Four Puerto Rican terrorists set free

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen who dived for cover from Puerto Ricans' blazing gunfire in the House of Representatives 25 years ago say they don't object to President Carter's freeing the assailants. "I'm surprised they kept them in that long," said Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C., who left his seat just before a bullet tore through it during the attack.

The White House announced Thursday that Carter is granting clemency to the three surviving Puerto Rican nationalists who shot up the House in 1954, and a fourth convicted of taking part in an assassination attempt on President Harry S. Truman in 1950.

All have been imprisoned for at least 25 years and are expected to be released Monday, officials said.

Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti, who recommended the release, said the action should not be mistaken for "evidence of leniency toward terrorists. On the contrary, their long incarceration demonstrates severe punishment for any terrorist crimes."

The White House described the release as being "a significant humanitarian gesture and would be viewed as such by much of the international community."

The three involved in the House attack who are being released are: Lolita Lebron, 59; Rafael Cancel Miranda, 49; and Irving Flores Rodriguez, 54. The fourth involved, Andres Figueroa Cordero, was freed by Carter in 1977 because he had cancer. He later died in Puerto Rico.

Carter also granted clemency to Oscar Collazo, 67, convicted in the Truman assassination attempt at the Blair House. A Puerto Rican nationalist who tried to storm Truman's temporary residence with Cordero was killed in the assault, as was a White House guard.

After the White House announcement, Rep. Benjamin Gilman, D-N.Y., raised the possibility that three U.S. residents and a Puerto Rican fisherman jailed in Cuba might be freed in return.

He said Cuban President Fidel Castro had told a visiting congressional delegation in January that "as a reciprocal gesture of good will and humanitarianism," he would free the four if the Puerto Ricans were released.

The State Department said early today it had no indication whether the prisoners referred to by Gilman were being freed.

Gilman called on Castro Thursday to release the prisoners "in Cuba as he promised he would."

A Justice Department source, who asked not to be named, denied that the release was linked to a possible freeing of the jailed Americans.

The four who could be affected by Carter's action have been jailed in Cuba since the mid-1960s. They are: Lawrence Lunt, 53, of Saratoga, Wyo.; Juan Tur, 62, of Tampa, Fla.; Everett Jackson, of Los Angeles; and Claudio Morales, of Puerto Rico.

"It's in the prerogative of the president," said House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Carter's decision.

"I think they've been punished enough," said Rep. Tom Steed, D-Okla.

Rhodes and Steed, two of the congressmen who witnessed the House attack, recalled it vividly.

Five congressmen were hit by bullets fired during the attack at 2:30 p.m., March 1, 1954. No one was killed. None of the wounded congressmen is still in the House.

The House floor was crowded with some 200 members because the shooting came during a quorum call on a bill to extend the a Mexican-labor program.

A woman unfurled a flag in the northwest gallery, shouting, "Free Puerto Rico," and three men blazed away with pistols, getting off 25 to 30 shots.

"It was a scene of carnage," Rhodes said. "I assumed the shots were blanks. But then one of them ricocheted right over my head. I hit the floor — real hard."

Canadians report large oil find

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Dome Petroleum Ltd. has reported what may turn out to be one of the largest oil finds in Canadian history. The discovery, which came after more than 10 years of exploration in the arctic Beaufort Sea, eventually could ease Canada's dependence on foreign oil.

Dome drilled the 14,174-foot-deep well, called "Kopanoar M13," about 90 miles off the Mackenzie Delta in Canada's frontier northwest. The well is about 390 miles east of the Prudhoe Bay area of Alaska, scene of vast U.S. oil reserves and production.

Dome called its find "of important commercial significance," and its president, William Richards, said

Thursday the oilfield's reserves "have the potential of going into the billions of barrels."

But oil industry sources said the Beaufort Sea's hostile environment, combined with the 3,000-mile distance from southern Canadian markets, will cause such high production and transportation costs that high production rates will be needed to transform the Dome find into a successful enterprise.

Dome estimated the well may be capable of producing more than 12,000 42-gallon barrels of oil a day. The industry sources said an average daily flow rate of at least 50,000 barrels would be required to make production economically viable.

Life's best in Midland

Banker says economic future bright

By MIKE SLATON
Staff Writer

"Midland is at the top of the list when one considers quality of life," Douglas B. Henson, vice president and economic development officer with The First National Bank of Midland, said Thursday.

Speaking to members of the Midland Rotary Club in the Midland Hilton, Henson painted a bright picture regarding the Tall City's economic future.

Comparison of most local growth indicators since August 1973 to the corresponding national inflation rate during the same period shows that, "in every case," local increases exceed the national rate of inflation, Henson said.

This indicates that "Midland is encountering real growth," he added.

Due to Midland's dependence on the petroleum industry and because the industry's product is in short supply, "we (Midland) should not feel the effects of the forecasted national recession," said Henson.

"Our single economy has afforded Midlanders one of the highest qualities of living of any community in the U.S.," said Henson.

Midland is ranked 25th among the approximately 300 Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas in the U.S. based on a 1978 estimated Median Effective Buying Household Income of $19,762, said Henson. The ranking places Midland second behind Houston in Texas. Houston is ranked 24th in the nation.

Game between Blizzards and Polar Bears has to be a chilling experience

By BRUCE PARTAIN
News Staff

When the Midland High football team takes the field against Amarillo Tascosa tonight at Memorial Stadium, it's going to be, well, pretty dull.

Not the game, mind you. The names.

The Bulldogs versus the Rebels.

Both fine football teams, no doubt, but compared to the monikers of other Texas high school squads, the nicknames these schools have chosen are as bland and stoic as strained turnips.

TAKE, FOR OPPOSITE example, the gridders from the fair town of Killeen.

What more fitting name for a group of high-stepping athletes could one choose than the Kangaroos?

That bounding bunch brings to mind the Atlanta Rabbits, a AAA team that fortunately isn't scheduled to meet up with the AA Boerne Greyhounds.

If such a contest did take place, however, it would pale against this thick-skinned card: the Hutto Hippos versus the Iredell Dragons, both class B teams.

Possibilities for such cross-district match-ups of real teams abound in the Lone Star State, enough to satisfy the imagination of any jaded sports announcer.

"YES, SPORTS FANS, tonight we see the Knippa Rock Crushers taking on the Diboll Lumberjacks, in what promises to be a knock'em down, drag'em out football game."

How about the Texas City Sting-arees battling the Breckenridge Buckaroos?

Or the Caddo Mills Fighting Foxes lining up against the Itasca Wampus Cats?

What would be the diabolical outcome of a game between the Celeste

What would be the diabolical outcome of a game between the Celeste Blue Devils and the Rankin Red Devils?

Blue Devils and the Rankin Red Devils?

The most intriguing games, though, would be agrarian contests.

IMAGINE THE Roscoe Plowboys tackling the Fighting Farmers from (where else?) Farmersville.

Who would take second horn if the Groesbeck Goats ever butted up against the Rocksprings Angoras?

The Hereford Whitefaces could play any number of Texas teams named the Longhorns, but they might feel more comfortable with the Marfa Shorthorns.

The Pampa Harvesters likely would run right over the El Campo Ricebirds, but how would they do against the Robstown Cotton Pickers?

Hunters might take interest in a pairing of the Crane Golden Cranes and the Quail Quails. The winning team then could take its chances against the Taylor Ducks or the Cuero Gobblers.

A good aquatic round-robin tournament might include the Austwell-Tivoli Redfish, The Calhoun Sandcrabs, the Port Isabel Tarpons and the Lake Worth Bullfrogs.

SOME TOWNS AND their teams carry names that are almost poetic — The Riviera Seahawks and the Nazareth Swifts come to mind.

What a legendary class A pairing the Shamrock Irish and the Hamlin Pied Pipers would make.

There are a few team names, however, that baffle all but the locals.

What is the background of the Somerville Yeguas, the Rotan Yellowhammers, and — for that matter — the South Park Greenies of Beaumont?

Consider the perplexed visiting teams playing Friday night games against the Munday Moguls.

IT'S ADMITTEDLY A tough business, this christening of athletic teams. Consider District 21-AAAA in the Houston area.

Douglas MacArthur High already had the rights to the nickname of the Generals, so district rival Robert E. Lee was faced with the taking the oft-used Rebels insignia or coming up with something original. We're all familiar, of course, with the fighting Lee Ganders of Baytown.

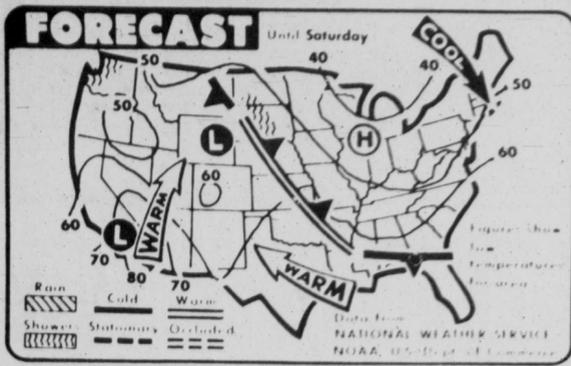

With 69 Texas high schools claiming to be the Bulldogs, it does provide some relief to imagine the more exotic ballclubs meeting one another.

Picture, if you will, a post-season classic — a late December game played in almost unbelievably frigid weather.

Twelve inches of snow on the field, fans frozen to the bleachers and an icicle-crusted referee signaling the opening kick-off.

"Welcome, sports fans, to another meeting of the Frost Polar Bears and the Winters Blizzards."

Tropical Storm David today rumbled into Canada, leaving behind a swath of death and destruction across the Caribbean and along the Coast from Florida to Maine.

Life's best in Midland, banker says

(Continued from Page 1A) spending figure for 1977, he noted. Diversification of Midland's industrial economic base since 1968 also has given the city a sound economic future, Henson said.

He cited Levi Strauss, Teraco and Texas Instruments as examples of that diversification. PPG Industries and Michelin Tire, expected to break ground for their Midland plants sometime early next year, are other examples of Midland's increasing industrial diversification.

Gross sales for Midland County also are encouraging, said Henson. Annual sales totals for 1977 compared to 1978 figures represent an increase of 23.9 percent, according to the banker's figures.

First quarter figures for 1979 support the same growth rate, he said. "Midland's recent growth rate has demanded an increase in its public services."

Playing "catch-up" from the 1960's economic slump and "keep-up" for the growth during the 70's has caused a large number of bond issues in Midland, Henson said.

Including Tuesday's $16.83 million bond election, Midland voters since 1971 have voted on 25 different bond issues totaling $79.7 million, according to Henson.

Twelve of the bond issues have passed for a total of $54.7 million, while 13 have failed for a total of $25 million, said the banker.

Three of the 13 bond issues that failed were presented a second time and passed, said Henson.

It is important to keep Midland's competitive tax position with other southern communities, said Henson. To date, he said, "our total tax burden remains among the median in this standing."

Community deposits in Midland have almost doubled in the past five years from $590.2 million in 1974 to $1,054.1 million in 1978, Henson said.

Housing in Midland has encountered a similar trend of doubling, he said. Building permits, at $34 million in 1974, reached $86.9 million in 1978, said Henson.

"Permits are keeping up thus far this year," said the banker. "Through the end of August we had obtained a $70.7 million building permit total — already making 1979 figures the second highest year in our history."

Through the first eight months of 1979, Midland has recognized an average net gain of 68 families per month, said Henson. Last year's average was 93 per month.

"These averages compute to an annual rate of increase between 3 and 4 percent," said Henson.

This weekend made for the outdoor-oriented

If weekends can be made to order, the upcoming two days probably were designed for outdoor-oriented Midlanders.

The weatherman is predicting partly cloudy skies with warm temperatures through Saturday.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport said there is a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms tonight.

After dropping into the middle 60s tonight, the mercury should reach into the low 90s on Saturday.

High Thursday was 95 degrees, about nine degrees cooler than the record 104 degrees set on that date in 1948.

Overnight low was 65 degrees. Record low for the date is 57 degrees set in 1957.

Widely scattered thunderstorms were forecast today for eastern and southern sections of Texas.

Forecasters said the thunderstorms would be more numerous in extreme South Texas and along the coast.

Man charged with indecency

A 20-year-old Midland man was arrested and charged with indecency with a child Thursday, according to Midland police.

Kelly Odwin Cate, 4005 Cedar Spring Drive, was arrested at his home, police said.

Police said they received a report Tuesday afternoon of a man at 4005 Cedar Spring Drive allegedly acting in a lewd manner in front of a group of children across the street.

wind-lashed farms. Early estimates indicated the storm took a toll of nearly $100 million, including $60 million in Florida and $29 million in Baltimore, as it sparked torrential rains and tornadoes that were blamed for the deaths of at least 15 people in the United States.

The storm has claimed more than 1,100 lives since it was spawned in the Caribbean last week.

But as skies cleared, the toll was far less severe than many officials had anticipated.

"It's hard to understand there could be so much damage and nobody hurt," said Virginia Gov. John Dalton as he viewed a landing near Newport News, where officials have estimated damage at $2 million.

"There are some complaints about no water and no lights, but everybody ought to get together and go to church on Sunday and give thanks," said Civil Defense Director Ed Fogarty of Savannah, the Georgia city that was David's last major target before it lost its hurricane force.

This morning David was located over the Gulf of St. Lawrence near latitude 48.0 north, longitude 63.0 west and moving east-northeast at 40 mph. The storm was expected to cross Newfoundland today. The National Hurricane Center in Miami issued its last advisory on David at 6 a.m.

Meanwhile, Hurricane Gloria was born early today in the Atlantic some 1,000 miles southwest of the Azores. It packed 75 mph winds and was likely to gain strength as it moved north-west over the water. But forecasters said it probably would veer too far north in the Atlantic to endanger land.

Tropical Storm Frederic, which has dumped more rain on Caribbean islands already waterlogged from David's trek, calmed into a tropical depression as it moved between Cuba and Haiti.

David first lashed at the U.S. mainland Monday, when it battered the coast of Florida, then moved up the coast to Savannah taking the turn inland Wednesday that sapped its hurricane strength. But the storm had plenty of punch left for the urban Northeast.

"Water went through many of the shops at five or six foot levels," said Maryland Gov. Harry Hughes as he toured a Baltimore shopping center. "It was like a wall of water."

The body of a woman washed up in the floodwaters that tore through the city. A Brooklyn man bled to death Thursday when flying glass sliced into his leg, and New Jersey rescuers who recovered the bodies of a 10-year-old girl and an 11-year-old boy from a raging river were looking today for the body of a policeman who tried to rescue them.

Dozens of homes were unroofed or skewered by trees in Virginia when tornadoes rampaged through the state. At Woodrow Wilson High School in Fairfax County, bleachers and fences were strewn across the playing field and the stadium press box was tossed 500 feet.

A man, identified by police as Arden Rahe, 63, died in the collapse of this home Wednesday evening when it was hit by a tornado spawned from the remnants of Hurricane David.

Damage from flooding and high winds was high in the area. (AP Laserphoto)

United Way may lose more than $800,000 if Catholics obey order

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The United Way in the Corpus Christi area may lose more than $800,000 if Roman Catholics follow the advice of Bishop Thomas Drury and refuse to donate, a United Way official says.

Drury said Catholics should not support the United Way because last June Planned Parenthood, which provides birth control counseling and other services, became associated with the community charity organization.

There are more than 25,000 Catholic families in the area, about a third of the population.

Monsignor William T. Thompson, vicar general of the Coastal Bend diocese, said there has been tremendous support shown for the bishop by area Catholics. "Many people who have been workers have resigned, and many have refused to contribute," he said.

Thompson said the bishop waited until near the beginning of the United Way's kickoff activities to make this announcement because "it was hoped that perhaps they might change their minds." Thompson said Drury deplored taking this stand because he has personally contributed to the United Way in the past. "The bishop felt that he could in no way support or contribute to an organization that directly or indirectly advocated abortion."

The bishop said he advised the 90 priests in the area to urge church members not to contribute because of "the constant teaching of the church on the sanctity of human life and our obligation to safeguard the lives of unborn babies."

In Alexandria, Va., Jerry Bergman of United Way of America said "a small proportion" of the 2,200 independent United Way campaigns support Planned Parenthood. "It's a local judgment of the volunteers," he said, adding that there has been some controversy over the question. "The issue revolves around whether or not any dollars from United Way are going to support abortion-related services," Bergman said.

Merriman Morton, a United Way campaign chairman in Texas, said the goal of the Coastal Bend area is $2.8 million. Of that figure, Planned Parenthood would receive about $2,500.

Drury said, "Without wishing to be divisive, I am compelled to call our Catholic people to stand firm in refusing direct or indirect aid to the United Way. At the same time, I exhort them to contribute directly not only to our own worthwhile Catholic charities but also to all other agencies that do not encourage or support abortion."

Planned Parenthood provides counseling on birth control, problem pregnancies, pregnancy testing, and referral services for unwed mothers and adoptions.

The Corpus Christi City Council Wednesday canceled a presentation by United Way to avoid disagreements with councilmen.

Area burglaries are reported

Midland County Sheriff's Department deputies were investigating a burglary reported Thursday that resulted in the loss of two handguns, officials said.

A .22-caliber and a .38-caliber pistol were taken in the burglary at an apartment complex at 4303 Andrews Highway, a deputy said.

Entry to the apartment apparently was gained through the unlocked back door, the deputy said.

A burglary at the Sound Machine, 119 San Miguel Square, was reported Thursday to the Midland Police Department.

Entry to the business was gained by breaking the front plate-glass window, police said.

A small television set of undisclosed value was missing from the store, police said.

A vacuum cleaner valued at $300 was reported stolen Thursday, police said.

No further information was available concerning the reported vacuum cleaner theft, which occurred at a residence in the 700 block of Boyd Avenue, police said.

Jury hung, mistrial declared in heroin possession trial

By BILL MODISSETT Staff Writer

An eight-woman, four-man jury failed to reach a conclusive verdict Thursday night in the trial of 29-year-old Lemanzel Finley Jr. of Midland on a charge of possession of heroin and a mistrial was declared.

The jury could not reach a unanimous decision in the case by 9 p.m. and 238th District Court Judge Vann Culp declared a mistrial.

The jury had deliberated about five hours in the case before the mistrial was declared.

A spokesman for the Midland County District Attorney's office said, however, that a new trial will be scheduled in the case for a later date.

Finley's trial got under way Wednesday with jury selection and testimony began later that day.

Lt. Gayle Reeves of Midland Police Department had testified that he stopped a car driven by Willie D. Whitfield, 38, of Midland on July 2. The car also was occupied by Finley, 704 S. Benton St., and Connie Fay Hart, 25, 1204 E. Missouri Ave., he said.

Reeves indicated that a search of the vehicle revealed substances believed to be marijuana and heroin.

He had testified that he saw Finley stick a shiny object down between the seats of the vehicle. That object was retrieved and was a tinfoil packet, Reeves testified.

He said the packet contained 25 smaller packets, each containing a substance believed to be heroin.

But Ms. Hart testified Thursday and contradicted Lt. Reeves' story. She said that she and Finley got into Whitfield's vehicle July 2 to go to another person's house, neither of them saw drugs in the car nor knew that the vehicle contained illegal drugs.

She also testified that after the three were stopped by Reeves, she saw Whitfield remove some "foil paper" from his socks and drop it onto the car's floorboard.

Lt. Reeves found no narcotics on either Ms. Hart or Finley when he searched them at the scene, she said, but later told her he found narcotics inside her purse at the police department.

Although she admitted she formerly used heroin herself, Ms. Hart testified she had never seen Finley use narcotics.

Hunger strike ends Thursday

Inmates of Midland County Jail who Wednesday began a hunger strike protesting food, medical, visitation and smoking policies began eating again Thursday, Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith said today.

The strike was confined to about 15 prisoners in one "tank" in the jail, said Smith.

That the prisoners ever actually went without food during the strike is a matter of some conjecture, according to Chief Deputy George Thompson.

Thompson said Thursday prisoners regularly stockpile fruit, candy and sandwiches for between-meal snacks so it was doubtful the prisoners went hungry even though they had refused regular meals.

Complaints by the prisoners concerned rules prohibiting smoking in the jail and governing visitation rights. Also listed as complaint topics were medical attention for prisoners and food quality.

Smith today said there would be no changes in jail policies.

Prisoners at the jail in need of medical attention are taken to Midland Memorial Hospital, Smith said earlier in the week.

He said jailers are aware that some prisoners complain of injuries to get out of jail for the trip to the hospital.

In regard to complaints about the food, Smith said most of the jailers eat the same food as the prisoners and that the prisoners should not expect "country club" cuisine.

Visitation rules in the jail call for visits of about 15 minutes per prisoner between 1 and 2 p.m. on Saturdays.

The rules are set up so all inmates in the jails may have time to visit with their family members, Smith had said earlier.

Smoking is not allowed in the jail, Smith said, because there are no windows in the fifth-floor jail in the Midland County Courthouse. If a fire were to occur, Smith pointed out, the prisoners would be endangered by way of smoke inhalation even if the blaze was minor and contained.

Prisoners at the jail in need of medical attention are taken to Midland Memorial Hospital, Smith said earlier in the week.

He said jailers are aware that some prisoners complain of injuries to get out of jail for the trip to the hospital.

In regard to complaints about the food, Smith said most of the jailers eat the same food as the prisoners and that the prisoners should not expect "country club" cuisine.

Visitation rules in the jail call for visits of about 15 minutes per prisoner between 1 and 2 p.m. on Saturdays.

The rules are set up so all inmates in the jails may have time to visit with their family members, Smith had said earlier.

Smoking is not allowed in the jail, Smith said, because there are no windows in the fifth-floor jail in the Midland County Courthouse. If a fire were to occur, Smith pointed out, the prisoners would be endangered by way of smoke inhalation even if the blaze was minor and contained.

Complaints by the prisoners concerned rules prohibiting smoking in the jail and governing visitation rights. Also listed as complaint topics were medical attention for prisoners and food quality.

Smith today said there would be no changes in jail policies.

Alamo 'plundered by overbearing gringo neighbors,' says governor

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Alamo, sacred to Texans, is a reminder to Mexico of territory "plundered by overbearing gringo neighbors" and symbolizes all that's wrong between Mexico and the United States, says Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt.

In an appearance Wednesday in the Alamo City, Babbitt also repeated earlier criticisms of Texas Gov. Bill Clements for Clements' "imperialistic" attitude in recent discussions with the governors of Mexican border states.

The criticism began last June after Babbitt, a Democrat, and Clements, a Republican, took part in a conference of American border governors.

"We must forge a new relationship based on recognition of Mexico as an equal," Babbitt told a luncheon staged in his honor by two Mexican-American groups.

"But the Alamo is a symbol of the problem is our relationship with Mexico, a sacred symbol to Texans and an extension of the American ideal. But to Mexico, it's a symbol of territory lost, a nation plundered by overbearing gringo neighbors," he added.

Mrs. Anthony Nicholas, chairman of the Alamo committee for the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, said, "I don't think he (Babbitt) knows Texas history or the history of the Alamo or he wouldn't make the statement he made. We'll be glad to give him a guided tour and tell him the background of the Texas Revolution."

Mrs. Nicholas said that since Babbitt was a visitor in Texas, she couldn't understand his reason for criticizing the Alamo.

"We welcome him anyway," she said. "The heroes of the Alamo don't need defending against a politician two states away," said Attorney General Mark White. "but it should be noted that the Arizona governor has his historical facts mixed up.

"The battle at the Alamo did not take place during the war of 1845 between U.S. and Mexico. The Alamo was part of Texas' fight for liberty which was backed by Mexicans and Anglos alike and decided in 1836 at San Jacinto."

Babbitt said both sides should readjust their view of such symbols.

The Arizona governor was in San Antonio, site of the famous 1836 Battle of the Alamo in the Texas Revolution, to study the city's downtown tourist development along the San Antonio River for a similar project in Phoenix. Almost half of San Antonio's estimated 800,000 residents have Spanish surnames.

Before the luncheon, Babbitt met with several Mexican-American leaders.

Protracted conflict

Until the tragic resurgence of Irish terrorism took the life of Lord Louis Mountbatten, it was possible to be more than a little optimistic about the chances for peace in Northern Ireland. There had been a lull in the bombings and assassinations which have taken 2,000 lives in the last 10 years. The non-sectarian Alliance Party which tries to keep Catholic and Protestant rivalry out of politics has been gaining ground in local elections in the Ulster provinces.

But this may be precisely why terrorists are again stalking targets, even striking for the first time at the British royal family. The terrorist-minded Irish Republican Army does not want to see Catholics and Protestants bury their differences in Northern Ireland under British auspices. They want the British out.

It remains to be seen if extremists on the Protestant side will not retaliate against their perceived enemies on the Catholic side. Whether they do or not, the old wounds of the "Irish" problem are once again torn and bleeding.

Pope John Paul II's strong denunciation of the murder of Mountbatten and the others offers some hope of second thoughts among Irish Catholics who still sympathize with the IRA. The Pope has cancelled plans to step into Ulster during his visit to the Republic. That may be a sensible decision, but where his appearance in Northern Ireland might have symbolized the possibilities for peace, his absence now will symbolize the degree of setback those possibilities have just received.

The new government of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher will now be pressuring Dublin to come down harder on the IRA terrorists who, it is presumed in London, are finding a haven in the Republic. The enormity of the latest crimes attributed to the IRA gives Dublin good reason to comply. The aim of Irish political leaders, both Catholic and Protestant, should be to dissociate religious sympathies in the Irish mind from sympathy for assassination and terrorism as political tactics.

The same can be said for Irish-American political leaders. The belief persists, rightly or wrongly, that IRA guerrillas are getting weapons or the money to buy them from sympathizers in the United States. While estimates of this support range from "meager" to "significant," government leaders here should be discouraging it, by persuasion if it is not within reach of the law.

The U.S. government should support any development that promises a peaceful route to civil justice for Catholics and Protestants alike in Ireland, but there is precious little it can do in this regard. The attempt by Gov. Hugh Carey of New York to get British and Irish officials together with him for a "Camp David" in New York may arise from good intentions, but it lends credence to complaints from abroad that American officials want to "meddle" in Irish affairs.

Many Britons insist that an "Irish lobby" in America is giving a pro-IRA tilt to U.S. policy. We hope they're wrong. Yet the Carter administration's recent decision to stop selling weapons to the police in Belfast feeds that suspicion.

American officials should be prepared to come down hard on any sources of illegal support for Irish terrorists that may lie in this country. A firm policy in that regard is the best contribution the United States can make toward an end to the bloodshed and a civilized solution to the problems in Ireland.

Probe of dictatorship in Argentina

WASHINGTON — This may turn out to be a red-letter day in Argentina, where an estimated 20,000 persons have been murdered, tortured and illegally detained or have simply disappeared since Jorge Rafael Videla seized power in 1976.

Today the International Human Rights Commission is scheduled to begin an investigation of the Videla dictatorship's treatment of its political opponents.

Our own investigation, based on interviews with intelligence sources and examination of secret State Department reports, indicates that Argentina stands as one of the world's most flagrant violators of human rights since the mad dictator of Uganda, Idi Amin, was driven out of power.

The goal of this p.p. campaign is to counteract congressional criticism, particularly that of Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, according to the respected Council on Hemispheric Affairs (COHA).

But a recent State Department report presents a stark, totally different picture of Argentina today, a picture unvarnished by the softening glow of Madison Avenue hype. "The Argentine government continues to kill, tor-

CHARLEY REESE The word of a Red leader said absolutely worthless

By CHARLEY REESE Sun Belt Syndicate

Charley Reese

ORLANDO, Fla. — Sen. Joe Biden, D-Del., just came back from Moscow and said — with a straight face — that Soviet officials promised they would not build more than 30 Backfire bombers a year.

Of course they won't put it in writing or allow an inspection, but they did promise. I'm surprised a grown man like Senator Biden is such a chump.

Of course the senator is trying to justify the SALT II package, but what concerns me is simply what this little episode says about the quality of our leaders.

You don't have to be an anti-communist to recognize that the word of a Soviet leader is as worthless as an ice cube in an Eskimo village.

Just a fleeting knowledge of current history shows that the Soviet Union has made and broken over 1,000 agreements. Just a brief acquaintance with the writings of Lenin will tell you that lying is moral in the upside-down world of communist ethics. Just an hour's listen to Radio Moscow will demonstrate that the Soviet government lies as regularly as Americans buy hamburgers.

I would think a 10-year-old would be skeptical of the word of a dictator whose nation employs a 400,000-man internal police force and 70,000 full-time censors.

Surely, Senator Biden heard Moscow's preposterous version of the episode of the defecting ballet dancer. How can he come back and seriously tell the American people that the Soviets said a promise not to build more than 30 Backfire bombers a year?

The Backfire, as you may know, is an intercontinental bomber much like the B-1 we didn't build and which the Carter administration agreed not to count as a strategic weapon because the Soviets said they would not deploy it against us, only against our allies.

It's this attitude — so woefully lacking in common sense and prudence — that worries me most about the present administration and the liberal bloc of senators.

You know, after the 1962 missile crisis, the Soviets and the U.S. made an agreement. We agreed not to invade Cuba and the Soviets agreed not to use Cuba as a base for offensive moves in our hemisphere.

A few months ago, the U.S. learned that the Soviets had moved MIG-23s, capable of carrying nuclear weapons, into Cuba. Did this violate the 1962 agreement? No, said the State Department, it did not.

Now we have learned that the Soviets, in addition to 60,000 allegedly civilian advisors, have moved 3,000 Russian combat troops into Cuba. Does this violate the agreement? No, said the Carter State Department, it does not. I suppose the Russians will have to move an entire division into Cuba before the Carterites will make a feeble protest.

I don't expect in these dangerous times American leaders to make wild and reckless moves in dealing with the Soviet Union. I do expect them, however, to give evidence that they recognize the nature of the government they are dealing with.

You would think from some of the statements coming out of Washington that the Soviet Union was led by a male version of Queen Victoria instead of a group of paranoids who daily demonstrate their cruelty, fanaticism, and utter disregard for human life, human rights, and morality.

Senator Biden and President Carter make a good pair. They both seem to be living in a different world than the rest of us.

NUCLEAR SHOWDOWN: The Friends of the Earth (FOE) are unrelenting enemies of nuclear power, and have brought a suit that could virtually shut down the nuclear industry in the United States by stopping the great bulk of uranium exploration and mining in this country.

FOE zeroed in on a uranium producer — Gulf Oil — once before, presenting evidence to a congressional subcommittee that Gulf was an active participant in an international cartel to fix and control prices of the nuclear fuel. But the stakes are so high in the present controversy that, despite the embarrassment of the price-fixing expose, Gulf has joined five other oil companies to intervene in the FOE suit even though they aren't being sued directly.

What FOE asks in its lawsuit is a ban on further uranium mining in the San Juan Basin of New Mexico and the Powder River Basin in Wyoming — areas that constitute more than 80 percent of the U.S. uranium reserves. Most of the ore is already committed to fuel for nuclear reactors. Without these sources of supply, U.S. uranium users would have to buy the ore abroad, where prices have been set artificially high in the same way the oil-exporting countries have rigged the price of petroleum.

Joining the environmental group in the suit are the New Mexico Navajo Ranchers Association and 91 individual Navajos. They accuse various federal officials and agencies of permitting uranium mining without environmental impact statements.

The result, they claim, is that they have been exposed to dangerous radiation, their drinking water has been contaminated by radium and uranium, and scarce water supplies are being depleted.

Mark Russell says

"The Seduction of Joe Tynan" stars Alan Alda — a senator who used to be an army doctor who did Groucho Marx impressions in Korea.

In the movie he has an affair with Meryl Streep — which is easier than pronouncing her name.

The senator's wife finds out and starts throwing things at him. He uses his senatorial talents and yells, "Point of order — will the wife yield?"

The movie is Hollywood's version of Washington — with its drunkenness, adultery and vice. So Jimmy Carter must be wrong in saying that Washington is isolated. It's just an average American town.

INSIDE REPORT:

Sen. Culver of Iowa uses high-risk re-election strategy

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WEBSTER CITY, Iowa — Sen. John Culver is using a risky re-election strategy, trumpeting opposition to "reckless" defense spending and parading support for free-choice abortion while fellow endangered liberals in neighboring midwest states dilute their ideology.

The risk in Culver's re-election strategy: It is a high-decibel replica of the campaign in this moderately conservative state that sent fellow liberal Democratic senator, Dick Clark, to humiliating defeat last fall. Clark's most publicized service to Iowa was hamstringing the U.S. in blocking the Soviet African offensive. Iowans were not impressed.

But tough-talking Culver, who is sharper and infinitely more effective than soft-spoken Clark, is now embarked on a suspiciously similar course. He is going all-out asking Iowans to back him as a leader of the Senate's peace bloc holding down defense spending and pushing the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II). In a major race critical to control of the Senate, Culver is flying his true colors.

An early exhibit of Culver's style was on display at a well-attended dinner of the Hamilton County Democratic Finance Committee in Webster City. Striking the podium with the flat of his hand, the pugnacious former Harvard fullback hit the line: "Reckless, excessive, unnecessary defense spending" is demanded by defense-oriented senators in return for SALT II.

Evans Novak

Promoters of bigger strategic-nuclear programs to minimize a growing first-strike Soviet margin could "mislead" the Russians about U.S. power and "invite the holocaust."

Culver appears to believe his own rhetoric. Nevertheless, some in the audience were surprised at his vehemence. "SALT isn't an issue here, at least not yet," a leading Iowa Democrat told us. As Clark before him came back to Iowa revving up right-wing fury by playing master of the Carter administration's discredited African policy and lost to conservative Republican Roger Jepsen, Culver risks similar rough treatment in 1980, because of national security questions.

Culver carries many of the same burdens that weighed down Clark. Like Clark, Culver seeks to set a precedent as the first Iowa Democrat ever elected to two successive Senate terms. Like Clark, Culver is vulnerable to attack from a well-organized, well-financed single-issue constituency that helped beat Clark: the anti-abortion lobby. Culver is on the 1980 hit list of the National Conservative Political Action Committee (NCPAC), along with four other liberal Democratic senators: George McGovern, Alan Cranston, Frank Church and Birch Bayh. But unlike Culver, the others on the receiving end of a special $700,000 NCPAC execution fund are trying to dilute some liberal positions.

McGovern and Church, for example, both strayed from the liberal path last April in Senate votes on the school-prayer issue. Besides hedging on SALT, Church has also gone the conservative route on votes to limit the federal budget deficit. Not so Culver.

"I am not running for re-election to walk away from a 15-year record," he told the Webster City dinner, then fired a broadside at NCPAC and "the fear-brokers peddling their wares." Two days later, addressing the Iowa Federation of Labor, Culver contrasted his strategy of parading his liberal voting record and attacking the right wing, to what he called the "half-hearted effort" of liberals defeated in 1978 and their strategy of "hunkering down in the foxholes."

Culver is betting everything that his combative style and personality, with a cutting edge far sharper than Dick Clark's, will overpower the Republicans (whether conservative Rep. Charles Grassley or moderate Des Moines businessman Tom Stoner is the nominee).

That may be his best bet, but polls show that Culver has not developed a clear political personality during five years in the Senate and 10, in the House. A Des Moines Register poll last spring (that gave Culver only a 38 percent approval rating) shocked politicians by showing that 51 percent of all voters could not say whether they approved or disapproved of his Senate record.

That prompts the Republican attack on him: too close to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (dating back to Harvard); tied to big labor; Eastern oriented; not in touch with the voters of Iowa.

In response, to offset his attack on defense spending, Culver cites his record of 39 months in the Marine Corps — then adds the throwaway line: "I never bumped into Tommy Stoner or Chuck Grassley in the Marines."

That is vintage Culver, making the point that neither potential Republican opponent served in uniform. Like his basic attack strategy, it is high-risk politics capable of backfire.

Recession, inflation delivering twin blow to nation's economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The twin effects of recession and high inflation raked the economy in August as the unemployment rate rose to 6 percent — the highest in more than a year — and wholesale prices advanced by 1.2 percent, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said the rise in unemployment from a 5.7 percent rate in July marked the first time that the jobless rate had been at the 6 percent level since July 1978.

The Carter Administration had expected unemployment to rise in August as a result of the recession that began in the spring. Labor Department economist John Bregger said the latest jobless reports provide "very strong evidence of a downturn."

But inflation also continued to rage in August as prices at the wholesale level showed the biggest monthly advance since January, the department said in a separate report. The rise in wholesale prices was paced by another steep climb in the cost of energy products and the first increase in food prices since March.

The government said wholesale prices at the stage just before goods reach consumers rose 1.1 percent during the previous 12 months. Inflation at the consumer level has been running slightly higher — at a 1.3 percent rate this year.

Wholesale prices are an important measure of future inflation because they signal price trends likely to occur at the tail level a few months later.

The simultaneous release of the two gloomy economy reports underscored President Carter's dilemma in trying to combat high inflation through tight fiscal policies while at the same time trying to keep from aggravating a recession that could mean high unemployment in the 1980 election year.

The Labor Department said the number of unemployed people rose by 300,000 during August to 6.1 million, with most of the increase resulting from factory layoffs.

Total employment fell by 310,000 jobs in August to 96.9 million, the government said, following a rise of 450,000 jobs in July.

Unemployment rates for virtually all major groups of workers based on age, sex and race increased last month.

During the prior 12-month period, the unemployment rate had been remarkably stable, ranging from 5.9 percent to a five-year low of 5.6 percent reached in June.

The government said employment has shown virtually no growth since March, after increasing by a strong 2.1 million jobs during the six months previous to March.

Those figures provided strong evidence of the economic slowdown that has gripped the economy since the second quarter, administration officials said.

The Labor Department gave these unemployment figures for various working groups compared with the July unemployment rates:

—Whites: 5.3 percent in August, up from 4.9 percent in July.

—Non-whites: 11 percent, up from 10.8 percent.

—Full-time workers: 5.4 percent, up from 5.3 percent.

—Adult men: 4.2 percent, up from 4.1 percent.

—Adult women: 5.9 percent, up from 5.5 percent.

—Teen-agers: 16.5 percent, up from 15.3 percent.

—Non-white teen-agers: 30.7 percent, down from 30.9 percent.

Officially, the administration predicts the jobless rate will rise to 6.9 percent next year — an increase of about 1.2 million unemployed Americans from current levels. However, a less optimistic internal government report predicts the jobless rate may hit 8.2 percent in the fall of 1980 — 2.5 million more unemployed people than now.

The 1.2 percent rise in wholesale prices during August compared with a 1.1 percent rise in July and was the highest increase since January, when the index advanced 1.3 percent.

If wholesale prices were to advance for a full year at the August rate, prices would jump by about 15 percent over the 12 months.

The Labor Department said food prices at wholesale rose 1.2 percent in August after showing no change in July and declining during the three prior months.

Prices for finished energy goods rose 5.8 percent, only slightly less than the 6.2 percent advance in the previous month.

The wholesale price index, also known as the Producer Price Index for Finished Goods, stood at 217.3 through August. That means that a group of goods that cost $100 in the base year of 1967 cost $217.30 last month.

The government said wholesale prices further down the production pipeline, known as the intermediate level, rose 1.2 percent in August following a 1.9 percent rise in July.

At the earliest, or crude, level of production, wholesale prices advanced only 0.1 percent, the smallest rise since April. Prices at that stage jumped 1.8 percent in July.

Although the unemployment rate rose slightly in July to 5.7 percent, government economists said the increase was too small to indicate the recession was taking a toll in the labor market.

However, most government and private economists predicted August would mark the start of a steady rise in unemployment resulting from the recession that began in the second quarter.

Scoring cocaine said to be young Kennedy's purpose

NEW YORK (AP) — A police source said he was known in Harlem as "White James," and some people in the destitute area said they had seen him around before.

But David Kennedy, the 24-year-old son of the late Robert F. Kennedy, says only that he was flagged down and lured into the lobby of the Shelton Plaza Hotel in Harlem before being beaten and robbed by three men, according to official police reports.

A police Narcotics Division source, however, said Thursday that Kennedy apparently went there to buy cocaine.

Kennedy could not be reached for comment.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said the Harvard dropout got into an argument Wednesday with a pusher over payment for cocaine, but police arrived before any dope actually changed hands.

"He was brought up to the area months ago by a black dude and said his name was James. But they got so many Jameses up here they put the tag 'White James' on him, for obvious reasons," said the source, who asked not to be named.

Kennedy's story, police said, was that he was driving his $15,000 BMW on 116th Street near Eighth Avenue about 5:15 p.m. Wednesday when two men flagged him down.

"I was just riding through when two fellows beckoned me with their hands," police said Kennedy told them. "I just wanted to see what they wanted."

County grand jury re-indicts Preece on murder charge

Four indictments were returned Wednesday by the Midland County Grand Jury including a re-indictment on a charge of murder against Coy Preece Jr.

Ronald Joseph Hester was re-indicted on a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. He currently is free on $5,000 bond.

Grand jurors also returned an indictment against another individual, but that person's name was not released immediately.

Preece, 22, was re-indicted on the murder charge in connection with the Midland shooting death Aug. 21 of a Junction man.

Daniel Nixon, 22, of Junction died the evening of Aug. 21 in Midland Memorial Hospital after he was shot more than once with a shotgun and small caliber weapon nearly in front of the Midland Police Department offices.

Preece, who later was arrested in San Angelo in connection with the incident, originally was indicted Aug. 29 on the murder charge.

Preece remained in Midland County Jail Thursday in lieu of posting a $100,000 bond on the charge.

The grand jury also indicted Richard Laurence Duniven on a charge of burglary of a building with intent to commit theft. He currently is free on $5,000 bond.

Chrysler's loss set at $700 million

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp., gearing up to reveal its government bailout proposal, announced it will lose more than $700 million this year, a record for a U.S. corporation.

The loss announcement came Thursday as a financial journal said bank loans to the ailing No. 3 automaker are now considered "doubtful."

Chrysler said because of a three-week delay in 1980 model production and the $400 rebates it used to sell its inventory of 1979 vehicles, pre-tax losses this year would top previous published estimates of "$600 million to $700 million."

Chrysler initiated the rebates to spur sales and pare its bulging inventories of larger models. The record for a year's losses is now held by Singer Corp., which lost $452 million in 1975.

Auto industry talks silent — again

DETROIT (AP) — Negotiations between automakers and the United Auto Workers have fallen silent for the second time in a week.

Neither side had comment after Thursday's sessions between General Motors Corp. and the union, though officials said a formal news blackout was not in effect.

"I can't ever remember it being this quiet with so little time to go," said a veteran observer who requested anonymity.

But while there was no comment, a top union official reportedly advised local officers of more than 150 bargaining units to start preparing for payment of strike benefits — a preparation considered standard during auto talks.

"Nobody knows what will happen, but the best job we can do is prepare," UAW Secretary-Treasurer Emil Mazey told local union presidents and financial officers meeting near the Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

"If (UAW President) Doug Fraser and (UAW Vice President) Irv Bluestone don't know, no one knows," said Mazey.

He cautioned that a strike is not necessarily inevitable, a comment that has already come from both sides of the bargaining table.

Contracts for 780,000 Big Three workers expire Sept. 14. The principal discussion Thursday, officials said, was about absenteeism, which GM says is rising.

The UAW said it had won a representation election at the Delco-Moore plant at Fredericksburg, Va., making transmission components.

It was, by the UAW count, the seventh GM plant in which the union had become the bargaining agent in the past year. Four were in the South, including the GM assembly plant at Oklahoma City organized by the UAW in a widely watched July election.

Another four plants remain unorganized. "We fully intend to organize the General Motors non-union plants," said UAW Vice President Martin Gerber, director of organizing.

The UAW has accused the company of not living up to its agreement to remain neutral in organizing drives. Union officers said plant management, not headquarters, had been violating the agreements.

Meanwhile negotiators Thursday reached a tentative contract agreement in the 96-day old strike by nearly 500 UAW members at the Globe-Union battery plant in Owosso, a union official said.

The settlement Thursday followed three days of federal labor mediation, said Local 754 President Jack Felker.

The bargaining committee is recommending ratification, and a vote will taken Sunday in Owosso, Felker said.

The Owosso battery plant supplies Motorcraft batteries for Ford Motor Co. and also makes batteries for Sears.

Since General Motors Corp. has been selected the UAW national strike target in this year's auto contract talks and the Owosso plant is a major Ford supplier, Felker said "the squeeze was on Globe to get its battery plant back in production."

Ford admits occasional lemon

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Henry Ford II may be the only auto industry tycoon who admits that his company builds a few lemons.

In characteristically blunt fashion, he confessed it again at a new-model news conference Thursday that turned into a farewell to reporters who have covered him during his 34 years as chief executive of the family firm.

Ford took over the No. 2 automaker in 1945 when it was losing $9 million a month and turned it into a money-maker the next year through management practices imported from General Motors Corp.

He was asked if a man of 28 could do the same for a stumbling industrial giant today.

"It would be more difficult," in part because of today's consumer movement, he replied.

"We were in a seller's market. From 1945 to 1952 the customers would chew up anything you turned out the back door. It didn't matter if it wasn't any good," he added.

The clear implication was that some were indeed no good. The obvious follow-up question was asked: Does the company make lemons now?

"Unfortunately, we still do — but far fewer," he replied.

Ford, now 62, will remain as chairman of the board after Oct. 1, but on that day President Philip Caldwell takes on the title and duties of chief executive officer.

The news conference was to wind up a two-day preview of new models, but not a single specific question was asked about them.

Ford insisted he was "glad to get out" and said, "I've got to figure out what I'm going to do."

Later, he said he would visit company facilities around the world, starting next year, a job he said would take two years.

Caldwell said Ford would be chief executive until Oct. 1, but later Ford said "for all practical purposes" he was retired now, did not attend his normal business meetings and was "not going to put myself in the way of the people running the company."

What car will Ford remember most fondly? "The Fiesta," he replied without any hesitation. "It was brand new from the wheels up, with all new engineering. It was brought in very difficult circumstances. Money was hard to get. The board stuck with it, and it turned out to be one hell of a fine car in an area of the market we have never been." The Fiesta, a subcompact, was introduced in Europe in 1977 and is now brought into the United States — a move Ford said he opposed originally on the grounds the car was too small. Company spokesmen say they are still studying whether to make the Fiesta here.

Insisting he was not sorry to see a non-Ford head the company, Ford said his son, Edsel, now assistant general manager of the Australian subsidiary, has a shot at the top job if he proves capable. "I hope he gets there. He's got a long way to go. He's only 30. He's doing a fine job."

Fuel prices force TWA to lay off 179 mechanics

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Soaring fuel costs have prompted another wave of layoffs at Trans World Airlines which a labor official says will put 179 mechanics out of work.

Company officials said Thursday they were unsure of the final tally of layoffs but Earl Wheeler, president of Local 1650 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, said 179 workers were to be laid off.

"The employees were told they may be called back in February, but you can't depend on that," Wheeler said.

Added to the 85 persons laid off last month, the 254 layoffs represent about 2.5 percent of the airline's 10,500 work force at its Kansas City headquarters.

The most recent layoffs, scheduled to take effect in October, are part of a 1,000-employee reduction in TWA's 36,000-member international labor force.

TWA spokesman David Venz in New York said the layoffs are "a move to control increasing costs in a number of areas — especially

Man sentenced for family's death wants commutation

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Paul Gilly, serving three life terms for the murders of United Mine Workers insurgent Joseph Yablonski and his family, is asking the state Pardons Board for a commutation.

"There is no hope for parole with a life term," attorney Joseph Kanfoush said Thursday after appealing to the board on Gilly's behalf.

"If a term of years were granted, then he would conceivably be able to leave that institution for outside benefits such as education, a pre-release center or even going home for weekends," Kanfoush said.

The board, chaired by Lt. Gov. William Scranton, made no immediate comment on Gilly's request and must deliberate in executive session before making a recommendation to the governor.

A former house painter from Cleveland, Gilly was originally sentenced to death for his participation in the New Year's Eve, 1969, slayings of Yablonski, his wife and daughter at their Clarks-ville, Pa., home.

But the sentences automatically were reduced to three concurrent life terms after the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed Pennsylvania's death penalty in June 1972.

Gilly, who began his prison terms in September 1971, and Claude Vealey, who had pleaded guilty to the slayings, applied for a commutation of their sentences last year.

"The last time I was here, he (Gilly) felt he had served enough time," said Kanfoush. "He was disappointed."

No one protested Gilly's commutation application at Thursday's hearing. Last year, however, Special Prosecutor Richard Sprague said he was against commutation for Gilly and Vealey.

"It's premature," Sprague said at the time. "It's much too early. This case involved people hired to murder. A family was assassinated."

Nine persons, including former UMW President W.A. "Tony" Boyle, have been convicted or pleaded guilty in the slayings allegedly inspired by a union leadership struggle.

Yablonski ran against Boyle for the union presidency and was assassinated in his Washington County home shortly after losing in a contested vote.

More deaths will follow Mountbatten's, says IRA

LONDON (AP) — The Irish Republican Army vowed "many more deaths of both British and Irish people" will follow the assassination of Earl Mountbatten if Britain continues its rule in Northern Ireland, the war-torn province where some 2,000 already have died in a decade of violence.

The Irish Republican Publicity Bureau, propaganda section of the IRA's Sinn Fein political wing, issued the ultimatum Thursday in a statement delivered to the British Press Association.

"An address to the British people," the warning began. "Now that you have buried your dead and the understandable emotional responses which followed the events of last week have begun to subside, we sincerely hope that you can now begin to understand the immense problems your government's presence has created in our country."

"We sincerely believe that you, the British people, must now honestly and logically begin to re-examine the role of your government in Ireland, and realize that a continuation of the occupation of a part of Ireland is a sure recipe for further heartbreak and suffering."

"You, the British people, must understand that while Britain continues to interfere in the internal affairs of the Irish nation, there will be many more deaths of both British and Irish people."

The IRA's Provisional wing blew up Mountbatten and three others aboard his fishing boat in Donegal Bay Aug. 27 and hours later killed 18 British troops across the border in Northern Ireland in a double bombing.

Mountbatten, cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, war hero and statesman, was buried following an elaborate service at Westminster Abbey Wednesday.

National mourning continued Thursday with the burial of two members of Mountbatten's family who died with him — the Dowager Lady Brabourne, mother-in-law of Mountbatten's daughter, and 14-year-old Nicholas Knatchbull, Mountbatten's grandson.

Irish authorities have arrested and charged two men with murder in the Mountbatten assassination, and are seeking other possible suspects.

The largely Catholic IRA seeks to reunite British-ruled and Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland with the Catholic Irish Republic. Britain has sent 13,000 troops to Northern Ireland to deal with the continuing violence.

U.S. car production expected to drop

DETROIT (AP) — Production of U.S.-made cars and trucks is expected to drop to 163,565 vehicles this week, down from 176,731 last week and 20 percent below the output of the same week a year ago, according to an industry publication.

The estimated production of 129,998 cars and 33,567 trucks compared to a total of 205,881 vehicles — 148,850 cars and 57,031 trucks — manufactured during the same week in 1978, according to Ward's Automotive Reports.

This week's anticipated production is expected to bring the auto industry's total output for 1979 to 8,390,521 vehicles, 6,102,621 cars and 2,287,900 trucks.

Those figures compared to 6,262,070 cars and 2,462,195 trucks, for a total of 8,724,265 vehicles made by the same time in 1978.

Of the total scheduled U.S. vehicle production, General Motors Corp. accounted for 34.6 percent; Ford Motor Co., 28 percent; Chrysler Corp., 11.5 percent; American Motors Corp., 3.1 percent; and Volkswagen of America, Inc., 2.8 percent.

Car and truck production in Canada was expected to total 26,496 vehicles this week, up slightly from last week's total of 25,351 vehicles but down from production of 28,866 vehicles during the same week a year ago.

The new production was expected to bring total Canadian output to 700,182 cars and 471,373 trucks, a total of 1,171,555 vehicles, for 1979 to date. That compared with 770,079 cars and 447,246 trucks for a total of 1,217,325 vehicles made by the same time in 1978.

Vehicle production is expected to be lower than 1978 levels through the end of the year as automakers try to reduce their inventories of full size cars and light trucks, Ward's said.

Fighting now in third day with Rhodesia, Mozambique

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe Rhodesia (AP) — Fighting raged for a third day today as helicopter-borne commandos from Zimbabwe Rhodesia destroyed bridges, a radar station, fuel dumps and army camps up to 200 miles inside Mozambique in their first-ever strike at regular army targets, a military spokesman said. The spokesman gave no details of the latest fighting but said the raiders were having no difficulty in clashes with Mozambican government forces. A communique issued late Thursday in Salisbury said the commandos battled Mozambican troops into the night, more than 24 hours after the raid began. The attack, one of the largest in Salisbury's seven-year war against the guerrillas, came only four days before the scheduled start of British-sponsored talks to end the war. The attackers killed 23 members of a 26-man Mozambican army unit in a fierce gunbattle and destroyed a brigade headquarters used by black nationalist guerrillas and regular army troops, the Salisbury command said. A statement issued in the Mozambican capital of Maputo said Mozambican forces had shot down a helicopter and were inflicting heavy casualties on the raiders. It said a number of civilians had been killed, but gave no account of its own losses. Zimbabwe Rhodesia said one of its technicians was killed when a helicopter was shot down about 50 miles inside Mozambique. It did not say how many men took part in the helicopter-borne assault or a tandem ground strike against a combined army-guerrilla base at Malvern, on the border in Mozambique. The Salisbury command claimed it launched the attack after it learned that more than 100 Mozambican regular troops had infiltrated Zimbabwe Rhodesia to take command of black nationalist guerrilla units fighting the Salisbury government. The raid appeared to have a two-fold purpose of hampering joint operations between Mozambican regulars and guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe's forces based in Mozambique.

George Russell

BRONTE — Services for George Jackson Russell, 96, of Bronte, father of Iva Rotan of Midland, were to be at 2:30 p.m. today in Blackwell Baptist Church here. Burial was to be in Blackwell Cemetery directed by Shaffer Funeral Home of Bronte. Russell died Wednesday in a Robert Lee hospital. He was born Feb. 5, 1883, in Mason County. He moved to Blackwell as a child and was raised there. He was married Sept. 15, 1907, to Mae Campbell. He was a farmer and rancher. Russell moved four years ago to Bronte Nursing Home. He was a Baptist. Other survivors include his wife, a son, a daughter, two brothers, three sisters and 15 grandchildren.

Flora Jones

BIG SPRING — Services for Mrs. Roy V. (Flora) Jones, 91, of Big Spring were to be at 10:30 a.m. today in Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home Rosewood Chapel. Burial was to be in Mount Olive Memorial Park. She died Wednesday in a Big Spring hospital. Mrs. Jones was born July 13, 1888, in Erath County. She was married April 24, 1913, to Roy V. Jones in Lamesa. They moved to Big Spring in 1913. He died April 24, 1968. She was a member of the First Baptist Church. Survivors include three sons, Carroll R. Jones of Odessa, Dr. R.V. Jones of Nacogdoches and Henry P. Jones of Lubbock; two sisters, Edith Hatchett of Big Spring and Bertha Greenfield of Brownfield, four grandsons and two granddaughters.

G.E. Whitehurst

SAN ANGELO — Services for George Elem Whitehurst, 81, of San Angelo, uncle of Mrs. Raymond Cooper of Big Lake, will be at 10 a.m. Saturday in Robert Massie Funeral Home Riverside Chapel with burial in Fairmount Cemetery. He died Wednesday in a San Angelo hospital following an illness. Whitehurst was born May 31, 1898, in Murfreesboro, Tenn. He was a retired office secretary and a World War I veteran. He was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution and the American Legion. Other survivors include a nephew and two foster sons.

N. Carpenter

BROWNFIELD — Services for Nannie Carpenter, 89, of Brownfield, mother of Harold Carpenter of Hobbs, N.M., were to be at 10 a.m. today in First United Methodist Church here with burial in Terry County Memorial Cemetery directed by Brownfield Funeral Home. She died Wednesday in a Brownfield hospital following a lengthy illness. Mrs. Carpenter was born in Cherokee County. She was married to J.H. Carpenter May 4, 1910, in Telephone. He died Feb. 26, 1960. She taught school 25 years in Telephone, New Deal, Gomez and Brownfield. She also operated a kindergarten and was a private tutor. She was a graduate of the Texas School of Commerce. Other survivors include two daughters, a brother, a sister, five grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Wilma Sue Smith

LUBBOCK — Services for Mrs. John T. (Wilma Sue) Smith of Lubbock, mother of Mrs. B.F. Seay of Andrews, were to be at 11 a.m. today in the Broadway Church of Christ with Joe R. Barnett and Horace Coffman, ministers, officiating. Interment was to be in Resthaven Mausoleum directed by Rix Funeral Directors. Mrs. Smith died Wednesday in a Lubbock hospital after a brief illness. The Dyersburg, Tenn., native was married in 1910. Her husband, a Church of Christ minister, died in 1962. Mrs. Smith had lived in Lubbock intermittently since 1919. Other survivors include a son, a brother and a sister. The family requests memorials be made to the Lubbock Children's Home.

Joe Coleman

ODESSA — Services for Joe Coleman, 66, of Odessa, former head football coach and athletic director at Odessa High School, were to be at 10 a.m. today in the First Baptist Church with burial in Sunset Memorial Gardens directed by Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home. He died Wednesday after an apparent heart attack. Coleman was born Nov. 5, 1912, in Tyler. He was married to Grace Moore in 1936 in Dallas. He moved to Odessa in 1938 from Wellington. He was named head coach at OHS in 1938. He joined the U.S. Navy in 1941, serving in the South Pacific. He returned to Odessa to resume head coaching duties from 1946 to 1950. His team won the state title in 1946, made the semifinals in 1947 and quarterfinals in 1948. His career coaching record was 107-36-5. In 1970, he was honored by 300 OHS exes with Joe Coleman Day. He was elected to the Texas High School Coaches Association's Hall of Honor the next year. The OHS practice field was named for him in 1974. Survivors include his wife, a son, Joe T. Coleman Jr. of Houston; a brother W.L. Coleman Jr. of Dallas; two sisters, Mrs. C.L. Deese of Dickinson and Mrs. Raymond Marion of Waco, and a grandson. The family requests all memorials be made to the American Heart Association.

Alta King

BIG SPRING — Services for Mrs. Claud (Alta) King, 63, of Big Spring were to be at 3:30 p.m. today in Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home Rosewood Chapel with Elder B.R. Howze of Primitive Baptist Church officiating. Burial was to be in Trinity Memorial Park. Mrs. King died Thursday in a Big Spring hospital following a lengthy illness. She was born on Jan. 28, 1916, in Knott and was a lifetime resident of Howard County. She was married to Claud King on Dec. 31, 1939, in Big Spring. Mr. and Mrs. King farmed in the Knott community until 1970, when King retired and they moved into Big Spring. King died Nov. 27, 1978, in Big Spring. Mrs. King was a member of Primitive Baptist Church. Survivors include a grandson, Dennis Page of Monahans; two brothers, Grady Gaskins of Knott and Junior Gaskins of Big Spring, and three sisters, Mamie Metcalf and Sylvia Warner, both of Big Spring, and Bernice Chapman of San Angelo. Her daughter, Frances Page, died April 21, 1979, in Big Spring.

President Carter's hospital bill plays leapfrog in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's program to place standby controls on hospital expenses has legislatively leapfrogged over a group of congressmen who sought to kill the plan in a House subcommittee. The unusual action takes the administration's controversial proposal a step closer to a vote on the House floor. The sudden surge in the bill's movement was engineered by Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., as he chaired his health subcommittee Thursday. As the meeting got underway, Waxman informed subcommittee members — a majority of whom oppose the bill — that he would take the matter over their heads directly to the subcommittee's full parent committee.

legislation to the full committee no matter the outcome of the vote. "I think this bill is the only way to deal with inflation" in the hospital industry, he said. Afterwards, Waxman told reporters he had counted heads prior to the meeting and realized the majority was against the hospital cost containment program. And he pointed out that the full House will take up the matter even if the Commerce Committee does not report out a bill since the Ways and Means Committee voted out a weakened version of the administration's bill before the August recess. House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill has said if the Commerce Committee fails to act quickly in marking up a bill by Sept. 15, he will take the Ways and Means proposal to the floor. The Commerce and Ways and Means committees share authority over the most major health legislation. The Ways and Means bill, which has been opposed by hospital industry lobbyists, would trigger mandatory cost controls in 1980 if the industry fails to meet its voluntary goal of holding its rising expenses to 11.6 percent this year. Waxman said the bill he is pushing is stronger than the Ways and Means proposal and incorporate more of the administration's ideas. The idea behind both bills is to limit hospital spending as a way of holding down costs to patients.

Waxman later told reporters the Commerce Committee will take up the bill next Tuesday or Wednesday. He indicated his leapfrog maneuver was part of an advance strategy worked out by proponents in the full committee as well as with the House leadership. "It will be very close but I think we will win," said Waxman. The parliamentary move came after Waxman's health subcommittee voted 8-4 not to even consider the hospital cost control plan, which Carter has been asking Congress to pass for more than two years. Waxman told the subcommittee members before the roll call that he intended to move the controversial

Intellectual fantasy game may have ended in death

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A 16-year-old Michigan State University student has disappeared and may be dead — the victim of an elaborate intellectual fantasy game that may have become all too real, investigators say.

William Dear, who heads a five-member detective team hired by the parents of James Dallas Egbert III to look for their son, says anonymous tips, possibly from other players, suggest Egbert may be trapped somewhere.

If the sophomore computer science student is trapped, "lack of proper food, water and facilities after three weeks" would make his death a certainty, said Dear.

James and Anna Egbert of Dayton, Ohio, who have offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to the teen-ager, said their son did play the game called "Dungeons and Dragons," but they believe he was abducted.

"After this long, I'm convinced he's being held by somebody," Egbert told the Dayton Journal Herald this week.

In the game, players using special dice assume the roles of medieval characters with the object of overcoming barriers to escape a dungeon charted on graph paper. The game is based on rules and techniques contained in three books.

"You have a dungeon master — he designs the cast of characters," Dear said. "Someone is put into the dungeon, and it's up to them to get out."

The rules are so complicated it can take weeks to learn how to play at a beginner level. Based on the roll of the dice, players learn their strength in overcoming such obstacles as monsters and goblins.

A single "Dungeons and Dragons" game has been known to go on for as long as two years, said investigators. And, according to Dear, some MSU players apparently don't confine the game to paper.

"When you take highly intellectual people, it takes a lot to stimulate them," he said. However, it has not been explained how the game is translated from graph paper to the real world.

Dear's team was checking two sites today in their search for Egbert, who Dear said had an IQ of 145. The sites were identified by the anonymous tipsters, he said.

"If he is where he's supposed to be, then he's dead," said Dear. A representative of TSR Hobbies of Lake Geneva, Wis., which markets the dice and rule books, said an estimated 300,000 people play "Dungeons and Dragons" nationwide.

"In all of the variations — and there are a great many — we know of none that are actually physical," the spokeswoman said.

Egbert was last seen Aug. 15 in the dining-hall of his dormitory. A note found in his room said he wished to be cremated "should my body be found," but authorities are not satisfied Egbert wrote the note.

Detectives and MSU police are still puzzling over the arrangement of pins and tacks left on a bulletin board in Egbert's room. Thinking it may be a clue, they have searched several areas that resemble the pattern and Thursday were searching campus steam tunnels.

East Lansing police say they have not been called in on the case, and Ingham County sheriff's detectives said their information was being turned over to campus police.

Mrs. Egbert said she would describe her son as "independent."

"If he wanted to do something, he did it," she told the Dayton newspaper. "He didn't always do what other people told him to do."

"I don't believe he's run off," said Dear. Added Richard Riddle, another investigator with Dear's firm: "We do not believe he was kidnapped for ransom."

Brother of El Salvador's president shot and killed in roadside ambush

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Four guerrillas shot and killed the schoolteacher brother of El Salvador's President Carlos Humberto Romero in a roadside ambush north of this Central American capital, police said.

Jose Javier Romero Menea, the 59-year-old older brother of the president, died instantly by a hail of pistol and automatic weapons fire as he drove to his home in Apoppo, 15 miles north of the capital, Thursday night, police said. His daughter Karin was wounded.

The assassins wore red and black bandannas, the colors of a local leftist guerrilla army, and flags of the guerrilla Unified Popular Action Front and Nicaragua's Sandinista National Liberation Front were found at the scene, a police spokesman said.

No group has come forward so far to claim responsibility for the slaying.

Gen. Romero issued a statement saying his brother was killed by forces "who do not want peace in this country."

Romero flew to neighboring Guatemala Thursday for secret talks with the military leaders of that nation and the chief of the military regime in Honduras. Reliable sources said the were discussing the leftist Sandinista takeover in Nicaragua and its implications for their military governments.

The assassination came as leftists, buoyed by the Sandinista victory in neighboring Nicaragua, mounted a nationwide campaign to topple Romero's military-backed government and replace it with a Marxist regime.

At least half a dozen leftist groups, including the political wing of the Unified Popular Action Front, are staging sit-ins at 10 of the nation's churches, including the capital's Metropolitan Cathedral, to seek the release of political prisoners. The government claims it is not holding any political foes.

In addition, workers are striking for higher wages and better conditions at dozens of factories, and some are holding management executives hostage.

"We will not rest until Romero resigns," a spokesman for the front said Thursday.

Police claim an estimated 30,000

"professional leftist agitators" are gearing up to sabotage the nation's independence day celebrations on Sept. 15.

Kurdish rebels 'crushed'

By The Associated Press

Iranian armored units "crushed" some resistance they encountered in Sardasht, the last stronghold of a Kurdish rebellion against the Islamic regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the government Pars news agency reported.

A large rebel force retreated toward Sardasht after government troops took Mahabad, 80 miles to the northeast, on Monday. Mahabad was the fourth major town recaptured during two weeks of fighting in northwestern Kurdistan.

Two government armored units reached Sardasht Thursday and "faced some resistance which was crushed," Pars reported.

Tehra Radio, monitored in London, said Ayatollah Saddeq Khalkhali, Khomeini's special prosecutor, would arrive in Mahabad soon. Khalkhali's tribunals have sent more than 80 Kurdish rebels before firing squads since mid-August.

The British press said Khalkhali's presence in Mahabad was expected to further antagonize the Kurds, who have demanded his recall to Tehran.

British newspapers reported from Tehran that 60 rebels have been captured near Mahabad since the beginning of the week. However, Tehran Radio quoted Mahabad's public prosecutor, Hoseyn Arman, as saying "there were no new prisoners" in the city's jails.

Severe fighting between Kurds and Khomeini's forces broke out late last month when the central government tried to reassert control over the region. The Kurds had exercised limited autonomy in Kurdistan since backing Khomeini's revolution, which toppled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's regime in February.

Egyptians pin hopes on peace

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a series of articles on Egyptians. It tells how the younger generation hopes peace with Israel may help them.

By MORT YOUNG
Hearst Newspapers

ASWAN, Upper Egypt—This sun-drenched town joins the ruins of a pharaonic past to the promise of a fertile future: from desolate stone temples to the concrete sweep of the High Dam.

One symbolizes the lost wealth of antiquity; the other heralds what may come — more electrification, more irrigation, more cropland to feed this over-populated nation.

The increasing numbers of educated Egyptians — young but worried — hope peace will directly affect them and will make their future secure from want.

But the fellahen — Egypt's poverty-hardened peasantry — continue to live from day to day, in mud huts as did their ancestors for millennia, on the same narrow green fringes of the Nile River. Beyond, to either side, is the desert: arid, barren, dead.

Out of this enduring history modern generations of fellahen are struggling to rise. From meager villages such as the one in which Fathi Abdel Hamid el Shasly was born, young Egyptians are emerging into a world better than their fathers knew.

MR. SHASLY, AT 26, has been teaching history in a high school in Sohage el Maragha, some 400 miles southeast of Cairo, for five years. After receiving automatic annual raises of $1.90, he now earns $58 a month. By 1994, after teaching for 20 years, he will reach the maximum monthly wage of $174.

But Mr. Shasly will have to be as lucky then as he is now if he is to survive on that income. Inflation, running at 30 percent a year, is as ravaging as any plague. His salary as a teacher loses buying power faster than he can spend it.

Fed by a war economy, inflation has been as destructive as any military defeat. With real peace in the offing, President Anwar el-Sadat is promising that more money will be pumped into the economy — a peace-time economy — in which the long-suffering fellahen will be able to share.

As it is, Mr. Shasly remains unmarried, staying with his parents. It is the only way he can live on his salary. He has a summer job as a steward on a Nile cruise boat, the "Isis." Compared to what he earns as a teacher, the money is good, he said.

Without a university degree, however, Mr. Shasly might be working in a village field.

"EDUCATION IS THE WAY to break out of the endless circle of poverty. The fellahen recognize this," said Dr. Khalil Youssef Khalil, director of the National Center for Educational Research.

Even with free education through the university, and obligatory for the first six primary grades, the drop-out rate for third-graders — 9 years old — is 15 percent.

"Of these, we estimate 10 percent leave in order to work and add to the family income," Dr. Khalil said.

A child working in the cotton fields earns 15 cents a day. In cities, as many as 70 youngsters share a classroom and schools operate two shifts a day. In rural areas, class-size dwindles to 30. Only 83 percent of the children who should be in primary school, are. Nevertheless, the 4.7 million who do go are proportionately twice as many as attended 25 years ago.

THE ILLITERACY RATE is a matter of conjecture. Dr. Khalil said it was 56 percent in 1976, the last year for which official figures were available. Others put the illiteracy rate as high as 87 percent.

In Egypt's dozen universities, classes contain as many as 2,000 students. They are divided into TV-equipped rooms and lecture halls, with time to scribble notes but not to question the lecturer.

All high school graduates may enter a university, although only those scoring the highest marks on the standard final exam are selected for the top schools, Cairo and Alexandria Universities.

"We will have to restrict admissions to certain fields of study to meet the needs of the government," said Dr. Ibrahim Badran, president of Cairo University, which accepts 13,000 freshmen a year. "More people must be steered toward technical and industrial educations."

In all, 70,000 will enter Egyptian universities this September, 4,000 more than last year, despite warnings by the Ministry of Manpower and Vocational Training that graduates will be forced to take jobs for which they are over-qualified — and that the situation will last for a decade.

"THE MOST POPULAR majors are medicine, engineering, pharmacy and dentistry," Dr. Badran said. "But we will be admitting fewer and fewer."

Those not accepted into the top universities find themselves, often, majoring in subjects they do not really want. Many are forced to settle for technical training in vocational schools. Although such specialists are badly needed, because so many skilled workers emigrate to find higher-paying jobs, the onus of failing to get into a top school can haunt a young person for the rest of his or her life.

If, after a year following graduation, university graduates cannot find work themselves, they may apply to the ministry of manpower. Most want jobs in Cairo rather than returning to their villages, drab in comparison with the sophisticated city. But they cannot all be absorbed.

The manpower agency arbitrarily doles these graduates out, assigning them work in their home provinces if possible, elsewhere if not — whether they are needed or not. The results often are human tragedies that last lifetimes as college graduates steel themselves to do the work of clerks.

An effort to end the job guarantee, which has become self-defeating, was made recently. The reaction was overwhelming and understandably so. A life of frustration was better than one of penury.

POVERTY IS THE engine that drives the most tradition-bound villagers to send their sons — and even daughters — to school for as long as they can be spared. For most, it is the only way out of the past. A son who becomes a government clerk is reasonably assured of survival. He will receive a salary, perhaps even a promotion, certainly a pension.

To service the growing demand for education, teachers are turned out at the rate of 20,000 a year. Supply never catches up with demand.

"Despite the new teachers, we remain short because 7,000 of the most experienced are sent to other Arab countries each year," Dr. Khalil explained. "We now have 25,000 Egyptians teaching throughout the Middle East from Kuwait to Libya. We consider it a national responsibility."

It is also a source of hard currency. Expatriate teachers send back $1.7 billion annually to Egypt, a sum equivalent to 10 percent of the gross national product.

The money is needed desperately, particularly since the oil-rich Arab countries have cut off most of their aid. Egypt simply cannot afford to stop skilled technicians and teachers from seeking better pay overseas. On the other hand, Egypt cannot afford to lose their expertise. It's the local version of Catch-22.

"With peace, the problem will be solved in time," Dr. Badran predicted. "The money squandered on war will be diverted to where it must and should be spent. On developing our country."

For young men like Mr. Shasly, working in the provinces and making ends meet as best they can, an Egypt at peace means more opportunities.

The government is counting on a vastly expanded tourist trade to pump hard currency into the economy and so are new members of the middle classes like Mr. Shasly. They expect the wealth to trickle down to them; they expect jobs that do not exist now will be created. They expect to live in peace, as President Sadat has promised.

Clouds still hang over Senate's SALT debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO is formally lining up in support of the proposed SALT II treaty, but the future of the pact remains clouded by controversy over the presence of a brigade of Soviet combat troops in Cuba.

Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer of the labor federation, was relaying the AFL-CIO's previously announced support of the treaty to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today.

Meanwhile, Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd is raising the possibility that full Senate consideration of the treaty could be delayed to prevent the debate from being "miscolored" by the Cuban controversy.

And Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, is on record as warning that the treaty will not be ratified as long as the troops remain stationed in Cuba.

Byrd said there is "no reason" the treaty has to come to the floor Oct. 1, as presently planned. "It could be Nov. 1, or Dec. 1, or as late as mid-December," he said Thursday.

Byrd commented in reacting to a proposal by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., that the Senate vote to suspend consideration of the treaty until the Cuban situation is resolved, either by removal of the 2,000 to 3,000 combat troops said to be stationed there or by a statement from President Carter that they pose no threat to the United States or its allies.

Byrd said the Dole resolution would undercut the authority of the Foreign Relations Committee, take away Byrd's flexibility as majority leader and "place the Senate in a straitjacket."

Byrd said it is unlikely he would schedule the treaty for floor consideration while the Cuban controversy remains an overriding issue. He asked the Senate for time "to permit the efforts of diplomacy to work to resolve this matter."

In a related development, a former head of the Defense Intelligence Agency disputed the administration's assertion that Soviet troops were in Cuba as early as 1975 and probably years before that.

Retired Army Lt. Gen. Daniel Graham, who left the military at the beginning of 1976, told the Foreign Relations Committee Thursday that he knew of "absolutely no evidence" of Russian combat troops in Cuba during the mid-1970s.

Graham opposes SALT II.

In separate testimony Thursday the treaty was endorsed by Coretta Scott King, widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.; former Ambassador Charles Yost; and Cardinal John Krol, speaking for the U.S. Catholic Conference.

Interest-paying checking account bill ready for passage in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to legalize interest-paying checking accounts nationwide appears to be well on the way to House passage.

The legislation breezed through the House Banking Committee Thursday, winning approval by a 35-4 vote. The bill has 248 co-sponsors, more than enough to pass the 435-member House if they all vote for the final version.

Rep. Bernard J. St Germain, D-R.I., the bill's author, said he will seek a House vote next week under a suspension of the rules, a procedure that requires a two-thirds majority.

Similar legislation is being considered in the Senate.

The House bill would, in effect, overturn a decision last April by the U.S. Appeals Court here. That ruling barred automatic savings-to-checking transfer accounts and credit union shared draft accounts as of next Jan. 1.

St Germain's bill would permit automatic transfers and shared drafts to continue after the court-imposed deadline. It also would allow financial institutions to offer so-called NOW accounts nationwide as of Sept. 30, 1980.

The three types of accounts work essentially the same way, permitting consumers to earn money on their deposits until the money is needed to cover checks.

NOW accounts — the NOW stands for negotiable order of withdrawal — currently are limited by law to New England and New York.

St Germain, chairman of the House Banking subcommittee on financial institutions, praised NOW accounts as "a tried and proven concept that has been enthusiastically embraced by consumers and financial institutions in (New England and New York)."

One consumer group claims that permitting NOW accounts nationwide could allow depositors to earn billions of dollars in extra interest on their money.

However, Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., chairman of the House Banking consumer subcommittee, attacked the NOW account bill, claiming it "will do nothing to help small depositors and in actuality will hurt them."

Annunzio said banks will set large minimum deposits for NOW accounts and thus limit their benefits to wealthy depositors. At the same time, he said, other bank charges will be raised to pay for the extra interest payments on the NOW accounts.

An Annunzio-sponsored amendment to prohibit minimum deposits above $100 was defeated 22-9. St Germain said such a restriction would have effectively destroyed the bill.

Speaker gives up efforts to curb ham on television

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen will be free to ham it up on television for the benefit of the folks back home, thanks to the retreat of Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill.

O'Neill, a Massachusetts Democrat, said Thursday he's giving up on his plan to cut back television coverage of House speeches. "It's pretty clear that the will of the membership is to go along with what we've been doing," he said.

What the House had been doing was televise speeches that were carried over cable TV outlets around the country. But O'Neill complained that many of those speeches were made simply for the benefit of individual House member's constituents. He said that was a waste of time and tax dollars.

He then suggested that cameras be shut off for speeches unrelated to House business. But fellow representatives didn't think much of the idea and O'Neill said it was clear they wanted gavel-to-gavel coverage.

O'Neill said it probably would have required a vote of the full House to restrict the television coverage, which began six months ago and carried a $1 million pricetag.

In another development, a House committee was told that no tapes from the TV broadcasts were available that might solve the mystery of how a congressman was recorded as voting when in fact he was out of town.

Rep. Morgan Murphy, D-Ill., was recorded as voting six times on July 30 while he was in Chicago. The mystery votes were tallied by a House computer system that requires voting congressmen to insert a card in a voting terminal.

The House Administration Committee agreed Thursday that the computer did not malfunction that day, thus suggesting that someone voted for Murphy either by using his card or by using a counterfeit card.

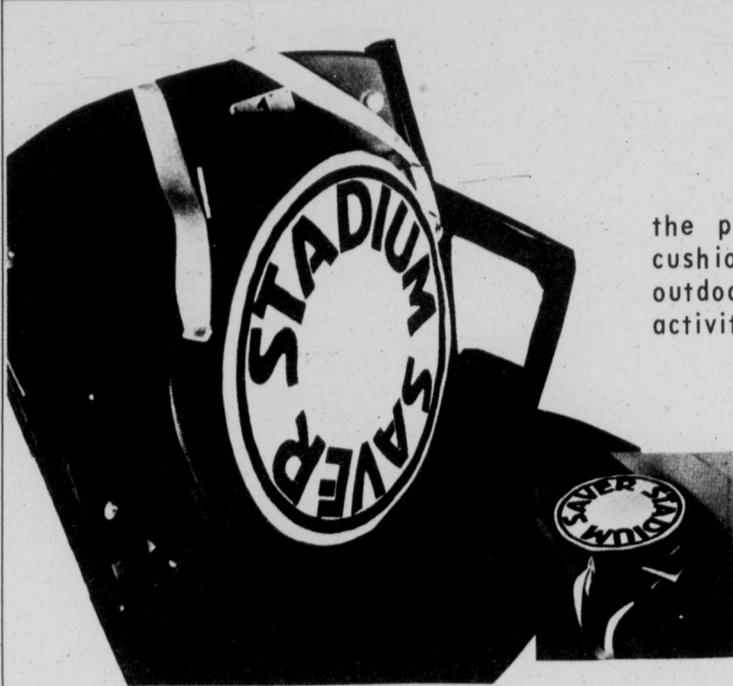

Murphy has said he is not sure whether he carried his card with him to Chicago or left it in Washington.

Court strikes out law on hookers

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Alaska's prostitution law is discriminatory because it defines prostitution in terms of women, the state Supreme Court has ruled.

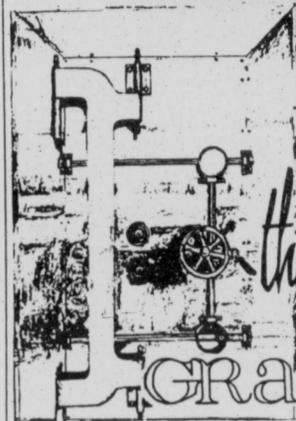

The court said in an Aug. 24 ruling the law discriminated against women by defining prostitution as "the giving or receiving of the body by a female for sexual intercourse for hire."

The court said the law can be enforced by deleting the words "by a female" to make the language neutral as to gender so the rest of the statute could remain legally intact.

Rams method of victory is 'run, stumble, score'

DENVER (AP) — Four days earlier, the Los Angeles Rams had lost a game because of costly turnovers — two blocked punts, a fumbled punt return and three interceptions, to be exact.

Thursday night, the Rams got even when linebacker Jack Reynolds scooped up a fumble by Denver quarterback Craig Morton and staggered four yards into the end zone for the clinching touchdown in a 13-9 National Football League victory.

"I was amazed to see the ball pop out," said Reynolds after scoring the first touchdown of his 10-year pro career. "It was just lying on the floor. I concentrated on falling on the ball. Everybody down there just picked me up and moved me on my way."

Of his lurching run into the end zone, Reynolds said, "I call it 'run, stumble and score.'"

The key turnover, which came with nine minutes left in the game, was produced by Dave Elmendorf's safety blitz. Elmendorf slammed into Morton, who had dropped back to pass from the Bronco 16-yard line, and the ball came loose.

"It was a normal safety blitz — I just went to the outside," said Elmendorf.

Los Angeles Coach Ray Malavasi explained that his team had used the safety blitz at least once in the first half, against Denver starter Norris Weese. "But obviously it didn't work as well as it did against Morton on the touchdown play," said Malavasi.

Morton had replaced Weese in the third quarter, and he promptly ignited a sluggish Bronco offense. Hitting passes of 25 yards to Jack Dolbin and 16 yards to Riley Odoms, Morton drove Denver to its only touchdown late in the third period. Dave Preston sliced 7 yards off the left side for the score, giving Denver a 9-6 lead.

But the Bronco offense was finished after that, principally because the rampaging Rams defense sacked Morton five times in the final period, including the touchdown play by Reynolds.

"They blitzed about as much as we thought they would," said Denver Coach Red Miller. "We let too many of them get past, but you have to give the Rams credit — they have a great defense."

Pat Haden's pinpoint passing had staked Los Angeles to a 6-0 first-quarter lead. Haden completed all four of his passes on a drive that culminated in Frank Corral's 30-yard field goal early in the game.

On their next series, Haden hit on four of five passes, and Corral connected from 34 yards away.

The Broncos cut the deficit to 6-2 on a rare end-zone penalty. On a pass play from deep in Los Angeles territory, Rams offensive guard John Williams was whistled for holding in the end zone, which constitutes a safety.

Denver threatened to score again moments later after Rick Upchurch caught a 44-yard pass from Weese. But three straight incomplete passes forced the Broncos to line up for a field-goal attempt at the Los Angeles 16. Weese, the holder, passed to Jim Turner, the would-be kicker, who was tackled at the 10-yard line, and the Rams took over.

The Broncos had scored a touchdown on the same play against Ok-land two years ago. "We saw something that made us think it would work," said Miller. "They really had to play it well to stop it."

Haden completed 23 of 32 passes for 191 yards, which accounted for the bulk of the Rams' 277 total yards.

It was one of Haden's best passing days as a pro, and he credited it to having an abundance of running backs to throw to. "I could go back, read the coverage and have three or four guys in my line of vision."

Denver, held to 17 yards rushing in the first half, finished with 179 total yards.

The Broncos defense played most of the game without two of its standouts — linebacker Tom Jackson and nose tackle Rubin Carter — who suffered leg injuries in the first quarter.

Both teams now have 1-1 records.

Little Southwest promises action

Well now, here it is, the 1979 school-boy football season and it shapes up as another exciting one for local fans and followers of District 5-4A, which has been called the Little Southwest Conference for years and for good reason.

It really startled this corner to look back at last year's percentage in picking Class AAAA football games. It was 83.6 percent and the year before 81.4 and has been right at the 80 per cent mark for the 10 years of toiling on The Reporter-Telegram sports staff.

Local roundups on Pages 4-5B

Midland fans should see two highly competitive teams this fall in the Midland Bulldogs and Robert E. Lee Rebels. In fact, I seem to have this feeling that both could pull off some surprises before the dust finally clears in the 5-4A race even though on paper, Abilene Cooper and Odessa Permian appear to be much stronger than the rest of the field, or are they?

Anyway, without stalling anymore here are the first weekend picks by yours truly:

MIDLAND HIGH'S Bulldogs could be the surprise of the league and Coach Dennis Hays is highly-optimistic with plenty of talent and a lot of juniors. The Purple Pack opens the 1979 season tonight against the Amarillo Tascosa Rebels in Memorial Stadium with kickoff set for 8 p.m. Going with Michael Feldt, Billy Applin, Jerry Zachery and Jeff Robnett and Company to get off to great start by posting a 27-7 victory over the crew from the Panhandle.

MIDLAND LEE travels to Snyder to take on the big and burly Class AAA Tigers tonight with a very young, but promising team. Coach Gil Bartosh and his staff have worked hard and the hard work will pay dividends as the Rebels take up where they left off from last year's fine 8-2 finish with a 28-8 win over the Tigers with Mark Thompson, Steve Waldron and Gary Butler paying the way for the Maroon and White.

ABILENE COOPER has its annual battle with the classy Brownwood in Abilene tonight and the Cougars just have too much size and depth for the Class AAA Lions. It still is always an exciting game. Terry Orr should have a good night and if the turf is dry, the Cougar passing attack should click real well in a 33-13 victory in P.E. Shotwell Stadium.

ODESSA PERMIAN travels to El Paso for a date with the Coronado Thunderbirds who generally have a sound outfit for a Border City team. Kelly Howard will make a good debut for Mojo and tailback Ricky Reynolds and fullback Alan Hamline are impressive. Permian's defense will be too tough and it should prevail by a 34-0 count.

SAN ANGELO CENTRAL faces Stephen F. Austin of Austin in its opener under new coach Jimmie Keeling. The Bobcats have not been impressive and also have had five players quit the team in the past 10 days, but they will still open with a 27-14 victory with Glen Payne putting on a good show for the Concho Cats.

ABILENE HIGH travels to Wichita Falls for a date with Rider, a team the Eagles whipped up on in the 1978 opener. Abilene wound up sharing second place with Lee and Cooper last year and although young, will have enough to pull out a 20-14 victory in the Red River City.

ODESSA HIGH, too, has a new coach in Jerry Millsapps who comes to Broncholand from Class AAA Pecos. The Bronchos have a good backfield led by Billy Rumbaugh, Jim Harris and Geordie Mason and should impress the people up in the Panhandle City with a 28-7 victory over the Golden Sandies tonight.

BIG SPRING is supposed to be improved over last year's 0-10 team and does stand a chance in playing Class AAA Andrews, but the Mustangs have too much speed in Van Peary and will ruin the Steers' home opener, 20-13, however.

OTHER PICKS across the state: El Paso Austin, Lee's opponent next week, to take an exciting 22-20 victory over El Paso Eastwood which Midland plays in El Paso next week; Odessa Ector to open the season tonight in W.T. Barrett Stadium against Class AAAA Amarillo Caprock and the Eagles will surprise the Longhorns with a 20-16 victory; Wichita Falls 26, Lubbock Coronado 14; Lubbock Monterey to take a 20-8 victory over Canyon; Plainview is loaded again and could be better than last year and will dispose of Lubbock Estacado, 20-9; Lewisville over Duncanville, 27-7; Arlington Heights over Arlington High, 20-7; Lamar over Wyatt, 27-15; Trinity Euleus over Fort Worth Paschal, 20-0; L.D. Bell over Denison, 26-14; W.T. White over Lake Highlands, 21-7; South Oak Cliff over Dunbar, 33-19; Plano over South Garland, 27-7; Highland Park 27, MacArthur, 8; Longview to beat Dallas Jefferson, 30-14; Lufkin over Bryan 14-13; Texarkana over Arkansas High, 20-15; Tyler 20, Carter 17; Killen 20, Reagan 18; Temple over Austin Anderson 27-16; Conroe 10, Aldine 0; Kashmere to whip Wheatley, 30-13; LaPorte to romp past Port Arthur Jefferson, 33-13; Brazoswood over Angleton, 22-12; Alice 33, Harlingen 20; San Antonio Jay 20, Roosevelt 14; Churchill 21, Marshall 8; San Antonio Lee over Holmes 29-12 and Segun to flex muscles in 33-7 win over Austin Travis.

Scenery changes for Texas Tech

By The Associated Press

Texas Tech has got to hope that a change of scenery will help their nerves.

Last year the Red Raiders were scared as they took the field in the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum against Southern California, but it turned out that they provided a bigger scare, only falling by a 17-9 score to the Trojans after leading 9-0 at halftime.

This year, the scene shifts to Lubbock, Texas, and the Red Raiders hope to be more composed when they face the No. 1 ranked Trojans on their own turf.

In other action involving members of The Associated Press Top 20: No. 2 Alabama will visit Georgia Tech in a nationally televised contest; Wisconsin will be at No. 6 Purdue in a Big Ten conference game; Illinois also tests the Big Ten waters when it ventures to play No. 10 Michigan State; San Diego State visits No. 12 Missouri and Wyoming goes to the West Coast to face No. 15 Washington.

In night action involving the Top Twenty: No. 13 Stanford visits Tulane; No. 16 Houston will be at UCLA; California opens its Pacific-10 season at No. 18 Arizona State; and Brigham Young will meet No. 14 Texas A&M at Houston.

"We were really scared last year," said Texas Tech defensive back Larry Flowers. "We had seen all those great athletes on TV and we were wondering if we were going to get blown away. Then we went out on the field and found they weren't much different than any of the other teams we played."

Tech piled up a 9-0 lead on three Bill Adams field goals and Flowers said: "We went into the locker room at halftime leading and we couldn't believe it."

All-America tailback Charles White rallied the Trojans in the second half and they wore down the thin Red Raiders.

"I know they'll remember that game from last year," said Flowers. "I expect them to be rough and ready this time."

Some 55,000 fans are expected in Jones Stadium for the heralded duel between White and Texas Tech's James Hadnot, the leading rusher in the Southwest Conference last year.

Southern Cal Coach John Robinson remembers last year's meeting.

Optimists slate races

The High-Noon Optimists Club of Midland will sponsor a motorcycle moto-cross Saturday beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The event will be at the track one mile east of the air terminal, between Midland and Odessa.

Categories of competition run from 50 cc bikes up to open division classes which are 400 cc machines.

According to a spokesman, several riders from the professional moto-cross circuit will participate, including Midland's John Laney.

McEnroe travels bizarre net road

NEW YORK (AP) — It has been a strange U.S. Open for John McEnroe.

In five matches, he's already had one opponent call in sick and another come up lame. He's been involved in one of the most tumultuous matches in Open history, the four-set triumph over Ilie Nastase in which the crowd became so unruly as to disrupt play for 15 minutes and lead to the removal of umpire Frank Hammond.

And it's not going to get any simpler.

ON SATURDAY McEnroe will face defending champion Jimmy Connors in one Open semifinal. A year ago, in the same situation, Connors won in straight sets, but the 20-year-old McEnroe promises this time it will be different.

"I'm 2-6 against him lifetime but 2-2 this year," said McEnroe. "I've gotten over that point where people say I had a mental block against him. Now I just play him like everyone else. The first few times I knew I didn't have a chance against him. Even last year I knew he was too good."

"But now I know I can beat him." McEnroe, the No. 3 seed, earned his chance when ninth-seeded Eddie Dibbs retired in the fourth game of their quarterfinal match Thursday. Dibbs complained of a pain in his lower back that prevented him from running as well as usual.

HIGHLIGHTING today's program was the women's semifinal between two of the premier personalities in the game — top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd, who is seeking her fifth consecutive Open title, and ninth-seeded Billie Jean King, who won four Open crowns between 1967 and 1974.

In Thursday's other men's match, No. 4 seed Vitas Gerulaitis beat unseeded Johan Kriek of South Africa 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3. Gerulaitis will meet fifth-seeded Roscoe Tanner, conqueror of No. 1 Bjorn Borg, on Saturday.

In women's action, No. 3 Tracy Austin clobbered unseeded Sylvia Hanika of West Germany 6-1, 6-1, and top-rated Martina Navratilova defeated Kerry Reid of Australia 6-4, 6-1. Those two winners also meet Saturday.

Thursday's results mean there are eight men and women still in the running for the Open singles titles — and all eight are Americans. It is the first time since 1953 that the finalists vying for both singles titles will be

Americans, and the first time since 1950 that all four men's singles finalists are Americans.

NONE HAS had a more bizarre road than McEnroe.

His first-round match was postponed a day because his opponent, Pavel Slozil, was involved in a doubles match in a tournament in Boston. After beating Slozil in straight sets, McEnroe then went through the chaotic clash with Nastase, a match that set a new standard for center-court confusion.

His next foe, John Lloyd of Britain, defaulted because of a stomach ailment caused in part by the heat and humidity. After another straight-set victory, this time over Tom Gorman, McEnroe received a second walkover when Dibbs suddenly pulled out of Thursday's match.

Dallas draws nod Sunday

By HAL BOCK
 AP Sports Writer

The first win is always the hardest and three of the four new National Football League coaches are still looking for it as the season moves into its second week.

Ray Perkins of the New York Giants, Ron Ehrhardt of the New England Patriots and Bill Walsh with the San Francisco 49ers try again Sunday. All three came close in last weekend's opener but close counts only in horseshoes and hand grenades. Tom Flores at Oakland was the only freshman coach to come up a winner the first time around.

The Pro Picker did all right for openers, coming up 10-4 for '74. There is no danger of overconfidence, however. The Picker has too long a memory for that.

The Picks:
NEW ENGLAND 24, NY JETS 20: The Patriots came within a few minutes of kayoing the Super Bowl champion Steelers Monday night. The Jets will offer less resistance.

ST. LOUIS 17, NY GIANTS 10: The Giants are like the little girl with the little curl... very, very good or very, very awful. Choose awful, again.

WASHINGTON 20, DETROIT 13: No. quarterback makes this a tough game to play as the Lions are finding out.

NEW ORLEANS 31, GREEN BAY 14: The Saints can score points. If they can just get the center snap down pat, everything will be fine.

CHICAGO 10, MINNESOTA 6: This will be an old-fashioned, grind-it-out game. There are few better grinders than the Bears' Walter Payton.

TAMPA BAY 21, BALTIMORE 17: With Bert Jones' of the Colts ailing, the Bucs play another team using a backup passer. Detroit couldn't get away with that last week. Baltimore won't this week.

MIAMI 19, SEATTLE 17: The Dolphins had a scare against Buffalo and the Seahawks can be more frightening than the Bills. But it's awfully tough to beat Miami at home.

PITTSBURGH 17, HOUSTON 14: The Oilers had an awful lot of trouble with an inferior Washington club. Pittsburgh is hardly inferior.

CLEVELAND 20, KANSAS CITY 13: Coach Marv Levy has the Chiefs convinced they can win. The Browns stole one from the Jets last week.

SAN DIEGO 27, OAKLAND 21: Dave Casper is back with the Raiders, a fact that won't go unnoticed by Ken Stabler. The Chargers, though, can put up plenty of points in a hurry.

CINCINNATI 16, BUFFALO 13: Not much to choose between here, but on paper, the Bengals seem to have better personnel.

DALLAS 28, SAN FRANCISCO 7: The Cowboys are in another class from the 49ers.

ATLANTA 24, PHILADELPHIA 17: (Monday night): An interesting matchup with two up-and-coming teams. Falcons beat the Eagles in last year's playoffs so stay with them.

Midland High quarterback Michael Feldt will guide the Bulldogs against Amarillo Tascosa today at 8 p.m. in Memorial Stadium as the 1979 high school football season opens. Complete game roundups for both Midland High and Midland Lee are on Pages 4-B and 5-B. Lee travels to Snyder tonight. (Staff Photo)

McGuire, Carlen under fire

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Frank McGuire will be replaced as head basketball coach at the University of South Carolina and invited to serve "in some other meaningful capacity," the school's board of trustees has decided.

The board announced its decision Thursday, after a day of no comment from university officials on published reports that McGuire would be asked to step down after the 1979-80 season and would be offered a position as public relations vice president.

The school's trustees also confirmed reports that it voted to renegotiate Jim Carlen's contract as athletic director and head football coach, which expires in three years.

In a statement, board Chairman Markley Dennis Sr. confirmed that McGuire's 16th season would be his last as head basketball coach and that the dual positions of football coach and athletic director would be separated.

"I have no reaction to the board at this time," McGuire, 65, said at a news conference Thursday, before Dennis issued his statement. "I expect to stay as long as my health holds out."

"Time is a great thing. You live one day at a time when you are a coach — at most places," he said.

"I know I'm going to have a good club this year. And I know there are certain people who would like to sabotage that, but I don't think they can this year."

"If this is to be my last year, it would kill the program. When it hits the national wire ... and then I go into a home, how can Frank McGuire recruit when that's true?"

He added, "I just hope this doesn't affect my family. This is no way to treat a human being. I assure you, I'll be here coaching."

The board's contract decisions were made in executive session Sept. 4, Dennis said.

The board action was published in The State newspaper's Thursday edition, but Carlen and McGuire had said they were unaware of the reported decisions. Dennis said in his statement released late Thursday that "the parties concerned" had been advised of the board action.

ment released late Thursday that "the parties concerned" had been advised of the board action.

During his collegiate coaching career, McGuire produced nationally-ranking teams at South Carolina, University of North Carolina and St. John's.

He won a national championship at North Carolina in 1957, has twice been named "National Coach of the Year" and has been inducted into the National Basketball Hall of Fame.

Bamberger wants another try

MILWAUKEE (AP) — George Bamberger, saying the odds had been "67 percent in favor of my quitting," reported Thursday he now plans to be manager of the Milwaukee Brewers for at least one more season.

"The club is so close to winning the pennant that I would like to be a part of it," he said. "If we had stayed healthy this year, we would have won it."

Bamberger, 54, interviewed in Los Angeles where the Brewers open a weekend series tonight against the California Angels, recalled having said several times he might retire after the 1979 season.

He said he once told a friend he would bet $500 "that I'm going to quit at the end of the year. So, it is going to cost me $500 to stay."

Now, he said, "when I say I am quitting, I am quitting, period. Traveling for 34 years hasn't been a picnic."

The former Baltimore Orioles pitching coach joined the Brewers last season, and is reported to be baseball's highest-paid manager — possibly getting more than $100,000 this season, including a bonus geared to the Brewers' increased gate attendance.

"But I can't see myself working past 1980," he said.

Weaver wins argument

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver doesn't lose all of his arguments.

The manager of the Baltimore Orioles, who has been tossed out of nine games this season and has played numerous games under protest, actually had a decision reversed Thursday night.

But after an eighth-inning double by Doug DeCinces was changed to a home run, there was a suspicion that bullpen histrionics may have led to the unneeded final run in the 5-0 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

The drive by the Baltimore third baseman, who hit a solo homer in the second, scored Lee May to make it 4-0, but DeCinces stopped at second when the carom was retrieved by left fielder Al Woods.

While members of the Baltimore bullpen pointed to the edge of the bullpen dugout roof as the point of impact, Weaver hustled out to make his point of inquiry.

"I saw the left fielder go after the ball," said second base umpire Larry McCoy, "and I was unsure if the ball left the park. I had a poor angle on the play."

After conferring with third base umpire Vic Voltaggio, McCoy changed the decision and DeCinces completed circling the bases for his 13th homer the season.

"It wasn't a home run," Woods insisted. "The ball hit the top of the fence and came back."

But Weaver thought Woods appeared to have given up on the ball and "looked surprised when it came back over his head."

"At that point, it wasn't that big a deal," Weaver said and then conceded that the ball may have struck the top of the post supporting the wire fence.

Players in Baltimore dugout said McCoy started to make the home run sign at first, then pulled his arm down. That's when Weaver made his appearance.

After the Orioles had beaten Toronto for the 15th consecutive time, however, and increased their lead in the American League East to 9½ games over idle Milwaukee, bullpen occupants seemed reluctant to talk about the incident.

Eddie Murray drove in the other two Baltimore runs, on an infield grounder and a sacrifice fly, in support of the five-hit pitching of Dennis Martinez, 15-12.

Martinez, who had not won since Aug. 1, struck out six while notching his 15th victory on his seventh try.

Two of the hits were bunts by Alfredo Griffin, who extended his hitting streak to nine games, and one was a swinging bunt by Roy Howell.

Yankees 3, Tigers 1
Willie Randolph's run-scoring bunt keyed a two-run 10th inning, leading New York over Detroit. Bucky Dent started the Yankee 10th with a two-out single off Milt Wilcox, 11-7, and took third on Bobby Murcer's double. Dent scored as Wilcox' throw to first was late on Randolph's bunt up the first base line.

Wilcox walked Oscar Gamble on a 3-2 count to load the bases and reliever Pat Underwood then uncorked a wild pitch on an 0-1 count to Reggie Jackson, allowing Murcer to score the final run.

Yankee reliever Rich Gossage, 4-2, was the winner.

"It was a spontaneous thing," said Randolph of his 10th-inning bunt. "I noticed Jason Thompson laying back a little at first base. We had hit some balls hard and failed to score, so I figured I'd shake things up a little."

Angels 10, White Sox 9
Dickie Thon's RBI double in the eightth inning rallied California over Chicago, extending the Angels' lead over second-place Kansas City in the American League West to three games.

Thon, who entered the game in the seventh because second baseman Bobby Grich was suffering from the flu, drove in the winning run off Ed Farmer, 3-6, the sixth White Sox hurler.

Navratilova takes blast at tournament

NEW YORK (AP) — She may be the woman with the best record in this tournament so far, but Martina Navratilova was not in good humor.

The two-time Wimbledon champion is trying for her first U.S. Open crown. And her play through the quarterfinals has been strong and sure. She has not dropped a set.

But she is displeased generally with the fact that she is not as much recognized as Chris Evert Lloyd, the woman she has twice beaten in Wimbledon finals. And Thursday night she was fed up with tournament organizers and CBS-TV.

"Nothing about this tournament is good. Nothing," she muttered as she left a postmatch interview after beating eighth-seeded Kerry Reid in the quarterfinals.

"They had to wait until after 10:30 p.m. EDT to begin their match because Vitas Gerulaitis had taken so long to beat Johan Kriek. Besides, the scoreboard they watched while they waited had been wrong and they suddenly found themselves scrambling to get ready."

Navratilova said it caused both of them to play poorly. Most of the record U.S. Open crowd of 18,090 left the stadium before their match. She beat Reid 6-4, 6-1.

And she was still steamed, as many of the women players are, that CBS has devoted far less than 50 percent of its coverage to their matches.

The U.S. Tennis Association revised its schedule for the semifinals so that one women's match — that between Lloyd, the defending champion, and Billie Jean King — would be played today, and the other Saturday, when TV coverage is live.

But as of Thursday night, USTA officials said CBS did not plan to televise the Navratilova-Tracy Austin match. That's what prompted Navratilova's exasperated criticism.

The 22-year-old Navratilova has plenty to fear from Austin, who is only 16 but the third-ranked player in the women's game.

"She plays the same each time, so it depends on how well I play," Navratilova said. "The court (in the stadium, as opposed to the faster-playing outer courts here) is to her advantage. It's also slow enough that it's hard to put a ball away."

And despite her easy route here — she had a bye in the first round and beat Alycia Moulton, Caroline Stoll and Greer Stevens — she wasn't sure she has played enough to make her tough enough against the steady Austin.

"I play better when I play more," she said. "I've played four matches in 10 days. This is really stretched out for me. I have to stay psyched up for a longer time."

"It's almost tougher than Wimbledon."

Richard Todd to start for Jets

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Todd, who lost his job as the New York Jets' No. 1 quarterback to Matt Robinson during the exhibition season, will start Sunday's game against the New England Patriots, Jets Coach Walt Michaels said Thursday.

Robinson's right thumb was injured several days before last Sunday's National Football League season opener, reportedly when a teammate opened a door just as Robinson was reaching for the doorknob on the other side.

Robinson was ineffective in the 25-22 overtime loss to Cleveland, with Don Cockroft's game-winning field goal preceded by cornerback Oliver Davis' interception of a Robinson pass that sailed 10 yards beyond the intended receiver.

'Madden Rule' gets test Sunday

By The Associated Press

It has become known in National Football League circles as the "Madden Play." To keep other teams from pulling a similar stunt the league has instituted what many fans refer to as the "Madden Rule."

Ten years in the NFL, 103 wins, and the only thing some people remember me for is that one play," says John Madden, who was coaching the Oakland Raiders a year ago when quarterback Ken Stabler, running back Pete Banaszak and tight end Dave Casper teamed for one of the wildest touchdowns ever.

It came against the Chargers in San Diego, on the last play of the game and, with Errol Mann's conversion, it gave the Raiders a 21-20 victory.

The Chargers have been waiting a year for Oakland to venture into San Diego so they can get even. On Sunday they get their chance.

What happened in San Diego a year ago was this:

With a fourth down, no time outs left and about 10 seconds to play, Stabler faded back to pass, then was chased out of the pocket. As he was being tackled he underhanded the ball forward. Banaszak appeared to try and pick the ball up, but all he did was push it closer to the goal line. Then came Casper, who kicked and dribbled the ball into the end zone, where he fell on it for the tying touchdown.

Despite the outcry from the Chargers, the officials ruled it a fumble by Stabler and a legal recovery. It wasn't until well after the game that Stabler admitted it wasn't a fumble at all but that he had deliberately tossed the ball ahead and that the officials had, in effect, blown the call.

Even a 27-23 victory by the Chargers in Oakland later in the 1978 season, which helped San Diego finish in a three-way tie with the Raiders and Seattle at 9-7, didn't fully wash away the sour taste of the notorious fumble.

The Raiders — and the rest of the league — won't be able to get away with that kind of horseplay any more. From now on, if a player fumbles on a fourth-down play — or on any down during the last two minutes of either half — only he can recover and advance the ball. If a teammate recovers it, the ball is brought back to the point of the fumble.

Rowdies want the whole bundle

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Gordon Jago admits that if he was an outsider looking in he would have joined the line of those after the Tampa Bay Rowdies coach.

Most professional sports teams are happy when they make it to the final of their league's championship and if they lose, well, then they have something to build on for next year.

Jago, the Rowdies popular coach who could probably pass through the doors of the U.S. Senate as a double for New Jersey's Bill Bradley, was happy with his team's runner-up finish to the Cosmos last season.

But instead of building on what he had, Jago decid to start all over again. And the Rowdies fans, among the most fanatical in the league, were after his scalp.

"Our success last year was getting here. We were delighted to be here and played like nobody's business," said Jago, whose team will be out to redeem itself Saturday against Vancouver in Soccer Bowl '79 at Giants Stadium.

"But we didn't have enough to compete with the Cosmos last year. The mighty Cosmos were mighty," he shrugged. "In my opinion, and I get paid to make these decisions, we didn't have enough to get back here with the same team. So we released 50 percent of our playing staff."

Even Jago admits he was taking a giant risk. Plans to sign Mike Flanagan went down the tubes as did attempts to secure other name players. Jago was suddenly a coach without a team.

"I wanted to be fair to the players who weren't going to be here so we let them go early," he said. "I had no team at the start of the season."

But the shrewd coach quickly began to build. The key acquisition turned out to be Argentina's Oscar Fabbiani, who went on to dislodge the Cosmos Giorgio

Chinaglia as the league's scoring leader.

"Now," Jago said with a sigh, "we have a very good side. Last year Rodney (Marsh) was our all. He scored all the goals. We got to the Soccer Bowl on good spirit, good organization and good character, not ability."

But the shrewd coach quickly began to build. The key acquisition turned out to be Argentina's Oscar Fabbiani, who went on to dislodge the Cosmos Giorgio

Offensive line is key for 'Dogs against Rebels

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

Through the years, Midland High football fans have come to expect an awesome defensive struggle when the Bulldogs tangle with the Amarillo Tascosa Rebels, but today at 8 p.m. at Memorial Stadium all that will hopefully change.

Coach Dennis Hays' Bulldogs have promised some offensive punch this year, and they hope to unveil that aspect tonight in the season grid lid lifter against the Rebels. The game will be broadcast on KCRS radio.

There are plenty of reasons why the Bulldogs expect some offensive fireworks this season. Quarterback Michael Feldt, Tailback Billy Applin, Fullback Jeff Robnett. Those are pretty good reasons. All are returning starters and Hays says that with people like wingback Russell Hays, backup fullbacks Mark Hewitt and Terry Zachery, quarterback Brad Hixon and Doug McLean all show more than just average talent. The Bulldogs could be potent in the scoring column.

THE BULLDOGS have more depth, speed and size than last year when they posted a 4-6 record in Hays' first year at the helm. It has him excited.

"We've worked our kids harder and harder than last year, and they have responded well," Hays states. "They seem to know our goals and they know they have the potential to be a good football team. They want to prove to the fans that they are a good team."

Everyone knows of the potential of the Midland High backs. Feldt, a junior, could be one of the best ever at MHS before he is done. Robnett has 4.5 speed, which is phenomenal for a fullback, and Applin has more moves than Tina Turner in concert.

Still, the offensive line must prove its worth. If there are holes, Midland High will score often. This could be the key and this is where eyes should turn tonight.

SENIOR GUARD Paul Cox is the only returning starter in the interior line, and that's a good place to start an offensive surge that was lacking last year. Tackle Richard Barton and guard Gary Willis have junior varsity experience while tackle David Vinson and center Steve Mills played a lot last season. Hays thinks this group can give the Bulldogs some scoring punch.

"The offensive line is talented," Hays said. "They're just untested for the most part, but I think they will rise to the occasion. They did a very good job in our scrimmage with Brownfield. Cox is the stabilizing influence in the line. He is not a rah-rah type, but he talks by doing. He is a good example for the linemen."

And defensively, the Bulldogs have more depth than last year. Linebacker Rick Ankerholz is one of the best in the district. Safety Jerry Zachery was exceptional last year as was cornerback Pat Hickey. There is also some size with tackles Royce Cottrell, 225, and Wade Johnson, 235. There is also a surprise starter in sophomore linebacker Curt Holcomb. Holcomb just went out and won a starting job. Middle guard Jerry Dedrick, 190, is quick and has Hays jumping for joy.

IN SHORT, the Bulldogs are expecting big things this year, and that concerns Tascosa coach James "Jocko" Harris.

"We lost 27 seniors last year and even though we have a lot of seniors on the team this year, we don't have a lot of varsity experience," Harris says. "We don't know a lot about Midland High, but they looked awesome in the scrimmage with Brownfield. They have some size, good quickness and a lot of depth. They will be a very tough opponent to open with."

In the past three years, the games between these two teams have been low scoring, head banging affairs. Midland High won last year, 7-6; Tascosa won in 1977, 14-7; and Midland High won in 1976 by a 14-7 margin. The scoreboard expects more work this year.

TASCOSA FEATURES tackle Mike Washburn, a 215-pound all-state candidate. The Bulldogs will have to figure a way to get around him. The Rebels are young in the backfield with wingback Mitch Johnson, fullback Wade Hunt and tailback Ricky Hunt all juniors. Quarterback Marcus Mack is the lone senior.

Tascosa has only two returning starters on offense in tight end Erik Wilson and tackle Washburn. Linebacker Mack and halfback Kevin Leuthans are the only starters returning to the defense. Defensive end Kyle Northrup started last year, but will miss tonight's game with an injury.

"Tascosa is always a sound football team. Some of their kids are unknown under fire like many of our kids, but I think they will be comparable to last year. I think we are prepared for them," Hays says.

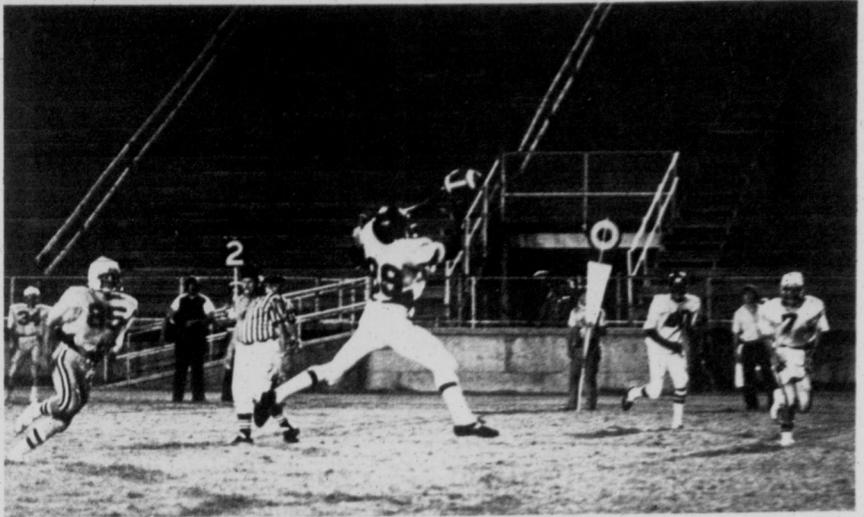

A good start by the Bulldogs could signal some high wind warnings throughout District 5-4A this season.

Rodney Hemphill put on quite a show Thursday night in Memorial Stadium.

He scored two touchdowns as the Midland Lee Stonewall Brigade opened the 1979 football season with a 13-0 victory over the Snyder junior varsity.

Hemphill scored on runs of six and seven yards in the first and fourth quarters to get the Brigade off to a flying start.

Hemphill, a 178-pounder, rushed for 49 yards on seven carries while fullback Calvin Riggs picked up 67 yards in 12 carries, but suffered an injury early in the third period and didn't play much in the second half. His backup Robert Alley came in, however, to rush for 45 yards in only six carries and tailback Joe Morro keyed the final drive as he returned a punt 40 yards to the Snyder eight to set up the final TD of the night.

Lee played exceptionally well in the first half on both offense and defense, but did make some second half mistakes as coaches Ernie Johnson and Tim Whalen used two quarterbacks with Bart Ryan going the first two quarters and Chris Parker the entire second half.

Linebacker David Herbig played superbly all night long along with Scott Kemmney, Alan Kyle, Mel Brockington and Troy Barber for the Brigade.

Felix Hall and Herbig came up with big fumble recoveries for Lee.

Lee drove 28 yards in only six plays to score in his first possession after Marro had returned a punt 30 yards to the Tiger 28.

Hemphill danced into the end zone from six yards out with 6:40 left in the first period after Lee stopped the Tigers after they picked up a pair of first downs on a pair of trap plays.

Oziel Gonzalez and Perry Echols stood out for Snyder on defense and Echols made three or four catches from his tight end position on offense. Robbie Davenport also had an interception for the Tigers in the second period.

Lee held the Tigers on their 33 in the second period and at the 29 during the season opener.

David Rivas also made a big play for Lee in the third period when he threw Tiger quarterback Gary Don Edmiston for an eight-yard loss on a key third and eight situation. Norwood Jeffery had put the Tigers in business by pouncing on a fumble by Lee's Parker three plays previous.

Lee's next game is next Thursday when it takes on the Midland High Bulldogs at 7 p.m. in Memorial Stadium in an intra-city battle.

Mean Green faces Cowboys

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — A pair of rookie head coaches unsure about their opponents, will oversee veteran squads when the Oklahoma State Cowboys meet the Mean Green of North Texas State here Saturday.

North Texas' Jerry Moore has 16 starters back including back Bernard Jackson, who led the Mean Green to a 12-7 win over OSU last year. However, Moore now has the nation's No. 6 runner last year executing out of a new Slot-I backfield.

"The I-formation is not a real frilly type of offense," Moore said. "We are trying to get where we can run the ball."

Jackson for one has been having success in the running department. In last year's win Jackson picked up 124 yards on 30 carries, and in North Texas' opening 35-0 smear of Texas-El Paso he got 127 yards on 20 carries along with two touchdowns.

In the experience department North Texas will have a one game edge, since OSU will be opening its 1979 season Saturday.

At Oklahoma State, first year Coach Jimmy Johnson has 12 of his 1978 starters back, including four of the best defensive linebackers in the tough Big Eight Conference.

Razorbacks look sluggish

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — University of Arkansas football Coach Lou Holtz thought the Razorbacks looked sluggish Thursday as they prepared for Friday's final pre-season scrimmage.

"You never expect a good day before the last scrimmage, and it certainly wasn't a very good day," Holtz sighed following practice. "I don't expect the scrimmage to be much better. Our players looked liked they wanted this week behind them and that's a sign we could have some problems."

"I'm not sure if our young players know what it takes in the area of the little things to win," Holtz said. "They're certainly not showing it. We're just not very good at the little things."

Holtz figured the Razorbacks might be a little behind schedule because,

"With such a young team, we have so many things to cover. Because we're so young, everything takes longer to put in. It's not just a matter of saying, 'Remember how we did this last year?'"

Holtz said he would know a lot more about the football team after the scrimmage Friday, adding, "We'll know even more a week from Saturday when we play Colorado State."

Arkansas worked hard on its kicking game Thursday with the punting units working overtime.

During the regular practice, Holtz was surprised to see starting quarterback Kevin Scanlon throwing the ball and throwing it well. Scanlon has been bothered by a pulled muscle in his back.

"It looks like Kevin may be able to scrimmage. I didn't think he'd be able to throw until next week," Holtz said.

Tiger taming is on minds of Rebs

By BOB DILLON
Sports Writer

SNYDER — It's tiger taming time for Robert E. Lee tonight.

Coach Gil Bartosh sends his Rebels into their 1979 football opener with a lot of questions to be answered against the Class AAA Snyder Tigers.

Kickoff is set for 8 p.m. with Radio Station KBAT doing the play-by-play.

"We are ready to play and feel like we will play well, but we do have some young players that need playing time. Especially in the line," said Bartosh.

Snyder Coach Mike Jenkins looks forward to the meeting with the Class AAAA outfit. "We need this type game to help us down the road and we know that Gil's teams are always well-coached and don't make too many mistakes," added Jenkins.

His Tigers are rated 8th in one schoolboy poll and 10th in another and are favored to battle Lake View for the District 3-AAA crown this season. Snyder finally lost to Lubbock Estacado in the regionals last year.

LEE STARTS four seniors in the backfield, but several juniors in the line on both offense and defense and Bartosh and his staff, like last year, start seven players both ways. "We want to improve each week during non-district play in order to be ready for the tough District 5-4A competition," commented the likeable Bartosh.

Senior quarterback Gary Butler heads the Rebel backfield and joining the 176-pounder will be tailback Steve Waldron, 175-pound senior, along with fullback Mark Thompson, 190-pounder, and flanker Wade Cartwright, a 180-pound senior who bypassed football last year.

In the offensive line, it will be Larry Linne, 170-pound senior at split end; tackles Clyde Smith, 190, junior and Irl Conally, 200-pound junior. The guards will be Clifton Barnett, 186-pound senior or Stuart Carter, 187-pound senior and Keith Brown, a 198-pound junior. At center will be James McGarrity, a 175-pound senior who has been slowed down with some nagging injuries. Rounding out the lineup at tight end will be senior Tom Williams, a 178-pounder.

On defense, the ends will be Bill Dern, 187-pound junior and Williams with the tackle slots being filled by Barnett and Brown or Carter.

THE LINEBACKERS are good ones in Smith, McGarrity and Thompson or Scott Collins, a 180-pound senior. Waldron and Cartwright will start at the cornerback slots with Barry Corley, 165-pound junior at safety, and either Joe Windsor, 160-pound senior, or Cliff Collyer, 160-pound senior, at the rover position. Windsor is another player that has been slowed down somewhat with injuries thus far.

Snyder, as usual, has lots of size in the line and appears to have more depth than Lee with only two players going both ways.

Mike Roemisch is the starting quarterback in the Multiple offense for the Tigers with Keith McClain (150) at tailback joined by fullback Bobby Degrate (172) and flanker Dale Jenkins (145).

At split end will be Barry Tubb (160) and at tight end is Trussell Thane, a 175-pounder, with the tackle slots being manned by Tom Peek (196) and Sam Willis (220). The guards will be James Angerosillo (190) and Toby Neves (190) and over the ball at center is Neil Evans, a 188-pounder.

Willis and Thane start on defense too for the Bengals at an end and strong linebacker slot, according to Jenkins.

THE TACKLES will include Morris Anderson (220) and Tony Degrate (240) with Jim Igo (165) joining Willis at the end.

Robert Rodriguez (176) and Jamie Lopez (165) join Thane at the other two linebacker positions while the two halfbacks are Ricky Gambol (155) and Bryan Vincent (150). Rounding out the Tiger secondary are Vaughnie Voss (155) at strong safety and Thomas Selmon (159) at the safety slot.

Last year Lee won, 32-8, to get off to a fine 8-2 season under Bartosh.

Cooper Cougars face Brownwood

In addition to the football opener tonight for Midland High and Midland Lee, other District 5-4A teams will also see action today with Abilene Cooper getting the roughest test.

Ray Overton's Cougars, rated as the No. 1 AAAA team in the state, will host Brownwood, rated as the No. 1 AAA team in the state. This should be a good test for both schools and the game is probably the best opener of all the games scheduled in the confines of the Lone Star.

San Angelo will host Austin High in the debut of first year coach Jimmie Keeling, and a lot of eyes will be on this one also.

Odessa High will also unveil a new coach when the Bronchos travel to Amarillo High. Jerry Millsapps will have to take his squad on the road for his first AAAA encounter. Millsapps comes to Odessa High from Pecos.

Abilene High faces a tough challenge when the Eagles travel to Wichita Falls Rider under the direction of second year coach Louie Spinks.

Defending 5-4A champion Odessa Permian gets a tough early test when they travel to El Paso to meet Coronado. Coach John Wilkins' crew has been picked for a second place finish in 5-4A this fall.

The Big Spring Steers, picked to finish last again this season in the 5-4A race, will host AAA Andrews tonight. Andrews is one of the favorites in the District 2-AAA race and the Mustangs feature fleet running back Van Percy in the offensive attack. This could be a rough opener for the Steers under coach Ron Logback.

Flag grid meeting set

An organizational meeting for boy's flag football will be Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Parks and Recreation Department, 300 Baldwin.

Parents interested in having their boys participate or wanting to help operate the league should attend.

Entry forms may be obtained at the P&R Department office. The sign-up deadline is Sept. 14 at 4 p.m. Play begins Sept. 22.

For more information, call the P&R Department at 683-4281, extension 280.

Football is king in West Texas

They say Texans like three things: football, football and football, not necessarily in that order.

And here in West Texas, along the flat expanses of nothing where one can see only active pump jacks, big red Dairy Queen signs and goal posts, King Football reigns supreme.

Tonight, pigskin junkies from Lamesa to Rankin and Abilene to Odessa, a copy of Dave Campbell's Texas Football magazine tucked away in their back pockets, will be getting their first schoolboy football fix of the season.

In keeping with the tradition of mania, the Reporter-Telegram sports staff will again be offering prognostications concerning prep games of regional interest.

That's fine and dandy but let's get a confession out of the way immediately—I've yet to see one down of a regular season football game in Texas.

Still, one need not be here long to realize that football is an integral part of the lifestyle.

Where but in the Lone Star State can more than a few people be heard wishing that the football season was 12 months long? Where else do so many people's lives seem to revolve around 100 yards of turf?

This isn't to say the seeming love affair with football is bad. On the contrary, it appears to be a uniting factor, a common bond that can bring people together, especially in the smaller towns.

Having viewed Midland Lee's spring game, Midland High's scrimmage, the North-South Coaches' All-Star game and visiting the area schools on the writer's tour, it was crystal clear that football players in this neck of the woods are a very special breed.

The most striking thing is the talent runs deep on all levels of competition, from Class AAAA all the way down to Class B. Heck, the finest player in Texas last year and probably the nation was Eric Dickerson of Class AA state champion Sealy.

In other words, the action's usually hot and heavy whether it be Abilene Cooper playing Odessa Permian or Podunk High versus Central Cupcake.

So, with disclaimers having been made and using a crystal ball that's currently slightly clouded, let's proceed with this week's fearsome forecast.

ANDREWS 20, BIG SPRING 16 — Bill Shipman's Class AAA Mustangs shouldn't run away with the game like they did last year. Andrews is young but talented and if Shipman's now settled on a quarterback, look out. Steers are home and have some explosive players.

PECOS 14, LAMESA 7 — Lamesa coach Julian Bush would love a season-opening victory but it'll rough going even at home against a Pecos squad loaded with experienced running backs and hitters. Lamesa does, however, have a potentially fine defense and it will be that group that makes or breaks the Golden Tornadoes.

DENVER CITY 25, CRANE 14 — Experienced offensive operatives will work for the Mustangs as they should avenge last season's loss. Although Crane's defense doesn't look too shabby, it's not likely the young offense, especially away from home, will light up the scoreboard enough.

RANKIN 35, ELDORADO 10 — The Red Devils may be youthful but coach Dwayne Turner's a veteran with a penchant for turning out hard-hitting teams. Rankin will be on the road but still shouldn't be pushed too severely by rebuilding Eldorado.

TAHOKA 17, STANTON 6 — Tahoka is loaded with incumbents from last year's outfit that tied for the District 5-AAA crown, yet won't romp over Stanton's senior-dominated Buffaloes. Working against the Class A Buffs is that their opener is on the road.

MCCAMEY 31, MENARD 9 — Badger head coach Larry Nabors' debut should be successful, especially if quarterback Raul Arana effectively utilizes wide receiver Billy Ray Terry and running back B. J. Terry. Menard, which will be at home, desperately needs leadership as the team is short of seniors.

REAGAN COUNTY 21, OZONA 11 — Ozona may be Class AA but it's awfully early and the memory of last year's 1-9 may still be fresh in their minds. Meanwhile, Class A Reagan County appears solid on both sides of the football. Owl QB Mickey Tom Owens is exciting.

Unique collection may find a home

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The National Park Service may be ready to get on line with Texas universities and museums that want to house a unique collection of artifacts from sunken, four-century-old Spanish ships. ... It's been recommended very highly that we accept this unique collection," said Bob Whistler, chief naturalist for the Padre Island National Seashore. ... Whistler told the Texas Antiquities Commission Wednesday that National Park Service officials in Washington have not yet decided to seek the exhibit. But he said officials seem responsive to the idea. ... The commission is looking for a permanent home for a vast and varied collection of treasure gathered off the Texas coast. Divers working through the commission brought the find to the surface in 1975. The collection, remnants of an April 1554 storm, belongs to the state. ... Some of the items are now included in a traveling exhibit. Others are being stored in a University of Texas laboratory. The collection includes silver that was being shipped to Spain from Mexico City. Whistler said the National Park Service would probably need special federal funding to build the type of facility the commission wants for the exhibit. ... Commission Chairman Fred Wendorf said "three, maybe four" Texas universities also want to house the collection. Several museums also may be interested, he said. ... The chairman voiced support for the park service. ... "The commission has said in the past that possibly the best home for this collection would indeed be on the national seashore. The National Park Service has the appropriate staff, funds and permanence we could use as a vehicle to solve what has been a very difficult problem for us. We don't want to go into the museum business," Wendorf said. ... However, no action was taken on the matter.

Alaska may opt out of Social Security

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Alaska's state employees — who have grumbled for years about Social Security's bite vs. its benefits in this high-cost state — will find out next week if they are getting out of the federal program. ... If they do, they will be the first state-employed workers in the 50 states to do so, although state and local governments have through the years threatened to withdraw — and more and more local governments appear to be doing so. ... State workers had until last Tuesday to return mailed ballots on the issue. The ballots will be counted next Monday, and if a majority of those who returned them voted to opt out, the entire force of 14,451 state employees will be out of the program on Jan. 1. ... This year, 98 government bodies of various types have told the federal government they intend to withdraw from the Social Security program, Social Security Administration officials say. ... That means 43,400 government workers in 16 states will drop from the program unless they change their minds by Dec. 31. ... AT LEAST 147 governmental bodies around the country employing 63,035 workers have given notice they will withdraw in 1981. Since only 20,000 workers were removed from coverage in 1978, there seems to be a trend toward withdrawal, at least by small government employers. ... In Alaska, the 20 city workers in Haines withdrew from the system in March. Under notice that they will withdraw unless they change their minds are 17,036 workers in eight Alaskan communities — including the workers of North Pole — Social Security officials say. ... The Alaska Legislature earlier this year approved a measure calling the state employees' election. A state-run program would replace Social Security if the vote is to drop the federal program. ... The election comes at a time when Congress is considering mandatory coverage for all public employees, including federal workers who rebelled against the proposal in 1977. It also coincides with a Congressional Budget Office warning that inflation and recession could seriously affect the soundness of the program, financed by contributions by employers and workers. ... Alice M. Rivlin, director of the budget office, has suggested that part of Medicare, financed by Social Security, could be financed out of general tax revenues. And, Social Security Commissioner Stanford G. Ross has said "painful adjustments" are needed in how Social Security is supported and what it pays if it is to remain solvent. ... Six states — Colorado, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Nevada and Ohio — are now without

Social Security coverage for state workers. State workers had been precluded from coverage from 1939, when the program went into effect, until 1954, when voluntary coverage was extended to public workers. ... THE NUMBER of public employees choosing to get into the federal program grew rapidly; today about 70 percent of the country's 12 million state and local employees now are covered by Social Security, according to the Assembly of Governmental Employees. ... The decision facing Alaska's workers is irreversible — once a government withdraws from Social Security coverage of its workers, it cannot rejoin. So the decision by the state employees who vote will bind their non-voting colleagues and future state employees. ... On the other hand, if a study due to be completed soon recommends mandatory, universal coverage of public employees, and Congress acts on it, employees could find themselves forced back into the system that now pays monthly benefits to 35 million Americans. ... Alaska workers have complained for years about Social Security benefits and the higher cost of living here. The U.S. government recognizes the higher prices in its 25 percent cost of living differential to workers transferred to the state. Alaska pays its state workers more than other states, which means higher payroll deductions to support Social Security, workers say. ... Yet, when they retire, they get the same benefits a worker in Mississippi gets — but with decreased purchasing power.

Hot seat shows how to handle media

HOUSTON (AP) — A major chemical-company official fidgeted nervously under the hot lights of humming television cameras, fielding questions from a group of newsmen lurking in the shadows behind the equipment.

For 90 minutes he was grilled about profits, dividends, environmental dangers and minority hiring practices.

When it was over, the sweating, shaking executive was taken into the private office of Dan Ammerman.

There he was told, in no uncertain terms, how he had messed it up; how he had lost his cool; how he had failed to answer honestly some queries; how he had tried to step into subject areas of which he had no knowledge.

The next day, Ammerman had a politician undergoing the barrage of questions. Then came a hospital administrator and an individual scheduled to testify the next week before a Texas legislative committee.

Ammerman, a former Houston television-news anchorman, was attempting to school these people in how to handle newsmen; how to conduct an interview; how to act at a news conference; how to give the information wanted without lying and without the all-too-frequent "no comment."

The unique operation of Ammerman Enterprises Inc. is to teach these executives and politicians who will face newsmen someday to show no fear of cameras or microphones or tape recorders.

In the past three years, Ammerman and his staff of consultants, who include television, radio and newspaper writers, have worked with clients throughout the nation.

The seminars, never with more than eight persons at a time, last only two days, long, 12-hour days. But Ammerman, an articulate, well-dressed, graying man, said, "When they leave here they have learned techniques, learned how to control an interview, learned how to stay out of the quicksand and hot water, how to keep the interview on the subject you wish to discuss."

The seminars have proved so successful that Ammerman is booked for months in advance.

The seminars include the news-conference session, private interviews, and even another little trick. Ammerman will answer a ringing telephone and inform his client the call is for him. The person, rather surprised anyone knows he is at Ammerman's large, luxurious suite on the southwest outskirts of the city, takes the phone and is greeted by one of the staff members claiming to be a newsman and asking for a statement immediately for live broadcast.

During Ammerman's interviews with the clients, there are no holds barred. "In five minutes," he said, "I can destroy them, not with tricks, but with solid questions and their own answers. I try to compromise them, chew them up and spit them out."

In his suite, Ammerman has built a small television studio, usable for news conference, talk shows, committee hearings, what have you.

He also has closed-circuit television so each client can view his performance and several conference rooms for group or private discussions.

Ammerman began the project after he had filmed a series in 1972 on a possible energy shortage, something that became a reality one year later.

"I talked with oil-company executives and got straight answers, but the minute I turned on the tape recorder or the minute the cameras showed up they had to be Clark Gables. They were acting, every single one of them, and I never got a straight answer. They all wanted to come off as somebody else, maybe Burt Reynolds."

Ammerman then began giving seminars on a part-time basis while continuing his television work. Then he went into it full time.

"I had some clients," he remembered, "but I didn't draw a paycheck for seven months. My office was the bedroom of my home. It grew from there to here."

Ammerman then began giving seminars on a part-time basis while continuing his television work.

After death, historic river is now called the Killer Tiber

ROME (AP) — The river that flows past the pagan ruins and churches of Rome has acquired a new nickname: the Killer Tiber.

Film producer Gianni Buffardi, suffocating in Rome's oppressive August heatwave, dived into the Tiber recently and died later. The city Health Office said he accidentally swallowed some river water and was fatally afflicted with leptospirosis, an infection associated with excessive waste in water.

His death brought about a fresh controversy over the hopeless pollution of the 260-mile historic river that meanders around the medieval hill towns of Perugia and Orvieto before passing through Rome and Vatican City and flowing to the sea at the ancient port of Ostia.

"The Tiber kills because it has been abandoned," wrote the Rome newspaper Paese Sera. "Amid virus, rats and garbage, it awaits a renaissance."

"The Tiber mirrors Rome," novelist Alfredo Todisco said in the newspaper Corriere della Sera. "Waters reveal the degree of social consciousness. Tell me how the rivers, lakes and coasts are and I will tell you the level of civic sense."

In modern times, particularly since the advent of industry, the Tiber had never been noted for its cleanliness. As far back as 1924 Fascist dictator Benito Mussolini banned swimming in it and transport upon it.

Now, every day, the Tiber receives ton upon tons of untreated waste, including that of Rome's three major hospitals and tens of thousands of Romans.

And it harbors, according to calculations made by the national television, 25 million rats.

Romans are showing concern, but doubts persist over whether the renewed worries will overcome traditional neglect.

Unlike Parisians who often praise their Seine in their literature, Romans seem more concerned with the magnificent bridges — Ponte Milvio, Sant' Angelo and Sisto — that span the Tiber than with the river that flows beneath. The best known Roman saying for their prime river is, "Buttate ar fiume," — Go jump in the river.

Only a few people ever descend the stairways from the high, 40-foot concrete balustrades that line the Tiber. They shun riverside strolls because of fears of crime and the foul smell.

Yet there is an attempt to make the Romans more aware of their Tiber, which receives its name from Tiberinus, the King of Alba Longa who drowned in its waters.

A group of river enthusiasts has revived "The Friends of the Tiber" organization and is offering daily cruises.

"I remember when you could swim and fish in the Tiber, when there was a lot of boat traffic," says Carmine Gamella, president of the group.

He concedes that the excursion is no joy ride, but adds: "We want to draw attention to the river and interest citizens and the municipality in restoring it to its former state. By offering the boat service, we get people down here to look at the river again, to realize that pollution should be stopped."

U.S. ambassador acts on his own

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American ambassador who joined in voting to urge Israel to negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organization was acting on his own and did not reflect American policy, the State Department said Thursday.

Ambassador Beverly Carter, the United States representative on a United Nations subcommittee in Geneva, voted Wednesday in favor of a resolution urging the negotiations to secure the rights of the Palestinian people.

The United States would not have supported the resolution had it controlled Carter's vote. State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said.

He said Ambassador Carter was acting in a "personal capacity," even though he was appointed to the post by the State Department. Therefore, he was free to vote as he pleased, spokesman Carter said.

State Department officials insisted that the vote was not an effort to appease pro-PLO countries in the Arab world without having to take official responsibility.

They said the administration believed in the principle that members of U.N. subcommittees and special organizations should not be bound always to follow the political line dictated by their governments.

The Precision Haircut

(And why it might be right for you)

If you hate the way your haircut disappears the day after, come to Command Performance where we specialize in the precision haircut.

Precision haircutting is our technique for cutting the hair in harmony with the way it grows. So, as it grows, it doesn't lose its shape. And because the hair is cut to fall naturally, you don't have to keep fussing with it. Usually a shake of the head does it.

The precision haircut with shampoo and blow-dry costs just fourteen dollars for guys and gals. We also offer permanent waves, coloring, frosting and conditioning. No appointment is needed, just come in. And you'll see that precision is right for you.

Students play while teachers walk picket lines in 15 states

The Associated Press

High school students watched football films in Anchorage, Alaska, while their teachers walked picket lines as walkouts over higher pay disrupted fall classes today for more than 680,000 students across the nation.

Striking teachers in Rutland, Vt., grudgingly agreed Thursday to return to work under a court order, and a smattering of settlements were reported in smaller districts.

But more than 30,000 teachers in 15 states remained on strike, including districts in Oklahoma City, Spokane, Wash., Indianapolis, Paterson, N.J., Eugene, Ore., and suburbs of New Orleans and Chicago.

About 80 percent of Anchorage's 700 teachers stayed off the job Thursday, while about 80 percent of the 38,000 students in the district showed up for class.

At some of the schools, students viewed college football films and movie reruns shown by volunteers and non-striking teachers, but in others pupils walked out of classes in droves.

Rutland teachers voted Thursday to comply with a court order to return to class in Vermont's second largest city. But the teachers said they would ask Rutland Superior Court Judge Thomas Hayes to lift his injunction until the Vermont Supreme Court rules on an appeal.

"We're going to exhaust every legal remedy at our disposal," said Charles Ochmanski, head of the Vermont Education Association. "Even though this decision went against us, we don't feel this is the last of the issue."

Most of Rutland's 240 teachers have been on strike since last Thursday, the first day of classes for the district's 3,700 pupils.

Meanwhile, public school strikes continued in Michigan, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Ohio, California and New York.

College students have also been affected by teachers' job actions over wages. A strike by some 700 professors at the University of Rhode Island forced a shutdown of classes for 11,000 students in the first faculty walkout in the school's 87-year history. A strike also disrupted classes at Fairleigh Dickinson University in New Jersey.

In public schools, strike-ending settlements were announced Thursday in New Chartiers Valley district near Pittsburgh, Linton-Stockton district in Indiana, North Palos District 117 in suburban Chicago and three Michigan districts.

Despite the settlements, more than 11,500 Michigan teachers remained on strike in 34 districts, and more than 2,200 teachers stayed off the job elsewhere in Pennsylvania.

Picketing remained peaceful in most areas, although the Eugene, Ore., school board passed a resolution calling on picketers to leave a 15-foot-wide corridor for replacement teachers.

Nan Dixon, spokeswoman for the district, said there were reports that substitutes were shoved and kicked in the ankles when they tried to squeeze through a crowd of picketers Thursday at a high school.

Nearly 700 parents in Southington, Conn., staged a rally Thursday night calling for an end to the dispute involving the 470-member Southington Education Association. About 40 percent of the district's 8,000 pupils showed up Thursday for classes, taught by 99 substitutes and three regular teachers.

In Ohio, some 1,400 teachers were on strike, while about 300 teachers were off the job in Portsmouth and South Kingstown, R.I.

Meanwhile, more than 350 teachers boycotted classes in Daly City, Calif., and about 140 teachers were on strike on Long Island, N.Y.

Odessa parks director to resign his position

ODESSA — Dan C. Lewis, director of Ector County's Parks and Recreation Department, will give up his $19,265 per year position effective Sept. 28 to join a Dallas landscaping construction firm.

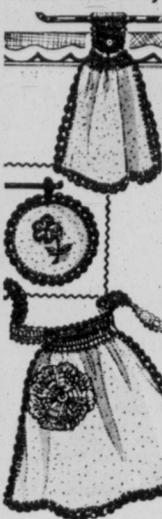

Lewis has been director of the department since Oct. 21, 1977.

He supervised operations of the parks department, which includes the Ector County Cemetery, the county's recreation program, the five county swimming pools and the senior citizen's centers.

The agencies employ about 60 people and presently have a combined budget of $1.07 million.

The parks department currently operates and maintains about 350 acres in 32 parks within Odessa and in other parts of the county.

$1500 PER MONTH PLUS

Manager Trainee needed to fill $58,000 per year position. It normally takes only 2 to 3 years to become a manager. $18,000 is your guaranteed annual salary while you learn, however for those who survive the first year average compensation is $24,700 due to additional sales commissions: 90 to 95 percent of your time will be in sales during the 2 to 3 year training period.

QUALIFICATIONS ARE TOUGH:
1. Impeccable integrity and references.
2. 4 year degree from accredited college or high school diploma coupled with 2 years of heavy retail manager experience.
3. Willing to work over 60 hours per week (No Sunday or out of town work).
4. Willing to take Polygraph test.
5. Willing and capable of taking instructions.
6. Not have any prior heavy sales experience such as real estate, automobile, mobile homes, vacuum cleaners, etc.

We have an extraordinary benefit plan including a retirement profit sharing plan. We don't list with employment agencies and request they don't refer candidates to us.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Evans, 2608 N. Garfield St., had as houseguests during the Labor Day holidays their son and daughter-in-law, Mr and Mrs. Phillip Evans, and daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Herrmann, all of Houston. Several parties honored the visitors while they were in Midland...

RAINY CALHOUN of Midland will be among those competing for top honors during the 1979 State 4-H Fashion Revue Monday through Wednesday in Waco.

Theme of the event is "Fashion Fever."

Miss Calhoun, a 1979 graduate of Midland High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rayford Calhoun.

The state contestant earned the right to compete by winning first place in county and district 4-H Fashion Revues earlier this year.

Fashion Revue participation is an optional part of the 4-H and Youth clothing program, sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System, says Charles Green, Midland County Extension Agent. More than 10,000 youth across Texas were involved in the program last year.

Youth ages 9-19 developed skills in fashion, textiles, buying, garment construction, grooming, wardrobe planning and the social-psychological aspects of clothing as part of the program, the agent said...

LEE HIGH SCHOOL cheerleaders will be having a cheerleading clinic from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday in the LHS Cafeteria. The cheerleaders will teach cheers, chants, jumps and stunts for girls ages 6 to 18. Admission fee is $3, according to Cindy Glaze, cheerleader sponsor...

KELVIEW HEIGHTS BAPTIST CHURCH will sponsor an "Enriched Living" seminar workshop for women Tuesday through Friday at the church located at 407 W. Alta Ave.

Taught by Verna Birkey, the workshop will include discussion sessions and multi-media teaching presentations, using fullcolor motion film and graphically illustrated colorful visuals.

The workshop attempts to help women identify their needs, point out God's answers and prepare women to relate to others in a meaningful, soul-satisfying way, according to Ms. Birkey. She will take up the specific needs of others, including both family and friends, and outline definite steps toward meeting those needs.

The "Enriched Living" workshops have been held in over 250 cities across the United States, Canada and several foreign countries.

Each day's session will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Persons attending should bring a lunch. A beverage will be available.

Fee for the three-day event is $18 for the entire 22 hours, with $12 charged for the optional syllabus.

Ms. Birkey, of Seattle, Wash., holds degrees from Goshen College and Columbia Graduate School of Bible and Missions. She brings to this seminar a wealth of experience as counselor for college women, as dean of girls in a boarding high school, and in elementary education.

For more information, call Joan Cramer, 694-4054; Linda Crossen, 694-8063; Pat Ochsner, 694-5708, or Jackie Morgan, 682-3678.

'Just enough' best for kids

COLLEGE STATION—"Just enough" love is best for kids—rather than too little or too much, says Dorothy Taylor, a family life education specialist.

"Children who receive too little love feel rejected.

"Those who receive too much may suffer 'smother love'—and never be allowed to mature," she explains.

Ms. Taylor is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Children can be damaged by excessive—or insufficient—amounts of such essentials as affection, attention, stimulation and praise, the specialist cautions.

Different children require different amounts and expressions of love, so it's important for parents to know their children and their special needs, she says.

Some children respond to a hug, a kiss or other displays of affection.

Emily Goodfellow, chairman of Septemberfest 1979, draws attention to the fact that the event, sponsored by Las Manos, service organization to the Museum of the Southwest, gets under way at 11 a.m. Saturday and stays open until 8 p.m. On Sunday, Septemberfest will be open from noon to 5 p.m. Admission is $1 per person. Linda Bond, KOSA-TV producer, will emcee the entertainment, replacing the professional story tellers from Dallas who cancelled their appearance at the last minute. (Staff Photo by Mike Kardos)

John McFaddens to observe 50th

Mr. and Mrs. John W. McFadden, 604 E. Broadway St., will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with a family dinner Saturday in their home.

Mr. and Mrs. McFadden were married Sept. 7, 1929, in Struthers, Ohio. She is the former Peggy Rex.

Children of the couple are Mrs. J. A. (Barbara) Maxwell of Houston, J. David McFadden and Marylou Harper of Midland. They have six grandchildren, who are Loubeth Maxwell of Houston, James D. Maxwell of Snowbird, Utah, and Amy McFadden, Terry J. McFadden, David G. McFadden and Steven Harper of Midland.

Mr. and Mrs. McFadden moved from Struthers to Big Lake in 1945 and to Midland in 1974. He retired in 1966 from Humble Pipeline Co. They are members of the First United Methodist Church.

Hosts to the family dinner will be the children and grandchildren. Other guests at the dinner will be Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie McMullan of Iraan, Mrs. Richard Peters of Midland and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Porterfield of Monahans.

Meeting set

Greenwood Parent-Teacher Club will have the first meeting of the school year at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the school cafeteria.

Plans for the Halloween Carnival and introduction of new PTC officers and teachers will be on the program.

An open house will follow the business meeting. Refreshments are to be served.

All parents and newcomers to the school and community are invited to attend.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the young mother whose 20-month-old child screamed and trembled every time a vacuum cleaner was turned on brought back memories.

I went through the same thing with my son, John, now 21. When John was an infant he not only screamed whenever I used the vacuum cleaner, he would double up in pain. He reacted the same way to power tools and other high pitched noises.

The doctor said he probably would outgrow it and I should try to get him used to it. It didn't work. Sometimes the noise would make Johnny physically sick and the poor kid would throw up. I finally put away the vacuum cleaner and use a carpet sweeper instead.

I raised four kids, and Johnny was the only one with this problem. - E. T. IN N. J.

DEAR E. T.: I heard from several ear specialists that some children are born with an extremely high sensitivity to loud noises. They suffer severe pain when subjected to them and should not be forced to "get used to it." (Some outgrow this sensitivity and some do not.)

DEAR ABBY: Out of the blue, my sister's husband (I'll call him Neville) has asked her for a divorce. They're both 50 and have three married children.

Neville teaches English to foreigners, and it seems he has fallen in love with a 28-year-old pupil.

I have always gotten on quite well with Neville, so he keeps ringing me up to ask when he can bring his girlfriend over to meet me. I always give him some kind of excuse: "Sorry, not tonight, I have another engagement," etc. Soon I'll run out of excuses.

My sister is very upset over what her husband has done, and so am I. Furthermore, I am not the least bit interested in meeting his young girlfriend.

How can I handle this without hurting his feelings? -- CANADIAN READER

DEAR READER: Why surprise you. Loved ones rally to support you. Romance will be uneventful but provide some happy moments. Health should also be better than in recent past.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Natural abilities surface. Maintain balance in everything you do. Truth becomes evident, but evolves slowly and could cause disturbance with mate, partner. Do not make judgments.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may discover the difference between reality and fantasy. Accent is on basic responsibilities, including home and marriage. Romantic interest may be playing hard to get. Consider young person's suggestion carefully.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Discussion over finances with mate or family should be constructive. Romance will develop in meaningful way if you begin now to listen more and talk less.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Old friends may have stroke of luck and share experience with you. Do not feel rushed. Others are not likely to grant special favors. Evening hours ideal time to take care of pressing family matters.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Long-distance call or letter may disturb you. Do not be jealous of older person who seems to have all the answers. You can be testy with loved ones. Recognize your shortcomings and make amends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be alert to person who imposes on your generosity. Stay clear of get-rich schemes of friends. If engaged, you may be perturbed by actions of loved one. Find out facts before making accusations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Small child will provide happy moments this afternoon. Delayed letter will try your patience but do not take out your frustration on others. Romantic interlude may prove disappointing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Making important decision will reduce tension. Change is inevitable and will benefit everyone. Spending evening at home will be more enjoyable than a night on the town. Do not let emotions build up or overwhelm you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Organize appointments before starting out today. Community affairs hold special appeal now. Avoid taking any risks with your money. Easygoing approach will work for others, but not for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An interesting invitation is likely. Money crunch may cause minor domestic tension. Fatigue may overcome you early in the day. Take a nap so you will be ready to go during the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Shopping can be fun. Bargains abound if you look carefully. Schedules will be hard to maintain today and certain tasks may have to be postponed. Your mate will be understanding.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do more personal services for yourself and family in order to conserve money. Observe safety rules while working around house. Move cautiously and deliberately. Put valuables in a safe place. When keeping appointment with acquaintance, be prompt and well-groomed.

Tale of violent storms more than ghost story

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mangled bodies, smashed homes and ruined crops are the products of Hurricane David, now clawing at the Atlantic Coast. But it is only the latest chapter in a chronicle of violent storms that have altered American history.

Vicky's Beach Bags

The United States has been relatively lucky so far this year, but in the past the tragedy visited on the Dominican Republic by David has been equaled, or eclipsed in this country.

The worst occurred on Sept. 9, 1900, when waters from the Gulf of Mexico, driven by a hurricane, swept over the city of Galveston, Texas, taking an estimated 6,000 lives.

That storm reduced Galveston to "a city of wrecked homes and streets choked with debris sandwiched with six thousand corpses, a city...with the slime of the ocean on every spot and in every house," according to Clarence Ousley of the Galveston Tribune.

The hurricane that swept away much of that gracious southern city, like David and others, originated over the Atlantic, swept through the Caribbean then, unlike David, turned west to Texas instead of north.

THAT DOESN'T mean Florida is immune from the deadly storms, as 1928 was to show.

That year an early September hurricane swept out of the Atlantic, turned north and crashed into Florida northwest of Palm Beach.

The National Weather Service says 1,836 Americans died in the Lake Okeechobee hurricane as it was christened in the days before such storms were given the names of women and men — and throughout the Caribbean the death toll has been estimated as high as 5,000.

A decade later, New England lost 600 lives as a hurricane swept north. Other hurricanes have taken a heavy toll throughout the eastern United States.

Indeed, Don Sarreals, a weather service meteorologist in Washington, expressed fear Tuesday that residents of the Appalachian mountains may not be sufficiently wary of David.

While coastal residents have heeded warnings and taken shelter, he said, David will also bring heavy rains and possible flash flooding along the Appalachian chain and a severe hazard may exist there.

THE EFFECTS of hurricanes, nature's greatest storms, have reached beyond their immediate tragedy in the past.

For example, a hurricane in 1766 crushed the farms on the Caribbean island of Martinique, ruining the once-wealthy planter Joseph-Gaspard Tascher. His daughter returned to France to seek her fortune and met and married an ambitious young military officer.

So a hurricane led one young woman to leave colonial life and become Empress Josephine, wife of Napoleon Bonaparte.

It was also a hurricane that brought Alexander Hamilton into history. His description of such a storm in a letter to his father so impressed local planters in the Caribbean that they collected money to send the young man to America for an education.

And in the late 1770s and early 1780s a series of storms devastated British warships operating along the coast of the rebellious colonies. Some historians have suggested the final British surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown was in part due to British navy's reluctance to engage the French fleet off Yorktown during the fall hurricane season.

It was a hurricane in 1837 that led Congress to pass a law requiring that passenger ships carry a life preserver for each person aboard. A storm had demolished the steamer Home off Cape Hatteras, and there were only two life preservers aboard. Ninety persons died.

AT LEAST one other case of benefit can be traced to the tragedy of a hurricane: a storm that kept the United States out of a war.

In 1888, Germany was trying to establish a protectorate over Samoa in the Pacific and in the fighting some American property was damaged.

American warships sped to the scene and battle fleets from the two nations faced each other over loaded guns when a savage hurricane swept down upon them.

Ships were sunk, wrecked or driven aground and more than 150 sailors died. But in the face of the tragedy, the survivors from both nations struggled to help one another and island natives came to the aid of both.

Young says he 'raised holy hell' about U.S. not dealing with PLO

MONROVIA, Liberia — Andrew Young said he "raised holy hell" about America's refusal to deal with the PLO and that it is equally scandalous that Africa does not have dealings with Israel.

Referring to his resignation as America's U.N. ambassador last month after an unauthorized meeting in New York with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization, Young said Thursday: "I raised literally holy hell in my country because I do not think that it is a scandal, that it is a ridiculous policy that our country has no relations with the Palestinians that are effective."

"But by the same token, I think that it's equally scandalous that Africa does not have positive and progressive relationships with the state of Israel."

Most African nations broke relations with Israel in solidarity with Arab states after the 1973 Mideast war.

Young spoke at a banquet in his honor hosted by E. Reginald Townsend, Liberia's minister of state for presidential affairs. Liberian President William Tolbert, current chairman of the Organization of African Unity, did not attend the banquet.

However, Young indicated he will tell Tolbert when he meets him today — and other African leaders he expects to meet during his current tour — that they have a unique unifying role to play in the Middle East.

Young is leading a delegation of 24 American businessmen on a 10-day trade mission to seven African countries. Young said the purpose of the mission is to try to redress the current imbalance in U.S.-African trade. The United States imports about $18 billion worth of raw materials from Africa and exports $6 billion to the continent.

But with Young's resignation, the tour has become something of a valedictory trip for the black ambassador, one of whose first actions upon appointment to the United Nations 30 months ago was to visit Africa.

His trips and personal rapport with key African leaders have been widely credited with ending long-standing U.S. neglect of this continent. At the banquet, Young said that what he began would not end with his departure. "I want to assure you that those relations (with Africa) are in no way impaired by my departure."

"Ambassador Donald McHenry...will continue very much in the same tradition. But more importantly the president and the secretary of state have agreed totally with the direction of the Africa policy...."

McHenry was Young's deputy at the United Nations and has been appointed to succeed him.

Young also suggested that it was in the Africans' interest to have President Carter re-elected, and one of the ways they could do this was by supporting Carter's Mideast policies.

Methodist minister charged with soliciting nude model

MARSEILLES, Ill. (AP) — A 25-year-old Methodist minister has been charged Wednesday with posing as a Playboy Magazine photographer and soliciting a young divorcee to pose in the nude, police said.

Patrick Quigg, of the First United Methodist Church of Morris, was charged Wednesday with forgery and attempted theft of services from Katherine Newell, 21, owner of Katie's Florist Shop in Marseilles.

He is free on $3,000 bond. Authorities said Quigg, a bachelor, has been an assistant pastor at the church for about two weeks.

Jim Hollenbeck, assistant Marseilles police chief, said Quigg was arrested Wednesday after the florist shop had been staked out with cooperation from Ms. Newell, a 5-foot, 85-pounder and mother of a 3-year-old boy.

States mount challenge to fed's control of land

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Nevada has picked up support for its "Sagebrush Rebellion" as two states promised to back its legal challenge to federal control of vast stretches of Western land.

The attorneys general of Idaho and Utah said they would support Nevada's attack on federal control of 470 million acres of land, about 90 percent of which is in the West.

The promises came before Thursday's opening session of the Western Coalition on Public Lands, where officials from 14 Western states discussed a range of common problems with the federal administration of land in their states.

The officials agreed to exchange legal information in their fights with the federal government over use of the federally owned land.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, urged the 250 people at the opening session to join him in "this second AMERICAN Revolution."

Those same forces that combined to produce the first American Revolution are felt again

Change under way in conservation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government's role in saving the nation's land and water resources is undergoing one of the biggest upheavals since the Agriculture Department took over the main responsibility for conservation 44 years ago.

David C. Unger, deputy assistant secretary for natural resources and environment, calls it "the most fundamental look every taken" and federal, state and local authorities "have the best beginning they have ever had in designing public programs" for soil and water conservation.

Resources are being depleted faster than they can be replaced. Millions of tons of precious topsoil, for example, have been lost forever to erosion and the encroachment of cities onto prime farmland.

Congress, in the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977, ordered USDA to review the past and current status of conservation efforts and, through massive public participation, develop alternatives that would be used for formulate policies in the future.

The law requires this process to be repeated every five years so that Congress then can have an opportunity for revising or expanding the programs and policies over the longer haul.

A 500-page draft report was published recently. It was an appraisal of the past and existing situation. A second report will be ready this fall that will piece together the information available in the first document and also take a look at the projected needs of the next 50 years.

After further public discussions and comments, a final report will be submitted in 1980, including recommendations to Congress for amending the conservation law through 1984.

In addressing the annual meeting of the Soil Conservation Society of America in Ottawa, Canada, a month ago, Unger said the review requires innovation and the consideration of possible options that may raise objections from some quarters.

"We cannot afford to approach conservation policy from the 'least common denominator' method, where the only changes that result are those that meet no objection," Unger said.

"But in the final equation, we need to focus our efforts on policies that can be realistically expected to be implemented successfully," he added.

The examination of soil and water conservation policies is so broad it eventually is expected to have some impact on basic farm policies — those that dictate acreage controls, quotas and price supports for major commodities such as wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco and dairy products.

Under the broadest interpretation of the study, it is conceivable that some day, if Congress gets tough about it, farmers will have to take better care of their land as a normal qualification for federal price supports on crops.

Another possibility could be a similar restraint on non-farm interests, including municipalities, who might have to abide by conservation codes before qualifying for federal or state aid. Politically, some of these possibilities appear to be unlikely in the near future. Opposition usually follows when anything is seriously proposed that would tend to diminish the rights of individuals to manage their own land.

But the massive study under way does include some "themes" or "strategies" that are being looked at.

Briefly, here is the way some of these alternatives stack up, according to USDA material:

—Present strategy, called a "supermarket approach," involves 34 separate programs in which USDA offers to local people, including farmers, some type of aid for soil and water conservation, ranging from technical assistance to outright federal grants.

This method "has evolved over the years and responds to landowner initiative to seek assistance" from the government.

—Critical Area Resource and Environmental System Analysis, called CARF, involves identifying critical problems and "cost-effective" solutions on the basis of "multi-county, multi-disciplinary planning" for entire regions that have common conservation problems.

—Environmental and Resource Action Concept, ERAC, would be based on an analysis at the national level and the allocation of federal program resources among regions.

One feature would involve specific conservation objectives and their social, economic and environmental returns on federal investment.

—Expanded State Role. This would involve re-directing federal spending "in ways to encourage greater funding by the states, particularly in the cost sharing of conservation measures and in the provision of technical assistance" to farmers and others.

Getty completes Ward discovery

Getty Oil Co., operating from Midland, announced potential test on No. 1-27-19 University, wildcat operation in Ward County, 15 miles southwest of Wink.

From the Wolfcamp, it finalized for a calculated absolute open flow potential of 5,100,000 cubic feet of gas per day. Completion was through perforations from 15,803 to 16,146 feet.

The project was drilled to 18,500 feet, 5.5-inch liner was set at 18,450 feet and hole is plugged back to 16,233 feet.

It is 2.5 miles northwest of the War-Wink (Wolfcamp gas) pool and 2,200 feet from north and 1,000 feet from east lines of section 27, block 19, University Lands survey.

The site is one location south of a re-entered Varel (Glorieta oil) well which is scheduled to test the San Andres, and 2,500 feet from south and 995 feet from west lines of section 512, block 97, H&TC survey.

The site is one location west of a 4,050-foot dry hole and two miles southwest of the T.J.C. (Capps gas) pool which also produces oil in the Capps.

Finance committee votes to exempt heavy oil from levy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee, in its first action on President Carter's "windfall profits" tax, voted unanimously Thursday to exempt "heavy oil" from the proposed levy.

Heavy oil, most of which is in California, represents only a tiny fraction of the nation's oil production. The Energy Department estimates production of heavy oil at about 250,000 barrels a day, compared with total domestic oil production of about 8 million barrels. Carter, who earlier this year removed all government price controls from heavy oil, asked the exemption from the new tax as an incentive to increase production.

The tax exemption would reduce expected federal revenues from the proposed tax by about $200 million a year starting in 1980, a figure that would double by about 1985.

The committee, which is generally expected to approve a weaker "windfall profits" tax than was voted by the House, plans to work the rest of September on the proposal.

In an effort to reduce reliance on imported oil, Carter has begun gradually phasing out federal price controls on U.S.-produced crude oil. He recommended the new windfall tax to take away some of the increased money that will flow to the oil industry as the price of domestic oil climbs to world levels.

Carter wants to use revenues from the tax to finance development of substitute fuels to supplement oil supplies, to improve transportation efficiency and to help low-income families cope with higher fuel bills.

Despite the label, the tax has no relation to oil company profits. It simply would apply to a portion of the price increases above current levels.

The Finance Committee spent most of its session Thursday debating which estimates of revenue from the tax should be used. At the insistence of Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the chairman, the panel agreed to deal only with the net revenue produced by the proposed new tax and to ignore, for the time being, the extra income taxes that will be paid by oil producers because of the removal of price controls.

SCURRY WELL

F. T. Hodge of Fort Worth No. 4 E. P. Ainsworth has been completed as the seventh well in the Varel, North (San Andres) pool of Scurry County, three miles east of Fluvanna.

The well, 1/2 mile northwest of other San Andres production, completed for a 24-hour pumping potential of 14 barrels of oil and 54 barrels of water, through perforations from 2-136 to 2,330 feet.

Gravity of the oil is 36.4 degrees and the gas-oil ratio is 150-1. Total depth is 2,375 feet, and 5.5-inch casing is set on bottom. The pay was acidized with 1,500 gallons and fractured with 30,000 gallons.

The site is one location south of a re-entered Varel (Glorieta oil) well which is scheduled to test the San Andres, and 2,500 feet from south and 995 feet from west lines of section 512, block 97, H&TC survey.

DAWSON CONFIRMER

John L. Cox of Midland No. 1 Emfinger has been completed as the second well in the Wells, South (Spraberry) pool of Dawson County, six miles west of Lamesa.

One-half mile north of the discovery well, it finalized for a 24-hour pumping potential of 84 barrels of 40-gravity oil and 51 barrels of water, through perforations from 8,285 to 8,297 feet.

The gas-oil ratio is 104-1, and the gravity was not reported.

Brunner & Homes finalized the well in 1959 through the above perforations and it became depleted in 1960.

The well is one location south of the pool's depleted San Angelo oil discovery and 2,242 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 21, block 2, H&TC survey.

ED VETTER WITHDRAWS RESOLUTION

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Opposition from two Democratic senators has forced the governor's energy advisor to withdraw a resolution that would have given him power to reinstate gasoline rationing in emergencies.

Sens. Peyton McKnight and Bill Meier of the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council said they would like to review any plan before it is adopted.

The dispute occurred Thursday during the council's first meeting.

Republican Gov. Bill Clements had restricted the sale of gas in 17 counties on an odd-even day basis, according to license numbers, but he lifted the rationing Sunday.

Clements' authority from President Carter to limit gas sales extends until Sept. 30.

Energy advisor Ed Vetter, executive director of the council, asked for "fail-safe" authority in the event Clements' authority is not extended past that date and a gas shortage develops.

"There might be some chance — which we don't expect to happen — that there could be a real catastrophe in the month of October," said Vetter.

Vetter's resolution stated that any emergency order would require the approval of Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, council co-chairmen.

McKnight, D-Tyler, said the council "could be assembled on pretty short notice ... no reflection on you, Mr. Vetter, or the governor or lieutenant governor ... but I'd like to see an exact plan before I give my approval."

Soviets slipped troops to Cuba 10 years ago

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union apparently slipped its first ground combat elements into Cuba about 10 years ago while U.S. attention was focused on the Vietnam war, according to administration officials.

Much of the U.S. intelligence effort had shifted to Southeast Asia and concern about Cuba had ebbed when signs of a possible Soviet command structure were first detected there in the late 1960s, said the officials, who asked not to be named.

There was some feeling among intelligence specialists then that the command structure might be in

"Had we known, we would have taken an extremely dim view of the situation, since we consistently opposed Soviet activities in Cuba." — Henry Kissinger.

Cuba to oversee what was described to Congress as a "substantial number" of Soviet military advisers, technicians and instructors, these officials said.

Since there was no significant buildup of Russian military personnel after that, officials said, intelligence authorities apparently decided there was no cause for alarm.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said the intelligence community has concluded that a Soviet combat brigade of 2,000 to 3,000 men has been in Cuba since at least the mid-1970s and that elements may have been there since the early 1970s or even before that.

Other officials said the first evidence of a command structure appeared in 1968 or 1969.

But former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Wednesday he knew of no Soviet combat troops in organized units in Cuba during the Nixon and Ford administrations.

"Had we known, we would have taken an extremely dim view of the situation, since we consistently opposed Soviet activities in Cuba," he told CBS News.

Meanwhile, Cuba made its first official reaction to the reports Wednesday night. The official Cuban news agency said U.S. statements about the presence of Soviet combat troops were a "maneuver" aimed at discrediting Cuba during the ongoing conference of non-aligned nations in Havana.

But the commentary by Prensa Latina stopped short of denying the troops were stationed on the island nation. The latest remarks echoed earlier unofficial comments made by a government spokesman.

If the brigade has been in Cuba since the late 1960s, Carter administration officials said, the Russians have not used it "to put a finger in our eye" in all those years.

Even now, U.S. intelligence is uncertain why the Russians have placed such a ground unit in Cuba, with motorized infantry, tanks and artillery.

Speculation ranges from the possibility that the brigade is intended to bolster Cuba's defenses while it has thousands of troops in Africa to the suggestion that such a unit is the nucleus of a bigger force if the Russians choose that route.

Some administration officials said one possible mission for the Soviet troops was to guard a major Soviet intelligence installation in Cuba. The officials, who asked not to be named, described it as consisting of a variety of electronic and radar listening devices aimed at intercepting communications in the United States.

"It's one of the biggest they've got in the world," one official said. He said the installation has been in Cuba for some time and that no major new construction has been spotted.

There is also the possibility that the Soviet ground unit is a vehicle for training Cuban ground troops in Soviet tactics as well as in the use of Russian-made equipment.

Other administration officials said that although the unit's mission remains ambiguous, they are convinced it is an independent combat brigade and not a guard unit of some sort. They said the nature of the brigade was confirmed Aug. 17 by evidence it was on field maneuvers.

While such a small force by itself represents no military threat to U.S. security, confirmation of its presence is seen as politically embarrassing to the Carter administration.

It has caused some to question the U.S. intelligence capability, although Vance denied there was an intelligence failure. Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., the Senate minority leader, said Wednesday he had no doubt but that the United States' reduction in the size of its intelligence community and in its surveillance of Cuba "contributed to our failure to identify this threat much earlier than we did."

And the questioning comes at a time when the administration is trying to convince the Senate that the intelligence is good enough to catch any violations of the new strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union.

Vance indicated it is much easier to detect Soviet missile bases and to evaluate test firings than it is to tell the difference between Soviet and Cuban ground units equipped with the same kinds of materiel.

But Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said "there is no likelihood whatever" that the SALT II pact will be ratified by the Senate as long as the troops remain in Cuba.

Some intelligence experts are reported to have insisted months ago there was a Soviet ground combat force in Cuba. The apparent delay in confirmation comes after some notable fallouts attributed to U.S. intelligence over the last decade or so:

—Missing signals of an impending Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968.

—Misreading Turkish military intentions before the Turks invaded Cyprus in 1974.

—Failure to predict the 1973 Arab attack on Israel.

—Flawed analysis of the Iranian situation, which led to the failure to anticipate the fall of the shah early this year.

Udall saves taxpayers

TUSCON, Ariz. (AP) — Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., said he felt he "struck a blow for taxpayers" after the U.S. Postal Service reversed a ruling that would have cost the city of Tucson an estimated $150,000 a year in postage.

Udall said Wednesday he had asked Postmaster General William F. Bolger to reverse the July ruling that ordered 26 cents postage on each computer card that bore the combined bills for city water and county sewer service. City officials had said they would go to court if the ruling was not reversed.

Waste wood for boilers untapped source of energy

NEW YORK (AP) — The energy crisis could be a blessing in disguise for America's forests, says a pioneer Michigan woodsman who believes the solution to the fuel shortage can be found in wood power.

"I'm not talking about using more fireplaces or wood stoves for heating homes," said Norval Morey, president of a firm that manufactures wood-harvesting equipment. "I'm talking about using waste wood in industrial boilers."

The harvesting of this wood, a vast and virtually untapped source of energy, could eliminate the need to import oil into the United States, claims Morey.

At the same time, he added, the thinning of the forests would eliminate tons of dead and rotting trees, promote the growth of healthy woods and provide a more widespread habitat for wildlife.

Proper management "has always required that we clean up and remove the diseased, overmature and overcrowded trees from our forests," Morey, president of Morbark Industries Inc., said in an interview in New York.

And, he added, the use of waste wood as fuel could supply the power for generating more than 100 percent of the nation's electrical consumption, freeing up oil and natural gas now used for that purpose.

Morey said some 40 billion tons of wood was going to waste and rotting in our forests each year, and about 5 billion tons could be removed for conversion into chips for fuel.

"This is the equivalent of 8.5 billion barrels of oil," explained Morey, a one-time lumberjack who grew up in the small Michigan town of Winn, where his company is headquartered.

"It's a 'ready-now' source of industrial fuel that could be implemented immediately in large proportions for use in the more than 200,000 industrial boilers in the nation."

The nation's oil consumption now ranges between 5 and 6 billion barrels a year, about 3½ billion of which are imported.

Morey's firm is involved now with two utilities in building at Hersey, Mich., what is believed to be the nation's first privately funded, wood-fueled generating plant.

The $31 million facility, scheduled for completion in 1983, will generate enough electricity to supply more than 25,000 persons, he said.

According to Morey, wood can be burned in steam boilers for half the cost of oil. Most boilers now operating on gas or oil, he said, can be converted easily to burn wood. Or the wood itself can be gasified.

Until a few years ago, he said, the technology had not been available to economically clear out from the forests the dead, dying or diseased timber. But with the price of oil soaring on the world market, wood energy is now a practical alternative.

In fact, he said, oil would have to drop in price to $7.50 a barrel to compete with wood.

Morey would like to see the federal government undertake a program to spur the development of wood power, for which he says the technology is available now.

"This is something that cannot be said for more popularized and publicized energy alternatives, such as nuclear fusion, solar, wind, geothermal, tidal and the like," he said.

Morey advocates a crash program to build hundreds of 10-50-megawatt wood-energy plants across the nation. Ultimately, he said, a network of these plants could feed into a national electrical grid system which would eliminate the possibility of brownouts.

Some of the opposition to the idea of wood power, he says, stems from the mistaken idea that it would deplete the nation's forests, leaving the land barren in the wake of gathering wood for fuel.

But what he advocates, Morey says, is just the opposite of conventional harvesting.

"We propose environmental thinning," he explained, "taking only those trees which are detrimental to the best forest environment. This concept promotes vibrant, healthy forests which provide increased forest production, with less fire hazard and more healthy regrowth."
