Young might meet again with PLO man

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Andrew Young, out as American U.N. ambassador because of unauthorized talks with a Palestine Liberation Organization envoy, hinted today he might meet again with the PLO man before leaving his post at the United Nations.

Young also said he would not be surprised if he had been spied on by Israeli agents.

As he was Wednesday after handing in his resignation, Young sounded unrepentant about his controversial meeting last month with the PLO's U.N. observer, Zehdi Labib Terzi — a violation of a U.S. commitment to not deal with the PLO.

"I have no regrets. I would do it again," he said at a news conference today at the U.S. mission to the United Nations.

He was asked specifically whether, as president of the U.N. Security Council for the month of August, he would meet again with Terzi if the Palestinian asked.

"It would be unconscionable to refuse to see somebody as president of the Security Council," he replied.

Pressed later for a clarification, he said he would meet with anyone wanting to see him as long as that person were qualified. Terzi might be considered qualified because the Council regularly grants him the right to address it during debates on the Palestinian issue.

It became clear today that Young may still be the chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, and therefore Council president, next Thursday, when the Council is scheduled to resume its debate over the Palestinians and resolutions to support their drive for statehood.

White House officials said President Carter intends to move with "due care and deliberate consultation" in choosing a successor. And, these officials said, he will consult Young in making a selection. It was believed that process could take more than a week.

Young said he would not be surprised to learn that his meeting with Terzi July 26 had been uncovered by Israeli intelligence because "I assume that everything I did was public knowledge. I've always assumed that I've been bugged all my life."

An Atlanta newspaper has reported that Israeli spies were the first to learn of the meeting and leaked word of it.

Young stressed in his farewell press conference Wednesday a conviction that the United States should deal with the PLO — a conviction flatly against U.S. policy.

But in the Security Council deliberations, Young presumably will remain bound by U.S. policy and commitments to Israel and veto any resolution supporting Palestinian statehood.

It is not clear, though, whether Young will also be under instruction to block any changes in standing U.N. resolutions. These refer to the Palestinians entirely as a refugee problem.

Robert Strauss, chief U.S. mediator for the Middle East, gave assurances to Israel earlier this week that the administration would oppose any modification of the resolutions.

But Yehuda Blum, the Israeli ambassador to the United Nations, said after a meeting with Young Monday night that the ambassador could give no such promise.

Israeli spies knew what Young said

ATLANTA (AP) — Israeli spies knew that Andrew Young met with a Palestine Liberation Organization representative and what was discussed at the meeting, and that led to Young's resignation as ambassador to the United Nations, the Atlanta Constitution reports.

In a copyright story from the Cox News Service, Thursday's Constitution reports that Young had insisted the meeting was a chance encounter until the Israeli ambassador Yehuda Blum confronted him with an account of the conversation.

Israeli Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Yadin today termed the report "completely rubbish" and said, "I know nothing of it."

"I don't know of activities of Israeli intelligence," Yadin said in an interview on the CBS-TV "Thursday Morning" program. "They are always being credited with more than they do, unfortunately."

The paper quoted sources as giving the following account of what happened:

As the United States was seeking to delay a showdown on a U.N. resolution to create a Palestinian state on Israeli-held soil, Young arranged a meeting at the apartment of Abdallah Yaccoub Bishara, the Kuwaiti ambassador to the U.N.

Young told the Kuwaiti that he would not tell him whom he could invite to his home. It was a clear signal, the report said, that Young expected to find a Palestinian representative there.

No-tax-hike hospital budget OK'd

Trustees also hire management consulting firm

By SUSAN TOTH
Staff Writer

Midland Memorial Hospital trustees Wednesday recommended a $10.98 million, no-tax-increase operating budget and the hiring of a management consulting firm to audit and recommend changes in the operation of the hospital.

The recommendations were made to the Midland County Hospital District directors, who were to meet at 3 p.m. today to consider those and other items.

The recommended budget projects $13.37 million in patient revenue for the next fiscal year, which runs from Oct. 1, 1979 to Sept. 30, 1980.

Some $1.17 million of that revenue will be used to cover bad debts, indigent care and other contractual allowances, leaving $10.98 million for the hospital operating budget.

No tax funds will be used to finance the operations, according to the projections, which call for an average patient load of 120 per day.

Patient load estimates, however, were the major problem with the current year's budget.

Hospital occupancy has been lower than expected throughout most of this year, and, as Trustee John Grimland pointed out, even a small increase in patient load makes a big difference in cash flow.

An additional six patients per day would have resulted in an extra $400,000 to $500,000 in revenue last year, he said.

"It all comes down to usage," he noted.

Hospital officials said they think the 120-per-day occupancy estimate is realistic based on past experience and new services being added to the hospital this year.

Trustees also recommended a $620,000 capital improvements budget which includes replacement and new equipment which may be needed in the coming year.

That entire budget plus depreciation — funded in the operating budget last year — will be financed from district tax funds.

Tax funds also will cover $832,010 in payments on the $10 million in bond obligations and any increases in working capital.

Current tax rate of 15 cents per $100 valuation will cover all the needs of the hospital and district, trustees were told, and no increases in room rates are being considered at this time.

Trustees also recommended spending an estimated $66,000 for a three-month study of hospital operations by the TriBrook Corp., a California-based management consultant firm.

Assuming the contract is approved by the directors, the group will begin work within two weeks and should have recommendations on more efficient operations by the end of the year, trustees were told.

The California group is one of three different organizations interviewed for the job.

In other business, trustees heard a report from the building committee that the renovation and construction project in the hospital is proceeding within 1 percent of its original budget and within 60 days of the original schedule.

That 60-day lag was caused by a delay in shipping some needed equipment and hospital requests to put off closing some portions of the building for remodeling because of patient needs.

The project should be complete by April 1980, trustees were told.

Officials meet on tax appraisal

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

Elected officials from four of Midland County's governmental entities were briefed Wednesday on new state legislation establishing a unified appraisal district for taxing bodies.

According to County Judge Bill Ahders, the meeting was held in Midland County Courthouse and was attended by officials of Midland County, the city of Midland, Midland Independent School District and Greenwood Independent School District.

Under provisions of Senate Bill 621, which created the unified appraisal district, the city and the schools automatically become part of the unified appraisal district, which would be administered by a board made up of representatives from each of the districts.

The county, however, has a choice of whether it will participate in the district immediately, Ahders said. The county could vote to stay out of the district for two years, he said.

However, a constitutional amendment to be voted on in 1980 concerns the unified district and, if passed by voters, will require counties to become part of the unified district, he said.

The city tax office already handles the tax appraisals and collections for the city, schools, Midland County Hospital District and Midland County Junior College District.

Edward S. Pritchard Jr. of Fort Worth, a partner in the consulting firm of Pritchard and Abbott, was present during Wednesday's meeting and gave officials information about the unified district law. He then answered questions concerning the system.

Under the bill, all appraisals in the county, including Greenwood ISD which now is handled separately, would be done by one agency, said Judge Ahders. Property values would be based on 100 percent of actual value.

Judge Ahders said Midland County commissioners must decide by Sept. 15 whether the county will participate initially in the program.

"I know we will talk about it at the next meeting," said the judge. That meeting is scheduled for Aug. 27.

Asked his personal opinion of such a program, Judge Ahders replied, "I like the idea of going together and having one valuation."

However, he expressed concern that under the system the appraiser of property would not be responsible to taxpayers.

"The appraiser should be responsible to the people directly, which he will not be under this bill," the judge noted.

What's the status of the new Midland Park Mall, to be constructed at the corner of North Midkiff and FM 868? I believe the groundbreaking ceremony was held about a year ago, and there doesn't seem to be much construction going on. — Mrs. Hastings.

ANSWER: You are right, groundbreaking for the new shopping center was held last September.

Harrell Feldt, Midland attorney who represented developers of the mall, Melvin Simon & Associates of Indianapolis, Ind., in zoning hearings before the City Council, has been in touch with the developers. He also made a recent trip to the site.

Feldt reports that construction is going forward. Foundations have been poured and the steel frameworks are being erected.

In the meantime, continuing work has been done on the final site plan. The mall generated such enthusiasm among retailers that 80 per cent of the facility already has been leased. The final site plan has been studied and adapted to best suit requirements of the retailers.

I would like to have a recipe for hominy. I hope some of the older people will have this recipe. — Mrs. L. Jones

ANSWER: I don't believe Mrs. Charles Ambrose Jr., home economics teacher at Lee High School, could be classified as "old," but she has come up with a recipe for hominy which she found in a "Kerr Canning and Freezing Book."

Place two quarts of dry field corn in enamel pan. Add eight quarts of water and two ounces of lye. Boil vigorously for 30 minutes. Allow to stand 20 minutes.

Rinse off lye with several hot water rinses. Follow with cold water rinses to cool for handling. Work hominy with hands until dark tips of kernels are removed. (About five minutes). Separate tips from corn by floating them off.

Add water to cover hominy about one inch and boil five minutes. Change water and repeat four times. Then cook until kernels are soft, 30 to 45 minutes. Drain. This makes six quarts of hominy.

Pack hominy into jars to within an inch of tops. Add one teaspoon salt to each quart jar. Fill within 1/2 inch of top of jar with water in which corn was cooked or boiling water. Put on caps and screw bands firmly tight.

Processing: Pints, 60 minutes; quarts, 70 minutes, at 10 pounds pressure.

Can you tell me if there is a place to recycle newspapers here in Midland? And what is the address? — S.S.

ANSWER: B&D Manufacturing Co. of Midland, 3103 W. Front St., does this type of service. Company hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. However, the business is closed for lunch from noon to 1 p.m.

Eight born; All living

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — A 29-year-old Naples woman on fertility treatment gave birth to eight babies today, all alive, doctors announced. It could be a world record for multiple births.

The previous highest number of surviving children in a multiple birth was six — which occurred twice, in Sydney, Australia, in 1971, and in Cape Town, South Africa, in 1974, according to the Guinness Book of World Records.

Doctors at Naples' Hospital of the Incurable said the babies' weight ranged from 14 ounces to 2.2 pounds.

Glistening oil patches coat more than six miles of Padre Island beaches

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Thick swaths of runaway Mexico crude oil in patches up to 15 feet long coated more than six miles of the glistening South Padre Island beaches early today.

It was the hardest blow yet to the multimillion-dollar vacation spot where tourism is reported off by 30 percent.

Several miles of South Padre Island beaches at the tip of Texas were hit hard by incoming patches of oil during the night.

Vacuum trucks were on the beach today sucking up the oil.

63-year-old arrested in theft case

BIG SPRING — A 63-year-old man was arrested today by Big Spring police in connection with the alleged theft July 25 of a suitcase containing about $96,000 in payroll checks.

The man, described as a transient, was arrested at 10:35 a.m. today by Big Spring police near the Big Spring State Hospital, police said.

Officers said an informant told them where they could find the man, for whom police had been looking for some time.

On July 25, a suitcase containing payroll checks en route to Midland from the F.W.A. Drilling Co. in Wichita Falls allegedly was taken from a bus depot here.

According to reports, a Midlander then contacted the Midland Police Department and Texas Rangers to report that the Midland informant's friend, a Big Spring resident, had been told by a third man that he had stolen some checks from a bus depot and was going to pass them.

The man with the suitcase wanted to sell the suitcase and its contents for a couple of dollars — until he discovered its contents, officers were told.

The checks reportedly totaled $96,876.69, according to a police spokesman.

Two checks subsequently were cashed in Big Spring, police have indicated.

Earlier, Big Spring police had arrested another man, Roy Roger Lusk of Big Spring, in connection with the incident, officials reported.

Lusk allegedly tried to establish credit at a convenience store here by showing three of the missing checks, said officers.

Police said Lusk had identified the man who gave him the checks from police photographs.

Charged with theft, Lusk later was released from jail on $5,000 personal recognizance bond.

meeting Wednesday night in nearby Harlingen to discuss the 30 percent decrease in business they said is due largely to the oil threat and subsequent national publicity.

Meanwhile, mammoth patches of oil continued to loom only a few miles off shore. Reconnaissance flights late Wednesday showed the ribbon of oil stretched 60 miles north of the southern tip of Padre Island.

Scientist John Robinson said thousands of square miles of the Gulf of Mexico south of Texas are covered by the oil and warned that the situation in Texas could get much worse.

Navy spotters discovered oil Tuesday about 110 miles south of Grand Isle, La., which is about 60 miles south of New Orleans.

The Coast Guard has begun installing anti-oil booms in 1,500-foot-wide Aransas Pass, the heavily traveled channel leading to the port of Corpus Christi. The booms will be used to block possible oil infiltrations into the delicate environments of Corpus Christi Bay and Laguna Madre, the Coast Guard said.

All yachts accounted for; Death toll now at 17

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — Race officials made contact with the British yacht, Kalisana, today, and said all boats have been accounted for in the Fastnet yacht race disaster. The death toll stood at 17 men dead, with two others missing and feared drowned, and 21 yachts sunk or abandoned.

The Royal Ocean Racing Club said all eight crewmen aboard the British boat were safe. Fifteen participants in the race were killed, many swept overboard after a summer gale storm churned up 60-foot seas on Tuesday. Two others died from a British boat, the Bucks Fizz, and two of its crewmen were counted as the missing.

Ships and aircraft were still searching a wide area of the English and Irish coasts, in case other yachts not in the race had been caught in the storm.

All 12 of the yachts from the United States reported in the race made port, but a 51-year-old American businessman living in London, Frank Ferris, was among the dead and his yacht Ariadne was lost. The U.S. Yacht Racing Union said one of three other fatalities aboard the Ariadne was Robert Robie, an American or a Canadian living in London.

Most of the other dead were British. Helicopters and ships pulled at least 136 survivors from the raging seas after the freak storm smashed into the fleet of 306 yachts in the 605-mile Fastnet Race from the English Channel to southern Ireland and back. One official at the rescue center said it was "the biggest operation of its kind ever carried out in British waters."

Lloyd's of London refused to say what the insurance on the lost and damaged boats would total, but one broker said the bill could total $9 million.

Winds were light when the race began last Saturday, but the skippers were warned to expect heavy weather Monday. The first gale warnings were broadcast at midday Monday.

Jim Hardy, helmsman of the Australian yacht Impetuous, said he had never encountered such giant and fast-running waves. But officials of the Royal Ocean Racing Club defended the handling of the race.

"What people don't understand is that once the race is started, there is no means of communicating with the boats," Alan Green, the secretary of the club, told a news conference. "There is no way a race committee can say, 'Stop, come home.'"

Green said it was impossible to provide scores of radio-equipped vessels to escort the racers, and such August storms are "a freak." But he said the size of the fleet may be limited in future races.

Ted Turner, the American winner of the America's Cup in 1977 who skippered his boat Tenacious through the storm to finish first on corrected time, said rough weather must be expected in ocean

New Midland disco to have grand opening

The grand opening of the Jamaica Club, a new disco on Midland's southside, will be tonight, announced Odell Walker, club owner and host.

The club is at 501 E. Industrial Ave. Though the Jamaica Club is in a black neighborhood, it is open to everyone, Walker said.

"I was tired of the establishments we had over here," he said. "I want all classes of people to come and feel at home."

"We intend to bring in jazz musicians" and other artists, he said.

The disco's DJs will be Larry Griffith and Rudolph Whitley.

Managing the club and tending bar will be Bonnie "B" Anders, Arthur Sam and Mary Long.

The club has table and bar seating for 160 guests. Walker, a Midland businessman, has lived here since the mid-1940s.

Boy's Ranch arena enlarged for rodeo

AMARILLO—Approximately 3,000 boys who have lived at the Ranch since 1939.

Approximately 390 pint-sized cowboys at Cal Farley's Boy's Ranch near here are getting ready for the 35th annual Boys Ranch Rodeo, a traditional Labor Day weekend event.

In anticipation of record-setting crowds for the two performances on Sept. 2 and 3, the Ranch rodeo arena's general admission section has been enlarged to accommodate an extra 1,500 people. Most sections of the arena have been covered to provide for the comfort of the rodeo guests.

About 150 boys will be contestants in the rodeo. They will compete in bareback bronc riding and will try for the best time on Brahma bulls, steers, calves and stick horses. It is the only rodeo of its kind in the nation in which boys ride professional rodeo stock under RCA rules.

The rodeo is also a reunion for the approximately 3,000 boys who have lived at the Ranch since 1939.

Tickets are on sale at the Boys Ranch office at 600 West 11th St. in Amarillo.

Well justified delay

Vice President Mondale has criticized Congress for taking a vacation without doing much of anything with President Carter's energy program. And isn't that just too bad.

Mr. Mondale's complaint, in the first place, is not altogether too sound. We do not blame the lawmakers for wanting more time to think it over — or to just put it off.

Congress did not get most of the energy proposals until mid-July — three weeks before the scheduled start of a month-long summer recess.

A program which carries a $142 billion price tag and puts the federal government even deeper into management of energy resources is no candidate for a quick congressional rubber stamp.

The urgent need for solutions to our energy problems does not make Mr. Carter's solutions the best ones, by any means.

The same can be said for other proposals which the White House has sent to Congress with a priority label, such as national health insurance and hospital cost containment.

They address important issues, to be sure, but there is very good reason for Congress to be handling them with care.

There seemingly is a general feeling right now that the tide is flowing away from the idea that the best way to pursue a goal is to assign it to the federal bureaucracy. And this is a most encouraging sign, indeed. Hopefully, it will continue to flow in that direction.

If President Carter is impatient with the way Congress is treating some of his legislation, the problem is not necessarily on Capitol Hill. It could lie in the kind of legislation he is proposing. And it also could be in the way he and his aides go about proposing and promoting same.

Mr. Carter lately has been trying to come on strong in the style of Harry Truman. You will recall that Mr. Truman ran and won in 1948 by railing against a "do-nothing" 80th Congress.

Jimmy Carter should not let the Harry Truman example carry him too far. In the first place, Mr. Carter may find it more difficult to attack a Democrat-controlled Congress than when Mr. Truman was giving hell to one of the few Congresses dominated by Republicans.

Furthermore, it is entirely possible that the 96th Congress is reflecting the public mood better than Mr. Carter when it hesitates to take the nation down paths well-worn by a generation of New Deal Democrats.

The president also should realize by now that no longer do all the Democrats in Congress vote as a unit, as they once did. It is entirely possible also that many members of Congress both Democrat and Republican, simply do not agree with many of his proposals any more than do many, many other Americans across the land.

It is doubtful if Mr. Mondale's scolding has bothered many, if any, members of Congress.

'The Peanut Puzzle'

A Reporter-Telegram reader submits for publication "The Peanut Puzzle," which undoubtedly has been puzzling a great many West Texans for some time now. It reads:

"ASSUME: Peanuts have become a national necessity. Several years ago the Government froze the price of peanuts at a level which discouraged new peanut production. Subsequently, the demand for peanuts rose as did the price of foreign peanuts. To increase the supply of domestic peanuts and reduce the dependency upon foreign peanuts, the Government decontrols the price of domestic peanuts. However, the Government says that the resulting increase in the price of domestic peanuts will confer windfall profits on domestic growers, and that such profits should be taxed away. Domestic growers ask why they can't use these profits to plant more peanuts. The Government replies that it is unfair to let growers keep profits from uncontrolled prices no matter what kind of nut they produce.

"QUESTION: Whose crazy? (And what do peanut growers do with their windfall profits?)" All right, it's your turn.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Dictator linked to U.S. killings

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — In the past we have suggested that agents of Yugoslavia's communist dictator, Marshal Tito, were able to pull off a political assassination in the United States without the slightest response from federal authorities. Now we have evidence that the FBI did indeed have reason to believe that the killing was done by Tito's secret agents.

The victim was Dragisa Kasikovich, chief editorial writer of the militantly anti-communist Serbian-American newspaper, Liberty. He was brutally stabbed and beaten to death in Chicago two years ago, the day after we had published a column on the intervention of Tito's secret police in affairs of the Serbian Orthodox Church here.

He may, mistakenly, have been believed to be the source for the column, which he reprinted on the day he was killed. The 10-year-old daughter of Kasikovich's fiancée was also murdered, apparently because she witnessed the crime.

A top-secret Senate report notes that "in June 1977, the FBI received a reliable report that Yugoslav intelligence officers were behind the murder" of Kasikovich and the girl.

But a State Department source who read the report told our associate Dale Van Atta that this language was "not strong enough." He said there was "little doubt" in U.S. intelligence circles that the Kasikovich killing — which has never been officially solved — was an execution by Tito's agents.

Assassination of political opponents is an old Yugoslav tradition. It was, after all, a political assassination in what is now Yugoslavia that ignited World War I. Yet despite this ominous historical background — and repeated evidence that assassination is still vogue among Yugoslav political operatives — federal law enforcement authorities have done little or nothing to protect U.S. residents from Tito's murderous thugs.

In January 1974, a naturalized Yugoslav-American advised federal agents that Tito was "planning to assassinate Croatian emigre leaders" in this country, the report said. Another source put the number of Croatian emigres marked for extinction at between 10 and 20.

In February 1976, two suspected Yugoslav intelligence agents made "an attempt to coerce, through threats and intimidation, two local Yugoslav emigres residing in Chicago into arranging the assassination of Hafizi Jousef Azem," a naturalized U.S. citizen and anti-Tito leader.

The report identified the two suspected agents as Alexander Arsovski, a member of the Yugoslav consulate in Chicago, and Nikola Ilievski, a Yugoslav here on a visitor-for-business visa.

Provided with the names, the FBI interviewed Ilievski, who "vehemently denied the allegations" and left the country soon afterward. The consulate official was, of course, diplomatically immune from questioning.

The Senate report notes the FBI's excuse for not pursuing the activities of Tito's gunmen: Federal statutes have apparently not been violated. Then, in a masterpiece of understatement, the report adds: "However, such actions, in the FBI's judgment,

ART BUCHWALD Conglomerates are the 'in' thing, and Art tells why

WASHINGTON — Almost every day you pick up the newspaper, some company is merging with another company. The average person has no idea what is happening, but it could eventually affect everybody in the United States. What it boils down to is that if you merge an apple company with another apple company, you're violating the antitrust laws.

But if you merge an apple company with a banana company, then you're building a conglomerate, and whether you know it or not, conglomerates are the "in" things to own.

This is how conglomerates work. Let us say that Dalinsky's Drugstore in Georgetown decides to merge with Fischetti's Meat Market in Bethesda, Md. Since neither Dalinsky nor Fischetti can agree on whose name to use, they call their company the Great American Drug and Meat Co. They issue stock and it is immediately sold out because any company that has the words "great," "American," "drug," and "meat" in it must have potential. Now, with the stock from their company they make a bid to take over the Aetna Curtain Co., offering Aetna stockholders one share of GADAM for every two shares of Aetna.

Once the deal is completed, they go to the bank and borrow $500,000 on the Aetna Curtain Co., to buy the Markay Life Insurance Co.

Then, using the money in the Markay Life Insurance Co., they make a bid on the Mary Smith Pie and Bakery Co., offering one and a half shares of Markay for one and two-thirds of Mary Smith.

It turns out that Mary Smith Pie and Bakery has a $3 million surplus cash flow, so Dalinsky and Fischetti use this cash flow to buy the Carey Winston Life Preserver Co., which, in spite of its name, specializes in the building of Nike missiles.

With government contracts from the Carey Winston Life Preserver Co. as collateral, GADAM buys the Washington Green Sox baseball team, which it merges with the Norfolk Warriors, a baseball team that loses money but can come in handy to write off the profits of a TV station that GADAM is bidding on in Winniepeg.

With these companies as a nucleus, Dalinsky and Fischetti decide to make more acquisitions because, as Dalinsky tells a Time magazine reporter who is doing a cover story on him entitled, "The Boy Wonder of Georgetown," "If you stand still, you die."

The next step for GADAM is to go to the First Citizens Bank of Wesley Heights and borrow $20 million against their stock. With that money Dalinsky and Fischetti buy the Second Citizens Bank of Culpepper and then use the stock to purchase the First Citizens Bank of Wesley Heights.

From there it is only a matter of time before GADAM starts a mutual fund, a fried chicken franchise company, a Puerto Rican rum plant, and a senior citizens' apartment complex in Fairbanks, Alaska.

In less than three years Dalinsky, who put up $30, and Fischetti, who put up $25, control $3 billion worth of businesses and each is worth $50 million on paper. The only danger is that if either Dalinsky's Drugstore or Fischetti's Meat Market loses the lease on its store, the whole conglomerate pyramid could fall down. When you get right down to it, that's the only part of their business that Dalinsky and Fischetti understand.

'Black on Black Crime' addresses worry in black community

WASHINGTON — In the dog days of August, Ebony magazine has come out with a special issue, "Black on Black Crime," a rather remarkable effort addressing a deep worry in the black community. This issue probably won't set sales records, but it deserves professional respect and a salute.

Nick Thimmesch

The basic premise, according to Publisher John H. Johnson, is that black on black crime has reached a critical level and threatens the entire black community. External factors count, he admits, but argues that blacks cannot avoid the "internal responsibility" of working on this wretched problem.

Blacks suffer from crime proportionately more than whites do, largely because crime is tolerated in the black community and permissive judges often wave it off in condescending manner.

There are many superlative statistics, but the most telling, heart-rending story in this praiseworthy issue concerns the family of Gloria Williams, a middle-class Harlem black. In December, 1973, her 14-year-old son, Michael, who wanted to be a Catholic priest, died from a shot fired by an older youth who bragged about being armed.

The youth served one year for "negligible homicide," and then — can you believe it — "accidentally" shot and killed his own brother.

Four years later, Mrs. Williams' other son, Joey, 20, was shot through the eye by a member of a hoodlum gang, and died. Gloria Williams and her family came apart — physically and emotionally. Not only have such vicious gangs returned to black neighborhoods, but Saturday night violence has become routine. More blacks (5,734) were killed by other blacks in 1977 than died (5,711) in nine years in Vietnam.

Blacks are 11 percent of the population, don't receive 11 percent of the GNP but suffer 14 percent of the annual crime bill. Movies, made by whites, make heroes out of black gangsters, dope-dealers and pimps, and impressionable black youngsters eat it up.

In this issue of Ebony, there are essays reciting the usual litany of crime causes — discrimination, poverty, unemployment, drugs, uneven justice, and social disruption when blacks move from a more stable rural environment to turbulent cities.

Most of this is old hat. Happily, the editors included an insightful article by Winston E. Moore, security chief for the Chicago Housing Authority, who argues that the black community's "extraordinary tolerance toward the growing army of black criminals" has caused life in urban ghettos to become "veritable hell."

"Not only are these criminals allowed to prey on their law-abiding black brothers and sisters with virtual impunity," Moore writes, "they have attained bona-fide hero status among many young blacks not unlike that of the legendary gunslingers of the old West."

Moore calls for a massive re-education plan for blacks to see black criminals as "deadly enemies — cowardly, two-bit punks who cheat, rob, maim and murder, and...make decent people's lives miserable."

"He indicts the 'dual system' where authorities, judges and probation officers say black life is less valuable than white, and traces it to the antebellum South where a slave who murdered usually wasn't jailed or executed because the slaveowner would thus lose two."

Moore isn't far off when he says this system, somewhat refined, today tells the black criminal that as long as he confines his criminality to the black community, the law will be lenient with him. So black crime is worthless, and undeserving of deep feeling.

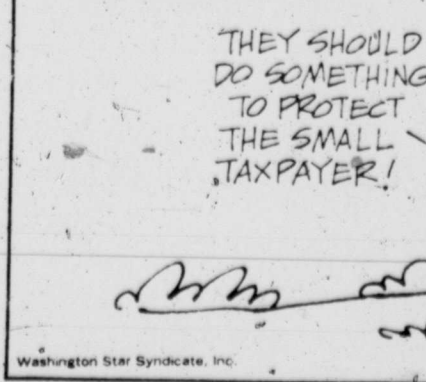

Thus if a black killer got off the way Dan White did after killing San Francisco Mayor George R. Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk, the black community would never riot. Moore says until blacks become outraged over black on black crime, "we will have to suffer the consequences of 'lenient' white and black judges who condescendingly turn black killers loose on the black community, contending that the killers are hapless products of their environment."

It is demeaning to blacks to suggest — as many liberals have — that blacks can't be held responsible for their actions. Poverty and discrimination alone do not cause crime. Often it is lack of self-control. The Rev. Jesse Jackson has emphasized the teaching of self-control to young blacks, at the same time trying to raise their ambitions. He has institutionalized this thought in the PUSH for Excellence program and gets good audience response when he stumps for it.

There is something stirring in the black community about the crime situation, and Ebony, fortunately, has caught the sense of it. This influential magazine is to be commended for taking on what it calls an "in-family" issue — black on black crime. Blacks show increasing intelligence on what real values are, and to say this is to recognize, not condescend.

Religious group must pay for broken promises

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — In a case attorneys say may be a landmark — and a warning to religious institutions — a jury awarded a Portland woman more than $2 million because, for her, the promises of a better life through Scientology didn't come true.

Julie C. Titchbourne, 21, claimed church courses she took in 1975 failed to live up to claims they would help her with her college coursework, develop her creativity and raise her IQ test scores.

Her lawyer said the decision Wednesday was a warning for new religions or cults.

"At least in Oregon, we've served notice on all people that if you're going to deal with our young people, you'd better do it fairly and honestly," said attorney Garry McMurry.

A spokesman for the Scientologists said she was unsure what effect the verdict might have on the church.

"But I expect there will be many people jumping on the bandwagon with other religions as well," said Debbie Jones.

Named in the suit were the Church of Scientology in Portland, the Scientology Mission of Davis in Portland, and the Delphian Foundation, an organization staffed by Scientologists.

Attorneys for both sides said the case may be the first of its kind — essentially consumer fraud against a religious institution.

Sandra Ellingson of Los Angeles, the church's regional director of public affairs, said the verdict would be appealed.

The appeal probably will center on the judge's instructions to the jury, McMurry said. Circuit Judge Robert P. Jones told the jurors that if they decided the church's promises were of a religious nature — and sincerely advertised as such — state and federal constitutions protect the church from challenges to the truth of its beliefs.

After two days and 18 hours of deliberation, the jurors agreed unanimously that the church's promises did not qualify for that protection and found the defendants guilty of fraud.

Mrs. Titchbourne was awarded $1.9 million in punitive damages and $153,000 in compensatory damages.

Jack L. Kennedy, the church's attorney and president of the state bar association, was unavailable for comment. During the trial, he said he thought freedom of religion was being threatened.

He had described the lawsuit and reporters' inquiries into church affairs as the modern equivalent of burning at the stake those who hold unpopular religious views.

The Scientologists, who claimed Mrs. Titchbourne had voluntarily embraced the church, echoed that view: "A blow to all of those who cherish the right to practice their religion free," said Ms. Jones.

She said the church is being harassed by "psychiatrists and deprogrammers who have appointed themselves self-styled inquisitors."

The Church of Scientology was established in 1954 by science fiction writer L. Ron Hubbard. It is based on a mix of Eastern and Western religious philosophy and claims a membership of about 4 million with 22 churches and 100 missions worldwide. The church is based in Sussex, England, with its U.S. headquarters in Los Angeles.

The church fosters a belief of God and in man as a spiritual being, and that people possess spiritual powers they can develop to alter their daily lives.

Investigation begun on collapsed roof

CHICAGO (AP) — Investigators have begun a detailed study of how the collapsed roof of the $8 million Rosemont Horizon was put together.

"They're looking now at the construction sequence and procedures of the erection," Mayor Donald Stephens of the northwestern Chicago suburb of Rosemont said Wednesday.

Five workmen were killed and 15 injured when the wooden-beamed roof of the stadium fell in Monday, just after the day shift reported, and just after a low-flying jet flew over on an approach to nearby O'Hare International Airport.

Among those looking into the collapse are the Occupational Safety and Health Administration of the Labor Department, a consulting firm hired by the Village of Rosemont and engineers sent by a subcontractor.

OSHA spokesman James Lilljander said federal investigators are checking a report from union sources that a number of bolts were missing from connector beams in the roof.

Clements to Monterrey for more border talks

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Gov. Bill Clements flies to Monterrey, Mexico, today for the second of his talks with Mexican state governors on mutual border problems.

After a private half-hour talk, Clements and Nuevo Leon Gov. Martinez Dominguez will address a special joint session of the Nuevo Leon Congress Thursday afternoon.

Monterrey is 148 miles south of Laredo on the Rio Grande.

Clements visited Tuesday with Tamaulipas Gov. Enrique Cardenas Gonzalez in Ciudad Victoria. On Aug. 27 he has talks scheduled with Coahuila Gov. Oscar Flores Tapia in Saltillo and on Aug. 29 with Chihuahua Gov. Manuel Bernardo Aguirre in Chihuahua City.

Clements has said the main topics of the talks with governors of Mexican states adjoining Texas include illegal aliens, border drug trafficking and exchange of energy.

After the Tuesday talks, Clements said Cardenas Gonzalez agreed with him that illegal aliens, or undocumented workers, must be controlled both by the United States and Mexico. He said the Mexican governor agreed to contact the other governors and tell them of their accord.

Unnecessary antibiotics expensive to patients

BOSTON (AP) — American hospitals could save $100 million to $200 million a year if doctors stopped prescribing unnecessary doses of antibiotics after their patients undergo surgery, researchers say.

A Harvard study found that doctors sometimes order their patients to take infection-fighting drugs as a precaution for days and even weeks while they recuperate from surgery.

Eliminating this medicine would reduce hospitals' expenses for antibiotics by about 20 percent and cut down the frequency of adverse reactions to these powerful germ killers, the researchers said.

"This is a large economic waste, to say nothing of the medical consequences of prolonged usage," Dr. Timothy R. Townsend, one of the researchers, said in an interview.

The study, conducted at Harvard Medical School, was published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The doctors studied the way physicians gave antibiotics as a guard against infection in 20 general hospitals in Pennsylvania.

According to generally accepted practice, the researchers said, doctors should give these precautionary doses of medicine before, during and for a day after some kinds of surgery. More drugs than this adds no extra protection.

At the Pennsylvania hospitals, they reviewed 5,288 cases and found that 10 percent of the patients received this kind of medication, called prophylaxis.

However, of these, 80 percent were still getting the medication at least two days after their operations. Some continued to take the drugs until they were discharged more than 20 days after surgery.

The familiar tale of the nurse rushing to give the departing patient the last dose of antimicrobial drug before discharge has much credibility, they wrote.

They said that if the Pennsylvania pattern holds true for the rest of the nation, at least 3.3 million surgery patients receive precautionary antibiotics yearly.

Dr. Edward H. Kass, another of the researchers, said the actual cost of the drugs is only a small part of the potential multimillion dollar savings.

"Labor costs you more than the materials, as always," he said in an interview.

"It's the administration and the storing and the ordering that really adds to the cost. We estimate it's about a five-fold markup between the actual cost of the drug and the final cost of getting it into the patient."

Some people have adverse reaction, including fever and rashes, when they take antibiotics, the doctors noted.

Indiscriminate use of antibiotics also leads to the emergence of strains of bacteria that are resistant to the drugs.

According to federal statistics, Americans took $1.55 billion worth of infection-fighting medicines last year. This accounts for nearly 18 percent of all drugs used.

Young's resignation may damage peace process

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The resignation of Andrew Young concludes in utter failure the latest American effort to find some way to deal with the Palestine Liberation Organization. It is a failure that may have serious repercussions in the long run for the Camp David peace process and America's supply of imported oil.

Young's ill-fated meeting in New York last month with a PLO representative came at a time the Carter administration was trying hard behind the scenes to reach an accommodation with the PLO.

While Israel scorns the PLO as terrorist, the Arab world recognizes it as the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people.

Most of the U.S. feelers went out indirectly, through talks with other Arab countries, but Young decided to meet directly with the PLO representative to the U.N.

Since 1975, Israel has insisted that the United States pledge not to deal with the PLO unless it first recognized Israel's right to exist. In return, Israel agreed to the 1975 partial withdrawal from the Sinai and the 1979 treaty with Egypt.

Although the PLO has consistently refused to recognize Israel's right to exist, some spokesmen have indicated it might do so in return for international recognition of the Palestinians' right to form a state.

Young was trying — successfully — to delay a vote in the U.N. Security Council on a resolution supporting the right of the Palestinians to form their state on territory occupied by Israel in the 1967 war. The United States has announced it would veto such a resolution.

But Young failed in his larger objective of reaching agreement with the Palestinians on a compromise that both the United States and the PLO could support.

Such a compromise might have added to existing U.N. resolutions language affirming "the legitimate rights of the Palestinians."

Those existing resolutions affirm Israel's right to exist and outline a peace settlement in which it gives back territories captured in 1967 in return for recognition by the Arab world.

"In view of the rumor that the PLO was willing to accept Resolution 242... I thought it was worth this government taking the time to explore," Young said.

His exploration ended in failure. Israel was increasingly nervous about the indirect overtures the United States was making to the PLO. It asked for and got reassurances last week that the United States was not changing its policies.

The PLO, at a meeting of its national council two days later, insisted it would never accept a resolution that did not recognize its right to nationhood. The revelation of the Young meeting was the final blow to the American effort at compromise.

Now, the United States faces the likely prospect of being forced to veto a resolution on Palestinian rights in the Security Council meeting.

American officials said privately Wednesday such a veto would severely damage the prospects for getting Palestinian participation in the three-sided autonomy negotiations now going on among Israel, Egypt and the United States.

They said it would help Palestinian radicals convince moderates the United States does not have the will to force Israel to make significant concessions.

After that, the administration will have to assess the damage and begin looking for a new opening in hopes of minimizing the damages to its role as an honest broker in the Mideast conflict.

American officials have always acknowledged that the peace process that started at Camp David and continued with the Egypt-Israel peace treaty cannot succeed unless the Palestinians eventually enter the negotiations and accept the results.

Yachting mishaps occur with 'best equipment'

By COARA HEMPHILL

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Sailors who set out in ocean races have the best equipment money can buy, yachting experts say, but when storms whip up 70 mph winds and 30-foot waves, all the equipment in the world can't guarantee survival.

At least 10 sailors were known dead and scores unaccounted for when winds at near hurricane force slashed through yachts racing in the Admiral's Cup off the southwest coast of England on Tuesday.

"These boats are the cream of the crop," said Thomas F. Ehman Jr., staff director of the U.S. Yacht Racing Union in Newport. "But if you drop a boat off a 20- or 30-foot wave over and over again, nothing's going to hold up."

"They are all built to take bad weather," he added. "This is the worst kind of encounter we've had."

The boats in the race ranged in size from 40 to 80 feet. They are made of wood, fiberglass or aluminum, and many are custom designed for racing. Their crews number five to a dozen or more.

The more exotic yachts, such as Ted Turner's entry, the ocean racer Tenacious, cost as much as $500,000. Extra custom-tailored sails, on-board navigational computers and sophisticated radar equipment can add hundreds of thousands of dollars more.

On-shore support systems — electronic weather monitoring stations, satellite relays for navigation and communication equipment — can drive the cost of participating into the millions. That doesn't account for training, transporting and feeding an expert crew.

Gordon VanNes, a sailor from Chester, Conn., who has made several ocean crossings, said experience is important in races but in a bad storm it takes luck to get you through.

"Your survival is about 80 or 90 percent luck and equipment and 10 or 20 percent seamanship," he said.

And most of the skippers, seasoned experts to a man, probably never had seen weather like that which whipped through the Admiral's Cup race — let alone raced in it.

"The seas were the worst I've ever been in," said David Bootham, a survivor from the British yacht Magic. "We were floating for 10 hours until we were rescued."

Ehman said races have strict rules about safety equipment that must be kept on board. But VanNes said racers will sail their boats much harder than people who are cruising — and that's more dangerous.

"It's like a station wagon or the Indianapolis 500," VanNes said. "If you are just cruising you take the sail down sooner. In a race, you're sailing the boat much, much harder."

In the 1977 America's Cup, for example, a Swedish yacht, Sverige, lost a mast from the pounding of eight-foot waves and 30 mph winds. No one was injured, but later skipper Pelle Peterson said it felt as though the impact had broken his back.

It is not unusual for a crewman on the foredeck of such a racing yacht to be swept overboard by a wave while working on the rigging and later to be retrieved dangling from a sail or the end of a line.

Adventure, wealth and competitive spirit go hand-in-hand with ocean racing.

"It's a rich man's sport — like polo," VanNes said. "And you don't care how much it costs to win."

Men like Baron Bich of France have spent up to $6 million for a single America's Cup challenge here. The sport has drawn names like Thomas O.M. Sopwith and Sir Thomas Lipton of England.

"There is a romanticism to it," Ehman said. "It's man and boat against the elements. It's not only physical, but there's tactics and strategies and the aerodynamics of getting the boat to go."

Low-denomination bonds put more than money in hands of citizens

EAST BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Lending money to local governments to build schools, government offices or roads has always been a rich man's game. But now, in this commuter town, anyone can play.

The money that cities across the country borrow is raised through municipal bonds — about $60 billion worth last year alone — offering a very good deal for the banks, insurance companies and the few individuals who can afford them. They offer interest rates usually well above those offered by banks — tax free.

Normally they are issued in denominations of $5,000 or more, out of reach of most small savers.

But East Brunswick, N.J., has decided to give the small investor a piece of the action. A person with as little as $100 can now buy one of the city's tax-free bonds.

And the idea has worked so well for this town of 40,000 that the state of Massachusetts; Framingham, Mass.; Ocean County, N.J., and Union Township, N.J., have offered similar low denomination bonds. Rochester, N.Y., says it will market a $500,000 bond with small denominations as soon as the Federal Reserve and local banking authorities approve it.

L. Mason Neely, East Brunswick's 39-year old finance director, explained in a recent interview that making the change wasn't simply a matter of going to the printer and asking for low denominations for his town's bonds. It involved complex talks with banking associations, the Federal Reserve and the Treasury Department.

Ultimately, Neely said, the key issue was the paper itself that bonds are printed on.

The standard municipal bond, invented in 1840 and virtually unchanged since then, typically has an intricately printed design on very expensive paper. Attached to it are coupons with maturity dates.

Each time one of the coupons is due, the bearer clips it, and goes to the bank and redeems the tax-free interest. The problem is that keeping track of these old-style coupons sets off many expensive hours of paper work at banks and in the cities themselves.

That is why cities issue the bonds in high denominations. Bonds sold in chunks small enough for the average investor would crush cities and banks in unbearable paper work.

Neely solved that problem. Simply, he invented a new kind of municipal bond that looks like — and acts like — an ordinary check, payable to the bearer. It clears a bank, and cities can keep track of them, many times more quickly and cheaply than a coupon.

And that finally opened the door to the small investor.

Last September, East Brunswick made its first offering of its then-unique bonds, a $500,000 issue in $100, $200 and $500 denominations that was bought so eagerly that the town offered another $500,000 issue in November. It, too, sold out.

Since then, the State of Massachusetts sold a $1 million low-denomination issue on Jan. 9; Framingham, Mass., sold $600,000 in bonds in March; Ocean County marketed $1 million in April; Union Township issued $575,000 in July, and Rochester sold $500,000 in August.

Undeniably, the new municipal bonds offer a good incentive to the small investor, said Neely. As an example, a married couple earning $17,000 who bought a municipal bond with a 6 percent interest rate would actually make 8 percent, counting the tax-free feature.

Where else, asked Neely, can $100 fetch an 8 percent return?

Dramatic drop in television violence continues pattern

WASHINGTON (AP) — A survey shows the dramatic drop in television violence that began in 1976 has continued at least through the spring of this year, a public interest group headed by Ralph Nader reports.

The National Citizens Committee for Broadcasting said Wednesday the 1976 weekly average of 190 acts of television violence declined to 173 in 1977 and to 168 early this year.

ABC was found to be the most violent network, followed closely by NBC. CBS was reported almost 50 percent less violent than ABC — a sharp reversal from 1977, when CBS increased its violent programming.

The committee, headed by Nader and former Federal Communications Commission member Nicholas Johnson, had a private firm monitor prime-time commercial television for four weeks last May. The survey also rated major commercial sponsors on the violent programs they support.

The 12 most violent prime-time programs, in order, were listed as Young Guy Christian, The Duke, Cliff Hangers, Buffalo Soldiers, Charlie's Angels, Greatest Heroes of the Bible, Rockford Files, Dukes of Hazzard, Walt Disney, Incredible Hulk, Super Train and Vegas.

Of the more than 60 programs monitored, 28 had zero ratings for violence.

The index was computed using the number of violent episodes and the total violent time. Advertiser ratings were based on the number of spots bought on violent programs.

The committee did not relate the violence ratings to the most popular programs with viewers, but a comparison of the latest Nielsen survey for the week ending Aug. 11 showed that of the 11 most popular with viewers, six had zero violence ratings: The Jeffersons, One Day at a Time, WKRP in Cincinnati, Three's Company, Barney Miller and Carter Country. Other top-rated programs among the second and third lowest categories for violence were Alice, M-A-S-H and Lou Grant.

The survey by bi Associates, a Washington-area firm specializing in broadcast studies, was funded by the Church of the Brethren, the United Methodist Church, the American Lutheran Church, the Reformed Church in America, and Thomas Radecki, psychiatrist supporter of the committee.

Day of mourning for Elvis, Vernon

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Grace-land Mansion's gates are closed in mourning today, the second anniversary of Elvis Presley's death. But the singer's uncle says most of the disappointed fans are sympathetic.

"Most of them seem to understand," Vester Presley said. "If it was one of their own family, they'd do the same thing."

It will be a day of mourning for Elvis and his father Vernon, who died in June.

Before his death, Vernon Presley asked that the white gates of the mansion be shut to visitors on the day his 42-year-old son died of heart disease in 1977.

The gravesites of the singer, his mother, Gladys, and Vernon Presley are in Graceland's meditation garden at the south end of the Southern colonial mansion. Visitors have been coming in increasing numbers all week.

Vester Presley said thousands of persons have been snaking their way up the mansion driveway this week. He said he counted 3,684 visitors on Wednesday.

Despite the closed gates, there are enough Presley-inspired activities in Memphis to occupy even the most ardent fans.

Memphis State University is hosting a 14-hour tribute to the entertainer, including nonstop showing of such movies as "King Creole," "Blue Hawaii" and "Jailhouse Rock."

The university is hosting a day-long seminar on Presley and his music involving faculty, entertainers and journalists who covered the singer's

Sam Phillips, who launched Presley's career, is to receive the Memphis music industry's first Distinguished Service Award during a banquet tonight at Memphis State. Recording artists Chet Atkins, Brenda Lee, Jerry Lee Lewis and Faron Young are scheduled to perform at the banquet.

The Reagan County town of Big Lake sits smack in the middle of ranching and oil country. (Staff Photo by Ed Todd)

Big Lake's lake is dry again

Land's better suited for drilling, grazing

The lake from which the town of Big Lake gets its name currently is dry. (Staff Photo by Ed Todd)

BIG LAKE — The lake at Big Lake is plumb dry...again.

Naturally. "It's a wet-weather lake," said Reagan County Sheriff James Proffitt.

Big Lake — the town — has been dry weather-wise more times than it has been wet.

And the lake has been as dry as sagebrush since last summer, when the fish, too, went the way of the water.

It wasn't always thataway. "Yeah, I used to swim in it," said native Big Laker O.B. Orr. That was back in the 1930s when he was just a tyke.

"That lake has filled up and dried out, filled up and dried out" so many times that it would take a pile of sticks to keep count, said Orr, who now lives in Midland.

And unlike the olden days, when buffalos wallowed here and Indians camped at lakeside, there's no spring to replenish the lake.

"There's no way water can get in it except by a rain," said Proffitt. And it would take a whale of a rain, between here and Texon, to get enough run-off from the watershed to fill the shallow lake.

"We have to have about 40 inches (of rainfall)," quipped Big Lake Chamber of Commerce Secretary Liz Reisner, "and we don't get that too often."

Years ago, say a century or more ago, the then spring-fed lake was about the only watering hole between San Angelo and Fort Stockton.

And it was this fickle lake that gave the town its name around 1911, when the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railway came through this ranching country in its ambitious route to Topolobampo, Mexico.

The railroad, much to the distaste of ranchers in the older settlement of Stiles, 18 miles to the northwest, bypassed that community and ultimately led to its downfall.

In 1925, Big Lake wrenched the county seat from Stiles in an election that was a bitterly fought as hapless natives fight blizzards and drought.

Two years earlier, on May 28, 1923, the historic Santa Rita No. 1 oil well was brought in on the Big Lake Field. Oil camps such as Texon and Best, a lively community known as the "town with best name and the worst reputation," cropped up, flourished and eventually dried out.

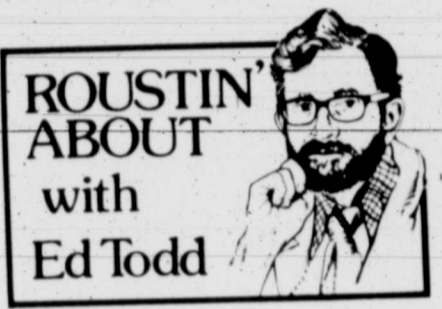

Only Big Lake remains, and the town-and-country denizens largely find their livelihood and affluence in petroleum production, ranching and limited farming.

Today, Big Lake, is a prosperous, tidy burg of 2,500 folks about 70 miles south of Midland.

In many instances, the town has the same conveniences and facilities as do bigger cities — only on a smaller scale.

Big Lake is in the middle of dry prairie-land country that's far better suited for drilling oil-and-gas wells and grazing sheep, cattle and cabrito goat than for farming, water sports, or mountain climbing.

Since 1948, though, irrigated-cotton farming in the northern part of the country, up toward St. Lawrence in Glasscock County, has been making inroads.

ROUSTIN ABOUT with Ed Todd

Big Lake's namesake, that dry playa pool, sprawls about two miles south of town, across Texas 137.

As recently as two years ago, the lake afforded not-bad fishing. The catch included catfish, perch, crappie, carp, possibly a few turtles and reptiles.

Today, though dry, the lake bed is ideal for livestock grazing.

Andrew Young disdained violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Andrew Young stood up to Bull Connor's fire hoses in Birmingham.

He was a protege of Martin Luther King. He was the first black elected to Congress from Georgia since Reconstruction.

He helped elect a white southerner to the presidency.

None of this prepared him for the cautious, understated world of diplomacy. Young was not much for cautious understatement.

He is a preacher. He values words over violence. But he has learned that words, too, can cause trouble.

Young has resigned as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations after admitting he had been untruthful about a meeting last month with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

In the beginning, Young's candor was accepted with cheerful tolerance.

But, as officials found themselves explaining that Young's words did not necessarily reflect U.S. policy, patience wore thin.

President Carter called Young on the carpet several times. Last month, he was reported to have rebuked Young in front of the Cabinet.

But even then, it was reported, Carter said Young's contribution to American foreign policy — particularly in Africa and the under-developed world — far outweighed the trouble he caused.

The same day Young presented his credentials to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, he paid a courtesy call at the U.N. office of the Organization of African Unity. That began a close association with the powerful 49-nation group that continues. He often took trips to Africa and entertained African and Caribbean leaders on their visits to New York.

Young's wife, Jean, once told an interviewer that Young was a preacher no matter what his job title.

He took the U.N. post because it offered an "international congregation," she said.

Young was born in New Orleans, the son of a prosperous dentist and a schoolteacher-mother. He grew up in a neighborhood predominantly Irish and Italian.

"I was taught to fight when people called me 'nigger,'" he once said. "That's when I learned that negotiation was better than fighting."

At the Hartford Theological Seminary in Connecticut, studying the teachings of Mohandas Gandhi, he became convinced he could "change this country without violence."

He was ordained in the largely white United Church of Christ. He served black congregations in Marion, Ala., and Thomasville and Beachton, Ga.

When the civil rights movement dawned, he led a voter registration drive. Then he worked with white youths in New York City for the National Council of Churches for four years. Later a registration project in the South put him in contact with King.

He became King's aide in 1964. He was in charge of the demonstration on May 3, 1963, when Police Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor used fire hoses to repulse marchers in Birmingham, Ala.

After King's death and the Poor People's march in Washington, Young entered politics. He put together a coalition of civil rights veterans and opposed white Republican Rep. Fletcher Thompson, who said Young's election would lead to the collapse of western civilization.

Thompson won, but two years later a court ordered the state redistricted and Young won a House seat.

In Congress, he was a liberal. He supported extending the minimum wage to cover domestic workers, day-care, food stamps, busing, tax reform, simplified voter registration and land reclamation.

Young and Carter met in Georgia's 1970 gubernatorial campaign. Carter often consulted him. In 1976, Young wanted a more liberal man for president, but finally supported Carter as the Democrat most likely to win.

Carter's debt to him is shown in these figures: Carter won by 1,744,000 votes. An inner-city registration drive headed by Young registered 3,104,000 new voters.

Young first hesitated about the U.N. job — his black colleagues called it a dead end — but took it when promised a role in formulating policy.

Announcing Young's resignation sad duty for Jody Powell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jody Powell choked back sobs when he read Jimmy Carter's letter accepting Andy Young's resignation. Several times. To dozens of stunned reporters.

That, as well as anything else, illustrates the closeness of the relationship between the president of the United States and his ambassador to the United Nations.

Powell, Carter's normally wise-cracking press secretary, showed an uncharacteristic side when he read to reporters the president's handwritten letter accepting the resignation.

Jews, blacks split over Young case

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson is holding the American Jewish community partially responsible for the resignation of U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young and says Jewish and black leaders should meet to discuss their differences.

Jackson said Wednesday night black-Jewish relations are more tense now than at any time in the past 25 years as a result of Young's resignation. Young was supposed to be the main speaker at the annual convention of the predominantly black Southern Christian Leadership Conference here, but cancelled his appearance after deciding to step down earlier in the day. His resignation cast a cloud over the proceedings.

Jackson, head of a black self-help group called Operation PUSH (People United to Save Humanity), called on President Carter to name a black to replace Young.

He said blacks must now concern themselves with Jewish attitudes as well as those of the Ku Klux Klan and the Nazi party.

"The Klan didn't move on Andy," Jackson said, drawing enthusiastic applause from the more than 1,000 SCLC delegates.

In calling for a new dialog with American Jews, Jackson alluded to past Jewish support of the civil right movement.

"We've been together too long and we've been together through too much not to be able to talk," he said. "We must talk. It is time to talk."

Jackson assailed the close ties Israel maintains with South Africa and said it was shortsighted for Israel and the United States not to deal with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

It was Young's unauthorized contact with a PLO official last month that led to his resignation.

Jackson suggested that Young may have been the victim of an Israeli spying operation. In that connection, The Atlanta Constitution reported later Wednesday night that Israeli spies originally leaked word of the Young meeting with the PLO official.

Davis defense to zero in on FBI agent

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The defense in the murder-for-hire trial of industrialist Cullen Davis was to zero in today on an FBI agent whose testimony cast a shadow on defense strategy.

Lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes planned to continue his cross-examination of FBI agent Ron Jannings, the state's second witness. Jannings testified Wednesday he searched informant David McCrory before and after two pivotal meetings with Cullen Davis and found no trace of a "phantom" tape recorder.

Prosecutors called Jannings in an effort to undermine Davis' contention that he knew he was being recorded when he discussed mass murder with McCrory.

Davis, a 45-year-old Fort Worth millionaire, is accused of inducing McCrory to hire a gunman to kill Davis' divorcee, named on a purported "hit list."

The defense maintains Davis was duped by McCrory in a loosely organized conspiracy orchestrated by the defendant's ex-wife, Priscilla, 38, who at the time was locked in a high-stakes divorce struggle with Davis.

McCrory, 41, the state's key witness, was wired for sound by the FBI when he met with Davis last Aug. 18 and 20.

In his first trial, Davis testified McCrory also carried a hand-held Norelco recorder at the first meeting and produced two mini-cassettes at the second.

"Did you find a Norelco tape recorder?" prosecutor John Bankston asked Jannings repeatedly.

"No, sir," he replied. "Did you see any mini-cassettes?" Bankston continued, referring to searches of both McCrory and his car.

"No, sir." Davis acknowledged during his first trial he freely discussed the murders of Judge Joe Eidsen, Priscilla and others and debated the price tag on each slaying.

But he insisted he was tricked into thinking he was cooperating with the FBI and that, through McCrory, the tapes would be used to torpedo an attempt on his own life.

The jury in that trial, in Houston, deadlocked 8-4 for conviction last January and a mistrial was declared.

The FBI tapes of the two meetings are central to the state's case and are expected to be introduced into evidence as early as next week.

Older generation, as well as younger, get ceiling fans, 'good ol' days' back

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

The older generation routinely tells younger folks what it was like in "the good ol' days."

They speak of hardships, but also of an unhurried pace, ice lemonade on front porches and the pleasure of just lollygagging around the house in the summertime, watching ceiling fans swish against the heat.

Those days — the ceiling fan days — are coming back. And quickly.

Offering thanks to President Jimmy Carter and the energy shortage, Midland retailers of ceiling fans say they are doing well with the old-fashioned, blade-flailing "coolers."

Ceiling fans were popular in the early half of the 20th century, but eventually they were replaced by evaporative coolers. Later, refrigerated air units came to be top sellers in some parts of the country as people grew busier and more "turned off" by sweat.

WITH ELECTRIC RATES increasing and thermostats being turned up toward a requested 78 degrees (the request having come from President Carter), more and more Midlanders have gone in search of cheap, or at least cheaper, providers of cool air.

And that search has taken some of them right back to the electric ceiling fan so popular in Grandma's parlor-courtroom days.

Texas Electric Service Co. checked the usage of various types of cooling units and TESCO reports indicate ceiling fans are the cheapest way to go.

Using a five-speed fan on the highest setting for 24 hours costs a consumer about eight cents a day, says Shug Bowlin of TESCO.

Run at low speed for the same period of time, the fan's power-use cost drops to about five cents, he claims.

An oscillating fan will cost a similar amount to operate all day — about eight cents. A box fan uses more energy; it's cost runs to 14.5 cents a day, Bowlin says.

Evaporative air conditioners take the energy cost up to 48 cents for 24 continuous hours, according to Bowlin.

REFRIGERATED AIR UNITS, though, push the cost up to $3 a day, Bowlin says.

That last figure is based on a four-ton unit being operated on a 24-hour basis to keep a building at 75 degrees. If the thermostat is turned to 78 degrees, the cost would go down to $2.50, he estimates.

Low electricity usage gives ceiling fans their appeal, say two local retailers.

Janet Young, who operates a ceiling fan store, says a 56-inch ceiling fan at its highest speed uses about 80 watts of electricity.

Principle behind the fan is not that it produces cold air. It doesn't.

Instead, notes one retailer, a ceiling fan's blades circulate whatever amount of cool air exists in the room.

In large part, says Bowlin, ceiling fans are little more than psychological aids in making people feel cooler.

But Midlanders apparently like that aid. And the initial cost — ceiling fans start around $100 — seems not to be deterring local buyers.

One dealer says his company has difficulty keeping the fans in stock.

Mrs. Young, who along with her husband, Bruce, owns a fan dealership, says sales are going well.

"IT'S JUST GETTING HARD to live with the electric bills," Mrs. Young notes.

Ceiling fans are not being purchased as substitutes to refrigerated air conditioning, say dealers, but as supplements.

"In the store, our air conditioner is set at 82 degrees, and with the fans it's comfortable," Mrs. Young claims.

Another dealer says he has fans in his home and keeps the thermostat at 78 degrees.

"They (fans) really help keep houses with the high vaulted ceilings cool," he maintains.

What's more, ceiling fans have uses other than in the summer. Instructions with the fans tell how they can be used in winter to keep hot air circulating — an important point to consider in that Midlanders and others may be asked again this winter to turn their thermostats down to 68 degrees.

Purchasers sometimes buy a single ceiling fan for living-room placement, says Mrs. Young, but often they come back and get one for each bedroom and kitchen.

MANY HOME BUILDERS, too, are including ceiling fans in their house plans now, says another retailer. Offices and industries also have been among customers as word has spread, say local dealers.

Installation observes one Midland installer, usually is as easy as putting in a light fixture. A few of the larger and heavier models may require some professional aid.

Customers also can have their pick of styles in keeping with the decor of office or home.

Business shouldn't slack off, Midland dealers predict. They say ceiling fans became popular last summer in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and are just now catching on in the Midland-Odessa petroplex.

Besides, quips Mrs. Young with a laugh, "President Carter is our best selling point."

Cubs back on beam, 8-4

EL PASO — The Midland Cubs maintained their 1½-game lead over San Antonio in the Texas League West here Wednesday night with an 8-4 victory over the El Paso Diablos. Catcher Ted May's solo homer to right field to open the seventh inning broke open a 4-4 tie and provided the Cubs with the margin they needed for the win. Later in the seventh a single by Eric Grandy plated Dan Rohn for a 6-4 lead.

Midland added two runs in the ninth inning for the final margin when Javier Fierro belted a two-run homer to left field after Carlos Lezcano had walked to open the frame.

Midland jumped to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning with five back-to-back singles and a two-run double by Brian Rosinski.

Herman Segelke, 11-7, got the victory after going eight innings, but he had trouble in the early going. El Paso scored a single run in the first on a RBI double by Steve Lubratich and then touched Segelke with three more in the third behind a two-run single by Bradt Humphry.

Hill dominates golf

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Match-play hasn't been much of a challenge for Carolyn Hill so far in the 70th U.S. Women's Amateur Golf Championship. In 46 holes, she has lost only one.

"I've really felt up the last couple of days," Hill of Placentia, Calif., said Wednesday after advancing to today's third round with a 5 and 4 victory over Lynn Connelly.

"I've had my problems with my game, but they vary from day to day and I've kind of improved," the 20-year-old Tulsa University coed said.

A member of the 1978 U.S. Curtis Cup team, Hill is 4-under-par over 46 holes at the par-72, 6,080-yard Memphis Country Club. She was 2-under-par after Wednesday's second round, 3-under-par Tuesday and shot a 73 to qualify.

The only hole she has lost over two rounds came Wednesday when she three-putted the 10th hole while Connelly of North Palm Beach, Fla., shot a par-4.

In other second-round action Wednesday, Patty Sheehan of Reno, Nev., defeated Laurie Reichenbach, 5 and 4, and qualifying medalist Kathy Baker of Clover, S.C., defeated Lisa Cluver of Alexandria, Minn., 2 up.

Lori Castillo of Honolulu, holder of the U.S. Girls' Junior Champion and the U.S. Women's Amateur Public Links titles, also advanced. She defeated Tanna Lee of Fort Smith, Ark., 4 and 3.

Marla Anderson of Jacksonville, Fla., who upset former champion Carol Semple in the first round, fell to Peggy Kirsch of Duluth, Minn., 5 and 4.

The women were to play two rounds today, 18 holes this morning in the third round and 18 in the afternoon for the fourth round.

Hill meets Mitzi Edge, Augusta, Ga.; Sheehan plays Sue Ertl, Ionia, Mich.; Castillo faces Ann Ranta, Lake Worth, Fla., and Kirsch plays Beverley Davis, Raeford, N.C.

That tied the score at 4-4, but Segelke went on to retire the next 11 batters to nail down the win, thanks to the big homers by May and Fierro.

The Cubs face El Paso again tonight and Friday before returning home to face Amarillo Saturday at Cubs Stadium at 7:30 p.m.

AL may send fifth best team into World Series

In the immortal words of Oliver Hardy, the American League finds itself "in a fine kettle of fish." And only a few years ago, baseball was snickering up its sleeve at the National Football League and the embarrassing plight of the pigskin fraternity could find itself in any year now.

Only a few years ago, the NFL was saddled with a rule that counted, in effect, a tie as a game that had never been played. When it came time to figure out the won-lost percentages, ties just didn't count.

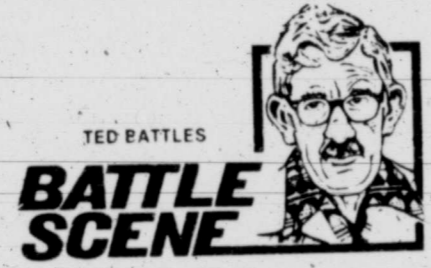

The won-lost-tied percentage of a team with a 3-0-11 record would beat out a team that compiled a 13-1 record. Naturally, NFL officials knew it could never happen that way...or could it?

In 1963, the Pittsburgh Steelers entered an important game with the New York Giants in position to win the divisional championship, even if it had three fewer victories than the Giants. Conveniently, the Steelers had thought to play three "no-fault" ties.

The NFL eventually took steps to prevent this potential farce by counting the tie a half game won and a half game lost in determining the percentages to restore sanity to the violent world of pro football.

NOW THE shoe is on the other foot. The American League, divided into two unwieldy seven-team divisions, this year adopted a schedule in which every team plays every other team an equal number of times.

It wasn't bad enough that the arrangement reduced the number of intra-divisional showdowns between contenders, but it eliminated some attractive dates between such traditional hostiles as New York and Boston. Strangely enough, the fans bought it lock, stock and barrel. Instead of feeling a financial pinch, attendance in the American League is up. However, it produced some odd quirks in the schedule. Milwaukee, for example, is contending for the East Division pennant, but won't play any of the other contenders again this season, having finished with Baltimore, Boston and New York.

ON THE other hand, the Brewers will be deeply involved in deciding the race in the West. They have 26 games left with California, Texas, Kansas City and Minnesota.

Maybe that shouldn't be too surprising. Since the Brewers will basically play each opponent 12 times, it means they will play more games against West division foes than opponents in their own division, meeting seven West foes and six from the East, an awkward situation at best.

However, the cruelest jest of all may be saved for last. The American League could easily wind up sending its fourth or fifth best team into the "World" Series, should the West winner get lucky in the playoff.

Of course, the same thing could happen in the National League, but with the senior circuit intra-divisionally oriented (playing more games within its division than outside), it is at least camouflaged to some extent.

But consider the current AL standings. Baltimore, Boston and Milwaukee all have better winning percentages than California, the leader in the West, and before it's over, chances are the Yankees will too.

If you think you hear snickering, it could be very well be from the NFL.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Coe's 3:32.1 in 1,500 meters sets world mark

TRACK AND FIELD—Sebastian Coe of Britain set a world record for the 1,500 meters with an official time of 3 minutes, 32.1 seconds in the Zurich International Track and Field meet. Coe improved by one tenth of a second the old mark of 3:32.2 set by Tanzania's Filbert Bayi in New Zealand, on Feb. 2, 1974.

YACHTING—Seventeen yachtsmen were known to have died in the disastrous storm which hit the Fastnet yacht race and other vessels in the 20,000 square miles area of the Atlantic between southern Ireland and Cornwall. The dead include 13 Britons, one American, Frank H. Ferris, who lived in London, and one Dutchman. Nationalities of the other two dead were not immediately certain.

TENNIS—Top-seeded Martina Navratilova crushed Sue Barker of Britain 6-2, 6-0 and second-ranked Virginia Wade of Britain whipped Yugoslavia's Mima Jausovec 6-3, 6-1 in the second-round of a $100,000 women's tournament at Richmond. In the other major matches, seventh-seeded Greer Stevens of South Africa defeated Diane Morrison 6-2, 6-1 and Anne Smith upset Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3... Top-seeded Bjorn Borg advanced to the third round in the Canadian Open tennis championships with a 6-0, 6-3 win over Ivan Moolina while Evonne Goolagong Cawley, the top women's seed, was forced to default to Dianne Desfor because of a recurring back ailment. In other second-round men's play, second-seeded John McEnroe defeated Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, 7-5, 6-3... Top-seeded Jimmy Connors cruised past Steve Docherty 6-4, 6-3, in a $75,000 Grand Prix tournament at Stowe, Vt. In other play, Tim Gullikson eliminated Ferdie Taygan, 7-6, 6-2 and Tom Gullikson ousted Jan Norback of Finland, 6-3, 6-3...

BASEBALL—Charles O. Finley won dismissal as a defendant in a $110 million damage suit brought by the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum. But a federal judge refused to do the same for Charles O. Finley and Co., as owner of the Oakland A's baseball club. U.S. District Court Judge Alfonso Zirpoli earlier this week granted Finley — as an individual defendant — a summary judgment saying "there can be no doubt that even personal motives will not defeat the privilege of a general manager acting within the scope of his authority."

BOWLING—Joe Berardi held a 36-pin lead over Paul Colwell after two rounds of the $70,000 Greater Buffalo Open. Berardi rolled 1321 for the six-game set and has a 12-game total of 2,653. George Pappas is in third place just one pin behind Colwell. Bill Coleman was fourth with 2,605 and non-winner Art Trask fills out the top five at 2,591.

Taste the moment... in Erlanger.

Come taste what a hundred and thirty years of brewing tradition and a lifetime of dreams have given us... Erlanger. A beer brewed solely for taste. It's rich, brewed with Klages Barley and Hallertau Hops. It's uncommonly smooth and full-bodied.

And it brings together everything we've worked and hoped for in our finest beer. It'll be a bit more expensive than most, and available only in bottles, but here at Jos. Schlitz, that's the only way we could bring Erlanger to you.

Pirates like first, maybe they'll keep it

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates — now there's a team that appreciates being in first place.

The Pirates, who used to make it a habit winning the National League East title, went more than two years before gaining the division's top spot on July 28 this season.

They only stayed there a day, but moved in again on Aug. 5. And now they may never leave.

"I think the World Series is well within our grasp," said Bill Robinson, who belted a home run as the Pirates beat the San Diego Padres 5-1 Wednesday night.

Robinson, of course, is one of the main reasons that the Pirates are doing so well these days, even if he isn't playing as much as last year because of the acquisition of John Milner. Robinson's homer was his 23rd, pretty good for a "part-timer."

"You put personal feelings aside when you play on a championship team," said Robinson, talking about his part-time status. "You just go out and blood-and-guts it and play the best you can."

"And at the end of the year, they give the checks to everybody. They don't say, 'You only played half a season.'"

Along with Robinson's solo homer, Dave Parker hit a two-run shot for Pittsburgh. Bert Blyleven, 10-4, provided strong pitching with a four-hitter.

Phillies 3, Reds 2—Nino Espinosa pitched a five-hitter and singled home a run in the second inning as Philadelphia broke a four-game losing streak by beating Cincinnati.

Espinosa, 13-9, was touched for a run-scoring double by Harry Spilman in the second inning, and an RBI base hit by Dave Collins in the eighth while pitching his eighth complete game as a member of the Phillies this season.

"This is like he was throwing earlier in the year," said Philadelphia catcher Bob Boone about Espinosa, who started the season with a 4-0 record after being acquired from the New York Mets. "He had good command of the corners. When the guy's against them in Montreal June 17. Houston center fielder Terry Puhl said left handers are hard on the Astros, but Schatzeder has been especially tough.

Puhl said the combination of that move and the strong right arm of catcher Gary Carter kept the free-running Astros at bay.

"It's almost impossible to steal against that motion combined with a catcher like Carter," Puhl said.

Carter, who's been slumping at the plate lately, also got into the scoring act Wednesday by supplying the Expos' first run, which proved to be the only one they would need to beat Niemi, 10-7.

The catcher singled to open the second inning, advanced on an error and scored on a double-play ground-putting it there it's easy to call a good game. If we're going to get back in this race, we're going to need excellent pitching. Nino's probably been our most consistent pitcher through the white season."

Cubs 6, Giants 5—Bill Buckner's leadoff homer in the seventh inning powered Chicago over San Francisco. Buckner's game-winning wallop overcame a pair of two-run shots by the Giants' Mike Ivie.

Buckner's 13th homer of the season allowed Rick Reuschel to improve his record to 13-7 with late relief help from Bruce Sutter. The top relief specialist in the majors posted his 29th save.

"I wanted seven innings from him and I stayed with Reuschel because the score was tied," said Chicago Manager Herman Franks. "And it worked out all right."

Dodgers 6, Cardinals 5—Rick Sutcliffe pitched seven strong innings, singled home a run and doubled and scored, helping Los Angeles beat St. Louis. The Dodger attack also included blood-and-guts it and play the best you can.

Sutcliffe, 11-8, allowed the Cards only three hits and no runs through the first seven innings, but needed relief help from Dave Patterson after giving up a two-run single to Ted Simmons in the eighth. Patterson gave up a two-run base hit to Terry Mumfry before putting down the upring.

Ken Brett pitched the ninth for the Dodgers, posting his first save after giving up an unearned run. Silvio Martinez, 10-6 took the loss.

Mets 6, Braves 3—Doug Flynn had a two-run single and scored another run from second base on a wild pitch as New York defeated Atlanta. Flynn's two-run single came in the seventh when the Mets took a game-breaking 6-2 lead.

Craig Swan, 12-9, worked into the seventh inning for the Mets before he was chased by four Atlanta singles that produced only one run. Neil Allen finished up, gaining his fourth save.

Montreal discovers key to Astrodome success

HOUSTON (AP) — The Montreal Expos gave Houston a dose of its own medicine, combining clutch hitting, speed on the bases and tough pitching to take their first win in the Astrodome since April 1978.

Dan Schatzeder held the Astros to just two hits in five innings before his shoulder stiffened. He gave way to Scott Sanderson who allowed just three more singles as the Expos blanked Houston 3-0 Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Montreal batters were banging out 10 hits of their own, including two each by Andre Dawson and Ellis Valentine, who also stole a base apiece along with Rodney Scott.

"I like pitching to clubs like Houston who rely on left-handed hitting," said Schatzeder, who beat the Astros and Joe Niemi 19-3 when he pitched against them in Montreal June 17. Houston center fielder Terry Puhl said left handers are hard on the Astros, but Schatzeder has been especially tough.

Puhl said the combination of that move and the strong right arm of catcher Gary Carter kept the free-running Astros at bay.

"It's almost impossible to steal against that motion combined with a catcher like Carter," Puhl said.

Carter, who's been slumping at the plate lately, also got into the scoring act Wednesday by supplying the Expos' first run, which proved to be the only one they would need to beat Niemi, 10-7.

The catcher singled to open the second inning, advanced on an error and scored on a double-play ground-

Newell defends Kermit

HOUSTON (AP) — Pete Newell, former general manager of the Los Angeles Lakers, said he believed Kermit Washington struck Houston Rocket star Rudy Tomjanovich "by simple reaction, an involuntary response."

Earlier Wednesday, Washington gave his account to the federal court jury of the one-punch fight Dec. 9, 1977, when he hit Tomjanovich in the face. The Rocket captain suffered a fractured jaw, fractured skull, broken nose, other facial injuries and leakage of spinal fluid.

It was the bottom of the 12th inning, the score was 1-1, and there were two out. Doug DeCinces led off first, Eddie Murray led off third and Chicago pitcher Guy Hoffman had a 1-2 count on Baltimore pinch-hitter Benny Ayala.

One more strike, and it's on to the 13th inning. But as it turned out, Hoffman had the Orioles right where they wanted him.

While Hoffman went into his stretch, Murray danced off third. Hoffman glanced at him, then at DeCinces.

Then Murray took off for the plate and there was a robbery in progress at Memorial Stadium.

"If the pitcher hesitates or takes a step towards first, he's dead," said DeCinces, who watched the pitcher take that fateful step towards first as Murray streaked home to score standing up and give the Orioles a 2-1 triumph over the White Sox Wednesday night.

"You should have seen the expression on his face," said DeCinces, the bait in the lure that allowed Murray to score. "First, it looks like he's saying, 'I got you.' And then, 'Oh, no!'"

"Before Ayala came up," said Hoffman, 0-3, "I told myself not to be surprised at anything. But after I got ahead on the count, I forgot about that and the only thing on my mind was to get him out."

"If I had looked to third, like I've been taught all my life, I would have gotten Murray," said Hoffman.

It was the Orioles' second 2-1, 12-inning victory over the White Sox in as many nights, their 24th one-run triumph of the season and the 24th they've recorded in the seventh inning or later.

While Murray and DeCinces pulled off the base-running gem, Orioles pitcher Mike Flanagan, 16-7, went the full 12 innings, giving up just five hits while striking out 12 and walking only one.

Red Sox 9, Twins 5—Carl Yastrzemski hit a two-run homer in the four-run eighth inning that snapped a 5-5 tie and sent Boston to its 14th consecutive home victory over Minnesota.

Twins Manager Gene Mauch insists he will not consider the Red Sox victory official until a ruling is issued on his protest.

He claimed Boston Manager Don Zimmer was permitted an extra visit with pitcher Dick Drago in the ninth inning. Zimmer claimed he only went on the field to ascertain the condition of plate umpire Steve Palermo, who had been struck with a foul tip off the bat of Twins pinch-hitter Willie Norwood.

"In all sincerity, they'll have to get Norwood out again with another pitcher to make this game official," said Mauch. "This game means just as much to us as it does them."

Jim Rice hit his 32nd homer of the year for Boston while teammate Fred Lynn passed the 100-RBI mark with two run-scoring singles.

Brewers 6, Royals 5—Gorman Thomas drew a bases-loaded walk on a 3-2 pitch with two out in the ninth inning to force in Cecil Cooper with the run that lifted Milwaukee over Kansas City.

Singles by Cooper and Sixto Lezcano, plus an intentional walk to Ben Oglivie preceded Thomas' appearance.

The fourth ball was thrown by Marty Pattin, who relieved Al Hrabosky with the count 3-1 on Thomas. Pattin's first pitch was a strike, but the next one — which the Royals claimed was in the same location — was called a ball by plate umpire Greg Kosce.

Tigers 6, Angels 1—Jason Thompson's two-run homer in the fourth inning backed the pitching of rookie Dan Petry to carry Detroit over California.

Petry carried a two-hitter into the ninth, but was replaced by Pat Underwood after walking leadoff batter Don Baylor and reaching the 110-pitch limit Manager Sparky Anderson had set.

Mariners 3, Indians 2—Willie Horton's two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the eighth powered Seattle past Cleveland.

A's 3, Blue Jays 1—Consecutive fifth-inning singles by Rob Piccolo, Rickey Henderson, Dwayne Murphy and Wayne Gross drove in the run that helped Oakland beat Toronto and snap a five-game losing streak.

The crowd of 2,151 at the Oakland Coliseum gave the A's a season attendance of 261,000 with 17 home dates remaining.

Murcer, John combine to beat Texas for Yanks

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobby Murcer ignited two New York rallies with a first-inning double and a second-inning single Wednesday night, helping the Yankees beat the Texas Rangers 4-3 to give Tommy John his 16th victory of the season.

Murcer cracked his double off Jerry Don Gleaton, 0-1, then Lou Piniella doubled to score Murcer. Reggie Jackson followed with New York's third consecutive double — a drive to the base of the center field wall 430 feet away — to score Piniella. In the second, Gleaton walked Bucky Dent and gave up a single to Willie Randolph. Murcer's single scored Dent to make it 3-2.

John, 16-6, gave up two second-inning runs when Al Oliver and John Ellis singled around a strikeout. Eric Soderholm forced Ellis at second, but Bill Sample walked to load the bases and Jim Sundberg's single to short left scored two runs.

The Yankees added a run in the fourth on Dent's sacrifice fly, but the Rangers knocked out John in the ninth with their third run of the game. Sample and Sundberg both singled. Then Rich Gossage relieved John and unleashed a wild pitch to advance the runners before Sample scored while Bump Willis grounded out.

Murcer has hit in eight of his last nine games, 15-for-38 with three home runs and 11 RBI. Jackson, with four hits in four at-bats, went over the .300 mark. The save by Gossage was his eighth in 18 appearances.

Razorbacks leave Holtz at a loss for words

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz, who cracked up Johnny Carson with his one-liners, is at a loss for words and his Razorbacks are to blame.

"It's more difficult to talk about this team than any team I've been around," he said.

"When I talk about individual athletes I can get more positive, but anything you say about the team would be conjecture," he said. "We have ability, native ability, but we haven't seen them through adversity, the pressures, how they react to all the intrusions that occur during the course of the season."

"The only thing I can really evaluate is the overall attitude of the team and it's a very good attitude," he said.

Offensively, the Razorbacks are missing quarterback Ron Calcagni and running backs Ben Cowins, Jerry Eckwood and Micheal Forrest.

Defensively, they are without six players who started three years and another two-year starter.

"The defense will be one that gets better as the season goes along," he said.

"You only make steel by putting it through fire and they haven't been through fire. Individually, they have confidence in themselves but they haven't been through what they need to develop confidence in the guy next to them."

"Like last year, Jimmy Walker had complete confidence in Dan Hampton and Hampton in Dale White. All three had confidence in Larry Jackson and William Hampton at linebacker. The offensive line had confidence in the backs."

Offensively, Holtz says he has high hopes.

"We're going to be extremely exciting," he says. "But I'm worried about the consistency. When you have young, inexperienced football players they are going to make some great plays, but they are also going to make some bad ones."

"The big strength of our defensive football team is that we have people who can run," he says. The problem is inexperience.

Holtz says Mike Massey "is probably as talented a linebacker as any in the country," but that he may be missing the savvy of Jackson and W. Hampton.

D. Hampton and Walker manned the defensive tackles for the past three years and Holtz says their successors — Jim Elliott and Danny Phillips — are about where Hampton and Walker were two years ago.

JIM MURRAY

Navy-blue Roger never was the flashy type

By JIM MURRAY Los Angeles Times Syndicate

When Roger Staubach was named the most-valuable player in a Super Bowl a couple of years ago, and the sponsoring Sport magazine offered him a snazzy souped-up sports-roaster that looked like a traveling bomb...

Tropez on the French Riviera, they said, he would ask if he could swap it for two days in Cleveland. Roger Staubach would rather win a cow than a yacht. Roger Staubach was a guy who, when he saw his first Playboy center fold, didn't know what it was...

didn't pick Alabama, Nebraska, Penn State or SMU like any other self-respecting All-Stater. Why he chose instead the U.S. Naval Academy. They figured he had been bitten by too many screenings of "Navy Blue and Gold," that he thought Frank Merriwell was a real person, or maybe, among his other drawbacks, he was patriotic...

to spoil that record. Heisman Trophy winners are notorious busts in the NFL.

WHEN STAUBACH graduated from the Academy and insisted on serving his four-year hitch, the pros just figured he preferred seasickness to scrimmages. The Cowboys had drafted him on the 10th round, which is a little like sending somebody an anonymous letter, and when Staubach spurned the pros' offers of aid getting him out of his Navy commitment...

arm. But not much was wrong with either. The week before he reported Don Meredith had announced his retirement, the club had traded away Jerry Rhome, and all Staubach had to contend with was Craig Morton. Staubach found the Cowboys' backfield as easy to make as Navy's. He found coach Landry's calculus no more complicated than the Naval Academy's midterms, as soon, that is, as you figured out the cosines of the angels, and, pretty soon, Roger Staubach was leading the Dallas Cowboys to their first Super Bowl win ever...

wagon than the roadster with the belt on the hood and the room positively for only two people. Nor does he feel uncomfortable on the team which has inspired more roman a clef novels than any other in pro football history. "Either I don't get invited to those parties, or they are simply figments of the authors' imagination," Staubach said the other day as he prepared perhaps for Super Bowl XIV, which for Staubach would be Super Bowl VI, or more than any other quarterback in the game.

Before Staubach, successful quarterbacking seemed to go along more with bright lights, Red Label and a blonde on each arm, and no passer in the NFL ever looked at a station wagon. But calling to mind Lincoln's instructions to his staff on being warned Gen. Grant drank, "Find out what he drinks and give it to the rest of my generals." You would think NFL coaches would be combing the service academies, hiding out behind church pillars at the 7 o'clock Mass, or trying to find a guy who would prefer owning a stand of alfalfa to a bar on 2nd Ave.

Staubach's victory is one of the Navy's proudest. Asked the other day if he didn't regret not resorting to subterfuge to get out of his Navy commitment, Staubach shook his head. "If I had ducked my responsibilities then, I would have spent the rest of my life ducking responsibilities," he explained.

I ask you, could Adm. Farragut have said it better? Commodore Perry? Instead of checking-USC-for-quarterbacks, perhaps the NFL scouts should be checking the S.S. Antietam. They sure should be on the lookout for a guy who shows up at training camp in a station wagon.

San Antonio downs Gold Sox; Mets romp, 6-2

By The Associated Press The Jackson Mets took batting practice twice Wednesday night—once before the game and once after the game got started. Jackson pounded out 13 hits to beat Arkansas 6-2. In other Texas League action, Shreveport beat Tulsa 6-3. San Antonio took Amarillo 8-4 and Midland beat El Paso by the same score, 8-4. Jackson's Jody Davis, Keith Bodie and Hubie Brooks led the Mets' hit parade. Davis had a two-run homer in the ninth inning. Brooks got three hits and two RBIs while Bodie had three hits including a triple. Greg Harris, 9-10, was the winner. And in San Antonio, Ed Santos went 4-for-4, including two doubles, and collected three RBIs, as the Dodgers beat Amarillo. It was the ninth loss in a row for the Gold Sox.

Gray joins Houston

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (AP) — Two-time All-Pro tackle Leon Gray is on his way to Houston after a trade, leaving behind bitter teammates and a coach fearful his departure will hinder the New England Patriots' efforts to make the Super Bowl. "He was traded to a team that wants to win," said offensive guard John Hannah, Gray's linemate. Asked if New England also wants to win, Hannah responded, "No it doesn't." Hannah, who is tied to the team through 1981, also said, "This is the last time I'll sign a contract here." Gray, 28, was dealt to the Oilers for a first and sixth round draft choice. Ron Erhardt, in his first year as head coach of the team which finished first in the National Football League's American Conference, also was unhappy. "No one knows if Tom Landry liked Roger Staubach for his morals or his ROGER STAUBACH would now be starting his 15th year as an NFL quarterback had he not done his duty for God and country.

He has not changed appreciably, save for the slightly longer haircut, from the ramrod-straight young officer who showed up at the Cowboys' Thousand Oaks camp 11 years ago. He still looks like a Navy recruitment poster. And he still leans more to the station

Firefighters fight 'fire' by hiding vintage fire truck

SILVER CITY, Nev. (AP) — A vintage 1929 Chevrolet fire truck has been hidden away somewhere in this old mining town — and citizens of nearby Virginia City are vowing to do all they can to get it back after what they term a 25-year "loan."

Silver City volunteer firemen, who claim the relic belongs here, fear a sneak attack by the Storey County Firefighters from Virginia

City and won't reveal the truck's hiding place.
IT ALL started in 1954 when, according to Virginia City accounts, the truck was "loaned" to the then-ailing Silver City Volunteer Fire Department.

"They didn't have anything at all except hand-drawn hose carts," said Mike Nevin, chairman of the Storey County Fire Department Building and Restoration Fund. Nevin is the force behind efforts to regain custody of Liberty Engine No. 1.

"It sat down there in their firehouse for 10 years or more. Then a few years ago they began to restore it," Nevin said, adding that Virginia City residents are putting together a Comstock Firemen's Museum, and "we would like to have it back."

"No way," says Silver City Fire Department Chief "emeritus" Ray Muller. Muller contends that old-timers in the town remember the truck being given to their community because Virginia City no longer wanted it.

MULLER WAS chief in 1972, when Silver City's fire department experienced a rebirth, got new equipment, and began restoration of the broken-down fire truck relegated to Silver City by her neighbors up the hill.

Current Fire Chief Jim "Weazel" Allender recalled that the restoration project had involved many of the townspeople, who volunteered their work. "Elwood Smith put a pump on it and somebody else went to Carson City to find a hose for it," he said.

Allender said finding a U-joint for the truck had posed quite a problem until "one day a kid came into the bar and happened to hear us discussing it." The kid's father was fire chief in Washoe Valley, and he had the long-sought part on an old truck rusting in his field.

38 bumped from trip because of Carter

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Thirty-eight passengers who held complimentary passes for a seven-day trip on the steamboat Delta Queen have been bumped to make room for President Carter's entourage, according to the boat line.

A Delta Queen spokesman said most of the passengers had been given free passage because they were employees of the company, relatives of employees or travel agents.

President Carter announced last week that he, his wife, Rosalynn, and daughter, Amy, would be on the Mississippi River cruise from St. Paul, Minn., to St. Louis that leaves Friday.

Hoffas said they had been promised a veranda room on the earlier trip but ended up in a cabin with a view of trash bags.

Mrs. Hoffa said she considered the riverboat company's offer of a free trip generous compensation. As late as last Wednesday, she said, the couple was told they had been upgraded to twin beds from bunk beds.

"We were told then we would not be bumped, but on Monday evening we were told we had been displaced to help provide three more rooms for agents in the party," Mrs. Hoffa said.

Mrs. Hoffa said she received a call Tuesday from Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., who said he and his friends thought it would be a good idea for the Hoffas to stay in the White House while the Carters are on the river cruise.

"But I think he was just joking," she added. The boat line, said in a prepared statement Tuesday, that the Hoffas and all others who were bumped were free to use their passes at another time.

"It's just like the airlines," the statement said. "Many times people are booked and then get bumped for full-paying passengers or for other reasons."

"There's a lot of time and money in that truck," said Allender. "After we got it all looking nice, they want it back."
THE CHIEF'S pride in the ancient vehicle is reflected by most of Silver City's residents.
Bob Berry, chairman of Storey County's Board of Commissioners, said Virginia City still held title to the truck. "If we have to, we'll take them to court," Berry said, adding that he thought Silver City's antics in hiding the truck were "childish."

Ex-servicemen to help Briton write GI book

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE

LONDON (AP) — From California to New York, letters are being mailed to Edwin Hale in England, who asked the whole United States to help out with his bright idea.

Hale, 53, a graphics artist, wanted to compile a book of personal experiences by former GIs who served in or passed through Britain during World War II — what they thought of the British and what they did in the war.

"There were more than 1.5 million of them, although I didn't expect to get that many replies," he said with a grin. He has received more than 400.

Early this year, Hale wrote about his project to 960 American newspapers, trying to cover all major population centers. "If I couldn't locate a newspaper, I simply addressed the letter to 'The local newspaper' with the name of the city."

The response has been overwhelming. "It is all I can do to cope," he told The Associated Press in an interview. "When I get home from the office I've no time to do anything but read and sort the letters, file them, write replies and stagger off to bed."

Hale's letter was co-signed by Josy Argy and Wendy Riches, two free-lance women writers who agreed to join the project to smooth the editing.

A London publisher asked for a synopsis of the eventual manuscript. "The timing is right," Hale said. "Interest in the war seems unlimited, as you can see in any bookshop."

For his letters, Hale paid for the stamps out of his own pocket. When his local mailman opened the mailbox and saw the first batch of 300 U.S.-bound letters, a postal official sought out Hale to ask what was going on.

Of 400 replies digested by the trio so far, "We had had some really marvelous letters," Hale said. "Americans are an incredible race. They have sent me snapshots obviously ripped out of personal photo albums. I don't think an American doing this in reverse would have got such a response from the British."

Ex-GIs vacationing in Britain, who read Hale's appeal, have visited him at his home at 2 Southwick Gardens, Canvey Island, Essex, which is in the Thames River mouth, 35 miles east of London.

"And one guy," Hale said, "rang me up from Myrtle Beach, S.C., at 2:15 in the morning. It must have cost him 30 or 40 pounds (up to $90) to tell me how he trained raw recruit farm boys in Devon to be truck drivers. Then he sent me a tape of it all."

Not one anti-British anecdote has turned up in the letters so far. "We're all getting older and I suppose it's nostalgic mist," said Hale.

The D-Day invasion across the English Channel to France in June 1944 was the biggest amphibious war operation ever launched, and England was a beehive of Allied troops that summer.

A man in Omaha, Neb., wrote to Hale: "Every tree-lined lane or road was lined on both sides with tanks, artillery, trucks, ammo, etc. It's a wonder the British Isles didn't sink under the weight of it all."

The letter also recalled with pleasure English "fish and chips, tea and crumpets and English tea houses."

One man wrote that the British Churchill tank was a wonderful tank. Said Hale: "Our histories tell us it was undergunned and underpowered and I think he must have liked it because he hitched a ride on one on the advance to Germany."

Hale went to a recent reunion in England of U.S. 8th Air Force ex-bomber crews "to see what they looked like."

"They had a Flying Fortress there for the ceremony and I think it's the only one still flying," he said. "I was shattered by how old the men looked and I couldn't believe that the man who was the ball turret gunner could ever have squeezed into a ball turret."

Letters have come from ex-servicemen and even from a British GI bride. Some letters are thousands of words long and look like manuscripts of books that never got finished. Some have led to two or three letter exchanges with Hale and put him on first-name terms with the writers.

Hale said he hopes the letters will keep coming. He seeks a strong and varied account and he feels many of the letters have a therapeutic value for the persons writing them, "as if they had just been waiting all these years for someone to listen to these memories of what was the biggest thing there will ever be in their whole lives."

Queen Leann Biggs to reign at Stanton

STANTON — Leann Biggs, 19, of Stanton will reign over the 1979 Martin County Fair on Friday and Saturday as fair queen.

She was named Miss Martin County Monday night in a contest featuring 26 contestants.

Runner-up was Sharalyn Holcomb, 18, of Klondike.

The queen candidates modeled causal and evening wear.

Miss Biggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Biggs, is a sophomore at Angelo State University, where she is majoring in physical education and minoring in English. She is a 1978 graduate of Stanton High School.

Miss Holcomb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Holcomb, is a 1979 graduate of Stanton High School and will attend Texas Tech University this fall.

Miss Biggs was crowned queen by last year's Miss Martin County, Donna Sue Hale, a student at Midland College.

The Miss Martin County contest was sponsored by the Martin County Chamber of Commerce.

The fair, to be held at the Martin County Community Center, is being sponsored by the Jaycees.

Miss Biggs will represent Martin County in the 1980 Miss West Texas Beauty Pageant.

Feds seize $10 million in counterfeit large bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Authorities have seized $10 million in partially completed counterfeit $50 and $100 bills to break up one of the largest bogus money operations in U.S. history, Secret Service director H.S. Knight announced Wednesday.

Knight said the money was seized during a raid on a "counterfeit manufacturing plant" in Las Vegas, Nev., on Tuesday.

Harold Jerome Davis, 38, and Tillman Jessie Wexler, 39, both of Las Vegas, were taken into custody following the raid, the service said.

Knight said the service became aware of the operation when tipped by a confidential source in July. Secret Service and Las Vegas police undercover agents then infiltrated the operation and monitored its progress, he added.

Davis also faces charges in Atlanta, Ga., for manufacturing counterfeit $20 bills, Knight said.

Woodstock now only rolling field

By COREY SANDLER

BETHEL, N.Y. (AP) — Alfalfa greens the rolling fields, and the dairy cows are back. The only traces of the mammoth stage and towering banks of speakers which amplified the music of Joan Baez, Jimi Hendrix and Janis Joplin are a rotting wooden beam and some crumbling concrete anchors at the foot of a 40-acre hill.

Now, exactly 10 years after half a million people jammed onto Max Yasgur's farm, local farmers say the only invasion is by reporters in cars, planes, even a helicopter, looking for stories about Wednesday's anniversary of the Woodstock Festival.

Some called Woodstock the flowering of the "peace and love" generation. Others said it was a near-disaster.

The three-day festival — Aug. 15-17, 1969 — is a vivid memory for those who promoted it, those who opposed it, those who performed there and those who slept in the mud.

Miriam Yasgur Mass still owns the hillside that served as an amphitheater — it is for sale as farmland. Much of the surrounding property has been sold since Max Yasgur's death of heart failure in 1973. He was 53.

The Yasgurs were stunned by the number of people coming down their rural road 10 years ago.

"We just assumed very few people would want to come out and listen to that noise," said Mrs. Mass.

The crowds clogged roads throughout Sullivan County and for nearly 40 miles to the New York State Thruway. They spread through Bethel and neighboring White Lake. They spilled onto neighboring farms, searching for campsites, food and water.

With roads blocked and a crowd more than five times what anyone had expected, promoters and police resorted to helicopters to ferry in emergency supplies.

The drug culture flourished openly. Hundreds were treated for overdoses or "bad trips."

And everyone remembers the weather. The skies opened Friday afternoon, and rain and high winds kept up for most of the weekend.

The $18 tickets were worthless scraps of cardboard by the time the weekend arrived. The few fences and turnstiles were trampled into the mud long before the first electric guitar chord.

They came to hear The Grateful Dead, The Who, Jefferson Airplane, Richie Havens, Joe Cocker, Santana, and Country Joe and the Fish.

"It was a sea of people," said Arlo Guthrie, one of the featured performers. "There was no place that didn't have people on it."

"I remember being in New York City the day before and thinking that maybe like 100,000 people were going to be there," said Guthrie.

"I thought, 'My God, 100,000 people!' In those days any group of 100,000 had the potential for violence. We decided to go up anyway."

"It was like a disaster zone. I wondered how we all were going to survive," Guthrie said.

"In hindsight, though, it was the culmination of so many things. It justified the whole peace movement. The thing that made Woodstock Woodstock was the spirit of the people. It wasn't the promoters."

Neighbors remember the gathering — not always fondly.

bathtub, his land that became a campground. "My place was invaded by thousands of people," he said.

Campers were all over Filippini's fields. When the winds came, tents blew down and they moved into his chicken house, barn and a six-room cottage near the site.

Filippini says he harbors no grudge but "wouldn't care to have that many people around again."

The New York City promoters originally wanted to hold their music festival near Woodstock, which was developing as a summer colony for some rock stars, including Bob Dylan.

But local opposition nixed that. The promoters went hunting.

Thousands of tickets had been sold when the town of Wallkill passed an ordinance banning gatherings of 5,000 or more. It was aimed directly at the promoters' plans.

Enter Max Yasgur.

"At that time we had had very little contact with the new wave, with the protest movement," Mrs. Mass recalled. "We were very conservative. It started out as a business proposition."

Promoters said the Yasgurs got $50,000. Mrs. Mass said the contract called for about 30,000 to 40,000 people spread out over three days.

"We told each other we would be surprised if 10,000 would show up," she said.

Once during the weekend, communications broke down between Yasgur's house and the festival command post. Yasgur flew to the backstage offices in a private helicopter rented in case of emergency.

"They saw who he was, and they just propelled him on to the stage," Mrs. Mass said.

"I'm a farmer," he told the crowd. "I don't know how to speak to 20 people at one time, let alone a crowd like this, but I think you people have proven something to the world... that half a million kids can get together and have three days of fun and music."

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Other People's Habits

By Alfred Sheinwold

Since it's a bad habit to interfere with the habits of other people I won't say a word about drawing trumps at your first opportunity. I'll just report the facts.

Today's South put up dummy's queen of diamonds, but East covered with the king. South took the ace of diamonds and drew trumps without delay (and without thinking).

South then had to rely on the club finesse. Down one.

SHOULD MAKE SLAM

South should make the slam. He takes the ace of diamonds, leads a heart to the ace and ruffs a heart high. The five of spades to dummy's nine lets him ruff another heart high.

South leads a high trump to the queen and ruffs a third heart high. South finally leads the deuce of trumps to dummy's three and cashes the last heart to discard a diamond. The slam is now assured.

The correct play includes drawing trumps, but South must use each round of trumps as an entry for a ruff. Good habits are based on good timing.

Chinese don't like Passaic, N.J. jokes, comedian Hope discovers

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you're an American comic touring China, there are a couple of subjects you might want to omit from your routine. Gags about Chairman Mao, for example, aren't likely to fly, nor are jokes about Vietnam or cultural revolutions or Passaic, N.J.

Passaic, N.J.?

"Yeah," says Bob Hope. "Passaic, N.J.?"

Hope learned of this peculiar Sino sensitivity in Peking a few weeks ago, while taping a routine for a three-hour NBC special. They were at Democracy Wall, where Chinese citizens plaster posters containing complaints about their government.

complaining of pollution, urban crime, housing shortages and hunger.

"Gee, you have all those problems here in China?" Hope asks.

"No," the man replies. "In Passaic, N.J."

The Chinese censors asked Hope to excuse the bit from his show.

that the Chinese comedians in the show wouldn't interfere with America's internal affairs, and vice-versa. China didn't want Passaic to be offended.

"They didn't understand that we do that kind of thing all the time," says Hope.

Hope had other troubles. While rehearsing for an evening gala, he asked that his monologue be taped. "You never know when you might find something good in rehearsal," he says.

"Well, I gave 'em jokes, they didn't give me any laughs. I thought the audience would be at least 50-50 Chinese and American. I walked on and started doing my monologue, and I bombed. Boom. I had a pounce on my hands.

"I looked out and saw that it was at least 90 percent Chinese. I yelled for an interpreter, and started over. I'd tell the jokes, and he'd get the laughs."

The censors, Hope said, "were very concerned about a lot of things. I satirize almost everything, all the bicycles, ping pong, the traffic, the hotel, the food, the drink Mao-Pi. I said the drink was so strong, one drink and your head goes through a cultural revolution.

"Between that and the regular show, the guy came to me and said, 'Please don't use that joke.' So, I changed it. I said, 'One drink and your head feels like the Gang of Four.'"

Gang of Four jokes are big in China this season. "The Chinese comedians do so much about them, everything is the Gang of Four, everything detrimental."

Hope's special, "The Road to China," airs Sept. 16. I don't know what it will do in the ratings, but they'll love it in Peking. And Passaic.

Allmans' manager sentenced

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — Former Allman Brothers road manager John C. "Scooter" Herring has been sentenced to 2½ years in prison on charges of possessing cocaine and supplying it to rock star Gregg Allman.

Last month, Herring had waived his right to a new trial and pleaded guilty to the charges.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned Herring's 1976 drug trafficking conviction and ordered a new trial last March after ruling that U.S. District Court Judge Wilbur Owens erred in not questioning jurors about a newspaper article that appeared on the day Herring testified in his own defense.

Allman, the group's singer and organist, testified against Herring at the 1976 trial. Those close to the band said the testimony created bitterness and ultimately led to the band's break-up in 1977.

Owens, in imposing sentence, appeared sympathetic to the 39-year-old Herring, observing that the maximum sentence for the conviction was five years.

He added that Allman had been "an unfavorable influence" on Herring when Herring was with the band.

"If Mr. Allman was standing in front of me now, I don't know what I'd do," Owens said.

The judge told Herring to surrender to federal marshals within the next two weeks.

They were very polite, but they requested that we didn't add that to the show," Hope says.

"They made me sign a paper saying I wouldn't use the Democracy Wall with the (Passaic) jokes. They wanted to make sure they weren't on. You have to go along with it. I didn't want to get in a beef with them."

China, it seems, was concerned that running down Passaic would be in violation of an agreement with Hope's people

Play about dictator resurfaces

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A bold play about a Latin American dictator has resurfaced in Brazil, where the military regime has practically eliminated censorship in a campaign to return the nation to democratic rule.

It's called "Papa Highirte," and it was written by the late Brazilian playwright Oduvaldo Vianna Filho.

"Papa Highirte" first appeared in 1968, but the government immediately censored it. The censors' ban fell this year, and the play has been drawing packed houses ever since its resurrection in a Rio theater in July.

The central figure in the play is Juan Maria "Papa" Highirte, the dictator of a mythical Latin American republic called Alhambra.

Washington actor John Daniel Reaves is seen as the late Huey P. Long, a Louisiana politician of the 1930s who was widely known as The Kingfish, in a new play titled "The Kingfish," opening Friday night in Washington, D.C. The play was co-authored by Larry L. King, a former Midlander, and Ben Z. Grant of Marshall.

Successful former Midlander co-authors one-man drama with state representative

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Former Midlander Larry L. King hit it big on Broadway in 1978 with his musical comedy, "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas."

This year, he's back as co-author, with State Rep. Ben Z. Grant of Marshall, Tex., of a one-man drama loosely depicting the life and times of the late Huey P. Long of Louisiana.

Why is Conrad a tough guy?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It didn't figure to be one of life's fun moments — meeting with Robert Conrad one hour after he's learned that the Television Academy has passed him over in its Emmy nominations.

He figured to score for his role in "Centennial," and probably should have. Not only did he not get nominated, "Centennial" itself didn't get nominated for anything but best make-up or something like that.

Mr. Maeho will be grumpy. He'll want to knock some batteries around. Maybe he'll be so mad he won't show up.

No, there he is, tanned and tough looking. Well, maybe he'll just cuss a lot, and snarl.

He does much snarling and cussing, but not about the Emmy disappointments. He's mad because he thinks Meadowlark Lemon tried to cheat him in one of those TV athletic contests between show business people.

He tells of his profane reaction to the bad call, and how the cameras kept rolling, and how his man was finally credited with the victory. Confrontation occupies his thinking.

He tells of his meatiest role, the part of Pasquinet in "Centennial," and how "I took that role from a couple of well-known actors, I TOOK that role."

This reminds him of coaching the Montclair Junior High School football team to a perfect 9-0 record last season. "We had 17 boys and beat a team with 800 boys. We had to do it twice. We whipped their butt," he says.

I wonder about this tough-guy image, why Conrad works so hard at nourishing it, but my curiosity isn't strong enough to accept his open invitation to step into the ring with him at the local boxing barn.

But I ask: "The thing about understanding manhood is when you can be honest with yourself about what there through Sept. 9. If the drama fares well, it later will go on tour, said Ms. Blaine. "I'd like to see it play the South," she added. "I think it would find a home in Louisiana and Texas, especially."

She has invited the Louisiana and Texas delegations in Congress as special guests for the Washington opening Friday night.

The demanding role of Huey P. Long will be played by John Daniel Reaves, an Alabama native who is a Washington attorney as well as an actor. Reaves has appeared in a number of productions with the Georgetown Ensemble Theater Company in Washington, D.C. The play was co-authored by Larry L. King, a former Midlander, and Ben Z. Grant of Marshall.

King's current success, "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," is still playing on Broadway and a second production is currently playing in Houston. The musical was recently purchased for the movies by Universal Pictures.

Just Shake it and Let it Fall Into Place. The Precision Haircut.

Because your head is unique, the way your hair grows is equally unique. Really quite different from every one else.

Precision haircutting is a technique for cutting the hair in harmony with the way it grows. Your hair eventually grows out but it doesn't lose its shape with a precision haircut. Consequently your haircut will look as good after five days as it does after five minutes. And because the hair falls naturally into place you won't have to keep fussing with it. Usually a shake of the head does it.

At Command Performance we shampoo, precision-cut and blow dry your hair for fourteen dollars, whether you're a gal or a guy. And no appointments are ever necessary.

We also offer permanent waves, coloring, frosting and conditioning. But we really shine with precision. And so will you.

Watch out for flying pet adjectives thrown by rampaging drama critics

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Some folks keep pet rocks, others pet theories. Drama critics, however, keep pet adjectives. They always let them out to romp the second a play ends and the curtain comes down.

But you can be knocked orry-eyed by these rampaging theater critters. Why, just last week I got hit by "a splendid night of stunning theater" and still need crutches to get around.

Don't you get hit. Know and beware these pet adjectives — and meanings thereof — so often found romping in dramatic circles:

- Richly textured: It involves the Sixties, a hippie, his mother, Cleveland, a tuba solo, an unstable model called Nan, a crusty old codger

- Compelling: A richly textured play Big Tony financed.
- Brechtian: The actors enter from stage left, hurl scenery at the audience, sing "Firebird Suite" backwards and refuse to vote Republican.
- Experimental: When it ends, the curtain goes up.
- Avant-garde: An experimental play performed in the lobby at intermission.
- Mainstream: An avant-garde play revived 20 years later.
- Symbolic: A black wears white, a white wears black and both are identified only as Marvin Kalb CBS Washington.
- Ambitious work: First produced last fall at the New Playwrights

- Conference, that slumber party in tweed. Second act still stinks.
- Derivative: Obviously stolen from Shakespeare. Or Beckett.
- Allegorical: Set in Bali during the Nixon Administration.
- Finely shaded performance: Star whispers in first act, shouts in second.
- Bravura performance: Star shouts from start to finish.
- Kafkaesque: Stage too dark to see actors.
- Puzzling: Theater too dark to find exit.
- Admirable: A turkey, but critic must in interview playwright tomorrow.
- Ibsenesque: Hasn't a ghost of a chance.
- Spare, taut, economical: Whew, it's over in 90 minutes.
- A triumph: Well, at least all my friends will like it.
- A succes d'estime: A

- triumph that now lives in Paris.
- Shavian: The writer stole from George Bernard Shaw, who in 1903 stole from George Bernard Shaw.
- Wildly comic: Gee, I've never seen "Death of a Salesman" done

- quite this way before.
- Powerfully tragic, grippingly somber: If that doesn't kill this new Neil Simon comedy, nothing will.
- A major disappointment: A minor disappointment built to government specifications.

Advertisers avoiding children's shows says ABC; others say no

NEW YORK (AP) — Advertisers, responding to pressure from consumer groups and fearful of government action, are shying away from children's television, says the ABC television network.

But the other two networks say they've seen no such indication and accuse ABC of simply trying to explain away the result of a slide in ratings in the Saturday morning time slot.

noted that Broadcast-Advertiser Reports, an industry survey, estimated Saturday morning revenues for the three networks slipped from $142.8 million in 1977 to $142.1 million last year. The first quarter of 1979 was down to $26.5 million from $28.2 million in the same period of 1978.

ABC officials refused to name any advertisers who are reducing Saturday morning advertisements.

Advertising agencies tend to agree with NBC and CBS. "ABC didn't have as good an up-front selling season as the other two, primarily because they raised prices too much," said Larry Lamentina, a vice president of Grey Advertising.

"In general, the kids' marketplace is pretty healthy," said Lamentina, whose agency handles General Foods, maker of Post cereals.

"Advertisers' sensitivity to the government has caused some of them to take their money elsewhere," James Duffey, president of ABC Television, told a group of security analysts recently. "As a result, our revenues in this area will be down this fall."

But officials at NBC and CBS said their revenues are up for Saturday morning, when all three networks are beaming programs aimed at children under 12, with ads for toys and heavily sugared cereals.

"Saturday morning will be way above last year," said M.S. Rukyeser Jr., a vice president at NBC.

At CBS, Vice President Paul Isaacson said, "I haven't noticed it here. Our sales for the fourth quarter (October through December) are up over a year ago."

ABC officials conceded their ratings are down on Saturday morning, but said that does not explain the falloff. And they

MCT will hold tryouts

Midland Community Theatre is announcing upcoming tryouts to fill parts in its next regular production.

The production, scheduled to open in early October, is "The Passion of Dracula," one of the new crop of Dracula dramas making the rounds. This particular version is widely considered to be the best of the crop and has had extremely successful runs in New York and London.

There are parts for seven men and two women in the drama, which replaces "Sly Fox" as MCT's October production.

Tryouts will be held at 8 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and next Thursday in Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave. Persons do not have to be MCT season members to qualify for a part.

Newcomers to the city and surrounding area are given a special invitation to come and read for parts. No parts will be cast until after the third and final audition session next week.

Copies of the script are available for perusal and checkout at the MCT office. Additional information on the tryouts may be obtained by dialing 682-2544.

Taste a Triumph. Surprising satisfaction at only 3 mg. tar.

With new Flavor-Intensified™ Triumph, the taste comes through abundantly, the smoke reaches you smoothly, pack after pack.

If you've tried one of the very low tar cigarettes, and found you just couldn't stay with it, you'll understand why Triumph is quite an achievement. The first cigarette that gives you satisfying taste at only 3 mg. tar.

Smooth, easy draw.

With Triumph, even the draw is a surprise. There's none of the struggle you may have experienced in other very low tar brands. You don't have to pull—you just puff on Triumph. The pleasure is effortless.

No gimmicks, no miracles.

The crux of it: Instead of searching for some yet unimagined answer, Lorillard scientists decided to take a more sensible tack.

Why not, they said, take everything we've learned about cigarettes, and push that technology further than we've ever pushed it before.

Delivering taste, limiting tar.

We found that combining two types of filter fiber produces the best combination of taste and draw. That tiny "vents" in the rim of the filter work to smooth the taste. That lower-leaf tobaccos tend to be milder and lower in tar than those at the top of the plant.

In short, everything we could find that might intensify flavor at 3 mg. tar, was built into Triumph.

Taste you can stay with.

What it all comes down to is this: Triumph, at only 3 mg. tar, gives you a taste so satisfying, we believe you'll never want to go back to your old cigarette.

TRIUMPH.®

One of the lowest tar cigarettes you can smoke.
The one with taste enough to stay with.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

3 mg. "tar," 0.4 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Delta Kappa Gamma Society International recently celebrated its golden anniversary in Dallas and several Midland women attended.

They were Cynthia Williams and Jann Buttery of Zeta Xi Chapter, Delta Kappa Gamma, and representing Epsilon Eta Chapter, DKG, were Paula Booth, Carolyn Sowell, Roberta Bains, Frances Walker, Gladys Griffin and Hazel Smith.

From the original 12 founders from Austin in 1929, membership in the society has grown to 160,000, representing outstanding women educators in 12 countries around the world, said Mrs. Williams, spokeswoman.

The opening session speaker was Sarah Weddington, special assistant to President Carter. Ms. Weddington spoke before an audience of approximately 4,000 teachers representing their individual chapters. The topic of Weddington's speech was "Women in Leadership Roles," said Mrs. Williams.

SEVERAL PRENUPTIAL parties have been held for Maria Lizette LeMarquand, bride-elect of Alan Leslie Jones. The couple will be married Saturday in the Christian Church of Midland.

A rice and spice party was hosted by Mrs. Garland Chapman and Mrs. W.D. Gill at the Gill residence, 2409 Gulf Ave.

A miscellaneous shower was given in the Christian Church of Midland. Co-hostesses were Treva Beaty, Ruby Sharp, Maureen Harrison, Mary Jane Strobel, June Lawson and Kay Rose. Mr. and Mrs. Chester Tyra, 2303 Boyd Ave., were host couple to a swimming party for the bridal party.

SPEAKING OF BRIDAL PARTIES: A luncheon for bridesmaids serving in the wedding of Patty Jean Goodman of Midland and John Carl Simon of Lubbock will be hosted Saturday by Elise Judd and Melissa McCrea at the Judd home, 2100 Oaklawn Drive. Miss Goodman and Simon also will be married Saturday in the Christian Church of Midland.

SPEC. 4 RANDALL L. SMITH of Midland is participating in a field exercise at Fort Irwin, Calif.

Smith is a tank gunner with the 2nd Armored Division, United States Army, at Fort Hood. The specialist's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Smith, live at 3400 Blue Bird Lane. His wife, Beverly, lives in Killeen.

Fort Irwin, located on the edge of Death Valley and the Mojave Desert, offers rolling sand dunes, barren mountains and dry lake beds for desert armor training.

The exercise includes combined-arms and joint tactical operations, live-firing and environmental adjusting.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION TEACHERS from across the state converge each summer on the Corpus Christi State University campus to participate in an annual vocational teacher certification program. Mary Helen Smiley, cosmetology, Midland High School, was one of them.

Since CCSU is one of six institutions in Texas that offers a certification program tailored to their special needs, these teachers transplant their belongings — bringing their mobile homes, living in the dormitory or making other temporary living arrangements — so they can complete certification requirements.

The program participants are unique: They are experts in their occupation, hired as teachers right out of the professions. According to Richard Shepperd, CCSU assistant professor of education, many of these people in the vocational-technical fields do not have an associate or bachelor's degree, and some have not been in school for up to 35 years.

After teaching two years, the vocational teachers obtain provisional certification. The CCSU program becomes the transition point between a role in the occupation and a role in the teaching community.

NEWLY-ORGANIZED Youth Against Cancer group is sponsoring a Back to School dance from 8 p.m. to midnight Saturday in the parking lot of San Miguel Square.

Admission to the event is $2 a person or $3 for a couple. Proceeds will go to the American Cancer Society.

Appearing will be a live band. Disco music will also be played. Activities include a country and western dance contest and a disco competition. Prizes are to be awarded.

Reduce water consumption

COLLEGE STATION — Water conservation begins at home, says Nancy Grnaovsky, a family resource management specialist at the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University system. American Water Works Association estimates overall residential water use at 60 gallons per person per day, so even a 10 percent per capita reduction would result in a daily savings of a billion gallons.

Church Women United gather for annual August coffee here

Church Women United in Midland recently hosted the annual August coffee at St. Mark's United Methodist church, 1701 N. Main St.

The annual event is held for the women in the organization who gather for fellowship and refreshments.

The group is made up of churchwomen from all religious denominations and has been in existence since 1932. Four annual events are observed, including the World Day of Prayer in March, a May Fellowship Luncheon, the August Coffee and World Community Day in November.

More importantly, however, are the ongoing projects supported by the organization. These include Casa de Amigos, St. Andrews Mission, Halfway House and plans for the Midland Home for Battered Women. The group also provides layettes for indigent mothers of newborns at Memorial Hospital.

Church Women United supports Casa de Amigos by providing individual birthday flowers to senior citizens celebrating their birthdays each month. They also donate food, clothing, household goods, materials for crafts classes, and materials for the children's tutoring program.

At St. Andrews Presbyterian Mission, Church Women United provides refreshments for the children's group.

The mission is a cooperative witness and service project of the Midland Presbyterian Corporate Ministry. Purpose is to minister to the social, educational, physical and spiritual needs of people in the St. Andrews area.

president; Mrs. Francis Walker, secretary; Mrs. Charles Davis, treasurer; and Mrs. Floyd Hansen, parliamentarian and projects chairman for Casa de Amigos and St. Andrews Mission.

Other projects chairmen include Mrs. Wallace Craig, Halfway House; Mrs. C. W. Ellis, layettes; and Mrs. K. H. Stimpson, December Meals-on-Wheels program.

Select hi-fi components with caution

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

If the word, ohm, amp, wow and woof sound like alphabet spaghetti to you, chances are you'll need some help when it is time to choose new high fidelity components.

For the many consumers who do not have a background in electronics engineering, sensible advice on how to choose a hi-fi system is appreciated.

And along comes John Wawzonek, an electronics engineer and marketing manager for Bose Corp., with just such advice.

According to Wawzonek, an expenditure of $400 or more for a system is required as a rule to be sure of obtaining properly engineered components.

"Beyond this price, you get frills, features you will use occasionally and more power, which means you can make the music louder," he said. And under $400, not every manufacturer's units are going to be good, he says.

Three factors determine how good a high-fidelity system will sound in the home, he added. They are: the cartridge which holds the stylus and needle on the turntable, the speakers, and the room in which the system is played.

Buying a better cartridge than usually comes with the turntable is a good idea, unless you are buying a very expensive turntable. "Avoid the free cartridge that comes with the turntable and buy one that is slightly better," Wawzonek advises.

When choosing speakers, try to arrange to hear them in a room with, at most, four pairs of speakers set up. Making a selection on the basis of a listening test conducted in a room crowded with speaker boxes is not a good idea.

"You won't be hearing the speakers as they will sound in your home," said Wawzonek.

If the best buys are found at a warehouse-type store, look for one which will allow you to take the speakers home and try them, returning them for exchange if they don't measure up in a home trial.

The average living room is a good place to listen to music. But rooms with bare floors, bare walls and only a few pieces of furniture may produce a sound that is too lively, as sound waves bounce off the surfaces too quickly.

Too much furniture, wall and floor coverings can create a dead room that swallows up sound.

If you have bare walls opposite each other, you sometimes hear an audible hiss when playing music on a high-fidelity system. To eliminate the hiss, place a painting or other wall decor on one wall.

Wawzonek advises owners of new high-fidelity systems to experiment with component placement.

Stanton bride honored with display shower

A shower honoring Robbie Dee Canton Haynie, formerly of Midland, was held recently in the home of Mrs. J. C. Perryman, 2304 Gulf St.

Hostesses were Mrs. Perryman, Patsy Muse, Clara Summers, Elaine Qualls and Evangeline Richman.

A salad supper was served to the bride and guests. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Bob Stone and Renee Stone of Odessa.

Color theme was in earth tones. The honoree married Howard Haynie of Stanton in July. They reside in Stanton.

With nectar recipe, sweetness is adjustable

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP FOOD EDITOR

DEAR CECILY: I'd like to make fruit nectar and wonder whether you can tell me how to do so. The bought fruit nectars are good, but some of them are too sweet for my taste. — HOME PRESERVER.

DEAR HOME PRESERVER: Like you, I've also wanted to make fruit nectar at home so the sweetening could be adjusted to taste. Your hope the decanter jars stay on the scene because they can be put to excellent use for other preserving besides nectars — for example, fruit syrups and tomato juice. — C.B.

FRESH PEACH NECTAR

8 pounds ripe freestone peaches
1/2 cup lemon juice
1 cup sugar
10 cups water
Solution: 4 teaspoons lemon juice and 4 teaspoons salt mixed with 2 quarts water

Rinse peaches; place in metal basket or cheesecloth. Dip into boiling water just long enough to loosen skins — 1/2 to 1 minute. At once dip into cold water and drain. Slip off skins, halve and pit. Chunk or slice (discarding pits) into the Solution to prevent darkening. Drain when all the peaches have been chunked or sliced. In an electric blender or food processor puree as many of the peaches as you can at one time. Pour each lot of puree into a 6 to 8-quart saucepot; add the 1/2 cup lemon juice, 1 cup sugar and 10 cups water. Heat to 165 degrees on a candy thermometer. Remove from heat; stir in more sugar, if you like, to suit your own taste. With a large metal spoon, skim off foam. Ladle nectar into freshly washed, hot 26-ounce decanter canning jars leaving 1/4-inch headspace. Adjust caps (lids and bands) according to decanter-jar manufacturer's directions. Process in a boiling-water bath for 20 minutes. Remove to a wire rack. Cool according to decanter-jar manufacturer's directions. Label and store in a cool, dry, dark place.

Makes six 26-ounce decanter jars.
Note: If the nectar is thicker than you like, after storing, you can of course dilute it. Depending on the juiciness of the peaches, you may have more than the yield given. Chill this extra and serve "as is." Or use in a fruit punch with light rum as we did. Delicious! — C.B.

Food prices: Beef prices squeeze them upward

By DONALD C. BAUDER
Copley News Service

The U.S. Department of Agriculture began this year predicting that retail food prices would rise 7.5 percent in 1979.

The department has been steadily revising the forecast upward — it now is above 10 percent — and when all is said and done, the figure is likely to be just what it was last year: 11.6 percent, says Timothy M. Hammonds, economist for the Food Marketing Institute in Washington, D.C.

May's dramatic drop in wholesale food prices, which brought about the smallest rise in the wholesale price index in nine months — 0.4 percent, or a 4.8 percent annual rate — probably was aberrational, he said in an interview. The FMI is a trade association representing food wholesalers and retailers nationwide.

A major cause of high food prices is the supply-demand squeeze and abnormally high prices (more than 15 percent annually) in beef.

The total population of cattle in the United States fell from 132 million in 1976 to 110 million now — "the sharpest decrease in history," he said.

He would not be surprised if it continued to fall, perhaps to as low as 100 million, during the next two years. Americans' per capita consumption of beef hit 129 pounds in 1976 and will be between 100 and 110 this year, he said.

Cattle producers now are building back up their herds, and are withholding cows and heifers from the market to do so. The USDA expects the supply of cattle finally will turn back up in late 1981 or early 1982, he said. With no relief coming from the supply side, it is up to consumers to moderate demand, he said.

Fruits and vegetable prices also are contributing to today's high food prices, but this year's crop looks good, said Benjamin F. Harrington, sales vice president for California-based Von's Grocery Co., but "there could be some problems with vegetables" later this year.

There is concern in Washington over the wheat crop — and wheat prices have escalated sharply recently.

Meanwhile, supermarkets have a productivity problem. It has not been improving for a number of years, and now wages are rising sharply.

Retail clerks got $6.64 an hour in total wages and fringes in San Diego, Calif., in 1976. Now it is $8.88, said Harrington, adding, "In most metropolitan areas, a grocery clerk will make about twice as much as a bank teller."

Hammonds and Harrington stressed that the best way for people to keep their meat prices down is to buy pork and poultry and other foods that are cheaper.

"The average consumer doesn't have to have his food prices going up at the same rate as the consumer price index," said Hammonds. That is because the consumer price index does not reflect any judicious buying that consumers can practice.

The drop in wholesale food prices in May was caused in large part by consumer resistance in supermarkets, according to Washington economists.

Record apple crop predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A record 7.7 billion pounds of apples might be harvested this year, despite a 12 percent decline in central-state crops, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

The Crop Reporting Board, based on a survey of Aug. 1, said the total crop should be up 1 percent from last season and 15 percent above 1977 production.

Western states should produce 7 percent more apples while eastern states should produce 1 percent more, it said.

"Delicious continues to rank as the leading apple variety and is expected to account for 36 percent of total production," the board said.

Golden Delicious followed with 16 percent of the crop. McIntosh apples are ranked third, with 9 percent, followed by Rome Beauty, 7 percent; Jonathan, 6 percent, and York Imperial, 4 percent.

The board said that production has declined for York, Rome, McIntosh, Winesap, Courtland and R.I. Greening varieties.

As usual, Washington has the largest crop, with an estimated 2.3 billion pounds, compared to 2.17 billion last year, followed by New York, with 1 billion pounds, and Michigan, with 720 million.

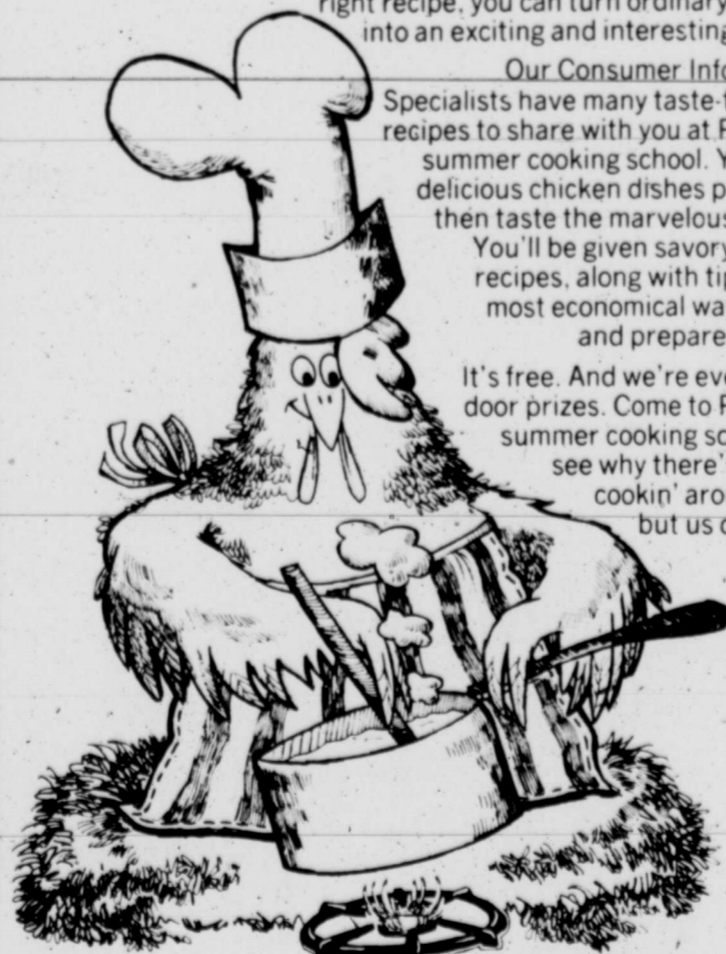

The estimates cover orchards with 100 or more bearing-age trees.

Athletes need good nutrition

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Over the years there have been many fad diets and unusual food practices including complete fasting, eating nothing but a single food (like grapefruit), protein packing, carbohydrate loading, gargling water but not swallowing it, etc.

Other practices are eating steak and egg to build muscles, taking spoonfuls of honey for quick energy and avoiding milk in the mistaken belief it causes cottonmouth and cuts wind.

Practices like these are not only useless and inaccurate, says the National Dairy Council, but also may be harmful. Steak and eggs do provide protein needed to build muscle tissue, but an extra serving or two is not going to positively affect the outcome of athletic competition. The best diets for athletes, says the NDC, is the same as that recommended for all individuals — a wide variety of foods.

Using leftovers a good way to save money

By MERLE ELLIS

Making good use of leftovers is a good way to save money. We all know that. But if you hope to get the family to enjoy leftovers, it helps if they don't know that that's what they're eating. It helps to change the shape and taste and texture of what's left from one meal if you are to serve it successfully at the next.

One of the best dishes I know for doing that comes from the Cornish miners of Michigan and in that part of the country, a meat pie kind of dish called a pasty, hearty enough to be a meal in itself, that is made of the leftovers of roast beef or lamb. It used to be that those Cornish miners regularly took a pasty to work for lunch. It's a portable meat pie that can be made at home and wrapped in a cloth bag to carry to work.

At lunch time, the miner reheats the pasty on the clean blade of his shovel over the heat from the lantern on his hat. Presto! A portable hot lunch.

Pasties are, to this day, a tradition in the northern middle states and there are as many versions of them as there are lakes in Minnesota. The recipes that follow show the diversity of pasty potential. The first, "Cussin' Jack pasties," is from a lady in Minnesota. d("Cousin Jack" was the nickname given Cornish miners Minnesota. There exists, parently was derived from that.) The second, which calls for fish and lamb, comes from Canada (I think).

CUSSIN' JACK PASTIES

- 3 cups flour
- 3-4th cup lard
- 1 tsp. salt
- 5 oz. water
- 1 egg, beaten (optional)
- 1 to 2 pounds beef round, cubed
- 4 small potatoes, peeled, cubed
- 2 bagies, peeled, cubed ("bagies" is "Duluthese" for rutabagas)
- 2 carrots, peeled, diced
- 1 onion, peeled, diced
- Salt, pepper

Combine the flour, salt and lard in a large mixing bowl. Dig in with your hands and work the lard and flour together until you have coarse flakes. Sprinkle the water into the flour mixture and work the dough into a ball. Don't use more water than is necessary or the dough will be tough. When all of the particles of flour are gathered into a ball, divide the ball into six equal portions.

Roll each ball on a lightly floured surface, one at a time, into a circle 6 to 9 inches in diameter. Combine all of the vegetables, along with the meat cubes, and toss together to mix well. Add about a cup of the meat and vegetable mixture to the center of each round and fold as shown.

Brush with beaten egg and bake in a pre-heated 400-degree oven for 45 minutes. Serve hot at room temperature.

LAMB PASTIES

- 2 lbs. boneless lamb (leg or shoulder)
- Pastry for a 2-crust pie
- 2 cloves garlic
- 2 tablespoons oil
- one-fourth lb. flaked cooked fish filets
- Salt, pepper
- 2 tablespoons butter (optional)
- 1 egg, beaten (optional)

Cut lamb into small cubes. Make pastry; roll out one-fourth inch thick, cut into 6 rounds. Chill. Brown lamb with garlic in hot oil 2 to 3 minutes. Add fish and salt and pepper to taste. Divide onto pastry rounds, fold over, crimp edges to seal. Bake in a 400-degree oven about 15 minutes, until pasties are richly browned.

For a flakier pasty, dot rolled out dough with butter, fold both sides to cover middle. Chill. Roll out one-fourth inch thick and cut out rounds. Fill and bake. Pasties may be brushed with egg for a high glaze. Makes 6 servings. Serve with steak sauce or Cockey's Sauce.

- COCKEY'S SAUCE
- 1 onion
 - 1 apple
 - 3 raw mushrooms
 - 2 tablespoons butter
 - Dash liquid gravy
 - browner

2 tablespoons milk
Dice onion and slice apple and mushrooms; cook in butter until soft. Add browner and milk; simmer to thicken. Serve with pasties.

Note: Pasties may be made and assembled up to the point of baking, then frozen for later use. They also may be made ahead, baked, cooled or frozen to be reheated.

Sauce has secrets

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

About a century and a half ago, there was a British governor-general in Bengal who dearly loved spicy food. He liked it especially with a piquant sauce the 'Indians made.

On his return to his native shire of Worcester, the governor-general brought back the recipe for this sauce and took it to two local druggists, named John Lea and William Perrins. He asked them to whip up a batch.

The druggists complied but, on tasting it, they found the result could best be described as blah. They stowed the cask in the cellar and tried to forget about it.

A couple of years later one of the druggists, puttering about the basement, came upon the cask and took another taste. To his surprise, the concoction had taken on a new life and considerable punch.

It wasn't long before the sauce became popular throughout the countryside. Soon merchant captains, with encouragement from Messrs. Lea and Perrins, were taking casks along on their voyages. Eventually Worcester sauce, as it was now called, became internationally famous.

Recently I went to Fair Lawn, N.J., and visited the plant where they make Worcester sauce for American use. While there, I met Ransom Duncan, personable great-great grandson of the original U.S. importer and he told me some interesting things. Only six people in the world, for instance, know the precise blend of spices and other ingredients that make up the sauce.

"Time is our secret ingredient, as with fine wines," we were told by James Lunn, president of the American company.

Worcestershire sauce is best known as an ingredient in Bloody Marys and Welsh Rarebit, but it has many uses. It's good on steaks and chops and does wonders for beef stew or meat loaf. I like it in soups, such as this onion:

- 2 pounds onions, peeled and sliced thin
- 1/2 cup butter
- 3 cans (10 1/2 ounces each) condensed beef broth
- 1 soup can water
- 2 tablespoons dry white wine

- 1 tablespoon Worcester sauce
- Eight slices French bread, about 1 1/2 inches thick

Melt butter in saucepan, add onions, saute till golden, about 30 minutes. Add broth, water, wine and Worcester sauce. Simmer covered 30 minutes. Place bread slices on baking sheet and bake in 350-degree oven 20 minutes. Pour soup into tureen, place toast on top and sprinkle with both cheeses. Dot with butter, heat in 400-degree oven till cheese melts, and serve. Serves about 8 persons. Good with dry white wine, chilled.

AT WIT'S END

Next war will be neighbors battling

By ERMA BOMBECK

This country's next war will not be fought between nations on a foreign battleground. It'll be a civil war fought in a yard between neighbors.

For some reason we can have compassion for a cat caught in a tree, or a lost dog, or bird that has fallen from a nest. But we have none for the man trying to sleep in on a Sunday morning.

Take the case of poor Mrs. Holmes from York, England. She lived next door to a "menace" who was doing repairs and renovations on his home from 7:30 to 11:30 every single evening. When he began to build a closet on the other side of the wall, she and her husband had to move out of their bedroom.

WHEN THEY RETURNED, he started doing the same in another bedroom.

Mrs. Holmes appealed to the police, the local government and a citizen's advice bureau. Finally, she did what she had to do. She threw a brick through his window.

All of us have had a "brick wish" at one time or another. How about one for the teenager who has insomnia and deaf parents and who works on his car in the wee hours of the morning, stopping every 15 seconds or so to the race the motor?

OR THE TRAVELERS who have made a trench in your yard by shuffling back and forth between houses. Or the party-throwers who amplify music in their back yard and inflict their taste on everyone in the neighborhood.

The borrowers who are going to quit cutting grass someday, but until they do will borrow your mower, lawn sweeper, hose, and fertilizer.

The dog people who do not hold themselves responsible for their dog getting into your garbage or tearing up your flower beds.

The scenic wonders who have had two junk cars sitting in their side yard for three years and never consider that they're an eyesore.

There doesn't have to be a war. It takes people who stop thinking about themselves and have a little consideration for their neighbors, and hopefully the example will be returned.

Incidentally, Mrs. Holmes... the lady who threw the brick... was set free by the judge.

A survey of leading retailers and manufacturers of upholstered furniture says that it's going to be a greenish/blue year coming up. This continues a trend already in existence, as blues and greens are now the most popular and you may, therefore, expect more of the same in the months ahead. The No. 1 living room color picked by the great majority of dealers is green in solids. For prints, about half of the dealers and decorators surveyed also predicted green to be the favorite. Blue and gold-yellow were named as the second and third choice of solid fabrics, and gold as second most popular for prints. With all of these predictions concerning greens, blues and golds, we want to make it clear that we never recommend you use them because they are the trend. Use them only if they are the colors you like best. In selecting the colors for your home, you have the choice of all of the many lovely colors of the spectrum. If everyone used green, blue or gold, they would be just the colors you would want to avoid. The selection of the right colors in a room, all the way from the floor to the ceiling, is one of the ways in which we can help you. Drop in for a visit, and let's talk "color". You'll be glad you did.

Paint wicker furniture with enamel spray

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

Q. — WE HAVE SOME wicker furniture that is in good shape, but needs repainting. I would like to use a glossy paint. Is it better to apply it with a brush or a spray can?

A. — YOU'LL PROBABLY find it better to use one of the glossy enamels that comes in a spray can. Spray on three or four light coats rather than a single, heavy one. Follow the instructions on the can carefully, especially about the distance to hold the can from the furniture while spraying. And be sure to cover everything in the area of the project, since the mist spreads farther than you might think.

Q. — FOR YEARS OUR washing machine worked perfectly. It still does, but now it shakes very much and makes a loud, bumping noise, especially when the spinner is on. What causes this?

A. — Any one of a number of things, some of which may require professional attention. But before you call in a repair man, check the following possibilities and you may be able to correct the condition yourself. A machine can vibrate excessively when there is too much wash in the machine, when the wash is not distributed evenly or when the machine is not resting solidly on the floor. In the latter case, try rocking the machine with your hands. If it rocks even the tiniest bit, this must be corrected. Sometimes it is done by moving the machine a few inches until the hand-rocking is eliminated, sometimes by readjusting the legs if they are adjustable and sometimes by placing something under one of the legs.

Q. — WE BOUGHT A house way-out in the country some years ago. We now would like to remodel it so that we can live in it all year round. One of the things we would like to do is to put in a septic tank. Do we need a permit for this?

A. — In almost all areas, you not only need a permit to have a septic tank installed, you must follow certain rather strict regulations on how it is constructed and how it operates. Presumably, you will have this done by a professional contractor. He should know all about the regulations in your area, but be sure you talk it over with him in detail, letting him know that you want everything done according to the law. Any time a person tries to install a septic tank without following his community's code, he winds up regretting it, one way or another.

Q. — WE WANT TO INSTALL quarry tile on the terrace at the rear of our house. We have seen it in hallways and other places indoors. Our terrace has a roof on it, but is not otherwise enclosed, so we have two questions. Will the tiles be ruined if rain blows in on them? Will they withstand cold weather?

A. — QUARRY TILES WILL not be affected by rain or cold weather, provided they are properly installed. The establishment where you purchase the tiles will give you instructions on their installation. Follow them carefully.

(The selection and installation of all types of ceramic tile are discussed in Andy Lang's booklet, "All About Ceramic Tile," which can be obtained by sending 35 cents and a long STAMPED, self-adressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

COLLEGE STATION — How safe are mayonnaise and salad dressing?

Many homemakers this summer are concerned about the general safety of mayonnaise or salad dressing in sandwiches and salads. "Commercially prepared mayonnaise and salad dressing are safer than most people believe," says Dr. Ranzell Nickelson II, member of the Food Quality and Safety Committee of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Learning to face reality greatly enhances your status with people who count. Financial condition will improve by year's end, but could be source of irritation at various times. Relatives cause you some upset, but changes in lifestyle prove beneficial in end. Singles need to be cautious and discriminating. Current romance may be glamorous thing rather than long-lasting relationship. Health poses no major problem.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Make changes now with confidence. Your intuition is strong and on target. Visit someone who may be hospitalized or confined. Member of opposite sex may be thinking with head instead of heart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Praise associate who provides useful idea. You may have to make personal commitment. Do not be stampeded into hasty decision you will regret later. Open new channel of communication.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Deal with forceful personality. Be prepared and you will have no trouble. Change of residence may come under discussion. New responsibility is more than you can handle at this time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pressures lessen as money worries decrease. Creativity brings recognition and financial gain in near future. Stamina is high throughout day.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Finish up routine duties early in day. You will find what you have misplaced. Individual effort will be well rewarded. Good time to look for new residence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Tie up some loose ends. Mail, telephone call apt to bring good news. Your own health is excellent, but health of loved one needs attention. You show a good ideal of self-confidence in money matters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not alter plans already under way. Older person may be manipulating things for you. Social life is accelerated, opposite sex plays prominent role. Indulge in some fanciful thinking.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be a self-starter. Volunteer for extra duties, particularly if others show no interest. Health is fine, but getting out tonight will relieve tension. Best relationship is with an older person.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Concentrate on unfinished business. Small-scale work apt to bring biggest rewards. Outside force will interrupt progress. Change of diet, exercise routine will help chase summer doldrums.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Pursue contacts made earlier. Co-workers will be congenial. Complete paperwork before weekend. What seems far away is closer than you imagine. Romantic relationship likely to reach new level.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Relying on intuition can be helpful in resolving apparent dilemma. Be positive and firm in handling financial matters. Your ideas regarding buying, selling mean better profits.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Self-improvement projects will bring great satisfaction. Take care of practical affairs. Indicate willingness to adjust to needs of family member and work at improving family relationships.

RINGING THE BELL

Jazz dancing born with blacks

With BOB TIEUEL

Black Spirit Gave Birth to Jazz Dance and Spiritual: Jazz dance is what Fred Astaire did. It is tap and cakewalks and disco. It is Broadway show dance, movie musical dance, dance that appears on TV variety shows.

"It is happy dancing," states Liz Williamson, one of the form's most vocal and enthusiastic advocates. Jazz is joy. Jazz has had a bad rap because it came from blacks, believes Ms. Williamson, who is in Texas teaching a workshop at Texas Woman's University. "Jazz is the one art form indigenous to America, and it began with blacks."

Her own interest in dancing began when she was an undergraduate at Radcliffe College. Her research revealed that jazz started as people's dance and continued to be people's dance. Something had to be done not to completely break the spirit. Like prisoners of war, slaves needed a way to keep their sanity. And it all began in Africa. The music apparently also was laced with hidden meanings.

CONTINUES MS. Williamson: "There's a young man who has a theory that spirituals were full of double entendres. 'Swing Low, Sweet Chariot' actually meant 'Get low under the bushes.' 'Comin' for to carry me home' meant Harriet Tubman is coming to take you to freedom."

From her research she turned up the diary of a white girl from Raleigh, N.C. She mentioned that the slaves would sing and dance, sing and dance until they reached fever pitch. Then they would march, march, march right into the river because they would rather drown than be slaves," she said.

According to Ms. Williamson, Europeans are still more receptive to jazz music than are Americans. "Last summer I taught in Dresden, and I was overwhelmed by the interest there. There are so many jazz books in Germany." In addition to teaching and research, Ms. Williamson has an active stage career on Broadway.

EDITORIAL of the week: By a vote of 408-11, the U.S. House of Representatives voted recently to desegregate the artwork which lines the halls of Congress in honor of Americans who have embodied the spirit of America and contributed to the quality of life.

A statue or bust of Dr.

Martin Luther King Jr. will be the first work of art in Congress established in tribute to a black American. The details remain to be worked out by Congress' joint Committee on the Library pending the resolution's Senate approval.

"The omission of such tribute speaks for itself. Nowhere among the hundreds of statues scattered throughout the halls of Congress will one find busts of black legislators, military heroes, scientists, inventors, etc. ... And since Martin Luther King's portrait will be a tribute to his leadership, it will keenly symbolize the injustices others have suffered." (Dallas Times Herald)

A COALITION of Hispanic Americans recently warned that there is a growing sentiment in Congress to repeal the bilingual ballot requirements of the 1975 Voting Rights Act Amendment. U.S. Sen. S.I. Hayakawa of California has introduced a bill to delete the bilingual ballot provisions from the law because he believes all Americans should learn to speak and read English. Hayakawa said he feared a separatist movement in the country if Mexicans do not learn English. Several Washington sources, however, stated they doubt there will be much pressure to delete the bilingual election provisions.

Bar gathering draws convention of hawkers

By RICHARD CARELLI

DALLAS (AP) — Want to buy an electric rub-down machine? How about a personalized umbrella or scarf?

Each time the American Bar Association gathers for a national convention, twice every year, so do the hawkers — purveyors of handy, dandy goods and services someone thinks lawyers might desire.

Business was brisk on the floor of the Dallas Convention Center's Grand Hall this past week as many of some 8,000 lawyers took time from the platoon of panel programs and sea of special sessions to browse through a borough of booths.

"We've taken a lot of orders," Mary Luck of Dallas said as she demonstrated the jarring joy of executive health massagers.

"Lawyers have a lot of tension and this is just the thing to help relieve it," she said as the softly whirring machines did their work. "It also is great for their arthritis, bursitis, tennis elbow and sore feet."

A nearby booth offered help for lawyers who try to relieve their tension another way.

"We've had quite a few persons stop by," Bea Duncan of Dallas said from the Alcoholics Anonymous booth.

Asked about the scope of problem drinking within the legal profession, she noted that Dallas lawyers have formed their own group to help cope.

By sheer numbers, booths ballyhooing word processors, professional liability insurance, legal research texts and recorders for the executive dominated. Most featured comely young women or spiffy young men ready and able to answer any question from a prospective customer.

And among all that sat

Paul Baker of Dallas, playing his four-string banjo for anyone who asked.

Wearing a Stetson, jeans, cowboy shirt and a button declaring himself the "Rhinstone Ranger," Baker was at work drawing ABA members to a booth where literature urged them to join a particular section of the trade group.

"I'm having a great time," Baker said, "but I never did see so many searsuits and three-piece suits."

Negro leader blames Klan resurgence on economic crisis

By J. LEE CARRIER

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The re-emergence of Ku Klux Klan activity stems from the nation's economic problems, says the president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

But the Klan can exist only when it is tolerated by white society, the Rev. Joseph Lowery told a news conference at the first day of the SCLC's 22nd annual convention Tuesday.

"We are experiencing a resurfacing of racism in this country brought on by an economic crisis," Lowery said. "The Klan situation represents the most ugly form of racism."

"I really haven't heard a strong reaction from the white community against the Klan.... We think the Klan will disappear when white America decides the Klan doesn't represent white folks."

Several Klan rallies and marches have been held in recent weeks. Last weekend, police blocked Klan members from entering Montgomery, Ala., after a march from Selma, and rock-throwing broke out at a small Klan rally in New Jersey.

The four-day convention, plagued by reports of a split between moderates and activists, was to hear Wednesday night from U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, himself a figure of controversy.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance rebuked Young on Tuesday for meeting with representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization in violation of U.S. policy.

Lowery said the SCLC was "reserving judgment at this time on whether to support President Carter if he is the Democratic nominee."

Carter had ardently wooed and won black support in 1976, but some of the nation's black leaders have become disenchanted with him.

"Mr. Carter certainly has disappointed the black community, but this administration is not over yet. What he does in the next year will determine whether we support him again," Lowery said.

"We don't know yet who the candidates will be, and it is too early to voice support for Mr. Carter or withhold it."

The Rev. Hosea Williams, fired in March as the SCLC's executive director, threatened recently to "bring thousands" to Norfolk for a counter-convention. But chances of such a demonstration appeared small Tuesday.

Williams contends his firing is part of a plan to rid the SCLC of activists.

Lowery said Tuesday that Williams was fired simply because he was not doing his job properly, adding that any split in the organization's ranks "is in the mind of the media."

Pedestrians stop, stare when Charlie Chisholm rides 'Big Daddy Rat'

BALTIMORE (AP) — When Charlie Chisholm takes Big Daddy Rat out for a night ride, a thousand lights detonate 3,500 tiny rhinestone explosions, dazzling awestruck pedestrians and fulfilling a 40-year dream.

"You pass this motorcycle at night, you don't know what it is," Chisholm boasted. "I mean, you turn on 300, 400 of these lights, it looks like a meteor coming at you. A lot of people, they go crazy over it."

The 1962 Harley Davidson, proudly dubbed Big Daddy Rat, almost never loses a "best dress" motorcycle competition — and small wonder.

Sandwiched between two chromed wheels, Chisholm has lovingly installed a radio-tape player, a CB radio, and 1,450 lights — all of it outlined in a blaze of rhinestones and red and white tassels.

The bike is a regular at civic parades, county fairs and shopping center openings, and the 52-year-old West Baltimore bartender says it is about to be listed in the Guinness Book of Records as "the world's most unusually lighted street motorcycle."

But Chisholm has bigger things in mind, like the recent trip to Cologne, Germany, courtesy of a motorcycle magazine. Some of the tours, he hopes will be for profit. Other will be for charity.

Charlie Chisholm hasn't forgotten his humble beginnings.

"When I was a kid, we were very poor people. My daddy always promised me a bicycle, but I never got a new bike," Chisholm said, explaining that a cousin's motorcycle sparked his own interest in cycles.

"He had a few things here and there, and I thought it was a tremendous bike and I said that if I ever got large enough, I'd get one of my own."

"I left home at 15 and when I finally got the money, I put it down on a motorcycle. My wife took one look at it. She said, 'You gotta get rid of that motorcycle, or get rid of me.' So I kept the bike."

On a whim, he attached 50 lights. That attracted attention, so he added another hundred, and another, and another.

"I just kept adding. After I got up around 300, everybody was really amazed and I decided to really go for it."

Seven years and $19,000 later, Chisholm figures Big Daddy Rat is ready for stardom — whether it's in Georgia or Germany.

"I remember one time ... I was riding this thing down to a motorcycle show in Daytona Beach and I pulled over to the side of the road," Chisholm recalled.

'Three Days Of The Condor' may be all bird has left unless controversial campaign works

Automobiles seem to be heading down the crowded laneway which is really a mural painted at the back of a Toronto stereo store. The recently completed mural has been turning a lot of heads, but so far no one has tried to drive into the mythical drive. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — With some experts uncharacteristically hopeful, a controversial all-or-nothing campaign to save the California condor from oblivion is now scheduled to start in January.

"It's a big gamble but I think we have a good chance of pulling it off," says Richard Plunkett, Audubon Society ecologist.

More restrained, director Lynn A. Greenwalt of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service comments:

"It may already be too late but if there is any hope it will be through captive breeding. There is a certain risk but we have no other choice."

Only 22 to 26 of the huge black and white vultures still exist, by Plunkett's estimate. Even so, they are more numerous than were whooping cranes when the campaign to save them started in 1938; now there are more than 100.

The captive breeding program for the condor stems from recommendations over the past three years from three panels of government and private biologists. Some ecologists would rather see a species die out than be subject to such artificial propagation.

The first year's effort is expected to cost $500,000 in federal funds, plus $100,000 from the Audubon Society, which will continue to spend that much for at least four more years. After the initial effort, involving much research as well as capture of wild condors, costs will drop.

"The main trouble is that the public will expect immediate results, while we may need 40 years," says Plunkett. "As things stand, however, the bird is practically extinct."

That's because it scarcely breeds any more in the wild. One reason may be the use of pesticides.

The wild birds are to be caught in nets, their sex and health determined, the older ones released after attachment of radio transmitters, and some young ones kept for the breeding program.

The hope is to have five captive pairs on the job in two or three years. The transmitters will make it possible to track the far-ranging old birds.

In the wild, a condor pair normally produces one chick every two years. As captives, they may be induced to produce one a year or even more through "double clutching" — the practice of stealing away a first egg for artificial incubation so that the bird will lay another.

The captive birds will be cared for at first by experts at the San Diego Zoo, in specially built quarters; later, perhaps, at UC Santa Barbara and the Los Angeles Zoo, where one condor, Topa Topa, has lived in lonely captivity for years.

Meantime, experiments will be carried out with black and turkey vultures and with Andean condors on how best to raise young birds and set them free in such a way that they can fend for themselves.

One possible outcome of the campaign will be a shift in the condors' nesting range from the present one within a couple of hours' drive of Los Angeles to remote ranch country where the birds will not be disturbed and will find pesticide-free carcasses to thrive on.

School menus changed to cut waste

The Wilco Building, 415 W. Wall St., has stood as a Midland landmark since 1958, when it was the tallest structure between Dallas and the West Coast. The 22-story brick and steel structure houses more than 50 companies and once was broadcast base for KDCD-UHF television. The second-tallest building in town still supports the repeater station for KMOM television in Monahans. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hoping to cut back on "plate-waste" and make federally subsidized school lunches more nutritious, the Agriculture Department has announced menu changes in three areas.

After two years of study and testing, the department has decided that beginning this fall, corn grits, rice and pasta can be served in place of breads in school lunchrooms.

The department also said Wednesday that schools must offer unflavored lowfat milk, skim milk or buttermilk — in addition to whole milk — to help reduce the percentage of calories derived from fat.

But Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said schools that already have signed milk contracts for the coming school year can seek an exemption from the new milk rule.

A third change in the federal school-lunch guidelines — this one aimed at variety — recommends that schools not serve any one form of meat or meat alternative more than three times a week.

Schools also are to find ways to extend the involvement of children and parents in lunch activities beyond eating or paying for the meal. The idea there is to make the meals more acceptable and heighten awareness of good nutrition, Ms. Foreman said.

More than 26 million pupils eat the school lunches, partially or tally at federal expense. The Agriculture Department prescribes the choices schools have among meats, fruits, vegetables, breads and milk in preparing the "approved pattern." Ms. Foreman proposed a number of changes in the menus almost two years ago and issued interim regulations a year ago, allowing schools to try new approaches. The new guidelines, to be formally published Friday, are based on field tests to determine the waste of foods disliked and uneaten.

COUPON EXPIRES AUGUST 31, 1980

You can help Imperial keep the price of sugar down.

You, the American consumer, pay twice as much for sugar as other consumers all over the world. And the politically powerful sugar lobby is asking Congress to pass H.R.2172, a bill which would add another $400 million a year to the already inflated price you pay.

Why do you pay twice the world price?

Because sugar growers in the United States receive government price supports which bring the price of domestic raw sugar up to twice the world price. Imported raw sugar is then burdened with customs duties and import fees creating an artificial domestic price. This legislation for contrived pricing already costs consumers about $2.6 billion every year. Now the sugar lobby wants to increase your cost another $400 million a year.

Who is behind the sugar lobby?

Mainly the U.S. growers of sugar beets and sugarcane, processors of sugar beets and some corn syrup manufacturers.

Why is Imperial Sugar Company against this legislation — H.R. 2172?

1. The additional subsidy and fees would benefit less than one-half of 1% of American farmers and penalize 224 million American consumers.
2. It is inflationary at a time when sugar prices already are too high.
3. It would add up to $400 million more per year to sugar costs through protectionist legislation that presently costs us about $2.6 billion annually.

Here's what you can do to help.

Write your congressmen and tell him: "I am opposed to H.R.2172 which will increase the price of sugar and further fuel inflation. I respectfully request you to vote against this bill when it comes to the floor of the house."

Civiletti takes over at Justice; Pledges to protect handicapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Benjamin R. Civiletti took command of the Justice Department today with a pledge to use his office to protect all Americans whose handicaps — social, political or economic — make it hard for them to protect themselves.

Civiletti, a prematurely gray Baltimore lawyer who has been Attorney General Griffin Bell's understudy took the oath of office as attorney general from Chief Justice Warren E. Burger in a ceremony in the department's ornate "Great Hall."

President Carter attended to pay tribute to both Bell and his successor.

Carter said his selection of Bell, an old friend from Atlanta and a target of charges of cronyism at the time he was named, has turned out to be "one of the wisest decisions ever made."

Through it all, Bell beamed. He has been eager to leave Washington for over a year.

A Republican, Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, suggested that Bell return — this time to assume the robes of a member of the Supreme Court. Bell has said he thinks that is an unlikely event.

Civiletti promised to carry on Bell's goals and to make sure that the department "represents well those who cannot well represent themselves" — the disadvantaged whether they are members of minorities or the handicapped or the aged.

Civiletti also said he would have "the courage" to bring long pending cases to a conclusion either by prosecuting them or closing them if he decides the facts do not warrant prosecution.

His three teen-age children, his wife and parents, former associates in a Baltimore law firm, many members of the Cabinet and hundreds of associates from the Justice Department were there to see him enter office.

In the past, Civiletti has said that while he shares Bell's goals he won't be able to assume Bell's role as the foremost storyteller in the administration.

"I have no flamboyance at all and little humor," says the soft-spoken, somewhat self-effacing, formal Civiletti.

Style may change, but Civiletti, Bell's protege, is expected to retain Bell's priorities — a crackdown on sophisticated white-collar crime and on police brutality, an improvement in the administration of justice, a determination to strengthen the barriers against political interference.

In a farewell ceremony Wednesday, Bell said the business of the Justice Department is to see that justice is done.

"Without justice there is nothing," he said. "Justice is the reason for having organized government."

Meanwhile, in Portland, Ore., Neil Goldschmidt was sworn in Wednesday as interim secretary of transportation. Confirmation hearings on the former Portland mayor's Cabinet appointment will be held after the Senate returns from its recess.

Bell, resuming the practice of law in Atlanta, says he will be available to counsel Carter about running the government.

A federal judge for 15 years, Bell has been speculated about as Carter's possible choice for a Supreme Court seat should a vacancy occur.

But Bell says he doubts he ever will wear the robes of a Supreme Court justice. Yet, he doesn't say he wouldn't want the job.

"Under the system we're following now, affirmative action, it would be a long time before they got down to a minority like me, which is a white southerner, male," Bell said this week in a radio interview.

"We need to put a woman on the court," he said. "There's a lot of other people ahead of me, is what I'm trying to say. I don't see any sign any time soon of there being a place that the president would want to give me."

Civiletti, 44, was Bell's recommended successor. He has had 30 months' apprenticeship, having headed the Criminal Division before becoming Bell's deputy.

He handled two of the department's most troublesome recent problems — the investigation of FBI break-ins and the case of Korean influence buyer Tongsun Park.

Housing prices rising faster than earnings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The median value of the American house jumped 53 percent to $36,900 between 1973 and 1977, while the median income of homeowners rose only 39 percent during the same period, the government reported Wednesday.

A Census Bureau report on rising housing prices shows that during the same time, renters paid 38 percent more, bringing their monthly payments to a median of $184. Their monthly income rose by 22 percent to $8,800 between 1973 and 1977, figures show.

The median income of homeowners with mortgages was $19,900 in 1977, the report says.

The increased prices were greatest in the South and West.

Homeowners in the West saw the median value of their housing rise 76 percent in four years to $48,800. In the South, the value of houses rose 59 percent to $31,400. During the same period, the value of houses rose 59 percent to $31,400, figures show.

The report shows that in 1977, homeowners paid about 19 percent of their annual income for monthly housing costs, including mortgage payments, real estate taxes, property insurance and utilities.

At the same time, renters paid about 25 percent of their 1977 income for rent, the report shows.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Elective induction

Dear Dr. Solomon: My first baby is due in about a month, and my sister is being married two weeks later. Since I would like to be certain of participating in the wedding as well as in all the prenatal festivities, I was wondering about the advisability of having labor induced to insure that delivery is not delayed beyond the due date. — Mrs. E.F.

warning with the medication, stating that it should be used only for medically indicated inductions of labor. Unfortunately, the warning will be seen only by the attending physician, not by the patient on whom the drug is used.

In testimony before the United States Subcommittee on Health and Scientific Research, at an FDA hearing, and in an article published in the American Journal of Public Health, Dr. Ronald Rindfuss, an associate professor of sociology at the University of North Carolina, has commented on the detrimental effects of elective induction of labor. Dr. Rindfuss says that the practice is far too common, and that it is dangerous to the health and lives of both mother and child. Statistics he compiled indicate that one fetal death in 200 inductions is directly attributable to the procedure.

Dear Mrs. F.: Your most important plans at present must be concerned with the well-being of yourself and your unborn child. While I can understand the desire to attend your sister's wedding and the parties that will precede it, I think you should be aware that there is some risk involved in the elective induction of labor.

Elective induction is the practice of starting a pregnant woman's labor before it occurs spontaneously, either by use of a drug, mechanical means, or a combination of the two. The most commonly used method involves intravenous injections of the drug oxytocin. In the mechanical method, the membranes are stripped from around the baby.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently held hearings regarding the advisability of using oxytocin; subsequently, the FDA announced that the drug should not be used for elective induction. Drug manufacturers are now required to include a

MHS YOUTH CENTER CHATTER

Midland High annuals arrive; Pre-school activities to begin soon for 1979-80 year

By AMY DAVENPORT, TRACY BEEBE, REBECCA WILSON and ANGELA TOMPKINS

HEY, BULLDOGS! It's time to let you in on the latest happenings at the YC.

The 1978-79 annuals have arrived. Everybody come with pen in hand to the Annual Signing Party Aug. 22 from 5 to 7 p.m. at the YC. All ex-seniors leaving town may pick up their annuals each weekday morning from 8 a.m. to 12 noon.

Attention, Packbackers! There will be a mandatory meeting at the Feldt's residence, 1605 Gulf, at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 22. Be ready to learn new chants and cheers for the upcoming season, and "Super Dog Night."

The MHS faculty and YC members once again cordially invite all incoming sophomores and parents to the Sophomore Orientation, which will be held in the MHS Auditorium at 7 p.m. Aug. 23. Parents will meet in the cafeteria. There will be a reception at the YC immediately following, and 1979-80 membership cards will be on sale for $7. All Junior Council members (juniors and seniors) should bring two dozen cookies to the YC by 3 p.m. that day.

MARK THIS on your calendar: Aug. 25 is "All-day Packbacker Car Wash and Super Dog Night." Beginning at 10 a.m. the MHS Packbackers will spruce up your car until 4 p.m. Bring all cars either to the Albertson's parking lot or the Northland Shopping Center parking lot. Tickets will be sold at the car wash. Then at 6 p.m. you will drive your clean machine to Super Dog Night.

Everyone is invited, including parents, students, faculty and all MHS supporters. Boogie on down to the stadium and watch the action. Remember girls, our MHS Macho Men (football players) will be there. After drooling over our Macho Men, drag, fag and stag on down to the YC for a back-to-school dance. The fun starts at 9 and ends at midnight. If you have your 1979-80 YC membership card, you can dance for 50 cents. If not, you are out $3.50. You may purchase a card at the dance and still get in for 50 cents.

COUNCIL MEMBERS note: Setup for the dance is 2 p.m. Aug. 25. Cleanup is 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 26. Be here.

Also on Aug. 18 there will be another preparation party at the YC for all council members, starting at 10 a.m.

After a summer of cruisin' and boozin', get your car in shape for school at the MHS Choir Car Wash. The hose is turned on at 8 a.m. Aug. 18 at Stanley's Exxon Station at Wadley and Garfield and won't stop until 8 p.m. Tickets are $2 and can be purchased from any choir member or at the car wash.

WE WELCOME from Snyder our new "Roundballer" coach, Mr. Jack Stephenson. We know he will lead us to another district championship. Let's shoot for state!

It seems all MHSers are in gear and hungry for the spirit this year. The football players have started workouts with ravenous appetites for victories. Band members have returned from camp and are now readying for good halftime shows. The cheerleaders have just returned from SMU and are proud possessors of the Split Stick. They are hungry for spirit!

As the saying goes, all good things must come to an end, but not at MHS. The Bulldogs are always hungry for spirit. Be prepared for a fantastic year at the YC. Stay tuned to the Chatter for the further adventures to the YC.

See ya at all the above activities. Amy, Becky, Angela and Tracy

Deposed Miss

Illinois won't fight

CHICAGO (AP) — The deposed Miss Illinois, who had threatened to sue to regain her crown, says she won't fight for her title because her injuries would keep her from competing in the Miss America pageant.

Shanna Jean McNeill said in an interview Wednesday with WLS-TV that injuries suffered when she collided with a glass door earlier this month would keep her out of the September competition.

Miss McNeill, 20, of Carterville, had said last week that she was confident the severed tendon in her right hand would heal in time for the pageant and she expected to pursue her quest to compete.

State pageant officials had said Miss McNeill was stripped of her title because her injuries would impair her ability as a pianist at the pageant. Later, Richard Schiller, the state pageant director, contended Miss McNeill was emotionally unstable.

AAA Forecast calls for third consecutive weekend of improved gasoline availability

By The Associated Press

A third consecutive weekend of improved gasoline availability has been forecast for Texas motorists by the American Automobile Association.

The AAA's Texas Division weekly fuel report indicates 36 percent of the surveyed service stations will be open on Sunday and 27 percent now are operating weeknights after 8 p.m.

A week ago, the percentages were 35 and 26 percent, respectively. Indicated gasoline availability as reported by the AAA:

AMARILLO—36 stations, 64 percent closing by 8 p.m. weeknights, 44 percent by 6 p.m. Saturday, and 67 percent closing on Sunday.

AUSTIN—15 stations, 80 percent closing weeknights, Saturday night and on Sunday.

BEAUMONT-PORT ARTHUR—18 stations, 44 percent closing weeknights and Saturday night, 50 percent closing Sunday.

CORPUS CHRISTI—20 stations, 65 percent closing weeknights and 50 percent closing Saturday night and Sunday.

DALLAS-FORT WORTH—76 stations, 88 percent closing weeknights, 82 percent Saturday night, 64 percent Sunday.

EL PASO—30 stations, 67 percent closing weeknights and Sunday, 30 percent closing Saturday night.

WACO—14 stations, 50 percent closing weeknights, 29 percent closing Saturday night, and 36 percent Sunday.

HOUSTON—58 stations, 86 percent closing weeknights, 81 percent Saturday night, and 72 percent Sunday.

McALLEN—22 stations, 64 percent closing weeknights, 14 percent Saturday night, 68 percent Sunday.

MIDLAND-ODESSA—15 stations, 23 percent closing weeknights, 27 percent Saturday night, 47 percent Sunday.

SAN ANTONIO—40 stations, 70 percent closing weeknights, 58 percent Saturday night, 78 percent Sunday.

MISCELLANEOUS CITIES—78 stations, 74 percent closing weeknights, 54 percent Saturday night, 60 percent Sunday.

Three die while battling grass and brush fire

NIPOMO, Calif. (AP) — Three firefighters have been killed and two others injured battling a 930-acre grass and brush fire on the Santa Barbara-San Luis Obispo county line.

The firefighters were working on a hand line away from the fire Wednesday, preparing to set backfires. But, whipping winds turned the blaze in their direction and caught them, according to Peggy Dewane of the California Department of Forestry.

Backfires are fires strategically set to burn areas under controlled conditions, thus depriving a blaze of fuel.

The dead were identified as Fire Capt. Edwin M. Marty, 35, of Nipomo, a veteran of 19 years with the Forestry Department; Ron T. Lorant, 23, a second-year seasonal firefighter, from Long Beach, and Steve Manley, 21.

Everyone has a fried chicken recipe. Only the Colonel has the Original Recipe.

What can you get at Kentucky Fried Chicken that you can't get from any other fried chicken store?

The Colonel's Original Recipe. This is the way Colonel Sanders himself first started making fried chicken. And no one's topped him yet.

No wonder. His Original Recipe chicken is made with a secret blend of 11 herbs and spices. Then pressure fried (not deep fried) tender and juicy. All the way through.

Of course, some of our customers take a fancy to our Extra Crispy chicken. So crisp on the outside. Tender on the inside.

Which is your favorite? The Original Recipe or Extra Crispy? Take these money saving coupons to a participating store and try 'em both. (On Saturday and Sunday, save money on a complete meal for the whole family with our "Weekend Special" coupon.)

City to receive more than $200,000 in sales tax rebate

AUSTIN — The city of Midland will receive more than $200,000 this month as its share of the sales tax rebate, according to State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Exact payment to Midland for August is $231,526.36, almost $50,000 above the $184,562.07 received in August 1978.

That will bring the year's total payments to $2,258,200.87, a 13-percent increase over last year's rebates. Total for 1978 at this point was $1,990,037.96.

The city of Odessa will receive $305,393.49 for its share of the August rebates, according to Bullock. Last August, Odessa received $236,070.76.

The August rebate will bring Odessa's total for this year to $3,119,208.87 — 7 percent above last year's figure of $2,894,439.45.

Bullock said August allocations to Texas cities are averaging about 12 percent higher than payments last year.

These taxes are collected by the city along with state sales taxes and are rebated monthly by the Comptroller's Office.

Meeting for future Cub Scouts set

A meeting for boys interested in joining the Cub Scouts will be held Saturday at Haley Park.

All boys ages 8, 9 and 10 and their parents are invited to attend. It will be a come-and-go activity, but all boys and their parents are invited to stay for an 11 a.m. sack lunch.

Boys will be given information about Cub Scouting and there will be a family orientation program.

A registration table will be available for boys wanting to join the Cub Scouts.

Activities scheduled for the day include Pinewood Derby, boat races, rope tying, an obstacle course, nature and others.

All Cubs are asked to bring Pinewood Derby cars and paddle boats or "blow boats" so they can participate in the races.

For further information, interested persons should contact Gayle Norton after 6 p.m. at 697-1019 or Rich Copel at 697-5406.

Michigan law aims at encouraging young black voters

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Saying the state has embarked on an effort to reverse an apathetic trend among young voters, Gov. William Milliken signed a law permitting voter registration at high schools.

It marked the first victory in an drive by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to get young voters to take part in elections.

In signing the legislation Tuesday, Milliken said the state was trying to "involve a new generation of voters in the political process."

Similar bills are under consideration in other states, officials of the NAACP say, as part of the organization's drive to boost sagging participation by blacks in the voting process.

Georgia is the only other state with similar legislation. In March 1971, then-Gov. Jimmy Carter signed a law authorizing high school administrators to serve as deputy registrars. The Georgia law inspired the current NAACP campaign.

The Michigan law, sponsored by State Sen. Jackie Vaughn, a Detroit Democrat, could lay the groundwork for the registration of more than 130,000 high school students, said Frances Hooks, wife of NAACP Director Benjamin Hooks.

"These youngsters... will serve as a beacon in a national sea of voter apathy and issue ignorance," she said.

Joe E. Madison of Detroit, national director of the NAACP voter education program, said during Tuesday's signing ceremonies that blacks between the ages of 18 and 24 had the worst voter participation record of any eligible group in the nation.

The program's aim is to add 3.4 million new black voters to registration lists around the nation in time for the 1980 election.

"It's somewhat easy to register people in the South because they've been denied the right for so long. But voter apathy is rampant in both the black and white community now," Madison said.

"What we must do is make voter registration easily accessible and we have to look into laws that stifle people from going to the polls."

The NAACP's national voter registration program had been based in Birmingham, Ala., for the past 26 years, but was moved to Detroit last spring because Michigan has more registered voters than any other state, Madison said.

Eighty-one percent of Michigan's eligible voters are registered, against a national average of 65 percent, he said.

"Detroit symbolized the type of political crop that black consistency can amass," Madison added, saying the city government is well integrated.

He said summer recesses have stalled action on similar bills in some states, but said the NAACP would continue pushing the program until such a law is in effect in all 50 states.

Milliken called the measure a chance to reverse the trend of not voting among all age groups. "It may help to stimulate at an early age the lifelong habit of responsible voting," he said.

UTPB offers four courses in Midland

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin will offer four off-campus courses this fall in Midland.

Two courses for area school teachers, a class for the sports minded and another of geology buffs will be on tap for Midland students. Registration in Midland is slated from 7 to 9 p.m. Aug. 28 in Lee High School.

Dr. Thomas Wolff, assistant to the president and coordinator of off-campus courses at UTPB, said the off-campus program is designed to provide a balance between required courses in certain fields and special courses to meet community needs.

"We'd like to provide on a rotating basis the core requirements for teacher certification, the master of arts degree in various teaching disciplines and the master of business administration degree," he said.

"While students will not be able to complete whole degree programs off campus, we plan to provide them a good start toward a degree," Wolff said. "At the same time, we will try to respond to requests for courses in other areas as the need arises," he added.

Sports enthusiasts may be interested in PHED 489, Sports in American Society, with Dr. David Hopkins, assistant professor of physical education, as instructor. The class, which will meet from 5:40 to 8:20 p.m. Wednesdays, is open to physical education majors and others interested in sports.

Geology in the Permian Basin, ERSC 489, will be taught by Dr. Pamela Muller, visiting assistant professor of earth sciences from 7 to 9:45 p.m. Tuesdays.

Also included in the Midland course offerings this fall are two courses in pedagogical studies or education.

PED 675, Classroom Management, will be taught by Dr. Robert Rothstein, professor of pedagogical studies, from 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesdays. PED 647, Human Growth and Development, will meet from 7:45 to 9:15 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. Instructor is Dr. Spencer Thompson, assistant professor of pedagogical studies.

In addition to off-campus courses in Midland, Big Spring, Andrews and Pecos, a full slate of courses is being offered in Odessa with registration slated Sept. 4-5 in the UTPB student lounge. Fall class schedules are available at the registrar's office.

Registration at the upper-level university is open to persons who have earned 60 credit hours of college coursework at any accredited community college, senior college or university.

Students may take courses for credit through Encore, the no-grade option available to students not pursuing a degree.

Library grant sought

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas State Library and Historical Commission has applied for $3,403,172 in federal funds for fiscal year 1980 for library development and to promote cooperation between library systems in the state.

The funds request, already cleared through state channels, awaits approval from the Office of Education in Washington, which should come sometime in October, Pat Smith, manager for the Planning and Management Department, said.

Texas has requested $3,196,471 under Title I of the federal Library Services and Construction Act, and $205,701 under Title III. Title I covers library operations, and Title III promotes cooperation between public libraries and academic libraries throughout the state, she said.

"At over 100 mpg, my Puch stretches the household budget as far as it can go."

"According to recent reports, the average car costs more than 33¢ a mile to operate. But my PUCH moped costs about a penny a mile. So I save 32¢ a mile whenever I ride my PUCH, instead of a car. That's food on the table. Or money in the bank. And riding a PUCH is the most fun you can have, being practical!" For dependable, fun transportation—at a price that won't shrink your wallet—see your nearby PUCH dealer today.
