Characters never change, the story's always the same and audiences know what's going to happen before they ever walk in. But the show has run for 30 years and more than 600 performances in Midland. Read about it Sunday in West Texas Life.

In a Man's World

A feminists' slogan contends that on the job "a woman has to be twice as good to be considered half as good as a man. Fortunately, that is not difficult." Sunday, four Midland women explain how they're making it in "a man's world."

Series on Sept. 4 Bond Issue

Midland voters will go to the polls Sept. 4 to decide the fate of a $16.83 million bond issue proposed by the City Council. Staff writer Lana Cunningham writes about each proposal in a seven-part series beginning Sunday in The Reporter-Telegram.

Rain, wind lash Midland

Sudden storm catches most off guard

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

Torrential rain, winds in excess of 50 mph and hail struck Midland at mid-afternoon Thursday, flooding streets, buffeting trees and pedestrians and breaking some windows.

The unexpected storm caught most Midlanders off guard although the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport had issued a warning at 2:50 p.m., effective for an hour.

Rain came down in sheets, drenching pedestrians and quickly flooding a number of city streets.

Accumulations ranged higher than two inches at some points in the city during the brief storm.

A radio station reported receiving 2.2 inches and the rain gauge at The Midland Reporter-Telegram in downtown Midland registered 1.9 inches. A reported 1.13 inches of rain fell at Cuthbert Avenue and A Street, .96 inch at Big Spring Street and Cuthbert Avenue and .8 inch one mile southeast of Midland Air Park.

Winds in excess of 50 mph were recorded at the weather service just prior to 3 p.m., according to a spokesman there, and forceful gusts broke tree limbs inside the city.

Hail peppered the Tall City for several minutes. According to reports, the hail ranged from pea-sized to quarter-sized. The hailstones caused some damage in the city in the form of broken windows and damaged plants. According to a man at the Midland Farmers' Coop, hail in the Valley View community, five miles southeast of the city, damaged about 2,000 acres of cotton. He said the cotton was valued at approximately $187,500 before the storm. At least the equivalent of 500 to 750 bales of cotton were lost as a result of the storm, he estimated.

The coop itself, located on Midland's east side, received 1.7 inches of rain during the storm, he indicated. An apartment complex on Midland's north side recorded 1.1 inches of rain and Midkiff, 34 miles southeast of

Suit against OPEC for price fixing thrown out of court by federal judge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal judge, rejecting a unique effort to stop oil price fixing, has ruled that United States courts do not have jurisdiction over "sovereign nations" that export oil.

U.S. District Judge A. Andrew Hauk said Thursday he could not go forward with an antitrust suit filed against member nations of the Organization of Oil Exporting Countries because they are not subject to the U.S. Sherman Anti-Trust Act. Hauk said each OPEC nation is entitled to protect its own natural resource, oil, for the benefit of its citizens through systems of taxation, royalties and buy-backs.

"The question is, do I have jurisdiction? The answer is that I do not," the judge said in a ruling that followed four days of testimony and legal arguments.

The suit, filed last December by the 900,000-member International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, sought an injunction to block the cartel from fixing crude oil prices.

OPEC quadrupled the world price of crude oil in 1973-74, and has raised prices more than 50 percent in the past year. Increases in the price OPEC nations charge for oil generally are reflected in the cost of petroleum products to the American consumer.

Hauk said a decisive factor in his ruling was the plaintiffs' failure to prove that OPEC countries conducted business on U.S. soil.

"If the plaintiffs could show the sheiks came over here for any other reason than to buy boutiques in Beverly Hills and go to the gambling tables of Las Vegas, I would be inclined to say it was an excellent suit," he declared.

Hauk said he does not believe that the 13 nations of the OPEC cartel hold meetings solely "to fix prices to rip off the world."

Their gatherings, he said, are for discussion of taxes, royalties and buy-backs that will help each country to "preserve their natural resources."

"These are sovereign agreements to carry out sovereign acts to stabilize prices for their own sovereign benefit, not just for profit," said Hauk.

Nonaligned may not push for U.N. vote on state of Palestine

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Non-aligned members of the U.N. Security Council conferred today on whether to press for a vote on a Palestinian statehood resolution that U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young says he will veto.

A well-placed source said some "don't want to embarrass Mr. Young" by forcing him to "cast a final vote as a veto" and others would like to refrain from voting because that would close out further Palestinian debate in the Council during the present session.

The private consultation among the nonaligned countries forced a delay of a Council meeting on a resolution to "affirm" the Palestinians' "rights of self-determination, national independence and sovereignty in Palestine."

Young's press spokesman, Thomas E. Offenburger, said if the decision was to ask for a vote, the Council would hold off its session until later in the day to give delegates time to draft explanations of their positions.

Some Arab representatives made public statements earlier that they expected the council to vote on the resolution, but some Western delegates predicted the Council would adjourn without voting.

Israel said its diplomats, armed with a pledge of a U.S. veto, were lobbying for an early vote on the resolution. Officials in Jerusalem said they wanted to avoid any delay in which a compromise resolution might be put forward to supersede the resolution calling for a Palestinian state.

Senegal, chairman of the U.N. Committee on Palestinian Rights which drafted the resolution, filed the measure Thursday night after the Council adjourned and was to present it formally today with a speech in the Council.

Although Senegal is not a member of the Council, any U.N. member can submit a resolution. But it can be vetoed on only if a member asks for a vote.

Reporters asked the Arab member of the council, Ambassador Abdalla Yaccoub Bishara of Kuwait, if there would be a vote, and he replied, "I think so."

The Palestine Liberation Organization's U.N. observer, Zehdi Labib Terzi, also said he expected a vote. But some Western diplomats said there would be no request for a vote.

Young is this month's Council president, but he resigned last week because of an unauthorized meeting with Terzi that embarrassed the Carter administration and outraged Israel, told reporters after the Council session Thursday he was ready to veto the resolution on orders from Washington.

"I feel very good about the situation, whatever it is," he added.

Egyptian Ambassador A. Esmat Abdel Meguid opened the debate with a call for approval of a resolution upholding "restoration of the inalienable national rights of the Palestinian people." He said Israel "committed itself to resolving the Palestinian problem in all its aspects" when it signed the Camp David accords that produced the Egyptian-Israeli peace pact.

But Israeli Ambassador Yehuda Z. Blum said Security Council Resolution 242 of 1967, which speaks only of resolving the Palestinian refugee question, "cannot be supplemented without damaging its delicate balance." Blum said tampering with 242 could "gravely jeopardize the current peace process and this is precisely what the initiators of the this debate want."

The proposal under question seeks to supplement 242 by adding fulfillment of Palestinian rights to the steps 242 calls for to bring about a general Middle East peace. After "reaffirming" 242, it "affirms" that "the Palestinian people should be enabled to exercise its inalienable rights of self-determination, national independence and sovereignty in Palestine."

Lending institutions cast cloud over mortgage plan

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

"What this boils down to is a philosophical thing. Midland is a redneck city," Gene Abbott of the Midland Housing Finance Corp. said Thursday during a meeting with representatives of local lending institutions.

The non-profit corporation had called the orientation session in the conference room at City Hall to review the Single Family Mortgage Revenue Financing Program and to seek support from the lending institutions in participating in the program.

But after two hours of discussion, future of the financing program looked doubtful. Citing philosophical reasons and a preference to hand out their own money at a higher interest rate, the financiers present said they doubted their institutions will support the program.

The MHFC was approved by the Midland City Council to handle the housing finance program under state law. The City of Midland Housing Authority had started work on that program, but state law prohibits the housing authority from carrying out the program.

Charter members of the MHFC are Harry Clark, Fred Kester and Gene Abbott. Assisting the trio in explaining the system Thursday were Mark Tessier with the underwriting firm of Howard, Weil, LaBouisse and Friedrich's in New Orleans, La., and Thornton Lurie, a finance counselor. Tessier and Lurie have worked with similar revenue bond financing programs in other cities.

CLARK EXPLAINED the program was designed to provide home mortgage loans to middle income families at a cheaper interest rate.

A survey of Midland has shown the average household income to be $33,000. According to Clark, maximum limits on the program would enable consideration of a family with about $33,000 income for a loan on a $65,000 house. Maximum amount of bonds that could be sold is $39.7 million.

"This is a method of raising low interest, long term mortgage funds," Tessier told the group of about 50 interested citizens and lending institution representatives.

"This is not designed as a giveaway. It can only function if the loans are good, debt-worthy solid loans. You do not lower the standards on lending money," he emphasized.

Normal routes would be followed in processing the application and loan, Tessier added.

Midlanders applying for the loans must live in that house; it can't be used as rental property, according to the underwriter.

Bonds for similar programs in other cities recently have sold for 7.05 to 7.16 percent interest, Tessier said. By the time all charges of servicing the loan are added, interest rate to the applicants would range from 7½ to 7¾ percent, he said.

"MIDLAND COULD OFFER loans with a mortgage rate of less than 8 percent and bring sorely needed capital into the community," Tessier remarked.

But here, representatives of the lending institutions and real estate business began to question the program's merits.

After several expressed doubts about needing $40 million for home loans, Abbott said the City of Midland Housing Authority, which first began pursuing the program, initially discussed selling only $20 million in revenue bonds.

"I feel we need feedback from you (lending institutions) on what would be good for the community," Abbott

Midlander bilked of $1,550 by disappearing salesman

He began to get suspicious, a Midland man told police Thursday, while waiting on the loading dock of a Tall City freight business.

Earlier, in front of Merchant's Fast Motor Lines, John Kramer had handed $1,550 in cash to a man in exchange for eight television sets and a number of washers and dryers, he told police.

Kramer, who lives on Cotton Flat Road, told officers that after he handed over the money, the man told him to back his truck up to the loading dock of the business and wait there for his merchandise.

The man was nowhere to be found when Kramer went looking for him, police were told.

An employee at the freight company said a man believed to be the person Kramer was waiting for had entered the business earlier, asked if they would ship freight to Amarillo, and left, police said.

Kramer previously had listed the serial numbers of the 15 $100 bills and one $50 bill he gave the stranger, police said.

Mexico won't discuss cost of cleanup

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Runaway Mexican crude oil crept further up the already oil-stained Texas coast today as the Mexican government refused to discuss with the United States who should pay for the damage.

Former Rep. Robert Krueger of Texas, the new U.S. coordinator for Mexican affairs, said Thursday the United States will ask Mexico to pay for at least part of the cost of cleaning the soiled beaches.

Patches of filmy sheen, the least dangerous form of the spill, took advantage of the squall to seep through the Brazos Santiago Pass and past the damaged boom.

Coast Guard officials have placed protective equipment in Port O'Connor near the pass, which is some 100 miles up the coast from Corpus Christi.

Taking a close look at a tree struck by lightning during Thursday's storm is Chris King, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. King, 5 Bentley Court. King and some friends were sitting in the clubhouse at Ranchland Hills Country Club when the bolt struck, just yards away from the building.

Only a few vehicles made it through the underpass on Big Spring Street at Industrial Avenue Thursday after a storm dumped more than two inches of rain on parts of Midland in slightly more than an hour.

Carter buoyed by river crowds

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

ABOARD THE DELTA QUEEN (AP) — President Carter tried his hand as a riverboat gambler, and may come away with a couple of chips.

For weeks, the president had been saying that he meant to take his case to the country, to break away from the confines of Washington and the concerns of the government establishment.

He did it on a Mississippi River excursion boat, in effect wagering that the people along his course would respond and provide a counter to the bleak news the pollsters have been delivering month after month.

They did. At dusk or midnight, at 8 a.m. in a heavy downpour, even at 3 a.m., the president drew crowds along the river. It didn't solve his foreign policy problems, or get his energy tax bill passed. But it did provide a lift.

People even waded into the water to get a glimpse of Carter, and as one fellow passenger observed, it had to be an ego trip.

That doesn't necessarily mean Carter's sagging political ratings are about to be reversed. But the week-long cruise ending today can only be a plus for Carter.

The president seems buoyed by the enthusiastic crowds he has encountered along the river after the political buffet he took in Washington this summer.

An analysis

The pace has hardly been one that most people would associate with a vacation. But between bouts of feverish handshaking, the president was able to read, lounge in the sun and chat with fellow passengers, including on several occasions groups of reporters.

He was relaxed on those occasions and took time to marvel at a particularly stunning sunset and to watch the river flow.

The president in effect acknowledged to about 5,000 people gathered on the muddy shore in Dubuque, Iowa, that their presence did not mean they were all supporting Jimmy Carter.

Instead, he said, they were showing their respect for the president of the United States.

But then there were the two farmers who walked several miles to watch the Delta Queen with the president on board pass through a lock at Fulton, Iowa. After shaking Carter's hand, they came away believers and said they were ready to vote for him next year.

The intensity of the crowds amazed some of those who watched from upper decks as the president vaulted the boat's railing and climbed ashore and moved slowly along chain-link fences to shake almost every hand. He came away wringing his own hands from the exercise.

"It's electric, an explosion almost," said Tom Atkins, an employee of the boat company. He was commenting on the intensity and the anxiety of those close enough to shake his hand, but not knowing whether they would get the chance.

The crowds along the river have surprised the passengers, the White House staff and the president. Carter told reporters, in one of a couple of long, rambling conversations he had with them aboard the ship, that neither he nor his advance team had anticipated the turnout.

White House staff members traveled the route of the river last week to plan the president's stops and help bring out the crowds. But they and Carter said no one on the White House team worked on the spontaneous events at the river's massive locks. Nor, they said, did they put together the noisy groups that shouted greetings across the water to Carter from beaches and bluffs.

In fact, it wasn't until the president got word from Secret Service agents traveling along shore that he became aware crowds were forming.

Steamboat company hoping Carter trip will pay dividends

By The Associated Press

The Delta Queen Steamboat Co. expects an increase in business because of President Carter's seven-day Mississippi River cruise aboard one of its boats. A spokesman says, however, that it's too early to tell exactly what the impact of the first family's trip will be.

"The bookings are not up yet, but the phone call activity is," said Mark Tullis, a spokesman for the Cincinnati-based company which operates the Delta Queen, which Carter is sailing on, and a sister steamboat, the Mississippi Queen.

"We don't think we'll feel the booking increase for three or four weeks," Tullis said today, adding that many of this week's callers have been people who lived along the route of the president's cruise and wanted to know how to get a glimpse of him.

The company already is advertising 1980 cruises; Tullis said "people normally book three to six months in advance." But there is still some space available on 1979 September and October Journeys on both Queens. This year's cruises last seven nights, Tullis said. Next year, the company plans shorter cruises and hopes to attract more people.

Carter is paying $1,800 for himself, his wife and daughter Amy. Prices on the Delta Queen range from $755 to $1,010 per person for the seven-night cruises.

Price of beef beginning to decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beef prices have started to come down, at least at two fast-food chains, and a similar trend may be under way at supermarkets.

The Labor Department's release today of its Consumer Price Index for July was expected to show whether the decline in beef prices that began at grocery stores in June has continued.

Retail beef prices had risen sharply for eight months before falling 1.3 percent in June, department figures show. Pork and poultry prices were also down in June, pork for the third straight month.

The recent improvements in prices at the meat counter, however, were not enough to offset rapid fuel cost increases. As a result, consumer prices overall rose close to 1 percent or more in each of the first six months this year.

The 13.2 percent annual rate of increase in the first half of 1979 was the fastest pace for any six-month period since 1951, government analysts said.

Carter administration economists believe, however, that the worst of the food and fuel price increases are over and that inflation will moderate in the second half of the year.

In hopes of aiding that trend, the president met last week with food processors, wholesalers and retailers and urged them to pass along to consumers the lower prices now prevalent at the farm level.

The "hamburger war" has brought some food-price relief to customers of many McDonalds and Roy Rogers fast-food outlets.

Marriott Corp. announced Thursday that it was reducing the price of quarter-pound hamburgers and quarter-pound cheeseburgers between 4 cents and 10 cents at its 170 Roy Rogers restaurants. The price cuts take effect Tuesday.

The action followed a McDonald's Corp. move Tuesday to cut hamburger and cheeseburger prices a nickel at its 1,225 corporately owned and operated restaurants.

Presidential panel expected to be very critical of NRC

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential panel investigating nuclear safety procedures is almost certain to be highly critical of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and call for widespread changes in its operation, investigators say.

Many of the 12 members of the commission investigating the Three Mile Island accident made no secret Thursday of their displeasure with the NRC as they chastized the regulatory agency's staff for a decision to resume licensing of new nuclear plants.

The staff decision quickly was reconsidered and now remains in limbo until the five NRC commissioners can decide on the matter. The staff decision would have affected operating licenses or construction permits for 10 reactors in six states. The NRC froze all licensing of new power plants last May because of the Pennsylvania accident.

Another commission member, Harry C. McPherson, a lawyer and onetime adviser to President Lyndon B. Johnson, alluded earlier to serious management and policymaking problems within the NRC.

"These policy situations will result in future TMI-2s (as the crippled reactor at Three Mile Island often is called) unless things are changed," McPherson told Harold Denton, the NRC's director of reactor safeguards.

Another panel member, Theodore Taylor, a nuclear physicist from Princeton University, concluded, "I find myself unsure that the NRC is organized to do its job in the guaranteeing of safe operation of reactors."

And commissioner Anne Trunk, a housewife who lives in Middletown, Pa., near the Three Mile Island plant, told Denton she has lost trust in the NRC. "I just don't feel that you know everything that you have to know to run a (nuclear) plant safely," she said.

Since the Three Mile Island accident, NRC officials have instituted numerous internal investigations trying to determine where the agency's policies might have contributed to the Pennsylvania accident.

From NRC Chairman Joseph Hendrie to middle-level staff technicians, NRC witnesses have told the panel it is clear in retrospect that not enough priority was given to safety matters.

"We are going to write a (nuclear-energy) bill next month and the moratorium question will be a part of that bill," the House Interior Committee chairman said at a news conference Thursday. He had just toured Arizona's $3 billion Palo Verde nuclear power plant, capping two days of visits and hearings on energy installations in Arizona.

Udall predicts nuclear plants will keep going

WINTERSBURG, Ariz. (AP) — The 72 nuclear power plants in the United States are likely to keep going despite Three Mile Island, and most of the 96 under construction "are probably going to be built," but some of those just getting started may be in danger of a congressional ban, predicts Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz.

Rigney proud of M-Cubs

The Midland Cubs, "two games out in front and with 10 yet to play," are in excellent position to win the second half in the Western Division of the Texas League, Bill Rigney, general manager of the Cubs, told members of the Midland Rotary Club at their Thursday noon meeting in the Midland Hilton.

"We have had a good season and the kids have played hard all the way," Rigney said, adding that the Cubs missed winning the first half by only three percentage points.

"The team has been great on offense and is leading the league in hitting and runs scored," he said.

"And we are about to set an attendance record," Rigney continued, explaining that attendance has averaged 1,300 persons a night, ranking third in the league, behind El Paso and Little Rock.

Rigney lauded Manager Randy Hydeley on the excellent job he has done in leading the Cubs through a successful season.

"We not only have the best club in the Texas League's Western Division, we also have the best manager," the speaker said.

Interesting incidents which have occurred during the season also were related by Rigney, who was introduced by John Williams, program chairman.

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell today, with analysts attributing the decline to news of hefty increases in consumer prices and the nation's money supply.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues was off 3.84 to 876.54 at noon. Declining issues led advances by an 8-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Just before the market opened, the Labor Department said that consumer prices in July rose 1 percent, the same as in June and a 12 percent annual rate.

That news came on top of Thursday's report that the nation's basic money supply had risen $1.8 billion in the most recent reporting week.

The NYSE's composite average of its more than 1,500 listed common stocks was off 21 to 61.75 at noon. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 18 to 215.05.

Riverboat ride may be preview of Carter strategy

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — President Carter ended a week-long campaigning cruise down the Mississippi River that he says could be a preview of his re-election strategy.

Carter insisted to reporters that "I am not a candidate" yet. But he said that should he run, he would try to balance national advertising and big-city campaigning with visits like those he has made with the score in the last week to small towns he has not been to before.

The president continued his grueling round of speech-making and hand-shaking at the river's locks and dams late into the night and early this morning before docking under St. Louis' landmark Gateway Arch.

Several thousand gathered at the riverfront in St. Louis heard the president call — as he has all week — for conservation of energy and for help in passing his proposed tax on oil company revenues.

"Work with me and the U.S. Congress to overcome the oil lobby," Carter pleaded. While the crowd was friendly, it did include the largest and noisiest contingent of protesters against Carter's energy policies that he has encountered on the trip.

"Windfall no; price control," they chanted, expressing a preference for price controls on domestic crude oil which Carter has lifted off and opposition to his proposed "windfall profits" tax.

Later, as Carter boarded the steps of Air Force One for the flight back to Washington, he carried a red baseball bat presented to him by Stan Musial, the former St. Louis Cardinals star.

Carter jogged at midnight across Dam No. 25 at Linfield, Mo., where the sternwheeler Delta Queen paused while going through a lock. He shook hands with a crowd of several hundred there, then, after a few hours sleep, arose at 4:15 a.m. to address another crowd at Lock and Dam 26 in Alton, Ill.

Carter was up again at 6:45 a.m., awakened by the ship's band leader, Vic Tooker, who played a chorus of "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning" on the steam calliope, whose whistles are located directly over the staterooms occupied by Carter, wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy. Tooker said the president had left a wakeup call.

Burglary of automobile results in the loss of property worth $515

An automobile burglary reported to Midland police Thursday resulted in the loss of property valued at $515, officials said. A tape deck, tapes, a transit level and a calculator were reported taken from a vehicle parked at El Rancho Grande Club, 409 E. Scharbauer Drive, police said.

A burglary in the 200 block of Edgewood Drive was reported Thursday to police. A television set valued at $350 was reported taken, police said.

Several signs of forced entry to the residence, officers indicated. Four ceiling fans valued at $350 Thursday were reported taken from the back of a pickup parked at La Bodega Restaurant, 2700 N. Big Spring St., police said.

Coins and currency were reported taken from a Midland County Sheriff's Department office. The coins and currency were valued at $350, the deputy said.

There were signs of forced entry to the home, the official said. A 3,000-pound gate valve Thursday was reported stolen from Memeco Machine Supply, 3101 W. Front St., police said.

The red and blue valve, valued at $3,000, apparently was taken Wednesday night, police said.

Several gas dealers lowering prices here

While some Midland gasoline dealers are raising their prices to cover operating expenses, several dealers are lowering the price due to competition pressures. A Midland dealer recently lowered the price of his stations' gasoline by three cents because he said he was losing customers to other service stations and convenience stores.

The move was an effort to regain his lost business and was not, he noted, a company-wide policy. In a brief check of several other Midland gasoline stations today, most reported recent three- to four-cent increases in gasoline prices. And most predicted the price will continue to go up, unless competition pressures force them to lower their prices.

Several station operators reported a surplus of gasoline as a result of lost business. Also, a few Midland service station operators today said they will begin staying open and selling gasoline on Sundays.

That development, they said, is a new one in that, at this time of the month, most stations have been closing on the weekends because they have expended their monthly allocation.

DC-10 lands safely after engine explodes

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — A Northwest Orient Airlines DC-10, one of its three engines dead after a mid-air explosion, turned around just minutes after takeoff and made an emergency landing here to let off 167 passengers, some in tears but none injured.

The explosion took place about four minutes after the 6:45 p.m. Thursday departure for Spokane, Seattle and Portland.

The pilot, Capt. Glen Bowers, said he used a "routine" turnabout procedure to bring Flight 71 to a safe landing at Great Falls International Airport.

Passengers remained calm but some were in tears as they left the plane, one witness said.

Roy Rogers meets McDonald's in burger battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roy Rogers is taking on Ronald McDonald in a "range war" over the price of hamburgers. But other major fast-food companies say they're not ready to join the burger battle.

The Marriott Corp. locked horns with the McDonald Corp. Thursday by announcing that its Roy Rogers stores also would cut the price of hamburgers and cheeseburgers.

Richard Marriott, group vice president in charge of Marriott restaurant operations, said the $1.5 billion corporation would reduce the price of quarter-pound burgers by 4 to 10 cents in its 170 company-owned Roy Rogers restaurants.

Last Sunday, McDonald's, the nation's largest fast-food chain, cut the price of hamburgers and cheeseburgers in its 1,225 company-owned restaurants by a nickel.

McDonald's officials said most of the company's 3,460 franchisee outlet owners also had agreed to cut their hamburger and cheeseburger prices by 10 percent.

Roger Conner, a spokesman for the Marriott Corp., based in Bethesda Md., said the Roy Rogers price reduction would not affect other restaurants owned by Marriott, or the 71 independently-owned Roy Rogers restaurants. Some other major chains say they not only don't intend to join the price war, but contend they've been offering a bigger and cheaper product all along.

James Wenzell, investor relations coordinator at Wendy's International, Inc., in Columbus, Ohio, which has 1,681 restaurants, said: "We sell four ounces of meat for 89 cents. A (McDonald's) Big Mac, which is 3.2 ounces, sells for 95 cents. We feel we give you more meat and a higher quality sandwich for your money."

In Miami, Paul Reinhard, a spokesman for the Burger King Corp., said the "home of the Whopper" also has no plans to cut prices in its 450 company-owned restaurants.

Price of gold hits new high

LONDON (AP) — Gold prices leaped to record highs in early trading today on European markets while the dollar was mixed. Gold shot to $315.625 an ounce at mid-morning in Zurich, up from Thursday's close of $309.375.

The metal posted its previous record in Zurich on Wednesday when it hit $311.625, before closing at $309.25. In London, gold dealers set the morning fixing price at $314.70 an ounce.

Man dies after high-speed chase

ODESSA — A high-speed chase by Odessa police officers resulted in the death of a 31-year-old Odessa man Thursday morning.

Charles David Maupin was killed when his pickup struck a curb and ran into a gasoline pump at a convenience store about 1:30 a.m. Thursday, according to reports.

from the car they were filling with gas just before Maupin's truck hit the pump.

The rear of the customers' 1979-model car was damaged by heat and smoke as a result of the explosion and fire, which shot flames more than 15 feet into the air, reports indicated.

Maupin was pronounced dead at the scene by Peace Justice Virgil Lumpee. He apparently died from head and internal injuries, but was not burned in the fire, Lumpee said.

An Odessa police spokesman today noted the chase was necessary "to enforce traffic laws."

Maupin had led two police units on a nine-block chase at speeds of more than 70 mph, police said, after he reportedly spun his tires on a turn and refused to pull over when officers signaled him.

Judge raises man's bail

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A Tarrant County criminal judge prevented a burglary suspect from being released from jail on bond by raising his bail from $2,500 to $15,000 and keeping bondsmen from releasing him, The Dallas News reports.

Judge Randall Riley of Criminal District Court No. 3 took that action because the victim of the burglary is a friend of his, according to a copyrighted story Thursday.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals held in a similar case less than a year ago that when a district judge raises a prisoner's bond he is exceeding the authority granted him by the Texas Constitution.

Cancer center's application goes to attorney

Midland Memorial Hospital officials Thursday finally sent the often-delayed amended application for the proposed Allison Permian Basin Radiation Therapy Center to their Austin attorney.

Once the attorney has reviewed the application, amended to add $1.3 million in more powerful cancer treatment equipment to the facility, he will present it to the Texas Health Facilities Commission, officials said.

The state agency then will do its own review and must make a decision on whether it will issue a certificate of need for the project within 90 days.

A certificate of need must be issued before the facility can be built.

The state's review will include gathering comments from local hearings held by the Permian Basin Health Systems Agency.

The HSA had already given its approval to the original application, but that okay was challenged by officials of Odessa's Medical Center Hospital on procedural grounds.

Before the hearing process could be repeated, however, MMH officials withdrew the application to amend it based on recommendations from a nationally known cancer equipment consultant.

With the new higher-powered equipment, an ad-hoc advisory committee made up of members from throughout the region and new architect's drawings, Midland officials said they are confident the application should meet with little opposition in the review process this time.

The new equipment, they said, has eliminated the major objection of Odessa hospital officials that center as planned would merely have duplicated services already available in Odessa.

Officials had expected to mail the amended application two weeks ago, but were held up by last-minute changes and a delay in receiving the new architectural renderings.

Total cost for the facility has been increased to almost $3.5 million by changes in the application.

Mrs. Helon Y. Allison has donated $2 million of that amount, and the district has arranged to issue warrants for the remaining $1.34 million to cover the costs.

The warrants — 10-year notes to be purchased by local lending institutions — could be repurchased by the district before the 10-year term if money became available, MMH Administrator Wayne Ulrich noted today.

Basin hearing set on nuclear waste

ODESSA — Permian Basin residents will get a chance Sept. 18 to add their comments on the proposed underground nuclear waste facility in southeastern New Mexico.

The West Texas public hearing on the draft environmental statement for the facility will be held from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sept. 18 in The University of Texas of the Permian Basin auditorium here.

Nuclear wastes may be transported through the Midland-Odessa area by truck or train on their way to the New Mexico storage site.

At the hearing, designed to get public comment before the final environmental impact statement is written, will be Rick Lowerre, assistant state attorney general, and Professor Robert Hamilton of the UT Austin Law School, who will chair the panel.

Participants from the federal government have not been announced.

The Waste Isolation Pilot Plant is projected to be constructed by the Department of Energy 25 miles southeast of Carlsbad, N.M.

During New Mexico hearings on the draft environmental impact statement, opponents of the project raised a number of points including possible contamination of aquifers which supply much of the water used in West Texas and questions on the safety of transporting the highly radioactive nuclear wastes.

Proponents of the facility contend that disposal sites such as the WIPP project are necessary for the continued development of nuclear energy in the U.S.

The DOE plans to start construction of the project by 1981 if plans for the project are approved.

Wish for quiet death fear based

BOSTON (AP) — A patient's desire for "death with dignity" can be based on needless fears or a desire for attention, say two physicians who warn that doctors should be leery about meeting such requests.

The two Cleveland doctors said the recent trend to following patients' requests for a quiet death "may be somewhat naive, and, in certain clinical situations, potentially dangerous."

Home damaged

A house fire in Midland about 7:07 a.m. today caused moderate damage to the roof and frame of a residence, a Midland Fire Department official said.

Cause of the fire at 1912 E. Pecan St. had not been determined early today, officials said.

Firefighters spent about an hour at the scene, according to reports.

4-year-old has his own way of handling blind grandfather

SPENCER, W. Va. (AP) — Joey O'Brien, 4 years old, affectionately runs his fingers across the mouth of his grandfather. It's Joey's way of asking for candy.

When Joey wants a doughnut, he takes his grandfather by the hand and leads him to the kitchen.

His grandfather, Cecil Starcher, 72, is deaf, mute and blind. His grandmother, Katherine Starcher, 57, is deaf.

The family talks a lot, but not with words. Their language is one of gentle touches and warm smiles.

They talk less of being handicapped and their bad luck, more of the little things of life, their garden and their peppers, their dog, Patty, and memories of Cecil Starcher going down to the courthouse to sit on the benches outside with his friends in days gone by.

The O'Brien boys, Joey, James, 7, and John, 9, have made up their own signals to talk to their grandparents, who live next door in the white frame house Starcher built for $1,000 in 1938, before he went blind.

Mrs. Starcher can read her husband's sign language, which they both learned at the West Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind in Romney. He sometimes uses a pen and pad of paper, especially for visitors. He loves to meet people and joke, and visitors invariably leave with a brown bag full of peppers.

Mrs. Starcher talks to her husband by placing her hand on either the inside of his arm or in the palm of his hand and forming letters of the basic alphabet for the blind. He can feel the letters she's putting out and can respond in the same way.

She can read the lips of her daughter, Jeanie O'Brien, 27, who is the go-between with visitors. Mrs. O'Brien is the mother of the three boys. Mrs. Starcher talks some, but not always clearly.

Starcher spends his winter days shoveling snow and helping his wife with the housework. In the spring and summer, she helps him work on his garden.

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Exact Value of Bird

By Alfred Sheinwold

Everybody knows what a bird in the hand is worth, but only this column is precise. When the hand is at bridge and the bird is a duck, it is worth 700 points.

When South played low from dummy East won the first trick and returned a spade to the ace. Declarer promptly led clubs.

If West won, he couldn't lead a spade, and South had time to knock out the ace of clubs. If East took the first club, he could set up the spades but could never regain the lead. Either way South lost only two spades and two clubs, scoring 600 points for the game and rubber.

EARLY DUCK

Since the spade position was obvious East should duck (play low) at the first trick. Then West can win the first club and lead his other spade to dummy's ace.

East wins the second club and is then ready to take three spade tricks, scoring 100 points for defeating the contract. The duck makes a difference of 700 points.

The Precision Haircut Explained Precisely.

Because your head is unique, the way your hair grows is equally unique. Really quite different from every one else's.

Precision haircutting is a technique for cutting the hair in harmony with the way it grows. Your hair eventually grows out but it doesn't lose its shape with a precision haircut. Consequently your haircut will look as good after five days as it does after five minutes. And because the hair falls naturally into place you won't have to keep fussing with it. Usually a shake of the head does it.

At Command Performance we shampoo, precision-cut and blow dry your hair for fourteen dollars, whether you're a gal or a guy. And no appointments are ever necessary.

We also offer permanent waves, coloring, frosting and conditioning. But we really shine with precision. And so will you.

MC's orientation program helps freshmen

New students at Midland College shouldn't have to flounder around, wondering where everything is and who's in charge.

Almost everything a freshman student needs to know about Midland College is covered in a five-hour orientation program developed and presented by the Office of Student Services. Dean of Students C.C. Dakil is in charge of the orientation program.

New students for the fall semester are invited to attend orientation on Tuesday or next Friday, Aug. 31. Each session begins at 8 a.m. and lasts until 1 p.m. in the lecture hall of the Allison Fine Arts Building.

"All new students are encouraged to attend the orientation program. It helps answer so many questions for them and allows them to begin their college activities and classes with a minimum of confusion," Dakil said.

Students who complete the orientation receive one hour of college credit. They may sign up for the course during registration Aug. 29 and 30, although they may have attended the first orientation program before registration.

During the first hour, students will learn about study tips, academic transfers, degree plans, counseling services, testing, vocational careers and counseling, financial aids and job placement services.

The second hour includes reviews of the operation of the Learning Resource Center, bookstore contents, discipline, transcripts, graduation and role of the division chairmen.

The third hour is devoted to information about child care, parking, housing, first aid, student activities, clubs and organizations, intramurals and extramurals, entertainment at Chapparral Center, spectator sports and school spirit.

Bill Moore is running

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — A campaign committee has formed to promote the re-election of Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, chairman of the Senate State Affairs Committee, and has announced plans for an Oct. 23 fund-raising barbecue.

"Friends of Bill Moore" said the barbecue would be at Brazos Center here.

Dr. George Beto, former director of the state prison system, has been named chairman of the event.

Campus tours and tests of key points covered during orientation take up the final two hours.

"We always have a large number of freshmen at Midland College, particularly during the fall semester.

The orientation program has been developed to assist them in making an easy transition between high school and college," he noted.

"If anyone is the least bit hesitant about how to get started properly at MC, we encourage them to be on hand Tuesday for orientation... even if they haven't preregistered previously."

MC adds course in map drafting

Map Drafting is a new course being offered this fall by the Midland College drafting technology department.

Map Drafting I and Map Drafting II are designed especially as a result of local needs of the petroleum industry in the Permian Basin, according to instructor Curt Pervier.

Map Drafting I, which will be offered this fall, is the beginning course.

It is open to anyone interested in learning the basics of lettering, use of equipment, map plotting, well location plots and topographic symbols. No previous experience is required to enroll in this course.

Starting in the spring semester, Map Drafting II will provide advanced studies in land, geological, geophysical, engineering and presentation drawings.

Students enrolling in this course will be required to have completed Map Drafting I or have some experience in the field.

Persons interested in taking Map Drafting I are urged to pre-enroll through Aug. 28 at the Office of Student Services in the Administration Building between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

Fall semester registration will be held Aug. 29 and 30 with classes starting Sept. 4. Additional information may be obtained by calling 684-7851, extensions 193 or 166.

Pharmacy Board holds hearing on reinstatement

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The State Board of Pharmacy held hearings Thursday on a request by Proby Lee Griffin of Odessa for reinstatement of his pharmacist's license.

Griffin's license previously was revoked by the board due to a conviction involving welfare fraud, said pharmacy board staff member Roger Hernandez.

Hernandez said the board took action on Griffin's request, but he would not release any information on that action until a formal order has been drawn up and delivered to Griffin.

That order should be issued within 10 days, Hernandez said.

Two counts of forgery brings 10-year sentence

A 22-year-old Midland woman was given two 10-year probated prison sentences Wednesday afternoon after she pleaded guilty in Midland's 238th District Court to two counts of forgery by passing.

The two sentences assessed Veatrice L. Green are to run concurrently. The sentences were handed down by District Judge Vann Culp.

Ms. Green pleaded guilty to charges that she passed checks in Midland illegally on Jan. 11, 1978, and May 1, 1978.

She was represented by attorney James H. Eubank. The case was prosecuted by Assistant District Attorney David Joers.

Sentenced in check case

A man who pleaded guilty in 238th District Court here Tuesday to a charge of forgery by passing was assessed a 10-year sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections.

David Alan Smith, 25, address unknown, pleaded guilty before District Judge Vann Culp, who assessed the sentence.

According to Assistant District Attorney David Joers, who prosecuted the case, the sentence is to run concurrently with one federal sentence, and two state five-year and one state 20-year sentence from Ector County that Smith is currently serving.

Tuesday's conviction came in connection with an incident Nov. 17, 1978, during which Smith passed an illegal check in Midland.

Midlander gets probation

A 22-year-old Midland man has been assessed a three-year probated prison sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of attempted burglary of a building.

Jay Waldman, Apt. 50B, 2439 Whitmire Blvd., pleaded Thursday morning and was sentenced by 142nd District Court Judge Perry Pickett.

Waldman was charged in connection with the June 8, 1979, attempted burglary of a building belonging to J.W. Watley.

Assistant District Attorney David Joers prosecuted the case. Waldman was represented by attorney Mark Withrow.

Outlining a proposed Single Family Mortgage Revenue Financing Program are Thornton Lurie, left, a finance counselor, and Mark Tessier with the underwriting firm of Howard, Weil, LaBouisse and Frie-drich's Inc. The Midland Housing Finance Corp. met Thursday with financiers to get support for the program, but met with opposition. (Staff Photo)

Mortgage plan may be in trouble said. Ray Moudy, president of Citizens Savings and Loan Association, said, "I thought last spring when you started looking at this (home loan program), that it would be for people who before could not afford housing."

"Now, it looks like it's a windfall for those who already can afford it. We've heard of some disadvantages of this program. I feel real estate will unduly increase (in price) because of this program. If so, we (Citizens Savings) can't be a participant."

Another man commented, "I don't think Midland needs it."

Agreeing with that was Hubert Hinkle, vice president of Mortgage and Trust Inc.

"I feel this much money will hurt Midland. I'm not in favor of the program," he said.

Don Hellinghausen asked Tessier if the loan money also could go to a "blue collar worker making $10-$12,000 a year and wanting to buy a $25,000 home?"

TESSIER REPLIED there is no minimum income restrictions. If the applicant meets the lending institutions requirements, then he can qualify for a loan.

The underwriter later pointed out that in cities which already have the program, loans have gone out quickly — in some cases as fast as one day.

But the lending institutions also opposed such a fast outpouring of loans. General consensus among those representatives seemed to be that Midlanders in higher income brackets would be first in line for the money.

Clark, who also serves as chairman of the Midland Housing Authority, told the group he has been in "the economic growth business" for 40 years.

"There are three industries that are going to be located here in Midland, but they all are going to the west side of town to be close to Odessa. We need to have these people be a part of Midland."

Responding to the expressed doubt that Midland even needs housing help, Clark said, "If you have workers, you need housing."

PRIVATE INDUSTRY. Moudy said, perhaps should start providing its own houses.

"If there's a need (for houses), someone will do it."

Ike Caution of First Savings and Loan Association said he had read that this program, because of its lower interest rate, will not put as much money into the U.S. Treasury. If so, then the government would make the rest of the country pay to make up for what it's losing, he asserted.

"I make it a point not to try and raise money for the Treasury," Tessier replied. "They're going to take care of themselves. They think of a new way every day."

"Besides," Clark interjected, "We're already paying for those cities who already are on the program."

One banker contended the program is "going to be bad public relations for us (lending institutions) to tell one guy he gets a 7 percent loan and the other man he gets an 11 percent loan."

Abbott pointed out to the group "you're talking about trying to satisfy everyone's needs. Do you want to throw out something because you can't provide for all, or do you want to take this and try to meet some needs?"

"It took four years to get the Housing Authority under way," he continued. "It is only satisfying the needs of 100, and we have 112 on a waiting list."

A Midland Realtor, Don Harvey, said because the finance corporation comes under the control of Midland City Council, he won't support the program.

"PRIVATE ENTERPRISE is being beat over the head. These lending industries are competing in private industry," Harvey said. "We're doing this on government authority — the city. If the government would mind its own business and get its nose out of industry, the interest rate today would only be about 6 percent."

"I see this (loan program) as more government interference with private enterprise. The government's never done anything to help us — national, county or any of them," Harvey concluded while walking out of the room.

Tessier warned the people, "This is a program to bring capital into your community, and you won't have another chance at it."

Hinkle said his and other lending institutions fear home buyers will seek the lower interest loans and not apply for the 11 percent money.

He also contended that keeping all loans at 11 percent interest would be more of an incentive for Midlanders to save their money.

AFTER THE SESSION, Clark said he had noticed "a reluctance on the part of financial institutions present to participate in the program."

"We have to have participants to proceed with it, and there was no one who expressed a positive feeling."

"It's a philosophical thing," Clark added. "They're opposed to approaching the housing situation from this viewpoint. It's the philosophical concept of outside influence (government)."

Before adjourning, Clark asked the representatives to let the finance corporation know by Sept. 5 of their decisions regarding participation in the program.

Officials, guards argue over escape

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — The escape of 30 inmates from the Maryland House of Correction in what officials say was a well-planned breakout has pitted guards against state prison officials over who was to blame for the security lapse.

By early today, state police said they had apprehended 21 of the inmates, all considered dangerous, who fled the minimum-security prison here late Wednesday in the largest Maryland prison break since 1959.

The inmates used a carpenter's blade to saw through the windows of a dayroom-dormitory area where one guard was on duty while 106 inmates milled around. Byrnes said assigning one guard to the area was "not unusual."

In all, 50 guards were scheduled on the 4 p.m.-to-midnight shift for a total population of 1,494 inmates. A total of 295 guards are employed at the facility.

At a news conference Thursday, officials of the union representing Maryland's prison guards blamed the breakout on low staffing. Joseph Cook, acting executive director of the Maryland Classified Employees Association, said the escape "shows the problems that exist to the safety of the community."

But Edwin R. Goodlander, state corrections commissioner, said it was "too early to say conclusively that understaffing was responsible for the escape." Corrections officials said there was a two-hour lag in reporting the mass escape to state police because they had problems finding the source of the breakout.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I'm all for taking care of our old people and giving them every possible break. But I think giving every person who reaches age 60 or 65 lower rates for transportation, haircuts, entertainment, etc., is just plain ridiculous!

I have friends and relatives who are loaded with money, but because they're "senior citizens" they take advantage of all these reduced rates and laugh about it.

I would like your opinion—and the opinion of others.—POOR WORKING STAFF

DEAR STIFF: Most senior citizen rates are intended to attract the senior citizen's business as well as give a break to older folks living on a fixed income.

To separate those who need it from those who don't, and then exclude those who don't would be a horrendous task. Not to mention the inequities that could result.

DEAR ABBY: An acquaintance of mine is about to give birth. She is married, but the baby is not her husband's. He married her when she was six months along, knowing the baby wasn't his, but he loved her anyway. (The baby's real father just took off.)

My question is this: After the baby is born, what should I say to her husband? Would congratulations be appropriate under the circumstances? Or do you think it would be in poor taste? After all, everybody knows he didn't have anything to do with it.—CURIOUS.

Secretaries group has style show

The Permian Chapter of the National Secretaries Association held its regular August meeting at Midland's Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room. Luncheon was served by Patti Kowalski.

The program for this luncheon meeting was a style show presented by Betty's Boutique. The fashions selected for this show were geared toward the career woman and gave a preview of fall fashions and color schemes for the career oriented woman. The style were designed with budgets in mind and various tips on wardrobe coordination were given.

The chapter's guests were Betty Billingsley, owner of Betty's Boutique, and commentator Margie Prigmore.

dMrs. Billingsley is a native West Texan and has lived in Midland 19 years. She attended Texas Tech University, where she was a fashion merchandising major. She is affiliated with the Opportunity Center Auxiliary, Junior Woman's Club, Midland Country Club and the CPA Wives Club. She held the office of president in the latter group.

Mrs. Prigmore, a Dallas native living in the Tall City, writes and narrates the style shows done by Betty's Boutique.

She is a graduate of Baylor University, with a degree in business. Mrs. Prigmore taught school briefly, but prefers the business world, where she was an executive secretary for Oilwell Supply, a division of U.S. Steel, in Dallas and the First National Bank in Waco. She formerly modeled at Tiche's (now Joske's) and the Apparel Mart in Dallas.

Mrs. Prigmore is affiliated with Las Manos of the Museum of the Southwest, the Lawyers' Wives Club and the Midland branch of the American Association of University Women, of which she has held several offices including the presidency.

Persons interested in the Permian Chapter, NSA, and-or the National Secretaries Association, International, may call the chapter's president, Pat Swindle.

Reader can't countenance seniors' discounts

DEAR CURIOUS: Congratulations are indeed in order. If not for the achievement, for showing himself to be more of a man than the baby's natural father.

DEAR ABBY: I had a friend who would have been 84 tomorrow. She was struck by a car and died instantly. She had no family and left no will. She had quite a bit of money that she wanted to go to her favorite charities, but she never got around to putting anything in writing. Consequently, the state will get it all! She had some valuable furniture and jewelry which was auctioned off. The state will get the proceeds and strangers will have her precious personal possessions.

She told me that she wanted to be cremated, but since she left no instructions, she was buried.

I am 41, and have learned a valuable lesson. Death may not be a pleasant thought, but it is inevitable and can come without warning, so I have made all my wishes known in writing—with copies to several relatives and friends. Even if things have only sentimental value, if no specific provisions have been made for their disposition, the public administrator can (and does) throw all personal items away. (Letters, pictures, etc.)

Last year this happened to over 6,000 people in Los Angeles alone. If only one person reads this and does something about it, I'll feel that my friend did not die in vain. — BROKENHEARTED

DEAR BROKENHEARTED: I agree with your suggestion, but in order to be absolutely certain that one's wishes are carried out, a lawyer should be consulted.

Address comments and questions to Abby in care of this newspaper. For a personal reply, please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Plastic surgery patients can recover in private

By ROGER GILLOTT
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The neighborhood kids call it "The Mummy House" because they frequently catch glimpses of people with their faces swathed in bandages.

But to the folks inside, it's a place they can go to be secluded and pampered while they recover from plastic surgery.

A growing number of such halfway houses — from the spartan to the deluxe — have sprung up to cater to the whims and needs of plastic-surgery patients who don't want to burden their family and friends, as well as those who simply don't want to be seen.

"I can understand why patients like it," says Mel Grussing, a health-facilities investigator. "It's anonymous. They're cared for. Everybody thinks it's great until a patient runs into trouble and dies. With any type of surgery you run that risk."

Health officials are less than pleased with this new industry that is growing up virtually unregulated. The homes are not licensed, the attendants frequently have little or no medical training.

At the least, the homes provide patients with ice packs to reduce swelling, watch for infections and chauffeur patients to the doctor's office. At the most, the homes try to ease the pain of recuperation by offering such creature comforts as luxurious rooms, crystal bud vases on meal trays and fine linens.

Patients turn to the halfway houses for a variety of reasons. Some housewives and businessmen, the operators say, are as secretive as movie stars about revealing their encounters with the beauty knife and prefer not to be seen stitched, swollen or fitted with drainage tubes. Others wouldn't think of subjecting a friend or relative to 24 to 48 hours — or more — of continuous care to watch for postoperative complications.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — An exhibition of 52 prints by the late 19th-century German romanticist Max Klinger is on view at the Elvehjem Museum of Art through Sept. 16.

The museum says, "The works ... show Klinger as an expressive forerunner of modern art. Bridging the gap between early 19th-century German Romanticism and the modern Expressionist movement, Klinger explored themes of fantasy as well as reality."

DUTCH ART WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — An exhibition of 40 Dutch paintings will be on view at the Worcester Art Museum Sept. 15-Nov. 11.

The show, "17th Century Dutch Painting: Raising the Curtain on New England Private Collections," consists of paintings selected from 18 different collections in the New England region.

SUMMER FRESH FRUIT TRIFLE

1 pint half-and-half
3 1/2-ounce vanilla-flavor instant pudding mix
1 pint strawberries, hulled and sliced
1 cup cubed (1/2 to 3/4-inch) cantaloupe
2 medium or large peaches (peeled, sliced and dipped in orange juice)
1 cup large cultivated blueberries
2 cups cubed (1/2 to 3/4-inch) angel cake
2 medium bananas
Orange liqueur, if desired

Into a medium bowl pour the half-and-half and pudding mix. With a hand-operated rotary beater (or an electric beater at lowest speed) gently beat until blended — about 2 minutes. Let stand to set — about 5 minutes. Cover and refrigerate.

Reserve several strawberry slices, wrap in saran and refrigerate. Gently mix remaining strawberries with cantaloupe, peaches and blueberries; cover and refrigerate.

Both the pudding and fruit mixture may be prepared and refrigerated a good many hours ahead of serving.

Assemble the dessert about 2 hours before serving so the angel cake won't get soggy and the fruit and pudding won't leave a residue of juice in the bottom of the bowl. To do so, scatter 1 cup angel cake cubes over the bottom of a straight-sided glass 2-quart serving bowl. Spoon half the fruit mixture over cake. Stir pudding until smooth and creamy; cover fruit with half of it. Repeat layers of cake and fruit mixture. Add remaining pudding, but leave an inch of the fruit mixture showing at the edge of the bowl. Cover bowl with saran and refrigerate.

Just before serving, peel and slice bananas; sprinkle them with orange liqueur. Arrange bananas around edge and garnish center with reserved strawberry slices. Serve at once.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

What is allelopathy?

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Some plants may weed themselves. For example, few weeds grow near sunflowers or Jerusalem artichokes.

There is a word that describes the situation. According to plant physiologist Gerald Leather of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Science and Education Administration, it is "allelopathy." Sunflowers and tuberous Jerusalem artichoke, botanical cousins, "are among an elite group of plants that noticeably control competitors by secreting toxins," says Leather. Only oats, walnut trees, some varieties of cherry and cucumber, and some wild plants are known to do much of their own weeding.

In greenhouse tests by the USDA at Frederick, Md., extracts of sunflower plants inhibited the growth of many common weeds by 50-75 per cent. The weeds included jimsonweed, velvetleaf, johnsongrass, curlydock, red sorrel, common ragweed, purslane, Pennsylvania smartweed, wild mustard and lambsquarters. The exact chemicals working for sunflowers have not yet been identified.

Leather says allelopathy could eventually help plant breeders give many crops the ability to control weeds; it could develop safer and more "host-specific" herbicides from the chemicals of weed-hating plants.

Helicopter gunships fire at anything in besieged city of Saqqez; 8 killed

SAQQEZ, Iran (AP) — Helicopter gunships swept over the rebel-held city of Saqqez today, firing at anything that moved in an apparent attempt to land reinforcements inside the city's besieged army garrison.

Troops and revolutionary guardsmen inside the garrison fired mortars and rifle-propelled grenades into the city to keep the rebels at bay. At least eight Kurds were killed and 15 wounded in today's fighting. A school was turned into an emergency hospital to treat the scores of wounded Kurds, including women and children.

KURDISH SOURCES said the helicopters and the government forces in the garrison were "firing indiscriminately" into areas inhabited by civilians. "Many women and children were unable to escape and have been killed by the explosions and shooting from helicopters," one source said.

The Kurds said government reinforcements were advancing toward Saqqez from a base at Mahabad, 40 miles to the north, and had moved to within 15 miles of the city under the protection of gunships firing at anything that moved, including farmers in the fields. Other government troops were reported massing just outside the range of rebel guns on the edge of the city.

The rebels shot down a U.S.-made Cobra gunship Thursday night as government helicopters strafed rebel positions. Government Phantom jets repeatedly smashed the sound barrier over Saqqez overnight, keeping the inhabitants on edge.

In the Kurdish city of Kermanshah, a government firing squad executed four persons today, including one Kurdish rebel convicted of killing revolutionary militiamen in last week's uprising in the Kurdish city of Paveh, the official Pars news agency reported. Pars said two of the men were condemned for selling drugs and another was killed for committing homosexual acts.

THE IRANIAN armed forces chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Hossein Shaker, went on radio today saying, "The army expects the people of Saqqez to defend the Islamic revolution of Iran and to fend off any counter-revolutionary conspiracies."

Saqqez was the third city in Kurdistan Province to become a battleground in the Kurdish struggle for home rule. Rebel Kurds besieged the Saqqez army garrison on Thursday and poured heavy machine-gun fire "almost non-stop" into the compound.

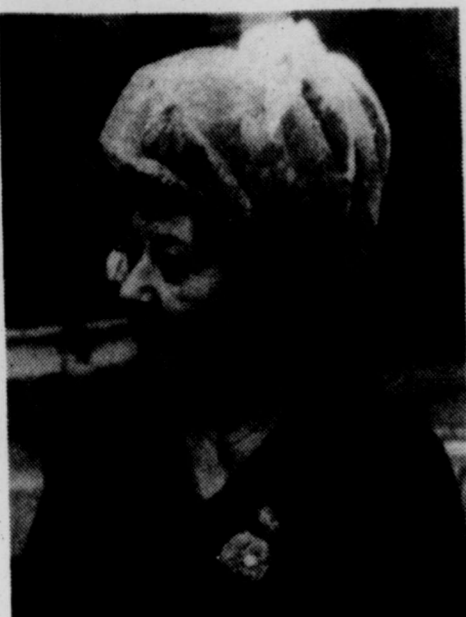

Western reporters on the scene said the fighting there was the heaviest so far in the 10-day-old flareup in the Kurdish fight for autonomy that began in March. Informed sources said the rebels were holding a strategic bridge between the city and the road leading to Sanandaj, the capital of Kurdistan 75 miles to the south.

There was no government report of casualties in the fighting for the mountain city 320 miles west of Tehran, but reporters there said the toll was heavy on both sides. Kurdish sources said the rebels killed 80 government soldiers in Saqqez on Thursday. They did not give rebel losses.

The rebels ambushed units of the 28th army division outside Saqqez early Thursday. Pars said the division commander and 21 troops were killed along with 15 rebels. It said 15 soldiers were wounded.

The government forces tried to move artillery to the edge of the city of 40,000 but pulled back when the rebels opened up on them with cannon and recoilless rifles, the reporters said.

KURDISH SOURCES said about 2,000 heavily-armed rebels were in Saqqez, facing a larger government force.

Jurors cry; MacDonald chokes back tears as he tells of wife's, child's screams

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald choked back tears and three of the jurors hearing his murder trial cried as he told of the night he awoke to the screams of his wife and oldest child.

MacDonald, 35, is charged with murder in the 1970 stabbing and beating deaths of his pregnant wife, Colette, 26, and daughters Kimberly, 5, and Kristen, 2. Prosecutors contend MacDonald, then a Green Beret stationed at Fort Bragg, killed his family and made up his account of four drug-crazed intruders.

MacDonald took the stand Thursday to testify he fell asleep on the couch that night — "I was very good then at falling asleep" — and awoke to the screams.

"I started to sit up ... I saw some people at the foot of the couch," he said. "I either thought or said, 'What the hell is going on here?' ... At the same time I was sitting up, there was a (man) who started to swing something at me."

He said he also saw a woman, a light flickering in her face, chanting in a monotone. "Acid is groovy. Kill the pigs." According to MacDonald, a struggle ensued, and he thought there was "a distinct possibility I would be killed ... The next thing I knew, I was lying on the floor and the house was very quiet."

He said he went from room to room, trying to revive his family.

MacDonald frequently brushed away tears while telling of his family.

Watching from his front-row seat was Alfred Kassab, MacDonald's late wife's father. Kassab, of Cranbury, N.J., was instrumental in bringing the case before the federal grand jury that indicted MacDonald in 1975.

MacDonald said his relationship with his in-laws deteriorated in the months following the killings because Kassab constantly pestered him, urging him to investigate on his own. "It became a very strange, tense, drawing series of communications," he said.

MacDonald also said he counseled drug abusers while at Fort Bragg and was cautioned about his work by superiors. He said he had a brief fight with a soldier he was counseling the afternoon before his family died. The defense says drug-using soldiers, thinking MacDonald was informing on them, could have been the intruders.

Seven striking unions call halt to paralyzing 10-day walkout

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Church bells rang and a crowd cheered when seven striking unions signed an agreement to end a 10-day walkout that paralyzed the Atlantic port city of Limon.

The workers won major concessions from the government Thursday, including guarantees for salary negotiations, payment of job security benefits for railroad workers, safeguards for all workers who took part in the strike and the release of all persons detained during two days of rioting last weekend who were not charged with possession of firearms or assaulting civil guardsmen.

The accord also called for the withdrawal of all civil guardsmen brought to the city to keep order during the strike, the worst in Costa Rica's history. One person was killed during the strike and more than 100 were injured.

"This is a triumph for the workers," said Timothy Scott, the secretary general of the Worker's Federation of Limon, the umbrella organization for the seven unions.

Steer steers way through drugstore

GAYLORD, Mich. (AP) — You've heard about the bull in a china shop. What about a steer in a drug store?

A Black Angus steer escaped from a stockyard and poked his nose in the door of a downtown Gaylord pharmacy Wednesday afternoon. A worker in the front of the store hollered to pharmacist Dale Rehkopf that a bull was coming through the building.

After lumbering to the back of the store, the animal wandered behind the prescription counter for five to 10 minutes and lingered at the greeting card rack. Then, it plunged over a counter-top and left by a door which Rehkopf had hastily opened.

Three men from the stockyards rushed to the scene and tossed a halter on the steer in the alley next to the drugstore.

Pets of the Week at the Midland Animal Shelter, 1601 E. Orchard Lane, is this pair of cream-colored kittens, which can be adopted for a fee. One's a male, and they are about 5 weeks old. Shelter hours are from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and from noon to 2 p.m. Saturdays. (Staff Photo)

Bank asks 'patience'

NEW YORK (AP) — Banco de Ponce, the city's largest bank that caters largely to Spanish-speaking customers, is asking would-be robbers to be prepared to show a little patience, por favor.

Knowing of New York's bank robbery epidemic, officials of Banco de Ponce have posted a sign reading:

"Attention would-be robbers. This is a Spanish-speaking bank. If you intend to rob us, please be patient, for we might need an interpreter. Thank you, the management."

"I am just trying to look at a logical and reasonable way to keep anything from happening," explains security officer Joseph A. Wiscovitch. "Our people are bilingual, but they feel more at ease in Spanish and deal with Spanish-speaking customers all day....

"I thought I'd try a little in-house Spanish mentality," the former policeman said. "I'm trying to avoid any unnecessary frustrations or incidents."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Hospitals alter maternity care

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine is planning to have her baby at home, attended by a nurse-midwife. Is this becoming a common practice? — Ms. K.L.

Dear Ms. L.: The trend towards home delivery of infants seems to have hit a peak and may now be subsiding. In recent years, a number of women have chosen to have their babies at home as a protest against what they felt was inadequate and impersonal hospital care. Now the pendulum seems to be swinging to some midpoint between a highly protective, sterile hospital atmosphere and unattended home delivery.

Dr. Robert T. Hall, of Children's Mercy Hospital in Kansas City, Mo., acknowledges a number of problems related to neonatal hospital care. These include the impersonal attitudes of health care personnel, forced separation of the newborn from the mother and the general view of the baby and mother as being sick patients. Moreover, the costs of even routine care and delivery can be staggering.

Dr. Hall notes that the infant has certain rights that should be respected, including the right to have a physician present in the event something unforeseen occurs during the delivery. Low-risk pregnancies and labors can become high-risk in a matter of minutes, and these contribute to putting many newborn infants at high risk. Although 80 to 90 percent of newborn infants would do well without any of the procedures available in a hospital, the stakes are too high to take a chance on alternative birth methods that lack these ingredients.

Dr. Hall maintains that hospitals are changing as the adverse effects of some of their methods are brought to their attention. For example, infants are no longer separated from their mothers for prolonged periods, and rooming-in has become a commonplace feature.

Much remains to be done in improving maternity care, however, and there is reason for concern about infant mortality rates in the United States. Among the industrialized nations of the world, the United States ranks thirteenth in this category.

In response to such concerns, several health professional groups have suggested general guidelines for establishing an alternative birth method that will include family-centered maternity care, childbirth education and the physical development of a birthing room.

Dear Dr. Solomon: On behalf of the Dade County Association for Retarded Citizens, of which I am president, I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your excellent responses to questions which appeared in the area of prevention. The responses which you have presented will impact upon the area of prevention and hopefully bring about a heightened awareness on the part of new mothers. — Joaquin J. Coello, Miami, Fla.
