Soviet executives find use for Dale Carnegie's 'capitalistic' theories

In an introductory editorial, managing editor V. Bykov advised Soviet

As the Soviet economy grows in size and complexity, management problems "loom larger and larger," Bykov continued. Executives must study up on the "difficult art" of diplomacy in human relations.

He advised readers to take a "strictly critical" approach to Carnegie's social views but to "pay attention" to his advice on how to get along

'Heat wave' taking on more meaning with thermostat rule

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID

WASHINGTON (AP) - Hot enough for you?

That summertime platitude is taking on added meaning this year with President Carter's new energy-saving temperature rules for commercial buildings. But for many people summer heat is more than uncomfortable,

In a normal year about 175 Americans succumb to the heat, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, but in severe years, such as 1936, the toll can top a thousand.

"And these are the direct casualties. No one can know how many deaths are advanced by heat-wave weather - how-many diseased or aging hearts surrender that under better conditions would have continued functioning," reflected NOAA's Carl A. Posey.

While statisticians can show that summertime is a period of low death rates compared to winter, an intense heat wave can change this radically For example, William Hodge of the National Climatic Center studied the national death rate, day by day, for 1975.

The northeastern states experienced a severe heat wave in the first four days of August that year, and the national death toll climbed too, with 1,500 to 2,000 more people dying in that period than would have been

Strangely, said Hodge, "this catastrophe of some 1,500 deaths has been. taken largely as a matter of course."

"One theory of such catastrophes states that, in a population as large as the United States, there is always a group of seriously ill people. Heat waves, it is surmised, hasten terminal cases. Other victims, however, might survive for appreciable periods except for such weather extremes,' according to Hodge.

Policeman stabbed during fight at bar

A Midland police officer was listed in serious condition in Midland Memorial Hospital today after being stabbed Sunday night while he and another officer were trying to break up a fight at a Midland bar.

Officer Terry Lowe, 30, had received one stab wound to the right side of the back, officials said. As a result of the stabbing, one lung had collapsed, said hospital person-

An 18-year-old Odessa man was arrested Sunday night for attempted capital murder in connection with the stabbing. Midland police officials said they expect to make more arrests in connection with the case today.

Two motorcycle gangs, one from Odessa and one from Midland, may have played some part in the fight and subsequent stabbing of the police officer, officials

The incident occurred about 11 p.m. at the El Rancho Grande Hall, 409 E. Scharbauer Drive, after the Midland Police Department received a call informing them of a fight at that location, officials said.

Two one-man units responded to the call, according to officials. When the officers arrived they reported to the police dispatcher that the fight had been settled by that

Two groups of people were standing outside the bar when the two police units arrived, officials said. Officer Lowe went to talk to a group standing by the door of the bar while officer Al Chitwood went to talk to the group standing in the parking lot, officials explained.

Lowe reportedly tried to arrest one of the men in the group and was jumped by the others. During the scuffle, Lowe apparently was knocked down and stabbed, according to officials.

At some point in the fight, Officer Chitwood said he heard Lowe say "Get that one - he hit me," officials report-

Chitwood, who told officials he was not aware Lowe had been stabbed, said he chased a man and caught him. Lowe, in the meantime, had crawled to his car and radioed for assistance, officials said. It was originally thought Lowe had been stabbed once, but a later examination of the shirt he was wearing during the fight showed that he may have been stabbed

City Council calls bond election for first Tuesday in September

By RICHARD MASON Staff Writer

Midland voters will decide the fate of a $16.8 million bond package on the first Tuesday in September.

The Midland City Council voted unanimously to call the election for Sept. 4 after gathering briefly today in City Hall Council Chambers for a special session on the bond issue. Voters will face nine separate items on the ballot, including improvements to streets and sewage facilities, expansion of city buildings, renovation of the police station and a new municipal court building. City officials estimate the complete bond package will cost the owner of a home appraised at $39,000 on city tax rolls an extra $42 the next two fiscal years after the bond issue is passed.

That cost should remain at $26 durmg each subsequent year before the bonds are retired, according to information compiled by the city's finance office and released to the news media following the council session today.

"I'm hopefully optimistic the entire issue will pass," Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. said today following the council meeting. "We feel it's important, otherwise we wouldn't be asking the people to vote on it.'

Seven of the projects will require $9 million in general obligation bonds, prompting an 8 percent tax increase during the first fiscal year after the election. That increase will rise 14 percent after two years, according to statistical information prepared by the city's finance department.

More than half of the increase would come from a $6 million proposal to improve city streets, particularly in the Midland College area where heavy rains have produced continued

Nonetheless, the most important project, at least in the eyes of city officials, is the expansion of the city sewage treatment plant.

"To say we're in a time bind would be correct," Angelo said. "Construction on the sewage treatment plant needs to be started in January 1980.'

Angelo said delaying construction on the sewage plant would increase the overall costs for the project. Furthermore, the city is reaching its peak capacity with the present facility, he

A 10 percent increase on water and sewer rates already has been approved by the council and should become effective in October to cover increased operating costs. The bond election would not affect those rates until 1983 at the earliest, Angelo

The mayor discounted notions that the bond election was being rushed.

"We've been working on it for a year." Angelo said

Each of the nine items on the ballot will be voted on separately.

Hijackers surrender in Geneva

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) -Three Spanish Foreign Legion deserters who hijacked a Spanish jetliner in the Canary Islands ordered the plane down at Geneva airport today and peacefully surrendered to Swiss authorities, ending a 24-hour hopscotch journey over Western Europe and Africa.

The armed legionnaires' lone hostages at the end were the three crew members of the Iberia Airlines DC-9. The hijack trio - two Frenchmen and a Chilean - had released their nine other hostages earlier today at Lisbon's Portela Airport, before flying on to Geneva.

The hijackers said they wanted asylum. Several countries had refused to allow them to land in their territory before the Swiss finally agreed.

An aviation official in Bern, the Swiss capital, said the plane would be allowed to land if the pilot requested permission to do so. But he said the hijackers - two Frenchmen and a Chilean - would be "considered air pirates, arrested and tried in Swiss.

Before taking off from Lisbon, thelégionnaires released nine hostages, including three children and three airplane cleaners caught aboard the jet when it was commandeered Sunday in the Canaries, Spanish islands off the northwest coast of Africa.

The three hijackers, identified as Frenchmen Noel Seijen, 29, and Jean Lyschin, 25, and Chilean Sergio Munoz Cadaval, 22, said they wanted to get out of the Foreign Legion and asked France to let them go there. But the French government turned them down.

"We are not terrorists. We are deserters from the Spanish Foreign Legion. We are ready to hand over our weapons, and we want to land in France," one of the trio said.

Japan also had a brief hijack alert today when the pilot of a Pakistani airliner accidentally hit a button that sent out an automatic hijack alarm while flying over southern Japan. The plane was en route to Peking and Karachi, Pakistan, with 131 persons aboard and landed on schedule in the Chinese capital.

Earlier reports said the legionnaires took 24 hostages when they commandeered the airliner in the Canary Islands. But Iberia, the Spanish airline, revised the figure today and said there were only 12 - six passengers, three crew members and three cleaning persons, two women and a

Intense heat can increase incidence of death, NOAA researchers find the Environmental Protection Agency showed that the death rate more than doubled a day after the maximum temperature of 103 was reached. There were more deaths from cancer, stroke and heart disease as well as pneumonia; it almost looked like an epidemic.

In one three-day period, for example, the cancer death toll rose from 43 to 98 per day while heart failures jumped from 88 to 230 a day.

Old timers in the Middle West still talk about the summer of 1901, when there were more than 9,500 heat-related deaths. The cruel years of the 1930s that created the Dust Bowl also took a tragic toll.

Dr. Herbert M. Austin of NOAA has reported that heart disease emergencies increase by as much as 20 percent in heat waves, with most people succumbing during the first few days of higher temperatures.

Austin has written that maximum nighttime temperatures may be even more important that the searing daytime highs. During the night the body recuperates, and high heat then may prevent it from establishing its heat

The human body strives to maintain a steady internal temperature of 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. When the body's temperature rises above this level, the heart begins pumping more blood, blood vessels dilate to carry the extra load and the blood circulates closer to the skin surface to allow heat to escape into the air.

In addition, the sweat glands are activated, pouring moisture onto the skin to cool by evaporation.

But, particularly east of the Rockies, rising temperatures are usually accompanied by rising humidity. This humidity retards evaporation, interfering with the body's cooling attempts. In addition to aggravating heart disease and other conditions, high temperatures can lead to heat prostration, heat stroke and heat death. Most likely to suffer are infants whose heat-regulatory mechanism isn't yet fully developed, and older people with impaired circulation.

And "the cost of cool air moves steadily higher, adding what appears to be a cruel economic side to heat wave fatalities," noted Posey in an article in NOAA magazine.

"Preliminary indications from the 1978 Texas heat wave suggest that some elderly people on fixed incomes, many of them in buildings that cannot be ventilated without air conditioning, found the cost too high, turned off their units, and ultimately succumbed to the stress of heat syndrome," he

When a human's heat limits are exceeded, he does not doze reptile-fashion, he dies, Posey concluded.

Sentencing scheduled for Estes

DALLAS (AP) - Convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes, who has asked for a new trial based on statements by one of the jurors who convicted him, is scheduled for sentencing today in U.S. District Judge Robert Hill's court

Estes and former associate Ravmond K. Horton were convicted July 11 of conspiring to hide assets from the Internal Revenue Service. Estes also was convicted in connection with a scheme to defraud investors.

Estes, 54, faces up to 10 years in prison and $10,000 in fines. Horton, a Midland oilman, could be assessed five years in prison.

Hill also is expected to tell Estes whether or not there will be another trial on those indictments on which jurors could not reach a decision. They were deadlocked on a five-count indictment charging Estes and Horton with concocting a scheme to bilk legitimate leasing companies through the sale of non-existent oil field steam

Estes filed an amended motion for a new trial last week, saying a juror was coerced into voting guilty against

"I do not feel that I voted by my convictions in convicting Mr. Billie Sol Estes ...," juror Raymond L. Loggins said in an affidavit accompanying Estes' motion.

Loggins said he was suffering from poor health and claustrophia and was pressured into the verdict by other jurors. He also said he had read news accounts of the trial, in violation of Hill's orders, and was influenced by them in his vote.

Hiroshima remembered with protests, arrests Aerojet Corp. facility at Sacramento,

By The Associated Press

Americans recalled the grim memory of the first nuclear bomb attack with protests and arrests as relatives of victims paused in silence in Hiroshima, Japan, today - the 34th anniversary of the city's destruction during World War II.

Many of the U.S. protests were aimed at ending commercial, peacetime uses of nuclear power, but in Hiroshima delegates from 22 nations marked the anniversary with a call to outlaw all nuclear arms.

More than 30,000 persons attended ceremonies in Hiroshima, where the atomic bomb was first used in wartime on Aug. 6, 1945. In drizzling rain, they observed a minute of silence at 8:15 a.m., the time the bomb was Then Mayor Takeshi Araki told the crowd, "We are faced with the urgent need to solve the problems of atomicatomic radiation as an issue of international proportions.

The names of 2,090 more victims of the U.S. bombing, including 24 Koreans, were added to a scroll on the cenotaph in Peace Park, built as a memorial to the disaster. The scroll lists 95,685 known victims.

The western Japanese seaport city was virtually wiped out. Another 6,000 persons were killed in an attack on Nagasaki three days later, and thousands more died in the following months from the effects of radiation.

The 1979 World Conference Against Hydrogen and Atomic Bombs opened Sunday, and the 12,000 delegates called for a total ban on nuclear arms and relief measures for an estimated 400,000 survivors of the 1945 bomb-

A U.S. Navy cook was arrested today in Montville, Conn., during a protest of about 30 persons at United Nuclear Corp. Philip Sipp, assigned to the submarine USS Narwhal, carried a sign saying "Submarines make war, not peace." Sipp said he has been trying to leave the Navy and get conscientious objector status.

Protesters held a prayer vigil and handed out leaflets at the gates of the Savannah River Plant near Aiken, S.C., today. Observers said it was the first time since the plant was constructed 25 years ago that it was the target of an anti-nuclear demonstration. The plant makes nuclear warheads

Most of the U.S. demonstrations on Sunday were peaceful. But more than 200 persons were arrested at the Indian Point nuclear facility in Buchanan, N.Y., 40 miles north of New York

About 100 of the 4,000 demonstrators staged a "die-in," lying down in front of the gate to commemorate the Hiroshima bombing. Police said the arrests came after protesters scaled and burrowed under the fence surrounding the plant or chained themselves to the front gate.

Those who identified themselves were released after booking on charges of non-criminal trespass, but some who remained silent were jailed in nearby Valhalla.

'Wally, Beaver' now touring with dinner-theater comedy

DALLAS (AP) - Somehow, when we weren't looking, Wally and the Beaver grew up.

Out of our living rooms for what seemed like an instant, Jerry Mathers, the Beaver, and Tony Dow, Wally, on television's "Leave it to Beaver," grew into manhood, got married and went into business outside the entertainment field.

Now, the chubby little Beaver is 30. And Wally, at 34, is the father of a 6-year-old son.

The series went off the air in 1963, although the antics of the two children and their apple-pie existence with parents Ward and June Cleaver still beams into homes around the world in reruns.

The two have reunited and now are touring the country in a lightweight dinner theater comedy, "So

"Everybody always thinks we're their age," Dow said. "Even the 8-year-olds who watch it now.

When the show went out of production, "more for economic reasons than anything else," Mathers said, Dow was just entering college and Mathers going to high school.

"In some ways, it actually ended at a very good time," Mathers said. "I know I wanted to get involved in other things, like sports. I wanted to play football and we didn't have that, or shop, or those things...the school was just-an academic school." Dow tried to stay in the entertainment business for a while, studying film production at several colleges and acting every once in a while. But he was on-10-day call for the National Guard and found he couldn't commit himself to long-standing engage-

He did a few commercials and guest roles and for a while was a regular on the day-time soap-opera "General Hospital." However, he eventually opened his own construction business

Mathers served in the Air Force after graduation, sparking the continual rumor that he was killed in Vietnam. The pair appeared together at college festivals and shopping centers, while Mathers forged a career in banking.

"Banking was very confining," Mathers said. "Banks in California are open until 6 o'clock on Friday and I would have to be there until closing and I would have to be there to close. So then I would have to get a late flight to the appearance, do it and then fly back Sunday night. And it got to be too much, so I got into real estate." Dow also became disenchanted with his business.

"As my construction business got bigger and more successful, I just woke up one day and I wasn't happy doing it. It just got too big. So I called all the clients I worked with and said I was sorry, I wasn't going to do it anymore.'

Mathers said they were getting "good responses" with their appearances, "so we decided to do something theatrical.'

After opening with a production of "Boeing, Boeing" in Kansas City, where Dow lived, they adapted

"So Long, Stanley" and took it on the road.

Mathers plays Stanley, a neurotic failure who hires a hit man to kill him just as his roommate, Dow, appears with a new bride and wants Stanley to move right away. It's basically a one-joke show, but the attraction of a grown-up Wally and Beaver keeps the house packed every night.

Appearing at a Dallas dinner theater are Tony Dow, left, and Jerry Mathers, former stars of the "Leave it to Beaver" television series. (AP Laserphoto)

"A lot of reviews we get tend to say it's less than quality material," Dow said. "But what's a dinner theater for? It should make people laugh so they can go home and say they had a good time.

The people who come to see it are people that watch us on TV and maybe have never been to a dinner theater before, but they come to see Jerry and Mathers and Dow, who are both divorced, said they keep in touch with the other regulars on the show, all of whom are out of show business.

Barbara Billingsly, who played June, the mother, retired to Malibu with her husband shortly after the show's end. Hugh Beaumont, Ward, the patient father, also retired and lives in the San Fernando Ken Osmond, the polite, but scheming Eddie Haskell, is a policeman in California, and not, as rumors persist, a porño movie star.

Frank Bank, who played Wally's pudgy friend, Lumpy, is in stocks and bonds. Dow is the athletic, good-looking man we always knew he would be, and Mathers still retains the baby-faced innocent look that endeared him to us. Their rapport is still easy and friendly, not unlike two grown-up brothers. And they seem totally unaffected by the popularity they still enjoy "Our show showed the world from a child's point of Dow said. "Everybody could relate to

Cancer 'cocoon' theory studied

BOSTON (AP) - Cancerous tumors may be using the body's own defense mechanisms in an elaborate camouflage to evade detection by the body's natural guardians, a study shows.

Researchers at Massachusetts General Hospital hope that by learning how to control the camouflage, they may find the key to controlling the growth of malignant tumors in humans. Their three-year study of tumors in animals shows that gelatinous cocoons produced by the tumors' fluids may protect such growths from the body's defenses against disease. Medical researchers had theorized that the body's defenses could destroy tumors after identifying them as foreign matter. 'I think most objective observers have to concede that this approach just hasn't worked all that well," said Dr. Harold F. Dvorak, chief of the hospital's immunopathology unit.

Instead, his research team found, tumors turn the body's defense mechanisms to the advantage of the disease Normally, the body's immune system finds proteins called antigens on the surface of tumor cells and treats them as foreign invaders. However, inside the cocoons, the tumors are safe from detec-Dvorak said the tumor secretes-an agent that causes blood vessels to leak. The blood contains two proteins: fibrinogen, which helps blood clot, and plasminogen, which dissolves clots. A substance secreted by the tumor converts the fibrinogen to fibrin gel, forming the cocoon.

"If the tumor only laid down the gel around it, it would trap itself and be unable to grow," Dvorak said. "So the tumor also produces material to convert the plasminogen into a very active enzyme which dissolves fibrin. The result is that as more gel collects on the outer fringe of the cocoon, fibrin closest to the tumor itself is eliminated, thus allowing the tumor to expand.' In this way, the doctor said, the tumor turns the body's own mechanisms to the advantage of the dis-"I think the latest studies may ultimately open the door to a whole new approach to tumor treatment," Dvorak said. "At present, using surgery, chemotherapy, or radiotherapy, you have to kill every last tumor cell. If you miss one, then sooner or later it will grow and spread.

The new trade law

The House and Senate wasted little time in passing the legislation to implement a trade liberalization agreement signed just last April in Geneva by 99 nations.

And there has been some speculation in Washington that the prompt action was taken to avoid complaints from constituents who believed their businesses would suffer from the reduced tariffs on thousands of imported items. The bill also raises import quotas on cheese, meat and many other agricultural products.

The Geneva meeting climaxed some six years of negotiation in the effort to counter a protectionist mood that has been mounting in all the trading countries.

Even the legislation approved by Congress maintains special protective measures for makers of steel, textiles, color television sets, shoes, industrial fasteners and other items.

But the compromises accepted to win support for the bill do not alter the positive effects of the most sweeping trade agreement in U.S. history. The terms are weighty and complex, dealing with customs valuations, technical barriers to trade and import licensing procedures.

The implementing legislation provides a foundation for expanding American trade and revitalizing trade worldwide, assuming that the partners also implement terms of the Geneva pact.

The impact of the agreement and the legislation will not be immediately discerned by the public, but in the long run the bill should lead to more exports, more jobs and less inflation.

The struggle between free-trade advocates and protectionists will go. on and on, but Congress has helped to topple some of the barriers to a healthy exchange of

Turkey needs support

The 20 divisions that Turkey commits to NATO comprise the alliance's largest single national contingent

Turkey stands as the southern anchor of NATO's defense perimeter, barring Soviet access to the Mediterranean and the Middle East. And, Turkey's cooperation is vital to American hopes for monitoring Soviet compliance with the SALT II treaty.

How is it, then, that the House of Representatives can persist in its willful refusal to approve $50 million in military aid to Turkey's armed forces at a time when relations between Washington and Ankara are already badly frayed - when the Soviets are furiously courting the disaffected Turks?

The House, and its influential Greek lobby, are again exhibiting the worst kind of shortsightedness. To punish the Turks for the 1974 invasion of Cyprus - an invasion incited by a Greek coup on the island - the House would risk irreparable harm to American interests that transcend the chronic, parochial squabbles between Greece and Turkey.

The Senate and the Carter administration have, on this issue at least, a clearer view of American interests. Both support a military-aid package for Turkey that is double necessary because the recent American arms embargo left much Turkish equipment idle for lack of spare parts.

The House refused to go along, and instructed its representatives on the House-Senate conference

American foreign policy has suffered far too many self-inflicting wounds in recent years. We hope the Senate, therefore, and the administration will stand fast in support of a traditional ally until the House can come to its Teamsters gypped of millions?

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON = During the Nixon years, law and order were honored more in the preachment than the practice. The term was introduced to politics by Richard Kleindienst, who suggested "law and order" as a Republican campaign cry in 1964 John Mitchell picked it up four years later and made it the main theme of Richard Nixon's campaign

The victorious Nixon, thereafter, put Mitchell and Kleindienst in charge of law and order at the Justice Department. Mitchell wound up in the slammer for his role in the Watergate scandal. Kleindienst escaped prison by a hair's breadth: He was allowed to plead guilty to a misdemeanor charge and was granted a suspended

Mitchell was released early this year from prison. Now Kleindienst is being investigated for his part in a sordid influence-peddling scheme. It may have cost the nation's truck drivers millions out of the money they have contributed to the Teamsters union pension fund.

This is the allegation of Senate investigators who have summarized their findings in a secret report. What smelled fishy to the investigators was the payment of a $125,000 fee to Klein-

The fee came from Joseph Hauser. a Beverly Hills businessman who wanted the multimillion-dollar insurance contract for the Teamsters pension fund. Kleindienst was paid the $125,000 for making a few telephone calls to an old friend, Teamsters President Frank Fitzsim-

The Senate investigators concluded that the generous fee was granted solely to buy Kleindienst's influence with the Fitzsim mons, and that Kleindienst was quite willing to sell his in-

The payments to Kleindienst may have violated Arizona insurance laws. That state's insurance director filed suit against Kleindienst and others for unjust enrichment, according to the Senate report. And now the Arizona Bar association is investigating its less-than-illustrious native son. according to our sources.

There's no doubt that Kleindienst's intervention was decisive, according to the Senate report. Despite competition from some of the giants of the insurance industry. Hauser's company snared the juicy $23-million-a-year policy for the Teamsters' $2.6 billion pension fund. And the Senate investigaorts noted that Fitzsimmons' interest in the deal appartently was triggered by Kleindienst's phone

However Kleindienst's legal troubles wind up this time, the big losers are the Teamsters. Within two weeks after getting the lucrative insurance contract, the Senate record shows. Hauser's associates converted more than $1 million in Teamster premiums to their own use. Not long afterward, the Hauser operation collapsed, resulting in a loss to the Teamsters pension plan of about $7

Footnote: Reached by our associates Clark Mollenhoff and Jack Mitchell. Kleindienst called the threeyear controversy a "tragedy" and insisted he had acted "properly" as an attorney. Kleindienst said he was unaware of Hauser's intentions and had "terminated" the relationship when he found out.

ceiving the American people in order to sell it.

Now why would they do that? That's a fair question. The answer is because: (1) they don't have any grasp of geo-political strategy; (2) they've totally misjudged the Soviet Union; (3) they lack moral courage, and (4) they have decided an arms control treaty makes good politics is more important than American security.

SALT II is deceptive on its face. It does not control missiles at all. It only claims to control delivery vehicles silos, ballistic missile firing submarines, and intercontinental bombers. Even so, it preserves the 3-to-2 advantage granted the Soviets by SALT

Ignored by SALT II are 300 submarine-launched cruise missiles targeted against the U.S.; the Backfire bomber which has intercontinental capability; Soviet cold launch capability which means they can re-fit their silos with new missiles after firing the first salvo, and the SS-20, a Soviet intermediate range missile of which over 1,000 are being deployed and which can be converted to intercontinental capability by simply adding one stage or eliminating one warhead.

Why the concessions on the Backfire and the SS-20? The Russians promised to use them only against our Furthermore, the Soviets replaced 1,500 intercontinental missiles shortly after SALT I with a fourth generation of new missiles. What happened to the old missiles? Nobody knows. What is the rate of missile production in the Soviet Union? Nobody knows. What's the true story of the installations, uncounted in SALT, which look like silos from the air but which the Soviets claim are only command posts? Nobody knows. Can you verify the range of cruise missiles by satellite? No. Can you count warheads? No. Can you see inside Soviet factories and underground facilities? No.

If SALT II is ratified, it will be Katy bar the door. The U.S. will be frozen into strategic inferiority. The Soviets will begin to play the cards they've sacrificed so much for in the last 15 years. They haven't been spending $140 billion more than the U.S. on strategic weapons just for the heck of

No, they will use their superiority as a trump card. They will threaten us. They will threaten our allies and the unaligned nations. They will push even harder for revolutions and coups. They will isolate us, politically and militarily, and they will strangle us by cutting off the flow of strategic minerals and metals.

Gen. Alexander Haig has said that European leaders are publicly endorsing SALT II in order not to undercut a U.S. president, but they are speaking quite differently in private.

SALT II, if ratified, will be viewed by the rest of the world as further evidence of American retreat and weakness and the men who lead the smaller nations of the world are not fools. They will not throw in their lot with a loser.

The Senate decision on SALT II is probably the most critical decision to be made in this half of the 20th Century. The Senate should reject it flat

Central American dominoes topple as U.S. observes By ROWLAND EVANS

Novak

AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON - A few hours before President Carter declared over prime time television July 24 that "I do not attribute at all the change in Nicaragua to Cuba," teletype wires into the Pentagon clattered out another link in the chain of evidence to the eontrary. The pilot of a U.S. Air Force C-130 in Managua that day transmitted to Washington this most interesting travel note: Members of the Sandinista junta governing Nicaragua were seen piling into a Cuban Airlines plane enroute to Havana. A few days earlier, a U.S. intelligence report teletyped into Washington reported an even more fascinating detail. A ranking offcial of DGI the Cuban secret police - played a key role in masterminding the Sandinista takeover. Julian Lopez, DGI's chief of covert operations for Costa Rica, was present in the Sandinista command bunker (located over the border in Costa Rica) during the height of Nicaraguan fighting.

This buttressed a detailed CIA report of May 2 on Cuban military aid to the Sandinistas. It also fits another piece of intelligence that the Carter administration has not publicized: command elements of a Soviet brigade have been introduced into Cuba. In addition, some 2,000 Soviet military personnel - brigade-sized. though there is no information they are formed into an organic military unit - are in Cuba.

While intensification of Soviet-

Cuban interests in the Caribbean is either ignored or overlooked by Jimmy Carter, its meaning is well understood by his own professional analysts in national security and intelligence: Central America is going red. Only the time, not the eventual outcome, is in question, unless there is a reversal of U.S. policy.

of chilling candor that has received too little attention. He told a breakfast sponsored by Foreign Policy magazine that Cuba will send aid "of all sorts" - including weapons - to guerrillas in El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras just as it had in Nicara-

Sanchez issued no denials about Soviet miliary reinforcements in Cuba. Ties between Moscow and Havana, Castro's man in Washington proclaimed, "will continue to increase in all fields, including military collaboration

Tomas Borges, interior minister and Marxist strongman of the Nicaraguan junta, has been similarly candid. In leaflets that appeared in Honduras immediately after the Sandinista victory, Borges promises to join forces "with the revolutionary organizations of Latin America" and hails "development of the Central American revolution." On the leaflet's first page, a photo shows Borges in Havana with Castro. Panicky leaders in the targeted Central American countries fix U.S. visitors with one question: will you help us? One indirect reply came from Carter July 24 when he said "we worked as closely as we could without intervening in the internal affairs of Nicaraguans" to let them decide what form of government they should have

In that, Carter administration policy was decidedly interventionist against Anastasio Somoza's regime and for the Sandinistas. U.S. pressure stopped military aid for Somoza's national guard (NL) from Israel and Guatemala. U.S. officials refused to supply weapons to the national guard even in return for Somoza's resignation. The national guard ultimately gave up, not for a lack of will but for a

The rationale for Carter's policy is the view, long cherished by revisionists, that Castro, Ho Chi Minh, Mao Tse-tung and maybe even Lenin would have been fond friends of the U.S. had not Washington rebuffed them. The theory is now being put to the test in Nicaragua.

To a worried segment of U.S. officials, including some in senior positions, this is madness. They believe the U.S. should have braved the propaganda barrage from the left at home and abroad, held its nose and supported the unsavory Somoza. Nicaragua is gone, but there will be further demands for tough-mindedness in Washington as the Central American dominoes slowly fall.

Co-op repairs autos

By the Associated Press

A block or so away from Ann Arbor's Michigan Stadium, home of college football games with 100,000-fan turnouts and many a Saturday afternoon fender-bender, is a rather special auto repair shop.

Special, now that a typical city smack-up can mean a repair bill of many hundreds of dol-

Called "Auto Co-op, Inc.," it is fully owned by its customers, who buy a lifetime share of the shop for $100 - on much the same principle as the hundreds of food and clothing co-ops around the country.

About 2,000 families in. this rapidly urbanizing college city have joined the co-op so far, a number that has been growing by about one a day.

Dave Friedriches, the current managing director of the Ann Arbor coop who has been involved in the venture since its very shaky beginnings six years ago, discussed the co-op's growing pains. and eventual success. "Initially it was an effort by people familiar with co-ops to deal with a problem concerning all car owners. We received good support and 200 households signed on, but it wasn't economical. The business ran substantially in the red," he

Management at the beginning was not equal to running a car repair coop, he said. The annual membership fee at the beginning of the venture, $150 to $200 depending on the type of car, was a bit too much of a bargain.

For that fee, a person could get tune-ups, wheel alignments, and any and all other services except tires or body work. That all changed when Friedriches became director a few months after the co-op was formed. Essentially, he said, he helped rescue the co-op by diversifying.

Football, 1980 politics kick off in September

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — September seems to be the month for 1980 politics to really get rolling in Texas.

Republican presidential aspirants John Connally and George Bush have been after the voters for several months now, but other state and national candidates are waiting until after Labor Day to charge.
"I've been shaking a lot of hands but after Labor Day I'll be getting around the state quit a bit," says Railroad Commission Chairman John Poerner, who will be seeking his first full 6-year term. Contests for two seats on the Railroad Commission — Poerner's and Jim Nugent's — will be the top statewide races in 1980 since there are no campaigns for governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general or U.S.

Although the official announcements may not come until the beginning of football season, the candidates have been busy for weeks lining up public relations and advertising firms to handle their campaigns — and

Poerner's campaign staff will be headed by Neal Spelce, prominent Austin PR man, who handled Poerner's successful race in 1978.

Poerner's opponent in the Democratic primary will be Rep. Buddy Temple, Diboll, who made a move against Speaker Bill Clayton but gradually withdrew as Clayton's strength grew among legislators. Temple's campaign will be handled by John Rogers and Jack Martin, who worked in John Hill's unsuccessful campaign for governor in 1978. An Austin headquarters will be formally opened about the second week in September. Nugent will be seeking the remainder of a two-year term left when former commissioner Jim Langdon retired. His campaign will be handled by Dwayne Holman, who handled Mark White's successful campaign for attorney general in 1978. A September announcement is

Jim Hightower, former editor of the Texas Observer, has not formally announced he will oppose Nugent, but he and his campaign workers were active at the recent Texas AFL-CIO convention in Austin. Hightower's campaign committee is headed by Bernard Rapoport, a wealthy Waco insurance man, and Warren Burnett, a prominent Odessa attorney. The most active presidential candidate anywhere, nationally as well as statewide, has been Connally. Connally has national headquarters in Washington, state headquarters in Houston and another campaign office in Austin. Julian Read and his PR firm are handling the campaign, with Texas political angles furnished by consultant Ken Towery, who handled Sen. John Tower's Bush has both his national and state headquarters in Houston, with Jim Baker, who handled Gerald Ford's race, in charge. Bush also has been traveling constantly for several months.

Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo, who is handling Ronald Reagan's campaign in Texas, said a state headquarters will be opened in Austin in September, although Reagan may not formally announce until November. Reagan plans to visit Texas before the 1980 primaries and may make a trip here in late 1979

Phil Crane, the Illinois congressman seeking the GOP nomination, has no Texas office but claims substantial support, particularly among independent oilmen. Tom Kidd, Arlington oil man, has handled some of his fund-raising efforts.

There are more question marks in Democratic presidential campaign plans than any other part of 1980 politics.

Backers of Carter still don't know who will handle the Texas campaign, where the headquarters will be or when it will start. So far most Texas efforts for Carter have been handled either by National Democratic Chairman John White or Chuck Parrish of the national Carter-Mondale office, who was the Texas director in 1978. There is speculation Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, who was head of the 1980 Carter campaign, and Calvin Guest, former state Democratic Party chairman, will head the drive.

Texas congressmen seeking more diesel fuel for farmers

By SOLL SUSSMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) -Fourteen Texas congressmen signed a letter to President Carter asking help to increase the diesel fuel supply for the state's farmers.

"Irrigation wells powered by diesel motors have been shut down in areas from South Texas where they were watering peanuts to the High Plains where half-grown corn crops are already beginning to burn," the letter from Rep. Jack Hightower's office said.

There is authority for regional allocations "to meet dire needs," the letter said.

The congressmen wrote: "If corn or peanuts or any other crops are not irrigated now, there will be no crop to harvest. There will be no crop until next fall. If wheat land is not plowed and planted when the time is right, there will be no wheat crop in these areas until June of

Others signing the let-ter were Reps. Phil Gramm, Martin Frost, Jim Mattox, J.J. Pickle, Sam Hall, Tom Loeffler, Jack Brooks, Kent Hance, Charles Stenholm, Richard White, Charles Wilson, Marvin Leath, Jim Wright and Abraham Kazen.

A full-time coordinator for the Carter-Mondale campaign in Texas should be named this fall, but announcement of a state finance committee is expected soon-

Among the candidates most likely to get spots on the finance panel are Richard Trubulsi Jr.,

James Calaway, Joe Foy and Jack Warren of Houston and Travis Johnson of El Paso.

Sen. John Tower says he won't have any recommendations on the nomination of Bob Krueger as ambassadorat-large to Mexico until the Senate Foreign Relations Committee completes its confirmation hearings.

"I have no specific recommendations at this point," the Republican senator said at a news conference Friday. "I haven't signed off on anything.'

Tower defeated Krueger in a tight election battle last fall.

Tower said he plans to take part in about a week-long NATO factfinding tour to Europe toward the end of the August congressional recess, even though he visited Europe earlier this

"I think the situation has changed with the conclusion of the SALT treaty," he said.

Carter urging increased defense spending if the SALT treaty is ratified. The Texan is the ranking Republican member on the Senate Armed Services Committee, where has made clear his belief that the treaty is "critically flawed." The letter said, "The

Carter receptive to JOHN W. YOUNG JR. M.D. Hispanic appointments

DALLAS (AP) - Pres- and that LULAC has withdrawn its opposition ident Carter seemed receptive to suggestions to Civiletti's appointthat he appoint more His- ment. Bonilla said the organization originally felt Civiletti would not be re-panics to his Cabinet, the national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens said after his lunch with the chief executive Sunday. Ruben Bonilla returned to Texas late Sunday night, following a trip to Washington. Bonilla was scheduled to visit Bolivia with First Lady Rosalynn Carter this weekend, but the uncertain political climate in that country forced cancellation of the trip Saturday night.

"We discussed farranging things, like the census, undocumented workers, more Hispanic appointments in the Cabinet and more visibility in the Hispanic community," Bonilla said. "I suggested he needed more town meetings, like in the Northeast and in Kentucky, in the Hispanic communities of the Southwest."

Bonilla said Carter "softly suggested" LULAC provide him with a list of what they considered to be qualified candidates for Cabinet

"We suggested he consider Hispanics for the Deputy Attorney General's post, for the Undersecretary of Housing and Urban Development and for the Secretary of Education, the biggest plum, in the event Congress passes enabling legislation," Bonilla said. "He seemed receptive to all that, or at least attentive and interested.

The Deputy Attorney General's post became vacant with Benjamin Civiletti's confirmation as new Attorney General and the HUD post was opened with the appointment of Patricia Harris as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. Congress would have to separate the education branch from HEW, a move that has been discussed for several years to ease the bulk of that ever-growing depart-

Football, 1980 politics kick off in September

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — September seems to be the month for 1980 politics to really get rolling in Texas.

Republican presidential aspirants John Connally and George Bush have been after the voters for several months now, but other state and national candidates are waiting until after Labor Day to charge

"I've been shaking a lot of hands but after Labor Day I'll be getting around the state quit a bit," says Railroad Commission Chairman John Poerner, who will be seeking his first full 6-year term.

Contests for-two seats on the Railroad Commission - Poerner's and Jim Nugent's — will be the top statewide races in 1980 since there are no campaigns for governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general or U.S.

Although the official announcements may not come until the beginning of football season, the candidates have been busy for weeks lining up public relations and advertising firms to handle their campaigns — and

Poerner's campaign staff will be headed by Neal Spelce, prominent Austin PR man, who handled Poerner's successful race in 1978.

Poerner's opponent in the Democratic primary will be Rep. Buddy Temple, Diboll, who made a move against Speaker Bill Clayton but gradually withdrew as Clayton's strength grew among legislators. Temple's campaign will be handled by John Rogers and Jack Martin, who worked in John Hills. who worked in John Hill's unsuccessful campaign for governor in 1978.

An Austin headquarters will be formally opened about the second week in September. Nugent will be seeking the remainder of a two-year term left when former commissioner Jim Langdon retired. His campaign will be handled by Dwayne Holman, who handled Mark White's successful campaign for attorney general in 1978. A September announcement is expected

Jim Hightower, former editor of the Texas Observer, has not formally announced he will oppose Nugent, but he and his campaign workers were active at the recent Texas AFL-CIO convention in Austin. Hightower's campaign committee is headed by Bernard Rapoport, a wealthy Waco insurance man, and Warren Burnett, a prominent Odessa attorney. The most active presidential candidate anywhere, nationally as well as statewide, has been Connally. Connally has national headquarters in Washington, state headquarters in Houston and another campaign office in Austin. Julian Read and his PR firm are handling the campaign, with Texas political angles furnished by consultant Ken Towery, who handled Sen. John Tower's Bush has both his national and state headquarters in Houston, with Jim Baker, who handled Gerald Ford's race, in charge. Bush also has been traveling constantly for several months. Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo, who is handling Ronald Reagan's campaign in Texas, said a state headquarters will be opened in Austin in September, although Reagan may not formally announce until November. Reagan plans to visit Texas before the 1980 primaries and may make a trip here in late 1979. Phil Crane, the Illinois congressman seeking the GOP nomination, has no Texas office but claims substantial support, particularly among independent oilmen. Tom Kidd, Arlington oil man, has handled some of his fund-raising efforts.

There are more question marks in Democratic presidential campaign plans than any other part of 1980 politics.

Backers of Carter still don't know who will handle the Texas campaign, where the headquarters will be or when it will start. So far most Texas efforts for Carter have been handled either by National Democratic Chairman John White or Chuck Parrish of the national Carter-Mondale office, who was the Texas director in 1978.

There is speculation Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, who was head of the 1980 Carter campaign, and Calvin Guest, former state Democratic Party chairman, will head the drive.

WASHINGTON (AP) -Fourteen Texas congressmen signed a letter to President Carter asking help to increase the diesel fuel supply for the state's farmers.

"Irrigation wells powered by diesel motors have been shut down in areas from South Texas where they were watering peanuts to the High Plains where half-grown corn crops are already beginning to burn," the letter from Rep. Jack Hightower's office said.

There is authority for regional allocations "to meet dire needs," the letter said.

The congressmen wrote: "If corn or peanuts or any other crops are not irrigated now, there will be no crop to harvest. There will be no crop until next fall. If wheat land is not plowed and planted when the time is right, there will be no wheat crop in these areas until June of

Others signing the letter were Reps. Phil Gramm, Martin Frost. Jim Mattox, J.J. Pickle, Sam Hall, Tom Loeffler, Jack Brooks, Kent Hance, Charles Stenholm, Richard White, Charles Wilson, Marvin Leath, Jim Wright and Abraham Kazen.

A full-time coordinator for the Carter-Mondale campaign in Texas should be named this fall, but announcement of a state finance committee is expected soon-

Among the candidates most likely to get spots on the finance panel are Richard Trubulsi Jr.,

James Calaway, Joe Foy and Jack Warren of Houston and Travis Johnson of El Paso.

Sen. John Tower says he won't have any recommendations on the nomination of Bob Krueger as ambassadorat-large to Mexico until the Senate Foreign Relations Committee completes its confirmation hearings.

"I have no specific recommendations at this point," the Republican senator said at a news conference Friday. "I haven't signed off on anything.'

Tower defeated Krueger in a tight election battle last fall.

Bonilla said the organization originally felt Civiletti would not be repanics to his Cabinet, the national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens said after his lunch with the chief executive Sunday.

Ruben Bonilla returned to Texas late Sunday night, following a trip to Washington. Bonilla was scheduled to visit Bolivia with First Lady Rosalynn Carter this weekend, but the uncertain political climate in that country forced cancellation of the trip Saturday night.

"We discussed farranging things, like the census, undocumented workers, more Hispanic appointments in the Cabinet and more visibility in the Hispanic community," Bonilla said. "I suggested he needed more town meetings, like in the Northeast and in Kentucky, in the Hispanic communities of the Southwest."

Bonilla said Carter "softly suggested" LULAC provide him with a list of what they considered to be qualified candidates for Cabinet

"We suggested he consider Hispanics for the Deputy Attorney General's post, for the Undersecretary of Housing and Urban Development and for the Secretary of Education, the biggest plum, in the event Congress passes enabling legislation," Bonilla said. "He seemed receptive to all that, or at least attentive and interested."

The Deputy Attorney General's post became vacant with Benjamin Civiletti's confirmation as new Attorney General and the HUD post was opened with the appointment of Patricia Harris as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. Congress would have to separate the education branch from HEW, a move that has been discussed for several years to ease the bulk of that ever-growing depart-

Bonilla said he told Carter of his meetings with Civiletti on Friday,

DEAR ABBY: The letter from BLEARY-EYED AND ENVIOUS brought back memories. (BLEARY-EYES couldn't seep because the newlyweds in the apartment directly aboveher had a squeaky bed. You advised her to come right out and tell the woman.)

When I was a bachelor, I had the same problem. Only the couple whose bedroom was directly above mine were middle-age people who alternated between keeping me awake with their noisy arguments and their squeaky bed.

I decided to tackle the problems one at a time. After a week of the squeaky-bed disturbance, I saw the man in the elevator, so I whispered discreetly, "I haven't had a good night's sleep in a week, pal. Your squeaky bed has been keeping me

DEAR ABBY: An elderly man had a heart attack aboard the same plane I was on just as it was taxiing for take-off. An ambulance with paramedics arrived within seconds of our return to the terminal.

I realized then that it had been two years since I had taken the cardiac pulmonary resuscitation course. Frankly, I couldn't remember all the procedures.I had planned to refresh my memory (it's in my manual) but I never got around toit.

Yesterday, a neighbor's father had a heart attack. Another man and I did what we could, but the victim died. Actually, we did little or nothing to increase his chances of survival. In the panic, I couldn't remember what I was supposed to do, and the other man knew even less than I did. In short, neither one of us knew what the h--- we were doing!

Younger boys are looking up

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - A three-year study has proven what kindergarten teachers have known for some time - little boys in a new class are social climbers, while little girls just want friends

"Little boys ... turn toward higher-status males. They have an orientation toward social ascendency,"-says Craig Lee Feldbaum, who made the study as part of the requirements for a doctorate in psychology from Tulane University.

In contrast, he says, "Young preschool females attempt to get reciprocal relations - they like people who like them

Feldbaum noted that as they become part of the class, little girls' preferences tend to become closer to their classmates'

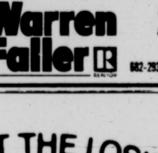

'This has been an area surrounded and merged in speculation and anecdote for years and years," says Feldbaum, who studied eight boys and six girls brought into four different kindergarten classes in New Orleans.

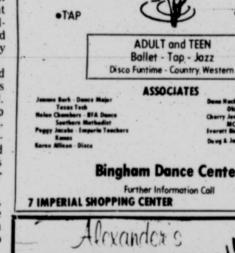

Psychology students watched the classes, making weekly notes on whether the new children sat by themselves, watched other children, or played with them. All the children in each class were asked to point to pictures of three children they liked best and three children they didn't much care for. Boys tended to stand off and watch other boys in the class, he found. They tended to pick up rapidly on who was popular and who was not particularly well-liked, and to want to be friends with the more popular

In marked contrast, girls tended to like the children who liked them and dislike those who disliked them.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My son is a very athletically inclined high school freshman and plans to try out for the football and basketball teams. I'm pleased that he's interested in sports but am concerned that he may be subject to serious injury if he plays in a highly competitive school atmosphere. What is your opinion about high school and college sports, and how often do injuries occur? - Mrs. M.G.G.

Athletics offer

benefits, danger

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Dear Mrs. G.: The decision by the student and his or her parents about the advisability of participating in athletics on either a high school or college level is a very personal one with no right or wrong answer. Many people who today are successful in business or the professions attribute much of their success to the discipline they learned through team sports. And, of course, for those skilled enough to play professionally, salaries today are astronomical. On the other hand, there is no denying that serious injuries and even death do occasionally occur. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has reported that more than a million injuries a year are suf-fered by high school and college students who take part in sports (out of more than 22 million who participate). In addition, for the school year 1975-1976, there were seven deaths among high school athletes and an additional seven among college students.

Football accounted for four of these deaths, other contact sports for an additional four, and non-contact sports and physical education for three each. More than 10 percent of the injuries were major. Tackle football accounted for over 50 percent of all disabling injuries.

There are many benefits to be derived from competitive sports - the physical fitness regimen that must be followed, the opportunity to learn to handle both victory and defeat and the responsibility of working with a team toward a common goal. The unpleasant statistics must be weighed against these benefits in arriving at a

Dear Dr. Solomon: After having spent many a sleepless night with my first child because of his allergies, I dread having to do the same thing with my second child when I give birth next month. Is there any way allergies can be prevented? — Mrs. A.W.D.

Dear Mrs. D.: The only way an allegy can be prevented at present is to avoid the cause; if a certain food is the culprit, for example, avoid it. There are various medications that can help relieve or end an allergic reaction, and researchers are trying to develop more effective drugs

In most cases, however, allergies can be controlled to the point where a person can live a normal life free of symptoms. The best treatment is still to find the cause. and try to avoid it.

South should hold up his ace until the third round of spades. Then he can afford to lose the diamond finesse

OUT OF SPADES

As the cards lie, East cannot then lead a spade; and this is exactly why South held up the ace. South takes his spade trick, if he can, precisely when the opponent who is short in spades plays his last spade.

East should return the deuce of hearts, and at rubber bridge South puts up the ace of hearts and runs his nine tricks. Even in tournament play South should take the ace of hearts. He will still make a tenth trick if the clubs break favorably or if East has the king of hearts has announced it is vol-Silver Town belted tires

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — that it says do not meet The B.F. Goodrich Co. minimum U.S. Department of Transportation untarily recalling 1,274 endurance standards.

A Goodrich spokesman said the company found that a defect exists in certain H78-14 and H78-15 load range B tires. He said the reduced endurance capacity caused by the defect could lead to separation of plies under normal operating procedures.

The tires being recalled are marked with serial numbers BCMBDD1029. BCVXPM1089 or BCVXPL1089.

The company said persons who bought those sizes of Silver Town tires will be notified by letter, when possible, to check the serial numbers of their tires. Anyone owning one of the defective tires will be given a nocharge exchange at any Goodrich dealer, the spekesman said.

Inflation affects your electric bill even more than your grocery bill.

Every time you go to the grocery store you can see what inflation's doing to your food bill. But because you don't buy electricity by the can, you probably don't realize how inflation affects the cost of electricity.

Fuel costs are up, particularly natural gas. Equipment costs are up. Power lines, transformers and poles cost us more every day. Just like milk costs you more every day.

The millions of dollars we must borrow to build plants to ensure your electricity needs in the future are costing us more.

The cost of building these plants is higher, too, because of inflation. And because of the time and money it takes to comply with an ever-increasing number of government regulations. The longer it takes to build, the more inflation takes its toll.

Inflation, overregula-

tion and rising fuel costs are all making your electricity cost you more. But by using electricity wisely you can do your part in keeping that cost down in your home.

At Texas Electric, we want you to know what vou're paying for.

The operator reported a daily flowing potential of 180 barrels of 22.5gravity oil and four barrels of water, through an 18/64-inch choke and perforations from 4,104 to 4,138 feet. The pay was acidized with 4,000 gallons. Total depth is 4,295 feet and 5.5-inch pipe is set at total depth. The wellsite is 660 feet from noth and east lines of section 36-7s-31e.

Industry not guilty says Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) - An investigation ordered by President Carter has turned up no evidence of any deliberate action by oil companies to create the recent gasoline shortages, an administration official says.

A report to be released by the White House this week places part of the blame for the shortages on the administration's gasoline allocation program, said the official, who asked not to be named.

The Associated Press reported last month that the joint investigation by the justice and energy departments had revealed no evidence of deliberate hoarding or other actions by oil companies to create short-

Those conclusions have not changed in the final draft, sent to the president last week, said the official. The report does suggest some producers have been overly cautious in an effort to make their supplies last longer. "DOE has not found evidence of hoarding of oil by refiners, but some refiners have been conservative in their use of stocks," the report says. "This conservatism appears to be due in large part to their pessimistic views about future availability of oil imports.

The report says the government's allocation program contributed to the shortages because "an historical demand base period inherently cannot reflect the most recent changes in the demand for gasoline.'

It adds, "Any allocation system is likely to be ineffective in responding quickly to continuing changes in demand."

The study was ordered by the president in May, when gasoline lines first appeared in Califor-

Scientists retreat to their maps

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) After finding no oil from a Mexican spill off the south Texas coast, government scientists have retreated to their maps and computers.

"We went looking for it and didn't find it where we thought it would be, said Coast Guard Capt. Roger Madson, commander of the effort to defend the U.S. coast from the slick.

The oil began pouring into the Gulf on June 3, when a Bay of Campeche well blew out. Projections had shown the northern edge of the oil might hit waters off the Texas coast Sunday. But reconnaisance flights on Sunday showed the oil had apparently slowed, perhaps due to calm winds, Madson said. The oil was spotted near Mexican beaches 8 miles south of the mouth of the Rio Grande River.

Massive fracture project in gas area paying off By LINDA GILLAN The Los Angeles Times hours, a huge undertaking a Department of Energy observer described at the time as an "overkill." It also ran

HOUSTON - Department of Energy officials now believe that a halfmillion-dollar gamble they took last November has paid off and that, as a result, the amount of recoverable natural gas in the lower 48 states could be substantially higher than previously

Last fall, Houston-based Mitchell Energy & Development Corp., with the aid of a Department of Energy grant, created a $2.2 million, milelong crack two miles below the earth's surface in an effort to increase recovery of natural gas from a cement-like rock formation.

It was a calculated risk, for both Mitchell and the department, but it proved that enhanced natural gas recovery from "tight" gas formations, where the strata's density severely restricts gas flow, is not only possible on a large scale but also economically

"It doesn't mean that we are awash with natural gas now but we certainly have made a significant step in the right direction," said a department spokesman in Washington.

For Mitchell the experiment meant. that instead of an ultimate recovery of only 1.5 billion cubic feet of natural gas from its well, the Muse-Duke No. 1, it can now expect to obtain 5 to 7 billion cubic feet of gas.

Mitchell's five other wells in the Fallon Field area of Limestone County, Texas, have had an average production of only 1.5 billion cubic feet of natural gas in the last 8 to 9 years. But the Muse-Duke well is now flowing at the rate of 3.2 million cubic feet of gas per day, double its previous rate.

By using pressure to pump a heated gel - including chemicals, water and radioactive trace elements - mixed with sand, into the Muse-Duke well, a long, thin crack was created in a dense layer of limestone two miles beneath the Texas rangeland. When the fluid was removed, the sand remained in the rock to keep it open, allowing gas to flow from the tight rock into the crack and toward the well before.

Instead of the well draining only the conventional 200 acres or 320 acres with smaller manmade fractures, the "massive hydraulic fracture" was able to bring up natural gas from 640

The massive "frac" took $15 million worth of equipment and enough fluid to fill two Olympic-sized swimming

Stored gas devoured

By TOM GILLEM

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) - Firefighters surrounding a flaming storage tank containing 800,000 gallons of gasoline decided today to let the $1 million fire burn itself out.

The fire, touched off by a bolt of lightning Sunday at a Gulf Oil Corp. fuel depot, was still raging this morning with flames shooting 35 to 40 feet into the air.

But Quentin Wallerstedt, a Gulf spokesman, said, "It's burning with a lot less intensity.

"They're letting it burn in a controlled burn," Wallerstedt said. "Right now, that's the best way to

He said the wind had shifted direction overnight, easing worries that the fire might spread to a nearby tank. Gulf officials estimated the loss at $1 million.

Two firemen and a company employee were treated for heat exhaustion at a Toledo hospital.

Charles West was working at a railroad switch tower when he saw. lightning arc into the tank at the refinery and depot on the east side of Toledo. "There was a flash of light, then a big ball of fire," said West, 41, a Norfolk & Western Railway Co. em-West said an explosion that followed the lightning bolt rattled the windows in his two-story tower, locat-, ed about 200 yards from the burning tank

Refinery manager James Walizer said the tank was one-fourth full and contained about 800,000 gallons of gasoline "That is gasoline that would normally be sent through our distribution system to consumers that's gone up in smoke," Walizer said. But he said the blaze will cause "no significant impact" on gas supplies to consumers. 'It's a significant loss, but no one should be able to see that at the pump dous heat melted the steel tank's sides until they were less than eight feet high. "There is no way we can"put out a fire in a tank that size," Wallerstedt said. "The only real thing we can do is try to contain the fire." Walizer said the tank was valued at about $200,000, and that total damages could reach $1 million.

fracturing procedure. Mitchell Energy & Development Corp. has drilled some 200 exploratory and development oil and gas wells and has interests in over 1,500 producing wells.

Don Dovey, Mitchell senior vice president for production, said the company has already successfully completed smaller fractures on two of the five older wells in the 1,380-acre field. It plans to employ the fracturing procedure on its other existing wells and 20 to 40 new wells. The smaller fractures will cost from $260,-000 to $280,000 plus the cost of drilling the well, $1.6 to $1.7 million.

"I think you will see lots of other people trying this as the cost of gas goes up," Covey said.

'Bonanza' said to come after miscalculation

WASHINGTON (AP) - A miscalculation by the Department of Energy in a gasoline-pricing rule will result in a $9-billion profit bonanza to the oil industry by the end of 1980, The Washington Post reported today The newspaper said the extra profits resulted from the so-called "Tilt Rule," which allows oil companies to make an additional profit on gasoline beyond actual crude oil cost increases and operating costs because gasoline costs more to produce than other petroleum products.

When the Energy Department adopted the rule last March 1, the Carter administration predicted that the complex formula would cost motorists an extra 1.6 cents a gallon this year and 1.8 cents in 1980, meaning a maximum of $3.7 billion in extra prof-

Instead, the Post said, a survey of oil companies and interviews with federal officials shows that most oil firms took advantage of the rule to immediately raise their prices by 4 to The effect will be to increase profits by up to $12.9 billion through 1980, the newspaper said. Energy Department spokesmen were not available for comment immediately. The Post quoted Douglas G. Robinson, No. 2 official in the department's Economic Regulatory Administration and author of the Tilt Rule, as acknowledging that the 1.6-cent-a-gallon increase "was clearly not a valid number for this year.'

The Post said there were clear indications that the department knew its estimates were faulty but put the pricing rule into effect anyway without the customary 30-day period allowed for public comment.

"It is fair to say that we had some indication at that time . .. and the decision-makers were aware of that at that time, but that did not dissuade them from going ahead," Robinson was quoted as saying.

request flood aid

HOUSTON (AP) - Almost 8,000 persons have requested disaster assistance for losses inflicted along the Texas coast last month by Tropical Storm Claudette.

Two disaster assistance centers - at Baytown and Port Arthur were closed Saturday, but federal officials said offices will remain open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily at Pasadena, League City, Alvin and Freeport.

Federal flood insurance officials say the claims resulting from the rains of Tropical Storm Claudette probably will amount to more than half the $146.9 million paid out in 1978 in 21 disasters involving flood-

"Obviously, when you compare these dollar figures, it is clear that Claudette did a lot of damage to a lot of peoole," said Dale Milford. regional director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

along the coast had maximum flood coverage, perhaps because of the area's history of flood-

Del Greer, director of the agency's flood insurance division said the area has more than 116,-000 policies worth about $5 billion. About 9,000 claims are expected to be filed, he said.

More than a half million dollars in benefits already have been paid to disaster victims, Greer said, much of it in partial payments. Partial payments can be made within two or three days after an adjuster's first visit, and final payments can expected within two weeks of filing the claim, Greer added. The Small Business Administration has begun receiving applications for low-interest loans for terms of up to 30 years. Victims who live in or own property in or adjacent to any of the six counties which were declared a disaster area by President Carter may apply for an SBA disaster loan.

The disaster counties are Brazoria, Chambers, Galveston, Harris, Jefferson and Orange counties. Adjacent to them are Fort Bend, Hardin, Jasper, Liberty, Matagorda, Montgomery, Waller and Wharton counties.

"These loans will aid in the repair or replacement of damaged or destroyed homes, personal property, businesses, farms, churches, nonprofit organizations and privately owned hospitals and schools," said John L. Carey, district director for the SBA.

The amount of loan eligibility is limited to the actual tangible loss, less insurance or other compensation funds received. The interest rate on the first $55,000 for primary residences and personal property loans is 3 percent. Refinancing of existing mortgagess available in cases of severe damage, to a maximum of $50,000 at the rate of 7% percent. Interest rates on SBA business disaster loans where credit is not obtainable from private sources and where refinancing is not involved is 5 percent. Interest rates on business loans whiich are obtainable from nonfederal credit sources are 7% percent. The interest rate for non-business organizations is 7% percent.

Klan plans to march

SELMA, Ala. (AP) -Members of the Ku Klux Klan are planning to march from here to Montgomery this week, retracing the route taken by blacks and whites who marched in 1965 to win voting rights for blacks in Alabama. Bill Wilkinson, imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire faction of the klan, says the march will "erase the shame to the white race" of the 1965 march led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The march is expected to conclude Sunday with a rally at the state capitol in Montgomery.

Smith, Turgeon fuel Midland win

By TED BATTLES R-T Sports Editor

While Bobby Adams was pinch-hit-ting as manager on the field, Randy Hundley was acting like a suspended manager with ants in his pants in the stands, moving from one box to another every time the Midland Cubs got a rally going.

'I can't stand it up there in the stands, but was I that bad?" asked the Cubs' skipper when informed he had more moves than Tony Dorsett in a broken field. Hundley was sitting out the second of a five game suspension Sunday night, but got some consolation from the fact that Midland broke a three-game losing streak with a 10-9 win over the San Antonio

The Cubs battled back to win after trailing 4-0 in the third, 8-3 in the fourth and 9-5 in the fifth:

Third baseman Mike Turgeon's two-run double in the sixth finally got the Cubs over the hump, giving the Cubs a 10-9 lead. With runs flowing like cheap wine, it didn't look like much of a lead, certainly not one that would stand up for the rest of the game, but it did largely because of Lee Smith's three-hit relief job.

Smith, who picked up his sixth win in nine decisions, came on in relief of Herman Segelke in the fourth and his beginning was anything but auspi-

It looked like another run, but right fielder Jared Martin's strike to catcher Bill Hayes at the plate cut down Weiss, trying to score from second for the third out.

Smith yielded a run with two out in the fifth, to make it 9-5, but after that was poetry in motion, mowing down the final 13 Dodgers in order to make Turgeon's hit in the sixth stand up for served when Len Barker and Danny Darwin took turns overpowering the opposition as the Cleveland Indians and Texas Rangers split a doubleheader Sunday.

Barker, 24, combined with Sid Monge in the opener to stop the Rangers on nine hits for a 6-2 victory. Darwin, 23, held the Indians to four hits and his teammates pounded out 17 of their own for a 14-3 decision in the nightcap.

'They (the Indians) got a good pitching performance out of Barker,' said Texas Manager Pat Corrales. "He just overprowered us. And Darwin, that's the second or third time he's come in and done the job for us like that when we really needed him.

"He's got a lot to learn, but he has a live arm, and his fastball sinks and takes off. He's pitched some good ballgames for us.

Cliff Johnson's three-run homer off

Doc Medich, 5-5, in the first inning of the opener was all Barker, 2-4, needed. The 6-foot-5, 235-pounder gave up both Texas runs on five straight singles in the third but settled down to get the victory. Monge came on after a one hour and 18-minute rain delay to one-hit the Rangers over the last two innings.

In the second game, the Indians jumped on top 2-0 in the first on a single, two walks and sacrifice flies by Andre Thornton and Johnson.

'Really, I was lucky in the first inning. I didn't have my rhythm and I felt awkward," Darwin, 3-2, said. "It could have been 6-0 if they hadn't hit the ball at people. Then, when I went into the dugout, (pitching coach) Jackie Brown and Fergie (pitcher Ferguson Jenkins) told me I was overthrowing the ball and to take it

Cowboys' Landry faces tough decisions

It's one thing to keep your eye on the ball, but Toronto Blue Jays shortstop Andy Griffin finds it especially tough when he's also getting the bird during Sunday game against the White Sox. (AP

IRVING — Try to forget that the Dallas Cowboys-Denver Broncos' game was not televised in this area. That is unless you needed a 31/2-hour

At the very best it was boring from opening gun to final whistle, spiced with enough mistakes to drive away even the most loyal pro football fan.

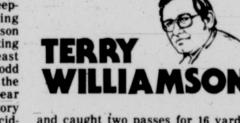

However, Dallas coach Tom Landry views the contest in a different light than the fan, and according to him, he saw some things that he wanted to see from the rookies and marginal veterans trying to stick with the team. But that means that Landry is going to have some heavy headaches before the final cuts are made in the next three weeks.

THIS COWBOY camp has not been one with big rookie names like a Tony Hill or Tony Dorsett, but there seems to be a lot of talent.

Most Cowboy writers, who cover the team, went into the Denver sleeper thinking that veteran running backs Doug Dennison, Larry Brinson and Alois Blackwell might be fighting for a job this year. Most felt at least two rookies, Ron Springs and Todd Christensen, would get two of the running back berths. It would appear after Saturday's 7-6 Cowboy victory that Landry may have trouble deciding who will be cut from among these Brinson, for instance, gained 31 yards on six carries for a 5.1 per yard carrying average and he caught two passes for 12 yards. Dennison led all rushers with 37 yards in eight carries and Blackwell came next with 22 yards in five carries.

SPRINGS, THE Ohio State rookie, continued to show flashes of brillance with 19 yards rushing on four carries and caught two passes for 16 yards. Christensen was not too impressive with 20 yards on seven carries, a meager 2.8 yards per carry.

Doug Cosbie, a 230-pound product of Santa Clara, is another rookie expected to stick at tight end behind veterans Jay Saldi and Billy Joe DuPree. Cosbie is a good blocker and caught one pass in excess of 20 yards Saturday that was wiped out on a penalty.

With Drew Pearson, Butch Johnson, Robert Steele and Tony Hill at wide receiver, rookies Eli Marshall of North Carolina State and Doug De-France of Arizona State clon't figure to stick. DeFrance was impressive Saturday, but Marshall ran a wrong pass route which caused a Danny White interception.

LANDRY ALSO seems to be impressed with two rookie linebackers, Quentin Lowry of Youngstown State and Brette Simmons of Furmap. But the names ahead of them read like a Who's Who of the NFL - Thomas Henderson, D. D. Lewis, Bob Breunig, Bruce Huther, Mike Hegman and Guy

A couple of defensive linemen are also turning in a good show, and this is where the Cowboys may need help since there are two fresh openings with the departures of starters Ed 'Too Tall" Jones and Jethro Pugh. Curtis Anderson, a 250-pound una sack for a minus 10 yards Saturday. Ralph DeLoach, a 255 pounder from California, also had a tackle and a sack Saturday. WADE MANNING, another speed-known from Central (Ohio) State, has looked good, and had two tackles and ster from Ohio State, has looked good returning punts and kickoffs, but he may have trouble sticking as a defensive back. Other rookies at that position-include Greg Alexander of South-ern Arkansas, Mike Kincaid of Florida State and Tim Lavender of USC. Landry says the cuts here will take a lot of thought.

At last count, there were still 30 rookies left on the Dallas roster. And for a group that has been tagged as a bunch of no-names, they are certianly doing their best to make Tom Landry lose a little sleep.

Mays was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame Sunday, along with Hack Wilson and Warren Giles. For the "Say Hey Kid," it was a special occasion, as memorable to him as his spectacular catches, great throws and clutch home runs were to the people who watched him play.

Legions of those fans turned out Sunday under a scorching sun to cheer for Mays. Every time his name was mentioned, they yelled "Willie!" When he was introduced by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, they rose as one and saluted the newest member of the sport's most elite society.

"I love baseball, it's a great game," said Mays. "Now I know the 22 years I played weren't in vain. You gave those years back to me.

He meant the Hall of Fame, but it could just as easily have been the fans Willie was thanking. They came to expect greatness from him - and he Willie's statistics seem to jump out of the record book. He played just short of 20 seasons with the Giants, first in New York, then in San Francisco. He finished his career with the New York Mets after a trade in May,

In those 22 major league seasons, Mays accomplished marvelous things with his bat. A 20-time All Star, he belted more than 40 home runs six times, knocked in at least 100 runs six times and had a lifetime batting average of 302

third to Henry Aaron and Babe Ruth in home runs (660); third in total bases (6,066); fourth in at-bats (10,-881), runs scored (2,062) and games played (2,992); seventh in hits (3,283) and RBI (1,903); eighth in slugging percentage (.557), and 10th in walks

Even with all those hitting achievements. Mays may best be remembered for his fielding. He holds the major league record for putouts by an outfielder with 7,095. He made the basket catch a part of his routine, and the fans loved it. He also made the phenomenal catch an every-day part of his repertoire, climbing fences, diving, jumping and, in one case, outrunning a Vic Wertz drive to dead center field in the Polo Grounds in the 1954 World Series. That catch, his back to home plate, the ball falling from directly overhead into Mays' glove, is his most famous.

Siebert leads Edwardsville to NBC victory

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - Former major league player Sonny Siebert tossed a shutout Sunday to lead his Edwardsville, Ill., team to a 3-0 win over Pleasant Plains, Ark., in the first round of the National Baseball Congress Tournament.

Siebert, a former University of Missouri standout, allowed only three singles and struck out five Arkansas batters to even Edwardsville's record at 1-1. The loss eliminated Pleasant Plains from the double-elimination Southern Illinois University graduate John Urban backed Siebert with a solo home run, one of 10 hits for the Illinois team.

In other first-round action Sunday, Fort Smith, Ark., took an 8-4 win over Jackson, Miss., propelled by the two home runs of Arkansas center fielder Tom Hester, Lefthander Mike Robinson went the distance on the mound for Arkansas, allowing 11 hits. The Mississippians were eliminated by

The Lubbock, Texas, team overwhelmed Quad Cities, Iowa, 17-0. The Texans scored seven runs in the fifth inning to end the game on the 10-run rule after collecting 20 hits, including three homers and six doubles. Larry Horn gave up only two singles on the mound for Lubbock, eliminating Quad Cities.

In games Saturday night, Wichita, Kan., downed Quad Cities 10-4 behind home runs by first baseman Ron Brown and designated hitter Woody Beisel. Beatrice, Neb., downed Lubbock 10-8 on the strength of a five-run seventh inning.

Astros syvipe one from Atlanta, 3-2

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Astros, who have lived on chip shot singles and pressure-cooker pitching much of the National League season, literally stole a 3-2 victory from the Atlanta Braves on Sunday night.

The Astros stole a club record seven bases to rally past the Braves, despite outstanding pitching performances by Braves starter Buddy Jay Solomon and reliever Gene Garber.

"We can run on almost any club really," Astros Manager Bill Virdon said. "Some clubs will shut you down more than others. It just depends on the individual pitching and catching. The pitching and catching (against Atlanta) here has been in-our

The victory kept the Astros five games ahead of Cincinnati in the League's Western Division race.

The Braves took a 2-0 lead off starter Joe Niekro, bidding to become the major leagues' first 16-game winner, in the fourth inning on a double by Bob Horner, which extended his hitting string to 18 games, and Solomon's seventh inning single.

But the Astros were off and stealing in the seventh when Enos Cabell singled, stole second, went to third on a single by Art Howe and scored Houston's first run on a throwing error by Braves catcher Joe Nolan.

Solomon, who scattered five hits and struck out five, left after Howe's hit and the Astros scored two more runs in the eighth off reliever Garber. Atlanta Manager Bobby Cox said Solomon had never pitched better and he couldn't ask more from Garber.

Rafael Landestoy led off with a single, took second on a grounder and sc ored the tying run on Jose Cruz' single. Cruz then stole second for the seventh Astros theft and scored the winning run on Art Howe's single to

It was another frustrating night for the Atlanta battery, which tied a major league record with six wild pitches in a 5-2 loss to the Astros in the second game of a doubleheader Saturday night.

"I clon't want to talk about it," Atlanta catcher Joe Nolan said as he walked away from a reporter.

"I'd rather not comment because Ican't say what I really want to say,' said Solcomon. "Teams that can run are running on us, and we haven't done anything about it.'

Houston second baseman Rafael Landestoy, who stole two bases in the game, said the speedy Astros put pressure on pitchers and catchers.

'Nolan therew good but he's got the pressure on him because he knows we are going to run and he's got to make a perfect throw," Landestoy said.

Bert Robe rge, 3-0, who relieved Niekro, got th e victory and Joe Sambito took over for Roberge in the ninth and got the sa ve.

"They ran us to death, that's all there was to it," Cox said. "They ran us out of the stadium. We're just not throwing the runners out."

Actors' deaths linked to bomb?

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - The cancer deaths of John Wayne, Susan Hayward, Dick Powell and Agnes Moorehead may be linked to radioactive fallout from an atomic bomb that exploded near the location where they filmed a movie together in 1954, according to two London newspapers...

The movie, "The Conqueror," was filmed in St. George, Utah, a year after a problem developed with the atom bomb test explosion in Nevada, the newspapers said.

The explosion went off as planned, but a change in wind direction sent a thick cloud of radioactivity over

Wayne and the rest of the cast were in Utah for two months. When they left, Powell decided to ship several tons of red soil back to Hollywood to give the filming there a touch of reality, the newspapers said.

"The trucks that hauled sand and rocks could have been carrying a time bomb set to kill 25 years later," the

However, a spokesman for the Wayne family said he had heard the theory linking the actor's death to the bomb explosion and it was "absolute-

Pedro Armendariz, a leading character actor in the film, committed suicide in June 1963 when, the Sun said, he had just been told he had lymph gland cancer.

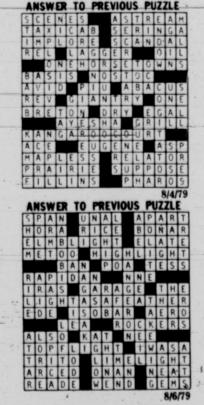

Wayne died at age 72 last June of his second major cancer attack. Powell, a victim of cancer, died at age 53 in October 1963. Miss Hayward died at age 56 of a malignant brain tumor in March 1975. Miss Moorehead died from cancer at age 74 in April 1974.

The paper also noted that three crew members on the movie - the art director, production manager and wardrobe mistress - died of cancer.

WASHINGTON TODAY Lack of managerial experts hurting Carter

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) - It's such an elementary principle of good management that you wonder how the Carter administration overlooked it the first time out: Where the boss is weak, the deputy should be strong.

If one is best at bright ideas, the other should be tops at carrying them The production whiz needs the sales booster. Mr. or Ms. Inside needs Ms. or Mr.

Outside. The Carter administration overlooked that principle, at least where energy management was concerned, and for two years it suffered the consequences in legislative failures

on Capitol Hill and a managerial mess in the new Department of En-Carter's mid-term Cabinet shakeup offers an intriguing opportunity to dust off the principle of management balance and put together a more varied and more effective energy team. The need for variety was apparent as long ago as April 1977, just after Carter announced his first major set of energy policies. James R. Schlesinger, then Carter's energy adviser and the obvious choice for secretary of energy, once the proposed new department was approved, was asked how he would sell the program - based on the obviously unpopular notion of raising fuel prices - to a voter-sensitive Congress. Schlesinger said he would simply explain the logical necessity of the program - again and again, if need e - until Congress eventually understood and adopted it. That meant the program was already in trouble.

Schlesinger predicted passage within the year, apparently unconcerned that logical argument is not always effective in Congress against politics and special-interest lobby-

Major energy legislation was to be delayed, in fact, some 17 months, emerging almost unrecognizable after a congressional mauling.

But that was Schlesinger's style: professorial to the point of condescension, lecturing, keen on theory but with little taste for practical politics.

Jimmy Carter's style too. Carter bypassed Democratic Party regulars and special interests in winning election and bragged that he owed nothing to anyone. But then he discovered they didn't owe him anything either, and he never developed a strong support base in Congress. Carter and Schlesinger have been described as "technocrats," managers whose strength lies in understanding modern technological sys-

Yet when Schlesinger became energy secretary, still another technocrat was named deputy secretary -John F. O'Leary, a veter an govern-ment executive who agrees with that description of himself. The title of undersecretary went to Dale D. Myers, an aeron autical engineer and space program's manager. Assistant secretary posts were heavy with people drawn from technical and administrative backgrounds. One of the few Ener gy Department executives with close links to Capitol Hill admitted private ly there was almost nobody in the top ranks of the department capable of effective lobbying with Congress. In a recent interview, O'Leary, soon to leave the depart ment, agreed that energy policy has suffered from this repeated casting of officials in the psychological im ages of Carter and Schlesinger. "It's a techn ocratic administration," O'Leary acknowledged. "It's certainly a gap that has hurt us, and not just us here; but the country.

And O'Lear'y said the Energy Department was not the only agency suffering from this executive unifor-

"I know t'ne personalities involved, and they a re not master-men on the Hill either ." he said.

To replace Schlesinger, the president has Chosen Deputy Defense Secretary C'narles W. Duncan, who has earned is reputation as an efficient manage r - which the Energy Departme nt really needs - but not as a policy-originator or persuader of reluctan t congressmen.

It r emains to be seen who Carter and J)uncan will assign to the other top Finergy Department positions.

Will they balance the management pro with a skilled lobbyist to coax the late st energy proposals through Congreess? With an imaginative idea-perso a? With a few people who don't be long to the same club?

Or will they, once again, send in the

Come to think of it, that was largely Guerrilla, black leaders wary of negotiations

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) - Guerrilla spokesmen and the new black prime minister of Zimbabwe Rhodesia today both voiced suspicions about the British Commonwealth's plan for negotiating a new constitution and elections to end the 7-year-old war there. But neither side rejected the proposals outright.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, meanwhile, defended the plan as the best way to avoid greater bloodshed in Zimbabwe Rhodesia. She had retreated from support of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa's government to join the Commonwealth's other heads of government in agreeing on the plan.

"Peace, that is the greatest prize," Mrs. Thatcher told a news confer-

Leaders of the 39 Commonwealth nations united in a statement Sunday night saying they were "wholly committed to genuine black majority rule for the people of Zimbabwe!' and the "internal settlement" constitution drawn up by former Prime Minister Ian Smith, Bishop Muzorewa and two other black Rhodesian leaders was "defective in certain important re-

The statement called for a constitutional conference convened by Britain to which all parties - including the guerrillas - would be invited, "adoption of a democratic constitution including appropriate safeguards for minorities" (meaning the white set-tlers) and "free and fair elections" supervised by the British government and observed by Commonwealth observers.

The statement significantly referred throughout to Zimbabwe, the African name for Rhodesia, and not to Zimbabwe Rhodesia, the reminder of Rhodesia's colonial past which Smith forced on Muzorewa and the other black leaders with whom he negotiated the internal settlement.

"We have got a chance, and we are determined to take it," Mrs. Thatcher told reporters. "It is good news for all Rhodesians and all those who believe we should find a solution by the ballot box and not the bullet.

In his capital city of Salisbury, Muzorewa issued a statement today describing as "an insult to the electorate and the government of this country" suggestions that the universal-suffrage elections held in April meant nothing "and that we have to start all over again.'

But he did not flatly reject the plan. "What has emerged from the Commonwealth conference in Lusaka are some positive elements and some which still require further substantial clarification," Muzorewa's chief domestic political rival, the Rev. Ndabaningsi Sithole, described the Commor wealth plan for a new all-party conference, including guerrilla leaders. Joshua

Nkomo and Mozambique-based Robert Mugabe as "most welcome.

Nkomo had no immediate statement, but his press spokesman, Willie Musarurwa, said during a visit to Addis Ababa, Ethiophia, "Britain looks after her own interests in Rhodesia. I do n ot think Britain is acceptable as a supervisor of elections, nor would British troops in Rhodesia be acceptable..

Mrs. Thatcher's swing away from likely re cognition of the Muzorewa-Smith government was a fatal blow to its charices of international acceptance. Nikomo and Mugabe appeared likely to accept the proposed plan because its authors included Zambia and Tanzania, two of their chief supporters, as well as Nigeria, another power'iul backer.

The agreement was immediately attacked by right-wing members of Mrs. Thatcher's Conservative Party in B ritain, who accused her of a sel lout to black African pressure. But after only three months back in power, they are not likely to do anything to endanger Mrs. Thatcher's maj ority in Parliament.

In Washington, a State Department spc kesman said a statement probably would be issued today on the proposals. It was considered certain that the Carter administration would welcome them, call on all factions to a ccept them and offer the U.S. government's full cooperation in realizing them. But right-wing Republicans were expected to make the same criticism that their British counterparts were making.

Earthquake felt

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A substantial earthquake jolted a large section of Northern California today. but there were no immediate reports of damage or injury.

The quake was felt in Sacramento, 90 miles east of San Francisco, and San Jose, about 50 miles to the south.

The tremor shook highrise buildings in two rolling jolts, which were felt as two separate rocking motions within about a 30-second period.
