DALLAS (AP) — Mexico has provided "very poor international cooperation" in studying effects of runaway Mexican crude oil on bays, estuaries and beaches along the Texas Gulf coast, a Texas A&M University researcher said.

"All we've gotten are public relations handouts. They don't tell how they are measuring or what they are measuring," civil engineering Professor Roy Hann said Wednesday.

"I haven't seen any scientific data. No cooperative technical program is going on."

Hann also said he doubted Mexican claims that oil is burning at the blown out well in the Bay of Campeche.

"The burning flame is clean, like a gas flame. The natural gas is burning off, not the oil," said Hann.

He said estimates indicate the well is spewing a mixture of 60 percent water and 40 percent oil.

"Something will burn only if it has an acceptable heat level. You can't burn a 60 percent water and 40 percent oil mixture," Hann said.

Hann said he believes Mexican claims about the amount of oil being skimmed off the surface are exaggerated.

"I've heard all sorts of quotes on the figure, but industry experts say that only 10 to 15 percent at most is being skimmed," he said.

Various countries and the United Nations have offered to help Mexico and various technical teams have prepared proposals, but none has been accepted, he said.

The Mexicans financed their own studies through about 15 agencies, but none of the reports has been made available, he said.

Hann said he and other U.S. representatives flew over the site, but were not given any special assistance in studying the spill.

Hann, who has been studying cleanup operations, also criticized procedures for defending against the largest spill ever recorded.

"I'm not satisfied with the level of protection being extended to the bays and estuaries of Texas," he said.

Hann said he was concerned that oil in remote areas is not being cleaned up.

"On successive higher tides, the oil will wash out to the bottom of the ocean. I don't like having oil in direct contact with the sea life on the bottom," he said.

"Putting it offshore in the deep brine is another thing."

Hann's research group has concentrated on a 40-mile coastal strip from the Rio Grande to the Port Mansfield cut.

The team analyzes the oil, gathers aerial photographs, videotapes, and records of weather, tide and currents, and other technical aspects to study the effects as the spill progresses.

Hann has studied oil spills worldwide, including the world's second largest spill, Amoco Cadiz, in France in 1978. Hann said 223,000 metric tons of oil leaked from the wreck of the Amoco Cadiz. Projections for the Mexican spill are from 300,000 to 350,000 metric tons.

"It could go as high as 500,000 tons," Hann said.

Carter hears citizen criticism in Missouri

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — President Carter engaged in a six-minute debate at 5 a.m. today with an auto worker who vigorously disagreed with Carter's decision to permit the export of American oil products to Iran.

"What we don't understand is why the Ayatollah Khomeini is doing this to the people over there, executing them, and more or less we are condoning it?" the man asked Carter. The dialogue occurred as the Delta Queen steamboat stopped at Lock 21 on the Mississippi River near Quincy, Ill., a few miles from Hannibal.

Carter defended his decision to permit the sale of an estimated $47 million worth of kerosene and diesel fuel, saying "They ship us one and one-half million barrels of oil every day."

Carter encountered his debating partner on the way to spending several hours sightseeing in Hannibal, hometown of Samuel Clemens and his literary creation, Tom Sawyer.

The unidentified man who questioned Carter was part of a crowd of about 300 people who greeted Carter when he climbed aboard shortly before 5 a.m. and began shaking hands.

He told the president his Iranian brother-in-law who worked for Bell Helicopter in Iran had just been released from prison there.

Before approving the sale of U.S. refined oil products, the man demanded to know, "Why couldn't we get a reasonable assurance that they would take care of human rights over there?"

"All we had to do was get an assurance that they would start analyzing this and not treating people rotten because they were dealing with Americans."

In the midst of the badgering, Carter calmed the man down enough to say, "You won't let me answer your question."

Referring to Khomeini, the Iranian ruler, Carter said: "I don't approve of his government but the fact is that they ship us about one and one-half million barrels of oil every day. One time they asked us to send them a million barrels back."

Carter explained that the United States receives 50 million barrels of oil a month from Iran and that they had requested, due to sabotage of a refinery, one shipment of kerosene.

Asked the president: "You want me to tell them (the Iranians), 'Don't ship us any oil?'"

Someone in the audience said, "Maybe we'd be better off if they didn't."

Carter, in a clearly sarcastic tone of voice, replied: "Maybe so, we can do without it."

The man finally conceded that Carter's decision was "reasonable" but he still asked why Carter couldn't win at least a "worthless assurance that they will look into some of their human rights violations."

Carter told the man: "You're the best question asker I ever saw but you don't give me a chance to answer."

He reminded the man that no Americans were killed when they were evacuated during the Iranian revolution earlier this year.

"They could have killed Americans but they didn't," Carter said.

As the debate ended, one of the man's companions called out to the president, "I think you're doing a hell of a good job."

The dialogue took place over a chain-link fence, with the crowd watching quietly and several of the man's companions interjecting an occasional comment. Some members of the crowd had been waiting all night, and during a few rain showers, to see the president.

$100,000 bond set in shooting

A resident of Highland today was charged with murder and attempted murder in connection with the Tuesday shooting death of 22-year-old Daniel Nixon.

Bond for 22-year-old Coy Preece Jr. was set at $100,000 on the murder charge and $50,000 on the attempted murder charge.

Preece was transferred to Midland City Jail from San Angelo about 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Preece, 22, was arrested in San Angelo after his father called the Tom Green County Sheriff's Department and informed officials there of his location, officials here said.

Nixon died in the emergency room of Midland Memorial Hospital about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, shortly after he was shot in downtown Midland following a car chase, officials said.

Nixon received gunshot wounds to both shoulders and three .22-caliber bullet wounds to the head, according to ambulance reports. Preece's wife, 20-year-old Betty Sue Preece, a passenger in an automobile being driven by Nixon at the time of the shooting, was not injured, according to officials.

The fatal shooting took place about 8 p.m. Tuesday almost in front of Midland Police Department offices.

According to witnesses, a pickup pulled alongside the Nixon car as he was driving north on Fort Worth Street.

A person in the pickup fired several shots at the Nixon car before turning east on to Texas Avenue, witnesses told police.

A police officer in pursuit of the pickup lost track of the fleeing vehicle at the intersection of Texas Avenue and East Front Street, officials said.

Bond for Preece was set Wednesday at $100,000 in Tom Green County, but Midland police said the earlier bond was set only for the purpose of his transfer to Midland facilities.

Angels fly over Midland

Female pilots participating in famous derby

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Staff Writer

* Flying by the seat of one's pants, er, skirts will determine the winner of this year's Angel Derby.

Thirty-five female-piloted airplanes flew over the Midland area Wednesday in an attempt to be the first to reach Cleveland, Ohio, Thursday to garner honors of the 50th all-woman transcontinental air race.

In 1929, women aviators from throughout the world flew the same route from California to Ohio, thus originating the country's most prestigious all-female air race. Famous woman aviator Amelia Earhart participated in that first race.

Midland was considered at that time a vital refueling stop for these races because of the fuel limitations of the 1929 aircraft.

Several women aviators and their navigators touched down in Midland to refuel and check up on weather conditions further northeast Wednesday.

The rest flew between the air control tower and the airport's red and white checkered water tower to register their arrival time at Midland Regional Airport — a designated fly-by in the race.

A Beech Bonanza operated by Norma Futterman and Aileen Pickering, both of California, was the first aircraft to land at the Tall City's airport.

Mrs. Futterman, who placed second in the 1976 Angel Derby, said flying weather from El Paso to Midland was "beautiful."

Unfortunately, she sighed, there were no tailwinds to speed her aircraft along its journey.

Navigation for Mrs. Futterman's plane, as for all participants, was based mostly on landmarks along the way.

"Oh, we use anything to get us where we are going," explained Ms. Pickering, the navigator. "Highways, telephone lines, railroads or radio checks, anything."

"Flying this year's derby is easier than it was 50 years ago when there weren't that many easy landmarks to fly by," Mrs. Futterman noted.

Back then, it was really flying by the seat of one's skirt. They even wore skirts then.

At about 11:15 a.m. Wednesday, a second plane piloted by Rosemarie Mintz and Beatrice Axelrod, both of Cleveland, Ohio, touched down at Midland's airport.

Mrs. Mintz's main "problem" was

Mishap kills Andrews man

ANDREWS — David Melton Riordan, a 25-year-old oil field derrick operator and Andrews resident, was killed Wednesday afternoon when the motorcycle he was riding slid on loose gravel in northeast Andrews and went out of control, according to the Andrews Police Department.

Riordan reportedly was thrown from the motorcycle and his head struck a large rock in a yard. He was not wearing a helmet, said a spokesman for the police department.

The mishap occurred at Northeast Mustang Drive and Avenue F.

Riordan was pronounced dead on arrival at Permian General Hospital about 2:50 p.m. Wednesday by Peace Justice Tom Ragsdale.

Answer Line...

By Franchelle Moore

P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702

I thought when the city installed the Dumpsters for garbage and trash collection that people using them were required to place all raw garbage in bags before placing them in the Dumpster. If this is not so, the city should require that ALL raw garbage be placed in bags. If this is so, the city should be checking on violators.

I have one or more neighbors who are dumping garbage directly into the Dumpster and as a result have created quite a health hazard. The flies are so bad in and around the Dumpster I use that I carry an insecticide each time I take out our trash. — J.R.

ANSWER: This is not going to be good news. The Sanitation Department of the city of Midland reports it is not required in residential areas that garbage be put in bags before being placed in Dumpsters. There is an ordinance requiring commercial establishments, such as restaurants, to place all garbage in bags. I think your suggestion that it should be required for ALL Dumpsters is a good one.

While in the military several years ago, I tasted an excellent alcoholic punch at a party. The punch was called "Artillery Punch," and I tried to get the recipe from the hostess. However, she would not give it out. Can Answer Line fine this recipe for me? — Mrs. G.C.

ANSWER: "Artillery Punch" has a very potent ring to it. Pat Dixon at the Golden Prop Lounge at Midland Regional Airport says the name reminds her of a concoction some people call "Rhode Island Punch." Regardless of its name it should have a "punch."

The recipe calls for equal parts of four white liquors—rum, vodka, gin and tequila. If that's not enough, add a proportionate amount of sweet and sour, and top with just enough Coca-Cola to give the brew a tea color. If this is not the right one, maybe some Answer Line readers will come forth with their ideas of "Artillery Punch."

How do you get rid of nut grass? Going Nutty. — T.B.

ANSWER: Charles W. Green, Midland County extension agent-agriculture, says this type of grass is probably the hardest to contend with, and eliminating the rascal altogether may not be possible.

Chemically speaking, Green says there are two chemicals which can be used effectively, under certain conditions. One is MSMS, sold under the brand name of Ansara, which can be sprayed on Bermuda grass containing nut grass, but NOT on St. Augustine grass areas, because it will kill St. Augustine.

Green says spraying of the yard should begin in the early spring, with repeated sprayings every 2 to 4 weeks throughout the growing period. This should control the nut grass, so that it can be eliminated, possibly, the next summer.

The other chemical is a concentrated 24D, which can be applied to small areas of nut grass. Precaution must be used with this chemical, because if not applied correctly it can kill trees and shrubs.

The systemic chemicals are designed to reach to the root system to kill, but nut grass has enough food stored in the "nuts" of its root system to survive such treatment.

If there is nut grass in small areas, such as flower beds, Green reports there is a pre-planting treatment using Eptam.

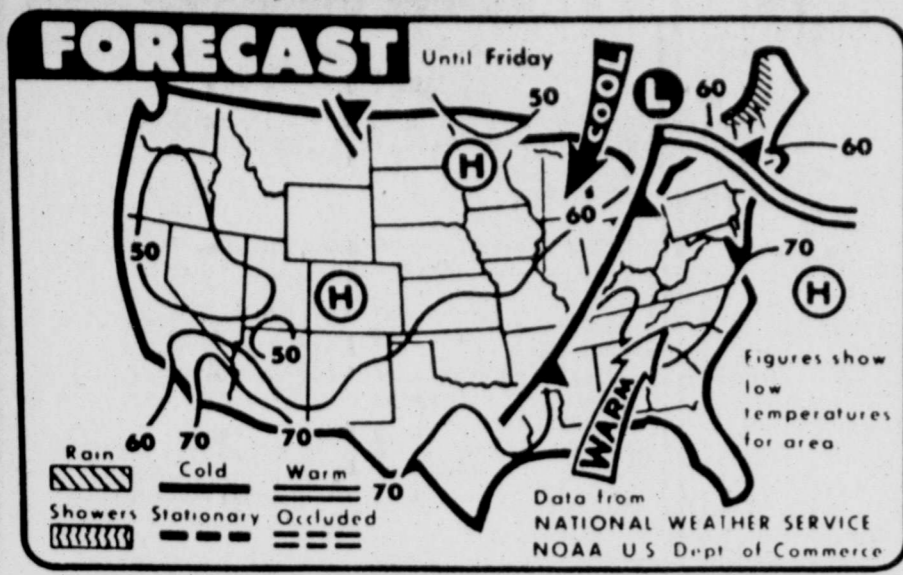

All of these chemicals should be used with care to avoid killing shrubbery and trees, the agent warns. Because of the condition of Midland soil, leaching occurs.

He especially protests the use of herbicides, fertilizers with weed killers, because of the sandy condition of West Texas soil.

Green cites the case of one Midlander who, in order to get rid of nut grass, had his lawn dug out 18 inches deep, new soil brought in, and grass planted. Guess the variety of the first green sprig of grass which appeared?

Another escapee captured

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — Thirty inmates described as dangerous broke out of prison, then scattered across the Baltimore-Washington area early today pursued by police and patrol dogs, authorities said. Fourteen were reported in custody by mid-day as officers began rounding up men without adequate identification.

Sgt. Hugh K. McCormick said the inmates, all dressed in civilian clothes, escaped late Wednesday by cutting through a bar and a security screen at the Maryland House of Corrections. He said the men scaled a 15-foot wall and three security fences in fleeing the prison.

Trooper Ron Price said inmates had been spotted as far away as Prince Georges County, a suburb of Washington, D.C., about 20 miles southwest of Jessup. It was the second biggest jailbreak in the state's history.

Other convicts were sighted in Howard, Baltimore and Anne Arundel counties and in the city of Baltimore, about 10 miles from the prison, he said. One escapee was reported caught in Virginia.

"We're covering a large area," Price said. "We don't have any roadblocks, but we have a lot of cars." Authorities said the search was concentrated along the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, where police were picking up any male pedestrians who could not produce adequate identification. The suspects were being taken to Jessup, where they were checked against pictures of the fugitives.

Bill Clark, a state police spokesman, said state and local police flooded the Baltimore-Washington area looking for the men.

"We don't know who these men are, nor what they are charged with, so we're urging motorists not to pick up hitchhikers," he said.

Price said the inmates were easy to spot. "They're walking along the side of the roads and when they see a police car, they take off running into the woods," he said.

There was no immediate comment from prison officials.

The state's largest prison escape occurred in April 1959 at the Patuxent Institution, another adult facility in Jessup. Thirty-four inmates broke out in that incident.

Clark said police were first notified of the escape around 11:30 p.m. Wednesday when prison officials reported six men missing.

"They took a bed check and found out there were about 30 missing," he said, adding that police were notified of the increased number about 1:30 a.m.

More of same weather due

The weather forecast for Midland has been changed a little in wording, but it essentially calls for the same old thing — warm weather, sunny skies during the day, partly cloudy skies at night and a chance for afternoon and evening thunderstorms.

According to the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport, Midlanders can expect the low temperature tonight to drop into the middle 60s with the thermometer climbing into the middle 90s on Friday.

That heating-cooling trend will bring a 30 percent chance for thunderstorms to Midland tonight and Friday, the weather service said.

Winds tonight should blow out of the southeast at 10-20 mph. The high temperature Wednesday reached 95 degrees, short of the record 101 degrees recorded Aug. 22, 1963.

Low this morning was 68, but it failed to match the record low 61-degree reading for this date, set in 1961.

Very heavy thunderstorms rolled through the Texas Hill Country early today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a severe thunderstorm warning for Kerr County.

Other thunderstorms moved into Southeast Texas before dawn and forecasters said thunderstorm activity lingered throughout the night in West Texas near the Pecos River.

The severe thunderstorm warning for Kerr County came after forecasters sighted an area of very heavy thunderstorms from Fredericksburg to Kerrville to Junction. The area of thunderstorm activity was moving to the south at about 30 mph during the pre-dawn hours.

The National Weather Service received several reports of strong, gusty winds as the thunderstorms moved through the Hill Country and warned that the storms were capable of producing small hail.

Forecasters warned that heavy rain in the Hill Country could cause some flash flooding of low lying or flood prone areas.

Heavy thunderstorms rumbled across much of North Texas and Central Texas late Wednesday, dumping heavy rainfall in some areas. Waco had the heaviest rainfall at a reporting station with 1.25 inches.

High winds accompanied some of the late evening storms, but there were no immediate reports of serious damage.

Forecasters called for scattered thunderstorms in most areas of the state by late afternoon or early evening. Highs were to be mostly in the 90s.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the upper 60s and lower 70s. Extremes ranged from 60 at Amarillo to 81 at Laredo.

It was obvious who was sponsoring the aircraft. Its pilots, Jerrie Cobb and Ruth Lummis, both of Moore Haven, Fla., had flown from South America to Los Angeles, Calif., to be in the race.

Now missionary pilot in South America, Ms. Cobb started flying airplanes at the age of 12. Since that time, she has logged 30,000 flight hours. This race is Ms. Cobb's first attempt to fly the Angel Derby. She noted she had to fly around — rather than over — mountains to maintain flying speed.

Even though the weather was OK here, she said she was expecting some thunderstorms farther northeast and maybe a precious tail wind.

In Santa Monica, she recalled, their departure was delayed an hour because of smog conditions.

Flight from Douglas, Ariz., to Midland, took about two hours, she said. Ms. Cobb estimated their speed at 145 mph.

Oil spill situation looking better

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Oil-stained Texas beaches are in for "sporadic" doublings of more run-away Mexican crude from the world's worst oil spill, but scientists are heartened by concentrations to the south that appear lighter than first feared.

"Sporadic patches of sheen and mousse (thicker oil) are expected to wash ashore on Padre Island during the next several days," Coast Guard spokesman Jim McGranahan said Wednesday, but added, "It's not going to be as bad as it was last week."

More than 50 miles of scenic Padre Island beach, much of it in multi-million dollar tourist areas, were fouled last week by the oil. Several more miles of remote beach 30 miles north of Brownsville were doused late Wednesday by light sheen.

A giant 40-mile-by-60-mile patch of sheen, which contained some small concentrations of thicker oil, loomed off Port Aransas early today. Some of the oil had begun washing ashore, but Coast Guard officials said the impact on the tourist beaches would be "light" compared to last week's covering that was 3 inches deep in some places.

Reconnaissance flights Wednesday off Tampico, Mexico, 250 miles south of Brownsville, showed that a huge concentration of oil covering hundreds of square miles was mostly the lighter sheen. Some thicker concentrations of the fudge-like mousse were in the patches, but not as much as scientists had feared.

Last week's flights had shown very thick concentrations of oil in the area, and scientists had worried about a second assault on the beaches and environmentally sensitive bays and lagoons. Scientists speculated Wednesday night that the lighter concentrations off Tampico were due to containment efforts begun about two weeks after the Ixtoc I offshore well blew out June 3 in the Bay of Campeche.

The crippled well has been spewing more than 10,000 barrels of oil daily and has dumped at least 2 million barrels into the gulf so far. Mexican officials say the well won't be capped until at least Sept. 16.

Thousand of tennis ball-sized steel and lead balls are being pumped into the lead and have helped cut the flow from the initial 30,000 barrels per day. Open water containment boom and skimmer setups are also sweeping up some of the oil at the well head.

Three of Gov. Bill Clements' aides toured the coast Wednesday and met with officials from coastal counties about the possibility of requesting federal disaster aid that would allow hotel owners, fishermen and other residents to secure loans against damages.

Clements, who founded the Dallas firm that leased the Ixtoc I rig to the Mexican government oil company, said Aug. 10 after touring the then-clean beaches that it was "much to do about nothing."

Clements' top aide Allen Clark and press secretary Jon Ford said the governor made those statements before the beaches. "In those same conversations, he points out that it could become a lot more serious," said Clark.

Legion's approval of SALT II hinges on several changes

HOUSTON (AP) — The American Legion doesn't like the SALT II treaty the way it reads right now, but it would accept it if a few changes were made — changes it approved at its national convention here. Also Wednesday, delegates overwhelmingly approved a resolution offering Legion membership to Vietnam-era veterans previously excluded because they served before passage of the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, considered the official start of the "conflict."

The resolution opened membership to Vietnam-era veterans who served before Aug. 5, 1964. Previously, veterans who had served prior to that date and after the Korean War were considered to have served in peace time.

The resolution moved the eligibility date back to Dec. 22, 1961, when the first American was killed. About 300 Americans died in Vietnam before the Gulf of Tonkin resolution was passed.

The Legion leadership, which worked to defeat the resolution, is still "very traditional," said Daniel Lambert, a 56-year-old Legion staff member from Orrington, Maine. "This (the resolution) grew up in the rank and file" and shows a new attitude toward Vietnam era veterans, he said.

Chagra doesn't attend bond hearing, forfeits $400,000

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Jimmy Chagra, convicted of a drug conspiracy last week, failed to appear at a federal court hearing today and forfeited his $400,000 bond.

Chagra, a professional gambler, did not show up for a bond hearing before U.S. Magistrate Harry Lee Hudspeth. His lawyer, Oscar Goodman of Las Vegas, Nev., and his brother, Joe Chagra, appeared on his behalf at the hearing, where they had initially hoped to have the bond reduced.

U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd told the court, "It appears Mr. Chagra has fled the jurisdiction of this court. We have in mind to file a complaint for failure to appear."

Hudspeth then reminded Boyd that he could go after the forfeited bond.

Hudspeth changed Chagra's sentencing date from Sept. 5 to Sept. 6 due to scheduling problems but noted the sentencing would be contingent upon Chagra's appearance. He cannot be sentenced in absentia, he said.

Chagra's disappearance was noted Tuesday when he failed to show up for

Hijacker gives up; No one harmed

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A man pretending to carry a bomb hijacked a United Airlines 727 carrying 119 persons from Portland to Los Angeles and forced the plane to return to Portland, where he surrendered early today, the FBI said.

All 112 passengers and seven crew members left the aircraft unharmed, the FBI said.

The man gave himself up at 2:25 a.m. PDT and was taken into custody by the FBI who identified the suspect as James R. Allbee, 26, of Portland.

The airport bomb squad opened the package he said was an explosive device and confirmed it was not a bomb. Authorities did not reveal the contents of the package.

"The only demand that has been made is that the man wanted to come back to Portland," said FBI spokesman Bill Williams.

Negotiations were conducted over the aircraft's radio, Williams said.

Several hours earlier, an explosive device and an extortion note directed to United were found at the Portland International Airport, but authorities said it did not appear the two incidents were related. That device was defused without incident.

Allbee was involved in a 1975 extortion case and during the hijack episode asked to see Portland Police Lt. Rob Aichele, one of the officers who dealt with Allbee at that time, Williams said.

The spokesman said he did not know the nature or outcome of the 1975 case.

Wednesday's incident began after UAL Flight 739 departed Portland for Los Angeles at 9 p.m. PDT Wednesday. At 10:38 p.m., one of the passengers told the cockpit crew that he had a bomb on board, San Francisco authorities said.

Rita Rouille of Los Angeles, a passenger, said during the flight she was two seats away from the man she later learned was the alleged hijacker.

Ms. Rouille said the man had a black overnight bag which he kept under his seat. Just before reaching San Francisco, the man took the bag and went to the front of the plane, she said.

"I saw this gentleman walking up to the front of the plane with his suitcase ... he squinted his eyes and kind of looked at me sideways," Ms. Rouille said.

The plane landed 10 minutes later in San Francisco International Airport to refuel before returning to Portland. It touched down in Portland at 1:13 a.m. PDT today and was directed to an area that had been cordoned off.

The extortion note and the explosive device were found earlier at the airport in a piece of luggage in a stall of a men's room in the north end of the terminal. Williams would not disclose the contents of the note but he said it was short and cryptic with a threat against property.

Last week, a knife-wielding man attempted to divert a Guatemala-to-Miami flight to Cuba. He was overpowered and the Eastern Airlines flight landed safely in Miami.

On July 20, a man claiming to have explosives commandeered a United Airlines 727 jet from Denver to Omaha and said he wanted to go to Cuba.

FBI agents overpowered the man after the plane had landed at Omaha and 118 passengers and four flight attendants left the airliner. No explosives were found.

The face of James R. Allbee, 26, Portland, Ore., is reflected in the police car door as he is placed in the car Thursday morning at Portland International Airport. Allbee is being held in connection with the hijacking of a United Airlines jetliner. (AP Laserphoto)

Furr's, West German firm reach 'tentative' sale accord

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Officials of Furr's Inc. and a West German firm have reached a "tentative" sale agreement which is expected to repay the regional supermarket chain's almost $56 million in debts.

Federal bankruptcy Judge John Flowers set a Sept. 26 acceptance hearing date Tuesday for the plan that must have the support of 51 percent of the unsecured creditors.

Under terms of the agreement, the Lubbock-based supermarket chain would be sold to Supermarket Development Corp., a Texas corporation organized by W. Leibbrand, a principal partner in the West German firm of Rewe Handelsgesellschaft Leibbrand, a large supermarket operation.

Furr's attorney Henry Simon Jr. told about 30 creditors that while the nine page plan is "long and complex it works on a simple concept."

He said the basic concept is acquisition of Furr's capital stock by SDC and the immediate infusion of a minimum of $20 million of additional capital to fund creditor payments and to "accelerate rehabilitation of Furr's as a credit worthy concern."

He SDC has alloted $7.5 million to pay all secured and priority claims in full immediately after the plan is confirmed.

Unsecured claims of $2,000 or less and larger claims voluntarily reduced to $2,000 will be paid in full within 90 days after the sale is confirmed, said Simon.

He said the plan also calls for cash payment of up to 36 percent of Furr's remaining unsecured claims within 90 days, with another cash payment of up to 9 percent on those claims to follow in six months.

Simon said the balance of the unsecured claims is expected to be paid in six annual installments in varying percentages.

Chrysler shedding assets to accumulate needed cash

DETROIT (AP) — Ailing Chrysler Corp. is stripping off more assets to raise cash.

This time, it's selling its dealership subsidiary to ABKO Realty, Inc., a new firm formed for the purpose by oil conglomerate Koch Industries Inc. and real estate developer George Ablah, both of Wichita, Kan.

How much cash the sale will bring in is not yet known, because Chrysler will transfer "substantial" assets from the subsidiary, Chrysler Realty, to itself, officials said.

Koch had sales of more than $3 billion last year from oil and gas production, refining, transportation, chemicals, real estate and manufacture of industrial equipment.

"We have been in real estate for 30 years. The appeal of it for us was it fit right in," said Koch's financial vice president, Tom Carey. He said Ablah had 30 years experience in developing commercial property.

Earlier published speculation about a sale estimated Chrysler's net at $50 million, though Chrysler says its investment in the subsidiary was now "nearly $200 million." A sale price close to Chrysler's investment is "not in the right ball park," Carey said. He said he could not be more specific.

Chrysler Realty, which earned $12.7 million last year, owns or leases 780 of Chrysler's 4,700 dealerships, and in turn leases them to dealers.

Edwin N. Homer, president of Chrysler Realty, said in Chrysler's announcement that the company would continue to help dealers, and that he would remain as president. Ablah will be chairman and chief executive officer.

Bounteous weed crop

Let's talk about Midland's bounteous weed crop of the '79 season for a few seconds.

You undoubtedly will agree that it is something to talk about — at length, if one has the time.

Prize-winning patches are on public display (you can't miss them) in most sections of the city, including the central business district. Many of the fast-growing plants already are taller than the tall Oklahoma corn about which we hear and sing. The rank growth has come about thanks to the above average rainfall with which we have been blessed in recent weeks.

We would have no hesitancy whatsoever in entering the Tall City's tall weeds in any championship weed competition anywhere in the Lone Star State, and beyond. Our weeds are of championship quality, make no mistake about that.

They are something to behold, and now that we have them in such lush growth on vacant lots, in alleys, on construction sites, along fence rows and some thoroughfares, on parking lots, around abandoned dwellings, and, in some instances, on residential and business properties, what are we going to do with them?

A weed division in a county fair could be filled, and then some, but we don't have a county fair.

It all comes down to a matter of harvesting, and this becomes a community-wide project. Some of the larger stalks may require sawing, rather than chopping, but they all should be cut and disposed of during the few remaining weeks of the summer season. Some of them should be cut or mowed as promptly as possible, particularly those which constitute traffic hazards.

It is noted that City of Midland crews have been active this week in cutting and removing weeds along streets and sidewalks and on public property in the downtown section, and perhaps beyond. The city and the work crews are to be commended for this action, which should serve as a signal for others to get on with the harvest as quickly as they can. This isn't something which can be left to the city alone to accomplish. Owners of vacant lots and other private properties must assume the responsibility of attending to their properties. There was a time when neighborhoods would organize to take care of such situations, and perhaps this practice can be revived.

In clearing some of the lots, it very well could be that those doing the clearing may find abandoned cars, dwellings and what-have-you — the weeds have grown to that proportion. They have served a purpose in hiding such eyesores, but come the first frost and the curtain will be lifted to show not only the abandoned items and the stalks and leaves of dead weeds, but the litter which they have caught, and held, as well. The best thing to do is to get rid of them now.

The weeds also create a health and sanitation problem as well as a traffic hazard, and persons with certain allergies particularly will appreciate the cooperation of all concerned in ridding the city of its record weed crop.

Then, too, the weeds don't exactly fit into the usually most attractive appearance of the city.

This would be a marvelous time also to launch a community-wide clean-up effort, in connection with the weed clearance program, thereby improving the city's overall appearance for the fall and winter seasons. Perhaps one or more of the Tall City's alert, ambitious organizations will elect to sponsor such a project.

And, by the way, aren't the lawns and flower gardens beautiful right now? Rainfall can accomplish this when nothing else can. It's wonderful, and Midlanders and other West Texans are grateful for the moisture and the accompanying delightful weather.

Mark Russell says

Capt. Carter looked out over the west bank of the Mississippi and said, "Not a bad place for the Palestinians."

"We have to make New Orleans by sundown — row faster, Andy."

Standing on the deck of the Delta Queen, Mr. Carter, remembering his Navy days, gave the command — "Take her down to 300 feet."

IT HAPPENED HERE

30 YEARS AGO (Aug. 23, 1949):

Don Ameche, star of screen and radio, came to Midland by plane late Sunday — and another Hollywood personality may be entering the oil business in West Texas. Bob Hope was here last week on oil business. Ameche said he is on business but declined to say whether it had to do with oil.

NICK THIMMESCH

Needed: Congressional investigation of Andy Young affair

WASHINGTON — Congress and the Carter White House should show the courage to conduct a full-scale investigation to determine whether U.S. and/or Israeli agents spied on U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young when he met with the PLO representative in New York City.

This whole affair is beginning to smell a little like Watergate, and now is the time to clear it up.

The Atlanta Constitution and Time magazine reported that Israeli agents used electronic recorders to spy on Young's meeting with PLO observer Zehdi Terzi. The New York Times now reports that the State Department knew about the substance of that meeting before it asked Young to reveal what the conversations were.

Young says that a detailed, virtually verbatim account of his meeting with Terzi circulated at the State Department four days after he met with him. That was one week before Young was asked about it, and two weeks before State acknowledged there was such a meeting.

The State Department waffles. President Carter steams on the Mississippi. The Israelis deny that they bugged Andy Young. But Atty. Gen. Benjamin Civiletti said on Meet the Press that "as a matter of courtesy" he would try to find out how the State Department got the low-down on Young.

It will take a congressional investigation, with FBI Director William H. Webster, CIA Director Stansfield

Nick Thimmesch

Turner, and State Department and White House staffers asked to testify what they know about Young's meeting and how they came to know it.

It is unlikely that Congress could get the Israelis to testify. And it would be best to avoid the thorny question of how Newsweek was tipped on the meeting early in the game.

Readers know that I have never been an Andy Young fan. But I believe he was "set up" so that he would be forced to resign. I don't like to see anybody set up. If they wanted Young out, why didn't they fire him weeks or months ago? We need a thorough investigation of this matter.

Israeli and/or U.S. intelligence agents deserve to be cleared if they had no part in this incident. If they did the job, we have a right to know, and to question whether it is right for U.S. diplomats to be subjected to such trickery. After all, this is the Born-Again Administration, isn't it?

Then there is the larger question of

U.S. weapons show up around world

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Years after the United States pulled out of Vietnam, American weapons abandoned there are still killing people in various parts of the world. The $5 billion worth of arms and ammunition captured by the North Vietnamese in the spring of 1975 are a valuable commodity in this violent world.

At first, U.S. officials were concerned that Hanoi would use the American munitions to support communist insurgents throughout Southeast Asia, either directly or with the proceeds from selling the arms. But the Vietnamese generals decided to hang onto the great bulk of the windfall arsenal; they have since turned the arms against the Cambodians and Chinese.

"The Vietnamese can utilize all the weapons they have," a Defense Department official told us. "It's doubtful they're in any mood to sell now." Intelligence agencies estimate that about $3 billion worth of the U.S. arms in Vietnamese hands is still usable. Obviously some of it has deteriorated from the years of storage — as indicated by an angry editorial in the Hanoi press denouncing workers who let unattended equipment rust.

Lack of spare parts is another problem. Hanoi has even approached the Japanese seeking private firms to repair the captured American aircraft, one intelligence report noted. But not all of the lethal legacy we left behind in Vietnam stayed there. U.S. intelligence agencies have received reports of weapons turning up in Africa and the Middle East, with serial numbers traceable to the arsenal we lost in Vietnam.

How the weapons got out of Indochina — and how many there were — will never be known with any certainty. But U.S. intelligence reports and interviews with international arms merchants have given us a general picture of what happened.

In the confusion of the war's end, both North and South Vietnamese officials — and some Americans — smuggled quantities of arms to other locations in Southeast Asia, primarily Laos, where administrative controls were loose.

From there, the arms traffic took on a huggier-mugger aspects of a spy novel. Black marketeers contacted Libyans, Palestinians, South Africans or anyone else who might have been interested in the deadly merchandise. Secret maps circulated, showing the arms caches marked in red. Arms merchants say that at least six persons engaged in the back-alley trade wound up murdered.

One secret FBI report tells of "a ring of unscrupulous arms dealers who have access to a large quantity of U.S. arms smuggled from Vietnam." The report says this ring has weapons for sale involving "a quantity of 250,000 M-16 rifles," with a value of at least $23 million.

U.S. officials caution against accepting all the tales of blood-and-guts violence and treasure troves of munitions. They note that arms merchants are notorious wheeler-dealers, who are not above exaggerating the risk involved to jack up the sale price — or even cooking up imaginary arms caches to hoodwink gullible customers.

The FBI files contain several examples of such international confidence games. One involved an American named Edward Loyd, who persuaded the Libyan government he knew the whereabouts of 50,000 M-16s. Loyd led the Libyans on a wild goose chase in Thailand, spent all his expense money — and failed to come up with any of

Man's token protest against 'Lonely Susan' under way in Andrews

ANDREWS — Dave Foreman is deep in a campaign to save the greenback dollar bill from extinction and to shove the new Susan B. Anthony dollar coin into oblivion.

The near quarter-size coin just doesn't fit into the scheme of things as Foreman views them.

He claimed the coin is a misfit. "It (the Anthony coin) made a slug out of the dollar," Foreman said. The Anthony dollar has markings of an 11-sided token.

"I have a lot of respect for the dollar bill. Next to the flag, it's the most American thing we have.

"The flag and the dollar bill are Americana."

Next to seeing Old Glory buried or burned, the last thing Foreman wants to see is the demise of folding money.

He hopes the "Lonely Susan," like the $2 bill, stays largely uncirculated.

"THIS IS DEAD-SERIOUS business," Foreman said of his campaign. "I'm just trying to speak up for the silent majority....It looks like everybody is talking about it, nobody is doing anything about it."

Foreman sounds like an exception to that assertion.

Like many other business people, Foreman shuns the new dollar coin for several reasons. For one, he said it creates a boondoggle in money exchange.

"We've got a lot of lost motions in the world anyway, and to deliberately add that much more lost motion to the world is pretty sad."

Foreman aired his protest in both patriotic and money-green colors shortly after the first of 500 million Anthony coins was issued July 2. His initial protest medium was a 100-foot long sign which touted a message in three-foot tall lettering:

U.S. Please Save The Dollar Bill

The flip side of the billboard, which is just off Texas 176, reads: "Andrews Loves God, Country and Supports Free Enterprise." Similar billboards proclaiming Andrews' patriotism are at three other roadway gateways to this city of 12,000 people.

Aside from the lone 100-foot long save-the-dollar-bill sign, Foreman is putting together a petition, to be circulated among the Andrews retail businesses, and which he hopes to use as a wedge to persuade the U.S. Congress to recall the coin and preserve the dollar bill in the event the federal government has entertained the idea of doing away with the bill.

FOREMAN HAS HEARD rumbles that the copper-based coin, which replaces the Eisenhower silver-dollar-size coin, also is a threat to the dollar bill.

The 67-year-old retail groceryman outlined his objections to the "Lonely Susan":

—It "too closely resembles the quarter" and has often been spent as a 25-cent piece. "This inevitably creates confusion in every change-making operation in which both quarters and dollars are involved."

Jet makes emergency landing

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A Delta Airlines jetliner made an emergency landing on a foamed runway at Carswell Air Force Base here Wednesday night after it blew a tire on takeoff from nearby Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, officials said.

None of the 102 passengers and crewmembers aboard Delta Flight 510 bound for Monroe, La., was injured in the landing, said Major James Odom, the base public information officer. He called the landing "rather uneventful."

Passengers and crewmembers were taken by Surtran bus back to D-FW Airport for another flight.

Delta officials said they planned to inspect the aircraft. The Boeing 727 jet, piloted by Capt. Chauncey Hall of New Orleans, blew a left rear inside tire on takeoff at 6:50 p.m. and landed on the foamed runway at 8:38 p.m.

Odom said he did not know why the pilot waited nearly two hours before landing. D-FW Airport spokesman Jim Street, however, said Hall may have decided to remain in the air until he burned enough fuel to land safely. He said he could not explain why Hall went to Carswell rather than return to D-FW Airport.

—Persons with poor eyesight, tots and people who have limited reading ability sometimes "are completely confused" by the two coins.

—In the money-counting process, approximately three times as much time is required to count and package the Anthony coin as it does to count the dollar bill.

—Nationwide, the additional time required to count the dollar coin would cost the country's 1,555,000 retailers a "weekly non-productive expense" of more than $9 million.

—It would appear that this is one more example of a poorly thought-out program that will add its bit to already runaway inflation."

—Few of the nation's 2,325,000 cash registers have provisions for accommodating more than five denominations of coins. At least 136 businesses in Andrews use one or more cash registers.

"I'LL TELL YOU WHAT," Foreman said. "The guy who devised that thing (Anthony coin) never ran a cash register."

Foreman said he thinks the petition will be favorably received.

"If they (retailers) react as they talk, everybody is going to sign it. I haven't heard any favorable comments about the 'Lonely Susan.' Everybody is shaking about it."

Banks are bypassing the coin, he claimed.

"They're avoiding it all they can," Foreman said. "The banks tell me they are very much opposed to it."

Once the petitions, which have "U.S. Please Save The Dollar Bill" letterhead, are signed, Foreman said he will have copies of the petitions sent to U.S. Congressman Kent Hance of Lubbock.

The petitions will be accompanied by a letter, prepared by attorney James Clack, presenting the save-the-dollar-bill viewpoint.

"I think it is malfeasance on our part if we don't raise our voice" to save the dollar bill. "Who's going to live in this country?" he asked rhetorically. "You and I."

"The dollar bill has been around and doing a mighty good job for a long, long time," he said. "The new one-dollar coin simply does not have a rightful place on the American scene."

"The dollar bill is just as American as the ice-cream cone and hamburger, literally," Foreman said.

Beside that, there is the sentimental attachment Americans have for the dollar bill and its sketch of George Washington, the nation's first president, he maintained.

"It has sentimental meaning to a whole lot of people," said Foreman.

Andrews businessman Dave Foreman is leading a campaign to "save the U.S. dollar bill from extinction." He's promoting petitions to save the greenback and to oust the quarter-

'Likeable hobo' suspected of killing young boys

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — William "Freight Train" Guatney was a "likeable hobo," say two women who knew him. But the man now suspected of killing young boys hated to be called a bum.

"He was a strong man when he got mad," says Joan Schmidt, a mother of seven who allowed Guatney — a transient now charged with murdering three young boys — to sleep in a garage apartment from time to time. "My kids, I can say, really loved him."

Guatney, 57, is being held without bond in the Lancaster County jail at Lincoln, Neb. He is charged with killing two boys in Nebraska four years ago and with the murder in May of a Kansas boy. Police say he's also a suspect in the deaths of at least 12 other boys around the country.

Mrs. Schmidt, 42, and Carolyn Kuhl Royer, 65, said their image of the man nicknamed "Freight Train" was shattered this week. "He was a likeable hobo," Mrs. Schmidt said. "But don't call him a bum or a tramp. He didn't like the kids to taunt him with names."

Guatney enjoyed wine, drank often, and said he was adopted and raised in Neosho Falls, Kan., until he ran away at 14, she said. The itinerant livestock handler "always was polite and seemed to love children," said Mrs. Royer.

Guatney was arraigned Wednesday in Lincoln, Neb., on charges of first-degree murder in connection with the deaths of Jacob Surber, 12, and Jon Simpson, 13. The boys vanished after visiting the Nebraska State Fair in 1975. Their bodies were found later.

He entered no plea to the charge, which could bring a penalty of death in the electric chair or life imprisonment.

He was charged in Topeka, Kan., on Monday with first-degree murder, kidnapping and sodomy in connection with the slaying of Jack Hanrahan, 12, whose body was found in a creek bed 10 days after a May 20 disappearance.

"He was the happy-go-lucky type," said Mrs. Royer, a retired pony trainer. She said Guatney seemed to enjoy drifting. "Wherever there was a show, we knew there'd be Bill," Mrs. Royer said.

He also loved to mimic whistles of the freight trains he rode for four decades, Mrs. Schmidt said, explaining Guatney's nickname.

The first sign something was wrong, she said, came last week while Guatney watched a television show about split personalities. "He said to me, 'You know, Jo, I'm two people ... I can also be mean,'" Mrs. Schmidt recalled.

Guatney was arrested here Saturday when he awoke in a broken-down bus he used as a home, authorities said.

He also is a suspect in the murder of 9-year-old Mark Helmig of Pekin in 1976 and the slaying of 14-year-old Marty Lancaster of Normal in 1978, Illinois police said. And a Pekin detective said Guatney is under investigation for at least 10 other deaths of young boys, including several in the Southwest.

Man charged in subway mishap

NEW YORK (AP) — A 26-year-old mail clerk has been charged with attempted murder for allegedly pushing a talented young musician in front of a subway train. The victim's hand was severed by the train.

Bellevue Hospital's microsurgery team restored the hand of Renee Katz, 18, after the June 7 incident, and a Transit Police task force began an investigation.

On Wednesday, after overnight questioning, Allen Curtis Lewis of Queens was charged with attempted murder and held on $25,000 bail.

A detective said in court papers that Lewis had admitted "he is the individual who caused Renee Katz to fall in front of the subway train."

Lewis, a clerk at CBS headquarters in Manhattan, was described by Assistant District Attorney Leonard Rienzi as a man who had "a prior history of touching females on subways."

Court papers showed he had been arrested twice before, once in January 1978 and again last March, and got conditional discharges in both cases.

Miss Katz' mother, Rose, reached by telephone after Lewis' arrest was announced, said her daughter only hopes the police got "the right person."

"I don't think anyone's happy about it," said Mrs. Katz. "The whole thing is just unpleasant."

Miss Katz was standing on the subway platform at Eighth Avenue and 50th Street waiting for a train to take her to the city High School of Music and Art, when she was pushed to the tracks by what witnesses described as a teen-ager wearing orange pants.

After the train rolled over her, police found the severed hand, packed it in ice and rushed it to Bellevue, where it was re-attached in a lengthy operation.

Doctors doubt she will ever be an accomplished flutist and pianist again, but the girl insists she will play the flute again "even though I may never be any good." She is planning to go to college this fall and study voice.

Transit Police Chief Sanford Garelik declined to say what led police to Lewis, except that the arrest was "based on information developed through the investigation," which included a hotline for persons with information.

At Lewis' arraignment before Judge Brenda Soloff in Manhattan Criminal Court, Rienzi called the attack "a callous, vicious, senseless act of violence."

If convicted on the attempted murder charge, Lewis could be sentenced to up to 25 years in prison.

Blind student, 39, from Crane seeking degree at UTPB

ODessa — Jerry Evans, a 39-year-old center at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin, says he doesn't have much use for pens and pencils unless he uses them to make holes in something.

Evans, a native of Crane, is blind. After 12 years in business for himself, a full cardiac arrest, the loss of his sight and a divorce, Evans has returned to college to complete his bachelor's degree in psychology.

Evans has changed his major from physical education to psychology in hopes of becoming a counselor at a rehabilitation center. He also hopes to work for the State Commission for the Blind someday.

Evans is a diabetic who lost his sight 12 years ago in a retinal hemorrhage, a condition of internal bleeding in the eye itself.

He underwent surgery on his pituitary gland in an attempt to slow the flow of hormones which influenced the hemorrhage. That surgery and a later eye surgery were both unsuccessful.

His second surgery was performed in April 1967. When his daughter was born in June that year he had become totally blind. "I never got to see my daughter," Evans said.

He went to a camp for the blind in 1968 sponsored by the Lions Club in Kerrville.

"Kerrville pretty well started me on my way with Braille, cane travel and adapting to my blindness."

Evans was owner of an oil field equipment rental and tube testing company in Crane for 12 years until he sold the business in December 1977.

In September 1978 he went to the Chris Cole School for the Blind in Austin to learn more about functioning as a blind person.

Evans was floored in February this year while still at Chris Cole and two weeks later suffered a full cardiac arrest.

After being released from the hospital, Evans returned to Chris Cole School and completed the program April 1.

Evans then moved to Odessa and enrolled in UTPB summer school. He is encouraged about returning to school, even though he doesn't have his sight.

"This is the first time I've been back in school since I've been blind," Evans said. "But the people couldn't be any better to me. The students and the staff are just fantastic; they really help me a lot."

Evans requires different types of study materials than do regular students. Textbooks for courses must either be in Braille or recorded on tape. Evans has his textbooks taped through the tape ending library in Midland.

Lectures are recorded on tape daily by Evans, who carries a tape recorder with him almost always. As the scintillating class nears the study guides are recorded so he has access in all the materials sighted persons do.

"When preparing for the test I listen to the taped lectures. I try to stay up with the tapes and then go over the tapes thoroughly the last couple of days before the test," he said.

Fortunately, Evans said, he was accustomed to using the tape recorder for study purposes when he could see.

"Even when I was sighted, I used the tape recorder to get the idea right. I would just listen to the lecture tapes over and over until I had the idea straight in my head. If I didn't understand something I would just go over it again and again until I got it right."

"It's a great way to study. Even the instructors have been exceptionally good in regard to study questions and in preparing my tests on tape. They have really bent over backwards to help me," Evans said.

Evans lives off campus in an apartment because of the distractions in student housing. He must depend on family and friends for a daily ride to the university to attend classes.

At home, Evans has learned to care for himself. His meals are prepared in a microwave oven. On the touch panel used for setting cooking times, Evans has converted the numbers to Braille because, according to Evans, "if you can find the number five, you can find them all."

"You can do anything if you can keep your attitude straight," he noted. "Blindness has really increased my awareness of how good people are. It helps me know how helpful people can be."

New bank bid denied

Audita Rozman

AUSTIN — The State Banking Board has denied the application for charter of the proposed Citizens Bank in Odessa.

The application, filed in February, proposed a location at 3004 Kermit Highway, with a total capitalization of $2,000,000.

Directors on the application were James R. Blakely, Robert W. Cook, Neil L. Grope and Cliff Rowe, Odessa, and T.G. Hughes and Wayne R. Rymar, Crane.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

No Need to Peek

By Alfred Sheinwold

No reader would suspect the hearts in today's hand, but real life is not so easy. You take the ace and queen of hearts and lead a third heart from dummy. West East plays low, you don't know whether to play the king or ten.

Counting takes the place of peeking.

Today's dealers took the second diamond and raked the ace and queen of hearts. He then took the ace of clubs and led a club from dummy.

DISCARD SPARE

When East discarded a spare South put up the king of clubs and led a low spade to finesse with dummy's ace. He continued with the ace of spades and raked.

West had led from a four-card diamond suit and had showed up with four clubs. Since West still had the king of spades he was marked with three spades. That left room for only two hearts in the West hand.

The dealer could therefore confidently lead dummy's last heart and take a winning finesse with the ten.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one notrump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold ♠KJ72 ♥AKQK10 ♣K104.

What do you say?

WEST: ♠K105, ♥76, ♣Q1072, ♦K1062.

South West North East 1NT 2♦ Pass 2♦ Pass 3NT All Pass (Opening lead — ♠2)

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. Because of the club shortage you should take bets at 1-10 diamonds than partner would at one no trump.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've read that marijuana can be used to treat glaucoma. Why isn't it available on prescription for such use? — Mrs. H.B.A.

Dear Mrs. A.: Marijuana is one of a number of drugs that are known to reduce pressure with the eye. Glaucoma is a disease in which intraocular pressure causes progressive damage to the optic nerve, impairing vision. Left untreated, it can lead to blindness. But whether marijuana is superior to other drugs currently in use for this purpose, or whether it will work in some patients who do not respond to other medications, is still to be determined.

As yet, legal use of marijuana for the treatment of glaucoma is limited to clinical investigations approved by the Food and Drug Administration. Current studies are attempting to determine whether the drug's ability to lower intraocular pressure can be sustained; if the studies are successful, additional research to test marijuana's safety and effectiveness may be undertaken. So far, most of these efforts have involved experiments on laboratory animals.

The National Institute on Drug Abuse, which supports government-sponsored marijuana research and supplies the drug to qualified researchers, is supporting tests on humans. Because the medical value of smoking marijuana is difficult to evaluate, researchers are trying to develop a derivative of the drug that can be used as an eye-drop. A drug can be better controlled if applied directly to the eye than if it is smoked. Such a derivative might also eliminate or, at least, reduce the intoxicating effects of marijuana.

One complicating factor in glaucoma research is that even when a drug successfully lowers intraocular pressure, it does not necessarily follow that vision is preserved. Studies to determine whether the use of marijuana preserves visual function have not yet been undertaken.

Before marijuana can be marketed — assuming it is found to be safe and effective — it will have to be removed from the list of substances deemed to have a high potential for abuse without any acceptable medical use. Before this is done, the FDA must determine that studies as to marijuana's therapeutic potential are sufficiently convincing to warrant its approval as a drug for the treatment of glaucoma.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband has been told he has secondary impotence. Exactly what is that and have you ever helped any men that have it? — Mrs. S.R.

Dear Mrs. S.R.: Secondary impotence means that a man who had a normal level of sexual activity in the past is now declining because of aging or job related stress. I recommend that men with this problem be treated with an experimental medicine called "LHRH" (Luteinizing hormone releasing hormone). In selective patients, LHRH did improve sexual potency. I would discuss this with your doctor and see if your husband would be a good candidate for this treatment.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Union reimbursement order appealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — J.P. Stevens & Co. Inc., the nation's No. 2 textile maker, is appealing an unprecedented government decision that it must pay the bill for a six-month organizing drive waged by the union that has fought for 16 years to unionize Stevens workers.

The National Labor Relations Board decision released Wednesday was the first in which the board ordered a company to reimburse — with interest — expenses incurred by a union seeking to bargain for that firm's workers.

Stevens also was ordered to recognize the union, the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union, as the exclusive bargaining agent for about 1,000 employees at the company's plants in Wallace, N.C.

And the board set aside a 1975 election in which the employees voted 540-404 against the union.

There was no immediate indication how much the NLRB ruling would cost the company if upheld in court.

In Greenville, S.C., Stevens' spokesman Paul Barrett said the company had already appealed the ruling to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va.

"Despite the ruling of the NLRB, we continue to believe that the will of the employees at the Wallace plants was best expressed in the secret ballot election of Feb. 19, 1975," said Barrett.

"That election was fairly and properly conducted by the NLRB and employees showed their opposition to union representation by a substantial majority. We will do everything legally proper to preserve the right of our employees to express their wishes through a secret ballot election, rather than accept forced representation on the basis of a union card count."

The NLRB's decision, affirming a March 1978 opinion of Administrative Law Judge Joel A. Hartz, said Stevens has "a long history of violations of employee rights."

In that opinion, Hartz said employee rights "have been threatened over the years by the efforts of J.P. Stevens to destroy the union through persistent violations of the law, board orders, court decrees and contempt citations."

"No end appears to this unrelenting effort to exhaust the resources of this union."

But the company has pointed out that in the union's lengthy organizing battle, it has won only one of 12 representation elections. Stevens says that shows its workers oppose unionization, but the union claims its losses result from illegal company activities.

The NLRB, in this week's decision, found that Stevens' "illicit campaign destroyed a fair election atmosphere and influenced the... loss of the union" in the February 1975 election culminating a six-month organizing drive at Wallace.

It ruled the employees' feelings were more reliably expressed in the number of union authorization cards signed than in the election results. Hartz said he had found that by the time of the election, 561 employees already had signed valid authorization cards.

Midland man arrested on abduction warrant

A Midland man arrested on a warrant for abduction of a child from Illinois was in Midland City Jail today.

According to police reports, Jimmy Allen Barrow, 25, 1101 Delmar St., was arrested at his home about 5:10 p.m. Tuesday.

He was expected to be transferred to Pekin, Ill., officials said. Barrow was charged with kidnapping his children, who were in the custody of his ex-wife, police officials here said.

The mother arrived in Midland Wednesday morning to pick the children up, police said.

Dallas-based agent reveals Davis' plot to kill his brother

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An FBI sound technician has told jurors of a plot to kidnap and drown Bill Davis, younger brother of murder conspiracy defendant Cullen Davis.

Jerry Hubbell, a Dallas-based FBI agent, testified he had been called in to help investigate a possible kidnapping — a federal offense — on Aug. 18, 1978. Hubbell said Fort Worth agent Ron Jannings told him of the alleged plot to kidnap and kill Bill Davis.

"(Cullen) Davis was attempting to hire someone to go to Connecticut and have his brother kidnapped

Delaware drops charges against 'Gentleman Bandit'

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The state of Delaware today dropped all charges against the Rev. Bernard T. Pagano, a Roman Catholic priest who had been on trial as the alleged "Gentleman Bandit." A Pennsylvania man, who had admitted involvement in the holdups, pleaded guilty to three of them.

"The state extends a sincere apology to Father Pagano," said State Attorney General Richard Gebelein as he moved to drop the charges against the 53-year-old priest.

But under the terms of the court's action, if any further evidence comes to light against Pagano, prosecutors can charge him again and retry him in the case.

Ronald Clouser, 39, of Brookhaven, Pa., pleaded guilty before Superior Court Judge Andrew D. Christie to three charges of second-degree robbery in connection with three of the holdups which occurred in northern Delaware earlier this year.

The judge set bail at $5,000 on each charge.

"The defendant wishes to plead guilty because he is guilty — he wishes to right a wrong," said Saul Segan, Clouser's attorney in Pennsylvania, where Clouser had earlier pleaded guilty to three other armed robberies.

"He feels compelled for moral reasons to enter the pleas," said Marsha Kramarck, a public defender appointed to Clouser's case.

The proceedings were conducted outside the presence of the jury, which had been excused Monday when Christie made the startling announcement from the bench that Clouser had admitted a part in the Delaware robberies.

and taken to North or South Carolina and drowned in a lake...or someplace," Hubbell said Jannings told him.

Jannings previously testified that Davis' former crony, David McCrory, approached the FBI in August 1978, saying he had been ordered to arrange mass murders for the millionaire industrialist.

Jannings also said McCrory told him Davis would pay $500,000 for the death of his brother; $200,000 for his ex-wife, Priscilla; and $80,000 each for state district judges Joe Eidson and Tom Cave.

Davis is on trial a second time on charges he tried to hire the murder of Eidson, his divorce judge. A Houston jury deadlocked 8-4 for conviction in the first attempt and a mistrial was declared in January.

Hubbell said he wired McCrory with a secret body recorder on Aug. 18 and helped another agent prepare the technical equipment that taped an Aug. 20 meeting between Davis and McCrory.

According to Hubbell's testimony, the recorder taped to McCrory's back transmitted to another recorder that synchronized sound with images from a video camera hidden in an FBI van near the Davis-McCrory meeting site. Hubbell and other agents monitored the parking lot meeting from a van disguised as a survey company truck.

The van was parked so agents could film the meeting through the back windows, Hubbell said. That plan almost backfired when Davis became curious and tried to peer through blackout curtains while the agents remained frozen inside, one with his pistol drawn.

McCrory had been given certain items "so he could show those items to the defendant...as a means of proof that the judge had been killed," Hubbell said. That "proof" included Eidson's drivers' license, several identification cards, the alleged "murder weapon" and a faked photograph showing Eidson's ketchup-stained "body."

Agents treated the photograph with a special fluorescent powder — which would rub off and could be spotted under a black light. But McCrory said Davis only held the photograph by the edges and the test failed when Fort Worth police allowed Davis to wash his hands after his arrest.

Davis, 45, said he never saw the photograph. Hubbell also said he secreted a transmitter inside McCrory's car before the Aug. 20 meeting "for the personal safety of Mr. McCrory."

The transmitter, which would have beamed sound into an FBI receiver, malfunctioned. But the agent said it would have been useless, because the meeting took place in Davis' Cadillac.

Response to UAW cards awaited

WRITE TO THE WHITE HOUSE
WRITE TO THE CONGRESS!
WRITE TO THE SENATE!

United Auto Workers President Doug Fraser holds up a bag of supplies for the union's energy protest write-in while talking about the campaign during a Wednesday press conference in Detroit. UAW members around the nation laid down their tools for six minutes to sign postcards aimed at pressuring Congress to enact an energy policy. (AP Laserphoto)

DETROIT (AP) — Nearly five million postcards were signed by United Auto Workers union members in a unique UAW-sponsored demonstration against the lack of a national energy program, the union says. But the question remained whether the major automakers will carry out a promise to dock employees 85 cents for the time spent signing the postcards. "I refuse to believe they'll be that stupid," said United Auto Workers union President Douglas A. Fraser. The cards were signed Wednesday by more than a million members of the United Auto Workers union as part of "write-in" to congressmen, senators and President Carter. It appeared from reports around the country that many signings were scheduled just before or just after breaks, or even during breaks, to minimize disruption. That could give the companies room to say that no real work stoppage had occurred. The UAW estimated before its "down tools" write-in demonstration that each worker would spend about six minutes off the job. That would be 85 cents on the average, the union estimated, if employers docked the pay of workers taking part during work time. Fraser told reporters that "close to five million" cards had been signed for delivery by the union in Washington when Congress reconvenes next month.

If the figure reached five million, that would mean 1.25 million of the union's 1.5 million members had participated, since each worker was to sign four cards. "I'm tired of being ripped off by the oil companies, OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) and the lack of an energy program," the cards read. "When Congress returns, I want them to enact an effective energy program."

Only in Framingham, Mass., was any large-scale disruption noted. Some 1,500 day-shift workers walked off their jobs and set up pickets at a General Motors Corp. assembly plant building Buicks and Oldsmobiles after their 10 a.m. card-signing. They were joined by 1,500 more workers from the plant's night shift, who said they walked out in support of the wildcat walkout by the first shift.

Fraser and union Vice President Irving Bluestone sent the local a telegram calling the walkouts unauthorized and ordering the workers back.

GM's spokesman in Framingham, Paul Wetzel, said those who walked out would be docked four hour's wages — an average of about $45.

Fraser called the card-signing protest "symbolic in nature...as helpful to the auto industry as it is to us" and said the auto companies — with whom the UAW is currently negotiating new national contracts — are "short-sighted and petty."

Reporting of contributions to convention not required

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Contributions to the Republican National Conference meeting scheduled here in November are not subject to reporting requirements for campaign spending or lobbyists, Attorney General Mark White ruled Wednesday. White's legal opinion went to Gov. Bill Clements, who will host the conference's first Texas meeting.

Clements said his host committee plans to file voluntary reports of its funding sources and amounts. The Democratic attorney general said the GOP governors' meeting was similar to past gatherings of the Southern Governors' Conference. Contributions to those meetings were not subject to state law, he noted.

The significant difference is the obvious partisanship of the Republican group, he added.

"If the purpose of the conference is simply to discuss issues, and there is no intention to become involved in elections in Texas, then the (political funds reporting) act would not be applicable," White wrote.

The Texas campaign reporting law sets no limits on contributions.

Price of crude oil, not refiners, to blame for gas crunch

By BILL MODISSETT
Staff Writer

"My company happens to believe there's a lot of oil in this country that hasn't been found or tapped," — Lawrence Durland

Gasoline refiners aren't contributing to the current gasoline crunch in the United States, said Lawrence Durland, manager of the Amoco Refinery at Texas City.

But the price of crude oil is, he said, and about half of the oil refined now in the United States is foreign oil.

Durland was in Midland Wednesday for a luncheon meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, the Society of Independent Petroleum Earth Scientists and the Odessa and Central Basin chapters of the Texas Association of Business. The joint meeting was held in the ballroom at the Midland Hilton.

Durland, manager of the refinery since 1971, said, "The refining capacity has not been used in the last year or so."

The Amoco Refinery at Texas City is running at only 85 percent of capacity, he said.

But, said Durland, the fact that the refinery is not operating at full capacity can be attributed to the price of crude oil.

More gasoline could be manufactured, he said, if more crude oil was available "at the right price."

Durland also said he does not foresee more crude becoming available in the future. "All I see is an increase in the price," he said.

The refinery manager blasted regulations of the federal government placed on the oil industry, including refineries.

"My company happens to believe there's a lot of oil in this country that hasn't been found or tapped," he told those present for the meeting.

But, he said, the oil industry needs to be decontrolled to allow oil companies to put profits into exploration for more crude domestically or to develop alternate energy sources.

The United States needs to use conservation to stretch the supply of oil remaining in this country, he said, and it needs to use that oil for what it's best suited. Coal, solar energy, shale and other alternate energy sources must also be developed, he said.

Terminating the proposed windfall profits tax an "excise tax" which will, in effect, nationalize the oil industry, Durland noted that Amoco already pays 60 percent of its profits for taxes.

Currently, the U.S. exports none of its finished petroleum products, said Durland, and this country is competing with other nations for oil and gas.

The Amoco Refinery at Texas City covers two square miles and employs 1,800 people, Durland said. He noted that 55 percent of the products manufactured there is gasoline and of that percentage, 60 percent is unleaded gasoline.

Criticizing government regulations, Durland said, "The regulations have caused us nothing but problems. I wonder where we're going."

He also called for a return to the free-market system and praised the Texas Association of Business for helping to keep Texas a good state in which to do business.

L.W. Gray of Austin, president of the Texas Association of Business, spoke briefly, saying the statewide organization has succeeded at building a good business climate in Texas.

Gray, president of the organization since 1972, said the association works for the benefit of business and lobbies for legislation beneficial to business and against legislation harmful to business.

He urged those present to support the association and other associations that support the business community.

The Texas Association of Business is comprised of 37 chapters throughout the state and has more than 4,000 members statewide, he said.

Arabs push U.S. into corner on Palestinian state

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Arab opposition today apparently doomed an attempt by the United States to head off a Security Council vote on a resolution calling for creation of an independent Palestinian state.

The council was scheduled to meet this afternoon for debate on the resolution, and a vote was expected Friday. The United States was certain to veto it, fulfilling a commitment to Israel.

Because a veto would anger Saudi Arabia and other Arab suppliers of oil to the United States, Ambassador Andrew Young tried to get the council meeting postponed until after President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin meet in September. But the Palestine Liberation Organization and its Arab supporters refused to cooperate.

Young, president of the Security Council for August, then began lobbying to hold the debate but postpone the vote on the resolution indefinitely since it has no chance of getting past the American veto. But the Arabs apparently were determined to force the United States to kill it.

"I don't see the sense of holding a meeting without pushing the draft resolution to a vote," said the PLO's observer at the U.N., Zehdi Labib Terzi, who is chairman of Arab group at the U.N. this month.

Terzi said Young had not approached the Arabs yet about postponing the vote. But he said his group met Tuesday and "there was a general view that the matter should be finalized by Friday."

The 15-nation council was to hold private consultations this morning in preparation for a public meeting in the afternoon.

The Arab resolution, which Nigeria was to introduce as a member of both the council and the U.N. Committee on Palestinian Rights, in effect calls on Israel, without mentioning the Jewish nation by name, to enable the "Palestinian people ... to exercise its inalienable rights of self-determination, national independence and sovereignty in Palestine."

The measure would amend the council's Resolution 242 of 1967, which speaks only of a just solution to the Palestinian refugee question and has been the foundation for all Middle East peace negotiations since the 1967 war. Israel, which has vowed never to deal with the PLO because it is a terrorist organization dedicated to the destruction of Israel, insists that Resolution 242 remain unchanged.

In an effort to head off the resolution and also attract Palestinian support to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty, President Carter's Mideast envoy Robert Strauss last week sounded out Begin and Sadat on a compromise resolution affirming Palestinian "rights" without implying statehood. But Strauss said he found "a great deal of hesitation and concern on their parts with that alternative."

Strauss, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and National Security Assistant Zbigniew Brzezinski agreed at a meeting Tuesday that the compromise resolution should be abandoned. President Carter on his steamboat trip down the Mississippi said Wednesday he was accepting their recommendation to try to delay Council consideration of the resolution.

Later Wednesday, Young's deputy, Ambassador Donald F. McHenry, said if the meeting couldn't be called off, "the next best thing is to have people meet and explain their views and not go to the vote." But the Arabs didn't agree.

Both Strauss and Carter denied reports of discord among the president's senior advisers on Mideast policy.

Tower trumpeter trembles as he blows his horn

KRAKOW, Poland (AP) - Being the tower trumpeter of Krakow isn't all fanfare and glory, says Kazimir Pudelko.

It gets cold up there in the winter and you can't go down for a bowl of zurek. And if you make your own in the tower on a stormy night, there are waves in the soup pot.

Lately, he says, the problem has been bugs.

"They come from the pigeon feathers," says Pudelko, shuddering in his cramped quarters high in the 500-year-old fire tower. "And they were really bad."

An amiable 26-year-old father of two, Pudelko is one of six official trumpeters working in the old brick-and-stone tower 10 stories above Krakow's medieval market square.

Every hour on the hour, the trumpeter on duty pulls an iron handle to ring out the time on a large bell. Then he puts on a firefighter's hat, opens a small window over the square and plays the two-line "Marian Fanfare."

He closes the window smartly and marches to each of the three other corners of the tower, repeating the trumpet call at each one.

Then he yanks a lever to ring it again on a smaller bell.

All six trumpeters are music-school graduates, but they are also firefighters, keeping a centuries-old lookout for fires and other dangers.

It has been, at times, a hazardous job. The fanfare ends on a broken note in memory of a trumpeter hit by a Tartar arrow in the 13th century.

"We still look for fires," Pudelko says. "But they're harder to see now with all the city lights."

Pudelko, whose name in Polish means box, shares his 24-hour shift with a partner whose name means skylark.

They spend 24 hours in the tower on a shift, each working six hours at a time. The man who starts with the 7 a.m. fanfare finishes with the noon one that is broadcast throughout Poland, bells and all.

"Our microphone was made in 1907," he says, pointing to a large black funnel-like device. "It was supposed to go to a museum once, but when they brought the new one it didn't work as well as the old one."

The old microphone hangs over the trumpeters' humble room. Little more than a box with a door, the room barely holds their one cot, two chairs, tiny table and one heater — the only heater in the tower.

A television set sits at the foot of the bed, a hot plate on a beam at the head. Two heavy beams cross the middle of the room, forcing occupants to crouch but giving Pudelko a place to hang his trumpet on a nail.

"I had friends in the tower," he says of his decision to become a trumpeter. "There was no one for an opening so I decided to take it. I had to learn how to play the trumpet. I played the clarinet."

If he stays on the job for 40 years, his trumpet will be put in a city museum. But Pudelko says 25 years is the longest anyone has stayed at it in recent years.

Each day of work means climbing up a dark, 88-step spiral stone staircase, then clambering up four more stories of wooden stairs and ladders through the dusty, pigeon-littered tower interior.

Krakow's trumpeters made local newspapers this month when they complained about an outbreak of bugs. They said they were being bitten when they played and even when they tried to rest in their tiny room.

The bugs, officials say, are mites from an estimated 5,000 pigeons' nests in the tower.

City Hall has promised to de-bug the tower later this month, when the trumpeters will move for 48 hours to yet another lofty medieval post on the other side of the square.

After the de-bugging, even better things are promised back home at the fire tower. Among these: pigeon-proofing of the centuries-old structure, a new sound system so trumpeters can play inside without opening the windows, and more heaters.

"We're even supposed to get a shower," says Pudelko.

Four winners of coveted WTC awards announced

ABILENE — Four recipients of the coveted West Texas Chamber of Commerce Cultural Achievement Awards for 1979 have been announced by Lou Cooley of Borger, chairman of the WTCC Cultural Affairs Committee.

The awards ceremony will take place during WTCC's mid-year meeting at Amarillo on Oct. 11-12.

One award will be presented to Tumbleweed Smith (Bob Smith Lewis) of Big Spring, whose radio program, "The Sounds of Texas," has preserved the heritage of Texas on tape for posterity and been a source of daily entertainment.

The Carson County Square House Museum of Panhandle will be honored for its role in preserving and displaying the area's history since its establishment in 1967.

The Lubbock Arts Festival also will receive a Cultural Achievement Award.

For sharing her artistic impressions of West Texas with the public, an award will be presented to Mrs. Willie Reed Row of Fort Stockton. Mrs. Rowe specializes in etchings and has exhibited her work in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C.

Two travel along centuries-old paths

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Along dusty country roads, Mike Martel and Don Scott are searching for an America that has changed over the centuries, and for the scattered pockets of people and nature that resemble older times.

Martel, 28, and Scott, 21, are walking across America on a journey that will take them over 3,789 miles and a year of their lives.

In past centuries, vast stretches of America were explored by naturalists, solitary figures or small parties who journeyed across the landscape, capturing in journals and drawings the teeming life of the new land.

Inspired by these earlier explorers, whom they have often read in the past, Martel and Scott are following in their path to determine how the American landscape has changed since naturalists like John Audubon and John Muir first crossed it.

"It's something that hasn't been done in a long time," Martel said.

Starting from Maine in May, they wandered across northern New England before swinging on to the Appalachian Trail and striking down through the middle Atlantic states to West Virginia, where they recently spent a few days with a friend.

Following a path they spent a year mapping out, they plan to wind their way in and out of the Middle West into the South and on to the deserts of the Southwest before heading for California and the end of their journey.

Along the way they have met many people. In the hills of southern West Virginia they came across towns that have changed little since they were built during the great coal booms of the last century.

Martel remembered a 74-year-old woman who told them about the mountain lions she said still roam the hills behind her house. Later, they almost thought they heard one of the lions roaring, Martel said.

Each day on the road, they rise before dawn and walk across the countryside, studying the landscape as they pass, noting its sights and sounds, jotting down the details in notebooks and making sketches.

When they return home, Martel said he hopes to run the information through a computer to develop an environmental portrait of the United States that will help scientists chart how the land has altered.

They believe from what they have seen already that the landscape is changing, Martel said. They have seen red cardinals in Maine, painted turtles in Maryland and a marten in southern New York — animals thought to live well outside those regions, Martel said.

Two years and almost everything they have went into preparing for the trip. Supplies ranging from food to new clothing and boots were sent out ahead to supply dumps along their route. "We're putting all we've got into the trip. When I get back home I won't have anything," Martel said, laughing gently.

Other survivors include his wife, a daughter, a son, a sister and four grandchildren.

Cambodia's isolation cracking

NEW YORK (AP) — A crack has appeared in the thick insulation surrounding Cambodia, where millions of people are starving amid the disruption caused by years of war and political upheaval.

The first sign of a break in the isolation that began with a communist take-over of the country in 1975 came with a program to place food packages along the Thai border to be retrieved by at least some of the estimated 2.5 million Cambodians who face starvation.

And now western relief officials have revealed they've made two shipments of medicine to Cambodia, and they say they expect to be given permission soon for a major relief program for Cambodians.

Little has been said about relief efforts here because since Khmer Rouge guerrillas headed by Pol Pot defeated a U.S.-backed regime, the United States has been forbidden by law from aiding Cambodia.

Moreover, Pol Pot's regime spurned virtually all western efforts to aid his country, which was facing food shortages even before he came to power.

The sketchy reports that have come from Cambodia leave a picture of a country reduced to rubble. The Pol Pot government has been accused of cutting the country's population by at least three million through mass murder, uprooting city dwellers and sending them to rural work camps, and misappropriating the little available food.

Pol Pot himself was ousted by a Vietnamese-backed guerrilla movement last winter, but it is only recently that the new government has made overtures to international relief agencies.

"The country was slammed tight before, but now it seems to have opened up a bit," said Ed Kenny, a spokesman for the United Nations Children's Fund.

Officials from UNICEF and the International Committee of the Red Cross say two of their employees are just completing a second fact-finding tour in Cambodia at the invitation of the pro-Vietnamese government of Heng Samrin.

These visiting officials will draw up a proposal for a large scale relief effort and submit it to the Cambodian government for approval, the spokesmen said.

On each of the fact-finding tours, a plane load of medicine was delivered, the spokesmen said, with another plane expected to bring supplies next week.

And on Aug. 27, an airplane chartered by OXFAM, a private London-based relief agency, is scheduled to carry 22 tons of antibiotics and powdered milk to Cambodia's capital city, Phnom Penh, said Michael Scott, an OXFAM-America spokesman based in Boston.

Scott said a "small delegation" will accompany the flight and, working with the Ministry of Health, will remain to monitor the medicine's distribution.

"We're going in, we've been invited, and we hope to establish a relationship so we can give out more than emergency supplies," said Scott.

OXFAM is working with a committee of French doctors who received pleas for help from their former students, Cambodian doctors who survived the purge of intellectuals reportedly carried out under Pol Pot, Scott said.

The monitoring is the key to future relief efforts.

Midland man jailed in theft

Raymond Earl Bowers, 33, remained in Midland City Jail early today in lieu of $5,000 bond, police said.

Bower was charged Tuesday in connection with the Monday night theft of $900 of used batteries from Don's Metals, 3010 W. Front St., officials said.

He was arrested Tuesday afternoon, police incited.

Miss Texas-USA 1980 returns to Midland

By PATSY GORDON Lifestyle Writer

Barbara Buckley returned to her hometown Wednesday night after her triumph at the Miss Texas-USA Pageant in El Paso.

As she deplaned at Midland Regional Airport, on the arm of the ship's captain, she was greeted by friends and well-wishers to the tune of "The Eyes of Texas."

Miss Buckley was crowned Miss Texas-USA 1980 Monday night at the El Paso Civic Center Theater and now will begin preparation for the Miss USA Pageant slated in April in Mississippi.

A reception honored Barbara at the Buckley home, 2411 Haynes Ave., immediately after her arrival, where many more friends congratulated her on her success.

"It's just beginning to sink in," the 5-foot, 8-inch, 118-pound beauty said.

"I never heard my name called. I stood there and waited to hear my name called, but it never was," said Miss Buckley. Her name was not said because the emcee only names the first runnerup when it gets down to the last two finalists left.

Barbara, the youngest child of eight, explained that she was a contestant-at-large. Some girls, she said, are selected through local pageants.

"The Miss Texas-USA Pageant is not a beauty pageant," said Miss Texas. "There are nine judges because the sponsors want to screen the best representative for Texas. She must be a goodwill ambassador for the state and she must be proud of Texas."

Miss Texas feels very strongly about being and remaining Barbara Buckley at all times. "I need to feel comfortable and look like I want to look. I don't want to be a machine, a typical beauty queen. I will still be myself."

This desire to keep her own identity and the name Buckley began when she was nine years old.

Barbara readily admits she is no raving beauty, but adds that this is something she can gain later. "I want only to better myself. They (pageant officials) can make me beautiful later," said Barbara, who certainly has the pretty looks to go with a friendly and warm personality.

"I will gain lots of things from this experience," said Miss Buckley, who entered the pageant without any training or preparation of any kind to speak of since it was her first involvement in pageant work.

Her future plans are uncertain at the moment. She has not received her orientation from the pageant officials, but personal appearances in Hawaii and California were mentioned.

Concerning ERA, Miss Buckley is in favor of its ratification, mainly to gain equal pay for women. "I've always said women should be paid equally as men if they do the same work." But at the same time she said, "It makes me sick when women take jobs away from men who are breadwinners" when they don't perform comparably.

She also admitted she likes to be "soft and feminine" and "have men open doors for me."

Her brother Steve was watching the pageant in El Paso. "I didn't think she had a chance," he said. But his pride in her achievement shows through.

Her mother, Rita Buckley, works with the Midland Community Theatre. Barbara has a B.A. degree in drama and speech from Angelo State University, which helped her in the pageant. She was graduated from Midland High School, and attended Midland College and Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., before enrolling at ASU.

She has a male friend in San Angelo who is giving her support in her current endeavors. "He stayed in the background at the pageant," said Miss Texas. "He would never interfere with my career. He always thought I would go off and do something good."

It is her ambition to be a musical comedy actress.

The John L. Buckleys moved to Midland 30 years ago from Chicago with "five Yankees" and later had "three Texans," according to Mrs. Buckley.

Miss Texas gives her mother most of the credit for her current success. Rita Buckley, in turn, praises her daughter for working to help with expenses after her father died.

Her mother is her chaperone until she goes back to El Paso in a few days. She will be there a week being groomed for her year's reign.

Among the loot she captured after winning her title and crown from 89 other contestants was about $15,000 in clothes and accessories, a ring containing a diamond for each of the 12 months of her reign, a $3,000 appearance fee, the use of a Buick for a year and a furnished apartment in El Paso worth $3,000. While in California, she would like to see Disneyland because Walt Disney is among the men she most admires. "He made people happy," she explained.

"Dynamite," as she was nicknamed early in life because she used to "throw temper tantrums and 'blow up' her brother Steve's toys, is enjoying the 'best of both worlds.'"

Experts advise on ways to deal with inflation

ATLANTA (AP) — A Georgia State University finance professor says he's ready to throw out his textbooks because of "this incredible inflation," and a banker says the consumer "just can't protect himself" from the insidious, dollar-shrinking plague.

While the consumer may not be able to keep himself out of harm's way as inflation steadily bears down upon his earnings, the professor, the banker and other financial experts do have some suggestions to soften the blow.

In separate interviews the advisers suggested these four basic steps:

- Own a home.
- Build a readily available cash reserve for emergency use.
- Reduce or eliminate debts.
- Know your spending patterns.

"I THINK ONE ABSOLUTE thing for a consumer is that he ought to own his own home," said Ray E. Marchman Jr., head of the trust investment service for First National Bank of Atlanta.

"There is very little in terms of investments that have outpaced inflation. Stocks haven't done it. Bonds haven't done it, and certainly most savings vehicles have not... but home ownership has beaten inflation," Marchman said.

Even those renters without large amounts of cash should "at least buy something and get started," Marchman said, "because there is no question but that (home value) is going to keep going up."

Bill Ginn, vice president of Capital Analysts, Inc., in Atlanta, said those waiting for the recession to force housing prices down probably shouldn't hold their breath. During the 1974 recession, house prices in some ranges declined because contractors had overbuilt.

But this time "we are not overbuilt," Ginn said, so "don't think you're going to see a lot of bargains."

buying stage should build up a readily available cash reserve to tide them over in case of a major income reduction or job loss as a result of the recession, which Marchman said should be relatively mild in the Southeast.

"You ought to be able to live one year on your own, if you lost your job, without going on welfare," he said.

Ginn said the reserve should be between three months' income and a year's income.

Fred R. Tonney, executive director of the Consumer Credit Counseling Service, said his office advised consumers to build at least a 90-day reserve.

Certainly the money should be kept in some interest-bearing form, but "the most important thing is to keep it available," Tonney said, meaning it shouldn't be kept in stocks or bonds which could cause financial loss.

"I've seen it happen. You could whisper it at a wedding and the bride would turn around and say, 'do you retain water?'"

You could mention it in a bank where a robbery is in progress and the bandit would ask, "Did she have to give up booze?"

Trust me, those twelve little words could bring a war to a screeching halt.

I have never seen a nation so diet-conscious. I have also never seen Marilyn. She exists only in our minds. I visualize her stuffing pasta in her face, having dessert for breakfast, and setting the alarm to get up and eat throughout the night.

To date, I have a collection of 180 diets which I call Mythical Marilyn was supposed to have lost 1,440 pounds on...without feeling the least bit hungry. All are bizarre and surrounded with mystery. No one has an explanation as to why these diets work, but if you follow them to the letter, you will lose pounds.

There's the Tropicana diet, where you are restricted to four fruits: peach, cherries, avocados and grapes. You can eat as much of them as you want...but only the pits!

There's the Progressive Party Weight Loss diet where Marilyn starts out with an appetizer at one house, the salad course at the next house and another home for the main course. Then you pray your transmission goes before you can get to the house with dessert.

For the woman who has to cook every night for her family, "Marilyn" lost weight on the eat-what-sticks-to-the-sides-of-the-pan-skillet diet. She lost on the Pasta IV diet. She lost on the Hallelujah Junk Food diet and the Cheesecake

Women thin conscious

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Young women are trying too hard to become too thin, according to a University of Wisconsin physician and researcher.

Dr. Gerald Bargman said society's fascination with being slender has led to a dramatic increase in anorexia nervosa, a complicated syndrome that can lead to malnutrition and even death among young dieters.

"Many of the patients come in here resembling the World War II pictures of concentration camp victims," Bargman said from a new UW in-patient unit opened recently to handle increasing numbers of anorectic patients.

At the supermarket the other day I was talking to a friend when another woman who could have been her own partner in a bridge game interrupted our conversation and wanted to know on what aisle the bird seed was on. We told her and she thanked us and said, "Incidentally, my name is Marilyn Mealy."

I don't care if she drops twenty pounds in a week. I won't do it!

Miner's hard-working mule honored in 'House that Jack Built'

By JOE MCKNIGHT

BELLAIRE, Ohio (AP) — "This is the cat, that killed the rat, that ate the malt, that lay in the house that Jack built."

The House that Jack Built here was a mule-headed idea that had nothing to do with the ancient nursery rhyme.

But that doesn't deter travelers from connecting the two when they spot a Bellaire city limits sign recognizing a tribute Jacob Heatherington paid his mule.

Historians say the nursery rhyme appeared in print in 1755 but that its roots apparently trace to a 16th century Hebrew chant.

But back to Jake, an early-day miner who migrated to this Ohio River town with its roots in coal mining in 1832 from England, where he was born in 1814.

Heatherington first mined eight acres of land, laboring seven years to pay for it. He went on to buy 60 acres, which he mined for 30 years as his wealth and land holdings multiplied.

An 1880 history of Belmont County noted that Heatherington, then 66 and retired, owned 787 acres of farm, coal and timber land; 30 houses, a hotel, glass-house, steamboat and railroad stocks, 30 coal barges and other business interests.

But in his early years of mining, Jake wielded the sledge and pick at the rich seams of coal while his wife, Eliza, wheeled barrow loads of it to a river tipple for loading onto barges.

In due course, they had 10 children. This occupied Mrs. Heatherington, so Jake bought a mule to pull a coal wagon.

He and the mule became inseparable. Heatherington looked on Jack the mule as partly responsible for his growing wealth.

After the Civil War, Jake built a three-storied, many-gabled brick and stone mansion that in 1870 cost about $30,000 in reconstruction money.

Heatherington, convinced of Jack's role in his wealth, ordered a keystone for the front entry to the house that bore a full-face likeness of Jack.

Not entirely satisfied, Jake hauled Jack, then about 28 years old, out of retirement to see his achievement. Legend has it that Jake personally led Jack on a tour of all 16 rooms in the three-story house, plus the cellar.

Jack died in retirement at the age of 40 years and 10 days. He is buried in a corner of the Heatherington estate. The mansion gave way to a motel some years ago but Jack's grave marker remains, hidden by weeds in summer but bared to the public by winter elements.

The keystone seemed destined for oblivion but for a public library that was going up while the Heatherington mansion was coming down in 1958.

The keystone was chiseled out of the arch and mounted in the entry wall of the library.

Mondale bares details of administration plans to aid bus, rail transit

By MAUREEN SANTINI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale said Wednesday that the administration will commit $13 billion to capital investment in bus and rail transit in the next decade, courtesy of the "windfall profits tax" on oil companies.

Mondale, speaking at a commuter train station in Hoboken, N.J., before he returned to Washington, revealed details for the first time of President Carter's $16.5 billion transportation-energy conservation program. Details of the program also were released in Washington.

The program was one of several Carter announced in his energy speech to the nation on July 15.

The vice president said the program will triple total public investment in mass transit and raise public transportation capacity by 50 percent in the 1980s.

He said that $13 billion of the $16.5 billion program will go for rehabilitating and expanding current systems and completing new ones.

That includes $5 billion to expand bus fleets; $5.4 billion to expand and modernize rail systems; and $900 million to complete new rail systems.

The rest of the money breaks down this way:

—$2.5 billion to make more efficient use of cars, including increasing federal funds for carpooling and other energy saving projects.

—$800 million for long-term automotive research to produce "important, socially useful" discoveries.

—$200 million to assess fuel economy technology, including improved engines and studies of the market potential of more fuel efficient vehicles.

The total program is expected to save 250,000 barrels of oil a day in 1990 and perhaps double that amount, according to a fact sheet released by the vice president's office.

However, implementation of the program depends on congressional passage of the windfall profits tax as well as specific legislation to use the money in the way Mondale outlined.

The windfall profits tax has been passed by the House and is awaiting action by the Senate.

Gail Harrison, assistant to the vice president for domestic policy, said legislation will be sent to Congress the week of Sept. 10 with Carter's specific proposals for the program.

Carter wants a so-called "windfall profits" tax to accompany his program for gradually ending price controls on domestically produced oil. Technically, the tax would be on the extra revenue, not profits, from de-

Urethane industry group urges better safety standards in various public areas

By GAYLORD SHAW
The Los Angeles Times

A leading urethane industry group Tuesday urged the federal government to set special flammability standards for upholstery and bedding used in hospitals and prisons, places of public assembly and mass transportation.

The decision by the Urethane Division of the Society of the Plastics Industry Inc. to seek more stringent rules governing the use of flexible polyurethane foam in high fire risk areas was announced by the trade association's headquarters in New York.

At present, no special standards cover such uses of the soft, flexible foam, which in recent years has taken over a major share of the market for cushioning material in bedding, upholstered furniture, carpet padding and car, bus, airplane and subway seats.

In a series of articles earlier this year, the Los Angeles Times disclosed that flammability problems of urethane, which in some formulations burns hotter than wood and twice as fast, generating dense smoke and toxic gases, had been known for years by the industry and the government but that little had been done to cope with the hazard, even though the plastic figured in hundreds of fire deaths annually.

The trade association's announcement that it would "encourage appropriate industry and government groups" to develop new standards came less than three weeks after a major urethane manufacturer, the CPR Division of The Upjohn Co., said that in the future all of the commercial urethane foam it sells would meet a California state requirement that it resist ignition from an open flame.

California is one of only three states with flammability standards for home furnishings. Dr. Steven Assony, manager of technical services for the manufacturer, said the initiative by the Southern California-based firm was "partly altruistic and partly good business."

"We don't want to see consumers burning up" in fires involving urethane, he said in a telephone interview, noting that the firm is also concerned about lawsuits stemming from such fires.

Assony said the company's decision to restrict its production to the more expensive, fire retardant foam could cost it 25 percent of its business. But there are indications that other urethane firms may follow suit.

The subject was discussed at a recent meeting of the Bureau of Urethane Information, composed of representatives of all Southern California urethane foam producers and suppliers. Although no consensus was reached at the meeting, bureau spokesman Tom Kelly said the industry is intent upon reducing the flammability hazards of urethane.

"Our philosophy is to go on the offensive and clean up our own act from within," Kelly said in a telephone interview. "We want to be a responsible industry."

In New York, Gene McLoughlin, spokesman for the Society of the Plastics Industry, said that members of the trade association had been working for years to improve the safety of their products, but that The Times' series had spurred development of a position paper on the combustibility of flexible urethane foams.

That position paper, adopted in June and discussed last month with the staff of the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission, in effect acknowledges that current federal standards are inadequate for high risk areas.

The Urethane Division of the plastics association said that the current federal requirement that mattresses resist ignition from a cigarette is adequate for residential uses but that standards for mattresses and furnishings used in institutional buildings such as hospitals and nursing homes "should take into account the possibility of accidental open flame ignition."

In addition, it said, mattresses and furnishings in jails, prisons and penitentiaries should take into account the possibility of arson, and standards for places of public assembly — such as night clubs and theaters — "should be more demanding than standards for residential use."

As The Times disclosed earlier, the federal Bureau of Prisons has removed all urethane mattresses from its facilities, but the federal agency that regulates hospitals and nursing homes has not taken similar action.

The Times articles, plus last January's fatal San Francisco subway fire, prompted a move by the U.S. Department of Transportation toward tougher regulations on the use of urethane in mass transportation vehicles.

The position paper enclosed that concept, saying "performance standards or guidelines for materials used in mass transportation should take into account that large numbers of people may be confined in a relatively small area with limited exits, requiring measures to permit additional time for evacuation, and that vandalism may be involved."

School lunch costs to go up 10 cents

Despite a 10-cent price hike, school lunches still may be the biggest bargain in town.

Also, Midland students will be able to eat breakfast in all school cafeterias again this year.

Lunch prices, according to Vivian Busley, director of food services for the district, will be 65 cents for elementary students and 70 cents for secondary students. Both secondary and elementary students can buy breakfast for 35 cents.

The unit lunch price includes a meat, two vegetables or salads or one vegetable and a salad, bread and butter, dessert and milk.

Secondary students will have a choice of drinks and may purchase a variety of desserts ranging from cookies at 10 cents to a 30-cent piece of pie.

Breakfasts will consist of a half cup of fruit or juice, a serving of bread, cereal or equivalent and a half-pint of milk. Adults may have coffee.

A la carte prices for adults and secondary students include hamburgers at 70 cents, hot dogs and burritos at 60 cents, soup for 35 cents and salads at 35 and 45 cents.

Adults and secondary students may purchase any part of the lunch they desire.

They may qualify for the unit lunch price by choosing three or more items from the lunch pattern. Dessert and other choices will be charged at a la carte prices, Mrs. Busley said.

Adams to join law firm

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Transportation Secretary Brock Adams will become a partner in the law firm of Honger, Garvey & Schubert, starting about Sept. 15, the firm said today.

The law firm has offices here and in Seattle, the city Adams represented in Congress for 12 years before President Carter named him to head the Transportation Department in 1977.

Alan Butchman, who was deputy DOT secretary under Adams, also will join the law firm. Adams quit his Cabinet post last month after the White House had demanded that he fire Butchman.

Honger, Garvey & Schubert specializes in international law, but it also is involved in general commercial law.

Adams has stayed on at DOT as a consultant, pending Senate confirmation of the man Carter appointed as his successor, Portland, Ore., Mayor Neil Goldschmidt.

Adams was a lawyer with another Seattle law firm before he ran for Congress.

Panel convinced ignored signals caused TMI woes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential panel is winding up its public hearings into the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident with members convinced there were numerous ignored signals that might have averted the accident.

President Carter has told the 12-member commission to produce a report on the events at Three Mile Island by Oct. 25. The findings are expected to have wide-ranging impact on the future of nuclear power.

Top staff officials of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission were scheduled to testify today at the panel's last public hearing, with the questioning expected to concentrate on a recent NRC report on the Three Mile Island accident.

Testimony Wednesday focused on what presidential commission chairman John G. Kemeny called "clear signals" to federal regulators and the nuclear industry that some mechanical and operational problems at nuclear power plants needed to be corrected.

Those same problems later emerged during the early hours of March 28 when cooling water was lost from the Three Mile Island reactor No. 2 near Harrisburg, Pa., threatening a meltdown of the reactor core.

Commission investigators asked Wednesday about three separate events which, they claimed, should have warned the nuclear industry — and in two cases the NRC — of problems later evident at Three Mile Island:

—An NRC staff engineer tried in vain to get his superior to shut down the Davis-Besse nuclear plant in Ohio in late 1978 and early 1979 because of problems he noticed during an incident at the plant about a year earlier when operators prematurely shut off an emergency cooling pump.

—Jesse Ebersole, a nuclear engineer and adviser to the NRC, tried unsuccessfully in early 1978 to initiate a NRC staff examination of a study by Carl Michaelson, an engineer at the Tennessee Valley Authority. The study predicted a partial sequence of events which eventually occurred at Three Mile Island.

—A 1974 incident at an American-designed nuclear power plant in Switzerland had a number of similarities to the Three Mile Island accident, but was quickly brought under control by plant operators. Neither the Swiss government nor the plant's designer, Westinghouse, were obligated to tell the NRC about the incident and neither did until after Three Mile Island.

Kemeny told reporters he was disturbed that none of the signals ever "seemed to work its way out of the system." Another commissioner, Harry McPherson, said lack of action on such signals showed clear management problems within the NRC and the industry.

"In a radio factory they (the management problems) wouldn't matter except in profits, but in this regulatory process (and) in this industry they do matter," McPherson said.

James S. Creswell, the NRC engineer whose efforts to get the Davis-Besse plant closed were rebuffed, said his superiors told him he was spending too much time on the subject.

Asked to explain his problems, Creswell told the panel there was "a certain philosophy about safety — a certain mindset — that these accidents couldn't happen. I happened to think they were serious."

Creswell said some members of the NRC staff were concerned not only about safety but also economic matters such as the ramifications of a plant being shut down.

At a news conference, Kemeny said he has no objections to economic matters being considered to some degree but added: "The fundamental question for me is, has the NRC drawn the line at the right place?"

Meanwhile Wednesday, the NRC said it has decided to lift a three-month suspension on the processing of applications for nuclear plant construction and operating permits. The commission had ordered the halt on May 21 in the wake of the Three Mile Island accident.

And in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania officials said they are seeking a $50,000 federal grant to finance a publicity campaign designed to lure tourists back to the state with assurances that no health hazards await them.

Pennsylvania tourism suffering; TMI accident gets the blame

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania officials are seeking a $50,000 federal grant for an "all clear" campaign to convince tourists the air is clean and the water clear in the state that is host to the Three Mile Island nuclear plant.

The March 28 accident at Three Mile Island, the worst in the nation's commercial nuclear history, was only the latest in a series of calamities to befall the state's $5 billion tourist industry — but it is coming in for a lion's share of the blame. "Travel and tourism receipts in Pennsylvania are down 25 to 30 percent. I think it's fair to attribute a third of that to TMI," San Beiter, assistant director of the state Commerce Department's travel bureau, told a House select committee investigating the accident.

"In the 30-day period following the incident, a very small statistical sampling of TMI impact-area businesses reported nearly $2 million in sales losses directly attributable to the TMI event, and great fear of lasting side effects," Beiter said Wednesday, adding that Pennsylvania's tourist industry normally employs 180,000 people and generates $5 billion in annual revenue.

James Bartlett, head of the Pennsylvania Dutch Visitor's Bureau, told the committee the tourist industry in Lancaster County, which borders the river where the plant is located, has lost $150 million this year. He attributed $30 million of the losses to Three Mile Island.

Pennsylvania tourism has had many setbacks in recent years — there were floods in the early 1970s, then Legionnaires' disease struck Philadelphia in the midst of the Bicentennial.

Pennsylvania's image took another beating when it got a reputation for official corruption across the state and for alleged police brutality in Philadelphia.

Finally, as the state's Amish were coming down with case after case of polio — and just before motorists ran out of gasoline — Three Mile Island's reactor nearly overheated itself into a disaster.

Beiter said a survey of families in six states showed that 98 percent knew about the nuclear accident in April, and 2 percent said they would not visit Pennsylvania because of it. He said there were widespread cancellations of motel reservations, hotel conventions, bus tours and other activities.

Iran receives nuclear weapon help from LA laser company

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Iran may have gained a key part of the technology needed for nuclear weapons production from a small Los Angeles laser manufacturing firm that received financing from the government of the now-deposed shah, a scientist says.

The federal government approved the sale, though officials at the Department of Energy contend the process of enriching uranium with laser beams, the system purchased by Iran, is faulty and will not produce the promised results, according to James Kratz, chief of DOE's nuclear export branch.

However, Dr. Jeffrey Eerkens, who holds the patent on the system, said Wednesday the DOE evaluation at the government's Los Alamos nuclear laboratory was careless and conducted with second-hand information.

"They never really tried to duplicate my tests," he said. "And when they did their work, I never had an opportunity to directly speak with the people at Los Alamos.

"The proof of the pudding is that I did get enrichment when I used this process — and that the equipment I used at the time is now considered extremely primitive."

Eerkens said the lasers sold to Iran were not specifically meant for enriching uranium, although the equipment provided could be used for that process. He said they were intended for research and experimentation.

The lasers and associated equipment, which cost a reported $2 million, arrived in Tehran last October, but the overthrow of the shah combined with the absence of technical assistance are likely to preclude their use for some time, The Los Angeles Times reported Wednesday.

American arms control officials told the newspaper the revolutionary government had expressed no interest in nuclear weapons and had all but terminated the shah's nuclear power construction program.

Eerkens, an applied physicist, founded Lischem Inc. in 1977. In December 1977, the Iranian nuclear research center in Tehran provided a letter of credit through the Bank of Iran to obtain $600,000 in loans for the firm, he said.

Lischem then built and exported to Tehran in the fall of 1978 four sophisticated gas lasers Eerkens developed.

NRC resumes processing of nuke licenses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has decided to resume processing licenses for nuclear power plants, ending a three-month suspension ordered after the Three Mile Island accident.

Director Harold R. Denton of the NRC's reactor regulation office has told the commission he is ready to resume consideration of applications, officials said Wednesday.

The commission ordered a halt in processing applications for construction and operating permits on May 21.

The resumption is "based on a report from the task force at Three Mile Island and on recommendations on various changes involving licenses and emergency preparedness plans," said NRC spokesman Frank Ingram.

Deputy Comptroller Ralph Wayne resigns

By SUSAN STOLER

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Chief Deputy Comptroller Ralph Wayne, whose office files were seized last year during an investigation by the Travis County grand jury, has resigned, Comptroller Bob Bullock said Wednesday.

Wayne, 45, said recurring stomach problems forced him to leave the office's No. 2 post effective Sept. 15. Wayne, chief deputy comptroller since April 1977, recently was a patient at M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston.

The grand jury investigated accusations by former comptroller employees that Wayne's secretary typed correspondence, signed checks and did other work for Wayne's private business on state time.

Grand jurors studied payroll and typewriter inventory records from Wayne's office, including the secretary's typewriter and 300 pages of duplicate correspondence files.

The grand jury did not return indictments against Wayne or his staff.

Wayne, a broadcast executive and former Plainview legislator, will be succeeded by Robert Spellings, director of the comptroller's budget and financial management division and one-time top aide to former Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes.

Harmon Lisnow, associate deputy comptroller for field operations, was named deputy comptroller to work with Spellings.

"When I took this job I made arrangements to stay a year, but I've been so caught up in the goals of the office that I stayed twice as long," Wayne said in a statement released by Bullock.

"When state government loses Ralph Wayne it loses a valuable, professional manager — but I value his personal well-being even more," Bullock said.

Wayne owns four AM radio stations in Texas, KKYR, Marshall; KKYN, Plainview; KYXX, Odessa and KXYL, Brownwood.

Spellings, 37, was in private law practice before joining the comptroller's office in August 1978. Lisnow, 38, came to the comptroller's office in March 1975.

By RICK HAMPSON

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — The Berkshire Hills are alive with more than just the sound of music this summer at Tanglewood's celebrated Berkshire Music Festival.

As usual, the Boston Symphony Orchestra has given open-air performances of Beethoven, Mahler and other composers for thousands of admirers amid the high pines and sprawling lawns of its 19th Century estate.

But there's trouble in this classical music-lover's paradise. The orchestra headed off on a European tour this week after a season of controversy that exposed some underlying commercial and artistic conflicts facing the BSO and other American symphony orchestras.

The festival, meantime, continues through the week, with performances by the New York Philharmonic. Tanglewood's hot summer began with Boston Globe reviewer Richard Dyer's assertion that "most of the schedule looks routine ... the repertory lacks both excitement and system, and some of the soloists appear ill-matched to their assignments."

"The BSO seems to have no higher aim than supplying background music for lakes, lawns, trees and the spreading summer sky," he concluded.

Then the critical chorus led by Dyer was augmented by Gunther Schuller, director of Tanglewood's music school, who gave a speech criticizing "absentee musical directors" and the Madison Avenue-style promotion of orchestras.

It appeared he was talking about the BSO, because Seiji Ozawa, its superstar musical director, was in Tokyo conducting opera when the Tanglewood season began. He did not arrive for several more weeks and conducted only about a third of the programs.

Last week, Ozawa sat cross-legged on a sofa in his modern home on a hillside near Tanglewood and talked about charges that his globetrotting and the BSO's increased concern with the bottom line were causing an artistic malaise.

"My work is the symphony and my home is in Boston," insisted Ozawa, 43, whose advance toward middle age is camouflaged by his long hair, enthusiastic smile and an athletic build covered with a wardrobe running toward T-shirts, sneakers and parkas.

"I agree conductor and orchestra should be together. But I must have experience conducting opera. If I don't know more operas before I die, I feel very sorry when I die," he explained in his own fractured style of English.

"It makes me a better conductor for symphony," he added.

He denied that Tanglewood's program is chosen with the box office in mind. "When I make the program, I don't think about money. I should not be afraid of small audience. If great orchestra like BSO is afraid, then what about the others?"

"But," he admitted, "someone has to be there to listen. You can't have an empty hall."

Despite its controversial season, Tanglewood still is considered one of the best festivals in the nation. But it is going through an identity crisis brought on by the BSO's inevitable change of life.

Until recently the BSO's financial philosophy resembled that of its founder, Henry Higginson, who simply covered a deficit at year's end by reaching into his own pocket. But its directors finally decided the orchestra should be run like a $14 million-a-year business and hired General Manager Thomas Morris to do so.

The goal has been increased public support, and promotions director Peter Gelb has aggressively sold Tanglewood and the BSO. Ozawa now grants reporters interviews, newspaper ads quote favorable reviews and New Yorkers and Bostonians are urged to buy the gasoline to visit "one of America's pre-eminent symphonic festivals."

But this campaign, which boasts of "an illustrious array of programs, conductors and soloists," has offended critics who feel promotional style has come to count more than artistic substance.

Dyer, an early critic of the summer lineup, wrote that if BSO managers "really believe the 'illustrious array' rubric, they shouldn't be where they are; if they don't, well, you know what that makes them."

Motorcycle safety course scheduled to start Friday at Midland College

A motorcycle safety course starts Friday at Midland College designed to help persons who have acquired a motorcycle or moped in recent months.

"With the soaring cost of gasoline, both young people and older people have started turning to cycles for transportation," noted Steve Becker, traffic safety director at Midland College.

"But statistics show many new riders have accidents, particularly within the first six months of ownership. Our course will teach them how to operate their cycles safely."

Becker also noted the last session of the Texas Legislature passed a law, effective Jan. 1, 1981, which will require all persons 18 years of age or younger to pass a Motorcycle Safety Course before applying for a motorcycle operator's license.

During the past two weeks, MC trained five motorcycle safety instructors during an intensive 50-hour course. These instructors will teach the safety courses during the coming months.

Fee for the course is $15 for adults and $10 for students. Subsequent courses will cost $25 for adults and $20 for students.

The course is limited to 20 persons and will run from 5:45 to 9 p.m. Friday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Anyone interested in enrolling or obtaining more information about the course should call Steve Becker at 684-7851, extension 124.

Former Houston policeman prison-bound to serve Lord

HOUSTON (AP) — There was a Houston narcotics officer who took great pride in being known as a tough man, a bad buy to the peddlers and users of drugs.

Now, B. Dwayne Jackson is heading to the same place he sent many of the drug dealers—prison.

He believes the seven-year federal sentence for conspiracy to violate civil rights will be "a special assignment for the Lord. I will have the privilege of learning firsthand from the other side. I will learn something special you can't learn in school."

Jackson, 39, is now an ordained Baptist minister and looks upon his conviction as another learning experience.

"If this hadn't taken place, I'd still be doing all those old things — neglecting my family, partying a lot, things people get involved with in the night life. It took the indictment and conviction for me to recognize I was doing the wrong things."

Jackson, along with five other police officers, were convicted in 1976 of violating the rights of two Michigan men. The former officers were charged with brutalizing the men, stealing more than $9,000 from them and using illegal wiretaps to get evidence.

The convictions were appealed, and during that time Jackson became a janitor at the Spring Baptist Church.

County 4-H Horse Club names playday winners

Simone Waibel, Mackey Moonen, Missy Larremore and Raychel Lynch were judged all-around horsemen in their respective age divisions in the Midland County 4-H Horse Club's playday last weekend in the 4-H Arena here.

Miss Waibel was all-around rider in the 8-and-under division; Moonen, 9-12; Miss Larremore, 13-15, and Miss Lynch, 16-18.

First-place winners in each event and age group follows:

—Western Pleasure: Michelle Bryant, 8 and under; Moonen, 9-12; Miss Larremore, 13-15; Miss Lynch, 16-18.

Santa Fe opera capable of extraordinary things

By Roger Southall
Staff Writer

SANTA FE, N.M. — The Santa Fe Opera is capable of extraordinary things, no doubt about it. Proof is the SFO's 23rd summer season, now in its final days, which has marked up some really splendid accomplishments in the season repertory. Chief among those accomplishments was the SFO's extraordinarily fine production of Alban Berg's intensely dramatic "Lulu," widely regarded as one of the masterpieces of 20th Century opera.

JUST AS EXTRAORDINARY, in its way, has been the SFO's new production of Mozart's "The Magic Flute" which, despite some gimmickry and an over-reliance on "cuteness," nevertheless was colorfully staged and beautifully sung. So different was it from previous "Flute" productions I have seen and heard that it amounted almost to a new opera for me.

Of the SFO's other season offerings, Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor" emerged as one of the top productions of the season, offering fine sets and costumes and some splendid singing by rising young soprano Ashley Putnam (in the title role) and several other pivotal cast members.

The SFO's repeat of the 1976 and 1978 production of Richard Strauss' "Salome" was as florid and tasteless as in the two earlier seasons. Even so, I cannot fault the fine singing of several of the principals, including British soprano Josephine Barstow as Princess Salome and bass-baritone Arthur Thompson as Jokanaan.

Alban Berg's "Lulu" has been given its first full-length performances in the U.S. here this summer.

death in the mid-1930s, and for years the work was presented in truncated form in the world's opera houses because Berg's widow would not permit the third act to be completed and performed. Finally, after her death several years ago, the third act score was completed by another composer, and the complete opera was ready for presentation.

The Paris Opera won the rights for the world premiere production of the complete opera and gave the premiere performances last February, with Pierre Boulez conducting. The Santa Fe Opera, which had presented the American premiere of the incomplete "Lulu" in 1963, received the right to give the American premiere of the finished opera this summer.

Colin Graham staged the Santa Fe version with clarity and considerable brilliance so that the opera, based on German author Frank Wedekind's stories "Erdgeist" and "Pandora's Box," is splendidly alive, pungently full of dramatic irony and biting humor, not to mention dark tragedy.

Gifted young American conductor Michael Tilson Thomas guides the orchestra firmly and expertly through the maze of Berg's 12-tone score, a score that reveals in fullest measure the power, scope and genius of Berg as a composer. Often it is not "pretty" music, or melodic, but it is compelling and dramatic music that supports, enhances the inevitability of the story.

YOUNG SOPRANO Nancy Shade has had the role of Lulu at Santa Fe this summer and she has done a splendid job in this difficult assignment. As the mysterious Lulu—heartless, amoral, selfish and willful—she provides a fine characterization, as much to the ear as to the eye.

Baritone William Dooley provides an excellent characterization as Dr. Schon, Lulu's protector and later her husband and victim. Tenor Barry Busse is very good in his role as the composer Alwa, also one of the husbands of Lulu. Bass-baritone Andrew Foldi is good as the old man, Schigolch, purportedly the father of Lulu, and tenor Leo Goeke is entirely satisfactory as the painter, still another of Lulu's husbands.

Other fine characterizations are presented by Katherine Ciesinski as the Countess Geschwitz, tenor Joseph Frank as the Prince, baritone Lenus Carlson as the animal trainer in the opera prologue and as the acrobat, mezzo-soprano Claudia Catania as the theatrical dresser and the student. Baritone William Dooley, earlier seen as Dr. Schon, returns to the stage in the third act as Jack the Ripper who murders Lulu, just as Lulu had murdered Dr. Schon.

Among supporting singers in the production is Midlander Loretta Bybee-Riek.

MRS. RIEK, WHO TAUGHT voice at Midland College this past year, is a first-year apprentice singer at Santa Fe this summer. She also has a small part in the SFO's fifth production of the current season, Offenbach's "La Grande-Duchesse de Gerolstein" which opened the SFO season on June 30 and will close the season this coming weekend.

Designer John Conklin's sets for "Lulu" are splendid, especially the Art Nouveau set of Lulu's and the artist's conservatory, in the first act; the living room of Lulu and Dr. Schon in the second act, and the Paris flat of Lulu and the composer Alwa in the third act.

The final set in the third act, a garret in a London slum where Lulu ultimately meets her death, is darkly, dramatically shabby.

CONKLIN'S COSTUMES also are excellent, particularly the gowns and robes worn by Lulu in the various scenes within the three acts. The costumes and the sets both strongly suggest the early years of the 20th Century, possibly the years immediately after World War I, although the libretto is indefinite as to time.

The other memorable new production at Santa Fe this summer, Mozart's "The Magic Flute," has a fine cast headed by tenor David Kuebler as Tamino, baritone Stephen Dickson as Papageno, bass Gwynne Howell as the high priest Sorastro.

Sopranos Isobel Buchanan and Ellen Shade shared the role of the princess Pamina (Buchanan first and then Shade in later performances in the season), and Sharon Bennett was the Queen of the Night. Miss Bennett was splendid in the famous Queen of the Night aria, one of the most difficult vocal works for a singer in the entire operatic literature.

TOTALLY ENGAGING as the "bird girl," Papagena, was soprano Sunny Joy Langton. Miss Langton was a member of the cast of the Texas Opera Theater's "Cosi Fan Tutte" when a performance was presented in Midland this past spring. She sings regularly with Texas Opera Theater and with the Houston Grand Opera.

Designer Sam Kirkpatrick's Persian sets and costumes added to the freshness and ambience of this wholly unusual production of "The Magic Flute."

Bass-baritone William Dooley and soprano Nancy Shade enact one of many dramatic scenes in the Santa Fe Opera's production of "Lulu." The work by Alban Berg is widely regarded as one of the masterpieces of 20th Century opera. The complete, three-act version of the opera had its American premiere performances this summer at Santa Fe.

Indians get some land back, but feel it's too little too late

CHARLESTOWN, R.I. (AP) — The Narragansett Indians have won some of the land their ancestors lost a century ago, but many in the tribe feel it's too little too late.

The tribe will receive 1,800 acres here this fall in the first Indian land claim settlement on the Eastern seaboard. Half is private land and the other 900 acres will be donated by the state.

The Narragansetts filed suit in U.S. District Court in Providence in 1975 for 3,500 acres under the Indian Non-Intercourse Act of 1790, an act requiring Congress to approve all sales of Indian lands.

In February 1978, the tribe, the state and the town of Charlestown reached an out-of-court settlement, hailed by many as the model for other states to follow in Indian land claims.

Congress and the state General Assembly ratified the agreement and the tribe will begin buying 900 acres of private land this October, with $3.5 million in federal funds. The agreement says the state land will be kept in its natural state. About 200 acres will be available for development.

"The land reaffirms the identity of the tribe," says Eric Thomas, the tribal coordinator. "It helps substantiate the fact that there are still Indians."

Yet, he expresses some resentment felt by the Narragansetts, too. "After 300 years of fighting, you expect there to be no animosity?" he says.

Patricia Morgan, Charlestown Town Council president, called the settlement "generous" for the Indians, but said the tribe had some legitimate concerns.

"I can understand their resentment," she says. "They do have some complaints which I hope we can work out."

The settlement calls for state access to ponds in the land claim, and some Indians fear they will not have the fishing rights they deserve, Mrs. Morgan says.

Some Indians have complained that the state corporation, rather than the tribe itself, will own the land. William G. Brody, the assistant attorney general who represented the state in the claim, says it would be impractical to turn the land over to the tribe, which has some 800 members.

"This is not 1880. This is 1980. We're dealing with a whole different society," Brody says. He says everyone in the state, not only the Indians, has an interest in making sure the land is preserved.

Brody adds that tribes in the West have large reservations, but Rhode Island is so small it could not afford to give up that much land.

The rocky, heavily wooded land is two-and-a-half miles from shore along a two-lane state highway in southern Rhode Island. Much of the land is swamp or wetland. Some is suitable for agriculture.

New coordinator of special education to be Ruby Morris

Ruby Morris

Ruby Morris has been appointed coordinator of special education for the Midland public schools, according to Dr. James H. Mailey, schools superintendent.

Mrs. Morris replaces Hubert C. Schmidt who is now director of federal programs.

Certified in special education supervision and educational administration, Mrs. Morris is entering her 12th year with MISD. She has served as both a first and third grade teacher as well as an instructor of the elementary mental retardation and Title I reading programs.

Mrs. Morris received her bachelor's and master's degrees from Texas Tech University. She was awarded her Ph.D. in December 1978 from East Texas State University in Commerce.

Mrs. Morris serves on the board of the Human Relations Council, is a member of the Greater Ideal Baptist Church and is district president of the Stokes Parker District of Federated Womens and Girls Clubs.

"School is for children," Mrs. Morris said. "And I will do everything I can to help each child develop to his or her maximum potential, academically and socially."

"In an attempt to add to an already good special education program," she noted, "I will seek to establish good rapport with the parents, who are so important to the program as well as strive to build a strong communication link with the community."

Flavor-Intensified Triumph.

Surprising satisfaction at only 3 mg. tar!

Triumph is one of the lowest tar cigarettes you can smoke. Yet Triumph gives you taste that's good enough to stay with. Taste at only 3 mg. tar!

How Triumph did it.

The crux of it: Instead of searching for some yet unimagined answer, Lorillard scientists took a more sensible tack. Why not, they said, take everything we've learned about cigarettes, and push that technology even further.

Intensifying flavor.

We found that combining two types of filter fiber produces the best combination of taste and draw. That tiny "vents" in the filter-rim smooth the taste. That lower-leaf tobaccos tend to be lower in tar. In short, everything our tobacco scientists could find that might intensify flavor at only 3 mg. tar, was built into Triumph.

Even the draw is a surprise.

With Triumph, the smoke comes through abundantly. The taste reaches you smoothly. Effortlessly. You don't have to pull—you just puff on Triumph.

Taste good enough to stay with.

What it all comes down to is this: Triumph, at only 3 mg. tar, gives you a taste so good, we believe you'll never go back to your old cigarette.

Nightmare still haunts Cougars' Bill Yeoman

HOUSTON (AP) — Bill Yeoman still hasn't looked at the film and he won't show it to his team.

And he drives Houston's crowded freeways thinking about what he could have done differently in the most agonizing 15 minutes of his collegiate coaching career.

"I'm still distressed," Yeoman told the writers on the Southwest Conference press tour. "I keep thinking about what else I could have tried. I've reached about 6,000 different things now."

Yeoman was speaking, of course, about Notre Dame's 23-point explosion in the final quarter of the Cotton Bowl game New Year's Day that turned a budding rout into a 35-34 Notre Dame victory over the University of Houston on a bitter cold day.

The Fighting Irish scored their winning touchdown after Yeoman decided against punting late in the game from deep in his own territory and went for it on fourth and one. Notre Dame stopped the play and then won the game with time running out.

"We could have taken a safety — there are all kinds of things we could have done," said Yeoman.

But he said his team has learned a lesson.

"You've got to learn from something like that," said Yeoman. "I mean we had 10 minutes to go and we had killed 'em. This should be a sobering memory, if we are ever in that position again, should they decide to relax."

Houston players were visiting with fans in the stands and a few band members had wandered onto the sidelines to issue premature congratulations when the score stood 34-12.

"I think we realize now you've got to finish the contest before you celebrate," said Yeoman. "That you've got to pay attention to your business before you take a vacation."

Yeoman has told team: "You don't get many opportunities like that in life — so don't blow 'em when you get 'em."

There is a hard look among the Cougar footballers in workouts, the sting of the incredible Notre Dame comeback still a nettlesome force.

"I think about it all the time," said All-SWC linebacker David Hodge.

"I went into that game thinking Notre Dame had a bunch of invincible studs and found out we were more capable than they were," said offensive lineman Dennis Greenwalt. "Then we had it taken away from us because we only played three quarters. If we learned anything it's that you have to play four quarters. I mean Notre Dame had lost it then they won it."

Defensive tackle Hosea Taylor said, "This team right now is the best I've ever played on. I want to go back to Dallas and play Notre Dame again."

Yeoman feels he has an excellent team to defend his SWC title if quarterback Delrick Brown can hit his stride. At any rate, Yeoman said, it will be a dogfight.

"Very severe, that's what this race is going to be," said Yeoman. "There are seven teams who can take a run at it and I don't mean anything against Texas Christian and Rice by leaving them out. They just don't have a lot of depth."

Yeoman said he was aware most writers were picking Texas.

"That doesn't bother me," said Yeoman. "Let's see what it's like in November."

Montreal pitcher Steve Rogers reflects for a moment, calls for a new ball and looks to the dugout for some advice after giving up a two-run homer to Cincinnati's George Foster Wednesday. The Expos lost again to the Reds and Rogers left in the second inning. (AP Laserphoto)

Richard powers Astros

By The Associated Press

J.R. Richard not only throws flames, he puts out fires.

One of baseball's hardest throwers, the Houston Astros' right-hander was sailing into the ninth inning against the New York Mets Wednesday with a five-hit shutout.

Then he gave up two hits and a run, and Houston Manager Bill Virdon started thinking about his bullpen. But he didn't bring anyone in, because he figured he didn't have anyone better for the immediate situation.

"I would not have used anybody else unless I thought J.R. was wild," Virdon said. "But he had good stuff, and I'd just as soon have him out there as anybody to get one out."

It turned out to be a good decision — Richard ended the game with a flourish by striking out his 10th batter and preserved a 3-1 victory for the National League West leaders.

The game marked the ninth time this season that Richard had struck out at least 10 batters in a game, and boosted his NL-leading strikeout total to 232.

"It was a big win," noted Virdon. "J.R. did an outstanding job and at this point in the race with us only up 1 1/2 games (over Cincinnati), we have to consider every game a big game."

While Richard was doing the pitching for Houston, Jose Cruz and Jeff Leonard were doing the hitting. Cruz had a bases-empty homer in the second inning and Leonard supplied a two-run single in the eighth for the Astros' eventual winning runs.

Prior to the game, the Mets finished off the final out in the ninth inning of a game Tuesday night that had been protested successfully by Virdon. The Mets won that contest 5-0.

Pirates 8, Giants 6

Tim Lincecum's tie-breaking, two-run single with two out in the eighth inning led Pittsburgh over San Francisco. Ed Ott walked to open the inning, was sacrificed to second and then pinch-hitter Bill Robinson was intentionally walked. Both runners advanced on a grounder by Omar Moreno before Foli's line drive hit scored Ott and Robinson.

Kent Tekulve, 8-6, the fourth Pirate pitcher who came on in the eighth, was the winner. Gary Lavelle, San Francisco's fourth pitcher, 7-8, was charged with the loss.

"It's a great feeling to play in the second half and have the games mean something," said Foli, playing on a contending team for the first time in his major league career. "With the

Dodgers 7, Cubs 2

Ron Cey drove in three runs with a bases-loaded triple, and Joe Ferguson drove in two more runs with a solo home run and run-scoring double to lead Los Angeles over Chicago.

Cey's triple highlighted a four-run uprising in the seventh inning, when the Dodgers chased loser Mike Krukow, 9-9. Ferguson, who homered in the fourth, contributed his RBI double to the seventh-inning outburst.

Charlie Hough, 4-4, pitched the first six innings for the Dodgers to get the victory. Bobby Castillo hurled the final three innings in relief.

Braves 4, Phillies 3

Gary Matthews drove in two runs and Gene Garber notched his 22nd save as Atlanta defeated Philadelphia. Winner Eddie Solomon, 5-10, allowed only two hits in six innings. But after walking Mike Schmidt leading off the Phillies' seventh, Solomon pulled a leg muscle and was replaced by Joey McLaughlin, who held the Phillies in check until the ninth, when the first two batters reached base.

Garber came in at this point and, after loading the bases and hitting Greg Luzinski and walking Dave Rader to force in two runs, pitched out of the jam with the help of a double play.

Reds 7, Expos 2

Johnny Bench became the Cincinnati Reds' all-time home run leader with a three-run, fourth-inning homer that paced the Reds over Montreal.

It was Bench's 15th home run of the season and his 325th as a Red, one more than Frank Robinson. Bench became the club's all-time RBI leader earlier this season.

Mike LaCoss, 14-5, scattered eight hits for the victory and Steve Rogers, 11-8, was the loser.

"I watched it," Bench said of his historic homer. "I figured with two outs I could afford to — and when the ball went over the fence I jumped a little bit and said, 'Wow' out loud. I don't know how long the record will stand, but right now I'm the home run king here and that's a heck of a feeling."

Cardinals 8, Padres 5

Ted Simmons belted his 21st homer and Keith Hernandez doubled twice and drove home two runs, helping St. Louis beat San Diego.

The Cardinals, aided by a Padres error, scored four times before loser Bob Ojchinko, 4-8, retired a batter. Rookie John Fulgham posted his sixth victory in 10 decisions while scattering 13 hits.

Sticky McCourt matter resolved on happy note

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Dale McCourt matter, one of the stickiest issues in National Hockey League history, has been resolved in a manner apparently applauded by all involved.

The Los Angeles Kings, frustrated in their attempts to gain the services of the Detroit center, announced Wednesday that they had agreed to take Red Wings center Andre St. Laurent and two draft picks in lieu of McCourt — who'll remain with Detroit.

The agreement signaled the end of a year-long battle between the two clubs that began when McCourt was awarded to Los Angeles after Detroit signed free agent goalie Rogie Vachon, who had been with the Kings.

"Now we can get down to business and operate our team as a team," Red Wings General Manager Ted Lindsay said in Detroit.

"I am delighted with the exchange," said Kings owner Jerry Buss.

NHL President John Ziegler said in Montreal he was pleased that an agreement was reached and that it upheld the collective bargaining agreement with the NHL Players' Association.

After he was awarded to Los Angeles, McCourt fought the move by challenging the NHL's compensation clause. U.S. District Judge Robert DeMascio in Detroit granted McCourt's request for a preliminary injunction Sept. 28, 1978, allowing McCourt to play for Detroit.

That decision was reversed by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which later allowed McCourt to play for the Red Wings while his case could be decided by the U.S. Supreme Court.

In addition to St. Laurent, the Red Wings surrendered their first-round pick in the 1980 entry draft and the option of a second-round 1980 draft choice or a first-round pick in 1981.

Midland snares first double dip win of year

By TED BATTLES Sports Editor

After frolicking to a 14-2 win in the opener, the Midland Cubs appeared their way to their usual doubleheader split in the second game at Cubs Stadium Wednesday night. Midland was trailing 4-0 going into the third and Amarillo's Eric Mustad was pitching hitless baseball.

It all started harmlessly enough. A walk to Dan Rohn, then, POW, right in the kisser. Jared Martin tripled, Eric Grandy doubled and Gary Krug tripled in bang-bang sequence and after Mike Turgeon whiffed, Carlos Lezcano, showing off for his dad, visiting from Puerto Rico, pumped a two-run homer over the left field fence.

When the smoke had settled, Midland led 6-4 and was on its way to a 12-7 victory and the Cubs' first doubleheader sweep of the season. Prior to Wednesday night, Midland had split 10 and lost three doubleheaders.

It ended a long, long night of baseball in which it was feared that the only thing that might finally halt the action was dawn, which would be the first time a game was called because of daylight. But then Cubs Stadium may be the only place where games have been called because of grasshoppers (1972) and locusts (1958).

ALTHOUGH SAN Antonio beat El Paso, 3-2, Midland still managed to pad a half game to its Texas League West lead to take a two-game margin into a five-game series with El Paso, starting at 7:30 p.m. today in Cubs Stadium. After that, Midland travels to San Antonio to close out the season. The Dodgers, meanwhile, hope to fatten up on Amarillo, a team Midland beat in nine of the last 10 meetings, while the Cubs are playing the Diablos.

In the opener, about the only thing catcher Bill Hayes didn't do was hit a home run. The second year pro from North Platte, Neb., went 4-for-4 and drove in five runs in raising his batting average to .293 from .259 in mid-July.

It was Hayes' double in the second that plated Brian Rosinski with what proved to be the winner and he singled in another run in the third before delivering a bases loaded triple in the eighth-run sixth, an inning in which the Cubs sent 10 batters to the plate before a Gold Sox pitcher got anyone out.

Rohn and Grandy each had three hits while first baseman Gary Krug doubled and singled in the opener and added a triple and single in the night cap to extend his consecutive game hitting streak to 13.

WHILE THE Cubs were roughing up four Amarillo pitchers for 18 hits, three Midland hurlers combined to limit the Gold Sox to four hits. Lee Smith, who relieved Henry Mack after two walks and two singles produced to runs in the third, pitched three innings of one hit ball for the win while Mike Allen finished up with two shutout innings.

Starter Gary Pickert, 8-9, was the loser.

In the nightcap, starter Jon Perlman, 4-6, got the win, but needed relief help from Darrell Turner, who got his ninth save when the Gold Sox threatened to wipe out an 8-4 Midland lead, scoring three times in the sixth to trail by one.

Dallas still picked to win NFC title

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Depth is the measure of champions and if the Dallas Cowboys plan to return to the Super Bowl for a third straight year, they will have to come up with replacements at several key spots.

Dallas remains the best team in the National Football Conference, perhaps because the rest of the NFC is not all that strong.

Returning to the Super Bowl won't be as easy as it should be for a team with Dallas' lineup. But it's still the best in the conference and will be there when playoff time comes. Dallas, however, could have some new company.

The Cowboys' trip to Pasadena, Calif., and another Super Bowl will require eliminating Los Angeles — something NFC teams have always managed to do in the playoffs — Atlanta, Philadelphia and Detroit. The improving Lions, in fact, could be the conference dark horses.

Here's a long-range look at how the NFC season should go:

- EAST DIVISION
  - Dallas Cowboys
  - Philadelphia Eagles
  - St. Louis Cardinals
  - Washington Redskins
  - New York Giants
- CENTRAL DIVISION
  - Detroit Lions
  - Minnesota Vikings
  - Chicago Bears
  - Green Bay Packers
  - Tampa Bay Buccaneers
- WEST DIVISION
  - Los Angeles Rams
  - Atlanta Falcons
  - New Orleans Saints
  - San Francisco 49ers
  - x-Wild Card

The Cowboys are not without their problems. On defense, Too Tall Jones has decided to become a boxer and Jethro Pugh has chosen a less strenuous retirement, leaving two openings on the line. All Pro safety Charlie Waters was hurt in a preseason game and is likely to sit out a good portion if not the entire season. Running back Tony Dorsett also missed important training camp work because of an injury.

But the replacement parts are there. Larry Cole, who split playing time with Pugh last year, and Larry Bethea, a No. 1 draft choice in 1978, step into the line. Veteran Randy Hughes will fill in for Waters at safety and handyman Preston Pearson and Scott Laidlaw will handle Dorsett's role.

Quarterback Roger Staubach, receivers Tony Hill and Drew Pearson, defensive end Harvey Martin, defensive tackle Randy White, and other talented players make it difficult to

The Cubs rebounded for four runs in the home sixth to salt it down as Krug and Mike Turgeon singled, Lezcano tripled for two runs. Lezcano was out trying to come home on Rosinski's bouncer to second, but a walk to Javier Fierro and singles by Ted May and Martin accounted for the final two runs.

CUB QUICKIES—Lezcano wound up with five hits in nine trips and three RBI for the twinbill while Grandy was 5-for-8 with three first-game singles and two doubles in the nightcap. Lee Smith led a charmed life, relieving Mack, who had been bailed out of walk trouble in the first two innings by double plays, with the bases loaded and none out in the third and escaping without any more runs scoring. It was remarkable in that Smith uncorked two pitches that hit the screen against Earl Battey, the first batter he faced, and no one scored. He finally got Battey on a liner two Rohn at second and the next two batters on pop ups...

Dallas still picked to win NFC title

Philadelphia will try. Coach Dick Vermeil's program could begin reaching fruition this season. All-America Jerry Robinson, the No. 1 draft, joins All Pro Bill Bergey at linebacker and the offense has some talented people like quarterback Ron Jaworski, running back Wilbert Montgomery and wide receiver Harold Carmichael.

St. Louis must overcome the shocking training camp death of J.V. Cain and will look for leadership to veterans like quarterback Jim Hart, fullback Jim Otis, wide receiver Mel Gray, tackle Dan Dierdorf, center Tom Banks and guard Bob Young. Free safety Ken Stone led the NFC with nine interceptions last season and is a key man along with Roger Wehrli in the secondary.

Washington's Over-The-Hill Gang is finally over the hill and Coach Jack Pardee must rebuild. The same is true with the New York (Jersey) Giants under new coach Ray Perkins.

In the Central Division, Detroit seems ready to replace Minnesota's perennial champions at the top.

The Lions started in reverse with a 1-6 record last season but won six of their last nine behind quarterback Gary Danielson. The front four, led by Rookie of the Year Al Baker and Doug English, could be the best in the conference and No. 1 draft Keith Dorney should shore up the offensive line.

Minnesota must start over following the retirement of quarterback Fran Tarkenton. Tommy Kramer is the most likely replacement but he'll need help. He has appealing targets in Ahmad Rashad, Sammy White and Rickey Young, who led the league with 88 catches last season. Chuck Foreman must return to his 1,000-yard level and newcomers like center Dave Huffman and defensive end Randy Holloway have big jobs replacing retired Mick Tingelhoff and Carl Eller, who was dispatched to Seattle.

Until Chicago solves its quarterback scramble, the Bears will remain in the middle of the Central pack. Mike Phipps, Bob Avellini and Vince Evans are the choices and Walter Payton, perhaps the premier runner in pro football today, wishes one of them would emerge to lift some of the Bears' offensive burden off his broad shoulders.

The two Bays — Green and Tampa — seem locked in at the bottom of the Division, although both have some interesting young talent and could be only a year or so away from moving up.

Los Angeles' hold in the West may start eroding. The Rams can expect stronger challenges than they've had in recent years from Atlanta and New Orleans, both improved.

Annual Dressage Show set Saturday, Sunday

The Second Annual Dressage Show will be held Saturday and Sunday on the Midland Polo Field grounds with proceeds going to the American Heart Association.

Events will begin at 8 a.m. both days and end about 4 p.m.

Refreshments will be provided by the Midland County 4-H. The show, which is expected to attract riders from all over the Southwest, will be judged by two Olympic team members, Alexandra Howard and Linda Zang, according to a spokesman for the dressage organization.

Dressage, also known as horse ballet, has been practiced for more than 2,500 years. The ancient art began spreading in Texas about eight years ago, the spokesman said.

Most types of horses, ranging from cow ponies to thoroughbreds, can learn the training. According to the spokesman, dressage is one of the few sports where men, women and children compete on an equal basis. Each competition is scored numerically against what is considered perfection by international standards.

Last year's first dressage show attracted about 150 riders. Added to the dressage competition this year will be categories of musical free style, pas de deux (team riding to music), jumping combined with dressage and a vaulting exhibition.

Riders also will be competing to qualify for the regional finals to be held Sept. 8-9 in Waco. During this meet several Olympic hopefuls will be competing.

The country is divided into four regions. Those who win at Waco will go on to the national finals to see who represents the United States in the Olympics.

The public is invited to attend both days without charge. The American Heart Association will be conducting free blood pressure tests from 9 a.m. to noon each day at the announcer's booth.

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE Reporters singing campaign song on paddlewheel junket

By BROOKS JACKSON

ABOARD THE DELTA QUEEN (AP) — If there was ever any doubt that Jimmy Carter's Mississippi River float aboard this paddlewheel steamer is more of a campaign trip than a vacation, there is now further evidence: Reporters have composed a campaign song about it.

The songs crop up every four years as reporters, whiling away the time between presidential campaign stops, compose satiric lyrics to familiar tunes and lampoon the events on which they report.

In this case, the target of a reporter's wit was the president's assertion that he is campaigning for his energy proposals and not his own re-election.

"Jimmy Carter Went A-Steamin'" is sung to the tune of "Will the Circle Be Unbroken?" The first verses go like this:

"Jimmy Carter went a-steamin',
"Down the river to St. Lou,
"Jimmy Carter went campaignin',
"But for who, Lord, but for who?"

"Was it taxes on oil profits?
"Or for rebates for the poor?
"Solar power? Or mass transit?
"Or a stay through '84?"

As with many of these campaign ballads, the grammar is sometimes rough, but the rhyme is right. The song has eight verses and may have more before Carter's week-long Mis-issippi trip ends Friday in St. Louis.

THE RIVERBOAT trip is a working vacation not only for Carter, but also for press secretary Jody Powell and other staffers accompanying the president. In Powell's case, at least, it seems to be doing him some good.

Powell's moods tend to reflect the president's rating in the polls, and although Carter's popularity is near rock bottom, Powell, on this lazy riverboat trip, seems to be his old, easy-going, wisecracking self.

He even seems to miss the daily White House news briefings that often found him using bitter sarcasm to turn aside pointed questions. So much so, in fact, that near midnight one night, as the steamer was pausing in a lock, Powell casually leaned against the railing on an upper deck and fielded questions from several persons in a crowd of several hundred who stayed on after shaking hands with Carter.

What sort of fuel does the steamer use, Powell was asked.

The press secretary, cigarette and a nearly empty tumbler in his hands, replied: "Well, for the last three hours it's been running on Jack Daniels."

Didn't fired Cabinet secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. get him to quit smoking, asked another onlooker.

"Well, I used to have to sneak around and do it behind his back, but now I can do it out in the open," Powell said.

Concord admirers kick off write-in campaign for Simon

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Admirers of former Treasury Secretary William Simon kicked off an unsanctioned write-in drive in his behalf Wednesday, predicting he can win the state's Republican presidential primary next year without campaigning.

Curt Clinkscales, manager of the Independent Campaign to Elect William Simon, said he planned to base efforts for Simon on a successful write-in drive in 1964 for former Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr.

"The front-runner often stumbles in New Hampshire and the nation is shocked," said Clinkscales.

Lodge won the primary but did not seek the presidency.

Clinkscales said that although Simon had not endorsed the campaign, he was aware of it and had not told groups raising money for the effort to desist.

"If he wanted to stop the campaign, he would have done so. I would like to see him get out and run but he doesn't believe that people will vote for an enemy of the 'free lunch,'" Clinkscales said.

Clinkscales, a public relations consultant from Arlington, Va., said, "We believe if anyone will vote for an enemy of the 'free lunch' it will be here in New Hampshire."

Simon, who served as secretary of the Treasury from 1974 to 1977 and was administrator of the former federal energy office, is now a Wall Street financier and lives in New Jersey. He argues that government is too big and plays too big a role in the nation's economy.

Simon's New York office said he was vacationing and unavailable for comment.

Gabriele Pitcairn Pendleton of Bryn

Athyn, Pa., chairman of the write-in effort, said she believed that Simon would emerge victorious from the primary after voters tired of listening to other Republican choices.

"I would not be wasting my money on a campaign if I did not think he would run," Mrs. Pendleton said.

She said the campaign had not yet formed a New Hampshire organization.

Clinkscales said the group planned to push the Simon drive by running advertisements in national magazines. He said the group had been seeking funds and had thus far raised $15,000 in Simon's behalf.

School to train leaders

By JIM ABRAMS

TOKYO (AP) — Electronics magnate Konosuke Matsushita, inspired by an old tradition of dedication to country, has started his own school to train political and business leaders.

The 84-year-old founder of Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., makers of Panasonic products, will open the Matsushita School of Government and Management next April to "help realize the ideals of Japan in the 21st century."

Matsushita has invested 7 billion yen ($32 million) of his own money to build a campus in Chigasaki, about 35 miles southwest of Tokyo, where students 21 to 28 years old will undergo rigorous courses in leadership training over periods of three to five years.

MORE THAN 900 persons, including doctors, members of the military self-defense force and sons of members of parliament, have filed applications for the 30 seats in the first class. The school provides free tuition, a monthly salary of about $520, which is equal to a university graduate's starting paycheck, and a six-month study tour to the country of one's choice during the fourth year of the program.

THERE WILL be fixed courses in political, social, economic and philosophical fields.

The curriculum will also feature guest lectures by Buddhist priests, artists, tea ceremony masters, defense experts, railway owners, bankers, and shipbuilders. There will be an emphasis on learning Japanese traditional arts such as calligraphy and kendo (Japanese fencing) and research into the ideas and structure which will shape Japan in the 21st century.

Liaison chief Koji Matsumoto explained in an interview that the students also will periodically be sent out to work in manufacturing, selling, farming, and construction jobs.

"WE WANT them to absorb through their skins the various aspects of humanity and society," he said.

Some Japanese liberals have expressed concern that the business tycoon will use the school as a training ground for a new conservative political party. Matsushita, who carved his huge electric conglomerate from a pioneering electric housewares shop he started in 1918, admits to having little use for leftist political ideas.

But he insists that political inclinations will not be a factor in selecting students and that graduates will be free to follow their own political paths. Matsumoto said that any young person who demonstrates "high aspirations and outstanding ability" will be qualified.

Matsushita's school has a precedent in a mid-19th century school founded by a samurai named Yoshida Shoin to train young men as patriotic leaders prepared to face the onslaught of Western military and technological might.

MATSHUHITA, a prolific writer on the future of the nation, says that the main enemy facing Japan today is a wasteful materialism which is corroding national unity and traditions.

He states in his prospectus for the school that "as an outgrowth of economic prosperity the national spirit has fallen into a state of chaos with a rise in juvenile delinquency, a loss of full and meaningful human relationships, and moralistic confusion."

Matsushita says that he would be pleased if the first graduating class in 1985 produces 10 people who will strike out into the business world, 10 who continue academic studies on politics, and another 10 who eventually run for offices in national or local elections.

NBC plans to be No. 1: If employees' union agrees

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A few months ago, it was just a small labor matter, a little bit of tidying up that had to be done as NBC prepared for 1980, the biggest and busiest year in its history. Then it became something of a nuisance, nothing to fret about, really, but a nuisance. Now it is a problem, one which NBC would earnestly like to resolve. If things go wrong, it could mean disaster in 1980.

The issue is NBC's contract with the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians, which represents about 2,300 of NBC's employees (virtually everyone connected with a TV production is in NABET except on-camera people, directors, producers and unit managers).

EVEN THOUGH the current NBC-NABET contract doesn't expire rank and file strongly rejected the plan, with 60 percent of membership voting "no."

AT THAT POINT, the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service stepped in (at the suggestion, some say, of the State Department).

The FMCS called a meeting between the parties in July, but again, no agreement was reached, except a decision to meet again.

The basic positions of the two sides emerged last week as the two sides met in Washington. Underscoring the unique nature of the dispute is the fact that neither side is placing much emphasis on substantive issues, such as working conditions, which usually play a central role in negotiations.

Rather, NBC seemed almost exclusively concerned with getting an extension; NABET was concerned with money and length of extension, asking for at least three years.

WHEN NEGOTIATIONS closed Friday, NBC forwarded its "final offer" — a three-year extension with overall wage increases of 25 percent. The union negotiators agreed to present the offer to membership without recommendation.

A vote on the offer is expected by mid-September. NBC won't comment officially on the matter, but it is clear that the company, not in the strongest position, is eager to get the matter resolved. "Clearly, that's our first choice," a network executive said. "There's no question that we'd like to get this thing resolved amicably."

But what if there is no resolution? That's where the potential disaster, from NBC's view, looms.

SHOULD THE RANK and file membership reject the suggested package, there would likely be no further negotiations until the contract expires next March, precisely the situation NBC had been wanting to avoid all along.

And what if those March negotiations fail, what if there is a NABET strike?

NBC says it has a contingency plan already drawn up, and that the Olympics and conventions and other coverage would go as planned. But it would be a nightmare.

The magnitude of the planned NBC Olympics coverage would preclude the usual contingency plan, that of having management personnel assume the duties of striking employees. Others would have to be hired, trained and briefed on the Moscow logistics, a chaotic enterprise at the least.

NABET, ON THE other hand, is also anxious to get the matter resolved without a strike, knowing that it is not likely to have the network at so obvious a negotiating disadvantage any time soon. The question now is whether the thing has gained too much momentum, whether it is already past quiet resolution; whether, finally, the little tidying up will become a house-cleaning on NBC.

ENTERTAINMENT

until March 31, 1980, NBC began thinking about the contract as far back as last fall.

There was reason for this farsightedness — the network is playing for incalculable stakes in 1980, the year chartered as its turnaround year. Besides its normal entertainment and sports programming, NBC will telecast two presidential primaries, a national election and 150 hours of the Moscow Olympics.

It is the year that NBC plans to move into No. 1 or No. 2 position in the ratings race, and the network reckoned it didn't need labor negotiations stirring things up. So, NBC asked NABET leaders last fall if the union would go for an 18-month extension of the current contract.

Last May, NBC and NABET negotiators agreed to a deal that would have extended the current contract through the hectic next 18 months. But NABET

Kenny Rogers finalist for entertainer of year

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Kenny Rogers is a finalist in five categories of the annual Country Music Association awards, it was announced Wednesday.

Rogers was one of five finalists for entertainer of the year, male vocalist of the year, single of the year for "The Gambler," album of the year for "The Gambler" and duo of the year with Dottie West.

Other finalists for entertainer of the year, the top award, are Barbara Mandrell, Willie Nelson, Crystal Gayle and the Statler Brothers.

Finalists for top male vocalist are John Conlee, Larry Gatlin, Nelson, Don Williams and Rogers.

Finalists for No. 1 female vocalist are Janie Fricke, Miss Gayle, Emmylou Harris, Miss Mandrell and Anne Murray.

Winners will be announced on national television Oct. 8.

Chilly response to science show doesn't daunt CBS

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS News put together a half-hour science magazine called "Universe," and viewer response to the broadcast in June was chilly at best. Undaunted, those same people return Tuesday night with "Inside Yesterday," the pilot for a 30-minute investigative series.

Walter Cronkite, the "CBS Evening News" anchorman acclaimed for his coverage of America's space program, was the likely choice as host for "Universe." And Mike Wallace, best-known for his investigative work on CBS' "60 Minutes," is a similarly proper man to report for "Inside Yesterday."

"Inside Yesterday," unlike "Universe," which was comprised of several unrelated segments, deals with a single topic. The premiere episode, called "Target U.S.A.," examines British intelligence operations in this country prior to Pearl Harbor.

It's an interesting subject for the first show in a proposed series. Sir William Stephenson, the British spy called "Intrepid," whose wartime exploits were detailed in a recent book, "A Man Called Intrepid," is a key figure in the investigative report.

Wallace does not mention the book, much less NBC's dramatization of "A Man Called Intrepid," broadcast last spring. The objective of "Inside Yesterday" is more to set the record straight than to break new ground, and the pilot is, in that light, an interesting bit of investigative journalism. Thanks is due in large measure to the decision of the show's producers to include film of Wallace and reporter George Crile at work, discussing their material and interviewing sources.

"Target U.S.A." includes plenty 1940s footage, though most of it illustrates general rather than specific bits of information. There are some intriguing, though hardly new, conclusions — most notably that President Franklin D. Roosevelt knew of the covert British effort to nudge the United States into the war, and said nothing of it.

Wallace draws a parallel with a more recent presidential cover-up: "Are there not, for those of us who have within recent years read and heard about Watergate," he asks one former British spy chief, almost rhetorically, "are there not similarities? Plumbers units, dirty tricks, trying to get dirt on high officials of government?"

The source, H. Montgomery Hyde, answers affirmatively.

CBS at one time considered the science magazine, "Universe," a pilot, but Cronkite said before the June 27 broadcast that there were no immediate plans to begin work on a series. The network undoubtedly will take a long look at the ratings before deciding on the future of "Inside Yesterday."

Kerrville festival will feature famous families

KERRVILLE — Among the nearly two dozen bands and featured performers at the 1979 Kerrville Bluegrass Festival over the Labor Day weekend will be four famous musical families carrying on their respective traditions of American country music.

The festival, annually held at Rod Kennedy's Quiet Valley Ranch south of Kerrville, this year will present the McLain Family Band from Kentucky, the popular Buck White and the Downhome Folks from Tennessee, Jim and Jesse and the Virginia Boys from the famous Grand Ole Opry.

These well-known groups will be joined by the nation's most entertaining bluegrass gospel band, the Lewis Family from Georgia.

The Kerrville Bluegrass Festival is a family entertainment event at which up to 6,000 spectators gather at the music ranch each Labor Day for concerts and impromptu musical events.

The star performers, including such well-known names as Tex Logan, Peter Rowan, Jethro Burns, Della Bell, Bill Grant, the Boys From Indiana and others are the main attraction of the festival, but hundreds of fans bring their own musical instruments and enter the various contests or simply gather at informal jam sessions on the grounds of Quiet Valley Ranch.

The festival will get under way Aug. 30 and continue with concerts and special events through Sept. 2. Free camping is included in the price of admission to the festival.

Additional information may be obtained by telephoning the festival office, 512-896-3800 between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. each weekday.

New museum show provides a window into Paris' past

AUSTIN — A window onto the past — the streets, public squares, houses, inhabitants of 18th Century Paris — is provided in a new show at the Texas Memorial Museum of The University of Texas. The show, titled "18th Century French Drawings," is a traveling exhibition which opened in New York City early this summer to enthusiastic acclaim from critics and public. The show will remain on view here through Sept. 15 and is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each Monday through Friday, as well as from 1 to 5 p.m. each Saturday and Sunday. The exhibition is a result of the concerted trans-Atlantic efforts of the Musee Carnavalet in Paris, the National Academy of Design in New York City, and the Lutece Foundation, a domestic non-profit corporation devoted to strengthening the ties between French and American art lovers. "The spirit of Paris lives in this rich selection of 87 drawings from the Musee Carnavalet in Paris," said Dr. William G. Reeder, director of the Texas Memorial Museum. "The Carnavalet is the museum of Paris history, and we are delighted that we have been chosen as one of three locations in the U.S. permitted to show this superb collection of French drawings." The exhibit includes drawings by Watteau, Carmontelle, Lespinasse and Saint-Aubin. These artists were shrewd observers of the pre-revolutionary French scene who in their drawings recorded Paris alive with every kind of activity of high and low life. Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson is serving as honorary chairman of the exhibit, said Dr. Reeder, who also expressed appreciation to The University of Texas for providing the financial support necessary to bring the exhibit to the Austin museum for the exhibit's only showing in Texas.

Bolshoi Ballet dances three-act 'Legend of Love' in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The Bolshoi Ballet danced the Western premiere of its three-act "The Legend of Love" on Tuesday night at the New York State Theater. The company will perform the work, its story based on a folk tale and written by a Turkish social reformer, four more times before its season ends here Sunday. The Bolshoi then will go to Chicago for a week and to Los Angeles for two weeks. On this trip it is performing only full-length works, including "Swan Lake." "The Legend of Love" tells of a queen whose sister is dying. A sorcerer says he can save her if the queen gives up her beauty. She does and he saves the princess. Both women fall in love with the same young man, Ferikhad. The wonderful thing about the evening was the dancing. Nina Timofeyeva was the queen. Nadezhda Pavlova, first seen here as a promising teen-ager and still very young, was the princess. Vyacheslav Gordeyev was the male lead. All danced with fluid precision. Miss Pavlova and Gordeyev together were as synchronized as a couple of acrobats whose lives depend on perfect timing. Miss Timofeyeva was even better. She not only danced beautifully but was quite moving. Bolshoi Ballet artistic director Yuri Grigorovich choreographed.

Moore fights to appear as Lone Ranger

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Clayton Moore, who battled for justice as television's "Lone Ranger," now is fighting for the right to appear in public as the famed masked man he portrayed. "When I was a kid, I wanted to be two things — a policeman or a cowboy," the actor recalled in an interview Tuesday. "I was lucky because I got to be a cowboy." But last week, Superior Court Judge Jerry Pacht temporarily barred Moore from making public appearances as "The Lone Ranger." The company that owns the rights to the character claims Moore is too old. Clayton refuses to reveal his age, but he has been reported to be between 65 and 70. "Believe me," said the man who made the mysterious champion of justice famous, "I am quite hurt." Moore, who appeared in 168 television episodes of the famous cowboy series, wants to wear the mask in appearances at shopping centers and fairs as "Clayton Moore who portrayed the Lone Ranger." The injunction was sought by Lone Ranger Television Inc., a subsidiary of Wrather Corp., which bought all rights to the Lone Ranger character for $3 million in 1954. The company claims the public could confuse Moore with a new masked man who is making appearances to promote a multimillion-dollar Lone Ranger movie being filmed by Lone Ranger Television. Wrather said Moore "no longer is an appropriate physical representative of the trim 19th century Western hero." "They don't want two Lone Rangers out on tour," said Moore, who with Jay Silverheels as his Indian sidekick, Tonto, triumphed over scores of Old West desperados. "But I am the original Lone Ranger on television. I portrayed the Lone Ranger for 30 years."

Moore, who jogs, does push ups and swims a mile every day, doesn't buy the argument that his masked appearances would defuse publicity for a modern Lone Ranger film. "As far as I am concerned and to most of his fans, the Lone Ranger will always be Clayton Moore," said the actor's agent, Arthur Dorn. "If you put 10 people in a closet and asked them to say 'Hi Ho Silver,' and you hear Clayton Moore's voice, you know it's him." Dorn estimates the Lone Ranger TV series, movies and merchandise generated in excess of $70 million for its owners, but "Clayton Moore has made relatively nothing from it. He has done nothing but uphold the dignity of the Lone Ranger character."

ABC building up steam for season

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1979-80 prime-time season is still a month away, but ABC seems to be building up steam for a powerful start. Last season's front-running network listed 16 of the 20 highest-rated programs in the week ending Aug. 19, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show, and won the prime-time ratings race for the fourth time in a row.

ABC and CBS exchanged first place several times in the early part of the summer, until the last week in July. ABC has been No. 1 since then, with "Three's Company," the popular situation comedy, the most-watched show three times in the last four weeks.

And, as in the past, ABC seems to score with nearly everything it tries. "Detective School," which wasn't even on the network's fall schedule until last week, was No. 5 in the latest ratings.

Carol Burnett, until recently a prominent member of the CBS stable, was a hit in her first appearance for ABC, as star of "Carol Burnett and Friends." The show, the premiere for a four-week series, was No. 25.

ABC's rating for the week was 16.1, its highest since the first week in June. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 16.1 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to ABC.

CBS was second with a rating of 14, and NBC third — for the 11th week in a row, at 13.5. The rating for "Three's Company" was 25.9. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 25.9 percent saw at Pacht has scheduled an Aug. 30 hearing to decide whether to make the injunction permanent and until then, Moore said, "I was given permission to go out as Clayton Moore who portrayed the Lone Ranger and wear a mask."

Hypnotism is used in criminal investigations

(Editor's Note: Police investigating a crime are frequently stymied by a victim's or witness' lapse of memory. To probe memory deeper, they are using hypnosis — but now some critics say there may be more than truth in such delving and wonder if hypnosis may unlock a Pandora's box of imagined or fabricated detail.)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police are wrestling with the difficulties of a new investigative tool — hypnosis, and this story is a case in point:

A young woman came to police with a familiar but still terrifying account of abduction and attempted rape. In the course of the investigation, the woman studied dozens of police mug shots, identified one attacker, and picked out another man who "looked like" the other.

A detective, hoping for a more complete description, hypnotized the woman and questioned her further. She positively identified both men in the photographs as the attackers, and police arrested them.

The defense lawyer, preparing for trial, arranged for a psychiatrist to testify about the hazards of using hypnosis in criminal cases. Prosecutors then took another look at the evidence and found their case swiftly unraveling. The woman finally confessed that she "had invented the whole story as an effort to keep her husband from divorcing her."

Dr. Martin T. Orne, the psychiatrist who would have testified in that Plainfield, N.J., case last year, relates the story as an example of the dangers of allowing police and prosecutors to go to court with evidence obtained through hypnosis.

Orne, an authority on hypnosis and a professor of psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania, cites case after case in which evidence gained through hypnosis turned out to be unreliable.

But proponents of hypnosis in criminal cases relate other stories of amazing success in solving difficult crimes because hypnosis enabled victims and witnesses to retrieve valuable clues buried deep in their memories.

The Chowchilla, Calif., kidnapping case may be the best-known example. Under hypnosis, a school bus driver recalled a license number which led police to the kidnappers who abducted a busload of schoolchildren.

Dr. Martin Reiser, a pioneer in the field, tells of a small boy who saw his father murdered and hastily scribbled the license number of the fleeing killer's car. "But he had transposed two digits and when he was hypnotized, he was able to report the number correctly and an arrest was made," says Reiser, a clinical psychologist and director of the behavioral science services for the Los Angeles police department.

Reiser says hypnosis produced new information in nearly 80 percent of the 350 cases in which it was used by Los Angeles police from mid-1975 through 1978. He calculates that 66.4 percent of the information was considered valuable.

Reiser brought hypnosis into police work with experiments in Los Angeles in the early 1970s. Since then, he has trained other department officers in hypnosis techniques and he has founded a private corporation to offer similar training to law enforcement officers from around the country. The basic four-day session costs $395.

Reiser estimates that at least 200 police departments use hypnosis in some cases. It is used by police in New York, Boston, Honolulu, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Dallas and San Antonio, in addition to Los Angeles.

"More and more agencies want to get people trained because it works and it is very cost-effective," Reiser says.

Several primitive tribes face threat of extinction

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Several primitive tribes in the Andaman and Nicobar Islands, an Indian territory in the Bay of Bengal, face a threat of extinction within two generations because of low fertility, a government study has warned.

Among the tribes are the Jarawas and Sentinelese who, armed with bows and arrows, are considered extremely hostile and difficult to approach. Anthropologists have traced their origins back to black Africa.

The government-run anthropological survey of India carried out the study with the cooperation of two "friendly" tribes, the Onges and Great Andamanese. But it said all were decreasing in number from an unknown fertility problem.

"If the civilized world fails to help to increase the fertility of these tribal women, their societies are certain to be extinct within a generation or two," said Dr. Pranab Ganguly, a survey official.

There were 672 Onge tribesmen counted in 1901, when the first census was taken in the island group. Today they number 100, the Indian anthropologist said.

Even more dramatic was the decline in number of Great Andamanese over the same period, from 625 to 25, he said.

In an interview, Ganguly said mankind would be poorer "in terms of genetic and cultural diversity" should the tribesmen die out.

"Their lifestyle continues to be what it has always been," he told The Associated Press. "The only noticeable change this century has been the steady decline in births."

When the British colonial administration made similar friendly gestures to the Andamanese, the tribesmen fell victim to such "civilization-borne" diseases as influenza, measles and syphilis, he said.

"We will have to ensure that the story is not repeated," the Indian anthropologist said. "If it does happen again, it will be the end of the last of the primitive days we have in this part of the world."

The islanders live as they have for generations. Some are nomads who fish, hunt wild boar and collect wild plants and honey.

Those dwelling in permanent settlements live communally, 10 to 12 families per house. Few on the tropical islands wear clothing.

The Shompens, who have been termed "unfriendly" but not "hostile," engage in a silent barter trade on Nicobar Island. At night, they leave fruit and stacks of sugar cane at a forest clearing. Local traders pick up the produce the next morning and put knives, tobacco and other goods in its place.

This is the only contact the Shompens maintain with the outside world.

When Ganguly's research team camped near their settlements, the tribesmen reacted angrily by throwing spears until the anthropologists retreated, he said.

U.S. Army Reserve part of community

WASHINGTON (AP) — The organization of a Special Olympics program for handicapped youngsters in Maryland; the repair and general fix-up of a halfway house for women ex-offenders in Virginia; flood relief in Texas; the moving of patients from an old hospital into a new one in New York; free medical examinations in Puerto Rico.

All of these projects have two things in common. "Each is an example of men and women helping their neighbors and each was performed by members of the U.S. Army Reserve," says Maj. Gen. William R. Berkman, Chief of Army Reserve.

"The primary purpose of the Reserve, of course, is to provide required units and individuals in a high state of readiness, capable of performing wartime missions," he explains. "But it is more than a military service. It is people, often serving on a voluntary basis to help improve the quality of life in their hometowns."

Officially, the participation of the nation's 3,200 units in community service projects is a good training vehicle, Berkman points out. "For example, engineer, transportation, medical units and others get the opportunity to practice the techniques they need to perform their military mission, while helping someone else out at the same time."

Involvement by the Army Reserve is not, however, always in the form of unit participation. Often, it is simply individual Reservists who freely give up a weekend to lend a hand where needed, Berkman notes.

"The Special Olympics in Maryland is a good example," he says. "Members of the 97th Army Reserve Command received no pay or duty credit for helping with the organization and presentation of the games."

"They did it because they wanted to," says the chairman of the event, Army Reserve Sgt. Jim George. "Despite all the hassles and problems of organization, all of these volunteers go away from here sharing the feeling of love for these youngsters."

The communities and organizations appreciate the participation from their local units, as when the 8th Medical Brigade participated in moving 250 patients from an old hospital on Staten Island, N.Y., to a new one, Berkman says. He added that the project provided excellent training for the Reserve medical people.

"The entire operation had slowed down to nearly a standstill around 10 o'clock when the Reserve arrived. Their people and equipment made all the difference," said John F. Miller, executive director of the hospital.

Sometimes the help is asked for, as was the case when spring flooding drove Beaumont, Texas, residents out of their homes.

"We had a lot of water and a real problem," said Red Cross disaster coordinator, Dan Nissley. "We've had a long-standing agreement with the Reserve. They have the personnel and equipment we needed. We called and they responded."

Mobil Oil denies allegations made by service station operator in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — With gasoline lines all but evaporated, service station operators are beginning to compete again, and one Mobil dealer says his supplier is pressuring him to sell at his increased allocation. Jerry Etheredge, operator of Promenade Car Care in the suburb of Richardson, said Mobil told him — in a letter dated May 18 — that the gasoline crisis was temporary. "We recognize that the current hours reduction is due to a temporary product limitation resulting in gasoline being allocated to your location," Etheredge quoted the letter as saying. "However, when your location's allocation permits, or when supply limitations are removed, we fully expect a return to your hours of operation (as contained in the station lease)."

"Jerry, just be advised that you got the letter," Etheredge said he is receiving 97 percent of the gasoline delivered to him in August 1978, up 12 percent since the beginning of August. He also contended Mobil's prices are too high and that the company is insensitive to dealers' problems by demanding increased sales. "The prices are so high to dealers at present, that if we added the Department of Energy allowance of 15.4 percent (profit), that puts us at more than a dollar a gallon for super unleaded right here in Dallas," he said. Etheredge said the price he must pay Mobil is nearing 79 cents a gallon for regular. "They're going to try to force us to lower our prices and force us to absorb the loss," he said. "They have not done a damn thing to help the dealers."

But Russell Pfaff, Mobil's regional general manager in Chicago, denied Etheredge's allegations. "Mobil under no circumstances thinks we have a temporary crisis," Pfaff said. He said Mobil charges dealers more than other companies because it provides more fuel. "They (the public) can buy from whomever they please," he said. Pfaff said Mobil was not "pressuring" dealers to sell their allocations, but was "counseling" them to do so in the interests of base allocation stabilization. Some dealers already have lowered gasoline prices, but most dealers agree the new competition won't go as far as an all-out "gas war."

Five counties gain wildcat projects; discoveries in New Mexico potential

Gulf Oil Corp. spotted location for a 7,000-foot wildcat in a multipay area of Reeves County, and Bruce A. Wilbanks of Midland announced a wildcat re-entry project in Crane County, and new wildcats were reported in Garza, Yoakum and Hockley counties. Also, Yates Petroleum Co. of Artesia, N.M., completed a Morrow gas discovery in Eddy County, Amoco Production reported potential on an Atoka gas discovery in Lea County, and a wildcat was spotted in Chaves County.

It is No. 1 W. F. Edwards Jr., 467 feet from south and 2,173 feet from east lines of section 105, block D, J. H. Gibson survey. It is a north offset to Williamson No. 1 Dan Field which was pumping to test on last report, through perforations opposite the San Andrews from 5,173 to 5,194 feet. The last 24 hours of testing returned 11 barrels of oil and 75 barrels of water.

of fracture solution. Total depth is 9,250 feet and 4.5-inch pipe is set at 9,159 feet. The plugged back depth is 9,118 feet. The strike is three miles southwest of Morrow gas production in the Logan Draw field. It also is 1.5 miles southwest of 7,800-foot Cisco gas production. Location is 2,030 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 31-175-27e.

REEVES WILDCAT
Gulf Oil Corp. will drill No. 9 S. E. Ligon-State as a 7,000-foot wildcat 17 miles southeast of Pecos in Reeves County. The project is 1,980 feet from north and 2,050 feet from east lines of section 16, block 7, H&G survey. It is one location northwest of Gulf No. 6 Ligon-State, undesignated gas discovery which completed through perforations from 6,125 to 6,497 feet, and one location southwest of No. 4 Ligon-State which was completed as a Cherry Canyon gas discovery through perforations from 6,160 to 6,178 feet. Suggested field name for that discovery is Worsham, East (Cherry Canyon gas.)

HOCKLEY PROJECT
Aminoil USA, Inc., No. 1 Bartlett is to be dug as a 10,800-foot wildcat in Hockley County, two miles southwest of Whitarral. It is 660 feet from south and 467 feet from west lines of labor 8, league 721, State Capital Lands survey and 3/4 mile northeast of a 7,615-foot dry hole. It also is three and one-eighth miles southwest of the Whitarral (Clear Fork) field.

LEA STRIKE
Amoco Production Co. of Odessa No. 1-Y Federal Communitized finalized as an Atoka gas discovery in Lea County, five miles southeast of Halfway. The operator reported a daily potential of 3,800,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through a 40/64-inch choke and perforations from 13,020 to 13,114 feet. Flowing tubing pressure was 600 pounds. Total depth is 14,428 feet and 4.5-inch pipe is set on bottom. Plugged back depth is 13,550 feet. The strike is four miles northeast of Atoka gas production in the Salt Lake, South field and 1,980 feet from north and 1,650 feet from east lines of section 27-20s-33e.

CRANE EXPLORER
Bruce A. Wilbanks will re-enter an old 6,070-foot dry hole in Crane County and clean out to 5,000 feet for tests as a wildcat. The project, No. 1 Jax, originally was drilled by Magnolia Petroleum Co. as the No. 2 State-Flood and abandoned in January 1946. It is five miles northeast of Imperial and 1,700 feet from northeast and 330 feet from northwest lines of section 20, block 3, H&TC survey. It is one and three-eighths miles northeast of the T.E. Bar (San Andres) field which produces at 2,570 feet.

CHAVES WILDCAT
Sundance Oil Co. of Denver, Colo., spotted No. 3 Grynberg-Federal as a 4,250-foot wildcat in Chaves County, 18 miles southeast of Elkins. It is 660 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 14-8s-31e and two miles southeast of the Tomtom (San Andres) pool which produces at 3,812 feet, and two miles east of the 3,738-foot Siete (San Andres) field.

ANDREWS OILER
Rial Oil Co. of Midland No. 1-4 University, drilled as a wildcat operation, has been completed as a long southwest extension to the M.A.K. (Spraberry) pool of Andrews County, 21 miles northeast of Andrews. The operator reported a daily pumping potential of 45 barrels of 38-gravity oil and 15 barrels of water, through perforations from 8,533 to 8,546 feet after 4,494 gallons of acid and 30,000 gallons of fracture solution. The gas-oil ratio is 1,100-1. Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 4, block 7, University Lands survey. It is 1/2 mile north of Dean production in the Huxley field.

GARZA TESTER
Amoco Production Co. spotted location for a 9,200-foot wildcat in Garza County, eight miles west of Post. It is No. 1 Sylvia Winder, 800 feet from south and 850 feet from east lines of section 1,320, block 1, H&OB survey. The location is three miles southwest of the Three Way (Strawn oil) pool.

CHAVES FIELD WELL
Union Oil Co. of California No. 2-36 Tom-State has been completed in the Tomahawk (San Andres) pool of Chaves County, 15 miles southeast of Boaz. Operator reported a 24-hour swabbing potential of 240 barrels of 23-gravity oil and 32 barrels of water, through perforations from 4,197 to 4,217 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 432-1. Total depth is 4,293 feet and 5.5-inch casing is set on bottom. The well is a south offset to the same operator's No. 1-36 Tom-State which was recently completed in the southwest side of the pool. Location is No. 2-36 is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 36-7s-31e.

EDDY DISCOVERY
Yates Petroleum Corp. No. 1-KU Exxon-Federal has been completed as a Morrow gas discovery in Eddy County, 20 miles southwest of Loco Hills. The well finalized for a daily flow potential of 300,000 cubic feet of gas, through a 1/4-inch choke and perforations from 8,989 to 8,994 feet after 1,000 gallons of acid and 7,500 gallons

YOAKUM AREA
J. C. and R. E. Williamson of Midland No. 1 W. F. Edwards Jr. was staked as a 5,200-foot wildcat in Yoakum County, 15 miles northwest of Plains.

U.S. Department of Energy commits one more big goof

By STEPHEN FOX

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Department of Energy cannot enforce maximum allowable retail prices for gasoline because it doesn't conduct thorough surveys, says the publisher of an authoritative oil marketing letter. Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Lundberg Letter, said Wednesday that the government checks only 6,500 of the nation's 175,000 service stations each month and conducts those surveys by mail. His staffers, he said, check 16,700 stations in person every two weeks.

DOE has acknowledged it released erroneous pricing information for 20 American cities earlier this week. After criticism from gasoline retailers, the department said it would issue a revised list today. "The Department of Energy is out there in a vacuum creating their own data," said Lundberg. "Our sample is 16,700 stations. There is one and only one definitive source for prices and it happens to be in the private sector. Our stuff is definitive." The DOE price list published Monday brought angry protests from service station operators complaining that motorists were using outdated figures based on erroneous wholesale prices to accuse them of price gouging. Jay Thompson, the DOE official in charge of compiling the list, said Wednesday he did not know how the figures were computed. "The first one that went out was a prototype and I don't know the sources that went into it," Thompson said. He said the list to be issued today would be compiled with the aid of information from major oil firms. However, several oil industry sources said they might not be willing to give DOE the data it sought, and said independent dealers would not be covered by information from the major firms. Among the errors in the original list was a maximum Los Angeles retail price for regular leaded gasoline sold by Union Oil. Union officials said the company doesn't sell regular leaded in Los Angeles. James Peterson, the DOE official whose department sends monthly price questionnaires to some 6,500 service stations, said the resulting information is "30 to 40 days old" by the time it is processed. He said he did not know if the data was used to compile the list issued Monday.

Suit termed 'hot potatoes'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Carter urged former Attorney General Griffin Bell not to join in a controversial anti-trust suit against the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the judge in the case has said from the bench. U.S. District Court Judge A. Andrew Hauk, who is to hear final arguments today, disclosed Wednesday he had discussed the case with Bell during a chance meeting at Palm Springs, Calif.

He said Bell called the case "hot potatoes." "I wanted amicus curiae (friend-of-the-court) briefs from the State Department, Energy Department and the Treasury Department on this sort of thing," the judge declared.

"I even asked the attorney general at Palm Springs. I said, 'Mr. attorney general,' and he said, 'Call me Griff.' 'Griff,' I said, 'Why didn't you file a brief in this case?' Hauk recalled. He said, 'You got hot potatoes on your hands...'"

Hauk said Bell then explained that the Justice Department wanted to file a brief in the case, "but the president didn't want us to."

Hauk later indicated he is reluctant to take jurisdiction in the unique suit filed by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers to stop price fixing by the oil cartel. He commented further after a witness testified that the U.S. government had agreed 19 years ago to billion-dollar price increases by OPEC.

"It's a strong indication to this court that I shouldn't be sticking my judicial nose into the federal government or the Carter administration," he said, "because if I do, I'll have it clipped off."

Morris A. Adelman, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology economics professor, said a 1960 agreement allowed multinational oil companies to pass along OPEC price increases to American consumers with Washington's blessing.

"The OPEC nations' price raising through tax increase and output restrictions was approved by the United States government," Adelman said in a written report submitted to the court.

Adelman, appointed by Hauk as an expert witness to assist him in the case, testified in the third day of hearings.

The OPEC suit, filed last December by the IAM, claims oil exporting countries violated the Sherman Antitrust Act by fixing prices for their crude. It contends the OPEC nations are subject to U.S. laws because they do business in this country, a legal interpretation Hauk has not yet accepted.

Sixty-one oil, gas projects scheduled in RRC's District 8

The Permian Basin areas of West Texas and southeast New Mexico gained 132 new oil and gas operations last week, including 25 wildcats and 108 field operations.

The Railroad Commission of Texas' District 8 headquarters in Midland processed 61 application requesting permission to drill. Ten of those were requests for wildcat work.

Culberson County gained four of the wildcats, and Andrews, Howard, Mitchell, Pecos, Reeves and Ward each gained one. Crane County led the district in number of field operations with 13. Pecos County was the site for eight tests in proven field areas.

Crockett County in Railroad Commission District 7 lead all Basin counties in number of projects, with 17 field operations and two wildcat tests.

Other District 7 wildcats were in Tom Green, where three were staked, and Coke County which got one.

Viet families flee as violence flares in housing project

DENVER (AP) — A gang of Hispanic youths armed with clubs and a hammer attacked a Vietnamese man and smashed the windows out of his car as new violence flared in a housing project where tensions between the ethnic groups have caused refugee families to flee, police said.

Police and remaining Vietnamese in the area came to the man's rescue before he was seriously injured Wednesday night, authorities said. The beaten man was not identified.

Police reported no arrests. Patrol cars cruised the project during the night, and no new incidents were reported early today.

Nearly all of the 22 Vietnamese families in the predominantly Hispanic low-income housing project had moved out earlier this week after simmering tensions between the two groups broke into violence.

"I don't know where they went," Bernard Valdez, director of the Denver Department of Social Services, said Wednesday.

Some of the Vietnamese left behind identification cards and visas in their haste to get out, a spokesman for the refugees said.

"I don't even know how many there were," Valdez said. "It was somewhat crowded. Many left to move in with friends and relatives, and my understanding is, they would not tell where they were going because they were afraid they would be followed."

The window-breaking confrontation that erupted Monday night capped racial friction between the Vietnamese and Hispanic residents of the area known as the "Projects" that had been smoldering for nearly six months.

The tensions result from cultural and language differences, and one economically deprived group's jealousy and frustration over the arrival of another such group, authorities say.

"For years, there has been a strain on services...waiting lines for housing, social services. You have problems existing. Then you compound a situation that is not working well by interjecting another ethnic group also in need and a competitive situation arises," said state Rep. Rich Castro, whose district includes part of the troubled area.

It was the second violent confrontation in recent weeks involving Vietnamese who have fled their homeland for the United States.

Long-simmering tensions between refugees and local fishermen, shrimpers and crabbers in Seardrift, Texas, came to a head earlier this month when a crabber was shot to death. Two Vietnamese were charged in the slaying, and four Vietnamese boats and a house were subsequently firebombed.

Two arbitrators from the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of San Antonio have been attempting to patch up the feud through the church's resettlement program and the U.S. Catholic Conference.

An estimated 200,000 Vietnamese have resettled in the United States since the end of the Vietnam War.

There are more than 400,000 boat people in camps in Southeast Asia awaiting resettlement after fleeing their homelands. The United States recently agreed to accept 220,000 additional Indochinese refugees, most of them from Vietnam.

Lou Nga Thi, a Vietnamese woman with daughter and granddaughter on her lap, waits in the front seat of the family car as she prepares to move from the Lincoln Park housing development in Denver, Colo. Fourteen Vietnamese families have fled the predominantly Mexican-American residential area after a racial disturbance. (AP Laserphoto)

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Mae West is making her debut next week as a huckster in a radio commercial, or, as she puts it, "breaking my vow of commercial chastity."

The wise-cracking stage and screen actress has signed for several 30-second commercials for Poland Spring Water, premiering in California, it was announced Wednesday.

Miss West claims to be 86 years old — on the rare occasions when she will discuss her age. In her first commercial scheduled for showing Tuesday, she kids herself on the subject of age by saying: "I've been drinking Poland Spring Water for about — hmm — 20 years. Started when I was four."

"I'm just crazy about it," she says of the product. "... I invited the boys from Poland Spring to come up and see me some time — and they did. The rest, as they say, is history."

SALZBURG, Austria (AP) — Conductor Leonard Bernstein says he's putting up his baton — at least for a year — to concentrate on composing.

"I've promised myself, no I've even sworn, that I won't lift my baton for the entire year 1980," Bernstein, the former music director of the New York Philharmonic, told reporters Tuesday evening during a break in the Salzburg Festival, where he is conducting both the Israel Philharmonic and the Vienna Philharmonic orchestras.

He said he needs a whole year free from conducting to think clearly about composing his own music.

"What will come out I don't know. But I don't think it will be a symphony. An opera, maybe. A cello sonata. Or perhaps a flute piece. There are so many things I've never written. It might even be something very modest."

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Red Skelton advises aspiring comics to keep their acts clean and says they should give the profession the "same dedication as a monk."

Many comics become "victims of laughter" and resort to dirty language and off-color jokes "just for the big laugh," the 66-year-old comedian told a group of aspiring entertainers Wednesday during a one-day clown class at Radio City Music Hall.

If a clean act doesn't go over, he advised, "add a little class and make it look like you're leading the parade if you're run out of town."

ELLSINORE, Denmark (AP) — Hamlet was done in by more than a sword when a gala performance of the Shakespearean tragedy by Britain's Old Vic theater company in the courtyard of historic Kronborg Castle was washed out by a rainstorm.

Thunder and lightning Wednesday night added drama to the encounter of Hamlet, played by Derek Jacobi, with his father's ghost on the battlements. But the cloudburst halted the production in the first act, long before Ophelia, played by Jane Wymark, would have been drowned in the play.

The dampened audience of 2,000, headed by Queen Ingrid, the Queen Mother and Prime Minister Anker Joergensen, streamed out of the castle.

MOSCOW (AP) — Two returned Soviet cosmonauts said that during their 175-day flight "we were so close to the stars that it seemed we could reach out and touch them," the Tass news agency reports.

Vladimir Lyakhov and Valery Ryumin, who returned to Earth Sunday, acknowledged that occasionally they may have had irritable words with each other during the long flight, "but each of us hastened to say a nice word, a joke and all was cleared up," Tass said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the two men are building up their space-weakened muscles through daily gymnastic exercises and jogging, the news agency said.

Fraud convictions mark beginning of crackdown

DALLAS (AP) — A federal prosecutor says the fraud convictions of a Dallas lawyer and a Florida businessman mark the beginning of a government crackdown on the "laundering" of an estimated $40 billion a year in illegal drug profits through foreign banks.

A federal jury in Dallas Wednesday convicted Raymond A. Enstam of Dallas and Ralph Oliver Holley of Brooksville, Fla., of defrauding the government by obstructing the collection of taxes on at least $400,000 in profits from a coast-to-coast cocaine operation.

Both men face possible a five years in prison for their part in the money-laundering scheme that used banks in the Cayman Islands.

"This is the first prosecution of this type of offense at this time," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Jay Ethington.

"But $40 billion in drug profits are going untaxed and we've started now to recognize the problem," he said. "This is only the first of these kind of prosecutions that the federal government will bring."

The government contended that Enstam prepared the legal paperwork to make the drug profits appear to be untaxable "loans" and that Holley headed a Florida company called Brittle Oaks, which served as a receptacle for the "laundered" money.

Ethington said the Dallas case was a "forerunner" of a federal investigation called Operation Banco, which has led to several similar federal indictments.

The FBI, Drug Enforcement Administration and U.S. Customs have started to push hard to stop illegal drug money from leaving the country.

In the Dallas case, prosecutors claimed $400,000 in drug profits plus $50,000 from undercover narcotics agents were taken to the Cayman Islands in suitcases and paper bags to be converted into "phony" loans.

The Caymans are a small chain of British islands just south of Cuba with a population of 3,500. The islands have nearly 300 banks whose transactions are covered by a secrecy law.

Preregistration at Midland College running ahead of last year's pace

Preregistration for the fall semester at Midland College is running ahead of last year's count.

Registrar Dee Windsor said 1,675 persons had preregistered through Wednesday, which is about 100 above the count for the same time last year.

Only three more days remain to preregister, Windsor pointed out. The early counseling and preregistration closes Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Persons planning to attend Midland College for credit courses this fall are encouraged to preregister to save time. Preregistration is handled in the Office of Student Services in the Administration Building weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Registration is set for Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 29 and 30, in the Physical Education Building. Hours of registration are 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 4:30 to 8 p.m. both days.

"Students who aren't able to preregister should report to the P.E. Building between 6 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Thursday, and we will handle all their preregistration and registration activities at that time," Windsor said. "There won't be any registration activities Friday, and after Thursday night students will have to pay a late-registration fee."

Classes for the fall term start Tuesday, Sept. 4. Midland College will be closed Sept. 3 in observance of Labor Day.

Persons who need additional information about registration or classes being offered this fall may call 684-7851, extension 166.

Man charged with armed robbery

A 23-year-old man was arrested Wednesday in Fort Worth and charged with the recent armed robbery of a Midland convenience store, officials said today.

Paul Dee Nobles, released from the U.S. Navy about two months ago, was arrested about 3:30 p.m. at his parents' home in Fort Worth following a stakeout by state and local law enforcement authorities, Midland police said.

Nobles was expected to be transferred to Midland sometime today, officials said.

The Wednesday arrest of Nobles was the result of a week-long investigation by Detective Sgt. Jerry Compton of the Midland Police Department, Sgt. Don Roberts of the Department of Public Safety criminal intelligence division and Ranger David Burns of the Texas Rangers, officials said.

The investigation began to solidify when, police said, when a pickup noticed by witnesses near the scene of an armed robbery last week was spotted several days later in Midland by a patrol officer.

A check of the vehicle registration indicated the pickup had been reported stolen earlier in the month in San Marcos by Nobles' ex-roommate, police said.

Further investigation determined that Nobles was expected to fly into Fort Worth sometime Wednesday, officials said. Acting on that information police staked out the house where Nobles was arrested, police said.
