Coast Guard scouring coast.

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — Diminishing winds stilled and slightly reversed an invading Mexican oil spill along the Texas coast today. Coast Guard officials said the beaches were only "lightly oiled" and the situation "looks good."

Coast Guard Capt. Roger Madson said the oil, from history's largest oil spill, reversed slightly in its northerly flow because southeasterly winds had died down. The winds had been causing the Gulf Coast currents to carry the flow.

He said the spill from Mexico did not move at all Tuesday after tarry globs of crude first arrived from a blown-out Mexican well. The Coast Guard today called into action a sophisticated array of equipment to scour the beaches.

"We can only predict five days. Right now it looks good," Madson told a morning news briefing in Corpus Christi.

"We're unaware of any disturbances eastward in the Caribbean. If Mother Nature decides to get up on her hind leg and be uncooperative, we'd be in a much more difficult situation," he said.

Another Coast Guard official, Dr. John Robinson, said the beaches were only "lightly oiled," the lowest terminology used in such incidents.

He called the problem very minimal at the resort areas. The situation is much worse about 30 miles north at the Port Mansfield cut, but even there the beaches are only lightly oiled, he said.

Robinson said early reports from divers on the research ship Longhorn found fingernail particles of oil beneath the surface off Port Mansfield. Offshore, the particles were found as deep as 35 feet, but were only 5 to 7 feet deep immediately offshore, he said. Meanwhile, vacationers surfed, swam and basked in the warm South Padre Island sunshine, apparently undisturbed by the Coast Guard's counter-attack against the lead edge of the spill, which scientists said could possibly damage hundreds of miles of sensitive coastline from Texas to Florida.

Gift shops reported a run on nail polish remover and other solvents used to remove the tar from the feet of beachcombers. But hotels were filled and Ralph Thompson, executive vice president of the island's tourist bureau, said: "We don't have a serious problem here." Reconnaissance flights over the Gulf detected several oil patches south and east of Corpus Christi, said Carl Posey of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

It was not known whether those sheens came from a 2-mile-wide, 6-mile-long slick that was seen bobbing in warm waters southeast of Corpus Christi.

Earlier in the day, Environmental Protection Agency spokesman Roger Meacham said there was a "distinct possibility" the oil in the Gulf could damage the sensitive coastal ecology from Texas to Florida.

But he cautioned that there is "no way in the world anybody could say that for sure. ... It would be like predicting the weather three months from now. There are too many unknowns."

Oil from the Mexican well is spewing at a rate of about 20,000 barrels a day into the Bay of Campeche, hundreds of miles southeast of South Padre Island.

Texas Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Tuesday he was told it might take six weeks to drill the relief wells.

After touring a section of the coastal area where tar balls washed ashore on Tuesday, Hobby said he believes Gov. Bill Clements will consider declaring it a disaster area.

"Chances are very good that long-term ecological damage can be avoided," Hobby said, "but we are going to see some very dirty beaches. It will look terrible, but they can be cleaned up without lasting damage ... it will take a lot of effort and a lot of money."

Taxes for schools may go down for some payers

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

Midlanders who have claimed the homestead exemption allowed by the Tax Relief Amendment will see an overall reduction in their school taxes next year, despite the six-cent tax increase school trustees are expected to enact next Tuesday.

Only two of the 15 people in the audience spoke at a Tuesday public hearing on the proposed tax rate increase from $1.20 to $1.26 per $100 valuation. Midland Independent School District board of trustees held the hearing in the Administration Building.

Using property valued at $50,000 as an example, a homeowner claiming the $5,000 school tax exemption would see a 5.5 percent reduction in his school taxes next year from $450 to $425.25, according to Don Ferguson, business manager for the school district.

Persons over 65 who claimed both the $5,000 homestead exemption and an additional $10,000 exemption for the elderly would realize an overall 12.5 percent decrease on the same piece of property, from $378 to $330.75.

That tax rate for senior citizens then would be frozen, school officials explained, as long as the person owned the property, despite future increases in the value of the property.

Property that does not qualify for the homestead tax exemption would experience a 5 percent tax increase. For a piece of property valued at $50,000, that would mean an increase in school taxes from $450 to $472.50.

Persons qualified for the tax exemption by signing up at the Tax Assessor-Collector's office. By the filing deadline this year, 10,460 households had signed up for the $5,000 exemption and 2,641 had registered for the additional senior citizen's credit.

Increases in valuations also would raise taxes on property, but no major re-valuation program was carried out this year, Schools Superintendent Dr. James Mailey noted. Some $8.6 million was added to the tax rolls through re-valuation, "and that's nothing to be sneezed at," he noted, but the majority of homeowners did not see an increase in their valuations.

Anyone whose property was revalued should already have received notification, he said.

The tax relief amendment passed last session by the Texas Legislature cost the Midland school district about half a million dollars, school officials said.

While the legislation exempted an additional $5,000 for homesteads and an extra $10,000 over that for the elderly, it did not provide for reimbursement to the school district for the tax money lost through the exemptions.

That, school officials said, plus the effects of inflation, are the cause of the six-cent tax increase they will vote on next Tuesday.

Airliner from Midland lands without left wheels

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A Continental Airlines jetliner made an emergency landing Tuesday night after the wheels on the left side would not come down, an airline spokesman said.

"The right side was working perfectly, the nose gear was working perfectly, but on one part of the left side the wheels didn't come down," said Continental spokesman Jack Gregory.

None of the 34 passengers aboard Flight 253 was hurt, Gregory said. The flight originated in Houston and was bound for Tucson, Ariz., with stops in Midland-Odessa and El Paso, he said.

"He had a malfunction in his landing gear," Gregory said. "He had to go around a couple of times to see if he could correct it, and so he ended up making an emergency landing at the El Paso International Airport."

Gregory said the landing was "lopsided," but he gave the pilot credit for his skill.

"The plane has some damage, but we won't know what extent or what caused it until we get it into a hangar," Gregory said.

A Continental Airlines spokesperson in Midland said this morning that 22 passengers boarded the flight at Midland Regional Airport late Tuesday.

The flight departed Midland at 11:13 p.m. Tuesday and arrived in El Paso at 11:37 p.m. (MST).

No passengers were injured in the incident, the spokesperson said, and the aircraft was only slightly damaged.

Fires still burning in five dry states

The Associated Press

A break in hot, dry weather brought help for firefighters battling Idaho's raging forest fires today, but a fire official said it was only "transient relief."

"The outlook is very grim," said Bob Bjornsen, Forest Service director for the Boise Interagency Fire Center, which is directing fire fighting efforts in five Western states.

His comments came just after National Forest Service spokesman Joe Nadolski issued the first good report on weather conditions in several days.

"The temperatures, humidity and winds are down. That means the fire won't burn nearly as fast," said Nadolski.

But Bjornsen said the long-range weather outlook was for more hot and dry weather in most areas over the next 10 days.

He said half the nation's total forest fire-fighting resources were employed this morning in fighting 24 fires covering 143,000 acres of tinder-dry timber and rangeland in Idaho, Oregon, Montana, Wyoming and California.

In Idaho alone, 123,000 acres are burning, and about 2,900 of the 7,000 firefighters were involved in Idaho blazes, he said.

Nadolski said one-quarter inch of rain fell on the month-old 50,000-acre Gallagher Peak fire in the Targee National Forest overnight and the blaze was expected to be controlled by 6 p.m. Friday.

Nadolski said the weather change means firefighters will be able to confront the 56,000-acre Mortar Creek fire head-on. The fire has burned so intensely that fire crews haven't been able to dig fire lines downward. "We've just been working on the flanks, now we can get all away around it."

Gordon Stevens, fire boss at Mortar Creek, said Tuesday. "There's no force on Earth powerful enough to cope with what we've seen. Nature will just have to do her thing first."

Smoke from Mortar Creek, which Stevens said "will rank with the greatest fires in recent memory," darkened the sky more than 100 miles away at Yellowstone Park Tuesday, and state officials said the huge firefighting effort was taxing Idaho's diesel fuel supply.

This car thief got a surprise

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jason the boa constrictor has not been seen since the night Lawrence and Alice Olivieri took him for a ride July 28.

As the reptile waited for his owners in the back seat, the Olivieri's car was stolen.

Olivieri advised the culprit via radio and television to "use caution, as there is a scared, live, 4 1/2-foot boa constrictor" somewhere about.

Two days later, the vehicle was found abandoned. The Olivieris beat the bushes, but did not find their snake.

Jeremy is now a Yank

Midlander, 3, becomes a citizen

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

Many native-born Americans never appreciate what it takes to become an American citizen.

For a 3-year-old Midlander, the dream many Americans take for granted was fulfilled Tuesday.

In a 35-minute ceremony, Jeremy John Garlington and 23 fellow human beings became American citizens. For Jeremy and his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Gordon Garlington III, 3618 Sinclair Ave., becoming an American is the culmination of a 2 1/2 year process.

The Garlingtons were wanting to adopt a baby while they were living in Virginia. Gordon and his wife, Shirley, decided to adopt a child from Mexico.

According to Garlington, they wanted a child from Mexico because his wife is half Hispanic.

After consulting with an international adoption agency in Chicago, they were told about an infant in Mexico who was available for adoption.

The Garlingtons flew down to Mexico City to pick up their child. At the time, Jeremy was three months old.

Once back in the United States, the Garlingtons had to go through the old process where a person has to be in the United States for two years before he can become a naturalized citizen.

The new law now allows for children born outside the United States to immediately become citizens if both parents adopting the child are American citizens.

Yesterday, the long process for the Garlingtons came to an end.

The ceremony was conducted in the U.S. District Courtroom of the George Mahon Federal Building in Midland. Twenty-four persons of 10 nationalities revoked their old national allegiance and pledged their loyalty to the United States.

Most of the people petitioning for naturalization were from Mexico. Others were from Argentina, Jordan, the Philippines, Vietnam, India, Iran, China, Korea and Germany.

During the ceremony, Judge D.W. Suttle took favorable notice of the young Garlington's age and enthusiastic response in becoming an American citizen.

U.S. Magistrate Michael Cunningham explained to the new Americans the duties, responsibilities and privileges of U.S. citizens. Noting that the U.S. system is not perfect, he said the freedoms which are protected by the government reveal the genius of our system.

Afterwards, an American flag which was flown over the Capitol in Washington, D.C. was presented to Jeremy from U.S. Rep. Kent Hance in recognition of the occasion.

When asked how he felt about being an American citizen, Jeremy shyly replied, "Great." New Americans are not given to much talk.

But in time he will grow to understand and appreciate that freedom which allows him and all Americans to say "Great."

Carter will not meet with PLO; No policy change, reports say

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, declaring there has been no change in his policy toward the Palestinian Liberation Organization, is meeting with the new Israeli ambassador at a difficult juncture in U.S.-Israel relations.

Carter scheduled a lunch today in the Oval Office with Ambassador Ephraim Eylon. It will be his first conference with the envoy since reports appeared last week suggesting the United States may be moving toward a friendlier view of the Palestinian group.

The question of a possible change in U.S. policy came up while Carter was visiting Baltimore Tuesday.

Asked by a reporter whether such a change has taken place, the president responded with a flat "no."

Last week, the president was reported to have likened the Palestinian cause to the U.S. civil rights movement. This report, based on a dinner conversation with a group of reporters, raised questions in Israel and among its supporters in the United States about the strength of the U.S. commitment to Israel.

But administration officials, including Vice President Walter F. Mondale, moved quickly to explain that the president had no intention of opening any talks with the Palestinian Liberation Organization until the PLO accepted U.N. Resolution 242, which states a recognition of Israel's right to exist.

Associate White House press secretary Gerald Schecter said Tuesday evening that Carter would use the luncheon to "indicate that the ties are as close as ever."

He said the luncheon topics were likely to be the continuing search for peace in the Middle East and the three-way U.S.-Israel-Egyptian negotiations on autonomy for the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip and West Bank of the Jordan River.

U.S. officials have been sensitive to reports that U.S.-Israel relations are at a difficult point and one said "we don't believe there is a crisis" in relations with Israel.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance was quoted Tuesday as telling one of Israel's prominent supporters in the Senate that the United States would not attempt in the United Nations to give the Palestinian people the right to self-determination.

Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., said Vance told him that — contrary to published reports — the United States is not trying to negotiate its own modification of Resolution 242, which has served as the framework for peace between Israel and her Arab neighbors.

Stone said Vance reaffirmed a 1977 U.S. promise to Israel not to negotiate with or recognize the PLO unless it affirms Israel's right to exist within recognized and defensible borders. Stone is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Middle East subcommittee.

Kuwait is promoting a new resolution affirming Palestinian rights. The existing resolution, adopted by the U.N. Security Council in 1967, dealt with the Palestinians solely as a refugee problem.

Hands off Ireland, Britons tell U.S.

Things are bad enough

LONDON (AP) — Protestant leaders in Northern Ireland and most of the British press denounced New York Gov. Hugh Carey's plan for a three-way meeting in the United States on the embattled province.

"Hands Off," said the Daily Express. "Things in Ulster are bad enough without American politicians trying to get into the act."

The paper accused Carey and other Irish-American politicians like Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of interfering in Northern Ireland to win the millions of U.S. voters of Irish descent.

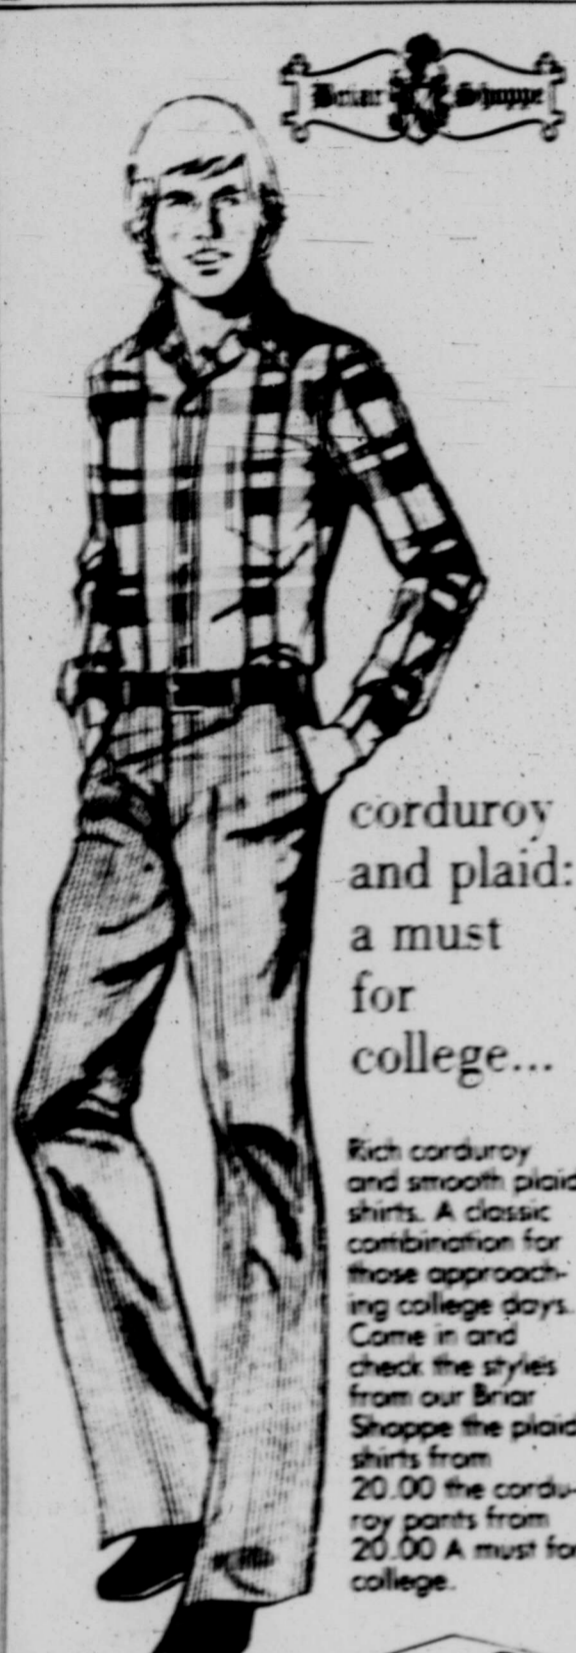

The storm blew up on Monday when Carey, following a visit to Britain and Ireland, announced plans for talks in New York on the future of Northern Ireland, the British province where 2,000 persons have been killed and more than 25,000 wounded in 30 years of Catholic-Protestant conflict.

Carey said Britain's minister for the province, Humphrey Adkins, and Irish Republic Foreign Minister Michael O'Kennedy had agreed to his suggestion, and the British-Irish-American talks were tentatively scheduled for September.

Adkins said Tuesday that he agreed to consider a U.S. visit, but "at no time was there any question of negotiating the future of Northern Ireland at such a meeting."

"The political future of the province is a matter for negotiation between Her Majesty's Government, the Parliament at Westminster and the people of Ulster," he said after outraged Protestant leaders in the province demanded assurances that Britain does not plan to barter on Ulster's future.

Among Protestants unanimously denouncing the Carey initiative was the Rev. Ian Paisley, who said, "If Mr. Adkins is going to open negotiations with people outside Northern Ireland, then he is heading for trouble. The future of Northern Ireland is absolutely no business of Americans."

He's not really dying so he's suing doctor

CHICAGO (AP) — Harry Perry says he was just living from week to week. He couldn't look to the future — he thought he didn't have one.

Now, after believing for almost five years that he was dying of leukemia, Perry, 53, has found out that he never had the often terminal disease at all.

Perry, who lives in north suburban Schaumburg, says he should never have paid thousands of dollars for chemotherapy treatments, refused to remarry, quit a job, and generally spent almost five years depressed, lonely, and waiting to die.

And he has filed a $200,000 suit against the doctor and the hospital who he says told him he had leukemia in 1974.

"I definitely would have lived my life differently," Perry said Tuesday. "I've lost five years of my life. I was told I had a terminal disease. He (the doctor) said, 'live a normal life.' But you don't live a normal life."

Perry filed the suit against Dr. Arthur B. Dupee, an Arlington Heights blood specialist, and the Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

Efforts to reach Dupee and the hospital's administrator were unsuccessful.

Perry said that when he entered the hospital and took bone marrow tests early in 1974 for a leg ulcer, he had no reason to doubt the diagnosis of leukemia, though he never felt ill.

After being told he had leukemia, Perry said, he quit his job as a parts manager for an auto dealer. Later, he began working as a cab driver and as a bartender at a local American Legion.

Perry, who had been divorced about four years earlier, said he couldn't think of remarrying. "I couldn't do that to anybody. And there's the grief it causes your family."

He took a room by himself in a Barrington home. He drank heavily. "I was just living from week to week."

Years of chemotherapy made him feel "a little sick," Perry said. When he finally entered the Great Lakes Naval Hospital last October, he was "really in bad shape," partly because of an ear infection, he said.

Perry said that's when the hospital began running tests and determined he didn't have the disease.

Since October, he has remarried and bought a house. He quit taking treatments for leukemia, and he says he feels great.

But does Perry believe his new diagnosis? "I think they (the Great Lakes Naval Hospital) were rather thorough in their testing," he said. "There were so many tests. And I feel great. "Definitely, I do believe it now."

Satellite airports to be improved

WASHINGTON (AP) — To make the skies over 56 metropolitan airports safer, the government is going to lure away thousands of small planes by spending $100 million to improve facilities at nearby satellite fields.

The Federal Aviation Administration, announcing the four-year program Tuesday, said it will upgrade 86 satellite airports with electronic landing aids, automated weather-reporting equipment and improved runways, taxiways and aircraft parking aprons.

"The growth in commercial air travel and general aviation has been enormous and we've got to do something to reduce saturation at the hubs," FAA Administrator Lang-orne M. Bond told reporters. "Our goal is to relieve congestion and reduce the mix of commercial and non-commercial aircraft at major hub airports by making neighboring satellite fields more attractive to private and business fliers," he said.

Charles Spence, vice president of the Airplane Owners and Pilots Association, said, "We have been pushing for such a program for years. We are very definitely in favor of it." The association represents owners and operators of small, general aviation planes.

Bond said the plan will be a fuel-saver because it will reduce the time planes waste in holding patterns while awaiting clearance to land. He said the installation of instrument landing systems (ILS) at 24 of the satellites also will reduce the need for pilots to use such facilities at the crowded hub airports for practice landings.

One of the nation's worst air disasters occurred last Sept. 25 when a Pacific Southwest Airlines Boeing 727 jetliner collided with a small Cessna practicing instrument landings at San Diego's Lindbergh Field. A total of 144 persons died.

Bond said that while the satellite airport improvement program has been in the works for some time, it was hastened by the San Diego accident.

"The San Diego crash is a good example of an area that needs upgraded reliever airports," the FAA chief said. He reported that three San Diego satellites — Brown, Gillespie and Montgomery fields — will be upgraded and that an ILS will be installed at Montgomery.

Bond said he expects substantial numbers of general aviation planes to divert to the improved satellite fields because he said all elements of aviation support the plan.

He said that eventually as many as 236 satellite fields in 75 metropolitan areas could be improved, but that the number will depend on future congressional appropriations.

In selecting the initial metropolitan areas for the program, the FAA said it considered airports with more than 20,000 air carrier operations a year and those with neighboring airports that don't have facilities for instrument landing training.

Another massage injunction issued

ODESSA — A temporary injunction against a third Odessa massage parlor in a week was issued Monday prohibiting prostitution or promotion of prostitution.

The order was issued by 244th District Judge Joe Connally against Caesar's Den.

County Attorney Mike Atkins had gotten similar injunctions last week against the Crystal Palace Massage and the Satin Slipper.

Other requests for injunctions were denied. Mary's Health Spa and Brady's Therapy Center escaped injunctions last week because they had recently been sold.

Temporary restraining orders prohibiting prostitution were issued against nine Odessa massage parlors last month. Eight of the nine were raided the same day by law enforcement officials, and the ninth was closed as a result of the raids.

More stations will be open Sunday

HOUSTON (AP) — The American Automobile Association reports more service stations plan to be open Sunday than at any time since it began weekly fuel reports in early May.

The Texas Division of AAA said Tuesday its survey of 415 stations also showed better gas availability on weekday and Saturday nights.

Gasoline prices rose an average of less than one cent a gallon the second consecutive week, but full-service premium recorded a new high of 94.2 cents, compared with 93.9 a week earlier.

However, the price of diesel fuel dropped from 92.9 to 92.1 cents a gallon.

Other full-service averages were (last week's price in parentheses): regular, 89.2 (88.4) and unleaded, 92.6 (92.2).

Self-service averages were: regular, 86.8 (85.9), unleaded, 90.6 (89.8), and premium, 92.3 (91.7).

DC-10 warning equipment urged

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) — Additional equipment to warn pilots of stalls, which the Federal Aviation Administration has recommended for the DC-10, would not have prevented a crash that killed 273 persons, a federal official says.

However, Hugh Waterman, chief of systems and equipment for the Federal Aviation Administration's Western Region, testified Tuesday that the FAA proposals should be put into effect to increase public safety.

Waterman was testifying during a National Transportation Safety Board hearing into the crash on May 25, the nation's worst air disaster.

Officials have said a stall contributed to the crash of American Airlines Flight 191 at Chicago O'Hare International Airport. The DC-10's left engine and mounting pylon peeled away from the wing when the plane was taking off.

The FAA has proposed that an additional "stick-shaker" be installed to warn a pilot when the plane loses enough speed and lift to approach a stall, and that computers used to sense the position of lift devices on the plane's wings be programmed to get readings from both wings instead of just one.

The "stick-shaker" causes the pilot's control column to vibrate when the plane begins to go into a stall.

And the wing devices, called slats, are metal extensions on the front part of each wing which provide extra lift for takeoff.

"During the re-evaluation (after the crash) we noted that with two stall-warning systems installed, the left computer received information only on the left slats," Waterman said. "The right-hand computer received information from the right inboard slat."

Billy Carter

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Carter, rehabilitated but still irrepressible, says there's nothing politically wrong with his older brother — certainly nothing that Sen. Edward Kennedy could fix.

In an interview with NBC's "Tomorrow" show broadcast early today, Billy said the Massachusetts Democrat, viewed by many as a possible presidential contender, "might make a good president but he couldn't teach driver education in Georgia."

Carter, appearing healthier and thinner after treatment at an alcoholic rehabilitation center in Long Beach, Calif., also denied that he had changed his outspoken ways.

And when asked what he would do if Jimmy tried to order him to lower his profile, Billy replied: "I'd say, kiss my ass."

Wearing a light green suit and burgundy cowboy boots, the younger Carter said he "hadn't changed at all. I'm just feeling better and am not drinking."

NEW YORK (AP) — His lawyer says he was kidnapped, but police say he's a missing person.

In any case, authorities still do not know the whereabouts of Italian financier Michele Sindona, who was free on $3 million bail awaiting trial on fraud charges when he disappeared last week.

Sindona's lawyer, Marvin Frankel, said he had no developments to report Tuesday. He had said on Monday that Sindona's secretary had received a phone call saying Sindona was being held prisoner.

Sindona reportedly has not been seen since he left his suite in the Hotel Pierre at 7:15 p.m. on Thursday. He is to be tried on 99 counts of fraud in the 1974 collapse of the Franklin National Bank.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last fall, Rolling Stones lead singer Mick Jagger told a court hearing that $13,000 in cash and jewels had been stolen from his mansion and that James Harrington, who worked as a security guard during the Stones' 1978 U.S. tour, had a key to the residence.

Harrington, 27, was arrested in New York on Sept. 15 and extradited to California. After pleading guilty on July 11, Harrington was placed on probation Tuesday and ordered to make restitution.

Jagger had listed a guitar-shaped diamond stick pin, a heart-shaped gold locket and two watches among the missing goods.

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Tightrope walker Steve Wallenda has pleaded innocent to a charge of reckless endangerment for blocking traffic while trying to cross Puget Sound on the suspension cables of the Tacoma Narrows Bridge.

The 30-year-old performer remained in jail Tuesday on $500 bond Tuesday after trial was set for Aug. 15. Wallenda, grand-nephew of the late high-wire artist Karl Wallenda, was jailed Monday night after an aborted attempt to span the sound.

Amish sect went for a week with no knowledge of TMI

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — In a break with tradition, an Amish church leader met with a governmental committee to say some members of the sect went for a week without hearing of the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident.

Bearded, black-clad Andrew Kinsinger met Tuesday with the state House committee investigating the Three Mile Island nuclear crisis and said because of the church's practice of avoiding most modern technology — like television and radio — the Amish living near the plant were not immediately informed of the March 28 accident.

Also Tuesday, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission approved plans for taking water samples from inside the plant's crippled reactor. NRC spokesman Karl Abraham said workers were to begin today drilling through sealed openings into the building housing the reactor that was damaged by the accident to get samples of radioactive water.

"It's not very risky at all," said David Klucsik, a spokesman for Metropolitan Edison, which operates the plant.

Kinsinger, chairman of the Old Order Amish Steering Committee-National, told the committee most Old Order Amish do not have telephones and less than half receive a daily paper.

He said the Amish could be notified of a nuclear emergency by their volunteer fire companies, which have loud speakers, and field workers could be called home with dinner bells.

But, he said the best way to notify the Amish would be through leaders of church districts. "Word from one of the leaders would be followed pretty closely," he said.

He added the Amish seem to have escaped the alarm the accident triggered among others living near Three Mile Island.

NASA checking records for defective aluminum

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is going over its purchase records to learn whether possibly defective aluminum has been used in construction of the space shuttle.

The NASA records' search stems from a Federal Aviation Administration announcement two weeks ago that a German aircraft manufacturer had found faulty aluminum plate made by Reynolds Metals.

NASA says it has purchased aluminum plate from Reynolds, but does not know at this point whether any of it went into the space shuttle, scheduled for its first orbital flight next year.

"We won't know until we have tracked down all the records from the vendors and determine if any of the aluminum was earmarked for the shuttle and then see if it was used," NASA spokesman Dave Garrett said Tuesday.

Reynolds officials said last week the possibly faulty materials were produced between January 1978 and this June at the firm's plant at McCook, Ill. The possible defect involves soft spots in aluminum sheets that were not cooled quickly enough when fabricated.

Cancer-causing agents found in scotch, beer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tiny traces of cancer-causing agents have been found by researchers in six brands of Scotch whisky, the National Science Foundation says. The agents, called nitrosamines, apparently form while barley malt is drying.

But an industry group quickly responded to the report Tuesday by saying the researchers' measurements differ from those of the World Health Organization and "this may raise questions about the accuracy" of the NSF report.

Nitrosamines, previously found in tests of bacon, have caused cancer in laboratory animals. Scientists say that while there is no direct evidence they produce cancer in humans, nitrosamines should be considered as if they did.

"It has been known since last year that malt beverages such as beer and ale contain small amounts of nitrosamines," said Wayne Pines of the Food and Drug Administration. "The malt beverage industry has been working on ways to reduce or eliminate nitrosamines. The industry has told FDA it expects positive results within a matter of months."

He added that the FDA "is considering what regulatory options are available if industry cannot reduce these levels."

The Distilled Spirits Council of the U.S. called attention to the NSF statement that the relation of nitrosamines at low levels to human health is unknown.

A spokesman for the industry group did not provide the WHO figures on nitrosamines in scotch, but said the council was preparing a more complete statement on the NSF report.

Researchers David H. Fine and E. Ulku Goff said they found no volatile nitrosamines "in any of the 46 domestic and imported wines, sherris, liqueurs, brandies, gins, vodkas, rums and other whiskeys that were analyzed."

The seven scotches tested showed nitrosamines at levels ranging from zero to two parts per billion, the NSF said.

The trade council said those levels "are at least 20 times less than the minimum at which the U.S. Department of Agriculture has begun a monitoring program."

Pines said the scotches found to contain nitrosamines are Chivas Regal, Black and White, J&B, Ballantine, Sandy Scot and Cutty Sark. No nitrosamines were found in White Label. Those were the only brands tested.

The researchers characterized the amount of nitrosamines in the scotch as low compared with amounts administered in laboratory tests on animals. They noted that it is not known how closely animal reactions to the chemical reflect human response.

Nitrosamine levels found in beer have ranged from 0.4 to 7.0 parts per billion. As little as 10 parts per billion caused a tripling of lung tumors in some mice, the NSF said.

Eighteen beers tested contained trace amounts of nitrosamines. Pines identified them as Lowenbrau light, Gansett dark, Schlitz Light, Pabst Xtra Lite, Miller Lite, Michelob light, all made in the United States. Foreign beers listed included Fisher, France; San Miguel, Philippines; Kirin, Japan; Marathon, Greece; Heineken, Holland; Grolsch, Holland; Skol, Holland; St. Pauli Girl, Germany; Dos Eques, Mexico; Guinness, Ireland; Foster's, Australia, and Newcastle, England.

Erik Estrada listed in stable condition

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — While fans flooded him with phone calls and flowers, "CHIPS" star Erik Estrada was in stable condition as he recuperated from injuries suffered during filming of the popular NBC-TV program.

The handsome teen idol was awake and alert Tuesday after being removed from the critical list, said UCLA Medical Center administrator Bernard Strohm.

"We had over 600 calls this morning," Strohm said, adding "mostly they were younger, female voices."

"He has a broken sternum," Strohm said "Both lungs are slightly collapsed; several ribs are broken; his right wrist is broken and he has a minor cut on his chin."

Strohm said Estrada "is breathing on his own." The 30-year-old New York native, who portrays patrolman Frank "Ponch" Poncherello in the series, was injured when he was tossed from his motorcycle during filming Monday.

"CHIPS" has consistently been NBC's most popular show since its debut two years ago. The show boosted Estrada to teen-age idol status.

Strohm said Estrada was receiving blood transfusions and medication for pain and remained under observation for secondary blood loss. At one time, blood had accumulated in his chest.

"The good news is that extensive examination of major arteries and veins shows that they were not damaged, and there was some real anxiety about that," he said. It had been feared that broken bones may have damaged the aorta close to the heart.

Strohm said Estrada told him, "He realizes how lucky he is and the probability of his survival is due to his good physical condition."

But Strohm said doctors cannot yet estimate when Estrada will be able to return to work.

Production of "CHIPS" was to resume today without Estrada after a one-day suspension, said Al Newman, vice president of MGM Studios.

He said Estrada's accident, which occurred when the rear wheel of his motorcycle spun out from beneath him in a Pacoima alley, was captured on film.

"It will be integrated into a segment of 'CHIPS,'" Newman said.

He said scripts will be modified to explain Estrada's absence. If Estrada is able to return to work, he might portray an injured highway patrolman until his full recovery, Newman said. "He will always be a part of the show."

Bush discloses financial worth as $1.8 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush, the first contender for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination to make public his financial status, says he is worth $1.8 million.

In documents filed with the Federal Election Commission, Bush and his wife, Barbara, gave details of investments valued at about $1 million. Although Bush made much of his money in offshore oil drilling, the current listing shows no oil stocks. Among other assets, Bush listed a $400,000 Houston residence and a house in Kennebunkport, Maine, valued at $100,000. In addition to his financial statement, Bush gave the FEC copies of his income tax returns for the last six years.

Mrs. Azie Morton

U.S. official named Labor Day speaker

Treasurer of the United States and Director of the U.S. Savings Bonds Division, Mrs. Azie Morton, is the speaker at the Labor Day celebration in Odessa, according to D. L. Willis, president to the Odessa Central Labor Union, AFL-CIO.

The Labor Day event will be held in Odessa's Floyd Gwin Park at noon Sept. 3.

Morton has held various positions within the Texas AFL-CIO. In 1961, she worked on President's Kennedy's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity and the President's Committee on Equal Opportunity in Housing. In 1968, Morton was the Director of Social Services, Model Cities Program in Wichita, Kansas.

In 1971, she was Special Assistant to the chairman, Democratic National Committee. Morton served as vice chairperson of the Arrangements Committee and deputy conference manager of the 1974 Democratic Conference on Party Organization and Policy. She also was the deputy convention manager of the 1976 Democratic Convention in New York City.

In 1977, President Carter named Morton to the post of U.S. Treasurer and Director of the Mint.

She is listed in the current editions of Who's Who among Women Internationally, Who's Who Among Black Americans, Who's Who in Politics, Who's Who in Government and the 48th Edition of Who's Who in America.

Construction suspended at nuclear power plant

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Public Service Indiana said Tuesday it is voluntarily suspending all construction in areas related to safety at the Marble Hill nuclear power plant being built near Madison.

grade safety. Barker's decision comes on the heels of an announcement by NRC spokesman James Kepler that the government agency was considering halting all construction at the site.

Utility President Hugh A. Barker said that such construction will not be resumed until his company and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission "can assure the public that all safety and work standards will be met."

Safety-related work includes installation of piping, concrete pouring, welding in safety areas of the plant and structural steel work in the auxiliary building.

Barker also announced a series of six steps the utility will take to up-

Barker said the action will delay the scheduled start-up of the plant in fall 1982. He noted that delays will cost about $12 million a month.

Army clashes with revolutionary guards

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Army officers and enlisted men clashed with revolutionary guards in northwest Orumiyyeh to protest the execution of an army colonel and an army sergeant, and an undetermined number of persons were wounded by gunfire, press reports said today.

The soldiers were incensed over the executions Tuesday and staged protests within the military garrison in Orumiyyeh, the reports said.

The demonstration spilled out into the city, leading to clashes with revolutionary guards. Several shots were fired until order was restored and the troops returned to their base, the press reports added.

The colonel and sergeant were convicted by a revolutionary court of complicity in the murder of protesters during demonstrations against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, whose regime was ousted in February by the revolutionary forces of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's Shiite Moslem leader.

Mohammad Haghu, governor general of West Azerbaijan province, of which Orumiyyeh is the capital, blamed the strife on the revolutionary court. He said the court president, who reportedly fled the city fearing for his safety, was "an inexperienced youth of 25 who took things into his own hands and hurried the executions," the official news agency Pars reported.

Two months ago troops in the Kurdish city of Kermanshah stopped an Islamic tribunal from carrying out the death sentence against a corporal by keeping him under guard within the garrison for protection. The government has never given any indication how the problem was resolved.

In other developments:

A prominent Tehran businessman was shot and critically wounded by two unknown men who shot him in the back from a passing motorbike as he drove to work from his home in a fashionable suburb, Pars said. Hours after the shooting, a caller telephoned a Tehran newspaper and said the shooting of the businessman, Ahmad Lajevardi, president of the Behshahr industrial group, was the work of the "Forghan" group, which has taken responsibility for other shootings and acts of terrorism.

Iranian political parties criticized a controversial press law that led to the closing Tuesday of the Tehran newspaper Ayandegan. One major group, the National Democratic Front, called on "all free political parties and groups to rise up against this kind of action, now and voice their objections to the Iranian people and throughout the world." The press-law calls for the indefinite suspension of publications critical of the government or Iranian religious leaders.

Khomeini issued an appeal on state radio, asking Iranian workers to end strikes and sit-ins so that the battered economy can be improved. Strikers "favor the enemy and foreigners," Khomeini said. "All classes of people must be united to rebuild what previous governments have destroyed."

Revolutionary firing squads executed four more men in three cities today, including Orumiyyeh, raising the total put to death by Khomeini's special courts to 389 since the February revolution.

Radio Tehran said the former police chief in Babel, northern Iran, Col. Mahmoud Kashi, and one of his policemen, Feysolah Falah-Moqadam, were executed there. Their crimes were not specified. Pars said Okhof Kaab Kheiri was put to death in Khoramshahr for murder and armed robbery and an unidentified man was shot in Orumiyyeh for adultery.

The eloquence of flowers.

There are times in our lives when we are faced with emotions that transcend words.

These are the times when a smile, a touch, a special gift can express our feelings more eloquently than we could ever say them.

For centuries the universal tribute has always been flowers. Carefully chosen for their unending ability to say love and respect and farewell more eloquently than any words ever spoken.

Texas police chief may not be able to protect refugees

SEADRIFT, Texas (AP) — This tension-ridden South Texas fishing village of 900 remained under a late night curfew today in the wake of violence following the death of a Seadrift fisherman who was slain following a fight with Vietnamese refugees.

Seadrift Police Chief Bill Lindsey said his two-man police force would be hard-pressed to protect the refugees that have remained in the village. Billy Joe Aplin was killed following an argument with his Vietnamese counterparts about their placing their crab traps too close to his.

"We heard there had been some threats of trying to run them out. They said they didn't really know what to do. They said they didn't know what was going on. They've wanted to go out to their jobs again, but someone told them there could be someone out there waiting for them," Lindsey said.

Cmdr. Fitzhugh of the 'Land of the Giants' dies of cancer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kurt Kasznar, a Viennaborn character actor best known for his role as Cmdr. Fitzhugh in the television series "Land of the Giants" has died of cancer.

Kasznar, 65, was admitted to St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica about 10 days before his death on Monday. He would have been 66 a week later.

The stepson of an Austrian restaurant owner, Kasznar became fluent in four languages and adept at playing amiable rogues. His first film appearance was in the silent "Max, King of the Circus" when he was 7 years old.

Recently, Kasznar appeared in film and television infrequently, but remained busy in summer stock and touring companies of musicals and plays.

Kasznar played Tevya in "Fiddler on the Roof" and also toured in the cast of "Don Juan in Hell" with Myrna Loy, Edward Mulhare and Riccardo Montalban.

Former supporter out to 'dump' Carter

By DAVID POWELL

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — For four weeks, Sergio Bendixen, a member of the Democratic National Committee, has been on the telephone and on the road working to dump Jimmy Carter as the party's 1980 presidential nominee.

Bendixen, a liberal party activist, was among Carter's first supporters in 1975, when Carter was an obscure Southerner trying to make his mark in the presidential race by defeating former Alabama Gov. George Wallace in the Florida primary, a key test of a candidate's strength in the South.

But now Bendixen is running the Florida campaign to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., for president.

Kennedy has said repeatedly that he expects Carter to be the party's candidate and that he expects to support him in 1980. Despite his disclaimers, however, draft-Kennedy movements have sprung up in a number of states.

"Since Carter went to the White House he has closed himself off except for a small circle," Bendixen said. "He's become more conservative. He's cut social spending and increased the military budget."

Bendixen recently left the staff of Rep. William Lehman, D-Fla. But before doing so, he went to Washington for six months.

"I got the feeling Kennedy was interested, that he did want to run, that everything he was saying publicly was just what any smart politician would say," Bendixen said.

"I talked to some people who were close to Kennedy and his staff and I became convinced he would run if the political conditions in the country were right."

So Bendixen, who says he met Kennedy briefly once in 1972, joined other fellow Florida Democrats unhappy with Carter in a drive to force Kennedy into the race.

Their immediate goal is a strong showing in the presidential straw ballot at the Nov. 18 state Democratic convention. To do that, they are trying to sweep the Oct. 13 county caucuses that will select about 890 of the 1,717 delegates for the state convention.

Mississippi faces primary runoff

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Evelyn Gandy and a predecessor in office, former Lt. Gov. William Winter, are headed for a runoff election to decide the Democratic nominee for governor.

Miss Gandy, who has a history of storming male political bastions, and Winter today held solid margins over four other lawyers after a Democratic primary campaign distinguished by its lack of issues.

In the state's first Republican gubernatorial primary election Tuesday, Gil Carmichael of Meridian edged fellow millionaire businessman Leon Bramlett of Clarksdale.

The Democratic runoff is set for Aug. 28. Carmichael will meet the Democratic winner in the Nov. 6 general election.

Miss Gandy delayed a formal victory statement but told supporters, "My heart is overflowing with gratitude for all of those who helped us."

Voting returns were slow coming in. Most of the 82 counties used paper ballots, lengthened by county and legislative races, which had to be counted by hand.

With 1,319 of the 2,168 precincts reporting, Miss Gandy had 129,896 votes or 30 percent of the total and Winter had 111,610 votes or 26 percent.

Former state Rep. John Arthur Eaves of Jackson and former District Attorney Jim Herring of Canton staged a close battle for third spot, followed by state Rep. Charles Deaton of Greenwood and political newcomer Richard Barrett of Jackson.

Eaves had 80,688 votes for 19 percent, Herring 78,752 for 18 percent, Deaton 22,827 for 5 percent and Barrett 8,631 for 2 percent.

With 1,756 precincts reporting in the GOP primary, Carmichael had 15,713 votes or 53 percent and Bramlett 14,061 or 47 percent. Democratic Gov. Cliff Finch, unable to succeed himself, took no part in the race but provided the big campaign issue. With federal investigations checking finances of several executive agencies, the candidates promised to "clean up the mess in Jackson."

The 58-year-old Miss Gandy, seeking to become the nation's third current woman governor, has been the first woman to hold many state posts in a career that has included state representative, treasurer, welfare commissioner and insurance commissioner.

Winter, 56, lost runoffs for governor in 1967 and 1975 after leading in the first primary. This time the veteran officeholder, who has been a state representative, tax collector and treasurer, decided on a more personal approach to the campaign.

Talk is cheaper than you think.

How to save up to 60% on Long Distance.

If you're one of those who thinks a Long Distance call is a luxury, read on.

The trick to saving money while keeping in touch with family or friends is knowing when to call, and calling One-Plus.

Call between 11pm and 8am.

Before you groan about how you can't stay up late or see straight in the morning, think about it.

You'll be saving up to 60%! If you're a night person, you probably don't start counting sheep until after 11 pm anyway. And if you've got friends and family to call out west, it'll be a perfectly civilized 9 or 10 pm when their phone rings.

If you like to see the sun rise, and you know folks back east, it'll be an hour later on their end.

Call out of state anytime before 8 am and you can talk all day if you want and still save 60%. In-state calls are also greatly reduced. Just remember to dial One-Plus.

Reach out on the weekend and save up to 60%.

Now this is a stroke of good luck: a really cheap Long Distance phone call just when you may want it most. Call any time between 11 pm Friday and 5 pm Sunday and really save. For instance, dial One-Plus and you can make a ten-minute call to Atlanta for only $1.55. That's almost worth making a new friend in Atlanta for.

Even on weeknights, save up to 35%.

Sometimes you can't wait for the weekend. Or you don't want to. But you can still save plenty Sunday through Friday from 5 pm to 11 pm. Think about what a bargain it is to call someone 1900 miles away, talk it up for ten minutes, and only run a tab of about $2.00. There's just no other way to get close to a faraway friend or relative so quickly, so cheaply.

On weekdays it's still a bargain.

Here's a surprise. From 8 am to 5 pm, a Long Distance chat still doesn't cost very much. A five minute call out of state, to anywhere in the continental U.S. is only about $2.50 when you dial One-Plus. Think of how good the sound of your voice would be to a friend (not to mention your mother!) right in the middle of the day.

Dial One-Plus and watch the savings add up.

Even if you're not a regular do-it-yourselfer, do-it-yourself when you call Long Distance. The savings are significant when you dial "one" plus the area code plus the phone number, instead of having the Operator do it. It's also faster. If you don't know the area code you need, just look in the front of your Telephone Directory. (Also check your telephone directory for exact discounts and conditions on out-of-state and in-state calls.)

Take advantage of the Holiday discount and celebrate.

Along with the flag-waving, fetes and parades, pick up the phone and call Long Distance. Our regular evening discount rates apply all day on Christmas, New Year's Day, Labor Day, July 4th and Thanksgiving. If the holiday falls on a weekend, you get the lower rate. Isn't this the perfect time to ring up friends and family?

SCHOOL DAYS

Tony Award-winner Dorothy Loudon (center) stars as a lively music drama teacher at a stuffy Eastern school for young women in "Dorothy," a new summer comedy series to be broadcast on four consecutive Wednesdays, starting Aug. 8, on CBS. Flanking Miss Loudon are Priscilla Morrill and Kenneth Gilman, who portray teachers at the school.

Dorothy finds herself much more in tune with her students than with the pompous headmaster, played by Russell Nye, the popular Broadway and musical star, who is a double Tony winner for "Call Me Madam" and "Goldilocks."

Tin smuggling big business in Malaysia

By KENNETH L. WHITING

JOHORE BARU, Malaysia (AP) — The open truck's cargo seemed obvious enough: seven big concrete pillars bound for a construction project in Singapore across the causeway from this Malaysian city.

Customs agents had been tipped that the pillars were not what they seemed, however. When a crane equipped with a wrecking ball performed close inspection on the pillars, the agents found $187,000 worth of tin ore imbedded in the broken concrete.

The silt-like concentrate is as prized by smugglers in Southeast Asia as diamonds or drugs.

Illicit trading in tin ore is not new in Southeast Asia. The current smuggling boom stems from high world prices which in turn reflect dwindling production and increased demand.

Malaysian tin fetched about $888 a picul on the Singapore market recently. The industry's traditional picul weight measure equals 133.3 pounds.

Tin ore is smuggled in fishing boats and coasters, trucks and private cars and in the hollow tubes of bicycle frames. About $13,000 worth of the gray powder was found under the stretcher in an ambulance, a Johore Baru court was told recently.

Tin concentrates are heavy but not bulky and easily concealed. Tin runners who carry too much may be exposed by the extra weight. Customs inspectors say their suspicions are aroused by Singapore-bound vehicles that seem to heavily laden or are slow to accelerate.

Singapore has no tin deposits of its own. It is a key center for illicit exporters in Malaysia because the ore may enter free of duty. Malaysia taxes its known exports.

Malaysia is the world's largest tin-producing nation and last year's output was 62,000 tons, according to official statistics.

Low Sip Hon, deputy minister of commerce and industry, says about 5 percent of the tin produced here is smuggled out. Some tin industry executives said the loss was closer to 7 percent.

Few officials in Singapore are willing to talk even off the record about smuggling, known in some circles as informal trading. Government statistics show that Singapore imported only 982 tons of tin ore in 1976, but managed to export 5,498 tons.

"You may believe that surplus came out of stockpiles if you like. You may also believe in Santa Claus," said an American banker. Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia's capital, say much of the hanky panky involves certificates of origin.

University scientist uses sunlight, not electricity, to produce amino acids

AUSTIN, Texas, (AP) — A University of Texas scientist has produced amino acids, the building blocks of animal life proteins, using sunlight.

Chemistry professor Allen J. Bard says his experiments are the first use of solar energy instead of electricity to produce amino acids.

Similar reactions may have taken place on rocks or clay when amino acids first were formed in nature, Bard told the National Science Foundation, which funded his research.

Bard used ammonia, water and methane to make amino acids. He said he used a solution of titanium dioxide and platinum to "capture" the sunlight and concentrate its energy on the three ingredients. The process was similar to plants' use of sunlight in photosynthesis to make chlorophyll.

Similar light processes could be used in removing pollutants from water, Bard said. Further research is needed before widespread use of the process is possible.

nity Involvement Team here, employees have contributed both manpower and cash donations to the Olympics, an international program of physical fitness, sports training and athletic competition for mentally retarded citizens. (Staff Photo)

Midlanders leave for Special Olympics

A high point will come in Bridgette Dickens' life this week when she will represent Midland at the International Special Olympics today through Monday in Brockport, N.Y.

The fifteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dickens, Bridgette along with Jerry Flack, eighteen-year-old son of Mrs. Pat Nelson of Midland, will join 90 athletes today in Dallas as representatives for Texas at the New York meet.

Special Olympics is an international program of physical fitness, sports training, and athletic competition for mentally retarded children and adults. It accommodates competitors at all ability levels by assigning them to "competitive divisions" based on age and actual performance.

Disabled father retains custody of children

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Physically disabled parents may not be denied custody of their children solely because of their handicap, the California Supreme Court has ruled.

Tuesday's unanimous ruling involved a father who had custody of his two young sons at the time of a 1976 jeep accident that left him a quadriplegic.

The mother was later granted custody of the boys solely on the basis of her estranged husband's disability, but the Supreme Court reversed that part of the couple's divorce order.

The decision said that "the health or physical condition of the parents may not be taken into account in determining whose custody would best serve the child's interests..."

After a separation in 1972, William Carney gained custody of his children and moved from New York to California. In 1977, a year after his accident, he filed for divorce.

A hearing transcript showed that in handing over custody of the boys to Carney's wife, Ellen, the divorce judge emphasized Carney's handicap and assumed it would prevent him from being a good parent.

The Supreme Court said the ruling mistakenly assumes a parent could never significantly recover from such a disability.

The stereotype of the helpless disabled parent, the opinion said, also fails to consider that the "essence of parenting... lies in the ethical, emotional and intellectual guidance the parent gives the child throughout his formative years and often beyond."

The court said a parent's capacity to give such guidance is entirely unrelated to physical prowess and that "however limited his bodily strength may be, a handicapped parent is a whole person to the child who needs his affection, sympathy and wisdom to deal with the problems of growing up."

pies currently has chapters in every state and over 34 countries around the world.

The event occurs on an international level every four years. Bridgette is the first to attend as a representative from Midland.

She was selected as an International participant following the State Track and Field meet held last May in Austin. Twenty-four Midland athletes brought home 19 medals from this meet.

Jerry was selected, along with Kathy Kirkpatrick, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kirkpatrick, as alternates for the international event. Jerry was a member of the award-winning Midland bowling team and Kathy, a member of the Midland Association of Retarded Citizens swim team, which won 24 medals at the State Swim Meet.

Levi Strauss employees sponsored Bridgette's Track and Field team in the State meet. Jerry's bowling team was sponsored by the Midland American Businessmen's Association. Other sponsors for the Brockport trip are the Midland Teens Aid the Retarded (TARS) and the Howard County Association for Retarded Citizens.

Over 3,500 competitors from the United States and 30 foreign countries will participate in the six-day event. This includes more than 125 participants from communities where Levi Strauss & Co. has facilities.

In addition to the international event, Levi Strauss & Co. has contributed toward the local Hike-Bike-A-Thon and the local meet.

'Creative fighting' can strengthen marriages

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Army chaplain says "creative fighting" between husbands and wives can help strengthen marriages.

Chaplain John Bakle propounded his theory on the basis of what he said is 18 years of experience in counseling married couples.

Capt. Bakle outlined his ideas in the 3rd Infantry Division's newspaper, "Frontline," in West Germany. Army officials were so impressed with the tips that they distributed extracts to other internal Army publications.

The chaplain wrote that friction often develops between a husband and wife as they discover differences in each other and then try "to change and mutually grow from these discoveries."

"This friction and the attempt to grow from it can be called 'creative fighting,'" said Bakle.

"In many successful marriages, I have discovered several principles that I believe every married couple should keep in mind, if their 'fighting' is to be creative and not destructive," Bakle said. He outlined these ground rules:

—Express opinions, desires and concerns as calmly as possible. Listen as well as talk. (He warned that "often, the truth becomes lost in the heat of emotion.")

—Try to appreciate your mate's point of view, "even if it doesn't make sense at the moment."

—Differences should not be discussed during meals or at bedtime.

—Don't zero in on your mate's vulnerable areas to gain the upper hand.

—Don't rake up old scores or arguments.

—Don't call each other names.

—Physical violence can never be condoned.

And, finally, Bakle advised all marital combatants to "learn when to call a truce" in a quarrel.

DEAR ABBY

Where there's smoke, there's also ire

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You were asked what you would do if you were on an airplane and were forced to sit in the smoking section because there were no more seats available in no-smoking. You said, "I'd speak to the flight attendant."

Well, thanks a lot! I'm a flight attendant and, if the flight is full, the most I can do is try to get someone in the no-smoking section to voluntarily give up his seat to sit with the smokers. You can imagine how many people go for a deal like that.

Tell your readers that the best way to circumvent that problem is to reserve seats well in advance. When flying standby, take the same attitude you would have at the gaming tables: you pay your money and you take your chances. — IN THE MIDDLE IN TEXAS

DEAR IN: You are not only in the middle, you are in error. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Here's a hot flash for ALLERGIC TO SMOKE, and to all others annoyed by smokers on airplanes.

All domestic airlines are now required by law to provide a no-smoking seat for EVERY passenger who wants one, even if the entire plane has to be given over to non-smokers.

In other words, if only one person in the whole plane is a non-smoker, that person's comfort and well-being must be considered above the whims of those who willfully pollute the air with the stench and irritants of tobacco smoke.

Since you are more widely read than government regulations, you can render another great public service by disseminating this information:

Fines up to $1,000 can be levied by the Civil Aeronautics Board on the basis of a single, legitimate, well-documented complaint.

Readers with such complaints should write to: CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD BUREAU OF CONSUMER PROTECTION WASHINGTON, D.C. 20428 — SMOKEY JOE

Frisbee hat part of fall fashion look

ROME (AP) — The Italian high fashion collections got off to a flying start in Rome when Barocco introduced the "Frisbee" veil and the birded turban, part of his new 1980 winter collection.

These millinery inventions came mainly in basic black and white and can be worn anywhere and anytime, as long as the wearer has no fear of flying. Barocco did not design them for women with both feet on the ground.

The "Frisbee" consists of a velvet skull cap, to which a stiff veiled disc is attached by a bow, in about the same position as a doctor's examining light. The birded turban would be a simple velvet headdress if it were not for the feathered friend perched where a sultan would pin a jewel.

Aside from these, the Barocco collection was a very attractive but unexciting revival of the 1930's vamp look.

Body-hugging red and black silk jerseys in pants and skirts, very high and wide shoulders, stark silk prints and lots of lace combined to give the 1980 woman that "long filter" look.

As the models were slinking down the steps of the catwalk set up in a popular Rome disco Tuesday night, a big screen in the background projected images of such vampish favorites as Marlene Dietrich, Marilyn Monroe and Rita Hayworth.

DEAR ABBY: With so many irate readers voicing their "right" to breathe air unpolluted by the stench and irritants of tobacco smoke while traveling by plane, may I have equal time?

I must travel over 100,000 miles a year on business, and I think I'm entitled to be protected against screaming infants, pesky toddlers and talkative seat partners who interfere with my concentration when I'm trying to read or get some deadline paperwork done.

I also deserve protection from fellow travelers who drink too much and become boisterous and downright disgusting.

And, when flying coach, I pray that I won't be seated three across with a fat person who invariably crowds me, breathes heavily and perspires a lot.

Wouldn't life be beautiful if we could all insulate ourselves from those things that bug us? But since we can't, how about a little patience, flexibility and tolerance? — ANOTHER OPINION

Prenuptial parties fete city couple

A series of pre-nuptial parties recently were held honoring Nancy Dee Nelson and Jeffery Carr Gotcher.

A miscellaneous shower was held in the Shreveport, La., home of Mrs. Frances Pipes. Mrs. Frank Hardison was co-hostess.

Mrs. Rodney Faulk and Mrs. John Lupardus, both of Midland, honored the bride with a miscellaneous shower in the Lupardus home.

The Midland home of Mrs. A.L. Offield was the setting for a brunch and personal shower. The brunch was followed by the shower in the home of Mrs. Tom Coleman. Other hostesses were Mrs. Mac McClelland, Mrs. Murry Stehle, Mrs. Joe Gilmer, Mrs. Bill Mayne, Mrs. John Knowland and Mrs. Don Towery.

The bridegroom-to-be was feted with a tool shower in the home of Bob Watson.

Miss Diana Dygert and Mrs. Kenneth Dygert will honor the bride with a bridesmaids luncheon and rice bag party Friday in the Dygert home here.

The parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Gotcher of Midland, will be hosts to a rehearsal dinner in the Spraberry Room of the Midland Hilton Friday. In addition to the wedding party, the guests will include out-of-city relatives of both family.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Nelson of Midland are parents of the bride-to-be.

Estrogens may cause blood clots

BALTIMORE (AP) — Women given estrogens after childbirth to stop milk production run an increased risk of dangerous blood clots without gaining a significant benefit from the drug, a researcher here contends.

Dr. Jennifer R. Niebyl, an assistant professor of gynecology and obstetrics at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, said estrogens reduce levels of an anti-clotting factor in the blood, increasing the body's tendency to form blood clots.

In a recent issue of the American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology, Ms. Niebyl said the estrogens also fall short of preventing milk production and breast enlargement.

As a result of the study, she testified recently before a committee of the Food and Drug Administration, which decided to remove milk production suppression from the list of approved uses of estrogens.

Ms. Niebyl and five other doctors studied a group of 50 women, half of whom were randomly assigned to receive estrogen, the other half a placebo or blank pill.

New officers elected at a recent Newcomers Club of Midland luncheon at Midland Country Club are (seated) President Brooki Green and Vice President Sallie Kula. Standing are, from the left, Frances Huggins, third vice president; Nancy O'Brien, secretary; and Bobi Lloyd, second vice president.

Bride-elect honored with shower

Diane Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnson, 905 Manor St., and bride-elect of Mac Broadway of Lubbock, was honored recently at a bridal shower in the home of Mrs. Jim Landers, 2601 Hodges St.

Hostesses were Mrs. John Roberts, Mrs. Jack Stone, Mrs. Jim Moore, Mrs. Mike Munn, Mrs. Don Wortham, Mrs. Reagan White, Mrs. Joe Purifoy, Mrs. Dan Howard, Mrs. Ken White, Mrs. Murray Stöhle and Mrs. Jay Schlichting.

Miss Johnson and Broadway will marry Sept. 1 in the sanctuary of Midland's First Presbyterian Church.

The average health food store may contain the secret of a good night's sleep, an expert says.

Dr. Cheryl L. Spindler of the Naval Health Research Center in San Diego, Calif., says many people plagued with sleeplessness can find relief in a dose of a natural substance sold in health food stores as a diet supplement.

The product is l-tryptophan, and it is an amino acid found in milk, meat and other high-protein foods. Scientists say it's a precursor, or activator, to serotonin, a natural substance in the brain, which triggers sleep.

Grandmother finds 'useful' life in Peace Corps

By ANN BLACKMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bea Alford, a 76-year-old grandmother from Santa Monica, Calif., is giving up her mobile home and Cadillac to enlist in the Peace Corps — for the second time.

She quit her $13,500-a-year job as a Peace Corps recruiter and will leave Friday for Jamaica to work with rural women, teaching them such things as hygiene, gardening and how to preserve food.

She is one of the oldest of some 330 Peace Corps volunteers over age 50 who are serving around the world.

"My son can't understand why I would give up a salary to do volunteer work," said Mrs. Alford, who has four children and 11 grandchildren.

"But I didn't like collecting material things and having to pay rent and stand in gas lines," she said. "Money was becoming important to me, and I didn't like that. I wanted to get away from money."

As a volunteer, she will receive a living allowance of about $100 a month. At the end of her tour, she will also get a readjustment allowance of $125 for each month she served.

In an interview, Mrs. Alford said her messages to the volunteers she has been recruiting for the last 10 years differ.

"I tell the young ones to give two years of their life, and old ones to add two," she said. "I try to make older people see they need to be useful. To be needed offers a new life."

Incentives for older Americans to sign up are that they still

"My son can't understand why I would give up a salary to do volunteer work.... Money was becoming important to me, and I didn't like that. I wanted to get away from money."

qualify for Social Security and that they often get more respect in foreign countries than they do in the United States.

Citizens of other countries "sometimes find older people easier to approach," she said. "Older people can sometimes gain their confidence faster than younger ones."

The Peace Corps, started by the late President John F. Kennedy in 1961, now has about 6,400 volunteers, less than half the number of its peak years in the mid-1960s.

Mrs. Alford and her late husband, a carpenter with a cabinet business in Los Angeles, first joined the Peace Corps in 1964. He was 64; she was 62.

"We were getting to retirement age, but we weren't ready for the rocking chair," she said.

"We heard the Peace Corps was looking for carpenters, and asked if they'd take an old one. They said 'yes.'"

The Alford's spent two years in English-speaking Belize in Central America.

At first they lived in a government house but found the local residents reluctant to come inside. So they moved into a thatched-roofed house with a dirt floor where the residents would feel comfortable dropping by.

The only running water was in a river that flowed 100 yards from the house. Mrs. Alford did laundry there, scrubbing it on the rocks.

Mrs. Alford's husband died several years later of a heart attack, and last spring she decided to enlist again.

Loan guarantees may be way of aiding Chrysler

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps says she leans toward federal loan guarantees as the most impartial way of helping the troubled Chrysler Corp., if the government decides to step in.

She said it could take as long as another month for a decision to be made on whether to aid the automaker, which reported a loss of $207 million in the second quarter of this year.

Mrs. Kreps said in an interview Tuesday that granting Chrysler's request for $1 billion in special tax relief and a two-year waiver of the federal auto exhaust emission standards might not be fair to other auto companies.

"I think you have to be careful, whatever you do, not to discriminate against other companies in that industry," she said.

Mrs. Kreps said that while the Commerce Department is involved in the decision on whether to aid Chrysler, the Treasury Department is the lead agency for developing the administration's position.

It is known there is considerable sentiment in the administration against Chrysler's request for the $1 billion in tax relief because, in part, of the precedent it would set. Mrs. Kreps raised the added objection that it would be favoring Chrysler over its competitors.

She also said it hasn't yet been established that Chrysler should get help.

"I think we just don't know yet," she said. "I think we ought to look at all the things Chrysler itself is doing and can do, and get a much better feel for what the long-range probability would be for a profitable enterprise if we made decisions A, B, C."

She said objections "could be overcome" if the government concluded aid would "restore the company to profitability" and save the 124,000 jobs that would be threatened in the event Chrysler went under. But she said there still "would be quite a difference of view if even then the government ought to get involved."

She said federal loan guarantees would seem to be the best solution "on the basis of my principle" that the government shouldn't favor one company over another. But she said "you have to look at what would help and what wouldn't help," and on that basis the loan guarantees might not be the answer.

The guarantees would amount to a federal commitment to repay loans that Chrysler would borrow from private sources, in the event it defaulted on the debts.

Mrs. Kreps said if the guarantees were given, they should be for loans "that would be repaid, loans that would, in effect, make a difference between being able to continue and not being able to continue."

Any government help should be temporary, she said. "I don't believe anybody is trying to make a case for permanent subsidies," she added.

In other economic news Tuesday, the administration proposed to extend its voluntary wage and price guidelines for a second year.

While no specific targets were set for wage and price increases in 1980, officials suggested a two-year guideline would be used for both.

Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, said the recession now beginning will help cool the economy and allow the guidelines to work better.

Kahn also hinted that the federal government might try to penalize the automotive industry if it approves a new labor contract that violates the existing wage guidelines. He declined to go into any detail on possible penalties, saying only that the "auto companies are not totally independent of government."

During the interview, Mrs. Kreps made these other points:

—Proposed most-favored-nation tariff concessions for China will not be sent to Congress until after the SALT II treaty issue has been resolved.

Preregistration for fall urged by MC officials

With another record enrollment anticipated, Midland College officials have issued a reminder for prospective students to complete their preregistration and early counseling as soon as possible.

"During the first two days of preregistration for the fall semester, more than 600 persons signed up for classes," said Registrar Dee Windsor. "A large number of these are planning to be full time students since they have just graduated from high school."

The importance of preregistration is that it allows prospective students time to talk with counselors about their future plans. Students also get time to complete preregistration forms that allocate a period in which to report for registration.

Successor to be named

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew is expected to be named to succeed Robert Strauss as President Carter's chief trade negotiator, administration sources said today.

Askew, who met with Carter and other top administration officials Tuesday, could not be reached for comment. He spent Tuesday night at the White House.

The sources, who declined to be identified, said the announcement was expected today.

The trade post was vacated when the president made Strauss special ambassador for the continuing Mideast negotiations.

Askew was governor of Florida from 1971 to January of this year and now practices international law in Miami.

While Strauss was chief trade negotiator, he negotiated a sweeping trade liberalization pact that was approved by Congress this summer and signed into law by Carter last month.

The president called the measure, which involves tariff reductions among 99 nations, "perhaps the most important piece of trade legislation in the history of the United States."

Strauss' successor will be in charge of implementing that agreement and also will be called upon to seek congressional support for administration plans to overhaul trade duties in the U.S. government.

Earlier it had been reported that Loyd Hackler, the president of the American Retail Federation, was being considered for the trade post. Hackler met heavy opposition from organized labor, however.

Formal registration is slated for Aug. 29 and 30. Preregistration continues Thursday from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. in the Office of Student Services in the Administration Building, and 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday in room 130 of the Science-Faculty Building.

Midland College ends its summer hours of operation Thursday. For the past three years, Midland College has operated 10 hours per day Monday through Thursday during the summer to save energy.

Beginning Monday, office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. for preregistration and other services. Persons who work during the day may continue to preregister from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

A total enrollment for the fall semester is projected to be around 2,300 students.

And Financial Aids Officer Bill Burns urged

persons seeking scholarships and financial aids to visit his office as quickly as possible.

"A number of students who have indicated a need for scholarships or other financial assistance to attend classes this fall have not come in to complete their applications," Burns said. "Because of the time needed to obtain all information and process these requests, they need to take care of this during the next week."

Burns said there are still some available funds for scholarship recipients, plus several work-study job openings available on campus.

Additional information regarding preregistration, appointments with counselors and financial aids may be obtained by visiting the Office of Student Services in the Administration Building or by phoning 684-7851, extension 166.

Vietnam lifts ban; Congressmen again leave to study plight of refugees in Southeast Asia

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Nine U.S. congressmen investigating the plight of Indochinese refugees in Southeast Asia flew to Hanoi today after the Vietnamese government lifted a ban on the visit.

The Vietnamese on Monday withdrew their invitation to the group because one of its members, Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., accused the Hanoi regime of human rights violations on a colossal scale. Then the Vietnamese Embassy in Bangkok announced on Tuesday that the entire group including Drinan would be welcome after all.

A Vietnamese spokesman said the ban was lifted after a "proposal" from Secretary of State Cyrus Vance. Details of Vance's proposal were not available.

Drinan, a Roman Catholic priest who was one of the leading early opponents of U.S. participation in the Vietnam War, said last weekend that "Vietnam is engaged in one of the most fundamental violations of human rights that we have seen in this century."

He did not soften his criticism after Hanoi accused him of slander and withdrew the invitation.

"The whole world knows there are 400,000 Vietnamese people who are in detention camps, who are refugees, who are boat people. The conscience of the world has been shocked," he said on Tuesday.

The congressional group, which is headed by Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., went to Vietnam after visits to refugee camps and meetings with officials in Hong Kong, Thailand, Indonesia and Malaysia.

They took off at noon after an early-morning trip to the refugee camp on Bidong Island, off the northeast coast of Malaysia, where about 37,000 Vietnamese are crammed into an area of 1.2 square miles.

The four countries they have visited are giving refuge they hope is temporary to an estimated 400,000 Vietnamese, ethnic Chinese, Cambodians and Laotians who have fled from communist rule in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. The four governments that are their unwilling hosts say they cannot keep them, either because their economies cannot absorb them or because they would disturb ethnic balances in their populations. They also say they can take no more because their meager and inadequate facilities to care for them are over-taxed.

Vietnam at an international conference on refugees in Geneva last month said it would do all it could to halt the exodus. This greatly pleased the other Southeast Asian governments whose concern for their own situations outweighs any concern they might have for other Asians subjected to the repression and persecution of the communist Indochinese governments. But some Westerners are beginning to have guilty feelings about their governments' acquiescence in a Vietnamese ban on emigration.

The congressmen heard criticism from Malaysian officials of President Carter's well publicized order to the U.S. 7th Fleet to rescue fleeing refugees in the South China Sea whose boats were in danger of sinking. The officials objected because this is encouraging the refugees to try to escape.

Will to survive keeps them going

PULAU BIDONG, Malaysia (AP) — "They have an incredible commitment to survival. That's what keeps them going."

Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, leader of a nine-man congressional delegation, made the comment today after the group toured this Malaysian island crammed with 33,000 Vietnamese boat people on a square kilometer of what was once a tropical paradise.

The trip to Pulau Bidong — a 10-minute helicopter ride off Malaysia's northeastern coast — was a prelude to a visit by the delegation to Hanoi later today. There the group plans to ask Vietnamese leaders what they are doing to halt a refugee exodus which has spanned such narrow camp alleys. Others pressed stacks of letters on the group to be mailed to relatives who have already found permanent homes.

The camp chief — a Catholic priest educated in the United States — thanked the United States for its continuing cheered and trailed the Americans as they made their way through the refugees.

Firing squad won't wait long for Iraqis sentenced to die

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The firing squad is not expected to wait long for 22 persons sentenced to die for plotting against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. Thirty-three others were sent to prison and 13 were acquitted.

The convictions and acquittals were announced Tuesday night by the official Iraqi news agency, but it did not say when the condemned men would die.

The announcement said those condemned to death included two members of the ruling Revolutionary Command Council, Deputy Premier Adnan Hussein al-Hamdani and Education Minister Mohammed Mahjoub Mahdi.

Also on the death list were three men identified previously by the Beirut press as members of the council. They were Mouhy Abdul Hussein Mashadi, former secretary-general of the group; Mohammed Ayyesh, a labor official of the Baath Socialist Party, and Ghanim Abdul Jalil Saoudi.

The five men were reported earlier to be the leaders of the plot. Earlier unconfirmed press reports in Beirut said 34 of their supporters were executed two weeks ago and 250 persons were under arrest. But the announcement of the 55 convictions and 13 acquittals said all cases resulting from "the heinous conspiracy" had been dealt with.

The discovery of the plot was announced July 26, 10 days President Ahmed Hassan al-Bakr resigned because of ill health and Hussein, long the strong man of the regime, succeeded him.

At the time, the Iraqi press accused an unidentified foreign power of masterminding the conspiracy and said its purpose was to end the government's militant opposition to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty. However, there was speculation in Beirut and other capitals that the plotters were opposed to Hussein's recent rapprochement with Western governments, his pulling away from dependence on the Soviet Union and his crackdown on the Iraqi Communist Party.

The Iraqi news agency said a special tribunal was set up July 28 to deal with the conspiracy and began proceedings Aug. 1. It said the trials ended Monday.

The jail sentences ranged from one to 15 years, it said.

40 drown north of Bombay

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — More than 40 construction workers were reported drowned when their boat capsized in the flooded Narmada River 210 miles north of Bombay Tuesday. Four survivors were reported. The men were laborers at a nearby dam site.

Body found floating in river

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The body of a man who apparently drowned in North Korea and floated down the Han Tan River into South Korea was delivered to a North Korean member of the Military Armistice Commission at the Panmunjom truce village today.

The body, dressed in military fatigues with a North Korean army belt, floated down Sunday.

Emotion overcomes 72-year-old

ANCONA, Italy (AP) — Emotion overcame 72-year-old Dolores Lodi when she returned after more than 40 years in Venezuela, and she died of a heart attack.

A relative, Mario Montedoro, met Mrs. Lodi at the Rome airport Tuesday and was driving her to her native village, Pian Pialente, in the foothills of the Appennines inland from the Adriatic.

Montedoro said the woman spoke with increasing excitement as she recognized familiar. Suddenly she collapsed and died as Montedoro was trying to get her to a first aid center.

China accused of provocation

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam accused China today of "more than 100 provocations" along their border in the past month and said they caused "heavy losses in Vietnamese lives and property."

The military newspaper Quan Doi Nhan Dan charged there was collusion between the United States and China to "step up hostility in Vietnam and create an explosive situation along the common border."

"By creating permanent tension on the common border, China is seeking to smuggle back into Vietnam the tens of thousands of ethnic Chinese who had been lured to China," the broadcast commentary said.

Guerrillas set conditions for accepting peace plan

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Guerrilla leaders set conditions for their acceptance of the Commonwealth peace proposals for Zimbabwe Rhodesia, but two of their most important backers are expected to put strong pressure on them to accept.

Robert Mugabe's faction of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance said before it would join in negotiations, Zimbabwe Rhodesia's white-controlled army had to be dismantled and replaced by "the army of the liberation forces."

Mugabe also said Ian Smith, the former prime minister whose bloc of whites hold 28 of the 100 seats in the Zimbabwe Rhodesia parliament, and Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the moderate black prime minister who succeeded him in June, "have got to go."

But Zambia, home base for Joshua Nkomo's 15,000 guerrillas, and Tanzania, leader of the five front-line African states that are Mugabe's and Nkomo's chief support, are expected to do a lot of arm-twisting to get the two guerrilla leaders to at least join in the all-party negotiations proposed by the plan.

Vietnam defection confirmed

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam has confirmed reports last week that the deputy chairman of its National Assembly, Hoang Van Hoan, has defected to China.

Xuan Thuy, the assembly's secretary-general, said in an interview with Radio Hanoi Sunday that Hoan went to Peking July 3 from the airport at Karachi, Pakistan, while on his way to East Berlin for a medical checkup.

North Ireland official pondering U.S. visit

LONDON (AP) — Humphrey Atkins, Britain's Northern Ireland Secretary, said Tuesday he is considering a visit to the United States for discussions on the war-torn province.

and other terrorists to sustain their murderous campaign.

Last month the U.S. State Department suspended all future private sales of U.S. weapons to Northern Ireland pending a policy review. The move followed State Department approval in January of the sale of over 3,500 weapons to the RUC and angered the British government.

His remark about the IRA referred to British accusations that money collected in the United States is being used to fund IRA terrorism in Northern Ireland.

Atkins gave no indication when he might make the visit. But the British government's Northern Ireland Office here said it would likely be "sometime in the fall after September."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Drastic diets need medical supervision

Dear Dr. Solomon: My cousin is planning to go on a starvation diet so that she can lose a lot of weight in a hurry. Isn't this unsafe? — Ms. I.K.

Dear Ms. K.: As the name implies, a starvation diet involves total fasting. Any such drastic approach to weight loss should be carried out in a hospital under medical supervision. Those who advocate total fasting say it is easily tolerated because patients usually lose their appetite after three or four days; therefore, they feel little discomfort.

The starvation diet may have serious consequences in the absence of medical supervision — problems with the heart, blood pressure, or acute gout. Individuals with a history of heart or liver disease, or gout, should not attempt such a diet.

Although the object of a starvation diet obviously is loss of fat, dieters actually lose a great deal of protein and potassium. A substantial weight reduction is experienced during the first two weeks, but this is caused in large part by a loss of protein and water. Moreover, total fasting does not seem to produce any better or more lasting results than a low-calorie diet. One important problem with the procedure is that the patient is not trained to handle food in a more reasonable fashion than had previously been the case.

Dear Dr. Solomon: We've been warned that so many things are hazardous to our health, I'm beginning to think it would be easier if someone compiled a list of what's safe. But what about coffee? They're not going to take that away from us, are they? — Mr. R.S.R.

Dear Mr. R.: I'm happy to be able to report at least one bright spot. A study by Dr. Seigfried Heyden, of the Duke University Medical Center, found no statistical difference in susceptibility to heart disease or strokes between coffee drinkers and abstainers. The study was conducted in Evans County, Georgia, an area known for a high incidence of cerebral hemorrhages.

For more than one reason now, when it's one for the road — make it coffee.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I understand the concern of public health officials in regard to the growing use of drugs of all kinds. What I can't understand is why any drug should not be used to help a terminally ill patient feel more comfortable. Is anything being done to permit the use of otherwise illegal drugs by cancer patients? — Robby.

Dear Robby: New Mexico has become the first state permitted by the federal government to use marijuana for the control of pain and nausea in cancer patients undergoing chemotherapy. It is the first state research program of its kind approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

All-breed schooling show set Saturday

The West Texas Appaloosa Horse Club will sponsor an all-breed schooling show Saturday in the WTAHC Arena 2.2 miles south of Interstate Highway 20 and just off the Rankin Highway.

Entry fee in open classes is $3.50 for WTAHC members and $4.50 for non-members.

Classes of competition will include registered Appaloosa stallions, mares and geldings; registered stallions, mares and geldings of other breeds; ponies; showmanship at halter; leadline, walk-trot, bridle-path hack equitation, English pleasure, hunter hack, bareback equitation, Western pleasure, Western equitation, Western riding, reining, trail, cloverleaf barrels and pole bending.

Most classes are divided into the 13-and-under, 14-to-18 and open-age divisions.

Those interested in entering the show may call Paul Kittrell at 563-3214 in Midland or Susan Woods at 943-5808 in Monahan.

Greenwood registration scheduled for Aug. 27

Registration for all Greenwood schools will be Aug. 27 from 8 a.m. to noon.

All new elementary school students, kindergarten through grade five, should bring an up-to-date shot record and a birth certificate with them when they register. Students who have attended the Greenwood schools before do not need to reregister.

Only new junior high school students, grades six through eight, who have not attended Greenwood schools should register Aug. 28 from 8 a.m. to noon.

All senior high school students, whether they have attended Greenwood schools or not, should register Aug. 28.

Ninth and tenth grade students will register between 8 and 10 a.m. Eleventh and twelfth grade students will register between 10 a.m. and noon.

Senate unit to study Texas migrant education

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State Sen. Oscar Mauzy of Dallas has named himself and Sens. Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi and Bob Vale of San Antonio to sit on the newly established interim subcommittee on migrant education.

Mauzy, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, will head the Senate subcommittee on migrant programs. The subcommittee was created under a Senate resolution sponsored by Truan.

The subcommittee will study migrant programs in an effort to coordinate the programs to provide a comprehensive education for all migrant children.

The resolution points out the lack of progress of migrant children in going beyond the fifth grade and recognizes the economic contributions made by migrant farm workers.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

The Double Hold-Up

By Alfred Sheinwold

All faithful readers of this column (and a few million others) usually refuse the first trick or two in the enemy's strong suit. This principle often applies even when you have two sure tricks in your suit.

Today's South goes down if he wins the first heart. South needs the diamonds for his contract, but East wins the first diamond and returns a heart.

It doesn't help South to refuse the second heart trick. West can overtake and continue with a third heart. And West will take the second diamond to defeat the contract with the rest of the hearts.

Testimony links freighters, marijuana to Chagra

AUSTIN (AP) — Between Christmas and New Year's Eve 1977, the Coast Guard seized three small freighters — linked by witnesses to Las Vegas gambler Jimmy Chagra — containing 77.9 tons of marijuana, Coast Guard officers and drug agents have testified.

Chagra, 34, is on trial in federal court on a four-count indictment accusing him of cocaine and marijuana smuggling and "continuing criminal enterprise."

The "continuing criminal enterprise" law — which federal prosecutors say is known as the "kingpin statute" — carries a possible life sentence.

Attorneys for Chagra attempted unsuccessfully Tuesday to suppress Coast Guard testimony about seizure of the Miss Connie, the Eco Pesca IV and the Dona Petra on the ground the Coast Guard had no warrants to search the ships.

They also told U.S. District Judge William Sessions of El Paso they will need an interpreter for a defense witness but refused to tell reporters who the witness will be.

Sessions took the case after the original judge, John H. Wood Jr., was assassinated May 29 outside his San Antonio apartment by an unknown rifleman.

Previous witnesses said Chagra "freelanced" the Miss Connie and Eco Pesca IV after their American contacts failed to keep a rendezvous on the high seas to unload their cargo. Henry Wallace, an alleged accomplice of Chagra, said he arranged for the Dona Petra to sail for Florida from Colombia with 30 tons of marijuana.

Lt. Cmdr. James Kenney, then the executive officer of the cutter Steadfast, said a boarding party found bales of marijuana in the hold of the Miss Connie while seeking its permanent identification plate.

Lt. j.g. Richard Kelly, also from the Steadfast, said he led a boarding party onto the Eco Pesca IV and found its holds "filled to the top" with bales that proved to be marijuana.

Both boardings took place on Dec. 26, 1977, near an island called Orange Key, about 70 miles south of Florida, the officers said.

Information from the master of a smaller craft, the Iris Marie, that it had taken on marijuana from a freighter in the area of Orange Key led to the boardings, Kenney said.

Maurice Hill of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration said the Miss Connie's cargo of marijuana weighed in at 26.5 tons and the Eco Pesca IV held 26.4 tons of the drug.

Lt. Richard Goodchild, then commander of the cutter Cape Shoalwater, said he boarded the Dona Petra shortly after midnight on Dec. 30, 1977, and found 25 tons of marijuana in the ship's engine room and holds.

Battle of Hastings: Cat lovers fight for felines

HASTINGS, Minn. (AP) — The battle of Hastings — a fierce fight over feline fates — is being waged by animal lovers in this normally tranquil community just north of St. Paul.

The latest skirmish came when the City Council approved construction of a facility to breed cats destined for medical research. But some residents, raising the specter of mutilated kittens, are pinning their hopes on a second hearing and say the battle is not over.

Liberty Labs Inc., a New Jersey subsidiary of Pain Control Centers Inc. of Bloomington, wants to build the facility. President Larry Rasmusson said Pain Control would sell hundreds of cats a year to government institutions, commercial firms and universities.

"How many animals suffer and die just for the sake of research?" asked Hastings teacher Tad Voss, one of those who attended the council meeting to oppose the facility.

"I know where those cats would be going," said Dolores Moeller, another opponent. "It's so senseless and useless. They take the hearts outside the bodies. Or they stick two heads on the animals."

Fifteen opponents took out a 24-column-inch ad in last week's weekly Hastings Gazette, urging citizens to attend the City Council meeting on Monday. Over the weekend, youngsters circulated several hundred fliers for the group. The result was an overflow crowd.

The 7-1 vote followed emotion-charged debate, punctuated by cheers and applause for the appeals of animal lovers.

AFL-CIO, Carter allied for SALT II approval

CHICAGO (AP) — President Carter and the AFL-CIO, bitter combatants over economic policy, are now allied in the fight to win Senate approval of the SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union.

Leaders of the powerful labor federation, putting aside past objections to the strategic arms limitation pact, gave qualified support to the treaty Tuesday, and promised to use their extensive lobbying resources to persuade the Senate to go along.

The 14-million-member federation has been an active participant in foreign policy debates over the years, and its support for SALT II had been actively sought by White House officials.

"We can reach Republican senators that Carter can't touch," boasted one AFL-CIO official, who asked not to be identified.

But the federation said its endorsement is contingent on Senate adoption of two stipulations needed "to remedy the emerging strategic imbalance and to move toward genuine strategic arms control."

The first is that the United States step up its arms development program, particularly with the deployment of the MX mobile missile, to ensure that it achieves nuclear equality with the Soviet Union under SALT II.

The second is that SALT II, which sets limits on how many weapons each country can add to its nuclear arsenal, be used as a springboard for pursuing "real and dramatic mutual arms reduction" during the next Rasmusson said fears that cats would be abused were "absurd" and unfounded. He described his company's customers as major drug companies and prestigious medical institutions — "the likes of Johns Hopkins University and the Mayo Clinic, the kind of people who developed the iron lung and the pacemaker."

Rasmusson said cats are well suited for medical research because they have a neurological structure and bone and joint tissues similar to those of human beings.

"If a company is trying to find a cure for arthritis, for example, the cat is the likely animal to use," he said.

Said councilman Robert Liska: "It's not for us in this community to decide the morals of the nation. In much of the world they don't eat cattle but let babies die."

Medical researchers have bemoaned the lack of laboratory animals since some countries stopped shipment of monkeys destined for research experiments.

Meanwhile, Hastings animal lovers say they will take their campaign to the governor and flood councilmen with letters before the issue comes up for a final vote later this month.

In St. Paul, the executive director of the Minnesota Humane Society said cats raised in Hastings would have to be treated according to state and federal laws. The society recognizes the need for research and supports the procurement of animals by licensed firms, she said.

"I cannot see what all the furor is for," added Ruth Deschene. "But people who don't believe in using animals for research complain about everything."

round of SALT talks.

The position adopted Tuesday was a compromise engineered by AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer Lane Kirkland to appease the hawks and doves on the 35-member governing council, which had been so divided on the issue that it appeared unlikely until recent weeks that the AFL-CIO would take a stand.

Kirkland, 57, who is presiding over the council's summer meeting here in the absence of ailing 84-year-old federation President George Meany, had been among the leading opponents to the treaty.

Kirkland had labeled SALT II as a "mistake" that would lead to an accelerated buildup of nuclear arms rather than disarmament.

But on Tuesday, Kirkland said he changed his mind because "common sense" indicates SALT II is the best that can be achieved at this point.

While the federation was moving into Carter's corner on SALT II, it kept its distance from a new administration proposal for revising the government's voluntary wage-price guidelines.

The AFL-CIO, which vehemently opposes the current 7 percent annual wage ceiling, reacted with distain to a suggestion by Carter's Council on Wage and Price Stability that the anti-inflation pay ceiling be changed to 15 percent over two years.

"I would take a jaundiced view of any set of guidelines that is handed down from on high...as a standard to be imposed on workers backed up by clubs of one sort or another," Kirkland said.

Sioux leaders seek honoring of 111-year-old promises

FORT LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Leaders of the Sioux Indian Nation have gathered near Fort Laramie, where their ancestors first made peace with the white man, in hopes of making the United States live up to promises it made here 111 years ago.

"They should pay the United Sioux Nation for what they've done to us," said John King, one of the leaders of the Black Hills Sioux Nation Council. "We're telling them, 'it's about time you start compensating this nation for what you've done, for the broken treaties and promises.'"

The Sioux Nation Council, which represents nine Sioux tribes, opened a three-day meeting Tuesday in hopes of meeting "nation-to-nation" with representatives of Congress and President Carter.

The meeting is being held on the Fort Laramie National Historic Site, where the Sioux signed a treaty of peace with the United States in 1868 protecting their homelands north of the Platte River forever.

The Indians contend, however, that the treaty was broken shortly afterward when white gold seekers swarmed into the Black Hills.

The tribes settled earlier this year for $107 million in back payments from the federal government, but King said the Sioux now feel the government is trying to renege by asking them to repay money granted tribes for a variety of projects.

"We say, 'No, we're not going to let you take it back,'" he said in a telephone interview, saying he worried that under such plans the tribes could end up owing the government millions.

The Indians met with an aide to Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., Tuesday and hoped to meet with a Carter representative later in the week. If no one from the White House appears, the council will seek a public apology from Carter, King said.

Reds visit Office once too often

By The Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds came around Rowland Office's way just once too often. "I'm more or less a first-ball hitter. If I see a fast ball coming, I'm going to swing at it," Office said. It was a fast ball and Office swung. His hit in the 11th inning was his first in six at-bats and drove home the winning run Tuesday night as the Atlanta Braves edged Cincinnati 3-2. "We tried to go away from him," said Reds catcher Johnny Bench.

"We got him out on a pitch like that earlier." The Braves had to rally in the ninth to tie the score and send it into extra innings. Then came the 11th. Jerry Royster singled, stole second and scored on Office's hit. "The way we've been struggling, it's just nice to win one. I had some horrible times in Houston," said the Astros' Gene Garber, 6-12, who retired the final nine Reds batters and won the game. "It was nice to have ground balls hit where somebody could field them. It sure makes a difference." The setback kept the second-place Reds 4½ games behind Houston in the National League West. Atlanta's Bob Werner blasted his 21st home run — in the fifth inning — and a double, extending his hitting streak to 20 games, the longest this season in the NL. The loss went to reliever Doug Bair, 7-6, who came on in the ninth inning. "He only gave up one run in three innings. That's not bad," Bench said of Bair. "We'd like to feel we could score a run in three innings."

Dodgers 10, Astros 8

Steve Yeager slammed two home runs, his second a three-run shot highlighting a six-run eighth inning, to power Los Angeles over Houston. The loss snapped the Astros' six-game winning streak. Joe Ferguson added two homers for the Dodgers, who collected 14 hits off four Houston pitchers. The Astros had a six-run inning of their own — the sixth — to take an 8-4 lead. But Los Angeles erupted in the eighth for the victory. Manny Mota singled in the Dodger eighth. It was the 144th pinch hit of his major league career, tying him with Smokey Burgess for most major-league career pinch hits.

Brewers snooker Orioles

By The Associated Press

It is one of a manager's simpler duties. He comes to the ballpark, sees who is pitching for the other team, and makes out his lineup card accordingly. If the opposing pitcher is left-handed — Milwaukee's Mike Caldwell, for example — the manager is likely to stack his attack with right-handed batters. That's just what Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver did Tuesday night when informed Caldwell would be facing his Orioles. And everything would have gone without a hitch, except Caldwell didn't pitch. He warmed up, but after the Brewers had batted in the first, it was right-hander Jim Slaton who took the mound for Milwaukee. Caldwell, tackled by New York's Reggie Jackson during a game 11 days before, claimed a rib cage injury. Needless to say, Weaver's protest was announced long before the Brewers beat his Orioles 7-5 Tuesday night.

the-mill for the Brewers and Orioles — five home runs, three of them by Milwaukee. In their 11 meetings this season, the teams have combined for 37 homers. Sixto Lezcano, Gorman Thomas and Dick Davis each hit two-run shots for the Brewers, who had lost seven of their last eight games. Lee May and Pat Kelly connected for the Orioles, with Kelly's blast marking his third of the year as a pinch-hitter. The homer by Davis snapped a 5-5 tie in the eighth and sent Baltimore to its third consecutive loss. It came after Davis had fouled off two pitches while attempting to bunt. Tigers 3-8, Rangers 1-2 A pair of two-run homers by Jerry Morales powered Detroit to victory in the nightcap after Steve Kemp's two-run homer in the ninth inning gave the Tigers the opener. A's 9, Angels 5 Pinch-hitter Mike Heath hit a bases-loaded single in the seventh inning, driving in two runs and sending Oakland past California. The Angels went ahead 4-3 in the top of the seventh on Don Baylor's broken-bat single, which delivered Rick Miller and raised Baylor's RBI total to 98. The A's replied with six runs in the bottom of the inning, with Heath's hit giving Oakland the lead for good at 6-4.

while Chet Lemon and Rusty Torres added two-run homers to help Chicago beat New York. Reggie Jackson drove in two runs with two hits — one of them the 360th homer of his career. Blue Jays 3, Royals 2 Rick Cerone's single in the bottom of the ninth scored pinch-runner J.J. Cannon and gave Toronto its victory over Kansas City. Otto Velez opened the ninth with a walk and was replaced at first base by Cannon, who took second on Rick Bosetti's single, third on a force play, and scored on Cerone's hit. Tom Underwood held Kansas City to three hits and needed just 94 pitches to fashion his 10th complete game of the year.

Sampson to aid Oilers' Towns

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler starting offensive tackle Greg Sampson, out for the season following brain surgery last week, says he'll be available to help out Mo Towns, his replacement. "I hope I'll be able to help the Oilers off the field this season," Sampson said Tuesday in a statement released by the Oilers. "Perhaps I can give some tips on guys I've faced. Yes, if Mo Towns asks me for some help I'll be glad to give him some tips." Sampson, who had a blood clot removed from his brain last week, said he has plans to play again next year. "I've been given encouraging words from my physician and the neurosurgeon," Sampson said. "I'm very encouraged by what they've told me. They said I have a very good chance of playing in 1980 and I'm looking forward to it." Sampson complained of headaches when he first reported to the Oiler training camp at Angelo State University in San Angelo. Doctors discovered the blood clot last Friday afternoon and the former Stanford star underwent surgery that night. The Oilers also likely will be without starting guard George Reinhart Sunday when they host the New York Jets in the Astrodome.

Pearson becomes world's oldest back

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — "I'm the world's oldest running back," is the proud boast of Preston Pearson, a 34-year-old marvel of health in one of pro football's most injury-prone positions. Pearson's relatively injury-free career with the Baltimore Colts, Pittsburgh Steelers and Dallas Cowboys has included contributions to five Super Bowl teams. With Dallas for the last four National Football League seasons — three of them ending at the Super Bowl — Pearson's ground-gaining totals have consistently dropped while his pass receiving numbers have gone up. Usually held out of the game until passing situations last year, Pearson led all Cowboys in pass receptions with 47. That was three more than the Cowboys' celebrated wide receiver, Drew Pearson. The two are not related. Although he's becoming a legend of longevity, Preston Pearson isn't content with a relief role. "I consider myself one of the top two or three backs on this team," he said in an interview at the Cowboys' training camp. "I personally think I should be used in situations other than second down and long, third and long. I do what they ask of me," added Pearson. "I can play both halfback and fullback. I guess that all adds up to the definition of valuable. I don't have to prove what I can do. They spend a lot of time at training camp finding out what the rookies can do, and I expect that." Last season he carried the ball just 25 times for 104 yards, but his 47 receptions added up to 526 yards — the reverse of his statistics in five seasons with Pittsburgh. "It's very unusual for a back to be so productive at his age," says Tex Schramm, the Cowboys' president and general manager. "With the notable exception of Jim Brown, most running backs have short careers and a lot of injuries. 'Preston has a great knack for getting open, even when other teams are expecting us to throw to him,'" Schramm said. "Physically, he's a unique individual to last so long. It could be because he's never been the No. 1 ball-carrier for a team. He's never had to take the week-to-week pounding of carrying the ball 20 or more times a game." Pearson, now the NFL's elder statesman at his position with the retirement of 37-year-old MacArthur Lane, knows his career could be over quickly if a team decides a spot on the roster would be better filled with a younger man. He said the coaches give him no assurance that he'll hold off the rookies one more time, but it doesn't bother him. "If they think they've got someone else better, then I'm gone," Pearson said. "I'm at the stage where I can go into another exciting field — cable television franchising. 'The people at National Cable Television Co. have been nice enough to give me a leave of absence each year to come here. I know the coaches are thinking, 'He's 34. How long is he going to be around?''" But Pearson feels he's been "an important part of the action here for three years — and I intend to be part of the action again this year."

Jury views Tomjanovich film

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys for the Los Angeles Lakers, defendants in a multimillion dollar damage suit, are attempting to prove that injuries suffered by Houston Rocket star Rudy Tomjanovich were caused by the action of another Rocket player. A federal court jury viewed a film of the Laker-Rocket game of Dec. 9, 1977 in which Tomjanovich was hit in the face by the Lakers' Kermit Washington. But defense attorney Robert Dunn told the jury that before Tomjanovich was hit, Rocket center Kelvin Kunnert had given Washington an elbow in the face. A fight erupted, with the film showing Kunnert hit by Washington.

Dr. Daniel C. Walker, an oral and face surgeon, said he had "never seen such damage made by a bare human fist. I have seen people with less severe injuries and not make it." The Rockets are seeking $1.4 million from the Lakers for the loss of Tomjanovich during most of the 1977-1978 season. Tomjanovich is asking an unspecified amount, but more than $1 million, for the injuries he suffered. Kunnert, now a teammate of Washington on the San Diego Clippers, said, "I never threw an elbow. Washington was holding onto my trunks during a fast break and I was just trying to knock his hands away." Dunn insisted Kunnert look at the film closely and Kunnert answered, "That wasn't an elbow." The film was shown in both black-and-white and in color, in normal and slow motion. Earlier, Robert Reid, a Houston forward, viewed the film and said it appeared to him that Kunnert had swung an elbow at Washington.

Dorsett, Laidlaw out of action

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys running backs Tony Dorsett and Scott Laidlaw are expected to be out of action for as long as three weeks with injuries. Doctors discovered Tuesday that Dorsett apparently fractured a toe in a freak accident prior to the Cowboy's first exhibition game. Laidlaw suffered a pulled hamstring muscle in his left leg during practice Tuesday. Dorsett dropped a mirror — a gift from a group of fans — on his foot prior to the Cowboys' appearance against Oakland in Canton, Ohio July 28. The fracture was discovered only after Dorsett complained of pain during a workout Tuesday. Coach Tom Landry said both players could be sidelined for up to three weeks. The Cowboys are continuing preparations for a nationally televised exhibition game Sunday against Seattle. The team will break training camp and return to Dallas on Aug. 17.

Joe Paterno waves Eastern resurgence

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — Joe Paterno believes there has been a tremendous resurgence of interest in football as played by Eastern colleges and universities.

No one has done more to further the cause of Eastern football than the Penn State coach and his Nittany Lions.

Paterno cites the enlargement of stadiums such as is happening at Penn State.

And he notes that Penn State, which last year finished fourth in the rankings, plans to go nationwide in the future to uphold the East Coast's honor.

This year, the Nittany Lions will play Nebraska and in 1981 they will begin playing series with Alabama and Notre Dame.

"If we're going to have the East come alive again, some one had to step forward and take on the challenge. We decided to do that," Paterno said.

"Besides, big games appeal to me."

"Of course, sometimes I like to kid that we're going to start these series with Alabama and Notre Dame the year after I retire."

One coach who shows no signs of leaving yet is Paul "Bear" Bryant, whose Alabama team was top ranked last football season.

Bryant and Paterno were at the College Hall of Fame here Tuesday on a promotional tour along with coaches John Robinson of Southern California and Joe Yuccia.

"I want to coach as long as they feel I'm contributing," Bryant said. "But I don't want to wait and let the program run down."

Bryant declined to speculate about becoming the winningest coach in college football history.

He is already has more victories than any active coach and is third on the all-time list behind Amos Alonzo Stagg and "Pop" Warner.

"Winning is not nearly as important as it used to be," Bryant said. "My goals now are I want to help the player be a better person."

"I also want everyone who ever worked at Alabama to go away feeling like he's a better person."

Robinson's Southern California team, which finished second last year, has been picked by many preseason forecasts to succeed Alabama as national champion.

Running back Johnny Hector of New Iberia, La., claims he refused to sign with LSU after receiving threats that his brother's parole would be revoked if he went elsewhere. (AP Laserphoto)

Hector turns down LSU despite possible threats

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Running back Johnny Hector says he won't ask the NCAA to look into an alleged threat to send his brother back to prison unless he signed to play football for Louisiana State University.

"As far as I'm concerned the issue is over," said Hector, who signed with Texas A&M after his brother told him of the incident.

"I feel there have been other cases like this in the past that haven't been brought up and I'm sure there'll be some in the future. As far as my family and myself are concerned ... it's dropped," the hotly recruited running back from New Iberia said Tuesday.

Hector disclosed last month that an anonymous caller had told his brother his parole would be revoked if Johnny chose a school other than Louisiana State, where he had signed a South-eastern Conference letter of intent.

William Hector was paroled last February after serving one year of a 3-year prison sentence for negligent homicide.

A state lawyer said Tuesday he told Louisiana State University about the alleged threat.

But neither Richard Crane, a lawyer for the state Department of Corrections, nor LSU officials would identify the LSU supporter from Lafayette who asked a parole officer for William Hector's phone number.

Manufacturer to inspect Munson's jet wreckage

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Engines from the wreckage of a jet airplane that crashed, taking the life of New York Yankees captain Thurman Munson, were to be packed today for shipment to their manufacturer for inspection.

Edward P. McAvoy, an air safety investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board, said the examination will begin Aug. 14 at Pratt & Whitney facilities at Montreal.

"If the engines had power, we'll have to look at other areas (to determine the cause of the crash), such as pilot technique," McAvoy said Tuesday.

The two survivors of the crash that killed the 32-year-old catcher last Thursday differed in their accounts of how the accident occurred, one saying pilot error may have been a factor and another saying the aircraft lost power.

Munson died when his Cessna Citation twin-engine jet crashed short of the runway at the Akron-Canton Airport while he was practicing touch-and-go landings.

"We were aware Mr. Munson had a very limited amount of pilot time (in the jet plane). He was still in the learning stage," said McAvoy. He said Munson had 37 hours flying time in the jet aircraft, compared with more than 600 hours time in propeller-powered airplanes.

David Hall, 32, of Canton, who was flying as Munson's co-pilot, has told federal investigators that pilot error during the landing approach may have led to the crash.

Congressional recess throws Carter programs off desirable schedule

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — In politics, timing is at least half the battle. And this is the time of the summer doldrums in Washington.

The only thing up is the thermometer. Congress is on vacation and half the government is on hold. Energy is a nagging concern, but not a sharp pain so long as there's enough gasoline to get away to the mountains or the seashore.

All of that is going to make it more difficult for President Carter to get the action he wants on energy and to rally Congress and the country against what he sees as a crisis of confidence.

His domestic summit conference, his dramatic appeals for action in Washington and for public pressure to bring that action, his shake-up and purge of the Cabinet, all those moves were made just before getaway time. There has been no noticeable change as a result of Carter's efforts to bring a new look to his administration. He got no new action out of Congress, and nothing is going to happen there now until well after Labor Day.

"I regret to say Congress has failed to make adequate progress on the president's proposals," said Vice President Walter F. Mondale as the House and Senate vacation began.

Mondale noted that as the gasoline lines eased, so did the pressure. He said also that interest groups had stepped up their own pressures on legislators.

Carter wanted immediate action on a standby gasoline rationing plan. What he got was a bill so amended by the House with loopholes to accommodate one interest or another that the administration termed it unacceptable, and Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd called it ludicrous.

There had been scattered suggestions that Congress stay at work as evidence that the energy problem really is urgent. But there never was any real chance of that.

Carter wanted his so-called "wind-fall profits" tax on oil approved swiftly. It is stuck in committee in the Senate and will stay there into the fall.

By that time, whatever impact Carter achieved with his mid-summer effort to give the administration a new look may be largely forgotten.

The president intends to keep pressing his case in public appearances, in hopes the voters will give their senators and House members a message during and after the recess.

But his effort to prod Congress into swift action simply did not work. Nor is there evidence his reappraisal of administration strategy and the Cabinet shake-up that followed have done much to enhance his political standing. The public opinion polls give them mixed reviews at best.

In an Associated Press-NBC News poll conducted July 24, after the most dramatic of Carter's moves, 69 percent of those surveyed said they consider the president a weak leader. And 75 percent said they didn't consider him tough enough. Only 31 percent said they wanted to see him run for re-election.

Carter and his advisers are convinced that such attitudes will change as he takes his case to the country and as voters begin comparing him to rival candidates one-on-one.

That raises another problem of timing. With Camp David and the shake-up of the administration, Carter has played one of his hole cards in the effort to revive his political prospects. It's hard to figure the next move — and the filing deadline for candidates in the New Hampshire presidential primary is coming up in five months.

RINGING THE BELL

Black conservative or despot?

With BOB TIEUEL

The Black Experience: Chickens Come Home to Roost — According to a Texas Department of Human Resources report, children at the St. Paul Industrial Training School at Malakoff, operated by State Rep. Clay Smothers and other members of his family, have been subjected to "unnecessary" physical and psychological discipline, including name-calling, threats and frequent spankings.

Smothers is also a

"black experience" staff columnist for the Oak Cliff Tribune in Dallas and for several other East Texas publications. He terms himself a "black conservative." He created a nationwide restir recently when he called U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young a s.o.b. DHR investigator Barbara Bounds said several children at the school told her Smothers hit and kicked a student and called him a s.o.b. for running away.

Smothers, who operates the 52-year-old, non-profit institution with his mother Alice and a younger brother Ben, acknowledged to bellringer sources that he administers spankings or "intimidation" techniques in the report.

"The only person I've ever called a s.o.b. in 20 years was Andrew Young," Smothers said. He also disputed the report's findings that his mother called children such names as "dog,"

"hound" and "nigger." Ms. Bounds said investigators were told by some 10 children that Mrs. Smothers had come to them and made promises that they would receive better clothes, allowances and food if they would tell us favorable things about the school. The school, funded through private contributions, is located 67 miles southeast of Dallas. The students range in age from 3 to 17 and "are among the most disadvantaged kinds in the state," Smothers said.

Country music star Charley Pride, 41, a popular golfer in pro-am tournaments across the country, recently was refused membership in Dallas' Royal Oaks Country Club because, as he put it, "I think I have too permanent a tan." He was invited by the board of governors to apply for membership but five members rejected his application. Pride's $6,000 membership fee was returned.

Building to save energy may change faces of U.S. cities

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

The energy woes that have dominated headlines for months are starting to shape America's skylines — and one builder from Atlanta, at least, is worried that some architects may start building energy-saving eyesores.

"There will be buildings that are junk built in the name of energy: very energy-efficient, economical, but ugly and unlivable," says Ennis Parker, the 35-year-old president of Heery & Heery, an Atlanta-based architectural firm.

Not that all architects, or even most of them, would sacrifice beauty and livability strictly for energy saving. Parker's firm, for one, is constructing a 24-story building in downtown Atlanta for Georgia Power Co. that has already gained a wide reputation for making the latest in energy-saving technology pleasing to the eye.

The building, when completed sometime next year, will slope gently toward the ground like an upside-down pyramid, with each layer providing windows with energy-saving shade from the hot southern sun. The most controversial changes are inside. The Georgia Power building is the first to use high-pressure sodium lights. Similar to modern street lighting, it is very bright, and very yellow, and some people may have a tough time adjusting to it, says Parker. But its virtue is the energy it saves.

Other energy-conscious structures planned or recently built around the country and in Canada have gained attention: a state office building in San Jose, Calif., that uses ordinary rocks to help cool it, a highly innovative Tennessee Valley Authority building planned in Chattanooga, Tenn., and a Gulf Oil Canada building which will weather frigid Calgary winters using a recovery system that circulates the heat from lights, machinery and even people.

Parker, in a recent interview, predicted that city buildings of the future will not be as grand in height and scale as New York skyscrapers, nor will they use as much see-through glass.

Changing energy realities may also drive some city buildings underground, literally, he says. Underground buildings, or buildings with at least some of its sides beneath the ground level, provide excellent natural insulation from heat and cold.

There will be more space between floors, because mechanical engineers now realize it takes less energy to move heated or cooled air through greater space.

Solar energy will play an increasing role in urban architecture, too, he predicts.

Parker says architectural firms themselves are undergoing sweeping change because of the complexity of energy problems. The days when a Frank Lloyd Wright or a Le Corbusier could singlehandedly sketch out the plans for city structures may be over.

Now, says Parker, urban architecture demands the full-time efforts of mechanical and electrical engineers, the architect, and energy experts. Architectural firms will have to house all those professions.

But Parker also emphasizes that the energy-inspired changes showing up in city buildings are strictly business decisions. And that's where the potential for trouble lies.

"It's a question of money, not energy, and not altruism. The fact is that if any businessman is considered prudent, the cost of energy has to be cranked into the equation of any new building," he says.

17 Japanese prisoners on death row awaiting renewal of executions

By JIM ABRAMS

TOKYO (AP) — The 17 men on death row in Japan wait in limbo, not knowing when an undeclared two-year-old moratorium on executions will end and they will be taken to the gallows.

An order from Justice Minister Yoshimi Furui is all that is needed to send any or all of the condemned men to their deaths. But for a variety of reasons — increased petitions for retrials, the international human rights movement and the personal beliefs of Furui and his predecessor — no executions have taken place since 1977.

Justice Ministry officials say the death sentences will be carried out at the proper time and at the discretion of the minister. Persons opposed to the death penalty hope that the long break will make it difficult for the government to resume executions.

Under Japanese law, once all appeals are exhausted, a condemned person must be hanged within five days after the Justice Minister affixes his stamp to the execution order. His ministry refuses to announce the dates of executions in advance, and many go almost unnoticed except by family members called to pick up the remains.

While the Japanese read with fascination about controversy over capital punishment in the United States or details of executions there, few of them are aware that their own government has put 565 persons to death since the end of World War II.

"There are almost no movements in Japan, either inside or outside the government, to abolish capital punishment," said attorney Kenzaburo Taga, a member of a new group of lawyers and scholars opposing the death penalty.

"Probably 80 percent of the professional world and the general public favor the law despite the fact that Japan is one of the most crime-free and non-violent societies in the world," he said in an interview.

Taga's group contends that the death sentence must be abolished because, since Japan does not have trial by jury, the possibility of a wrong verdict or of an arbitrary sentence is increased.

But he said the subject is still taboo among bureaucrats in the Justice Ministry, and politicians do not consider it important enough to the voters to push for a change in the law.

Japan has an ancient history of executions despite Buddhist injunctions against taking life. It is among about 75 percent of the world's nations which still have capital punishment.

More than 500 persons are on death row in the United States, where 32 states retain the death penalty. In Europe, the guillotine still drops in France, but West Germany, Italy and Britain have abolished the death penalty.

In Japan, nearly 100 persons a year were sentenced to die in the years immediately after the war. But the number dropped sharply, to about 10 a year in the 1970's before the suspension of executions.

Prolonged trials and requests for new trials slowed the march to the gallows.
