm when Chicago opened a three-game series tonight in Toronto. "I think the Sox fans would love for me to say I have a miracle with me that I brought from Iowa but I know that's not going to be the case. I think sometimes a change of faces is helpful," said LaRussa, a more fiery personality than Kessinger. White Sox President Bill Vecek said Kessinger, in his 15th major-league season, shocked him during lunch Thursday by suggesting the resignation. "I just wanted to sit down with him for a good heart-to-heart talk and share my feelings," said Kessinger. "When he sort of agreed a change would be a good move, I had no alternative. "I asked a question and said I'm willing to do this if it would be best. And the consensus of opinion was that it wasn't a bad idea." Kessinger, 37, also was removed from the team's player roster and planned to go home to Memphis, Tenn.

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — The coach of the women's gymnastics team at Washington State University, Al Sanders, is resting in the coronary care unit of a hospital here. Sanders, 32, was admitted Monday after complaining of chest pains. He was here to teach at a gymnastics camp at Oregon State University when stricken. WSU officials said Sanders is undergoing tests and is listed in satisfactory condition. ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves first baseman Dale Murphy was sidelined Thursday night after fluid was drained from his knee but he is in the lineup for tonight's National League baseball game in Houston, Manager Bobby Cox said. Murphy bumped his knee Wednesday night during a sixth-inning incident that had players from both teams swarming onto the field. Murphy went on to hit a three-run homer in the eighth to give the Braves a 5-4 victory over San Diego. Murphy has missed almost two months of play because of knee surgery he underwent earlier this season. ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tim Wallach, who hit 403 as a first baseman for national champion California State-Fullerton, has been named player of the year on a collegiate All-America baseball team selected for the Sporting News, a weekly publication.

Munson had stormy career with Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitchers weren't the only ones who found Thurman Munson hard to handle. "I'm a little too belligerent," he said at one point in his stormy career with the New York Yankees. "I cuss and swear at people. I yell at umpires and maybe I'm a little too tough at home sometimes. I don't sign as many autographs as I should and I haven't always been very good with the writers." Munson, who died in a plane crash in Ohio, Thursday, left a tough public image, reminiscent of baseball's old-time "battlin' backstops." And he earned it the hard way. While establishing an identity as one of the toughest catchers in the game, Munson literally fought his way to the top. One of his biggest adversaries along the way was Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox, with whom Munson kept up a running feud as well as a race for the best catcher in the American League. The fiery Munson finally established his position as the AL's top backstop when he won the league's Most Valuable Player award in 1976 while leading the Yankees to the pennant. He was also a key figure while the Yankees were winning World Championships in 1977 and 1978. Along the way, Munson received the ultimate tribute when he was named captain, an honor that quite frankly puzzled him. "Maybe they made me captain because I've been, here so long," he mused in 1976. "(But) If I'm supposed to be captain by example, then I'll be a terrible captain." Munson became a grim, uncompromising leader on a grim, if successful, team. Easily approachable to interviewers when he was in the minors, Munson soon professed a harsh dislike for the news media. Even after the best of his days, he would leave reporters languishing around his locker area while he remained in the shower or dawdled in the trainer's room. "I'll talk about anything but baseball," he once said but even then would rarely talk at all. When New York sports broadcaster Jim Bouton tried to interview Munson once during spring training this year, he was rebuffed by the stocky catcher, who grabbed his microphone and threatened physical violence. New faces dot Cowboys' lineup THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys starting lineup against the Denver Broncos Saturday night will include two new faces on offense and three on defense. Head Coach Tom Landry said he wants to break from tradition and start some of his experienced back-up players during the pre-season games. Butch Johnson will start for Tony Hill at wide receiver, and David Huggins will play right tackle for Rayfield Wright, who has been bothered by leg problems. On defense, Randy Hughes will fill in for strong safety Charlie Waters, Dennis Thurmond will replace Aaron Kyle at right cornerback, and Mike Hegman will start at strongside linebacker for Thomas Henderson. Kyle has a bruised left knee, Waters a sprained left ankle, and Henderson an injured groin and wrist. "We'll take another good look at our back-ups and rookies this week before starting to play the regulars more next week," Landry said. The Cowboys-Bronco game will be the home opener in Texas Stadium.

Expos down Chicago in marathon contest

By The Associated Press It took six hours and 48 minutes for the Montreal Expos and Chicago Cubs to play a baseball game Thursday. It seemed a lot longer to some of the participants. "Is that all we played, nine innings?" asked Expos Manager Dick Williams after first-place Montreal extended its National League East Division lead to two games by surviving three rain delays and beating the Cubs 6-4. "We tried to end it a couple of times." One of those times was in the first inning, when thunder boomed and lightning flashed. "I had one heck of a day today," said Expos outfielder Warren Cromartie. "I didn't sleep well last night, I got to the ball park at 11 o'clock, I got everything scared out of me by lightning and I took an 0-for-." Cromartie, 0-for-4 at the plate, nervously paced in left field in the top of the first. His mind, he admitted, wasn't where it should have been and his eyes were focused outside Olympic Stadium, where work crews were using two huge cranes to build a tower. "I kept looking up at those cranes," said Cromartie. "I didn't want no ricochet from those things. All I had in mind was to head for cover." The first rain delay lasted 75 minutes. The second was 38 minutes and the third lasted two hours. "He doesn't like thunder and lightning," Williams said of Cromartie, who was upset enough to commit a fielding error of us do, but he doesn't like it more than the rest of us." Montreal got two RBI from Larry Parrish, who knocked in Andre Dawson with a double in the fifth and had a run-scoring single in the sixth. Williams didn't want to talk about the weather but he did mention a former teammate who took a unique approach to such conditions. "We had a pitcher with Baltimore back in 1956 or '57, Connie Johnson," Williams recalled. "He said 'I don't mind them moving the furniture up there, but when they start messing with that electric light switch, I'm leaving.' He used to go inside and sit in his locker."

Cowboys to battle Denver on Saturday

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer IRVING, Texas (AP) — It's not exactly a rematch of Super Bowl XII but the Denver Broncos and the Dallas Cowboys have some important items to settle Saturday night in their National Football League exhibition game in Texas Stadium. For the Cowboys, it's their crowded situation at running back. Denver has to make some harsh quarterback decisions. Rookie running back Ron Springs of Ohio State, a fifth-round choice, has sent Cowboy offensive coordinator Danny Reeves into hand-clapping delight with his performance at the Dallas Thousand Oaks, Calif. training camp. Springs scored a touchdown and ran hard last week as Dallas lost 20-13 to Oakland in the NFL's Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio. "Springs is an asset to this team," said Reeves. "He will get a long, hard look. He is making competition in our backfield much tougher." Springs, second-year man Alois Blackwell, and veteran Doug Dennison were expected to play most of the game against the Broncos after Tony Dorsett appears for a quarter or so. Also, there is some sizzling competition at fullback where Scott Laidlaw and Todd Christensen are making a strong run at Robert Newhouse. Yet another veteran, Larry Brinson, must play hard to make the team. Denver has some quarterback questions to answer as the Broncos play their first game of the year. Norris Weese will start at quarterback. Craig Morton is questionable because of a hip strain. Besides the competition for No. 1, the Broncos have a three-man derby for the No. 3 spot on the team featuring veteran Craig Penrose, and rookies Fred Mortensen of Arizona State and Tom Sorley of Nebraska. Dallas has beaten Denver four of five times in pre-season and regular play, including the 27-10 Super Bowl victory over the Broncos. The Cowboys were rated five-point favorites for the Salesmanship Club Charity game expected to draw some 55,000 to 60,000 fans for the 8 p.m. CST kickoff.

Boyer recalls Munson as a chubby catcher

ATLANTA (AP) — Cloyd Boyer was managing the New York Yankees' Binghamton, N.Y., farm team in 1968 when he was told to take a good look at a chubby young catcher named Thurman Munson, the club's No. 1 draft choice. "After a week or so the front office asked me where I thought he ought to be playing," a shocked, stunned and saddened Boyer, now the Atlanta Braves' pitching coach, said Thursday night after hearing of Munson's death in a plane crash. "I told them he ought to be playing in Yankee Stadium," Boyer continued, his voice barely above a whisper. "They thought I was kidding." Boyer, Munson's first professional manager, learned of the catcher's death shortly before the Braves' game with San Diego. It wasn't easy to concentrate on baseball. "He was like a son to me," said Boyer, who later spent several years as a coach with the Yankees after Munson joined the club. "My own son is probably at home now crying his eyes out. He was the batboy at Binghamton and he thought Thurman was the greatest person in the world." And despite Munson's public image as a gruff, hard-boiled, non-sense ball player who had his problems with the media, Boyer said the catcher was "a great person, too. He had deep feelings and he loved his family. He had a lot of love for a lot of people and a lot of people had the wrong impression of him. Down deep he was as good as gold and on the field he was the greatest competitor I ever saw." Across the way in the San Diego dugout, former Yankee teammate Jay Johnstone remembered Munson as "a leader, and not necessarily by voice."

Three record holders lead European field

TURIN, Italy (AP) — Three 1979 world record holders, including Britain's star miler Sebastian Coe, lead a field of competitors from 10 countries in the men's and women's European Track and Field Cup final here this weekend.

The competition at the municipal stadium in this north Italian auto capital will determine European supremacy in the men's and women's divisions, name two teams for the World Cup in Montreal later this month and weigh heavily on the selection of a third team, representing the rest of Europe.

East Germany has dominated the past two editions of the European cup, sweeping both the men's and women's titles in 1975 at Nice, France, and in 1977 in Helsinki, Finland.

A slow start by many of its leading stars, however, has raised serious doubts on East Germany's chances of retaining the No. 1 role in Europe.

The Soviet Union, with a young team being built for the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow, appeared a serious threat for both competitions and West Germany was a threat in the men's division.

Teams competing for the men's title were the Soviet Union, Italy, West Germany, East Germany, Poland, Britain, Yugoslavia and France. The eight women's selections were the Soviet Union, Italy, West Germany, East Germany, Poland, Britain, Romania and Bulgaria.

Italy was present as the host country. All others have made it through earlier qualifying rounds.

The big switch from 1977 was the absence of both Finnish teams. It was no surprise for the women, replaced here by host Italy. But the Finnish men had been present in the latest three editions of the World Cup and their elimination by Yugoslavia was a surprise.

In the men's competition, besides East and West Germany, and the Soviet Union that will be competing for the title, Poland appeared headed for fourth place with Britain, France, Yugoslavia and Italy fighting to stay away from the cellar in the final standings.

There were no doubts the Italians would be last among the women, as they have made it here only as the host country. The Soviet Union and East Germany were credited with chances of winning, leaving Britain, West Germany, Poland, Romania and Bulgaria battling for third place.

Within the team competition, there were single events considered highlights of the whole Cup. The center of attraction was Coe, 22, who has broken the world records for the mile and the 800 meters this year.

He will be seeking revenge over Olaf Beyers of East Germany, who dealt him a sound beating in the 800 meters at the European championships in Prague, Czechoslovakia, last year. There were reports, however, that Beyers would skip the Turin race because of his poor condition.

The other 1979 world record breakers in Turin were Marita Koch of East Germany, who trimmed her time in the women's 400 meters to 48.89 seconds, and Marina Makeyeva of the Soviet Union, who lowered the women's 400 meters hurdle mark to 54.78.

Moon losing money

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—Three years ago, Wally Moon's former major league teammates warned him about the financial perils of becoming a minor league owner. But nobody told him it would be this bad.

Moon has lost $100,000—more than his life savings from 11 major league seasons and two World Series—since becoming the owner of the Class AA San Antonio Dodgers in 1977.

That financial beating has prompted him to strongly warn San Antonio political and business leaders this week to produce commitments for a new stadium and more support by Oct. 1 or Moon and the nation's 10th largest city might be out of the professional baseball business.

"I am going to make every effort to keep the franchise here, but I have exhausted all of my own financial resources. We must have a new stadium and we must have support. If baseball has a future in San Antonio, it must be done now," said Moon, 49, National League Rookie of the Year in 1954 and a lifetime .289 hitter as an outfielder with the St. Louis Cardinals and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I'm not in much of a position to be delivering an ultimatum, but I guess that's what it is," he added.

The Texas League Dodgers are not only forced to play in the shadow of the National Basketball Association's San Antonio Spurs, but must play in deteriorating, tiny, remote V.J. Keefe Field on the St. Mary's University campus.

The 3,700-seat stadium costs the Dodgers $18,000 annually to rent from St. Mary's, while the Shreveport Captains, for example, pay $1 per year to rent a municipal facility.

Keefe Field is on the fringe of San Antonio's rugged westside barrio and is three miles from the nearest freeway. Moon asked 27 members of a local civic club Thursday how many knew the location of the stadium. Only six raised their hands. None had been to a game.

The Dodgers, facing financial problems typical of many minor league teams, warrant little media coverage and even less promotional support from businesses in this city of nearly a million residents. There is also little money for advertising and promotions.

Meanwhile, Moon's team won the Western Division first-half title, but is averaging only about 1,200 per game. That's still its best showing since Moon took over the franchise. The Dodgers drew 56,000 in 1977 and last year drew 74,250, an average of 968 per game.

El Paso, in sharp contrast, has drawn more than 163,000 in the first half of this season alone.

Moon's front office staff has been trimmed to himself, his general manager-son Wally Joe and Sales Director Steve Ford. His wife and 17-year-old daughter help out some, but a full-time secretary had to be pared from the budget this year.
