Actress dies

BELVEDERE, Calif. (AP) — Actress Vivian Vance, who played Ethel Mertz in the long-running television show "I Love Lucy," died Friday of cancer at her home, a spokesman for Lucille Ball Productions said. Miss Vance was 66.

"She'd been ill for quite a while," said spokesman Howard McClay in Los Angeles.

Actress Lucille Ball, star of the hit TV series, said: "I have lost one of the best friends I have ever had, and the world has lost one of the great performers of the stage, film and television. I shall miss her terribly."

The show, made from 1951-1957, is often shown today in reruns. Miss Vance also starred in later TV comedies with Miss Ball.

Dead identified

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — The Royal Air Force rescue coordination center issued on Friday this list of the 18 persons who perished in the storm-devastated Fastnet yacht race earlier this week, naming the vessel first and then the victims:

Ariadne — Frank H. Ferris, the American owner and skipper who lived in London and was the only American fatality, and Britons R.L. Robie, William Le Fevre and D. Crisp.

Bucks Fizz — Two Britons names not released.

Cavale — Briton Peter Dorey.

Festina Tertia — Briton R. Watts.

Flashlight — Britons R. Brown and C. Stevenson.

Grimalkin — Britons D. Seahan and G. Winks.

Gunslinger — Briton Paul Baldwin.

Lotus — One Briton, name not released.

Trophy — Britons Robin Bowyer, Paul Everson and John Puxley.

Veronia — G.J. Willering of the Netherlands.

Witness found

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police say they have finally located a witness who prosecutors believe may play a key role in the upcoming trial of three Synanon members charged in connection with a rattlesnake attack on a lawyer.

The witness has been identified as Les Rahmeyer, a South Bay real estate appraiser.

He testified Thursday behind closed doors at a preliminary hearing for one of the defendants, Synanon founder Charles Dederich, according to published reports.

Dederich and two of his followers, Joseph Musico and Lance Kenton, are charged with conspiracy in the incident in which a rattlesnake was left in the mailbox of Paul Morantz last Oct. 9.

Merger OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exxon Corp. won permission Friday to complete a huge merger with a producer of electric parts but, because of conditions established by a federal judge, the deal is still in doubt.

U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt issued an order allowing the $1.17 billion merger, but only if Reliance Electric Co. is "maintained as a separate entity." This would allow the merged company to be separated by a later divestiture order.

The merger was challenged by the Federal Trade Commission on antitrust grounds.

The oil company said the conditions imposed on the merger with Reliance "would frustrate Exxon's announced purpose in making the acquisition."

Thunderstorms soak Basin area

By MIKE SLATON
Staff Writer

Midland apparently was the center of action Friday afternoon as the central Permian Basin area was soaked by thunderstorms that moved through, triggering reports of funnel clouds around the Tall City.

Area towns to the north of Midland reported varying amounts of rain. To the south, Crane was the only town reporting any moisture.

Midland received not only rain —

1.5 inches recorded at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport — but 25 inch of hail near the airport. Several reports of tornado sightings were made to local authorities.

The National Weather Service also reported wind gusts up to 60 mph accompanying the storm and a temperature drop of 19 degrees between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. as the storm moved into the Midland area.

Midland County was placed under a tornado watch from about 3:15 to 4 p.m. but no official sightings were made, a spokesman for the weather service said.

The tornado watch came after police reported sighting a funnel on the ground about five miles northwest of Midland at 2:30 p.m.

A second call was made to the police about 2:30 p.m. from an office worker who reported sighting a funnel cloud from the top of a downtown Midland office building. The cloud was reported moving to the southeast toward Midland, police said. Several other calls reporting funnel clouds were received by the police between 2:30 and 3 p.m. Friday, officials said.

Bill Crawford at Crawford's County Store, about 11 miles northwest of Midland, said he had heard a report of a tornado in that vicinity, but did not see it himself.

"Evidently it was between here and town or it was east of us," he said.

Crawford added that it was raining so hard that they couldn't see far from the store anyway.

A funnel cloud was sighted near Westview Estates about a mile west of High Sky Girl's Ranch, according to reports from residents in that area.

Streets at Midland Regional Airport were flooded during the downpour, said a worker in the airport's maintenance department. He had been on the runway at one point and said it

Almost like wading in a giant lake, cars inch their way through water which flooded streets at Midland Regional Airport. A thunderstorm, which moved over Midland during the afternoon Friday, dropped almost 1.5 inches of rain at the airport. The National Weather Service received numerous unconfirmed reports of funnel clouds near the Tall City. (Staff Photo by Brian Hendershot)

Man pleads innocent on fraud charges

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

Midlander David Lee Haney entered a plea of innocent Friday in U.S. District Court here to five counts alleging that he submitted false bank loan applications and financial statements to Midland banking institutions.

Haney, 31, 9900 Rankin Highway, entered the plea about 11:15 a.m. Friday during arraignment proceedings before U.S. District Judge D.W. Suttle.

He pleaded innocent to each of the five counts returned Aug. 7 by a federal grand jury meeting here.

The next docket call for federal court here is scheduled Oct. 11 and at that time a trial date probably will be set for Haney.

The five-count indictment against Haney alleges that between April 24, 1979, and July 18, 1979, he submitted false bank loan applications and financial statements to First National Bank of Midland and Midland National Bank to obtain a total of $18,350 in bank loans.

Also alleged in the indictment is that Haney falsely represented himself as a physician to bank loan officers in an attempt to influence them.

Haney remains in Midland City Jail in lieu of posting a $10,000 bond on the indictment.

He was indicted Wednesday by the Midland County Grand Jury on a state district court charge of misapplication of fiduciary property, continuing scheme.

That three-count indictment alleges that on May 8, May 16 and July 12 this year Haney served as the receiver of delinquent accounts for some Midland businesses and did not give them all the money he had collected from delinquent accounts.

Midland County District Attorney Vern Martin said the investigation that led to the state indictment against Haney is continuing.

Although the total amount of money involved was not revealed, Martin said it was more than $200.

The case is being investigated by the Midland Police Department.

Haney's bond on the state charge is $100,000.

Strauss' move 'rejected'

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — American envoy Robert Strauss, in an unexpected move, told Israeli leaders Friday the United States might try to broaden the peace process by modifying basic U.N. resolutions on the Mideast — resolutions Israel considers sacrosanct. He said the Israelis rejected the idea.

Strauss disclosed that the Carter administration might propose its own resolution when the U.N. Security Council meets next week to consider the Palestinian issue. He did not say what it might contain, but it clearly would be aimed at drawing Palestinians into the Mideast peace talks.

After discussions Friday with Prime Minister Menachem Begin and other Israeli officials, Strauss told reporters he had hoped the new American ideas "would meet approval of our friends in Israel." But, he went on, "we have met with negative results."

The special U.S. Mideast negotiator then flew on to Egypt, ending a half-day visit here.

Strauss' talks in Israel had been billed as an attempt by President Carter to ease Israeli fears over a possible swing in American policy toward the Palestinians in the wake of U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young's meeting with an official of the Palestine Liberation Organization that led to Young's resignation.

But the envoy's surprise revelation that Washington was considering offering a new U.N. resolution is more likely to heighten Israeli apprehensions.

For the past two weeks, Washington has been hinting that a new resolution might bring the Palestinians into the Egyptian-Israeli talks over autonomy for the Palestinian-populated West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip.

Carters depart for riverboat ride

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, vowing to "explain to the American people the magnitude of the choices which are now before Congress," left Friday for a riverboat trip and whistlestop campaign designed to win new support for his energy policies.

Carter, wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy departed from Andrews Air Force Base late Friday afternoon for the flight to St. Paul, Minn., where the president was to take part in an "energy briefing" for local residents before boarding the sternwheeler "Delta Queen" later in the evening.

Before leaving the White House, Carter signed an executive order lifting all price controls on so-called "heavy" crude oil, a thick, tar-like substance that is expensive to extract and refine.

Carter said this is the last act he can take without new legislation to spur increased domestic oil production. "It's up to Congress now," the president told reporters in the Oval Office.

"As I travel through the heartland of America this coming week on a kind of working vacation, I intend to explain to the American people the magnitude of the choices which are now before Congress," Carter said.

Although the trip down the Mississippi to St. Louis is being billed as a vacation, Carter's schedule is packed with events including a rally during a stop at Wabasha, Minn.

On Sunday, the president will visit a factory picnic in Prairie du Chien, Wis., and tour a factory. On Tuesday, he'll participate in a radio talk show in Davenport, Iowa, and tour another factory.

On Wednesday, Carter will preside at a "town meeting" in Burlington, Iowa. On Thursday, he'll tour Mark Twain's hometown, Hannibal, Mo.

In contrast to Carter's raft trip down the desolate Salmon River in Idaho last year, this one is more of a campaign trip than a vacation, a fact which White House press secretary Jody Powell acknowledges.

Powell insists, however, that Carter is campaigning for congressional passage of his energy proposals, not his own re-election.

Because of this, federal funds will be used to pay the undisclosed cost of transporting the president's official entourage. Powell said the president is paying the $1,800 riverboat fare for himself and his family out of his own pocket.

The two stops in Iowa give the trip a heavily political flavor, because that state holds caucuses in January to begin choosing Democratic Party convention delegates. It was Carter's strong showing in those caucuses in 1976 that first caused political analysts to take the former Georgia governor's presidential aspirations seriously.

For the $1,800 sum, the president will savor what the steamboat company advertises as "the pampered, good life" and the "sumptuous dining, exquisite cuisine" aboard the 53-year-old "Delta Queen."

"She preserves in grand style the romance and pageantry of a bygone era," the boat's owners advertise.

Among the boat's anachronisms is a wooden superstructure, which fails to meet modern safety standards and which would have doomed the boat years ago had not Congress granted a series of five special exemptions, the latest of which is valid through 1983. The boat is listed in the Interior Department's National Register of Historic Places.

Despite the fire hazard posed by so much wood, the craft's owners insist it is "the safest paddlewheel passenger riverboat ever built," loaded with fire hydrants, fire alarms, fire extinguishers and emergency tools.

"And unlike ocean vessels, most of the Delta Queen's staterooms open directly on outside decks," the owners state in a flyer containing safety information. "Anyone can get to an outside deck area in seconds, and of course in an emergency the boat could reach the nearby shore in minutes."

Secondary slick spotted off coast

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Weary scientists and Coast Guardsmen battling the world's biggest oil spill were encouraged Friday when a 10-mile ribbon of thick oil broke up and began retreating from Port Mansfield, but U.S. Navy spotter planes reported a gigantic slick looming farther south.

The Navy reconnaissance reported a continuous sheen with large streaks of thick "mousse" stretching from just off Tampico, Mexico, to 60 miles north of Brownsville, a distance of about 250 miles.

The oil is spurting from an offshore well that blew out June 3 in Mexico's Bay of Campeche.

Some four miles off the Brownsville jetties, another patch of crude four miles by one mile continued to threaten the delicate Laguna Madre, a shallow body of water between 100-mile-long Padre Island and the Texas mainland.

The lagoon is a breeding ground for shrimp and other fragile marine species and serves as a haven for assorted wildlife.

The floating slime off Port Mansfield broke up into a dozen smaller slicks and was reported Friday night to be five miles from the Port Mansfield Cut, a channel into the Laguna Madre. The oil patch had been a mile from the cut earlier in the day.

In open water off Brownsville to the south, a Coast Guard containment apparatus became clogged and rendered useless by thick, fudge-like emulsions of water and oil.

A Navy "skimming" apparatus that uses a conveyor belt system was a success, though, collecting 1,300 gallons of oil mixed with water.

Scientists said efforts to keep the oil out of the Laguna Madre continued to be successful and reported impact on wildlife as "minimal."

The Coast Guard was also putting the finishing touches Friday on the installation of booms and skimmer systems in the 1,500 foot Aransas Pass, the northerly entrance to Laguna Madre and the channel into the busy port of Corpus Christi. The booms will be installed so as not to impede navigation of the channel.

But Capt. Roger Madson, commander of the task force, said defenders will face their most serious problems next week when they attempt to protect the two-mile-wide Cavallo Pass into Matagorda Bay, about 100 miles up the coast from Corpus Christi. That bay is being menaced by a mammoth slick more than 20 miles long that has drifted to within 20 miles of the shoreline.

Scientific coordinator John Robinson has predicted that oil might hit the bay by next week.

The 367-mile-long Texas coast has natural protection from barrier islands such as Padre. The strategy is to allow the oil to hit the easily cleaned island beaches but prevent it from entering the bays and lagoons where it could create environmental catastrophe.

Thus far more than 20 miles of the scenic tourist beaches on Padre have been crippled by oil. Tourism is down 30 percent and officials say the area will lose millions of dollars.

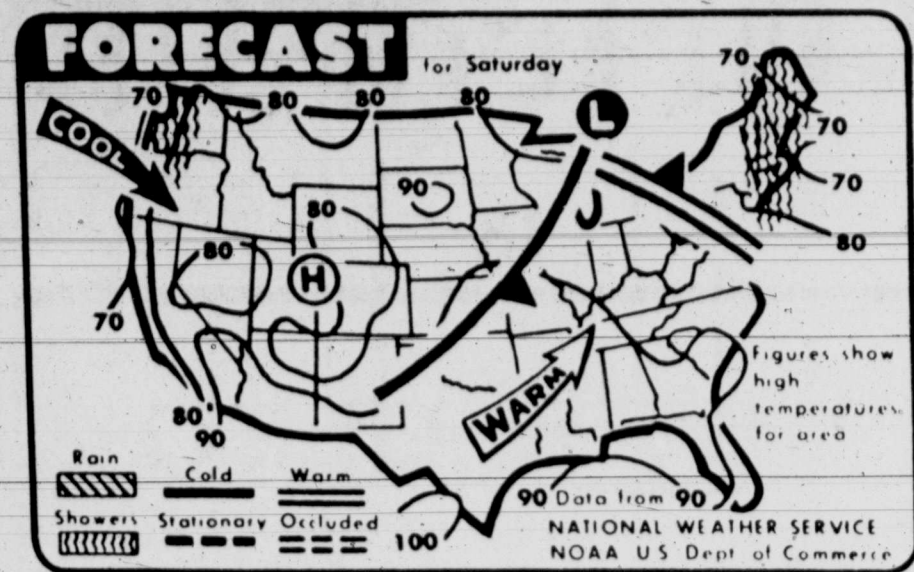

Some "minor" patches of sheen, the thinnest cover of oil, were discovered behind the boom in the Brazos Santiago Pass near Brownsville but Robinson said Friday, "We're confident the sheen doesn't represent any great hazard. But of course we'd like to keep it all out of there."

Because of its width and strong currents, Cavallo Pass will present serious problems for the Coast Guard, Madson said Friday. Officials will not attempt to boom off the entire channel but strategically deploy booms and skimmers in the channel to protect environmentally sensitive areas.

Paskewich said Friday that equipment was en route to Port O'Connor.

Coast Guard officials have acknowledged the possibility of having to defend inlets along the entire coast and say they have the equipment to do it.

Energy union has new leader

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Bob Goss, a 25-year leader with a "nuts and bolts" approach to labor rights, edged out a flamboyant crusader Friday to become president of the influential Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union.

Eight hundred delegates cast votes for union members in an election that forecast the future of the Denver-based organization which deals daily with many of the world's largest and most powerful multi-national corporations.

The voters turned down Mazzocchi, a crusader for health and safety protection and a top nuclear watchdog. He had waged a more outspoken campaign, vowing to tackle touchy areas such as consumer issues and the environmental and health dangers in the industry.

Rain, some hail recorded was "raining so hard I couldn't see anything." The Midland Police Department reported "the usual" streets in the Tall City were flooded during the storm.

An Andrews police department spokesman reported a "nice shower" Friday afternoon. A spokesman there added she had "looked down that way (Midland) and wondered what was going on" when she saw the dark clouds in the area.

Lamesa weather watchers said they had "a very steady rain for a while," and in Stanton they reported "not enough" (rain) to measure.

Rankin police reported the town had "nothing" in the way of weather Friday afternoon. They added there had been a cold wind for a while — "like somebody was getting hail somewhere."

Big Lake weather watchers reported some clouds but no rain. A Big Spring sheriff's department spokesman reported "a little rain" but said most of the storm seemed to go north and south of the town.

Crane received in excess of .6 of an inch of rain, according to a weather source there. "It's done some raining since we last checked, so I'm going to say an inch has fallen," a weather watcher said.

Odessa had some rain according to reports, but apparently was missed by the largest part of the storm.

According to the weather forecaster with the National Weather Service, the storm was triggered by an upper level disturbance moving from the southwest to the northeast in conjunction with moisture that moved into the area from the Pacific Ocean.

The driver of the motorcycle, Michael Rayburn, 21, 1800 N. H St., was treated for cuts and bruises at Midland Memorial Hospital early Friday and released.

The accident occurred in the 3000 block of West Wadley Avenue, two blocks west of Wadley Avenue's intersection with Ward Street.

Police said Rayburn apparently lost control of the motorcycle and struck the curb.

Officer Phil Maxwell with the Midland Police Department talks with a driver involved in one of several traffic accidents that occurred during Friday afternoon's storm.

Justice of the Peace C.E. Gee Jr. pronounced the woman dead at the scene. A ruling on the death is pending an autopsy report, said the spokesman.

Learning and developing better bilingual teaching skills was the goal of this week-long bilingual teaching workshop that concluded Friday at Crockett Elementary School. State Department says Young agrees to stay away from PLO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Andrew Young has agreed to stay away from the Palestine Liberation Organization as he remains in his United Nations post during the search for a successor, the State Department said Friday.

The department, trying to put an end to an awkward situation, said Young understood the restriction and agrees with it.

This seems to represent an about-face by the ambassador, who resigned under fire Wednesday for holding an unauthorized meeting with the PLO's observer at the U.N. and for failing to inform the State Department fully about the incident.

At a news conference in New York Thursday, Young had said that as president of the Security Council during next week's debate on the Palestinian issue, he might have to have discussions with Zehdi Labib Terzi, the same PLO official he conferred with on July 26.

"Anybody who wants to come there to consult can call the (UN) secretary and get an appointment and I'll be there," Young said.

With Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance on vacation in Martha's Vineyard, Mass., department officials fretted for hours on whether to respond to Young's statement and in what manner to respond.

Finally, a statement was issued at late Thursday saying that "in accordance with established practice," it would be appropriate for Young, in his role as Security Council president, to permit the PLO representative to speak.

However, the statement added: "We would not anticipate the need for him as Security Council president to have any other dealings with the PLO.

"In his capacity as U.S. representative, he will pursue U.S. policy regarding contact with the PLO."

That policy prohibits substantive discussions with officials of Yasser Arafat's organization, which has carried out terrorist attacks against Israel and has sworn to destroy the Jewish state.

The U.S. position has been to withhold recognition of the PLO until that organization accepts Israel's right to exist.

The latest statement was put out after State Department consultation with Young, spokesman Thomas Reston said in response to questions.

"He knows and authorizes what was in the statement. We don't anticipate he would have any other dealings with the PLO beyond those which were outlined in the statement," Reston said.

Pressed as to whether Young was under instructions not to have further talks with PLO officials, Reston said, "He knows and agrees with what was in the statement."

In accepting Young's resignation, President Carter decided to keep the ambassador on the job during what White House officials said could be a slow search for a successor. Young is to be consulted by the president in that search.

The surfacing of Young's meeting with Terzi in the plush residence of Kuwait's ambassador has spurred speculation that Israeli intelligence detected Young's unauthorized action.

In response, Avi Pazner, spokesman for the Israeli embassy here, said "allegations of Israeli intelligence in any way involving foreign diplomats at the United Nations are absurd and utterly false. We are outraged by these accusations and we deny them."

Reston, the department spokesman, said there is no evidence to believe that Ambassador Abdal Yacoub Bishara's apartment was bugged.

In New York, meanwhile, Terzi said he was not surprised when Young showed up but they did not discuss "matters of substance."

The State Department's account is that Young talked to Terzi about post-positioning Security Council consideration of the Palestinian issue.

Young defended the meeting again in an interview on NBC-TV's "Today" program.

He said if he made a mistake it was in telling "the whole truth" to Yehuda Blum, the Israeli ambassador to the United Nations.

"And I think the Israelis made a mistake by going public with their protest," Young said.

In a separate interview on NBC, Yigael Yadin, the deputy Israeli prime minister, said Blum acted properly in reporting his conversation with Young to Jerusalem.

The Israeli government has vowed never to negotiate with the PLO. In 1975, the United States also pledged not to negotiate, but the Carter administration has indicated it would be prepared to deal with the PLO should it accept Israel's right to exist.

Young said that without a "reasonable solution to our relations, both with Israel and with the Palestinians... United States foreign policy is going to be seriously hampered."

FBI agent defends his actions prior to arrest of Cullen Davis

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — FBI agent Ron Jannings testified Friday he was more concerned with prospective murder victims than not taking before the arrest last August of millionaire Cullen Davis.

"We were in a hurry," Jannings told the jury in the murder-for-hire trial of the 45-year-old Fort Worth industrialist.

"We were trying to make sure no people were killed in this thing," Jannings' testimony came during cross-examination by lead defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, who has attacked the agent's memory and methods regarding the whirlwind investigation.

Haynes has implied specifically that Jannings was less than professional in his activities with FBI informant David McCrory, the key prosecution witness.

The Houston lawyer questioned him repeatedly about his failure to jot down key information and allegations from McCrory and have rooted out several inconsistencies in Jannings' prior testimony.

A Houston jury failed last January to reach a verdict of guilty or innocent on the charge that Davis, 45, solicited a gunman to kill his divorcee judge.

Davis said he was famed. The Houston jury split 8-4 for conviction.

Jannings testified that McCrory told him during their initial rendezvous a year ago Friday that Davis wanted 15 persons killed.

But Jannings' notes from that night-time meeting reflected only the names for four persons, including divorcee judge Joe Eidson, the defendant's ex-wife Priscilla, and his younger brother, Bill Davis.

"If you've got a man who says he wants 15 people killed, wouldn't you want to know who those 15 people were?" Haynes asked.

Jannings said those were the only names that came to mind after the McCrory meeting and that he did eventually compile the list of 11 persons.

"We didn't have time to write down names," Jannings said once, suggesting that his first concern was to substantiate the story McCrory told him and other officers.

"I didn't really believe McCrory at that point," he said. "I wasn't sure of anything at that point."

Jannings indicated his skepticism eroded after listening to a tape-recorded conversation Aug. 18 between Davis and McCrory in which mass murder was discussed.

Two days later, and again wired for sound, McCrory met Davis on a restaurant parking lot and told him of the contract killings of Judge Eidson had been fulfilled.

At the time, Eidson and his wife were under guard at a Fort Worth motel.

McCrory testified previously he showed Davis a dummy snapshot of the judge's ketchup-stained "body" and that Davis handed over $25,000 earmarked for the hit man.

Davis denied being shown the photograph and contended the $25,000 was money McCrory had given him a month earlier for safekeeping.

Haynes challenged Jannings' decision to permit McCrory to carry a concealed and loaded pistol to both the Aug. 18 and 20 meetings with Davis.

"That was my decision, and I take full responsibility for it," Jannings said. "He would not go to the meetings without it."

Removing control from heavy crude could boost production

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter removed controls from the price of heavy crude oil and predicted Friday that this step would increase domestic oil production by 500,000 barrels a day by 1990.

Each day, the United States produces 250,000 barrels of heavy oil, a substance similar to tar — representing only about 4 percent of its total oil supply.

It was estimated that removing price controls on the heavy oil would increase production prices no more than about one-quarter of a cent per gallon.

The president coupled his action with a plea for congressional passage of "an effective windfall profits tax without major exceptions and without unwarranted loopholes."

Carter, in front of cameras and reporters in the Oval Office, signed an executive order carrying out the decontrol and said it would enable the nation to tap a resource equivalent to Alaska's big Prudhoe Bay oil field.

Heavy oil reserves are estimated at 10 billion barrels.

As the president signed the order, he tipped over a glass jar of the heavy oil to demonstrate its thickness. None of it ran out of the jar.

"This very thick heavy oil is expensive to produce," he said.

The president said this executive order is the last action he could take on his own — without congressional approval — to spur domestic oil production.

"It's now up to Congress," he said, urging that the Senate Finance Committee, which is considering a House-passed bill, not approve a profits tax with "loopholes big enough to sail an oil tanker through."

Carter seeks a so-called "windfall profits" tax to accompany his program for gradually ending price controls on domestically produced oil. Technically, the tax would be on the extra revenue — not profits — from decontrol. Without the tax, oil companies would keep more of this revenue as profit.

Carter said he wants Congress to exempt the heavy oil production profits from such a tax.

Second of eight newborns dies

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Another of the octuplets born to a Naples woman died Friday and the remaining six struggled for life in four separate hospitals. Doctors gave four of the underweight infants little hope for survival.

The parents, Stefano and Pasqualina Chianese, said they were afraid none of the babies born Thursday would survive, repeating a tragedy experienced three years ago when they lost sextuplets. Pasqualina Chianese, 29, has taken hormones to increase her fertility for years.

"I am really afraid. I fear none of them would live as already happened three years ago," Mrs. Chianese told the Italian state radio network.

Her husband, a 32-year-old employee of an insurance company, refused to give the name of the hormonal stimulant taken by his wife. "I do not want to give publicity to this drug," Chianese told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

"What I want is at least one of my children to survive, even if I fear they all may be going to die. I still remember that morning of 1976 when all the babies died. It would be a tragic destiny if none of 14 babies would be left to us," he said.

The octuplets, five girls and three boys, were born two months prematurely, doctors said. Three girls and three boys remained alive Friday.

One girl died ten hours after delivery, and the second girl 31 hours after birth, they said. The first to die was the smallest, a girl weighing 14 ounces. The second weighed just under 18 ounces, doctors said.

Mrs. Chianese was physically fit Friday, although she was discouraged by the prospect none of her octuplets would survive, said officials at the Hospital of the Incurable, where the births occurred.

Officials at the San Paolo Hospital, where four of the babies were rushed and placed in incubators, said the two largest had the best chances of survival. They weighed just over two pounds.

Their siblings weighed less than 25 ounces. A doctor treating one of the boys at the Cardarelli Hospital gave him a one-in-a-million chance of living.

A priest at the Hospital of the Incurable christened the seven infants that survived Thursday.

The record number of children surviving a year after multiple birth is six, set by a family in Sydney, Australia in 1971, and matched by a couple in Capetown, South Africa, in 1974, according to the Guinness Book of World Records.

'I fear for Chad's life,' cancer specialist says

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — The parents of leukemia-stricken Chad Green stopped chemotherapy for the 3-year-old boy a month ago and "I am fearful for the life of Chad," a Mexican cancer specialist says.

Gerald and Diana Green, who took Chad to Tijuana secretly last January from Massachusetts, were unavailable for comment.

Dr. Ernesto Contreras, founder of a Tijuana clinic at which Chad is being given Laetrile, said he warned the Greens their son may suffer a fatal relapse.

"If they refuse to return to chemotherapy, it would be better if they decided to change clinics," Contreras said Thursday.

Laetrile is a trademark for the chemical amygdalin, found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds. Advocates claim Laetrile is an effective cancer treatment, but the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the medical establishment in this country have said there is no proof it is of any value in treating cancer.

In June, the U.S. Supreme Court said the federal government may continue to ban Laetrile. An associate of Contreras, hematologist Julio Edgar Selva, told a reporter that "the Greens have subjected Chad to a much higher possibility of a relapse, which might be fatal."

"The Greens came to my office and confessed that for the past month they have stopped all chemotherapy," said Contreras. "It is not that I am fearful for myself or the clinic because of what might happen. I am just fearful for the life of Chad."

Contreras and Selva denied reports that Laetrile, enzymes and vitamins which give the leukemia-stricken boy caused any blindness or brain and colon damage.

Drop in profits may hurt hopes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A drop in corporate profits in the second quarter, following other unfavorable economic statistics, could undercut hopes that business will invest at a healthy pace this year and next, several economists agreed Friday.

"The recession is going to be bad news for investments," said George Perry, an economist at the Brookings Institution here. With output and profits sinking, he said, there will be little incentive for businessmen to invest.

PERRY'S assessment came following the Commerce Department's report Friday that after-tax profits of the nation's corporations declined 2.4 percent, at an annual rate, in April, May and June.

It was the steepest quarterly drop in profits since the 1974-1975 recession.

The report said that after-tax profits declined at an annual rate of $3.4 billion to $138.6 billion, marking a sharp reversal of fortunes from the first quarter for the nation's corporations.

An annual rate means that if the second quarter profits continued at the same level for a full year, the quarterly total would become the total for the year.

Corporate profits had increased at a substantial 7.3 percent rate in the first three months of this year. The first quarter gain was criticized by some Carter administration officials who complained that it showed corporations might be keeping prices too high.

WHILE SHARP fluctuations from quarter to quarter are common because of changing business conditions, Perry said he expects profit declines to continue as the economy sinks further into a recession.

"If the recession unfolds on schedule, profits will decline a good deal more," he said in an interview.

THERE WERE these other economic developments Friday:

The Commerce Department said the nation's gross national product didn't decline as much as previously thought in the second quarter. The drop was at an annual rate of 2.4 percent, after discounting for inflation, instead of the 3.3 percent decline estimated earlier.

GNP-measured inflation was at an annual rate of 9.2 percent in the second quarter, down from the earlier estimate of 9.9 percent.

The Federal Reserve Board said the nation's factories operated at 85.6 percent of capacity in July, down from 86 percent in June. The drop reflects the slowdown in the economy and stemmed largely from production cutbacks by automakers.

Economists did not attribute much significance to the lower decline in the GNP in the second quarter. Another decline is expected in the third quarter, which will make the current economic slowdown a recession according to the definition used by most economists and the government.

THE GNP measures the total value of goods and services produced in the economy, and therefore is the broadest measure of the overall performance of the economy.

The revision in the GNP resulted from a bigger increase in business inventories in the second quarter, and Perry said this is bad economic news that will cause more problems later on.

Business inventories are rising because goods aren't selling, Perry said. "They will have to bring down the rate of inventory accumulation. ... It's going to require production cutbacks."

PERRY SAID that even a tax cut designed to encourage investment probably would have little effect in the face of the recession that is now under way.

George Hagedorn, chief economist of the National Association of Manufacturers, said the second quarter profits report points to a "profit squeeze" for corporations that could be damaging to the economy if it continues.

"Investment in plant and equipment is holding up, but if the squeeze continues, investment will be more and more difficult," he said.

"I think we're headed for more serious trouble; the recession can turn out to be long and bad," Hagedorn said.

RICHARD LANDRY, an economist of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said that while the second quarter decline in profits was relatively mild, the lower profits will reduce incentives for investments.

The administration had been hoping that investment activity would hold up this year, although not so much as in 1978 when business investment gained 8.3 percent. But if investment declines further than expected it would worsen the recession.

William Cox, the deputy chief economist at the Commerce Department, did not view the second quarter figures with alarm.

Suit possible... but as last resort

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Attorney General Mark White said Friday he has legal authority to sue Mexico and any other parties responsible for damage to the state's coastal economy from a Mexican oil spill.

"That (a suit) would only be used as a last resort, after all negotiations are terminated and all alternatives exhausted," White told a news conference.

The Texas official said his staff will continue monitoring the spill despite comments from Republican Gov. Bill Clements and U.S. Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti that a suit would be unwarranted.

White, a Democrat, said his office is investigating damage from the oil that has gushed from a Mexican well in the Bay of Campeche for two months. Texas beaches wear patches of the crude that also threatens wildlife.

The ooze has been blamed for a 30 percent drop in tourism and has caused anxiety among the commercial fishing and shrimping industry.

White said he could forgive Civiletti for calling a possible suit against Mexico "silly."

"He (Civiletti) hasn't been down to Padre Island and seen the oil on the beaches," White said. "There is ample authority in federal law for such a lawsuit."

The Mexican national oil company, Pemex, operated the well with a rig leased from SEDCO, a Dallas-based international oil drilling company. Four SEDCO employees were on the rig when it blew out.

Clements headed SEDCO before taking office this year and putting his holdings in a blind trust.

SEDCO will be treated like any other party in assessing possible liability for damages, White said.

"I suspect there will be a full investigation and those responsible will be held responsible," he added.

The governor says a suit against Mexico could disrupt negotiations for purchase of Mexican oil and natural gas.

"He (Clements) gets to sign and veto bills and I get to file lawsuits," White said. That's what the constitution says and I think he appreciates that."

U.S.-Mexican relations are important, White admitted, but so are the people of Texas. "My only responsibility is to the people of Texas and to try to minimize their damage from this."

After the runaway well is capped, oil will continue heading toward Texas for several months. White said he would not have complete damage reports for three or four months and could not decide whether to sue until then.

He said he was encouraged to read that Mexico might voluntarily pay for damages but had no assurance that would happen.

If a suit were filed in federal district court, it would be almost the first of its kind involving a foreign country, he said.

Officials move to postpone tourism drive

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — Tourist officials on this oil-streaked resort island said Friday they are postponing a $60,000 advertising campaign until "we have something encouraging to say."

"We just feel the immediate future is too uncertain," said Ralph Thompson, executive vice president of the island's tourist bureau.

Thompson's comments came as cleanup crews continued to mop up clumps of oil that have washed onto the beach from the Gulf of Mexico. The crude is drifting north from a Bay of Campeche well that blew out June 3.

The fall and winter advertising campaign had been aimed at the midwestern part of the nation. Thompson said the campaign — scheduled to begin in October — will be delayed for at least 30 days.

"What money we have we need to conserve for when we see the brighter side of this thing," he said. "That's why we're saving our ammunition."

The multimillion-dollar tourist business here has already been dented by the oil — or, as Thompson claims, the media reports concerning the runaway oil.

"We're estimating the business now this week could be down as much as 50 percent over what it was a week ago," he said. "The media publicity surrounding the event has taken effect and people are obviously staying away."

The fall ad campaign was to have been based on a "SunDial" theme. The "SunDial" was to be a toll-free telephone number for tourists to call to find out about beach conditions and hotel accommodations. Now, Thompson said, the number could become a direct line for information about oil on the beach.

"The point is we want to keep the public informed. As conditions improve here we hope to recapture our business," he said.

Thompson was quick to add that he saw no reason for tourists to stay away now.

"I think with the exceptions of a few annoying tar areas that we are trying to clean, I don't think anyone would be terribly inconvenienced here," he said.

Kurdish attacks continue

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Kurdish rebels overwhelmed government revolutionary guards in the western town of Paveh during house-to-house fighting Friday and shot down an F-4 Phantom jet and two helicopters trying to aid the guards.

State television reported at least 40 guards killed and said a deputy prime minister, Mehdi Chamran, was trapped with a handful of defenders in the small military garrison on the outskirts of Paveh. It said the garrison was surrounded and "all hope" was lost. The broadcast accused the Kurds of invading the Paveh Hospital's morgue and slitting the throats of 18 revolutionary guards who had been slain in the fighting.

Tehran radio issued an urgent announcement ordering all revolutionary guards in Tehran to report immediately to their headquarters. It gave no reason for the directive.

In Tehran, hundreds of thousands of pro-Palestinian supporters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and his fundamentalist Moslem government converged on Tehran University. They shouted approval of Khomeini's declaration to observe Friday as Palestinian Solidarity Day and chanted, "Israel is dead, Palestine is victorious."

Two wounded guards, evacuated by helicopter from Paveh to a hospital in Kermanshah, told the Iranian news agency Pars there were 200 guards in Paveh when more than 2,000 Kurds, seeking autonomy for their region in northwestern Iran, surrounded the town three days ago and then attacked. Pars also quoted the guards as saying Iraqi Kurds had crossed the border, only 25 miles west of Paveh, to help the rebels.

Abdol Rhaman Qassemli, leader of the Kurdish Democratic Party, denied the government claim of rebels maiming the bodies of slain guards. Reached by telephone at his party headquarters in Mahabad, he said the government's allegation of atrocities was an attempt to turn public opinion against the Kurds and their demand for self-rule.

Suit threatened as farm union tries to end strike

DELANO, Calif. (AP) — Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers union said Friday it will file a civil rights suit against the grape grower whose workers voted to oust the union from the site of one of its greatest triumphs.

In addition, the vote will be challenged before the state Agricultural Labor Relations Board.

The setback at the M. Caratan table grape ranch came as the union intensified efforts to settle an eight-month-old strike against major California lettuce growers and shortly after it signed a contract with the state's largest tomato grower under which some workers will earn nearly $6 an hour.

The Caratan farm was the site of the union's first major victory under California's pioneering farm-labor election laws.

Marc Grossman, Chavez' administrative assistant, said the union would file a civil rights suit in federal court against Caratan "because of physical threats against workers who did not toe the line on decertification."

"Workers have been threatened with death at knifepoint," Grossman said. "Some have been hounded out of the company."

The company's operator, Luis Caratan, termed Grossman's charge "inaccurate, inflammatory and close to libel. The public is asked to believe that 122 workers — two out of three — who voted against the union did so under a death threat."

Caratan added that "the clear truth is the workers rejected the union because of the union's poor performance, not because they were afraid."

Caratan workers ousted the union by a vote of 122-66, a 2-1 margin, in ballots counted Thursday, almost a year after they were cast. The vote contrasted dramatically with the 3-1 margin by which the union won representation at the site when California's secret ballot voting law took effect in September 1975.

Caratan also was among Delano table grape growers Chavez struck and boycotted in the 1960s, gaining national prominence in the process.

The decertification vote was held Sept. 1, 1978, four months after Caratan signed a one-year contract with the union. The state Agricultural Labor Relations Board impounded the ballots and said decertification votes could be held only in the last month of a one-year contract.

However, appellate courts ruled that the law allows decertification votes any time in a contract's final year, so the ballots were counted Thursday.

Grossman contended that Caratan workers rejected decertification in a second election conducted June 15 while the original ballots still were impounded.

That election was voided because the ballot box was stolen and four state agents were beaten. Criminal charges were filed against six ranch employees.

Meanwhile, UFW officials still were in "intense negotiations" with some Salinas Valley growers in the eight-month-old lettuce strike, Grossman said.

"There are two prospects for possible settlement, and there are two or three others that may be shaping up," Grossman said.

Chavez, therefore, has delayed expanding the strike from 11 farms to all vegetable growers as he indicated he would do during last weekend's union convention.

During the convention, the UFW reached an agreement with Meyer Tomato Co., California's largest tomato grower, on a tentative three-year pact that would raise the hourly wage for $3.96 to $5.96 and increase wages and benefits by 43 percent.

And settlements were reported near with five vegetable growers. It is reported that the growers are offering an increase of about 35 percent in wages and benefits over three years, but the union insists it wants the Meyer contract to serve as a model for settling the lettuce strike.

Altogether, the farm workers union is negotiating with 27 growers in an effort to get higher wages and better working conditions.

Budget bill writers consider costs of vetoed construction

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Budget bill writers for the 1981 Legislature were told Friday it would cost Texas an additional $63.3 million to go ahead with construction projects vetoed this year by Gov. Bill Clements.

"And most of these were projects that the governor recommended," Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said, as the Legislative Budget Board took the report into consideration.

Speaker Bill Clayton said he assumed most or all of the $191 million in 54 construction projects vetoed by Clements would be brought before the 1981 Legislature and probably approved again, as they were this year.

Jim Oliver of the Legislative Budget Board staff said that "assuming these projects will be asked again and the legislature will appropriate money for them" the increase from inflation alone would be $51.6 million, or one percent per month for 24 months.

He said the only new construction items which would have replaced current leased space were for the Department of Human Resources, the State Board of Control and the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

"Assuming these proposed facilities would reduce state requirements for leased office space by some 950,000 square feet, postponing the start of construction for 24 months would result in a probable continued cost for leased office space in the magnitude of some $11.4 million," the report said.

Clements' vetoes included $5.2 million for repairs and replacements. "It is reasonable to assume that in addition to being requested again to be budgeted in the next biennium at an inflated amount, further deterioration will be experienced requiring increased requests and quite probably emergency funds for temporary repairs," Oliver said.

The report estimated the additional cost for repairs and deterioration would be $330,000.

The $63.3 million total would be 33 percent above 1978 appropriation as approved by the Legislature, Oliver said.

In other action Friday, the board clarified a special provision in the 1979 state spending bill that said any state agency with more than 20 employees must attempt to reduce the number of employees by 5 percent each year. Each agency must make reports on such reduction.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Dallas, proposed a resolution, which was approved, that would make the provision effective Sept. 1 for about 84,000 authorized employees.

Sitton to defend R-T City golf title

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Sports Writer Billy Sitton takes to the Hogan Park golf course today as the Reporter-Telegram's reigning city golf champion, but if he wants to hold the title through the next year, he's going to have to play some kind of golf the next two days.

handicap necessary to compete in the championship flight. That could produce a real race. "I would have to say that this is one of the strongest championship divisions we have had in several years," Worrell stated. "There is some real talent in the field and the golf course is just playing super. Combine all the elements, and I think we are going to have a very good test for the city title. I'm looking forward to this one."

today's first round into a President's Flight on Sunday. That will add even more drama to today's first round. And drama is something that shouldn't be lacking from start to finish in this tournament. Chris Brown, the 1977 champion and former Midland Lee golfer, is in the field also to add pressure to Sitton. But that is just the beginning. Royce Woolard, a two-time champion is back for another try against his younger counterparts as is former champion and former Lee golfer Steve Whiteside.

Kelly Eng and Tim O'Connor, two Midland College standouts, are also in the field. Eng is a former Midland High golfer as is Sitton. Fred Nobles, last year's runnerup, will be back in an effort to annex his first city title. It's easy to see that the youth movement is on the verge of taking over the city tournament. The young golfers seem to be improving with each passing year, and new champions keep slipping in. That could be a bad omen for Sitton. In fact, this year's titlist will not only be a good golfer, but a survivor as well.

Vet Houston trying to keep alive with Skins

By Associated Press

Ken Houston is a 13-year National Football League veteran, 11 times in the Pro Bowl and 34 years old. He is trying to make it on a rebuilding team, the Washington Redskins.

"I've probably lost some of the quickness I had when I came into the league," Houston says, "but I can make that up with my experience."

"I'll probably be able to play one more year after this one, but I don't know. I'll have to see how it goes."

Like Houston, other veteran Redskins will be vying for a spot on the team when it continues its exhibition schedule Saturday against the Atlanta Falcons.

The other Saturday

games are Cincinnati at Chicago, New Orleans at Tampa Bay, San Diego at the New York Giants, Buffalo at Green Bay, Cleveland at Detroit, St. Louis at Kansas City, Houston at Dallas, Miami at Minnesota, Seattle at Los Angeles and Denver at San Francisco.

Oakland plays at New England on Sunday.

Among the veterans cut by Coach Jack Pardee in his youth movement were quarterback Bill Kilmer, linebacker Chris Hanburger, defensive lineman Bill Brundage and defensive back Jake Scott.

"Every year I think about retiring," Houston said. "You wonder if you should come back. You wonder if you can still perform. You wonder what the coaches are thinking."

"Anytime they let a player go, he can still play another year," Houston said. "But then you have to consider the team. At the end of this year, I will evaluate myself and sit down with the coaches and see what they are thinking."

The Sunday exhibition game will be shown on national television (CBS) starting at 1 p.m.

It features two teams trying to regroup under new coaches, the Patriots' Ron Erhardt and the Raiders' Tom Flores.

"The Patriots will be a good test for us," Flores said. "We're going to play everyone on the team. We're trying to add variety to our offense."

Flores said Ken Stabler, who has asked to be traded, would play two quarters at quarterback, with Jim Plunkett and David Humm as

Bob Floyd scores ace at Hogan Park

By REX WORRELL
Hogan Park Golf Pro

Hogan Park got another hole-in-one this week with L. R. (Bob) Floyd turning the trick.

Bob hit a perfect 5-iron shot into the hole on the 155-yard, par-three, No. 16 on Tuesday. Floyd was playing with Ray Trammell, Dr. B. J. Cordonnier and W. D. Gray. Congratulations, Bob...

The fourth annual Buffalo Trail Council Boy Scouts Pro-Am is scheduled for Monday, Aug. 27. The field is limited to the first 34 professionals and one amateur of his choice, plus 68 amateurs to be assigned to the professionals by the committee. Entry fee is $25. Any amateur wishing to play may sign up by contacting the Hogan Park golf shop. Entry deadline is Monday. All amateurs must have an attested handicap...

The Hogan Park Men's Golf Association will hold their club championships over Labor Day weekend. Entry fee for the event will be $18 for annual green fee permit holders and $30 for those players without annual permits. There will be refreshments and a barbeque Saturday at 6:30 p.m. during the tournament, and Sunday there will be a long driving contest. Deadline for entry is 6 p.m., Aug. 30. Entries are limited, so sign up early...

The Hogan Park Women's Golf Association held a Most One Putts event Thursday with Florence Mailey taking home first place honors for the 18-hole division and Wilma Allenson winning the nine-hole competition. Nell Kimball was the 18-hole runner-up while Peggy Parkins was the nine-hole runner-up.

The ladies will hold a Strokes to the Green event Thursday. Team play begins on that day also. Pairings for Thursday are as follows:

18-Hole Division: Fern Barnett, Lucha Haskins and Alvina Hill; Betty Cobb, Pat Walter and Bernice Webb; Gloria Deisenback, Annelie Mack and Florence Mailey; Ella Heath, Nell Kimball and Margaret Mills; Margaret Stricker, Dottie Turk and Merla Ketsner; Chata Mee, Jane Long and Marilyn Philby; Gene Veltan, Dorothy Melzer and Mary Lee Phipps; Merrilyn Walker, Maxine Buskirk and Wilma Cox.

9-Hole Division: Rene Belque, Peggy Parkins and Betty Williams; Peggy Mattina, Barbara Larsen and Gerry Fesmire; Kathy Hamblin, Peggy Barry and Dot Fringle; Evelyn Ballard, Dorothy Koons and Lois Guthrie; Wilma Allenson, Clara King and Char Richter; Leah Sutcliffe, Frances Stahl and Betty Reimers; Jeanne Allen and Evelyn Gundry; Rita Roe, Ruby Pennington and Margaret Rhea; Jean Connor, Patti Frazier and Ginny Plette; Pat Kolb, Mary Davis and Margaret Moore.

Kite takes 2-stroke lead

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Tom Kite, using a putter he pilated from his father's golf bag, put together a solid, four-under-par 67 and moved into a two-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $400,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

"Dad didn't really want to let me take it," said Kite, who picked up the club on a visit home to Austin, Texas last week. "He drove us to the airport and told my wife to take care of the putter, not to let me throw it or bend it up or anything."

There was little reason for club-throwing this mild, sunny day as Kite fashioned a 36-hole total of 136, six strokes under par for two trips over the 6,603-yard Westchester Country Club course.

First-round leader David Graham, the recently crowned PGA champion, made a 12-foot putt for an eagle-three on the 18th hole to salvage a round of 73 that left him in a tie for second at 138.

Lendl surprises Dent

TORONTO (AP) — Ivan Lendl, a 19-year-old whiz kid from Czechoslovakia, beat Phil Dent of Australia 7-5, 6-4 Friday in a quarterfinal match of the Canadian Open tennis championships.

The finalists for the women's draw were decided Friday when Laura Dupont of the U.S. and Brigitte Cuypers of South Africa won their semifinal matches.

Cuypers defeated Pam Teeguarden of the U.S., the seventh seed, 7-5, 6-4, while Dupont beat Diane Desfor of the U.S. 7-5, 6-4 to advance to the women's final Saturday at the York University tennis center.

In women's semifinal doubles play, Lea Antonopolis of the U.S. and Diane Evers of Australia beat Barbara Jordan of the U.S. and Kym Ruddell of Australia 6-7, 6-4, 6-4.

Cubs trade Ted Sizemore

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox acquired infielder Ted Sizemore from the Chicago Cubs Friday for cash and a player to be named later. And the Cubs called up former Midland Cubs infielder Steve Macko to replace Sizemore. Macko, son of former major leaguer Joe Macko, was batting .287 at Wichita in the American Association. He is a left-handed hitter.

The American League team also placed second baseman Jerry Remy on the 15-day disabled list and moved catcher Bob Montgomery from the 15-day to the 21-day disabled list.

Sizemore broke in with the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1969 and was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1971. He played for St. Louis through 1975, returned to the Dodgers and played for the Philadelphia Phillies until he was traded to Chicago last February.

How bad is Israel's economy?

The Los Angeles Times

JERUSALEM - The Israeli economy, in trouble since the 1973 Middle East war, is steaming unchecked toward 100 percent annual inflation. A million workers, angry over a 50 percent increase in the government-subsidized price of basic foods, staged a two-hour nationwide strike Monday. And the reports of Israel's seemingly hapless economy are having an effect on the international scene. As Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan puts it: "There are some who see (the economy) as supposedly dead, and this picture weakens our staying power and influences the formation of erroneous evaluations about us."

"How bad is Israel's economic problem?"

"WHAT YOU HAVE to remember," said an economic expert at a Western embassy in Tel Aviv, "is that it is more a political problem than an economic one."

The inflation rate is a sign of economic disorder. But, experts agree, Israel has learned how to cope with it, perhaps better than any country in the world.

There is no danger of bankruptcy. A country goes bankrupt when it runs out of foreign reserves with which to pay for its imports, and Israel's foreign reserves are growing, not decreasing.

"I'm living better than I ever did," said a young Jerusalem executive, "even in spite of the inflation. When I go to buy a suit I have no idea what it should cost - prices are just crazy. But the important thing is that I can buy the suit."

An American official said that Israelis are better off with 80 percent annual inflation - the current rate - than Americans with a rate one-sixth as high. "Israeli wages are linked to the cost of living, and ours are not," he said. "In the past year Israeli wages rose faster than the inflation rate."

"A LOT OF Americans suffered in the same year because they got 5 percent or 8 percent raises and the inflation was twice that. A lot of Americans are hurting. But most Israelis are not."

Then why the strikes? Israelis are simply prone to wildcat strikes. Monday was called in spite of the fact that Finance Minister, Simcha Ehrlich had promised cost-of-living pay increases to make up the rise in the price of food staples.

Confused by a sudden hike in prices, Israeli labor traditionally hurries to enforce demands for more pay, urged on by the massive Histadrut labor federation. This encourages the ever-continuing spiral of inflation - prices rise, then wages, then prices again, as labor costs boost the cost of goods.

"Most observers say the primary cause of the inflation is the government budget deficit," a Tel Aviv economist said. "When the government runs into a high budget deficit, it borrows from the Bank of Israel, which is printing money to get the sums."

BUT BY MOST indicators, Israel is not facing a crisis. For instance: Wages - Workers wages rose slightly in terms of purchasing power, despite the inflation, over the last year. Israel has virtually full employment.

Foreign Reserves - The Finance Ministry reported convertible currency reserves of $1.3 billion in 1977, $2.2 billion in 1978 and $2.6 billion by May of this year.

Living Standards - New cars, televisions, refrigerators and other items of valuable hardware are flowing into the country, despite 100 percent import taxes, as Israelis seek to hedge against inflation by spending on durable investments. As a result lifestyles are rising toward Western European standards.

Consumerism in the face of inflation is not healthy. It further fuels inflation. And while Israel has a growing kitty of foreign reserves, most of it consists of loans, grants, U.S. aid and West German reparations for Nazi deprivations against European Jews - not from sales abroad of Israeli products. So Israel's balance of payments deficit is growing, a long-term problem.

EVEN WITHOUT counting arms purchases, the deficit - the value of Israel's imports over its exports and some other earnings - was $1.4 billion in 1977, and $1.7 billion last year. (With weapons included it was $3.4 billion last year.)

This balance is a strong indicator of a nation's fiscal well-being, and selling things abroad to reduce the deficit is healthier in the long run than borrowing money abroad to meet the problem. So Israel is showing signs of a basic economic problem in this area, after making a striking recovery in recent years from a 1975 deficit of $4 billion.

Israel also suffers from a bloated bureaucracy. Arnon Gafny, governor of the Bank of Israel, points out that Israeli ministries are still hiring, despite Ehrlich's pleas for cutbacks in government spending.

Church can't withdraw, says Franciscan priest

By RITA GILLMON
Copley News Service

"If we are going to preach authentic Christianity, we can't withdraw into the sanctuary," says a leader of Roman Catholic religious orders. The Rev. Alan McCoy, a Franciscan priest and president of the Conference of Major Superiors of Men in America, referred to the effects of recent political developments on the church in Latin America and the continuing struggle for social justice. "Preaching a personal Savior is fine, but many of the affluent want no demands made on them," he said in response to those who would label the "social gospel" Communist. What so often happens is that when the workers demand the right to live decently, the military governments in South America start saying that communism is all that can come of it," McCoy said in an interview. "If the drive for justice is held back, we often bring about the thing we fear."

McCoy VISITED CUBA in June of 1977 at the invitation of the State Department. We found the church is still active as a private institution and there are signs of growth," he said. "We found numbers of vocations for priests, nuns and other religious orders. "Cuba has not given the political rights we would like to see," he said. "But in terms of food, health care and care for the elderly, they have done very well. If we (in America) choose to stress political and personal rights and neglect the rights to food and care, it calls our credibility into question."

McCoy HAS BEEN a priest for 40 years and holds a degree in canon law. He taught theology and law and did parish work before becoming an administrator for the Franciscan Order. The conference he heads is responsible for liaison with the American bishops and with the Curia in Rome. He visited Bolivia at the request of the World Council of Churches' Assembly of Human Rights during the January 1978 hunger strikes and went with a friend's delegation to Nicaragua in October 1978. "The situation in South America has shifted in the last 10 or 15 years," he said. "A large number of the people are nominal Catholics, but there has been a resurgence of interest in the church among the young, particularly in the university students. It used to be automatic for university students to fall away from the church."

McCoy ATTRIBUTED the change to the increasing tendency of the South American bishops to espouse the cause of the common people, rather than identify with the ruling class, as most had done in the past. "The position of the church has been for social justice since the time of Leo XIII at the turn of the century," McCoy said. "He wrote in favor of a just wage for the worker and the necessity to bargain to protect the rights of workers and employers." Successive popes have increased the stress on the social justice issues, McCoy said. He sees the Latin American church as an inspiration to churches of the Third World countries, particularly in Asia and Africa.

"THERE IS A GREAT deal of intellectual ferment, in liberation theology and all kinds of theological developments. Rather than starting from a set of given rules and developing a theology from that, they are beginning to develop theology from experience," he said. An economical movement also is growing up in Latin America with the Protestant groups, though the population is still 95 percent Catholic. "A lot of people ask how all this social teaching fits in with the teaching of the church, but to me it's the gospel. Jesus said he came to bring people abundant life, not pie in the sky," McCoy said. "If American Christians can have an effect on their brothers in Latin America, and they refuse to bother, they are not living the gospel," he said.

Prior general of religious order has world for a parish

By RITA GILLMON
Copley News Service

The Most Rev. Theodore V. Tack, prior general of the Order of St. Augustine, has the world for a parish. As elected head of the 3,600-member religious order, he spends seven months each year traveling to support and encourage its work. Tack, elected to his second six-year term last September, said in an interview that the Augustinians have "jumped in wherever the church needs work" since St. Augustine set the example in the 5th century. "Augustinians have run missions, schools, parishes and served as chaplains at schools," Tack said. "There is a growing tendency for us to serve as chaplains at state universities. It can cause a problem if you have a school going and jump off to do something else. We have had to close down some schools." The order provided the foundation and inspiration for Villanova University in Pennsylvania. Tack, a 51-year-old Oklahoma native, described the essential characteristics of the order. "Living in community with brotherly love; loving service to the brethren as an expression of God's love; searching for God in prayer as individuals and a community; keeping sight of the unique personality and needs of each member of the community; simplicity of lifestyle and fidelity to the mind of the church," Tack said, are the authentic marks of Augustine's teaching and spirit. "Restlessness is also a characteristic of Augustinians," Tack said. "The first lines of Augustine's 'Confessions' contain the words, 'Our hearts are restless, Lord, until they rest in Thee.' Augustinians keep searching, as he did. We are continually examining everything, not to be critical of others, but to be aware of what is going on around us." Tack said that even though there are differences between Catholic religious orders, they are all the same in that they serve people and take the same vows. "There used to be more rivalry among the orders, but today there is more cooperation," he said. There are five conferences a year of the superiors general of the different orders, and twice a year they meet for a three-day, live-in session. "We share our problems and the things that are happening to us, and we have found we have many of the same experiences," Tack said. Most of the ancient orders have women assigned to them. The Augustinians have groups of women, some of whom are contemplative nuns, and some active. The foundation of monasteries in North Africa and the composition of his rule made Augustine a pioneer of monastic life, but the modern history of the order began in 1254 when the pope actually founded the order in its unified structure.

Bernadette Bickford

Public invited to program featuring inspirational singer

A special musical program will be presented at 6 p.m. Sunday in the First Church of the Nazarene, 1208 W. Wall St. Presenting the program will be vocalist Bernadette Bickford of Temple, a well-known gospel and inspirational singer. The public is being invited by the Rev. Harold Quarles, host pastor, to attend the concert. Mrs. Bickford, who resides in Temple with her husband and three children, has been in the music ministry since 1977 and has presented her inspirational programs in churches in Colorado, Oklahoma and Texas.

Government forces people to affirm beliefs, pope says

By RITA GILLMON
Copley News Service

During a visit to the United States in 1976, Pope John Paul II spoke in Washington, D.C., of the possibility that an anti-religious regime tends to stiffen the spines of faithful church members who must live under it. "The atheist character of the government forces people to consciously affirm their beliefs," said the pope, who was then Cardinal Karol Wojtyla, archbishop of Cracow, Poland. When the cardinals of the Roman Catholic church chose him to be pope, they were, according to reports from the Vatican, looking for someone who could respond bluntly to the problems posed by atheism and materialism in the modern world. Wojtyla, as archbishop of Cracow since 1964, has long had to deal with those problems. Clergy interviewed agree that an official, or unofficial, atheist government could strengthen the faith of some people. "When the church has been fat and happy, it has not been their best time," said Dr. Raymond Ryland, associate professor of religious studies at the University of San Diego, Calif. "I think that statement (of the pope's) could apply in our country to some extent," Ryland said. "Maybe not the government, but certain government bureaus are definitely hostile to Christianity. There are people in the federal government who are determined to make private institutions conform to their standards." Ryland referred to regulations intended to combat segregation in the schools, regulations which he said have the effect of discouraging the creation of new religious schools. He also sees an increasing tendency to tax activities of churches which had formerly been exempt. If it gets really uncomfortable, it will separate the sheep from the goats. The ones who stay will be strengthened," he said. The Rev. Richard Thrumston, rector of St. Andrew's By-the-Sea Episcopal Church, Pacific Beach, Calif., said the effects of a atheist pressure by government could be twofold. "Where you are dealing with Communist or other brands of atheism it will raise up the faith of those who are firm," he said. "They will gird up their loins to combat it. Others will show a tendency to compromise." "There could be sincere people who would see the kingdom of God in a communist or utopian vision of Earth," he said. Thrumston said the effect of this could be to divide the faithful into quarreling groups. Aaron Gold, president of the San Diego, Calif., Rabbinical Association, said he hoped the experience of the Polish people and church with repression would give them more sympathy for other groups. Pope John Paul II has spoken forcefully for civil and religious freedom. Rabbi Gold said that as a child in Poland he was left for dead in the streets several times, "and not by atheists either." He was rescued from Poland at 5 years old when the Nazi threat arose. "I was lucky to get out, but lost 100 members of my family," he said. "We hope that John Paul II, who lived through the period, will continue the ecumenical teachings of John XXIII. I met with John in 1962 and was greeted by him as a brother. We hope the church in Poland is already teaching the brotherhood of man to their people." The present pope studies secretly for the priesthood during the Nazi regime, when it was forbidden. He was ordained in 1946. "I feel confident that he, being raised in that oppressive atmosphere, will be sympathetic to the desire of others for religious liberty," Gold said.

Vacation Bible School to be held next week

The annual Vacation Bible School at the Christian Church of Midland will be held next week at the church, 2608 Neely Ave. According to Mark C. Worley, associate minister of the church, the school will begin Monday and continue through Friday, with hours to be 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. daily. Classes will be offered children aged 3 through 12, he said. Bible school missionaries will be Armando Alvarado and his family from Mexico. Each day's schedule will offer crafts, Bible lessons and special activities, and each day will have a special theme, such as "Bookmark Day" and "T-Shirt Day."

All children of the community have an invitation to attend the school, and parents of children in need of rides to and from the school may call the church office, 684-7681, to arrange for transportation.

Mission in old tugboat haven for destitute men

By LINDA EMANUELSON
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — Begun in an abandoned San Pedro tugboat in 1903, the Beacon Light Mission in Wilmington is a haven for destitute men. They come from all walks of life, said C.E. "Gene" McCann, executive director. Some, formerly successful in society, have come to a point where, for one reason or other, they cannot function alone. "Others are those who quite likely never really found themselves or a place in life," McCann said. "The mission is an arm of the church dedicated to helping people the church doesn't reach. The mission strives to set people on their feet, but more important, it strives to start them walking with God."

"Through the years, the Lord has used the mission to reach a great number of men for Christ," McCann said. "The mission and its workers are known in nearly every seaport around the world and every state in the nation." The mission's name, the Sailor's Rescue Mission, was changed in 1945 to the Beacon Light Mission because it ministered to non-seamen as well as seamen. The mission attempts to meet the physical and spiritual needs of the men, McCann said. For many of them, the mission is a last resource, he added. Its touchstone is the Bible verse, "If any man be in Christ, he becomes a new person altogether. The past is finished and gone, everything becomes fresh and new." (II Corinthians 5:17)

Once at the mission, the men can shave, take a shower and help themselves to donated clean clothing. The mission also provides food, recreation facilities, beds and chapel services. Men who sleep at the mission are expected to go out and look for work after breakfast, McCann said. The restriction is to avoid abuses.

"We don't want to make it a place for bums and winos," he said. "We want to make it a place for them to help themselves."

Most of the men stay from four to five days before moving on, he said. "If they are going the mission rounds, they usually stay the full 10 days."

About 20 percent of the mission's guests are drifters, the director said. Never having found a place in society, they make the rounds of the various missions, returning every few years for bed and board. Some of the repeaters have been coming off and on for 20 years or more, McCann said.

Because the goal of the mission is to win men to Christ, it accepts them in the hope that sooner or later, they will find new faith in the Lord, McCann said.

"If they get saved, it will have been worth it. The mission provides them with an opportunity to get saved. "No matter what the length of their hair is or how dirty they are, once they ask Christ into their lives, they begin to be somebody," he said. "Most change immediately."

The mission sometimes gets a "little different run of people," McCann said. These include college youths biking across the nation and families caught between paychecks. About 10 to 15 percent are seamen who board for a night at the mission. In the early 1900s, about 75 percent of the mission's guests were seamen, he said.

The rest of the mission's visitors are transients looking for work and who need a place to sleep and eat, he said. Some of these, though they have a trade and can work if they want to, have drinking problems, McCann said. "They usually get drunk and then lose their jobs. I've seen it happen so many times. Some have good personalities and are so nice, then they take a drink and they're gone."

Coins' motto has lengthy tradition

By GARY L. PALMER
Copley News Service

It's been 23 years since Congress mandated the motto "In God We Trust" appear on all coins and currency of the United States, but the birth of that well-known slogan goes back nearly a century earlier.

It was 1861 and a Pennsylvania minister, the Rev. M.R. Watkinson, grieved over the coming War between the States.

He dropped a note to Salmon P. Chase, Secretary of the Treasury in President Lincoln's Cabinet: "One fact touching our currency has hitherto been seriously overlooked. I mean the recognition of the Almighty God in some form on our coins."

"You are probably a Christian," he wrote. "What if our republic were now shattered beyond reconstruction? Would not the antiquaries of succeeding centuries rightly reason from our past that we were a heathen nation?"

"What I propose is that instead of the goddess of liberty we shall have next inside the 13 stars a ring inscribed with the words 'perpetual union'; within this ring the all-seeing eye, crowned with a halo; beneath the eye the American flag, bearing in its field stars equal to the number of the states united; in the bars the words 'God, liberty, law.'"

Having the minister's letter in mind, Chase must have reflected long over its words, for within a week he sent a short note to the director of the Mint, which said:

"No nation can be strong except in the strength of God or safe except in His defense. The trust of our people in God should be declared on our national coins. You will cause a device to be prepared without unnecessary delay with a motto expressing in the fewest and tersest words possible this national recognition."

Churches become unified

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. (southern) and the Presbytery of Washita of the United Presbyterian Church became the 11th unified presbytery of the two denominations under a vote taken here. The newly united local unit becomes effective next Jan. 1.

Membership decline noted

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A slight decline in membership in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod is reported for 1978, with the total down 24,645 to 2,742,313. The number of congregations was down by 28 to 6,028. However, the drop was far less than the losses of 1977, when 152 congregations and more than 83,000 members left the conservative denomination in opposition to its insistence on Biblical literalism.

Faith Temple plans Spiritual Explosion

The Faith Temple Church of God in Christ, 1605 N. Terrell St., is planning its fifth annual Spiritual Explosion next week.

The evangelistic emphasis will begin Monday and continue through Aug. 26, said the Rev. W.C. Kenan, pastor of Faith Temple Church.

Services will begin at 8 p.m. daily and will be open to all residents of the community and surrounding area.

Initiating the spiritual series on Monday night will be a special musical program which will feature a number of well-known choirs, including the Faith Temple Deliverance Choir and choral groups from churches in San Angelo and elsewhere.

Special guest performer on the program will be well-known saxophonist Rosie Haynes of East St. Louis, Ill.

Bishop Harold Benjamin of Philadelphia will be the speaker at the Tuesday service, and the Rev. Frank Smith of Dallas will be featured speaker Wednesday night.

The Rev. Richard White of New Orleans will speak at the Thursday service, while Friday's service will have the Rev. Charles Tanner of Lubbock as guest preacher. Evangelist Juanita Sapp of Dallas will speak at Saturday night's service.

The Rev. LaDell Thomas of Waco will bring the message at the closing service at 2:30 p.m. Aug. 26. He will be accompanied to Midland by his choir.

Joining these featured speakers will be Evangelist Eddie Jernagin of Los Angeles, who has been a speaker in Midland on several past occasions. He will be conducting special devotional services each night.

In addition, the Spiritual Explosion also will offer workshops and prayer gatherings daily. Morning worship services are scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock daily. These services also will be open to the public, Pastor Kenan said.

Conductor, Antal Dorati, 72, looks to new musical goals

By CONNIE GRZELKA

DETROIT (AP) — Maestro Antal Dorati admits he was wrong when he said nearly 10 years ago that the National Symphony Orchestra would be his last project.

As he enters a new season as music director of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, he says, "Now I hope this will be my crowning jewel... that will be like the diamond in the crown."

The Hungarian-born conductor says he is trying to build the DSO into a world-class orchestra. "I think I'm progressing well. Altogether, it's very high standard."

Dorati, 72, has recorded three albums with the orchestra since he's been here and the first, "Dorati — Detroit," became the top-selling classical album in the United States.

He successfully gave the first staged opera at the symphony's Ford Auditorium this past season and talks about another in the future while hinting about the formation of a new Detroit opera company.

Dorati's actual home is St. Adrian, Switzerland. When there are conducting engagements in Detroit, the maestro stays in a private residence that is part of a friend's home in Grosse Pointe Park.

The conductor gave 40 performances in Detroit this past season, about a third of the 120 concerts he says he conducts worldwide in an average year.

In a good year, Dorati says he and his wife, concert pianist Ilse von Alpenheim, manage up to 20 concert appearances together.

Although engagements often find Dorati and Miss von Alpenheim in two different countries, Dorati said, "We are rarely apart. Maybe a week apart once in a while, but two to three days mostly."

"We live very, very close together," Dorati adds in explaining how he and his wife have been organizing their schedules over the 10 years they've been married.

The maestro began composing solo pieces for his wife shortly after they met 11 years ago.

"I look for her art, which is very special. It's a very intimate, fetching art. She makes the piano really talk to people. She is one of the few who can play long, sustained melodies and with an exquisite tone; her tone is very special."

Dorati is taking the orchestra on a European tour this fall, and says the upcoming DSO festival will be two weeks of Brahms music. He's working on plans for future music festivals in the 1980s.

On the podium, Dorati is a commanding figure. At a pre-concert rehearsal, the maestro is stern, fatherly, instructive and occasionally playful.

Unlike other conductors who specialize in certain periods of composers, Dorati calls himself "a general practitioner. My specialty is a non-specialty."

Texas canoeist paddles daily in pursuit of Olympics goal

By ALAN SAYRE

DALLAS (AP) — Separated by 1,500 miles from his coach and isolated from competitors, Terry Stanford paddles in lonely pursuit of a goal sought by no other Texan — a place on the U.S. Olympic canoeing team.

Stanford, 28, hopes his seven-days-a-week training on the Bosque River near Waco will help nab him one of the few spots on the canoeing team at the 1980 Olympics in Moscow.

"When that alarm goes off at 5:30 in the morning it's real easy to say 'I'm not going to work out this morning,'" he said in a telephone interview from Waco.

The San Angelo native is the only Texan in training for the Olympic canoeing trials. He became active in the sport as a graduate student at Texas A&M University.

"I got interested in 1975 when I took a canoe trip down the Guadalupe River," Stanford said. A professor who accompanied the students later suggested Stanford take up canoe racing.

"So I got a partner and we borrowed a canoe and couple of paddles from him (the professor)," Stanford said. "We started practicing and entered some of the races here in Texas."

Stanford and his partner, Robin Harris of College Station, competed in Texas "marathon races" ranging from 10 to 40 miles before deciding to enter Olympic-level competition.

Stanford and Harris attended an Olympic seminar at Floral, Fla. in 1977. Later they met Bill Bragg, coach of the U.S. canoeing team, during a training session at College Station.

"He more or less became our coach after that," Stanford said. "We now keep in touch with him."

Harris later became interested in kayak racing and is training with Kay Edwards, also of College Station, for the Olympic kayak trials next year.

The three competed in the World Cup team trials last summer in Lexington, Ohio, but the results were less than gratifying.

"We literally got blown out of the water," he said. "We hadn't been in the Olympic-type boat long enough to really be competitive."

All three now go to Squaw Valley, Calif., about three times a year to work with other canoe and kayak racers training under Bragg's watchful eye.

"This is the only time we get any formal coaching," Stanford said.

Competing is an expensive proposition for the three Texans, since most major events are held on the east or west coasts.

"That's why we have to limit our travel to qualifying races and scheduled training sessions," Stanford said. "It puts us at somewhat of a disadvantage."

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE Attracting Bad Luck

By Alfred Sheinwold

Some players believe that pessimism attracts bad luck and that the way to get good breaks is to think happy thoughts.

Today's South took the queen of spades and happily led the jack of diamonds. East held off but took the next diamond and switched to hearts. The defenders got two hearts, two clubs and a diamond to defeat the contract. So much for optimism.

PESSIMISTIC PLAY

A pessimist leads the eight of diamonds at the second trick and overtakes with dummy's nine.

If East wins with the ten, South takes the return and leads the jack of diamonds to dummy's queen. He can continue the diamonds from dummy if necessary, and is therefore sure of four diamonds, three spades and two hearts.

If East refuses the first diamond, South switches to clubs. He wins the return and leads the jack of diamonds. East cannot afford to win, and South switches back to clubs to get three spades and two tricks in each of the other suits.

Pessimism may curdle your disposition, but it improves your score.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one notrump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: ♠ 5 2 ♥ K 6 3 ♦ K Q 9 7 6 3 ♣ 7 5. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three notrump. Game should be easy if partner can use your diamonds. It would be a mistake to bid only two notrump since partner cannot possibly tell whether or not to accept this invitation.

When that alarm goes off at 5:30 in the morning it's real easy to say 'I'm not going to work out this morning,'" he said in a telephone interview from Waco. The San Angelo native is the only Texan in training for the Olympic canoeing trials. He became active in the sport as a graduate student at Texas A&M University. "I got interested in 1975 when I took a canoe trip down the Guadalupe River," Stanford said. A professor who accompanied the students later suggested Stanford take up canoe racing. "So I got a partner and we borrowed a canoe and couple of paddles from him (the professor)," Stanford said. "We started practicing and entered some of the races here in Texas." Stanford and his partner, Robin Harris of College Station, competed in Texas "marathon races" ranging from 10 to 40 miles before deciding to enter Olympic-level competition. Stanford and Harris attended an Olympic seminar at Floral, Fla. in 1977. Later they met Bill Bragg, coach of the U.S. canoeing team, during a training session at College Station. "He more or less became our coach after that," Stanford said. "We now keep in touch with him." Harris later became interested in kayak racing and is training with Kay Edwards, also of College Station, for the Olympic kayak trials next year. The three competed in the World Cup team trials last summer in Lexington, Ohio, but the results were less than gratifying. "We literally got blown out of the water," he said. "We hadn't been in the Olympic-type boat long enough to really be competitive." All three now go to Squaw Valley, Calif., about three times a year to work with other canoe and kayak racers training under Bragg's watchful eye. "This is the only time we get any formal coaching," Stanford said. Competing is an expensive proposition for the three Texans, since most major events are held on the east or west coasts. "That's why we have to limit our travel to qualifying races and scheduled training sessions," Stanford said. "It puts us at somewhat of a disadvantage."
