Vietnam may discuss airlifting of refugees

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — Vietnam is willing to discuss airlifting refugees directly out of the country on American planes, but it has vowed to stop illegal exits by sea, U.S. congressional sources say.

Acting Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach told a congressional delegation Thursday that fleeing refugees have stolen half the nation's fishing fleet and that some who were captured had been executed.

About 4,000 would-be escapees have been arrested, Thach said, and one million ethnic Chinese are waiting to get out of Vietnam. Some 400,000 refugees are already jamming camps in Southeast Asia.

The sources were among a nine-member delegation headed by Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., who met Thursday with Thach and Deputy Foreign Minister Hoang Bich Son, before leaving for Hong Kong en route home. Another delegation, led by Rep. Lester L. Wolff, D-N.Y., arrives today.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said in addition to the American airlift that Thach said his government was willing to accept three consular officers in Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon, to process refugees under U.N. auspices.

Thach said the officers could be American. In Washington Thursday, the State Department said it was sending two consular officers to Thailand and hoped to have them go to Vietnam to process refugees.

Thach also said Vietnam had dropped its demand for reconstruction aid as a condition for normalizing relations with the United States, the sources said, and Rosenthal later told reporters as Thach stood alongside the congressman that Vietnam was "very, very anxious for relations with the United States."

Thach told reporters earlier the United States backed down on a pledge to normalize relations last fall because of the refugee problem and Vietnam's invasion of Cambodia eight months ago to oust the pro-Chinese government there and install a pro-Hanoi one.

But Rosenthal said after his talks Thursday that the two sides had moved closer together on the refugee issue and that there had been a "narrowing of viewpoints" toward the goal of achieving an orderly emigration of refugees from Vietnam.

Rosenthal said, and Thach nodded in agreement, that Vietnam's moratorium on the unauthorized exodus of refugees by sea was "a permanent policy that would go on forever," and that Thach had informed the delegation that 4,000 people were awaiting prosecution, half the fishing fleet of Vietnam had been stolen by refugees and some would-be escapees had been executed.

Rosenthal said Thach also told the congressmen that Vietnam was still working on the issue of Americans listed as missing in action and had found "some things," but did not elaborate. The delegation left the meeting in an optimistic mood, and Rosenthal said he would move with "greater speed" toward getting relations with Vietnam normalized.

Wolff, chairman of the House Subcommittee on Asian and Pacific Affairs, has said his delegation also hopes to discuss the possibility of normalizing relations with the Vietnamese.

Lamesa oil field accident kills Tommy Wayne Upchurch

LAMESA — A 21-year-old Lamesa man died Thursday from injuries received in an oil field accident about 15 miles northeast of Lamesa.

Tommy Wayne Upchurch was helping to move an oil rig when a pole trailer being unloaded from a truck pivoted and pinned Upchurch against another vehicle, witnesses said.

An emergency vehicle transported Upchurch to Lamesa's Medical Arts hospital where he was pronounced dead by Peace Justice Fred Vera.

Upchurch was employed with the Britts Well Servicing Co. in Lamesa.

'Greatest show' invades Midland

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The elephant man was sitting while he was standing guard.

A hooked-pointed poker that resembled a billy club was across his lap; he could lead a 10,000-pound hunk of wrinkled leathery flesh with the wooden tool of his trade.

Rolls of fat folded about his pale belly as he halfway leaned out of the hay-padded railroad car.

Restless circus elephants occasionally shrieked like off-key trumpets on a wild note and evoked visions of the jungle.

The elephant man, Wayne Pilz, was watchfully sitting on the edge of one of 39 railroad cars of the Blue Unit of Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus, which had steamed into Midland for the first time, bringing "The Greatest Show on Earth" to town.

"I'M WHAT THEY call the goof," said the 32-year-old Pilz. "The — shoveler. I take care of them, feed them, water them, clean up after them. I'm what they call the elephant handler."

He was also the people handler.

While he was waiting for his boss, Bill "Buckles" Woodcock, the elephant trainer, to return and take charge, Pilz was trying to keep the curious spectators from getting too close to the two silvery railroad cars hauling the two skittish African and the 18 generally more gentle and manageable Asian (Indian) elephants — pachyderms.

Other cars carried the lions and other cats, camels, horses and many of the 300 talented performers and 200 circus workers bringing the "greatest" show to Midland College's Chaparral Center for six performances tonight, Saturday and Sunday.

"You'll see a helluva elephant act, let me tell you," said Pilz. The show will feature 35 acts — from trapeze artists and aerial fliers to clowns, unicycles, daredevil motorcyclists, horsemen, cannon-ballers and more.

Meanwhile, Pilz sometimes was telling the on-

'Time we quit apologizing'

Clements says U.S. still greatest nation

By JOE SALMAN
Oil Editor

"Its high time we in the United States quit apologizing and quit bowing and scraping to second-rate countries around the world," Gov. Bill Clements told more than 500 persons in Midland Thursday night.

The governor made the remark at the Desk & Derrick Club's annual Industry Appreciation Banquet in the Midland Hilton.

Clements, the first Republican elected governor in Texas in more than 100 years, compared the living standards in the United States with those in the Soviet Union.

"I would like to explain just exactly what it is that we have to be appreciative of here in the United States," he said.

TO LIVE AT standards equivalent to that of the Soviet Union, Clements said we would have to:

- "Slice our paychecks by 75 percent.

- "Move 60 million American workers back to the farm.

- "Destroy 93 percent of our highways.

- "Remove two-thirds of our railroad system.

- "Demolish 70 percent of our homes.

- "Remove 90 percent of our telephones.

- "Scrap 95 percent of our automobiles.

- "And, junk 40 million television sets."

"For all our problems and for all the criticism we hear, we are still the greatest nation in the world," the governor claimed.

Clements said the blessings didn't stop there. One of his greatest, he added, was being born a Texan.

"I say that because a spirit exists here that exists nowhere else in the United States. It is a determined, hard-working, can-do spirit. It is a spirit that gets things done without forevermore asking the government to do it for us.

"IT ISN'T JUST a matter of not asking the government to do things for us; it is a matter of wanting the government to get out of our business and let our free enterprise system go to work to make this nation even greater," he said.

In counting Texans' blessings, the governor said "the average state tax burden is the sixth lowest in the nation, and Texas is one of only four states without a corporate income tax and one of only six without a personal income tax.

"A large degree of our prosperity in Texas is related to our great energy industries. We in Texas literally live in a petro-culture, and it has been good for us.

"Nearly half of the top 100 companies in the state are engaged in businesses related to petroleum, and Texas produces about one third of the nation's oil. Tax revenues from oil and gas production account for nearly 20 percent of all tax collections in

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Texans needing to know what to do if arrested for drunken driving, persons seeking a divorce or those just needing to know how to find a lawyer may soon be able to get answers to these and other questions by dialing a new phone information service.

Tel-Law is a new telephonic information program approved by the State Bar of Texas and being considered by several local bar associations across the state, said Larry Fitzgerald, director of communications for the State Bar.

"Tel-Law doesn't pretend to answer legal questions," Fitzgerald said, "but it gives information on what to do if arrested for DWI and other information."

Among topics for which a person could find information are criminal and civil court proceedings, taxes, adoptions, consumer information, marriages, bankruptcy and other matters, Fitzgerald said.

The program, which already is in use in California, Oregon, Washington, New York and Arizona, was given approval by the State Bar in June. Fitzgerald said Tel-Law could be available in some Texas cities this fall.

"Houston will probably be one of the first cities on the program," Fitzgerald said.

Citizens needing help can call an advertised telephone number and request tapes on the various subject matter. Fitzgerald said the success of the program will depend on the circulation of pamphlets listing the tape subjects and phone numbers.

"The program is dependent on a print media program," Fitzgerald said. He added about a half million pamphlets will be needed to get the program going in the Houston area.

"It's a fairly expense proposition (for the local bar associations who would sponsor the program in their areas)," Fitzgerald said. The initial outlay for the program would be between $10,000 and $12,000, he said.

The local bar associations would be licensed to operate the program by the State Bar. The local bar would pay a minimum license fee and the state would provide the tapes, Fitzgerald said.

The State Bar is now in the process of preparing the scripts for those tapes, he said. The State Bar has received good response to the program from local bars, Fitzgerald said, but mainly in urban areas. Two rural areas, however, have expressed interest, he said.

"We would like to see a couple of bar associations on line by fall," Fitzgerald said, adding that many local bar associations should be operating the program by the first of the year.

Travis County not only is considering Tel-Law but also a sister program called Tel-Med, a system to provide medical information.

The Travis County Bar Association is considering using senior citizens to man their Tel-Law phones, Fitzgerald said.

Fitzgerald said the program will be a good service for both the public and the legal profession. Tel-Law will provide needed information for the public and will do a lot to help improve the image of lawyers who still suffer an image problem from the Watergate scandal, Fitzgerald said.

WRESTLING MATCH

Coal to the forefront

Nature left the United States with an abundance of coal which President Carter compares to the abundance of oil in the Middle East. "America is the Saudi Arabia of coal," he told an appreciative crowd in the coal-mining country of Kentucky the other day.

Theoretically, our coal reserves could supply the nation's entire energy needs for about 100 years. Mr. Carter can direct our attention to that fact, but even he doesn't have the answer to the question that follows. How are we going to turn a "dirty" fuel like coal into one that is safe, accessible and economical enough to serve as a useful substitute for imported oil?

There are engineers who argue that uranium is a better alternative to coal as a fuel for generating electricity, given the costs and health and safety statistics surrounding the two. Be that as it may, circumstances demand that both nuclear and coal be exploited to the fullest practical extent as energy options — especially if we are going to meet Mr. Carter's goal of reducing by half the amount of oil consumed in power plants.

The president's call for a massive program to produce "synthetic" fuels has brought coal to the forefront as the most likely raw material for manufactured oil and gas. South Africa is providing an example of what might be accomplished. That country's "Sasol" process is producing oil from coal at a cost which South Africans say is competitive with the price of OPEC oil.

It also has become evident since Mr. Carter's July 15 energy message that economics will have as much to do with the direction we take in synthetic fuel production as the various technical problems that may remain to be overcome. The president has sparked a national debate over whether the government should finance and direct the program or whether Washington's best contribution would be to let a free marketplace bring synthetics into the energy inventory.

The latter alternative has received a boost from Southern California Edison Co. and Texaco Inc.

with their announcement of plans to build a plant near Barstow, Calif., that will convert coal from Utah into gas and burn the gas to produce electricity. The sponsors say the $300-million plant will not require government subsidies, and will employ a technology more advanced than any the Department of Energy is currently interested in subsidizing.

Extracting gas from coal is not a new technology. Lignite, of course, is used extensively to produce energy in East Texas. Gas produced from coal was widely used in American homes and industry until cheaper natural gas drove it off the market. Rising prices of oil and gas, and restraints on their availability, can just as well bring coal gas back onto the market, and introduce coal-based liquid fuels as well.

Provided, of course, that the market is free of the price controls and other regulations which distort the relative values of various fuels. Mr. Carter can say what he will about the potential of our vast coal reserves, but his approach to energy problems remains flawed by his continued faith in price controls and government management of energy resources.

The coal fields of Kentucky made an ideal place for the president to talk about coal, but the unemployment he found there only emphasizes that we are starting from behind in meeting the problems of mining, transporting and using coal for fuel in an environmentally acceptable way.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

The sheiks plan on oil 'weaponry'

WASHINGTON — The latest price increases will not be the end of the Arab oil extortion. Intercepted messages reveal that the petroleum potentates are talking about future $50-a-barrel oil. The Arabs also intend to use their oil to blackmail the United States into changing its Mideast policies.

The messages are highly classified to protect U.S. intelligence-gathering techniques. But the American people are entitled to know that their leaders are heading toward a dangerous confrontation with the Arab world. For months, we have been trying to alert the nation that the Arabs are waging economic warfare against the United States. They don't disguise it in their private conversations; they speak of oil as a "weapon."

Our own policymakers fully understand this. Secret Pentagon papers refer bluntly to the "oil weapon." No less than President Carter in secret strategy sessions has characterized the price squeeze as "economic warfare." Indeed, the military chiefs have been doing some urgent contingency planning, which could lead to armed intervention in the Middle East.

The drive for higher oil prices is led by Libya's dogmatic dictator, Muammar Qaddafi, who seems unconcerned about the economic consequences. He is opposed by Saudi Arabia's cautious sheiks, who have increased production to hold down prices. They fear that $50-a-barrel oil would plunge the Western world into a severe depression.

The economic devastation might arouse the United States, which could turn its own economic weapons against the oil sheikdoms. Secret planning studies offer these possible reprisals: (1) freeze Arab assets in this country; (2) cut off shipments of food, spare parts and machinery to Arab countries; (3) stop U.S. firms from doing business with the Arab world; (4) block Arab shipping and communications from using U.S. facilities; (5) suspend technical and military assistance; and (6) stop issuing visas to Arab students and businessmen.

But a secret analysis of these "retributive actions" concludes that they would only provoke the Arabs "to move immediately to higher and more damaging levels of economic action in response." Most likely, the Arab rulers would "drastically reduce," or perhaps halt, oil shipments to the United States.

The secret intercepts reveal, in fact, that they have discussed withholding oil to coerce the United States into making political concessions in the Middle East. Some Arab firebrands are clamoring for an oil shut-off unless Washington compels Israel to withdraw to its pre-1967 borders.

A prolonged oil boycott against the United States could lead to military intervention. The most likely target would be the implacable, impossible Qaddafi. One possibility, which has been discussed in the backrooms of the Pentagon, is to support an Egyptian invasion of Libya's oil fields.

But there are also secret contingency plans for flying the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N.C., to take over the oil fields. The Air Force has perfected a "bare base" operation, which would make it possible overnight to erect a command center at any desert air strip — complete with airlifted fuel and water tanks, repair shops and communications facilities.

After the 1973 Arab oil boycott, the Marine Corps also began preparations for seaborne landings in the Middle East. Libya, with its long coastline and excellent seaport, would be particularly vulnerable. In the open desert, with no place to hide, guerrillas would be ineffective against the Marines.

There are other contingency plans for military intervention in Saudi Arabia if its oil fields should be threatened by a foreign-supported rebellion or invasion. Saudi oil is considered essential to the security of the United States for another decade until alternate fuels are available in quantity.

The oil crisis, meanwhile, is coming to a boil.

Footnote: State Department strategists, agnost at the idea of armed intervention in the Middle East, have warned it might destroy the oil fields it would be intended to protect. But the military planners claim that the United States has the technology to restore oil production in a matter of months.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: It's tourist season in Washington, but out-of-towners aren't the only ones who get lost in the labyrinths of Capitol Hill. The other day, one of our spies spotted a familiar-looking woman approach a tourist in the Rayburn House Office Building with a question. The tourist couldn't help, and the woman eventually got help from a House committee staffer. The request, it turned out, was for directions to the U.S. Capitol, roughly 100 yards from the Rayburn Building. The familiar woman was Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J.

—Any doubt that taxpayers are considered second-class citizens in the nation's capital was erased the other day when a notice in large black letters went up outside the House cafeteria. "Attention Visitors and Guests," the proclamation read: "Any delay in the service of House staff employees retards the business of the House of Representatives. Therefore, House staff employees will proceed to the front of the food service line and be served without delay." Significantly, perhaps, nothing has been posted about getting House MEMBERS to the head of the line. They tend to prefer the more leisurely atmosphere of the many non-government restaurants in Washington.

That's why our forefathers wrote into the Bill of Rights that the Congress shall pass no law which prohibits the citizens from owning and bearing arms. This, they felt, was so important that it is second only to the amendment guaranteeing freedom of speech, religion and press.

No honest government should fear its own people. No citizen need fear his neighbor, but all Americans should fear those who seek to disarm them so that they are helpless to defend their lives and their liberty should the need arise.

You cannot rely on the federal courts these days to uphold the Bill of Rights. We must make sure such deadly legislation never gets out of Congress.

CHARLEY REESE Another gun-grabbing bill introduced by Ted Kennedy

By CHARLEY REESE
 Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Sen. Ted Kennedy, as expected, has introduced a gun-grabbing bill that would have the effect of barring practically all private citizens from owning a handgun.

The anti-gun nuts never give up nor are they much impressed by the Bill of Rights. Whether you own a handgun or not, you should write your congressman and senator and oppose this bill. Tell them plainly that you do not want any additional federal legislation restricting gun ownership.

Kennedy, of course, is only a pawn so to speak. The push for this legislation is coming from a group of people with long histories of leftist political activity. Let me tell you why you should be concerned.

Nobody does anything without a motive. When the public reasons given for an action turn out to be untrue, then it logically follows that there are other reasons which the people choose to keep secret.

The reasons the anti-gun crowd give for wanting to restrict private ownership of firearms simply do not hold up to careful examination. They cite crime, but FBI statistics show that the firearm is not the most commonly used weapon in crimes — knives and bludgeons are. Only half of the homicides are committed with handguns.

Furthermore, the sensible way to handle this problem is to do exactly what the National Rifle Association has been urging Congress and legislatures to do for years: pass laws which add additional mandatory prison terms for possession of a firearm while committing any crime. One part of Kennedy's omnibus anti-gun bill does this but that should be made a separate piece of legislation.

A couple of other points should also be considered. No agency collects statistics on how many crimes are prevented by privately armed citizens able to defend themselves but there are a considerable number judging from the news stories that appear from time to time. Secondly, laws which restrict private and honest citizens from gun ownership do not have any great effect on criminals since most of the weapons they use are stolen anyway.

As a source of accidental injuries and deaths, the gun is ranked so far down the list it's absurd to cite this as a reason for legislation. One federal study of emergency room patients ranked the gun almost 50th.

These anti-gun people are clever propagandists but their propaganda cannot survive an objective analysis. They are attacking the handgun because they hope by doing that they can exclude sportsmen from the opposition and because they want to establish a precedent. If they can win their point that the federal government has the right to restrict private ownership of handguns, then they will be back next time to restrict private ownership of all guns.

Well, if the privately owned handgun is not a major factor in crime and not a major source of accidents, why are they so zealous in their attempt to subvert the Constitutional right of citizens to own and bear arms?

I think they are fearful, as all men who lust for power over their fellow man are, of an armed citizenry. It is often said that a free press is a great guarantee against dictatorships. That is a nice thought but simply isn't true. History shows that a free press is easily silenced by tyrants. The press as an institution is extremely vulnerable to government force.

But history also shows that tyrants fear an armed citizenry. In every communist country in the world, gun ownership is non-existent except for the police, army, and a few party officials. The first speech Fidel Castro made in Havana, before he revealed his communism and his intentions, called on all citizens to turn in their firearms. The first act of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia was to disarm the citizens. The first decree of the Sandinistas in Nicaragua was a ban against gun ownership.

A police state cannot be easily imposed on a people who have the means to defend themselves. Alexander Solzhenitsyn wrote of the bitter feelings of many Russian prisoners who realized that if they had resisted Stalin's police, the history of their country might well have been different.

There is no defense against a gun except another gun. The man who asks you to give up your gun, is asking you to give up your right to self-defense which is founded in English common law. A nation in which only the government owns guns is ripe for dictatorship.

That's why our forefathers wrote into the Bill of Rights that the Congress shall pass no law which prohibits the citizens from owning and bearing arms. This, they felt, was so important that it is second only to the amendment guaranteeing freedom of speech, religion and press.

No honest government should fear its own people. No citizen need fear his neighbor, but all Americans should fear those who seek to disarm them so that they are helpless to defend their lives and their liberty should the need arise.

You cannot rely on the federal courts these days to uphold the Bill of Rights. We must make sure such deadly legislation never gets out of Congress.

BIBLE VERSE

"I have many things to say and to judge of you; but he that sent me is true; and I speak to the world those things which I have heard of him." — John 8:26

INSIDE REPORT:

White House aides try to sidetrack Connally, but to no avail

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Twice since Jimmy Carter's domestic summit, White House aides have made clandestine efforts to veto John B. Connally, a Republican presidential candidate, as a speaker directly competing with the president and his men.

Although both efforts failed, the White House "suggestion" to both hosts — the National Assn. of County Officials (NACO) and the National Medical Assn. (NMA) — surprised veteran politicians.

Carter himself spoke before several hundred county officials in Kansas City July 16, one day after his dramatic Sunday night speech over national television. The not-so-subtle proposal that Connally appear on a day other than July 16 was coldly rebuffed.

On the other occasion, Stuart Eizenstat's domestic affairs office telephoned the black doctors' association and gently suggested a delay in Connally's July 31 speech in Detroit. He was to follow an address by Joseph Onak, Eizenstat's top assistant for health. The doctors, not so gently, ruled out any change.

JIMMY'S S.O.S. TO HENRY

President Carter's S.O.S. to Henry Kissinger, a telephone call beseeching Kissinger's support for the SALT II treaty flopped. Kissinger offered to support the strategic arms treaty only if it is twinned with massive new U.S. arms expenditures.

The telephone call, unreported until now, came July 29 to Kissinger's Georgetown house from the presidential retreat at Camp David. The former secretary of state, who has been steadfastly wooed for months by Carter men with special briefings and other inducements, was courteous — but immovable.

Unless the U.S. immediately corrects the declining strategic balance, Kissinger told Carter, he could not recommend Senate approval.

Evans

A footnote: Despite Kissinger's strong July 31 testimony to this effect, the fact is that the Nixon-Kissinger White House secretly opposed the B-1 bomber in 1970. They switched only after David Packard threatened to quit as deputy secretary of defense over the issue.

WHITE HOUSE NIXED

Secretary of Energy-designate Charles Duncan, an unknown quantity in Washington even though he has served as deputy secretary of defense throughout the Carter administration, has served notice he will not be a puppet serving under White House-imposed subordinates.

The White House has been pushing top energy department posts for two staunch environmentalists who have been in the hair of James Schlesinger, Duncan's predecessor as energy secretary: Eliot Cutler of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and Katherine Schirmer of the White House domestic policy staff. Plans were for Cutler to be deputy secretary, Schirmer to be assistant secretary for policy.

But Duncan, a multi-billionaire Texas industrialist, has been miffed by Cutler's OMB directives setting forth the new order at Energy. Consequently, Duncan has passed the word he would like to retain the present Energy Department team, keeping Cutler and Schirmer where they are.

McGOVERN BOOSTS CONNALLY

John B. Connally may not have welcomed it, but he recently received a quiet boost from none other than Sen. George McGovern.

When Connally announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination Jan. 24, McGovern televised a bitter blast at Connally's honesty, ethics and qualifications. Since then, however, McGovern has thought better about it.

On July 27, McGovern took the Senate floor and suggested his "personal passions had taken precedence over objective judgment" on Jan. 24, because of Connally's sharp attacks against him as 1972 Democratic presidential nominee. "I frankly overdid it," McGovern said. "John Connally is not as bad a candidate as I made him out to be."

As evidence, McGovern inserted in the record an interview with Connally in Politics Today by ex-McGovern aide Alan Baron. "I find much of what he says to be good common sense," McGovern noted.

ANOTHER REAGAN SETBACK

The third in a series of significant procedural setbacks has been suffered by Ronald Reagan's front-running Republican presidential candidacy, preventing a repeat of his 1976 Alabama clean sweep.

Over anguished protests of Alabama Reaganites, the state Republican committee voted, 71 to 37, to base results of the March 4 presidential primary on a proportional representation instead of winner-take-all. Behind the change were forces of Reagan rivals George Bush (present in Guntersville, Ala. for the vote) and John Connally.

That procedural change does not doom Reagan in Alabama, much less nationally. But it follows similar procedural defeats in Arkansas and Illinois — an odd pattern for a candidate far out in the lead.

LAITIN'S FUTURE?

A powerful post is being held open for Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Joseph Laitin, the Carter administration publicist most hated by the Georgia Mafia in the White House.

The job: administrative assistant to an influential Democratic member of the House from a major eastern state. The offer came after the sacking of Laitin's boss, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal. The congressman's rationale: since Laitin himself was getting some of the blame for Blumenthal's alleged disloyalty, Laitin obviously would not be allowed to remain in the Carter administration.

Laitin, 64, regarded as Washington's consummate public relations man, is considering the offer. Some politicians do not rule out the possibility that he might be kept on by Blumenthal's successor, G. William Miller, despite White House animosity.

Maridell Fryar named fine arts coordinator

Maridell Fryar, former director of forensics at Lee High School, recently was appointed coordinator of fine arts and speech for the Midland school district, according to Superintendent James Mailey.

She replaces Bill Cormack who is now with the Texas Music Educators Association in Austin.

Mrs. Fryar has been with the district for 16 years as a speech teacher and director of forensics. Formerly, she was director of forensics at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene where she received a bachelor of arts degree in speech, magna cum laude.

She also holds a master's degree in speech from Texas Tech University in Lubbock and is certified in educational administration.

She is the author of a textbook, Basic Debate, and was named Texas Speech Teacher of the Year in 1967. She served as president of the Texas Forensic Association in 1975.

Plans for the coming school year include some new programs in the fine arts, she said.

"I feel that the fine arts are basic to the education of the total child," she said. "The fine arts are the schools' best method of serving the community, and I hope Midland will use the talents of our fine arts students."

Mrs. Fryar plans to organize traveling exhibits of elementary and secondary school art and sculpture for display in business offices and other places in the community.

"Of course, we have always had a speakers bureau available from our junior and senior high schools. We have some outstanding student speakers who can conduct panel discussions and speak on a variety of subjects of interest to many community organizations," she said.

"Also, we have both vocal and instrumental soloists available to perform for the public," she said, adding "the schools use the resources of Midland in developing the talents of these students, and we plan to offer the community many opportunities to make use of these talents."

Mrs. Fryar asks any organization or business in the community interested in art displays or in the performing arts to call her at the school administration building, 682-8611.

July building permits in Midland $1 million over last year's total

Building permits in the city of Midland for the month of July exceeded the July 1978 total by $1 million, boosting total new construction in the Tall City for the first seven months of this year to $55.4 million.

Total construction for the first seven months last year, however, was $57.8 million, according to information released by the city's Inspections Department.

Total new construction valuation in July 1979 was $8.1 million.

Eight new commercial enterprises received permits to begin construction last month, totaling $3.6 million in value.

During the same time, 41 new housing starts were recorded in the city, totaling $2.2 million in value. Alterations to existing commercial structures reached the $1.6 million mark last month while alterations to 44 residential units were valued at $230,000.

Altogether, 123 new permits were issued, earning the city $15,776 in revenues. The city has earned $101,969 in revenues so far this year from new permits.

Through the end of July, the city has inspected 286 buildings, about 30 more than last year.

New commercial enterprises, including a retail sleep shop (which sells water beds), the new Petroleum Club facility, a tire and appliance store, three restaurants and a furniture store were started in Midland last month.

New apartment and duplex construction totaled $230,000 last month.

Nonetheless, the city is lagging behind last year's pace on removing junker cars. Only nine vehicles have been removed from city streets and vacant lots through July, about 70 less than the total through July 1978.

Carter actions fail to ease Israel's suspicions

JERUSALEM (AP) — President Carter promised Israel to try to postpone a U.N. Security Council debate on the Palestinians indefinitely, but he stopped short of committing his administration to a blanket veto of any resolution emerging from the debate, Israeli news reports said today.

The Israeli government was studying a report from Ambassador Ephraim Evron on his luncheon meeting with Carter Wednesday, and planned a review of strained U.S.-Israeli relations at its regular Cabinet session Sunday.

Although officials refused to comment on the Carter-Evron meeting, details began appearing in the Israeli media Thursday. Most reports, citing confidential government sources, were that Carter failed to ease Israel's suspicions that Washington was shifting its Mideast policy.

THE MEETING was arranged after Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan accused the Carter administration of tilting U.S. foreign policy toward the Palestinians to guarantee increased oil supplies from Saudi Arabia. The United States denied the charge.

The Washington correspondent for the respected Haaretz newspaper reported today that Carter promised Evron that the United States would work for a postponement of the Security Council Palestinian debate scheduled for Aug. 23. If that failed, the report said, the Carter administration would try to block a Council decision.

Haaretz and Israel Radio both said Carter refused Israel's request for assurances that the United States would veto any attempt to tamper with U.N. Security Council resolution 242. The resolution, passed in the wake of the 1967 Mideast war, has been the foundation of all subsequent Arab-Israeli peace negotiations.

The administration has assured Israel it would veto a Kuwaiti draft resolution that endorses Palestinian rights to self-determination and an independent state and confirms the right of refugees to return to their old homes in what is now Israel. This is the draft resolution scheduled to be debated in the Security Council on Aug. 23.

Carter reaffirmed U.S. opposition to full Palestinian independence and told Evron that most Arab states also opposed the idea of a Palestinian state, the radio said.

THE ORIGINAL 242 text calls on Israel to withdraw from war-won Arab territory and confirms Israel's right to exist within secure and recognized borders. The Palestinians are mentioned only in the context of a refugee problem.

A Palestine Liberation Organization official told The Associated Press at the United Nations Thursday that his group would seek an emergency session of U.N. General Assembly if the United States carries out its threat to veto the Kuwaiti draft.

Zehdi Labib Terzi, the PLO's U.N. observer, said in an interview that the PLO would call on the nonaligned nations at their summit in Havana next month to push for the special General Assembly session if a U.S. veto blocks Security Council action on a Palestinian state.

Israel views a Palestinian state on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip as a direct threat to its security, since such an entity is likely to be run by the PLO, which has vowed to destroy the Jewish state.

Israel radio said Carter and Evron also failed to resolve U.S. protests over Israel's repeated attacks against Palestinian targets in southern Lebanon and Israel's rejection of a U.S.-Soviet compromise plan to replace U.N. peacekeepers in the Sinai with an unarmed U.N. truce supervision team.

CARTER SAID HE would stand by his pledge to form a multi-national peace force to supervise the Egyptian-Israeli treaty in the Sinai Peninsula, "but first one should examine other alternatives," Haaretz said.

It said the American president also promised to coordinate U.S. moves in the Middle East more closely with Israel. The pledge came after Evron complained over the proposed sale of 300 tanks to Jordan.

In other developments, the state radio quoted Defense Minister Ezer Weizman as telling a recent Cabinet meeting that Palestinian guerrillas are being trained in Libya for airborne suicide missions against Israel.

Israel's Energy Minister, meanwhile, returned from Cairo Thursday and told reporters he had reached a "general understanding" with Egyptian officials on Sinai oil supplies. The minister, Yitzhak Modai, said Egypt agreed to sell Israel oil from the wells Israel drilled off the Sinai coast after the oil field is returned to Egypt next November under terms of the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty. Israel currently draws 25 percent of its oil needs from those wells.

In another step toward the normalization of relations between the two former foes, the Israeli Foreign Ministry said Egypt has agreed to issue 58 tourist visas to Israelis.

The CBS series received 14 nominations, more than twice its nearest dramatic series rival. In the writing and directing categories, it took nearly every nomination.

Nominations for the prime-time Emmys were announced Thursday, with CBS also the big winner with 79. ABC got 66, NBC 52 and PBS 19. Three of the five nominations for syndicated shows went to the Oscar-winning documentary "Scared Straight."

Nominated in the supporting categories were Ruby Dee, Al Freeman Jr., Paul Winfield, and Marlon Brando, who made his television debut as American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell.

Curfew lifted after refugee dispute

SEADRIFT, Texas (AP) — Mayor Rayburn Haynie has lifted a curfew on this tiny coastal village and says he'll let the Justice Department decide a dispute between Vietnamese refugees and local fishermen that has resulted in one killing.

Robert Alexander of the department's office in Dallas said he would meet with Haynie today to discuss problems in the village of 900 residents, located 60 miles up the Gulf Coast from Corpus Christi.

"I'm going to let Mr. Alexander decide what to do," Haynie said. "I'll take his advice."

Alexander said he has no authority to act in the matter, but can make referrals to other government agencies.

"There are some trends here we're concerned with," Alexander said. "Bad publicity at a time close on the heels of President Carter's increasing Vietnamese immigration allocations does not do that effort any good. These people are shot through with fear."

The dispute began simmering three years ago when The Bo Brooks of Texas, Inc., crab packing plant began hiring Vietnam refugees. The newcomers and longtime Seadrift fishermen soon began arguing over traditional fishing territories and techniques.

Last Friday, tensions erupted into violence with the shooting death of Billy Joe Aplin, 35, a crab fisherman, during a dockside argument. Two Vietnamese brothers were charged with murder in connection with the slaying.

NOTICE TO PARENTS OF ELEMENTARY PUPILS

The majority to minority pupil transfer policy provision is an important part of the desegregation plan of Midland elementary schools. This transfer policy allows eligible young children to attend the same school as older brothers and sisters in grades 4, 5, and 6. The majority to minority transfer policy states:

A primary level pupil (grades 1, 2, or 3) may transfer from a school in which the pupil's race or ethnic background is the majority to another school in the assigned elementary school cluster, serving the residence, in which the pupil's race is the minority. Transportation is provided by regularly scheduled bus routes which transport intermediate level pupils (grades 4, 5, and 6) within the elementary cluster.

Pupils in grades 1, 2, and 3 may transfer to another school in the elementary cluster when their race or ethnic background is a majority in the home school. Also, the race or ethnic background must be in a minority in the receiving school. Transportation is provided by regularly scheduled bus routes within the elementary cluster.

You may receive more information by contacting the principal of any elementary school. Application forms are available from any elementary school principal or may be obtained at the central administration office at 702 North "N" Street.

What (or who) else but an elephant could put a trunk in an ear? This leathery Indian pachyderm "gal" can, and does, while handler Dan Pile, 27, of Florida looks in another direction. He was among the handlers bringing in the hordes of creatures from the wild kingdom to appear in the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus this weekend in Midland College's Chaparral Center. lookers not to tamper with or tease the elephants: "Don't get too close, now."

Or, if that didn't work, he'd voice a stern clout. He wanted the people not just to beware of the thick-skinned beasts but to stay clear of them.

A fellow down the line was getting too close to the swinging and snorting trunks of the beasts.

"Sir," yelled Pilz, "don't get too close to that (one), because that male there at the end will knock you down; he's not a Brahman bull."

The young man reluctantly moved away, though more and more on-lookers cautiously were closing in on the captive beasts.

THE ELEPHANTS become as temperamental pets but are almost docile to the circus elite, such as the bearded Bill "Buckles" Woodcock, whom Pilz described as "the best in the country" in elephant training.

"Yeah, they've all got names," Pilz said of his pets. "That's Bonnie; that's Billie" — the pair of African beasts.

The two elephants bore chains to keep them from running away should they suddenly take a notion to roam under fright or to yield to the faded call of the wild.

The next railroad car held a top-notch performer for a three-ring circus: Little Charlie.

"Little Charlie is the best trained elephant in the country next to Anna Mae," volunteered Pilz.

Anna Mae, who is a really big hunk of an elephant, "belongs" to Buckles.

The curious "natives" who ambled over to the railroad cars stopped near the old Texas & Pacific Railway (now, Missouri Pacific Railroad) Co. depot again were getting too near the travel-weary and hot animals.

"Hey!" screamed Pilz. "Get away from that elephant. He'll knock your head off."

This one was a relative small creature as young elephants go.

"He weighs 5,000 pounds," he yelled again as if in a blustering, though somewhat quelled, tirade. "You want to play with him?"

The answer must have been "no," for the intruder moved away.

The spirited Little Charlie "is mean, just like people," said Pilz.

PEOPLE WEREN'T the only things giving Pilz fits. The elephants, which he seemed to manage better than the people, were playing around — perhaps teasing — him.

One of the big pets sneaked the tip of its nose — the long, muscular but sensitive trunk — into Pilz's britches.

"Hey!" he blurted out. "Get out of my pockets, or I'll knock your head off."

He didn't attempt to carry out his threat.

"Billie! Hey!" the elephant man yelled again at the tusked critter. "I don't eat your hay, so you don't eat my stuff (tobacco)."

Both the elephants and the encroaching crowds of people were behaving for the time being, so Pilz began a brief dissertation on the traits of elephants.

"Asian elephants are very smart," he said in a gentle voice. "African elephants are dumb. You just can't do as much with them as you can with the Indian elephants."

The watchful Pilz looked out the railroad car and to his left.

"Those elephants down there are very bad," he said.

And "down there," a man and woman and a baby they were carrying slowly eased up to the open, sliding door of the railroad car containing those "bad" critters.

"Lady!" called out Pilz to catch the woman's attention before warning the couple to stay away from the elephants.

They slowly moved away.

PILZ LAMENTED over his dual job: looking after both elephants and curious people. The latter was the more troublesome.

"You tell them nicely (to leave the elephants alone) and they don't listen," he said. "You tell them snottily, and they'll back away."

After awhile, "Buckles," the elephant boss, showed up. And Pilz, who hails from New Britain, Conn., and the other "goofs" walked the elephants out of the railroad cars and under the hot, afternoon sun.

Sauntering trunk to tail, the 20 circus elephants began their four-mile street walk to the Midland College campus, where they were washed down, cooled and watered, fed and kept under tents.

Government must conform to truth-in-advertising laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is being asked to conform to the same truth-in-advertising standards as, say, Colgate-Palmolive and General Electric.

The federal government ranks 24th among the nation's advertisers, right between No. 23 Colgate-Palmolive and No. 25 General Electric. Federal agencies account for more than $100 million in advertising a year.

The Federal Trade Commission, which enforces standards on how corporations can advertise, made its request to other federal agencies Thursday.

In a letter to heads of 13 agencies that advertise regularly, FTC Chairman Michael Pertschuk said, "We in government have an obligation to monitor our own advertising as scrupulously as we review the advertising in the private sector."

The FTC already can claim one small victory in applying truth-in-advertising principles to the government. Officials revealed that the Postal Service modified a radio ad for its Express Mail service to give exact terms of a guarantee in the body of the ad instead of in a follow-up announcement.

Pertschuk told his fellow officials that his agency has received complaints "that government advertising is inaccurate, misleading, or even occasionally deceptive."

Clements says colleges must cut employment too

AUSTIN (AP) — State colleges and universities must join in his program to reduce state government employment by 25,000 persons, Gov. Bill Clements says.

"I consider this reduction in state employment over the next four years as a belt tightening move to initiate the general utilization of better management technique in state government," Clements told a group of state college presidents and regents Thursday.

"Since higher education employs a substantial percentage of state employees, a corresponding part of our 25,000 reduction in state employment rests with you."

"While some excess faculty growth may be justified on the basis of the need for catch-up after a relatively rapid growth phase in the early 1970s, it is clear to me that it is time for quality and efficiency, not growth," Clements said. "I might add it is also a time for maintenance and major repair of buildings, not new buildings. The period of the 1980s will be a period of adjusting to limited resources including limited tax revenues."

Clements noted that state appropriations for higher education have gone from $898.5 million in 1970-71 to $3.4 billion for 1980-81. He said enrollments grew from 371,000 in 1968 to 731,000 in 1978, but estimates say it will flatten out for about three years and show slow growth the next 10 years.

"We must begin by reducing employment," Clements said. "It's helpful to begin a process of improved management by forcing managers to deal with more limited people resources in order to turn attention to more effective and efficient methods, to eliminate redundancy and poor performance and to streamline organization."

Carter plans Mississippi float trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter plans to spend a week floating 659 miles down the Mississippi River starting next Friday, vacationing and stumping along the way for his energy program.

Carter, wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy will board the famed paddle-wheeler "Delta Queen" in St. Paul, Minn., and travel six days and seven nights to St. Louis, Mo., with four stops along the way.

Carter, who spent his vacation last year on a rubber raft floating through the Idaho wilderness, plans to make this vacation a sort of waterborne whistle-stop campaign for his energy proposals, especially the tax he wants to put on domestic oil revenues.

"For the president's vacation this year, he will combine a continuation of his campaign for public support of the energy plan with a period of rest and relaxation," press secretary Jody Powell said in announcing the trip Thursday.

The Carters will have the opportunity aboard the luxurious boat to mingle with ordinary passengers. The first family is simply joining a regularly scheduled trip, with a minimum of special arrangements.

"We're doing all the regular things that we always do for our customers," said Betty Blake, a spokesman for the Queen in Cincinnati. "They'll have a lot of good food, rest and relaxation, and pretty scenery and I'm sure it'll be very enjoyable," she said.

Powell said White House officials would not have to bump any passengers off the boat to make room for the Carters and their entourage of bodyguards, aides and a small pool of reporters.

President and Mrs. Carter will pay their own fare of about $900 each, Powell said. He said Amy would ride free under a special fare plan. Taxpayers will pay expenses for White House staff and news organizations pay for their reporters.

Carter will have "adequate communication" with Washington and the rest of the world while he is aboard the boat, Powell said.

He said the Queen is scheduled to leave St. Paul, Minn., the evening of Aug. 17, stop in Prairie du Chien, Wis., Aug. 19; Davenport, Iowa, Aug. 21; Burlington, Iowa, Aug. 22; Hannibal, Mo., Aug. 23 and St. Louis the morning of Aug. 24.

Along the route the boat will pass through 28 locks, averaging about eight miles an hour while underway.

"A riverboat cruise is a very slow journey," Ms. Blake said. "It is good for rest and recreation. You can certainly get a lot of relaxation. You see the country from the back roads, a road that's seldom traveled."

Sioux want Carter to make apology

FORT LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Sioux Indian leaders, who say they've suffered years of broken promises, want President Carter to apologize for the failure of a White House aide to meet with them.

Representatives of eight tribes from the Dakotas, Montana and Nebraska had planned to share the peace pipe with White House Counsel Pat Apodaca on the shaded banks of the Laramie River on Thursday, but Apodaca telephoned before the meeting to say he could not attend.

"We're going to ask for a nationwide apology to the Sioux Nation," said John King, Jr., a delegate from the Rosebud Sioux Reservation in South Dakota. "That kind of attitude from the White House is not very nice."

Chagra denied acquittal

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. District Judge William Sessions today denied a request by an attorney for Las Vegas gambler Jimmy Chagra to acquit Chagra of a "kingpin" charge that carries a possible life sentence.

Chagra's attorney in his "Colombian Connection" dope smuggling trial had moved for acquittal on all four counts of the federal drug indictment against him, but had argued entirely for acquittal on the charge that Chagra had masterminded a "continuing criminal enterprise" in the drug trade.

"The motion for judgment of acquittal as to each count will be denied," Sessions announced in federal court today.

Sessions had considered the defense bid for acquittal overnight after hearing arguments Thursday afternoon outside the jury's presence from both Chagra's lawyers and federal prosecutors.

One jailed in bank job

NEW YORK (AP) — An assistant head teller of a Rockefeller Center bank has been arrested on the job and accused of being the brains behind the biggest cash bank robbery in the city's history.

The Bankers Trust branch in Rockefeller Center was robbed a week ago of $500,000 by four men, only one of whom is in custody. The other three and most of the loot still are being sought.

The teller, Coral Crawford, 27, who had worked for the bank for about five years, was at her post Thursday afternoon when city police and FBI agents interviewed her, then arrested her on federal bank robbery charges.

An FBI man who asked that his name not be used described the woman as the "inside contact who gave information to the four men."

Home fire reported

A fire at the home of Bob Dickenson, 910 W. Kansas St., about 6:26 p.m. Thursday could have been caused by a leaking fuel line on a pickup parked in the garage, fire officials said.

The fire, which was blazing when firefighters arrived, caused a moderate amount of damage to the garage and pickup, according to reports.

No one was injured in the fire, officials indicated.

Two FBI agents killed for 'cause,' says friend

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP) — When James A. Maloney walked into the local FBI office and killed two agents before turning a gun on himself, it was his way of dying for a cause, one of his friends believes. Maloney gunned down the two agents in the FBI's El Centro office Thursday morning. A third agent was killed in Cleveland, Ohio, when authorities attempted to arrest a man wanted on a fugitive warrant. Maloney, 30, was a pacifist who had been active in causes such as Vietnam War protests and support for the United Farm Workers labor group, said friend Lyn Lesicka. "I believe he was making a statement. ... He had definite political beliefs. He felt a number of people were being oppressed and he felt the FBI were a good portion of the oppressors," she said. Robert Young, head of the San Diego FBI office, said Maloney went to the FBI office to talk to agents Charles Elmore and Robert Porter about obtaining files under the Freedom of Information Act. Young said Maloney had been investigated in the early 1970s for associating with radical groups, but nothing came of the investigation. Young said Maloney shot Porter with a 12-gauge shotgun at the door of the office. The shotgun jammed, Young said, but Maloney was able to fire six shots at the agents with a .38-

Half of $1.5 million for cleanup already used

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — It's Mexican oil drifting north, soiling Texas beaches and threatening a fragile coastal ecology — but so far only U.S. dollars are paying for cleaning it up. But Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, on Thursday cautioned against assuming that Mexico would not reimburse the United States for fighting the oil spill washing up on Gulf Coast beaches. "I think that they'll do the responsible thing," Bentsen said from Washington. "I'm sure that you're going to have the State Department negotiating on that." However, State Department spokesman Tucker Scully has said liability was not a question that could be addressed at this point. The white resort beaches of Padre Island have been only "lightly oiled" by the spill, but the commander of this area's Coast Guard district says more than half the $1.5 million earmarked for battling the Mexican crude already has been spent. Rear Adm. Paul Yost said in Corpus Christi that officials have spent $800,000 on preventive and "cosmetic" cleanup operations. Officials will not estimate how high the cleanup bill could be if the world's largest oil spill blackened Texas beaches and polluted the sensitive inland waterways. But Yost said he has been assured the Coast Guard will have the full support of the federal government. The Coast Guard also is attempting to contain some of the spewing oil at the well site. Capt. Charles Corbett said in Corpus Christi that the Mexican government is reimbursing the Coast Guard for the $18,000 per day cost of the operation. The Coast Guard's Marine Environmental Protection Division finances the cleanup in Texas through a revolving fund set up by Congress. "It's low now, but every time it gets low we always get an allocation to replenish it," said Chief Petty Officer Richard Griggs in Corpus Christi. He said the first allocation in Corpus Christi was $1 million, but $500,000 was added later.

Peter Acly, a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency in Washington, said Congress set up the $20 million revolving fund for oil and chemical spill cleanup operations with the idea that fines and penalties would replace the money paid out. "In practice, we don't recoup as much as we would want, so we rely from time to time on additional money supplied by Congress," said Acly. Texas officials say they are studying whether the state can sue Mexico, a possibility they say they have not discussed with federal officials. "We're in the process of reviewing the legal remedies the state might have," said John Fainter, first assistant attorney general.

Oiled birds once again a problem

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — Alice Berkner had a stern warning for her class of novice bird-cleaners. Oiled birds, she said, would not be their only problem. "An oiled bird rehabilitation outfit is not a zoo," she said, adding that if the Mexican oil spill forces a mass bird-cleaning operation it is sure to draw a crowd of onlookers. "This is a hospital situation. We can't let these birds get used to people. When I read of a six-car accident, I don't rush down to the emergency room to see what's going on," she said. Mrs. Berkner and Helen Johnson of the International Bird Rescue Research Center came here in response to reports that the spill could harm local birdlife — including the endangered brown pelican. The classes began Thursday with training of state and federal employees. Today volunteers were due in for the slide show and demonstration. They will find that rescuing an oiled bird involves a lot more than dunking a bird in a bath and watching him fly away.

Police place Fischer at murder sites

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) — State police, using rent receipts, bus tickets, letters, telegrams and other documents found in the home of Joseph Fischer, say they have placed him at some of the places where he claims he murdered 20 or more people. The evidence, recovered from the home where Fischer's wife, Claudine Eggers, 78, was stabbed to death July 26, does not back his whole story, however. After surrendering to New York City police July 27, Fischer said he was responsible for that killing — and more than 20 others across the nation. The evidence shows that Fischer did wander across the country from June 1978 to July 1979, as he claimed, authorities said. But some periods are not accounted for: six weeks after his parole after 24 years in prison for murdering a New Jersey youth, about two months in early 1979 and more than eight weeks this spring. The evidence indicates that Fischer was in Jacksonville, Fla., where he says he killed two people, and in San Diego, Calif., where he claims to have assaulted four. It does not place him in six other states where he says he either murdered or assaulted people: Nevada, Washington, Oregon, North Dakota, New Hampshire and Colorado. Chronological data on Fischer's movements, as compiled by state police, follows: —June 27: paroled from Trenton State Prison; —Aug. 15: registered as Joe Compo at the Hotel Latham, 4 E. 28 St., New York City; —Aug. 17: a Trailways bus ticket validated from Jacksonville to San Diego; —Aug. 21: a Pacific Southwest Airways passenger receipt and ticket envelope, indicating two persons traveling under the name of L. Samet from San Francisco to San Diego; —Sept. 9: registered under his own name at the Eastland Motor Hotel, 157 High St., Portland, Me., checking out Sept. 10; —Sept. 23 to Oct. 20: worked, according to pay receipts, at the Boulevard Cafeteria, Oklahoma City; —Oct. 1-25: bill made out to Joseph Fischer by Art's TV Sales, Oklahoma City; —Oct. 1 to about Dec. 3: using his own name, rented an apartment at 723 NW 8th St., Oklahoma City, as indicated by receipts covering most of the period; —Jan. 1 to about Jan 21, 1979: stayed at his Wassaic, N.Y., home; —Mar. 30: received a money order via Western Union at 734 Market St., San Francisco; —April 18: attended a yard sale at the Moore, Okla., home of Betty Jo Gibson; —April 19: Betty Jo Gibson is believed by Oklahoma authorities to have been bludgeoned to death, her body was later found in a closet in her home; —April 20: a neighbor of Betty Jo Gibson drove Fischer to the Moore bus station;

Alda takes name off list in protest

LOS ANGELES (AP) — To protest the removal of actress Jane Fonda's name from a list of potential 1980 medical school commencement speakers, actor Alan Alda has asked that his name also be removed. "It is through small acts such as this, of avoiding people who have been smeared, that the blacklists of the 1950s could begin again," Alda said in a telegram Thursday to Chancellor James H. Meyer of the University of California at Davis medical school. "I thank the students at UC Davis for their nomination, but I am asking you, as chancellor of the university, to remove my name as a candidate for commencement speaker." Alda and Miss Fonda were among seven persons nominated in an early ballot by seniors at the school to speak at the June commencement. But the commencement's student chairwoman Barbara Stewart ordered Miss Fonda's name off the final ballot after discussing the matter with administrators, said medical school spokeswoman Vicki Salto. The other nominees are science writer Isaac Asimov, Davis physician John Jones, writer-scientist Lewis Thomas, Washington state Gov. Dixy Lee Ray and Nobel laureate Rosalind Yalow. Miss Salto said Alda called Ms. Stewart this week to find out why Miss Fonda's name was removed. "One of the reasons I was given was that she was a little too controversial," wrote Alda, nominated Thursday for an Emmy for his portrayal of Hawkeye Pierce in the television series "M-A-S-H." The action, he said, "unwittingly contributed to a climate that will create a chilling effect on this community. Anytime people want to speak up after this, they may hesitate in the fear they will be termed 'just a little too controversial.'" Alda was among an estimated 300 entertainment industry figures who placed a full-page ad in the Wednesday Los Angeles Times criticizing the California Senate for rejecting Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s appointment of Miss Fonda to the California Arts Council. Ms. Fonda also received a telegram Thursday from singer Joan Baez condemning the Senate's action. Ms. Fonda said her reported rift with Ms. Baez over Vietnam's treatment of the refugees had been blown out of proportion. The actress, meanwhile, was hostess Thursday at a fundraising party for Vietnamese boat people, but she said she has not changed her position on Vietnam. The reception was attended by hundreds of entertainment, business and political figures.

Women fight pornography

NEW YORK (AP) — Behind the liquor bottles lining the dimly lit bar, two bare-breasted young women danced slowly, touching the mirrored wall, twisting to the pulsating disco beat.

At small tables, a dozen well-dressed women huddled over drinks and stared — but not with the leering interest the dancers may have been used to.

"That's one of the saddest things I've ever seen," said Irene Agnello, one of the first-timers at the Mardi Gras "topless" bar, the last stop on an unusual tour.

The twice-weekly tour of peep shows, "adult" bookstores and other sex emporiums is run by a group called Women Against Pornography and is intended to raise consciousness as to the effect of pornography on society's view of women.

"Pornography is psychologically destructive to women's self-image and endangers our welfare in real life," says group organizer Barbara Mehrhof.

"The essence of pornography is about the degradation and brutalization of women...in the name of entertainment, in the name of free speech, in the name of profits."

The group, founded several months ago by feminists Gloria Steinem, Lynn Campbell, Dolores Alexander and author Susan Brownmiller, wants to establish pornography as a national feminist issue.

"We're starting here because it's the porn capital of the country," says Ms. Alexander.

The activities of the group, which plans a two-day pornography conference here next month and a 20,000-person march on Times Square in October, are applauded but not officially endorsed by the National Organization for Women.

Women Against Pornography believes "women have to be encouraged to look at this stuff and have the support of other women," says Ms. Mehrhof.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 30, attractive, desirable, live in Seattle and could pretty much have my pick of men.

I recently met the man of my dreams in a little town called Townsend. He's handsome, slightly younger, is built like a million dollars, drives a Porsche and is the world's greatest lover. More than that, he's so kind, considerate and fun to be with that the first night I was with him I thought I had died and gone to heaven.

Sounds perfect, doesn't it? Well, it's not—a dozen other women feel the same way about him.

Abby, how do I capture such a perfect man with so much competition around?

Please don't tell me to look for someone who's more available. In 30 years, and after one unsuccessful marriage, I know he is "Mr. Right."

—HEAVEN CAN'T WAIT.
DEAR HEAVEN: It won't be easy, but try the cool, laid-back approach. With so many women drooling over him, he's sure to notice the one woman who presents a challenge. If that doesn't work, get in line. Your chances are still 1 in 12.

DEAR ABBY: My mother, who is 80, is getting married to a gentleman who is 82.

They will be married in a church and want to send out about 50 invitations and have a reception afterwards!

Do you think this is proper for people their age? Frankly, I don't.

I think they should get married quietly, with just the wedding party (six people) going somewhere for dinner afterwards. Then they should go away for a few days.

I would like your opinion. — DAUGHTER.

DEAR DAUGHTER: Age has nothing to do with it.

Ordeal difficult for Denison man with two hearts

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Lindell Hill takes 30 pills a day which eat away at his stomach lining, destroy his muscles and make his bones brittle.

No employer will give him a job because he can't obtain life insurance. He can't fill idle hours with the diversions of travel. He may not live to see 1982.

"All things considered, I never felt better," says Hill, pointing to a body which he admits "may not be as good as the original." But he does own the only American body equipped with two hearts.

In 1977, Hill underwent an experimental "piggyback" operation under the direction of famous South African heart surgeon Dr. Christian Barnard.

A second human heart was implanted beside his own failing heart, which suffered a massive attack 12 years ago. Hill was selected for the South African experiment after open heart surgery in 1968 and a 1974 bypass operation failed to remedy his problems.

Hill, 39, now lives in Denison, Texas, with his wife and three children. He made a recent trip to his parents here only because a Chicago cardiologist is close enough to perform a necessary bi-weekly exam.

Before the piggyback operation, doctors gave Hill at most six months to live. Today, statistics grant him an 80 percent chance of living three years. But he says time does not concern him.

Too many mates on her dreamboat

ing to do with it. If anything, I think their ages would enhance the beauty of the occasion.

Encourage your mother to have the kind of wedding and reception she wants. Do whatever makes her happy and, I promise, you'll look back on her wedding with no regrets.

DEAR ABBY: I have a married granddaughter I'll call Shelly. Last night, Shelly's husband, Harry, arrived home at 10 o'clock. He had driven 150 miles to get there after being away from home all week.

When we heard Harry's car in the driveway, Shelly's mother asked her if she wasn't going to the door to greet him. (Shelly was sitting, reading.) Her reply was, "Oh, it's only Harry."

Abby, that set me thinking. "Only Harry." Not long ago, Shelly thought Harry was very special. Of course, he is still special, and Shelly would realize it fast enough if he didn't arrive home one night.

A traveling salesman's work is not easy. Sleeping in a strange motel room every night isn't fun either. But that's what Harry does because it's the way he can best provide for his wife and children. He is a loving, caring husband and father. He IS something special, and I hope Shelly doesn't wait until after he's gone to appreciate him. — WIDOWED GRANDMA.

DEAR GRANDMA: How true. The saddest thing in the world is a kind word left unsaid. Please see that Shelly sees this.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WANTS FRIENDS": There are two kinds of people in the world, those who come into a room and say, "Here I am!" and those who come into a room and say, "There you are!"

Which kind are you? Think about it.

Are you the lonely face in the crowd? Friends make you a winner, and Abby tells you how to win them in her booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Spend right in care of hair

BEVERLY HILLS, CA. — Would you spend $4 billion a year to be beautiful? You do...along with millions of other Americans who pay for services at beauty salons across the country.

"You can't buy beauty," says Irene Frangides, director of the Council for the Cosmetology Industry, "but you can buy advice and techniques to make the most of what you have."

And that's what hairdressers and cosmetologists offer. They spend at least 1,200 hours in training to be licensed to cut, perm, dye and style your hair.

The training for cosmetologists involves biology and chemistry, as well as art principles and psychology. Of course, there are the basics of cutting and styling, too. Many attend post-graduate courses to keep up with the latest trends and scientific methods of analyzing hair.

Youth Against Cancer to hold benefit dance

A new Midland organization has joined the battle to fight cancer.

Youth Against Cancer, an organization of high school students, has been formed to aid the American Cancer Society in its programs of education, service and rehabilitation. The group is also involved in sponsoring fund-raising projects geared specifically toward young people.

Sponsoring the group are Dr. Robert Henry and Mrs. Mark Leaverton, both members of the Cancer Society board of directors here.

Newly-elected officers of the group include Michelle Wheaton, president; Randy Stough, vice president; Jill Shamburger, secretary; Shelby Speck, special events chairman; Pam Swindle and Sabrina Hicks, publicity chairmen; and Paige Perry, education chairman.

"Membership is open to high school age students," said Mrs. Leaverton. She said that several young people here got involved in the fight against cancer because it takes the lives of more young people under 15 years of age than any other disease. "Furthermore, youth are affected when parents, relatives and friends are stricken with the disease," she said.

Mrs. Leaverton added that public education is one of the most important features of the group's activities. Members will participate as speakers and will conduct programs in the local junior high and grade schools.

"Our group wants to strive to make people aware of basic cancer facts of prevention, detection and treatment," she said. The members of Youth Against Cancer will also be involved in the annual door-to-door crusade.

The Youth Against Cancer organization sponsored two swimmers, Sabrina Wicks and Billy Gilliland, to swim in a Swim for Life event in Stanton Saturday. This event was sponsored by the Stanton YAC group.

First project of the youth group will be a "Back-to-School" dance Aug. 18 in the parking lot of San Miguel Square.

Action begins at 8 p.m. to continue through 12 midnight.

A live band will perform and disco music will also be available. Admission is $2 a person or $3 per couple. All proceeds will go to the American Cancer Society.

A highlight of the night's activities will be disco and country-western dance contests, with prizes to be awarded.

Contributing services toward the event are the Coca-Cola Co. and KCRS radio.

Persons interested in joining the organization can call 697-7441.

Clean-a-Home project initiated

Senior Services program at First Christian Church has initiated a project to assist the elderly in household chores.

Called the Clean-a-Home project, the program is manned entirely by volunteers, and is an offshoot of the Share-a-Meal program which provides hot meals to some elderly persons on weekends.

"Our purpose is to provide services in cleaning a home for the elderly who are unable to do extensive work themselves," said Pat Faulkner, Senior Services director.

Aim is to provide a "spring cleaning" possibly twice a year or more for those who need it, she added.

"We are also trying to get a Mr. Fix-It handyman for some of these senior citizens whose homes are badly in need of minor repairs," she said.

Persons interested in volunteering their services for the program can call 682-7577 week-day mornings.

Job harassing for women can be a problem

COLLEGE STATION — Most women feel the price of holding a job is not worth tolerating sexual harassment from the boss, yet 90 percent admit to having had such experiences.

Although they don't like it, female workers often feel there is nothing they can do except endure the leers or get out of the job, according to a Texas A&M University legal analysis.

Actually, there are several legal recourses. The pattern of harassment is simple enough, said William Seymour, a former A&M management professor.

A female employee rejects an invitation to dinner from her supervisor. She returns to work the following day to discover that her pay has been cut.

Another woman endures sexual overtures and unwanted physical contact by her boss to the point where she can't take it anymore. She quits to avoid further embarrassment.

"Certainly, there is a lot of harassment that is not reported," said Seymour.

"My advice to someone who has been harassed before quitting is, send a certified return receipt letter to top officials in the organizational structure, explaining the situation and asking what they are going to do about it," he said.

Making them aware of the occurrence is extremely important, Seymour said. If company officials don't do something about the harassment, it could present a good case that they are tacitly condoning the act.

James K. Boyce receives the assistance of Lea Masters, a volunteer in the Clean-a-Home project, in sprucing up his home before his entry into the hospital. The Senior Services outreach of First Christian Church has initiated the Clean-a-Home program to provide housecleaning services for the elderly and handicapped in the community. Boyce is to enter Big Spring Veterans Hospital for a hip replacement operation. (Staff Photo)

Laetrile forbidden by court

BOSTON (AP) — The trile and those other sub- are not only useless and Massachusetts Supreme stances now prohibited poisonous.

Court on Thursday ordered the parents of Chad Green to stop giving their leukemia-stricken child Laetrile, affirming a lower court ruling that the substance made of fruit pits is "useless and poisonous."

The high court decision, written by Chief Justice Edward Hennessey, sustained a Plymouth Superior Court decision issued by Judge Guy Volterra that had restricted the Greens' custody of their 3-year-old child to ensure chemotherapy treatment for his leukemia.

Gerald and Diana Green fled the state with Chad earlier this year in order to continue the Laetrile treatments at a clinic in Tijuana, Mex.

As well as requiring chemotherapy, the high court decision also ordered the parents to cease administering large doses of vitamins and enzyme enemas to the child.

In the lower court decision, rendered after a January trial, Volterra found that Laetrile and the dosages of vitamins and enzymes were causing blindness and brain and colon damage in the boy. The high court ruled on an appeal of that decision.

Chad was diagnosed as having leukemia in 1977, and the disease was found to be in remission a year later after chemotherapy at Massachusetts General Hospital.

But the hospital went to court when it found that the chemotherapy had been discontinued and the disease had recurred.

In a court-released synopsis of the decision supporting the judgment, the Supreme Judicial Court affirmed Judge Volterra's findings that "in this case and for this child, Lae-

AT WIT'S END

Closets are not to be gained

By ERMA BOMBECK

I have always been led to believe that if you lose a daughter or son to an apartment/dormitory/barracks, you gain a closet.

thing with parents. Sometimes it makes the difference between sleeping with a set of golf clubs or eating dinner every night with a box of sewing scraps on your lap. When our children were younger, sometimes my husband I would sneak into their bedrooms as they slept. We would gaze at their closet as I squeezed his hand and smiled. "Just think, dear...one day all of that will be yours."

anyone can touch us on closet occupancy. We've been running at capacity for nearly 30 years. We are storing composition books (lined and unlined), 2080 friendship pictures, fuzzy dogs, rubber worms, graduation tassels, rugs from Disneyland, pennants, fins, sand-filled cameras, basketballs, kites, dog-eared letters, college catalogues, tennis trophies and license plates. All I know is I'm sick of the battle. I'm sick of wearing clothes that look like they've been laminated, sick of having children come back to visit their drums, sick of falling over tennis rackets without string and jackets that don't fit anyone. Let the word go out...when I go...if I don't have a closet of my own...I'm not going.

Hints for ear trouble

COLLEGE STATION — Ear problems and air travel go together, but there are helpful "do's" for unblocking ears, says Carla Shearer, a health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

- Swallow — to equalize pressure.
• Chew gum or eat mints so you'll swallow more often.

A word to the wise: Descents are dreadful for sleepyheads — since slumbering passengers cannot swallow enough to keep up with pressure changes.

• A more powerful way to ease pressure — if swallowing or yawning won't work — requires caution and care.

Here it is: pinch your nostrils shut, take in a mouthful of air and force the air into the back of your nose, using only your cheek and throat muscles.

Lions have annual party

Members of the Lion Tamers Club, the women's auxiliary of the downtown Lions Club, entertained their husbands and guests at their annual summer party held Thursday night in the Coors Family room.

A barbecue dinner was served, following which a game period was held, with Lion Dave Hoff presiding.

Hostesses were Mrs. Dave Hoff, Mrs. Victor Horn, Mrs. Chuck Logue, Mrs. Phil Scott and Mrs. Lester Van Pelt Jr.

Mrs. Art Oestman, club president, welcomed the guests.

Russian artist supervises building of two monuments

BROCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — It was like almost any other construction site. But when the foreman conferred with his craftsmen, he spoke in Russian. And at lunchtime, he often zipped away in a gray Mercedes.

The foreman for the project in this quiet western New York college town was the artist laureate of the Soviet Union. He was supervising construction of two monuments for the International Summer Special Olympics, which begin here Thursday.

Zurab Tsereteli, 45, holds the Lenin Prize, the Soviet Union's highest, as well as the State Prize of the Soviet Union and the title of People's Artist of (Soviet) Georgia.

In a field near the administration building of the state college here, he and his crew assembled two monumental works that are gifts from the Soviet Union. The two sculptures, one symbolizing the Olympic rings and the other the Greek god, Prometheus, are valued by the Soviets at about $1.2 million.

About 3,500 mentally retarded young people from the United States and 30 other countries are expected for the fifth international Special Olympics, sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation.

International dignitaries and American sports and entertainment figures are expected to be on hand for opening ceremonies and dedication of the sculptures Aug. 9.

As his personal part of the gift, which Tsereteli is dedicating to the children of the world, the artist has agreed to forfeit his usual royalties for such work, which would have amounted to about $250,000, those connected with the project say.

"I hope through the sculptures I will contribute to the happiness of the children and the closeness of the five continents," he said through an interpreter.

He said he sees the work as "closing the gap among nations."

The university and Special Olympics organizers paid for the construction on the site, including the cost of a fountain at the base of one of the sculptures.

The Soviets paid for the materials and their shipment to the United States in modular units. Here they are being assembled by Tsereteli, his two Soviet assistants, and American workers.

The works are, in the Georgian tradition, monumental. Together they weigh roughly 30 tons.

One consists of a 50-foot diameter circle of five, 30-foot-tall bronze, stylized Olympic symbols. Each circle represents a continent, and they are decorated in reliefs depicting the events of the Special Olympics.

The artists' title for the work is, "Happiness to All the Children of the World."

The second is a 39-foot bronze sculpture of Prometheus, the Greek god of knowledge who was said to be a special benefactor of mankind. Tsereteli calls it, "Light and Knowledge to the World."

The sculptor's enthusiasm for the project was apparent during construction, despite the steamy weather and inevitable delays — such as the too-small crane that showed up to hoist the sculptures onto their bases, setting the job back several days.

Bounding about the work site in jogging shorts and a plaid, short-sleeved shirt, jogging, or working out by swinging a sledgehammer, Tsereteli exuded energy. His assertion that he loves his work needs little proof.

Tsereteli is teaching some painting courses at the college, as a distinguished visiting professor. He said he has completed about 40 paintings during his less than two months on the campus.

He also is known for his work with mosaics. He has completed projects in Brazil, Japan, Portugal and Hungary, and will return to Moscow to work on a 2,000-square-yard frieze he is designing for the Moscow Olympics.

You will tell us what you know

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the 1950s and 1960s, the Central Intelligence Agency tried to learn more about brainwashing. Now the CIA is being asked to tell who participated in its research.

Two persons affiliated with consumer groups have gone to court to get the information and a federal judge gave the CIA until Oct. 1 to either reveal the list or give legal reasons why it should not be forced to provide it.

In the meantime, U.S. District Judge Louis F. Oberdorfer suggested the CIA might contact researchers involved in the so-called MK-Ultra project and determine whether they object to release of their names.

The CIA documents were sought by John Cary Sims, an attorney for Ralph Nader's Public Citizen Litigation Group, and Dr. Sydney M. Wolfe, head of the Health Research Group.

Under the program in question, the CIA awarded contracts to institutions including Harvard, Princeton and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to research brainwashing and other behavior modification experiments. Although those and other universities and organizations have been named, some remain secret.

Sims and Wolfe are seeking those names and the identities of individual researchers under the Freedom of Information Act.

But the CIA says that the names of the remaining institutions and the researchers were intelligence sources protected by the National Security Act. In addition, CIA Director Stansfield Turner said it was important to keep past sources confidential to retain the trust of current CIA sources.

"Too many events over the past several years have planted seeds of doubt around the world about the agency's ability to maintain a confidence," Turner said in an affidavit filed in the case.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE Hold-Up May Be Wrong

By Alfred Sheinwold

When I was three years old my mother told me never to win the first trick in the enemy's strong suit. Excellent advice for a toddler, but not for readers of this column, many of whom are older.

If today's South refuses the first trick East wins with the king and returns his six to dummy's ace. West gets in with the ace of clubs to defeat the contract with the good spades.

BLOCK THAT SUIT

South block the spades by taking the ace at the first trick. When West gets in with the ace of clubs he continues spades, but East must win with the king and cannot get the lead back to West. If East drops the king of spades at the first trick, West takes the queen and ten, but then South's nine stops the suit.

How does South know that the spades can be blocked? West would lead the king with five spades headed by the K-Q-10. If East has three spades, the suit doesn't block, but West gets only three spades and one club.

Reels on wheels fast becoming latest revolution with everyone

By BARBARA RIEGEL-HAUPT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There's a revolution afoot. Just check the feet next to you — they're probably on wheels.

Roller skating, once the domain of pigtailed little girls wearing clip-on metal skates, has burst out of its old trappings and is attracting disciples of every age.

About 28 million Americans, from toddlers on up to grannies, roller skate regularly at rinks, according to the Roller Skating Rink Operators Association, while uncalculated millions of others roll around outdoors.

Crowds on wheels flock daily to beachfront concrete in Los Angeles and Florida. They glide around New York's Central Park and along the Charles River in Boston. Even in Lincoln, Neb., bicyclists find their park routes strewn with roller skaters.

In trendsetting Hollywood, too, skating is the latest diversion, with the latest of Jon Voight, Dustin Hoffman, Jack Nicholson, Linda Blair, LeVar Burton and Polly Bergen seen spinning their wheels.

Somehow along roller skating's rise to the status of national phenomenon, folks discovered its smooth maneuvers could be dressed up with a disco beat. Hundreds of beachfront skaters in Venice, Calif., the undisputed birthplace of outdoor roller skating, now boogie to the sounds of music from headphone transistors.

Indoor rinks also caught disco fever and many that had been languishing near empty for years hired disc jockeys, installed flashing lights and suddenly were reborn as "roller boogie" palaces.

Both inside and out, roller skating is at the peak of its popularity. But the real revolution is outdoors — where previously earthbound joggers are skating to work, to the store, to school or to get some exercise.

About 300,000 pairs of outdoor skates are being sold each month — at about $30 on up per pair — and rental businesses are sprouting up like weeds.

Why, all of a sudden, did the whole world start rolling along?

"The urethane wheels and precision bearings are what got this whole outdoor thing going," says Bob White, co-owner of Good Skates, a rental business in New York's Central Park. "It just completely changed the market."

The grinding, unsteady ride most of us remember from childhood became a fast, smooth glide when the roller skate wheel was transformed from a mostly wooden or steel creation to today's plastic-like polyurethane.

But those technological advances — which actually began with the skateboard boom — are just part of the explanation, says Maren Talbot, a roller skating instructor from the YWCA in Santa Monica, Calif.

"One of the reasons it's becoming so popular is that it's a combination of a lot of facts that can meet in one way," she said. "One is disco dancing, another is fitness and exercise. The third is the revolution in the wheel — skating became a pleasure with these new soft wheels."

Ms. Talbot teaches roller skating classes twice a week for both beginners and more experienced skaters, explaining the basics — how to stop, for instance — as well as demonstrating the sophisticated techniques of disco skating that distinguish the "serious" roller skater from the dilettante.

Johnny Pool, alias "Mr. Wonder Wheels," is of the former species. A landscapist with the city of Los Angeles, Pool is renowned in Southern California for the multitude of ways he can move his seemingly elastic body while skating.

"It's good for your body," he explains. "I've been skating for 13 years — that's why you see me do what I do."

What he does best is disco skating — flailing his arms and bending his body nearly to the ground while spinning around a rink to the beat of "Boogie Woogie Dancin' Shoes."

"I do this every night," he said. "I don't drink or smoke and this is my high."

Not only does skating provide some of its practitioners with an emotional kick, it gives others an escape or the chance to unwind.

Many people say they like skating because it's an appealing exercise alternative. But health isn't all the roller skating enthusiasts are seeking — some are after status.

Ever since Cher hosted a few disco roller skating parties a year or so ago, disco skating has been among the most chic forms of recreation. Hundreds of skaters gather every weeknight for disco skating at the Sherman Square Skating Rink in suburban Reseda — where Monday nights are reserved for a Hollywood crowd that has included Superman (Christopher Reeve), Ringo Starr and Ursula Andress.

Carter approves space junk bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has signed a bill authorizing the space agency to provide insurance against damages caused by falling junk from space shuttles, it was announced today.

The measure was included in a measure that authorizes $5 billion for National Aeronautics and Space Administration programs in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, and gives NASA authority to set up an insurance program for users of the space shuttle after it begins operation.

Such a program would insure the users, such as companies sending satellites into orbit aboard the shuttle, from damage claims.

The insurance could cover damages to third parties — meaning persons not connected with the space agency or the shuttle user — resulting from the launch, operation or recovery of the spacecraft.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Digestive diseases are undertreated

Dear Dr. Solomon: The President recently made news when it was reported he was indisposed because of hemorrhoids; otherwise, we seldom hear much about the condition. Is it rare, or is it simply that people don't talk about it much? — Mr. E.S.

Dear Mr. S.: Digestive diseases, which include hemorrhoids as well as ulcers and upset stomachs, are often the subject of jokes — but they are no laughing matter. In fact, a National Commission on Digestive Diseases recently reported that digestive tract illnesses, together with cancer of the colon, cirrhosis of the liver, hepatitis, and gallstones, are tragically unresearched and undertreated, and are being ignored to our detriment.

of all hospitalization, and cost the country 17 billion dollars a year in medical care, and an additional 35 billion dollars in lost work and wages. Despite this cost in money and lives, less than 100 million dollars a year is spent by the federal government for research into the causes and treatment of digestive disorders. The Commission is seeking to have Congress appropriate additional funds for this purpose, and to establish a new digestive diseases division at the National Institutes of Health.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My mother recently died of cancer, and I'm looking for some reassurance. Do you foresee a breakthrough in cancer research? — Terry.

Dear Terry: I don't anticipate a spectacular cure, if that is what you mean by breakthrough; but progress is being made, with new drugs added to those already available. One recently introduced, a platinum-based drug called cisplatin, is effective in treating cases of advanced cancer of the testes and ovaries. The drug, recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration, is indicated for patients who have already had surgery or radiation treatment.

French bread costs rising

PARIS (AP) — The cost of bread has risen 22 percent — double the national inflation rate — in the year since it was freed of price controls set during the French Revolution 190 years ago.

Official statistics show that a baguette, the long, sausage-shaped staple of France, went up from 1.25 francs — 29 U.S.cents — last August to 1.50 francs — 35 cents.

Students using bar exam cram course

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three years of law school may teach you everything you wanted to know about torts, but you won't learn what you need to know to become an attorney — how to pass the bar exam.

That's the opinion shared by large numbers of law school graduates who have, in the past decade, turned the bar review cram course into a multimillion dollar-a-year business.

Two courses in particular — Josephson's Bar Review Course, also known as BRC, and Harcourt Brace and Jovanovich's BAR-BRI — claim to have prepped most of the nation's law graduates since 1970.

BUSINESS started booming in the bar review industry in the early '60s, and after eliminating nearly all the competition by 1970 — mostly local one-man operations — the two companies started vying against each other. Today, BAR-BRI claims 20,000 students in 33 states while BRC lists 10,000 in 16 states.

Both courses offer similar services: for about $400, students get outlines for subjects covered in the exam, practice tests, clinics and seminars on test-taking strategy and lectures by top names in each field.

For seven weeks, students shuttle between lectures and the dark corners of home or library, where they spend eight to 12 hours a day digesting course materials.

ENROLLEES agree there's not much difference between BAR-BRI and BRC materials, and that the difference is a personal, philosophical one.

Michael Josephson, sole stockholder of the vast BRC empire, calls the review program his "baby."

"I came up with the idea of starting my own bar review course while I was still a law student at UCLA," he said. "The courses available at that time just offered materials with a 'come and get it' attitude. They taught nothing about how to deal with the exam."

Josephson came up with a course emphasizing test-taking mechanics and positive psychology, rather than a detailed review of the law.

"I'VE ALWAYS been interested in the theory of teaching," he said, "and I've always been against the way law schools use fear as a teaching device. They pay us money to be on their side, so we give them what they need: a security blanket."

Old bar exams give enough clues to predict what questions will be asked, Josephson said, so cramming all the law down students' throats is not a principal concern. Not surprisingly, one gripe against BRC materials is that they are "too skimpy on the law."

However, Josephson said, "We're not trying to make better lawyers. We're just trying to make better, more confident test-takers."

BAR-BRI's method is more of what Josephson would call the "come and get it" approach.

"Our technique is to teach students the law, not give them a sense of false security," said BAR-BRI's Northern California director, Rick Wildman. "We treat our students like adults."

UNLIKE BRC's tightly scheduled regime, BAR-BRI makes attending lectures and taking practice tests purely voluntary.

"We're not here to hold anyone's hand," Wildman said. "It's a lawyer's duty to make judgments based on his or her instincts, and that's the attitude we try to impress on our students."

Given the vast differences between the two courses, how do intelligent, logical law students make a choice?

"I enrolled in BRC because most of my friends chose it," said a recent law grad from the University of California's Boalt Hall. "With all the advertising the companies do, it's difficult to make an informed choice. So, why not just go with friends?"

BOTH COMPANIES rely heavily on student representatives, and other marketing ploys like pizza parties, wine and cheese receptions and discounts to first- and second-year students who sign up early. But despite advertising efforts, both Wildman and Josephson agree that students with lower law school grade point averages tend to sign on with BRC while students in the top half of their classes lean toward BAR-BRI.

"The reason is obvious," said a BRC enrollee from Hastings College of the Law in San Francisco. "Students in the lower half of the class need to learn how to study. Students on law review don't."

For the most part, both law school administrators and the state bar association reserve comment on the merits of the cram courses.

DEAN PAUL McKaskle of the University of San Francisco Law School said he thought the courses were "fine but I don't encourage students and I don't disuade them."

"There is a recognized correlation between a student's class rank and his or her chances of passing the exam the first time," McKaskle said, "and those statistics remain constant regardless of whether students take cram courses to prepare."

The Precision Haircut Explained Precisely.

Because your head is unique, the way your hair grows is equally unique. Really quite different from every one else's.

Precision haircutting is a technique for cutting the hair in harmony with the way it grows. Your hair eventually grows out but it doesn't lose its shape with a precision haircut. Consequently your haircut will look as good after five days as it does after five minutes. And because the hair falls naturally into place you won't have to keep fussing with it. Usually a shake of the head does it.

At Command Performance we shampoo, precision-cut and blow dry your hair for fourteen dollars, whether you're a gal or a guy. And no appointments are ever necessary.

We also offer permanent waves, coloring, frosting and conditioning. But we really shine with precision. And so will you.

Cubs reclaim lead in West

AMARILLO—Jon Perlman went all the way to win his third game while Eric Grandy tripped home the winning run as the Midland Cubs defeated Amarillo's Gold Sox, 4-2, here Thursday night before 2,193 fans to vault into first place in the Texas League West Division by a half game.

Singles by Dan Rohn, back in the lineup after being sidelined a week by a pulled leg muscle, Grandy and Gary Krug produced a first inning run for the Cubs. Then in the fourth, Lezcano tripled and beat the throw to the plate when Javier Fierro grounded to short.

The win was the Cubs' second straight here and fourth in their last five games.

The Cubs finish the series here with weekend games and then head for El Paso and a five-game series before heading back to the Tall City for their final homestand of the season. Herman Segelke, 10-7, is scheduled to start for Midland in tonight's game.

Perlman, the Chicago Cubs' No. 1 draft choice out of Baylor University in June, pitched eight-hit ball and didn't walk a batter in breaking a personal four-game losing streak to bring his record to 3-6.

The game marked the return to the coaching box of Manager Randy Hundley, who completed a five-game suspension after bumping an umpire last Friday...For Perlman, it was his second complete game and first win since July 13...Rosinski, with one hit, remained a couple of percentage points ahead of Amarillo's Tim Flannery, .344, in the Texas League batting race...

Amarillo outfielder Curt Reed homered behind a double by Tim Flannery in the sixth to tie the score at 2-2. It was Reed's fourth homer. Then in the seventh, Jared Martin singled off Gold Sox starter Hal Hirschy, took second on a passed ball and raced home when Grandy, perhaps the biggest bat factor in the Cubs' revival, tripled.

Midland added an insurance run in the eighth when Mike Turgeon doubled, Carlos Lezcano singled him to third and Mike scored when Brian Rosinski grounded into a double play.

Sparky teaches Corrales a few tricks

DETROIT (AP) — When it comes to juggling pitchers, Texas Manager Pat Corrales figures nobody does it better than Detroit's Sparky Anderson.

The maestro gave the young Rangers' skipper a lesson Thursday night as the Tigers earned a 3-2 victory in a well-played game that enabled Detroit to win the tough, five-game series, 4-1.

In the fifth inning, with the score tied 2-2, Corrales stayed too long with starter Doc Medich, 5-6, and he paid for it as Steve Kemp doubled home Alan Trammell for what proved to be the winning run.

An inning later, the Rangers loaded the bases on Tiger starter Mike Chris, 2-0, with nobody out, but Anderson was able to rescue the rookie lefthander in time as he called once again on rubber-armed Aurelio Lopez who got out of the inning on three pitches — and a tremendous defensive gem by Lou Whitaker.

"We blew this one," Corrales said. "All we can do is pick up our heads and win tomorrow."

Corrales said he was encouraged by the Rangers' performance and predicted his club would remain in the thick of the race in the American League West.

"We've still got 50 games to play. If we play the rest of the way we played tonight, we're going to win it," Corrales said.

The Rangers took an early 2-0 lead. Mickey Rivers led off the first inning with a walk off Chris, stole second and scored on Richie Zisk's RBI single. Eric Soderholm opened the Texas second with his ninth homer of the year.

The Tigers got one run back in the third. Lynn Jones led off with a double, took third on Whitaker's single and scored on Alan Trammell's fly ball to center.

Champ Summers tied it 2-2 leading off the fourth with his 12th homer, a towering blast off the facade of the third deck in right field.

Lopez earned his 11th save, although Anderson would rather have given him the night off. "My bullpen is about used up after five games in three days.

But it helps ease the pain, knowing that we took four out of five, I'll tell you that," the Detroit manager said.

"I was hoping I wouldn't have to bring Lopez in tonight. He's dead. I'll bet you he's pitched or warmed up nearly every night since I've been here. I've got to give him a breather."

The Rangers are back in Texas where they open a three-game set with Cleveland tonight. Corrales will send Danny Darwin, 3-2, against Len Barker, 2-4.

Baseball mourns passing of Dodgers' chief

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Those who felt the impact of powerful, professorial Walter Francis O'Malley, who pioneered the westward expansion of American sports and made Los Angeles a big league town, are mourning his loss today.

"The passing of Walter O'Malley in many ways leaves the ship without a rudder," said Detroit Tigers owner John E. Fetzer. "He was a tower of strength and his leadership constantly led to important decision-making that gave baseball a true sense of direction."

It was O'Malley, a lawyer-engineer, who masterminded the 1958 move that brought the Dodgers franchise here from a crumbling Brooklyn neighborhood. It gave the West Coast its first taste of major league baseball. Other sports — basketball and hockey — soon followed. O'Malley died of heart failure Thursday at Methodist Hospital in Rochester, Minn., four weeks after the death of his wife, Kay. He had been hospitalized since June 28.

"We shall miss the man," said Mayor Tom Bradley. "But we are grateful for his legacy. The world of baseball has lost one of its giants. Los Angeles has lost one of its finest citizens."

Bob Lurie, owner of the San Francisco Giants, who moved west at the same time the Dodgers did, said he was "deeply saddened by Walter's death." "He was a good friend, a close friend and he taught me a lot about how to run the organization of baseball. He was a brilliant man, a visionary in this game," Lurie said. "He was responsible for the design of Dodger Stadium, for the first extensive TV and radio contracts in the game... What more can you say?"

"Walter O'Malley was as great an executive talent as I have seen or think I am apt to see," said Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "While baseball was his medium, his skills would have flourished in any walk of life. He was unflinching in his support of the commissioner's office and a powerful ally for the good of the game."

"HIS UNIQUE ability, charm and wit are not replaceable. He was my personal friend. To his children, Peter and Terry, and his host of grandchildren, we in professional baseball send our heartfelt sympathy."

Since 1950, when O'Malley became the club's president, the Dodgers have won 10 National League pennants and four World Series.

"I, like so many others in baseball, will be forever grateful to Walter O'Malley for giving us the opportunity to prove we could do a job in the major leagues," said Buzzie Bavasi, the Dodgers' general manager for 18 years before leaving the team in 1968 and now in a similar position with the California Angels.

"Baseball has lost a great man and I have lost a great friend," said National League President Charles Feeney. "Walter O'Malley over a period of a year did more good for professional baseball than any other one man. He will be sorely missed by the sport, all his friends, and in particular, it is a personal loss for me."

Many present and former Dodgers had fond recollections of O'Malley.

Both face tough assignments at 11 a.m. today. In Division III, Midland meets defending champion W. Enrico, Va., while in Division IV Midland meets defending champion Denison, Texas.

Jane Littlefield won the extra inning game with Kelly Nolan getting the final two outs to preserve the win. Nolan and Susan McGaha scored in the winning runs in the top of the 11th.

Jane Truett was the winning pitcher in the lopsided win over W. Enrico while Aileen Miller, Debra Ledbetter and Libby Watson furnishing the offensive fireworks. Ledbetter was the game's MVP award winner.

Rozelle insists reporters have access to NFL players

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle has said he insists that reporters have access to coaches and players after NFL games, but that it is up to individual teams whether they want to admit the media to locker rooms.

Rozelle said in a letter to the Associated Press and the AP Sports Editors Association that stadium facilities vary from park to park and the number of reporters participating in post-game interviews has been increasing in recent years.

"Space is often at a premium with player limits ranging from 45 to unlimited (early in preseason)," Rozelle wrote. "The majority of our members feel that players and coaches should have the opportunity to dress in some degree of privacy."

The news organizations complained to Rozelle after the Green Bay Packers and St. Louis Cardinals announced they would close locker rooms this season and make players and coaches available to the press in interview rooms.

Many newsmen object to the interview room concept because they fear only players and coaches who wish to appear will show up.

Cubs find power in unexpected bat

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Chicago's Steve Dillard could only shake his head in wonder and surprise at what he had done. After three hits, two of them homers, and four runs batted in against the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday, all Dillard could say was: "I don't know what it is. I'm just hitting the ball well."

When the smoke had cleared, and the Cubs had routed the Pirates 11-3, Dillard found himself batting .323 (a mere 72 points above his lifetime average) with three home runs this season — one more than he tallied for the first 233 games of his major league career.

"I just happened to hit it solidly today," said the 28-year-old utility infielder. "Hitting two in a game is something I thought I'd never do in the big leagues."

He had done it by the fifth inning Thursday, belting a two-run shot in the second inning, adding a sacrifice fly in the third and hitting a solo homer in his next at-bat.

Dillard's production paced Chicago's 17-hit onslaught against three Pittsburgh pitchers as the third-place Cubs hammered the first-place Pirates for the second time in three days and pulled within 3 1/2 games of first place in the National League's East Division.

Bill Buckner added two doubles — giving him 38 for the season — and two singles while Mike Vail cracked three singles and a two-run homer as Chicago powered to an 11-0 lead in support of Dennis Lamp, 8-7.

"He (Lamp) kept the ball down and we couldn't get the ball up into the wind," said Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner.

Lamp got 22 outs on balls hit to his infielders and had trouble only in the ninth, when Dave Parker tripled and scored while Willie Stargell was grounding out. John Milner singled, then Bill Madlock hit a two-run homer.

Dillard started seeing regular duty when Cubs second baseman Ted Sizemore fell into a 1-for-13 batting skid. Dillard took over August 2, has started all eight games since, and is batting .403 in that span.

"I'm not doing anything different," he insisted, though the statistics would indicate otherwise.

Padres 4, Giants 0

San Diego scored four ninth-inning runs with the help of a pair of errors by San Francisco shortstop Johnny LeMaster, backing three-hit pitching by John D'Acquisto and carrying the Padres past the Giants.

The shutout for D'Acquisto, 8-9, was his first since he came to the Padres in 1974. The complete game also was the first this season for the right-hander.

LeMaster's error on Dave Winfield's grounder allowed the first run to score. Then Jerry Turner walked, Gene Tenace hit an RBI single and Dan Briggs walked to load the bases before LeMaster's error on a grounder by pinch-hitter Kurt Bevacqua led to two more runs.

A balk by reliever Gary Lavelle later in the inning allowed the fourth run to score.

Phillies 6, Expos 4

Manny Trillo and Bob Boone cracked two-run singles around an RBI double by Mike Schmidt as Philadelphia scored five unearned runs in the fifth inning to complete a three-game sweep of Montreal.

The Expos led 2-0 when a miscue by third baseman Larry Parrish opened the gates. Parrish fumbled a grounder by Garry Maddox, and after a force play, Larry Bowa singled.

One out later Pete Rose walked, Trillo hit his single, then Schmidt doubled to score Rose with the go-ahead run. A walk to Greg Luziski reloaded the bases before Boone's single scored two more.

Cardinals 4, Mets 0

John Denny pitched a two-hitter and Jerry Murphy hit a two-run single as St. Louis completed a four-game sweep of New York.

Murphy, 11-for-17 over his last four games, singled to make it 3-0 in the Cardinals' three-run sixth.

Lou Brock went 0-for-5 in the contest and remained eight hits short of 3,000 for his career.

Reds 5, Braves 2

Heity Cruz hit a two-run, inside-the-park homer in Cincinnati's three-run eighth inning, carrying the Reds past the Braves.

Atlanta's Charlie Spikes grabbed Cruz' drive just before crashing into the left field wall. Spikes scrambled to the ground and the ball fell out of his glove as Cruz and Dave Collins — who had doubled — scored to snap a 2-2 tie.

Pitcher Fred Norman, 10-8, recorded his fifth consecutive victory since the All-Star break.

After Steve Garvey provided Sutcliffe a 2-0 lead in the third inning with his 18th homer, a two-run shot to center, the Astros came back with two in the fifth inning on Jeff Leonard's two-out, two-run triple.

"I don't think their inexperience is going to hurt them," said the Dodgers' outfielder. "They are a self-motivated team. They keep coming up with the big hit."

Such was the case again Thursday.

After Steve Garvey provided Sutcliffe a 2-0 lead in the third inning with his 18th homer, a two-run shot to center, the Astros came back with two in the fifth inning on Jeff Leonard's two-out, two-run triple.

"I was just a minor leaguer, but I was important to him, and it's something that I'll never forget."

THE DODGER Stadium flags were at half mast and the 30,973 fans observed a moment of silence in memory of the Dodger owner.

Sutcliffe, 10-8, pitched into the sixth inning before Dave Patterson and Joe Beckwith finished up.

Mike Squires, Chicago White Sox, can't believe the injustice of it all after being called out at the third by umpire Mike Brenigan in game with Yankees' Thursday while trying to make a triple out of a double. (AP Laserphoto)

Flanagan ends 4-game Birds' slump

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles ended a four-game losing streak, and 15-game winner Mike Flanagan had some thoughts about responsibility.

"I started the losing streak; I thought I might as well finish it," he said.

Flanagan struck out 10, scattered six hits and worked out of a jam in the ninth inning for a 3-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Thursday night.

It was the opposite story last Sunday when Flanagan tossed an eight-hitter at Yankee Stadium, losing 3-2 to Tommy John, the first 15-game winner in the American League, to start the Orioles skid.

Before that game, the Orioles were eight games ahead of Boston in the AL East and 11 in front of Milwaukee. Now, the Orioles are 5 1/2 in front of second-place Boston and 10 games ahead of the Brewers.

Eddie Murray smacked his 16th homer of the season for Baltimore in the seventh inning, and Rich Dauer drove in the winning runs with a two-run double in the eighth.

Then, in the ninth, Milwaukee's Dick Davis reached on an error by Orioles shortstop Billy Smith. Davis was forced at second by Sal Bando, but Flanagan walked Jim Wohlford.

Flanagan got out of the mess by striking out Charlie Moore and Robin Yount in succession.

Was this the big one? The one that will spur the Orioles on to the pennant? Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver was asked.

"How many games have we won?" Weaver replied, looking at the Orioles record of 75-38. "Let's see, that's 75 big ones, and 38 little ones."

The Brewers, considered an outside preseason threat to win the AL East, start a three-game series at Boston today, then don't play another East Division team all season.

"If we get into a real hot streak and win 10 in a row, which we're capable of doing, we could gain on somebody when the Orioles and Boston play head to head," Brewers Manager George Bamberger said. "I'm not saying we're going to catch the Orioles, but if they lose, they've got themselves to blame."

Red Sox 3, Indians 2
Boston right-hander Dennis Eckersley joined Flanagan and John as the league's only 15-game winners, allowing nine hits in his seventh consecutive complete-game victory.

Eckersley got most of his offensive support from Carl Yastrzemski, who drove in two of Boston's three runs with a single and a sacrifice fly.

Eckersley, who has lost five, got out of several jams via three Boston double plays. He struck out five and walked three.

White Sox 2, Yankees 1
Rich Wortham tossed a two-hitter — giving up only one Yankee run — on a homer by Lou Piniella, his 11th — to subdue New York. Wortham, 12-11, who brought a 5.08 earned run average into the game, struck out three and walked two.

The other hit he surrendered was Lenny Randle's infield single.

Mike Squires and Chet Lemon each had three hits for Chicago.

Royals 10, Blue Jays 3
Amos Otis and Al Cowens hit consecutive home runs in the eighth inning, and Larry Gura, 8-8, went the distance for Kansas City, allowing 10 hits and striking out four. It was Gura's fourth complete game.

Otis' homer was a two-run shot, his 13th of the season, and he had a sacrifice fly in the second inning.

Red Sox 3, Indians 2
Boston right-hander Dennis Eckersley joined Flanagan and John as the league's only 15-game winners, allowing nine hits in his seventh consecutive complete-game victory.

Eckersley got most of his offensive support from Carl Yastrzemski, who drove in two of Boston's three runs with a single and a sacrifice fly.

Eckersley, who has lost five, got out of several jams via three Boston double plays. He struck out five and walked three.

White Sox 2, Yankees 1
Rich Wortham tossed a two-hitter — giving up only one Yankee run — on a homer by Lou Piniella, his 11th — to subdue New York. Wortham, 12-11, who brought a 5.08 earned run average into the game, struck out three and walked two.

The other hit he surrendered was Lenny Randle's infield single.

RUSSIAN DESIRE TO LEARN IMPRESSES OHLMAYER

Don Ohlmeyer was relaxed. He leaned back in his soft chair and spread his legs across a coffee table. Then he smiled — not the typical Ohlmeyer smile that oozes charm and self-assurance. This one spelled relief.

"What I saw in Moscow made me feel great," said Ohlmeyer, executive producer of NBC Sports. "The last week was the first time I've really been confident that this little sucker would fly."

Ohlmeyer's "little sucker" is NBC's $87-million gamble on the 1980 Summer Olympic Games next July in Moscow — the largest production in television history and the first-ever continuous programming from behind the Iron Curtain.

"Two years ago, we were a lot farther away than two years," said Ohlmeyer. "Now we're no more than a year away."

Ohlmeyer and several other NBC officials were invited to Moscow last month to watch and evaluate the Soviet fly.

Sutcliffe beats Astros

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rookie Rick Sutcliffe won his 10th game Thursday afternoon, pitching Los Angeles over Houston 4-3.

It was a memorable victory for another reason, however.

On the day Walter O'Malley, the Dodgers' 75-year-old chairman of the board, passed away, the 23-year-old Sutcliffe recalled an incident a couple of years ago in spring training at Vero Beach, Fla.

"I was sick, I got the flu, and couldn't make one of the trips," he said. "I was in bed and the nurse called, asking if I wanted something to eat."

"A few minutes later there was a knock on the door, I got up and opened it, and there was Mr. O'Malley standing there with a tray. He came in, we sat and talked and then we listened to the game on the radio."

"I was just a minor leaguer, but I was important to him, and it's something that I'll never forget."

THE DODGER Stadium flags were at half mast and the 30,973 fans observed a moment of silence in memory of the Dodger owner.

Sutcliffe, 10-8, pitched into the sixth inning before Dave Patterson and Joe Beckwith finished up.

Wife, children get entire Munson estate

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Thurman Munson, the captain of the New York Yankees, left his entire estate to his wife and three children in a simple will.

Munson, 32, died Aug. 2 when his twin-engine jet airplane crashed while he practiced touch-and-go landings at the Akron-Canton Airport.

JIM MURRAY

Venerable Yaz Boston landmark

By JIM MURRAY

The Los Angeles Times Syndicate
Boston is a city of monuments. There is Faneuil Hall, the Old North Church from which Longfellow's lanterns hung, Paul Revere's house, Bunker Hill, Beacon Hill, Old Ironsides, the U.S.S. Constitution. Even Plymouth Rock is not too far away.

But the tourists today hurry right past these bits of American heritage — the Adams House, the signs "George Washington Slept Here," the Revolutionary War battlegrounds, the Boston Tea Party wharf — and move on to a dilapidated old building in the Fens of the city. There, they look around, and say, "Which one's Yazrzmzski?"

"Carl Yazrzmzski" is a fine old New England name today, to rank with Israel Putnam, Roger Sherman, Miles Standish and any Adams but he is a Boston hero in the mold of Gen. Washington, Crispus Attucks, Ethan Allen, or the embattled farmers of Concord and Lexington.

He never had to shoot at a redcoat, throw tea in Boston Harbor, ride through every Middlesex village and farm shouting "The British are coming!" but hardly a man is now alive who does not recognize Yazrzmzski as the modern-day New England patriot. He is the Boston Marathon. Yazrzmzski never had to wait till he saw the whites of their eyes, never had to shout, "As for me give me liberty or death!" or even the modern baseball equivalent, "Play me or trade me!" What Carl Yazrzmzski did was lead the Boston Red Sox to two American League pennants in eight years. Lest you dismiss this lightly, consider that the Boston Red Sox had won only one pennant in the previous 50 years.

Triple Crown himself freely predicted Yazrzmzski would one day bat .400, and probably obliterate many of Ty Cobb's or Babe Ruth's records.

"Living up to his potential" is a baseball expression which really means, "living up to the fans' expectations." The Red Sox of the 1960s that Carl Yazrzmzski joined were a dog team with a reputation around the league of being a bunch of carefree losers, whose interest in the pennant race was minimal. The team was considered to be a country club set, so, naturally, Yazrzmzski was the head pro. The man-who-wasn't Ted Williams drew most of the wrath of the crowds as the team struggled to ninth-place finishes most years.

When Yazrzmzski won the batting championship in his third year with the Red Sox, far from being placated the crowd was apoplectic with rage. This was proof-positive he could do it every year and lead the Sox to a pennant.

Hooting at Carl Yazrzmzski was almost like throwing a wet cabbage at Paul Revere as he rode past shouting, and calling after him, "Dummy! Don't you know people are trying to sleep here?" Carl was quietly embittered. An intense competitor, he was no country-club ballplayer. Neither was he Ted Williams. "The fans expected another Ted Williams," he recalled the other day, "something I never was and never could be — and neither could anyone else. The man was the greatest hitter who ever played the game. The difference in size, for one thing. He was a big, strong, power hitter. I could hit with power but not the power of a Ted Williams."

YAZRZMZSKI even turned back the captaincy of the Red Sox in 1966. "I was too young for that responsibility," he explains. "I had enough pressures on a youngster."

It all turned around for Carl Yazrzmzski in 1967. He had one of those glowing years rookies dream about — batting title, home-run championship, runs-batted-in lead, the Triple Crown itself, and the Most Valuable Player award to boot. He almost personally drove the Red Sox to the pennant, and almost personally won the World Series against the St. Louis Cardinals. The Red Sox of that year had Carl Yazrzmzski hitting, Jim Lonborg pitching, and not much else, and they came within a game of winning the world championship.

On the streets of Boston that year, the once hostile fans walked around wearing huge buttons reading "Yaz, Sir, That's My Baby!"

An opposite-field hitter in his early career, a man who preferred to probe for singles rather than drive the ball over the far-distant right-field wall, Yaz changed his tactics in 1967. The results were Homeric in both the Greek sense and the Babe Ruth sense. In the World Series that year, the Red Sox were stifled in the first game by the great pitcher, Bob Gibson. But, one hour after that game, stragglers in the press box were treated to an astonishing view. Out of the dugout came Carl Yazrzmzski himself, trailing a bat. A pitcher took the mound, the batting cage was wheeled into place, and the man who had won the Triple Crown took an hour of solid batting practice like the rawest recruit. "Gibson had pitched a good game," Yazrzmzski recalls. "But I had had some good pitches to hit. I wanted to find out why I wasn't hitting them." In the rest of that World Series, Yazrzmzski found plenty of good pitches to hit. He batted .400, he hit three home runs, and, in all, it was one of the great one-man shows of World Series history.

You hoot at Carl Michael Yazrzmzski at your own peril in Boston today. There isn't a restaurant in town he can't get free meal. He drove the Red Sox to another pennant in 1975, and to a tie for last year's division title. On Chinese home run by the Yankees' Bucky Dent kept the "Yaz, Sir, That's My Baby!" buttons from being taken down from the attic again.

BUT THIS man doesn't live by bat alone. One of the other historical landmarks of Old Boston is the left-field wall at Fenway Park. George Washington never slept there, nor does Carl Yazrzmzski. Two generations of batters have found that it is not a two-base hit when you hit the wall with Yazrzmzski on the premises. In fact, unless you hustle on your way to first you may have trouble beating out an outfield hit. Yazrzmzski is not a one-dimensional ballplayer. Boston may still be the home of the bean and cod, where the Lowells speak only to Cabots and the Cabots speak only to God, but if the Red Sox win the World Series this year, the Lowells may abruptly drop Cabots and henceforth speak only to the Yazrzmzskis.

And, if, as, and when Yazrzmzski makes the Hall of Fame, the great old city of Boston may have yet another historical landmark, the Holiday Inn where Yazrzmzski once spent a weekend while his apartment was being painted. In Boston, they not only open oysters for Yazrzmzski, they open car doors. In Boston, they're no longer looking for another Ted Williams, they're looking for a new Carl Yazrzmzski. And, if another precocious youngster does make the Red Sox chain, the fans will be derisive as usual. "Call yourself the new Yazrzmzski, do ya?" they will jeer. "Lemme see ya win a World Series! Why, you ain't even a new Ted Williams!"

As for the one, the only, the original Carl Yazrzmzski, he says only that he will have a two-word piece of advice for that youngster. "Be yourself."

Turcotte inducted

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Jockey Ron Turcotte and trainer Laz Barrera were inducted into the Hall of Fame at the National Museum of Racing Thursday.

Turcotte, who was crippled last year in a racetrack accident, rode Secretariat to the Triple Crown in 1973. He was represented by his former agent, Joe Schiavona.

viet's pre-Olympic sports festival, Spartacade. There was some lingering resentment from some Soviet officials because NBC did not buy the TV rights to Spartacade.

"They told us innumerable times that they were disappointed," Ohlmeyer said. "The management types let their displeasure be known, but the operational level guys were great."

NBC OFFICIALS were particularly impressed with the Soviets' interest in improving their television techniques and operation.

"This was the first time since 1968 that the host broadcaster has asked for assistance," said Geoff Mason, vice president of NBC Sports' European production who, like Ohlmeyer, was hired away from ABC, the Olympic-experienced network. "The Germans (1972) didn't do it and the Canadians (1976) wouldn't hear of it."

Ohlmeyer said he was sitting in front of a monitor with some Soviet broadcast personnel watching the javelin competition at Spartacade. "I told them that the shot of the javelin was too tight. You couldn't get a perspective on distance. The next thing I knew the guy was buzzing away into a phone, and bango — the next javelin throw had a perfect form."

Mason said he conducted a seminar in January 1978 for Soviet television editors and cameramen. "They're fascinated by the way we televise football," Mason said. "They're in absolute awe of our isolation (isolated camera) concepts. They're very attuned to learning. Basically, they have the same attitude we have."

"When we first saw their coverage, we were concerned. But I think they've improved 200 percent in the last year. I think the Russians can now cover a sports event as well as any non-American broadcaster. Of course, the Americans are still light years ahead of everybody."

OHLMEYER said the Soviets are copying many American innovations. "Several years ago, you would never see a tight shot of a face," he said of the technique that ABC promoted at the 1976 Olympics and billed as "up-close and personal."

One shot he remembers from Spartacade had a circle around an excited wrestling coach inset into the action of the match. (Technically, Ohlmeyer calls this a "circle wipe".)

Oil Bowl pits size vs. speed

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Tonight's annual Oil Bowl football game — pitting Oklahoma schoolboy all-stars against some of the best from Texas high school gridiron teams — shapes up in the eyes of one Texas coach as a "classic matchup" of size versus speed.

The Sooners are favored to end a five-game losing streak in the long-running tradition which finds the Texans holding a 26-6-1 series lead.

Midland hosts state meet; Cowboys lose Danny White

Midland will host the Women's Class B State UAAASA softball tournament at Hogan Park August 18-19. The winner will qualify for the World Championship Tournament at Dearborn, Mich. Aug. 31-Sept. 3. Entry fee is $75 and is open to all teams registered with the UAAASA. Contact Jim Edwards, Pecos, 915 445 4624 or 447 2262.

Jennifer Bench of Midland was one of four Texans on the South Equestrian team that took second place in the recent National Sports Festival at Colorado Springs, Colo. The competition consisted of four teams of four riders each and was won by the North. Each rider traveled the jump course twice and the team with the fewest faults won.

Western Texas College golf coach Bob O'Day signed seven golfers, including Chris Johnson, Seminole; Richard White, Pecos; Lance McMillan, Snyder; and Victor Villarreal, Abilene, for the coming WJCAA season. The Davis Mountain Cycle Fest and mountain climb is scheduled for Oct. 6 with entry fee $10. The fest begins at Prude Ranch and covers 75 miles, reaching elevations of 5,000 and 6,800 feet. For the less ambitious, rides of 50, 25 and 20 miles are scheduled. Contact the Fort Davis Chamber of Commerce for information.

A fire Thursday killed five horses and destroyed 20 stalls in a Ruidoso Downs race track sale barn. Authorities were trying to determine the cause of the blaze, which broke out about 4:30 a.m. in a wooden tack room adjacent to the south end of a sale barn. Five horses were killed in the fire and a sixth had to be destroyed later. A few other horses were injured in the blaze, but it was not known exactly how many. Officials said about 30 horses broke loose or were turned loose to get them away from the fire. The horses killed in the fire were identified as Mr. Pike; a two-time thoroughbred winner of claiming races; two other thoroughbreds, My Battle and Ponchito, and two quarter horses, Miss Don Meyers and Hesa Hornet. The identity of the horse destroyed later was not immediately available.

Dallas Cowboys punter and backup quarterback Danny White broke his right thumb during practice Wednesday. "He was following through on a pass and hit (defensive lineman) Larry Bethea in the chest," Doug Todd said. "It was swollen and sore this (Thursday) morning. He went to the trainer and they did some X-rays and it's fractured." White left for Dallas for treatment by the team doctor, and it has not been determined whether the injury would put White out of action as the team's punter — a position for which the Cowboys have no backup. Placekicker Rafael Septien is listed as the club's backup punter, and in the past, linebacker D.D.

Lewis and safety Charlie Waters have punted without notable success for the Cowboys.

Tomjanovich

A plastic surgeon testified Thursday that the front portion of Rudy Tomjanovich's face was pushed three-fourths inch into his skull following a one-punch fight with former Los Angeles Laker basketball player Kermit Washington Dec. 9, 1977. Dr. Paul Toffel of Los Angeles, who performed surgery to realign the Houston Rocket star's face, told a five-man, one-woman jury that if uncorrected, Tomjanovich would not have been able to chew and would have had breathing difficulties. Tomjanovich is suing owners of the Lakers, for at least $1 million for injuries.

Defensive end Carl Eller says he has cleared up his business problems in Minneapolis and will rejoin the Seattle Seahawks in the next couple of days. Eller was traded to the Seahawks last week for defensive lineman Steve Niehaus. Steve Vacendak, a Duke basketball standout during the mid-1960s, has been named basketball coach at Greensboro College. Cincinnati Reds outfielder George Foster says he'll be disappointed if he's not in the starting lineup within a week. Foster has been on the disabled list since July 22 with a pulled muscle in his right thigh.

Glenn Jones, San Antonio, used a snapper to catch a 30-pound, 10-ounce snapper and set a state record July 21 at Port Aransas, topping the old record of 29.82, set 10 days earlier.

Indiana State University was declared winner of the Haarlem (Holland) International Baseball Tournament Thursday after the last two games were rained out. The Fighting Sycamores won four of five games. An all-star team of Americans playing in the Dutch league finished second at 3-2, the Dutch national team was 2-3 and the San Diego State University Aztecs were last with a 1-4 record.

American boxing promoter Bob Arum accused the South African government Thursday of lying to him and the world about its plans to end apartheid in sport. "They are selling a lot of hooey to the world," said Arum, here to prepare for the Oct. 20 WBA heavyweight title fight between black American John Tate and white South African Gerrie Coetzee. The controversy erupted following a denial by South African Sports Minister Punt Janson that he had promised Arum apartheid (racial segregation) would soon be eliminated from sports here.

Cardinals, Chiefs score NFL exhibition wins

By The Associated Press
In Thursday's National Football League preseason games, St. Louis bombed Atlanta 42-17 and Kansas City edged Philadelphia 24-21.

The Cardinals rode the passing of backup quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz to victory. The third-year QB threw four touchdown passes in the second half, completing nine of 11 tosses for 104 yards. Pisarkiewicz hit Dave Stief from 17 yards, Eason Ramson from six, Mark Bell from 18 yards and Willard Harrell from four, all for scores. Wayne Morris plunged across for two touchdowns for the Cardinals. Atlanta scored on Tim Mazzetti's 47-yard field goal and a pair of touchdown passes: Steve Bartkowski to Ricky Patton for 32 yards and June Jones to Jimmy Bryant for nine.

Kansas City recovered two fourth-period fumbles by the Eagles to storm from behind. Arnold Morgado dove in from the 1 for a touchdown and Jan Stenerud had a 33-yard field goal after the costly turnovers.

Broncos hold line

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Broncos are taking a hardline stance in dealing with All-Pro defensive end Lyle Alzado's threats to become a professional boxer if the Broncos don't boost his salary.

Broncos general manager Fred Gehrke said the team informed the National Football League office Thursday that Alzado, who walked out of training camp Wednesday, was being considered a walkout. Under NFL rules, the player has five days in which to return to the team.

Byrd holds lead

MANSFIELD, Texas (AP) — Ronnie Byrd of The Woodlands took a three-shot lead in the Texas State Junior Golf Championships Thursday, firing an even par 71 at the Walnut Creek Country Club for a 54-hole total of 216.

First-round leader Tom Hathaway of Tyler rebounded with a one-over-par 72 for a 219 total.

Dietzel says LSU innocent

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Athletic Director Paul Dietzel formally disassociated Louisiana State University on Thursday from any skulduggery in its unsuccessful pursuit of premier high school running back Johnny Hector.

The hotly recruited Hector, from New Iberia, signed a Southeastern Conference letter of intent with LSU but later signed a national letter of intent to attend Texas A&M, claiming that an anonymous caller threatened to have his brother's parole revoked if Johnny didn't attend LSU.

"I am appalled that anyone would suggest such a thing and attribute it to anyone connected with LSU," Dietzel said Thursday. "No one that I know or know of called and intimidated anyone or any people."

Swann returns

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steeler wide receiver Lynn Swann, who missed three weeks of training camp while waging a legal battle against the City of San Francisco, has arrived here and was to rejoin the squad today, a team spokesman says.

Swann, who arrived by plane Thursday night, was to report to the Steeler camp in Latrobe, Pa., but he will not play in Saturday night's exhibition game here with the New York Giants, the spokesman added.

Swann missed team workouts without permission. It was uncertain whether he would be fined or excused as having been technically retired.

Texans can eye happy hunting

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' fall hunting season is expected to be one of the best in years for most game species, the Parks and Wildlife Department said Thursday.

The season should be especially good for those hunting pronghorn antelope, white-tailed deer, turkey, quail and possibly doves, the department said.

"In general," the department said, "the wet spring and summer over most of the state was a big plus for wildlife."

Here is a brief summary by the department of the upcoming hunting seasons:

White-winged dove — despite some heavy freeze damage to the Rio Grande Valley's citrus trees during the past winter, there was an approximate 30 percent increase in the number of nesting birds in Texas this spring.

Quail — thanks to widespread rains during the critical nesting months, biologists are expecting a good to outstanding crop of birds in most areas of the state this fall.

Turkey — populations look excellent over most of the state, with the exception of the western portion of the Edwards Plateau, which failed to get its share of spring and summer rains.

pheasant — good season expected in the Panhandle and the coastal prairies.

Squirrel — prospects excellent for squirrel hunting in East Texas, where perfect weather during the breeding season produced a good crop of both gray and fox squirrels.

Pronghorn — hunters of pronghorn antelope in West Texas can expect an outstanding season. Aerial counts showed antelope populations in Trans-Texas and Permian Basin regions have been boosted by the best fawn crop in 10 years, an approximate 100 percent reproduction rate.

Spying allegations reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Intelligence agencies from five foreign countries have conducted systematic campaigns on U.S. soil to silence dissidents speaking out against those governments, The Washington Post is reporting.

Allegations of foreign harassment and spying in the United States were made by staff investigators for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a report that has not yet been released. The Post obtained a draft copy.

The report said the campaigns to stifle dissent have deprived the targeted groups, some of whom are naturalized U.S. citizens, of such constitutional rights as freedom of speech — at times with the tacit approval of U.S. agencies, the report said.

The Post provided the following details of the report in its Thursday editions:

— Four countries —

Iran, the Philippines, Taiwan and Chile — apparently have concentrated on American public opinion. Spies were set on critics of those nations' authoritarian regimes whose words might have threatened close relations with the United States.

Methods included the reported sending of Iranian and Chilean assassination teams to the United States and the monitoring of student political discussions on American campuses, the report said.

— Agents from Yugoslavia, posing as diplomats, routinely threatened dissidents in the United States with death and boasted that the U.S. government would not take any action against them, the report said.

The Soviet Union focuses most of its spy activities in the United States on classic espionage efforts, trying to obtain secret information rather than combatting anti-Soviet views, the report said.

William Bader, staff director of the Foreign Relations Committee, declined comment on specific points in the draft report, which was presented to the panel in January.

He said the draft had been circulated to various U.S. agencies involved and their comments would be reflected in the final report.

"The committee is pushing very hard to have the report ... revised, declassified and issued," Bader said. "From our point of view, it was not intended to be released in its current form."

Some of the information reported by The Post in its Thursday editions had been disclosed earlier by columnist Jack Anderson.

Other details from The Post story:

— During his final three years in power, the Shah of Iran repeatedly warned U.S. officials he would expel CIA agents from his country if action were taken against Iranian spies in the United States.

Those warnings were conveyed by two former U.S. ambassadors to Iran, Richard Helms in 1976, and William H. Sullivan in 1978.

— The study concludes that none of the agencies most directly involved — the Central Intelligence Agency, the FBI and the State Department — took direct responsibility for monitoring political harassment by foreign governments in the United States.

In fact, the State Department actively discouraged FBI investigations of likely crimes committed in the United States by friendly intelligence services.

Black family won't let fire scare them away

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — A black IBM executive says his family won't "buckle under," even after his home was gutted by arsonists just four hours after they moved into a predominantly white neighborhood in this Westchester County town north of New York City.

"This was not an attempt to scare," said Westchester County Executive Alfred D. DelBello, a friend of the executive who came to offer consolation. "This was an attempt to kill."

It was after 3 a.m. Wednesday and Tom Porter, his wife Audrey, two daughters, and a visiting niece and nephew had settled into their first night in the $70,000 split-level house.

"We finished moving the last of our furniture into the house at midnight and decided to call it a day," said Porter, who had moved to the Westchester County neighborhood from the Bronx in New York.

"At about 3:40 a.m. I was awakened by something suspicious, I can't say what," he said. "Something wasn't right. I opened the door to our bedroom and saw flames."

Porter awakened the rest of the family. Then there was an explosion and flames were everywhere.

The family escaped, but Mrs. Porter was admitted to Lawrence Hospital for first- and second-degree burns of the face, hands and shoulders. Niece, Sharon Davies, 15, was treated for smoke inhalation. Nephew Jackie Davies, 14, was treated for cuts.

Arson investigators later found evidence that gasoline had been poured in the kitchen and den to ignite the fire. It was the work of "professionals who knew what they were doing," one said. Yonkers fire officials believe they were deliberately diverted from the home in the city's predominately white Crestwood section.

They responded to a call in the area and began fighting a fire in a vacant house before an unidentified man told them that the Porters' house down the street, was "going up in flames."

DelBello, called the incident "disgusting, ... a disgrace to Westchester," and said he would ask the county district attorney to investigate.

He added he did not believe it reflected the attitude of all county residents, and said a taxpayers group had begun raising money for the Porter family.

Meanwhile, Porter, 42, who told authorities he would not "knuckle under" relocated his family with relatives in Smithtown, Long Island.

He said he would have to commute to his IBM advertising job in Armonk.

Oklahomans looking to coal as hope for future

By The Associated Press

With the wells running dry, Oklahoma oil companies are turning to coal as their hope for the future. "Oil companies know their economic reserves are limited. And if they want to assure the long-term existence of their companies, they need to get into a business where the reserve life is more than 15 years," said Bruce Wilson, senior vice president for the coal division of Mapco, Inc., Tulsa-based oil and gas producer and gas liquids pipeline operator.

Firms like Mapco and even oil giants like Kerr-McGee and Phillips publicly argue that coal must take the place of petroleum products as a big industrial and utility fuel in the foreseeable future, and they want and think they deserve a part of that action.

Oil firms, by using their geologists and large sums of risk exploration and development capital, have vastly increased known coal deposits and advanced coal industry technology, said Steve Milburn, spokesman for Phillips Coal Co.

Phillips Coal's exploration in Gulf Coast states has produced an estimate that 23 billion tons of near-surface lignite coal exists there, said Milburn, adding "our geologists added 18 billion tons to the federal government's own estimate."

Phillips Petroleum Co. first added coal to its corporate structure in 1974 when forming an energy minerals division to take in not only coal but extraction of uranium, oil shale, tar sands, geothermal energy and recently tungsten.

But just this year has Phillips Coal broken out of the division to stand separately in the corporate structure. Phillips Coal president W. R. Bohon, responsible for all Phillips' non-petroleum-related energy activities since 1974, will relocate within two weeks from Phillips' Bartlesville home base to Phillips Coal's Dallas headquarters "so he will be able to devote his full time to expanding activities of the coal company."

"Hundreds of millions of dollars" are being invested in coal operation by Phillips, but it had only one mine so far and throughout its existence the coal company has not yet commercially produced any coal, Milburn said.

"It will be 1984 before we have any mining," partly because of the huge start-up procedures but also because customers are not plentiful yet, he said.

So far, Phillips Coal has one big contract with Louisiana's Cajun Electric Power Cooperative, "and it talks in terms of $1.9 billion over 30 years of delivery of up to 150 million tons," Milburn said.

Deliveries, by a conveyor taking coal directly from Phillips' Oxbow Mine about 40 miles south of Shreveport right to Cajun's adjacent electric plants won't begin until 1984 because of the first of its two new 540-megawatt generators will not be completed until 1985.

In fact, construction of the mine itself won't begin for a couple of years.

So what Phillips Coal has been doing is preparing for the future — buying leases that add up to nearly 900,000 acres covering nearly 8 billion tons of near-surface lignite reserves in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee and Alabama.

"We didn't go out and buy coal companies; we put together our own and drilled 50,000 holes in about nine states and near the Gulf Coast and have made significant discoveries of lignite previously unknown," Milburn said.

Phillips Coal's payroll now lists about 120 employees, about 25 more than a year ago, and 40 less than the total will be at the end of this year.

Oklahoma City-based Kerr-McGee took its first steps in the coal business 20 years ago when it began acquiring reserves, which total 3.4 billion tons under 188,000 leased acres.

But 1978 was the first year Kerr-McGee Coal Corp. contributed to earnings, with shipments of 1.7 million tons, and since then everything accelerated.

For the firm's 1979 first quarter, coal accounted for $2 million of the total $33 million net income and $8.54 million of the total $601 million in Kerr-McGee sales.

Coal shipments in 1979 are expected to reach 5.8 million tons.

Cajun Electric is also a customer of Kerr-McGee, which this week ships its first coal to that utility, from a Clovis Point surface mine in Wyoming.

Kerr-McGee's coal production should approach 20 million tons in 1980 and 30 million tons afterward, if permits to mine on federal leases are granted.

The firm's coal production is all in Wyoming now, but it has reserves in Oklahoma, Illinois, Wyoming, Arkansas, Montana, Colorado, and North Dakota.

Tulsa-based Cities Service has no plans to enter the coal field, confident that the demand for oil and gas will continue for many years.

Citgo has turned instead toward greater development of oil from Canadian tar sands.

Mapco bought its first coal mine in 1971 and coal has replaced its pipeline division as its biggest earnings center, contributing about 45 percent of the firm's 1978 pre-tax profits.

Mapco now has six mining operations, one in Maryland and five in Kentucky, and is forecasting 7 million tons of production this year.

Electric utilities are seen as the largest near-term coal customers for oil companies because of growing pressure to make them convert from other fuel, said Phillips' Milburn.

Oklahoma Gas & Electric Co. will consume coal at a rate of 1.5 million tons a year at its near Ponca City plant.

Governor Clements dedicates old rig

Gov. Bill Clements did the dedicatory honors Thursday as the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame added another antique rig to its "Oil Patch" exhibit.

A good crowd was on hand, including U.S. Representative Kent Hance of Lubbock; State Senator Pete Snelson and State Representative Tom Craddick, both of Midland, and District Judge Barbara Culver and many directors of the museum.

Mrs. Clements also was on hand for the dedication. Russell Ramsland, president of the museum, introduced Governor Clements who spoke briefly about his experiences in West Texas as a drilling contractor and praised the abilities of the old-time cable tool operators.

The "new" old antique rig added to what already was the world's largest collection of old-time drilling equipment is a National Number 2. It first was assembled 69 years ago for drilling in the "original oil patch" in Pennsylvania, Ramsland said.

In telling of the history of the rig, Ramsland noted that it was acquired in 1972 by the Pennzoil Co. and moved to Houston where it was "rigged" up in the business district where it "spudded hole" breaking ground for Pennzoil's building complex.

Ramsland said the rig was given to the Houston Museum of Natural Science for safekeeping. The Houston museum decided after seven years that the rig should be "among its old friends" in Midland's "Oil Patch" exhibit.

Cost of transporting and rigging up the unit at its present site was handled by Pennzoil.

Pennzoil executives on hand for the dedication included Harold Fitzgeorge, president and chief operations officer; Tom W. Rollins, senior vice president and onshore regional manager; Ken Huddleston, senior vice president — Exploration and Production; David S. Holland, senior vice president and manager of Exploration, and Morgan Davis Jr., all of Houston.

From the Midland office were H. W. Hollingshead, district manager; Charles Marquart, district exploration manager; Ron Butterworth, Midland District exploration manager; Mike McCullough, Midland District landman, and Jerry Calhoun, Midland District geologist.

The governor and Mrs. Clements toured the museum following the rig dedication.

The other major school fund in Texas, the Permanent University Fund, is financed by leasing operations on 2.2 million acres in West Texas.

Royalty increased

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The School Land Board has voted to raise from 20 percent to 25 percent the minimum royalty paid to the state by oil and gas producers drilling on state lands.

The state will start collecting the higher share at the next lease sale in October.

"Many producing wells already pay 25 percent or higher, board chairman Bob Armstrong said, but the last increase in the minimum royalty was in 1974 when the board raised it from one-sixth to one-fifth, or 20 percent.

Since then, Armstrong said in a statement, the market price of oil has risen by 400 percent and the price of natural gas has increased more than 100 percent.

The new royalty rate only applies to leases on 13 million acres of lands that channel money into the Permanent School Fund. Interest from the fund helps finance public elementary and secondary education in Texas.

The other major school fund in Texas, the Permanent University Fund, is financed by leasing operations on 2.2 million acres in West Texas.

One of West's largest fires contained month after it began; Others still raging

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Firefighters have gained the upper hand on one of the largest fires in the West, but officials say five other major blazes rage out of control and there's not much help in sight from the weather.

The 50,000-acre Gallagher Peak blaze in Idaho was contained Thursday more than a month after it flared on a mountain peak. With its containment, the number of uncontrolled major fires, as high as 25 earlier in the week, had dropped to five by late Thursday.

That indicated a shift in the fortunes of thousands of firefighters across the West. Working with little rest, crews from as far away as the East Coast have lost more than 150,000 acres to the recent rash of fires, officials estimate.

Officials still battling three fires in Idaho, and one each in Oregon and Wyoming, say they're waging little more than holding actions until weather improves. The only major fire in Montana has been contained and is expected to be controlled today.

"They say we can expect some precipitation but not until Sunday at the earliest," said fire information officer Merle Pugh. "But that probably will be in the form of thunderstorms, and that might start more fires than they help put out."

The Gallagher Peak fire in eastern Idaho started July 6 and was allowed to burn on a mountain top. But last weekend, high winds blew it out of control and it blackened 50,000 acres of timber and range land before being surrounded by fire lines Thursday night.

The largest of the other blazes did not advance much Thursday, thanks to cool overnight weather. But Forest Service spokeswoman Sandra Brown said weather again is expected to turn hotter and drier.

The largest fire, the 58,000-acre Mortar Creek blaze along the Middle Fork of the Salmon River, advanced less than 1,000 acres Thursday.

Fire information officer Joe Nadolski was optimistic Thursday night.

"They hit the head of the fire area pretty hard," he said, adding that 140 firefighters, using eight helicopters, had laid down 5 1/2 miles of fire lines, strips of land cleared to deny the fire fuel.

Another Idaho fire, at Ship Island, was described as "quiet" but not controlled Thursday. It remained at 9,200 acres.

The 1,000-acre Kennally Creek fire in the Payette National Forest also remained out of control.

The 20 Mile Creek fire in northern Idaho, which briefly threatened the Bonners Ferry community Wednesday night, was contained Thursday night at 750 acres. At least three homes were destroyed.

In Montana, firefighters working only with picks and shovels contained the 1,600-acre Cabin Creek fire near Ovation in the rugged Lincoln-Scapegoat Wilderness after it burned 1,600 acres of timber.

Firefighters in Wyoming expected to extinguish a blaze along the Laramie Range today, bringing a week-long firefighting effort in that state to an end.

Fire crews were dousing several hot spots within fire lines surrounding 7,080 scorched acres after containment was achieved Thursday afternoon, fire boss Kay Johnson said.

In Oregon, a fire in brush and pine in the Umatilla National Forest remained out of control as firefighters tried to cope with erratic winds. Fire lines, staffed by 857 firefighters, ranged over 1,800 acres.

KKK on 'white power' march

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Ku Klux Klan members on a "white power" march from Selma to Montgomery are heading toward the spot where a civil rights worker was slain 14 years ago by gunfire from a carload of Klansmen.

About 50 robed Klansmen set out Thursday on the 50-mile route taken during the 1965 voting rights march led by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Their numbers dwindled to about 30 after a rest stop five miles outside of Selma, with the remainder riding a bus to the night's campsite and cross-burning rally about 15 miles from Selma.

At the campsite, Bill Wilkinson, imperial wizard of the Invisible Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, talked about the purpose of the demonstration.

"We want to show the country it's time to do away with forced busing, affirmative action programs and anything that gives preferential treatment to niggers," he said.

"We want a free enterprise, where the best man wins. And we know who that is — the white man."

The marchers hoped to cover 15 more miles along U.S. Highway 80 today. That would bring them near the spot where Viola Liuzzo, a Detroit, Mich., housewife, was killed after the 1965 march ended in Montgomery.

No one has been convicted of murder in the slaying, but three Klansmen were found guilty of federal charges of violating Mrs. Liuzzo's civil rights.

A fourth man riding in the car from which the fatal shots were fired — former FBI informant Gary Thomas Rowe Jr. — was indicted by a Lowndes County grand jury and now is fighting extradition from Savannah, Ga., where he lives under an assumed name.

When Thursday's march began, Klansmen wore full white robes and pointed white hats. But after walking five miles in near 100-degree heat, most shed their costumes.

Klan leaders had said before the march they would have Klan security forces "armed with all types of weapons."

No security force was visible Thursday, but state police Lt. Roy Smith said 32-year-old Jerry Edward Banks of Selma was arrested for violating a law prohibiting persons from carrying firearms within 1,000 feet of a demonstration.

In place of guns, many Klansmen carried signs proclaiming, "Save this land, join the Klan." Jeering blacks along the parade route in Selma shouted back, "Get out of the land, you damn Klan."

Small forces of state troopers and sheriff's deputies were on hand for security as the march began, and a number of troopers stayed near the campsite Thursday as the Klan held a 45-minute rally highlighted by a cross burning.

"The only thing the people in Washington understand is a mass of people" demonstrating, said Wilkinson, of Denham Springs, La.

He said blacks were "trying to take over society," and charged that federal civil rights laws were enacted to keep blacks "from burning down the United States."

Mechanics' errors suspected in crash

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) — A Continental Airlines official says mechanics' errors caused cracks found in his company's DC-10 pylon supports — the kind of cracks suspected of causing the nation's worst air crash.

Martin V. Taylor, Continental vice president of maintenance, testified Thursday during a National Transportation Safety Board hearing into the May 25 crash of an American Airlines DC-10 that killed 273 persons.

Taylor said an in-house investigation determined two cracks found last December and February occurred when mechanics removed the engine and pylon as a unit and accidentally banged together two parts of the support, Taylor said.

"Our maintenance people did not perform the work satisfactorily on those two occasions," he said. "The procedure (engine-removal with a forklift) did not seem to be the problem."

NTSB investigators believe the procedure, used by Continental and American, caused a 10-inch crack in the pylon support of the American wide-body jet that resulted in the two units ripping away from the left wing on takeoff.

In addition to Continental and American, United Airlines had been using the maintenance procedure before the crash, and Western Airlines was about to begin using it.

Douglas Aircraft Co., maker of the DC-10, instructed the airlines in a maintenance manual to have mechanics remove the engine and pylon separately.

Douglas officials have testified during the two-week hearings that they did not approve of the alternate engine-removal procedure, which required less time.

An American official testified Thursday that the pylon design — not the maintenance procedure — caused the crack in the support.

Rocco J. Masiello, vice president of engineering and maintenance for American, said the pylon presented "an unprecedented design problem regarding vulnerability of the pylon to damage during maintenance."

"I think we presented the mechanics with an intolerable situation," Masiello said.
